Pastor Reviews The Accomplishments Made By Presbyterian Congregation

Rev. Fenton C. Jones Urges Church To Continue In The Doing of Big Things.

Giving a review of his pastorate in Wayne, Rev. Fenton C. Jones who leaves the Presbyterian church here after next Sunday to accept a call to Gordon, Neb., spoke to his congregation last Sunday as follows: "In reviewing our work together for the last eight and a half years let me remind you that my first sermon as pastor on the 29th day of May, 1921, was based on Paul's assertion, 'I determine to know nothing among you but Jesus Christ and Him crucified.' That I have preached Jesus Christ to you, no one will deny. That the crucified Saviour has been held before you as the Christian's example of service and sacrifice will not be questioned by those thinking people who know that the religion of Jesus has a message for the militarism of today, for the administration of justice, for child labor, for race prejudice and our pagan self indulgence. If the time ever comes when the religion of Jesus has no message for honesty and integrity in public affairs, then I preach in public affairs, then I leave it to those who are willing to cease its preaching. When my religion does not affect my politics, my social life and my business, I shall abandon it as useless.

"Early in the present pastorate this church undertook some forward steps of great significance. First among these was the step away from the idea of leaving to our children and grand children the inheritance of our debts. We were facing the necessity of deciding whether the church's bill for paving should be paid in one sum or in twenty annual payments. I regret exceedingly that there are no records which I can find of that joint meeting of the elders and trustees when it was decided to pay the bill at once rather than let it hang over the church for a period of twenty years. It cost some of us a fair amount of money—but it was worth it. The twenty-payment plan, which many seemed to favor, would have blocked the work of the church for many years.

"You may remember that when I first became your pastor, I told you that I would ask you to do but little for me; but I would ask you to do big things for yourselves. Here, too, I have kept faith with you. For a long period of time, you had talked about building adequate rooms for your social and Sunday school work. I asked you to stop talking and try praying for twenty minutes. You have never told me that you did pray about it, but you did build and today have the finest equipped plant for a town of this size in northern Nebraska. Not only did you build, but you paid over twenty-three thousand dollars for the building when it was completed, and the best evidence that you were not financially embarrassed, is in the fact that the next year you raised the largest local budget in your history, amounting to $6,000.00, and at the same time you contributed $2,465.00 to benevolences—an amount more than double the largest of any year prior to 1921. I also told you eight years ago that I would be the most expensive pastor you have ever had, and again I have kept my word.

"During this time when you have taken these forward steps, it has been my privilege to be your leader. I use the word leader advisedly, for I have never asked you to do anything which I was not already doing. When I have urged upon you the value of the family altar, I have only offered you a blessing which my own home enjoyed. When I have told you that a tenth of your income belonged to God, I have always been able to say, 'I tithed, and find that ninety cents with God's blessing, will go farther than one hundred cents without God's blessing.' It may interest you to know that because of tithing, we have been able to pay into the several treasuries of this church during those eight and one-half years, the sum of over $1,600.00.

"Just as an athletic coach enjoys seeing his team win victories or his men break previous records, I have enjoyed and appreciated your record breaking during my pastorate. First, you have spent more money in the improvement of your plant than any have in any like period of your existence as a church; second, you have given more liberal support to the various benevolence boards of the church than you ever have before; and third, the present pastorate has continued for two and a half years longer than any other pastorate in your history.

"I have always been proud of this church, and I am proud of it today. I would, however, be false to you and the great trust imposed upon me, if I did not remind you that there is always room for improvement. Greater and better opportunities are ever before us. You owe it to yourselves; you owe it to him whom you will select as my successor; you owe it to your God to go on to better and ever better accomplishments. God's old command to Moses is ever new and ever true, 'Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward.' You are capable of performing in the eight years before you better work than you have done in the past."

Schedule Terms In District Court

Equity term of district court will be held in Wayne December 23. The jury session is set for January 13 and Judge C. H. Stewart of Norfolk, will preside at the latter.

Intruders Rob Altona Store

Fred Hilpert Stole and Post Office Lose Money and Goods Sunday Night.

Break Door Lock

Place Is Ransacked in Search of Money—Car Tracks Are Traced For Distance.

Prying open the lock on the front door of the Fred Hilpert store at Altona Sunday night, intruders took money and stamps from the post office and money, shoes, overshoes and cigars from the store stock. Loss to Mr. Hilpert is estimated at about $25 and the post office loss is a little more than this amount. Officers are in search of the parties. The intruders thought to number three, drove to the front of the store, opening the door lock with a crowbar. They took $13 in cash and more than this sum in stamps from the post office which is located in the store. They found a can of nickles, a sum of about $15, belonging to the store and took this. The rest of the receipts Mr. Hilpert had taken from the store. The intruders helped themselves to three pairs of shoes and three pairs of overshoes, and they took all of the Chesterfield and Camel cigars. They opened desks and drawers in the store, evidently searching for money.

From the fact that a car could be traced from the store Monday morning, it is thought the intruders visited the place toward morning Monday. The tracks were still visible in the light snowfall. The tires were rather heavy, belonging, it is thought, either to a heavy car or to a truck. Tracing the tracks, it is figured that the car drove north a distance, and turned around, returning to the store, and then went east on the gravelled highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilpert who were at the Gus Behrens home until about midnight Sunday, did not notice any disturbance at the store when they returned home, though they did not go into the building.

Former Student In Boxing Tournament

Gerald Cherry, instructor at Winside and former student at the college here, participated in the annual A. A. U. Nebraska amateur boxing tournament at Omaha Tuesday evening. Mr. Cherry was entered in the welterweight class. Forty-two amateur boxers were entered to decide the championship in nine divisions. Merle Cherry of Laurel, brother of Gerald Cherry, was entered in the lightweight class.

Two Lose Cases In Supreme Court

Lincoln, Neb.—A $20,000 verdict against the Burlington railroad came to naught for Theodore H. Phillips when the supreme court reversed the district court of Holt county and dismissed his case.
Ruling that a pick is not a "dangerous" weapon in the sense implied by the employers' liability act, the supreme court held this suit should never even have been submitted to the jury.
Phillips, a section foreman, was seriously injured by his pick when he tumbled with it down an embankment. His attorneys contended he should have been supplied with tie tongs for the work he was doing.
Stanton Farmer Also Loses.
A claim by John Hilliard Peters that though he had mortgaged away a 200-acre Stanton county farm, left him by his father years ago, he should be entitled to its ownership, found no favor with the supreme court.
Peters relied on a provision in his father's will that said the land should not be mortgaged nor encumbered before 1925. Hit by deflation conditions, he had put the farm up as security for about $40,000 worth of personal notes, and ended by losing it all.

Market Report.

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.
Unevenness has been noted in live stock markets this week but no radical changes have taken place. All markets appear to be particularly sensitive to increases and decreases in receipts at this time.
Thirteen leading markets in the country received 124,000 cattle on the first two days of the week, 7,000 more than the same time last week. Local supplies also showed an increase over a week ago.
Beef steers and yearlings eased off weak to a quarter on the initial session of the week and held steady with that basis on the following day. Yearlings and light weight steers carried a better undertone than the weighty grades even though there were few of the latter class on offer.
Several sales were made on medium and light weights at $14.00 to 15.00 with other well finished grades at $13.00 to 14.00. However, the bulk of the run was made up of short feds that cashed at $10.50 to 12.50 with plain-er warmed ups on down to $9.50 and under.
Butcher stock also ruled weak to a quarter lower on Monday and remained on this basis on the second session. Bulk of the short fed heifers cashed at $10.00 to 11.00 with a few scattered lots to $12.00 and above and down to $9.50 and under. Most of the butcher cows brought $5.50 to 7.75 with good grain feds to $9.25 and better. Canners and cutters bulked at $5.00 to 6.00.
Bulls and veals remained stationary. The majority of the sausage bulls sold at $7.00 to 8.00 with heavy beef grades to $8.75. Veals topped at $13.00 to most interests.
Stockers and feeders were slow and weak to a little lower, owing to the arrival of bigger supplies than expected and to the down

Tells Club About Visit in Germany

In addressing the Wayne branch of the American Association of University Women at the State Teachers College last evening, Supt. H. R. Best spoke on conditions in Germany after the war. Supt. Best visited many parts of that country after the Armistice was signed.

The speaker recalled the Christmas he spent in Germany. The people had sacrificed extremely during the war, but they observed the holidays in a devoted worship. Gifts are not so important in Germany as in this country.

Best stated Christmas brings everyone to church in sincere devotion. Tiny gifts which children receive delight them immensely.

The people of Germany suffered physically during the war, the speaker stated. A child whom Supt. Best guessed to be 10 years old said he was 15. The little folks had not received proper food to make them develop physically in the war period and consequently many were stunted.

Supt. Best told of the many beautiful old cities with their castles and churches. Many buildings, walls and streets are built of stone that has served for long periods of time. Every plot of ground in the country is used. Even steep hills are terraced and planted to grapes. Nothing is wasted and everything is kept neat and clean.

Supt. Best told several legends which enrich Germany's life.

State to Gravel Many Miles Soon

Lexington, Neb., Dec. 11.—Two high state officials—Attorney General Sorenson and Roy Cochran of the department of public works, were among the speakers on the program of the Nebraska State Irrigation association here today.

Tracing the connection between irrigation and highways, Mr. Cochran recalled the time but sixteen years ago when Scottsbluff county, now a center of extensive irrigation projects, boasted but 154 autos and trucks.

But with the coming of a canal prosperity has also come. The western valley that once were but pleasant interludes in a land of sand hills have now become the most highly cultivated and prosperous districts of the state.

In the same county there are today more than 9,000 cars and trucks. They haul the produce to market and the wares of the city to the farms. They require good roads and they have them.

Five hundred and fifty miles of gravel and a hundred of paving will be laid down next year. Mr. Cochran predicted. In spite of the fact that the federal government has surplus aid funds for this state, Nebraska pays more than 80 percent of the money that goes on her roads.

All of the available federal and money cannot be used because the state's total allowable highway mileage has already been placed on the national system.

It is still the policy of his department, Mr. Cochran stated, to gravel and a hundred of paving with traffic justifies pavement. Near such market centers as Omaha and Nebraska City, hard surface is needed and is being supplied. Elsewhere, as a rule, gravel provides good quality at low cost. "As one who grew up in the midst of irrigation projects," Mr. Cochran concluded, "I hope to see construction of storage works that will guarantee present projects and expand irrigation benefits to lands, such as those contained in the tri-county project and others over the state, to the end that all water in Nebraska may render its greatest possible service. With the resultant improvement that will come with greater agricultural production, it can be expected that highway development will keep pace with the demands of the people."

Two Wife Traders Return to Homes

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 16.—While the wives whom they traded last April waited together in a car outside of the state prison this morning, Otto Slade and Horace Reed of Fremont appeared before the state probate board in the prison library room asking for commutation of their 10-month sentences for adultery.

The two men are now reconciled to their wives, according to Rolla Van Kirk, who represented them in the hearing. Slade and Reed each have two small children.

Although the husbands had at one time consulted lawyers with the intention of securing divorces they have now decided to be satisfied with their first wives.

The county commissioners, who have been giving some aid to the Slade family, favor freeing both men as does County Attorney Max Towle. A petition signed by 31 Bennet people favoring the application also was presented to the board.

Reed, who is 36 years old, and a veteran of the world war, had been working for the county highway department before the wife trading episode. Slade, 31, had been operating a garage at Bennet and another one north of Lincoln. Neither man testified at the hearing.

New Loan Approved. Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 10. The Midwest Grain Marketing association received notice today from the federal farm board that its request for an additional 200 thousand dollars loan had been granted. About a month ago the board loaned the association 40 thousand dollars.

According to Otis Smith, the association will make its first payment to farmers at the rate of 52 cents per bushel at Omaha on No. 1 hard wheat and No. 1 northern spring wheat. This is an increase of 5 cents per bushel.

For River Project. Washington, Dec. 9. Allotment of $700,000 for additional contract work and for advance preparation for next season's operations on the inland waterways project of the Missouri river was announced today by the war department.

The rapid progress being made on the project, the department said, made necessary the additional funds.

Of the sum $600,000 will be for the work below Kansas City and $100,000 for the work above Kansas City.

Okoboji Disaster is in District Court

Spirit Lake, Ia.—Testimony was heard in the district court here Tuesday that John and Milo Hartman made threats throughout the month of July that they would destroy the business of Jasper Alexander and Frank Long, owners of the Miss Thriller, which was sunk in a collision with the Zipper, a boat owned by the Lortz family, causing nine people to lose their lives on West Okoboji lake on the night of July 28.

Milo Hartman is on trial on a charge of conspiring to injure and destroy the character, business and property of Alexander and Long, Hartman and his son, John, own the Eagle boat lines, and operated the Zipper, which collided with the Miss Thriller. The Hartmans were indicted jointly, but only Milo is on trial at this time.

Testifies to Threats.

Alexander, on the stand, testified that Milo Hartman at various times had threatened to put the owners of the Miss Thriller out of business, and had shouted to people who intended to ride in it that it was not fit to ride in.

Roy Lombard of Okoboji, owner of the Red Mahogany and operator of the Sea Gull, both of which docked with the Miss Thriller, testified that Milo Hartman said to him at the time that Lombard, Alexander and Long built their new dock, that the dock would not stay there long.

He also stated that on Sunday following the Fourth of July, Milo Hartman said to him, "we will get the Miss Thriller and then get you." Lombard has been employed by the Hartmans before he went into business for himself, and he testified that John Hartman told him that he was foolish to quit, saying, "you can't beat old daddy."

Lombard also testified that one time while standing on the dock of the Teaser, another boat, Hartman yelled to the people on the Miss Thriller dock, "don't ride in that boat; it's not safe," and that he continued to use profane language. He said that as a result of this five of the people on the Miss Thriller dock left.

Woman Heard Threats. Mrs. Nan Mead, of Arnolds Park, who is employed in a stand across the street from the Miss Thriller dock, followed Lombard on the stand and testified that she heard statements almost daily from the Hartmans against the rival boats and their owners. She testified that a pet phrase of Hartman's was, "We will put you out of business. When we are through, we will be the only ones owning boats on the lake." She said that she was forced to hear abusive and profane language almost daily from Hartman, and that she never heard Long or Alexander reply in like language.

Lomas Gipner of Arnolds Park, operator of the Sea Gull on the Miss Thriller dock, who worked for the Hartmans until the last week in June, testified that Milo

Hartman had said to him on or about June 10, "We'll get the Miss Thriller first, and later we'll get Lombard, and we have a man who can tear out your dock alone." Five other witnesses were heard Tuesday. The last witness was Mrs. Frank Long, wife of one of the owners of the Miss Thriller.

She testified that she had heard Hartman say to people on the Thriller dock, "Don't ride in that boat. It's only an old boat dug up from the bottom of the St. Lawrence river and wouldn't be allowed on the lakes, except for the fact that Frank Long is a son-in-law of the boat inspector."

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

LOOKS LIKE NEARLY EVERY CLUB IN MAJOR LEAGUE WILL HAVE NEW PILOT FOR 1930 BASEBALL CAMPAIGN

BY PHILIP MARTIN

UNEASY rests the head that wears the crown" might be stated just as truthfully today with regard to managerial departments of major league baseball as in the day of feudal rulers centuries ago. Unless the baseball manager of today can produce a winning team he is fired outright, without the hulla-balloo of a revolution.

Today we find three men who managed major league teams in the 1929 season without jobs. They resigned under pressure, or, to state it simply, were " canned." Two others lost jobs with one team but fortunately, or unfortunately, each was selected to pilot another club during the 1930 campaign. A sixth gave up one job, voluntarily, it is said, to assume the leadership of an admittedly weaker aggregation.

Lena Blackburne, Chicago White Sox pilot, who was forever keeping his eyes on the dexterous fists of the great Art Shires, had boy first baseman, won't manage the Sox next year. They won't let him. Donnie Bush, who was given walking papers from the Pittsburgh Pirates, will attempt to dominate the Chicagoans and tame the Bad Boy.

Jack Hendricks isn't welcome in the pilot-house of the Cincinnati Reds any more. Thus far he hasn't a job.

Bill Carrigan held the reins of the Boston Red Sox for four years but couldn't drive them out of the dark depths of the American League basement. He won't be back. The new manager has not been announced.

Many felt that Dan Howley's success in developing the St. Louis Browns from a second division club to a hustling front-ranking outfit should warrant his retention at the helm. Owner Phil Ball thought Donnie Bush, top, is the new manager of the Chicago White Sox. He will try to tame bad boy Shires. Below, Dan Howley, who takes the helm in 1930 at Cincinnati.

otherwise. So Howley won't be back. He's landed a job at Cincinnati. Bill McKechnie made the switch from the St. Louis Cardinals to the Boston Braves—why, no body knows. Bill said he wanted a four-year contract instead of a one-year term. Boston offered it. Now Bill Killefer, Cardinal coach, has been promoted to the managerial post in St. Louis.

Some say Uncle Wilbert Robinson will never start another season as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. It isn't a new story. Still, maybe he won't.

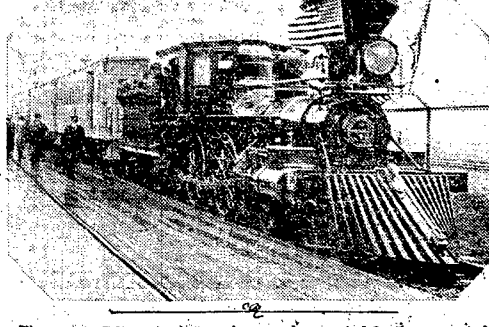

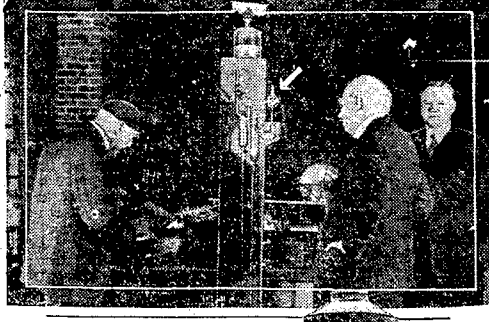

NO, Connie Mack isn't going to resign as manager of the World's Champion Philadelphia Athletics. He made a statement to reporters just after the final game of the series in which he definitely nailed the rumor that he would retire and turn over the outfit to Eddie Collins, his right hand man. "The game has a great hold on me," the ancient manager of baseball said. "I can't retire now. I hope to greet you all here again next year."

"SOME day, I hope, but certainly not in 1930," declared Babe Ruth and those who inwardly had been harboring the feeling that the King of Swat would step into the shoes of the late Miller Huggins as manager of the New York Yankees, were forced to swallow their feelings and look about for another prospective pilot.

The Babe will play right field for the Yankees, he states. He hopes to be a player for a few seasons yet. He doesn't care to cut short his playing career to assume the worries of a manager.

"There'll come a time, though, when the Babe will welcome the opportunity to manage the Yanks. He wants to do with the New Yorkers what Miller Huggins did with them. He'd make a good manager."

Though lacking absolute proof, there are many good reasons to support the idea of immortality. And if we do not continue to live and grow, present existence would seem to fall short of justification.

Sears, Roebuck & Company, Chicago, has announced that it will adopt the 13-month year beginning January 1. We do not object to thirteen months, but we do not exactly like to have one firm rearrange distribution of time without consulting the rest of us or asking for cooperation.

This has not been a good week for corn picking or any other outdoor work. Snow followed by thawing and then freezing formed sheets of ice. Automobiles moved cautiously, and pedestrians had difficulty in staying on their feet and avoiding the unpleasant and often painful operation of falling.

An article explaining rehabilitation work among cripples stressed the need of helping unfortunates to help themselves. To do more than that, it was pointed out, stifles initiative and kills ambition. The important service of permanent value is the kind that trains and equips one to aid himself.

It is no argument against institutions of learning that Theodore Gary, aged 75 and multimillionaire telephone magnate, had only eighteen weeks' schooling during his lifetime. Doubtless he had an abundance of talent which he developed without the aid of schools. We have been told that eighty-five per cent personality and fifteen per cent technical knowledge furnish the basis for success. Besides looks and mannerisms, we suppose personality

BUSINESS LOYALTY.

Loyalty in business is a beautiful theory—for the other fellow. Home buying is a good thing—for the other fellow. If a dealer wants something that he does not carry in stock, he may, if inclined, send away for it without making any loud noise. If he does not invite the world to witness what he is doing, he may supply his needs from the outside under the impression that no one knows. He may see that his neighbors do not profit from his purchases, and at the same time, in contemplating lack of home patronage on the part of others, he may assume an air of injured innocence. While this apparent lack of consistency is not general it is sufficiently frequent to make the plea for local support absurd and indefensible.

Also if a newspaper carries advertising for competitive dealers in other cities, it is likely to draw adverse criticism from the very ones who do not use regularly the newspaper and who send to foreign points for printing jobs, often without giving the local plant an opportunity to compete. The fellow who thinks he is warranted in advertising only intermittently, if at all, snaps menacingly at outside competitors who would bridge the gap and insure revenue to maintain service for the convenience of uncertain local critics.

While many preach the wholesome doctrine of home patronage, enough do not practice it to avoid contributing liberally to the upbuilding of foreign catalogue houses. Why not act consistently? Why not buy from one another? Why not make careful and persistent use of the advertising columns of the home paper to stem the flood of catalogue houses? Either do those things or play the game independently, kicking neither at the neighbor who wishes to buy elsewhere or at the home paper which finds that throwing down the bars to outside competitors is a necessary means to adequate revenue.

means integrity, faithfulness to a trust, doing the thing one agrees to do and doing it on time, and other qualities that win and hold respect and confidence. Doubtless with his natural ability, Mr. Gary would have developed earlier if he had had the advantage of preliminary schooling.

Senator Rodman of Omaha, has asked Governor Weaver to call a special session of the state legislature to consider banking problems and supply any remedy touching the guaranty law that seems advisable. One advantage in an extraordinary session would be to avoid monopolizing the next regular session with the banking business. A question as to whether the next legislature will have anything worth while to do, making monopoly by one issue inconvenient, would seem deserving of weight in determining the need of a special session.

Robbing banks has become dangerous business, thanks to the vigilance and effective action of officials and posses. Up at Shakopee, Minn., three bandits attempted to plunder a bank, and all three were shot and their plan foiled. One of the three is expected to die, and the others will be so crippled that they will have no ambition to rob banks if they are ever released from penal servitude. It was in Minnesota fifty-three years ago that notorious Jesse James was put out of commission, and the old spirit of enforcing safety seems still to prevail in that state. Also during the week two bank robbers at Centerville, Iowa, were captured and promise to be given prison terms that will insure plenty of time to think things over.

Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, declared in a recent speech that American business was never more firmly entrenched than it is now, notwithstanding the late Wall street disturbance. He says business has become almost entirely unrelated to Wall street and that the commercial structure has become more stable than ever before. "For the first time in history," said Mr. Schwab, "all the forces of business, banking, industry and transportation have been marshaled together under the leadership of the president himself in the most constructive peacetime effort a nation has ever seen. This is business and government's statesmanship of the highest order. One does not have to be a confirmed optimist to see in Mr. Hoover's conferences something more than a determined and powerful endeavor to substitute a new psychology for the one that has been almost inevitable under similar conditions in the past."

Many of us who are getting too old longer to be considered immature and mere beginners will be relieved to know that there is growing judgment against side-tracking or shelving men of advanced age. It is comforting to know that chloroforming people over 60 is no longer popularly advised as either a winter or summer sport. On the contrary, competent individuals have discovered that multiplying years do not militate against efficiency, but rather conduce to valuable clarity of thought and soundness of judgment. In his annual report Secretary Davis of the labor department, declared that "more and more it is becoming the experience of our most enlightened employers that men of the age of 40 or 50 years or over are often better qualified by experience, ability and settled habits to ren-

SANTA CLAUS.

Santa Claus personifies noble, generous thought. He does not mean extravagant giving to those already surfeited. He does not mean crushing sacrifice in behalf of mere show. No matter how well one may be provided in worldly goods, he is uplifted by a touch of remembrance—Santa Claus love—though modest in material value, rich in sentiments of fellowship. A simple gift conveying divinely wrought esteem, thrills and ennobles rich or poor or those in moderate circumstances. No one is so engrossed in the affairs of life, no one is so entangled in the meshes of dollars and cents, that he does not look away from them in contemplation of spiritual values as he is made to feel the breath of sympathetic interest.

Seemingly little acts of helpfulness, words of cheer from the soul's depths put new courage into the hearts of those who are struggling against heavy odds. A kindly thought, a generous deed may renew the hope and brighten the pathway of overtaxed mortals. Children look to Santa Claus for realization. They are enraptured by anticipation. It is not enfeebling superabundance that they need. It is love expressed in modest gifts which will give expected comfort and joy.

Santa Claus is the child's idol, the adult's opportunity. He makes the world throb with good feeling. He is the magic that quickens the world's kinship and charges mankind with the leaven of generous fellowship.

So, Santa Claus' business at this time is of supremest importance in the good impress he may leave as an inheritance of the season.

der valuable service than those of a younger age." Bolstering up the cause of accumulated years should not discourage youth. The latter will certainly gain the position of the former as time lengthens.

In line with the progress of the period, C. R. Miles of Minneapolis, manager of the northwestern division of the United States Chamber of Commerce, of which Nebraska is a part, declares that "the chamber of commerce has gone from an age of 'boosterism' into an age of business." He adds that "the chamber today that is not using its energy solely for the promotion and protection of business doesn't deserve to exist. A modern chamber takes stock of a city's assets and liabilities and tries to determine its future picture. It has a definite goal. Mere hand-shaking, back-slapping and loud shouting on the part of a chamber secretary are deemed shallow, ineffective and passe. A chamber of commerce is expected to get down to brass tacks, establishing a sound foundation on which to talk and act."

Answers Inquiry About Colleges

Pres. U. S. Conn Says 'Students Are Fortunate Who Must Earn Way in School.'

Answering a question regarding college attendance, Pres. U. S. Conn writes the following to M. T. Liewer, editor of the Osmond Republican:
"In reply to your inquiry I will say that reports from educational institutions throughout the west indicate a decreased college enrollment this year. In some schools the decrease is nominal and in others it is quite pronounced. In the Nebraska state schools the decrease is almost negligible. The total enrollment in 1928 at Wayne at this date was 922 and this year it is 896."
"The fluctuation in college enrollment from year to year is influenced by many things. For twenty years there has been a constant increase in college enrollment throughout the country. Occasionally there is a recession followed by an increase. The causes seem more often to be social rather than economic."
"Just now it occurs to me there is a tendency in the public mind to measure the value of the college by the number enrolled rather than by the quality of work done. The large educational institution with its fraternities, societies, clubs, athletics, stadiums, and other extra curricular activities has a peculiar fascination for Young America. These outside activities all cost money far in excess of legitimate school needs. The result is there are thousands of college students who spend all their money by the end of the freshman or sophomore year and quit school. The situation does not exist to any extent in the smaller colleges."

"At Wayne we have always had a large number of young men and young women who earn part of their expenses and it has been our policy to accommodate as many as possible in this manner. I do not believe the demand for work is any greater this year than it has been in the past. It is often embarrassing to the student to be short of money but the student who has a real desire for an education usually is able to find some way to get around the difficulty. More young men and young women are ruined by the lack of it."

"In my opinion in northeast Nebraska there are about three things causing shortage of funds. This shortage is not confined to students exclusively. First, prior to the present year we have had short crops for four or five years and the returns from the present year are not yet showing their effects to any great extent. Second, there have been an unusual number of bank failures and almost every household has been affected directly or indirectly by these failures. Third, and probably the most important, is the universal tendency to spend money for unnecessary things."
"Actual school needs at Wayne are not difficult to meet. Good rooms well heated and lighted in the college dormitory cost each student from $5.00 to $7.00 a month, and board at the college cafeteria ranges from $18.00 to $22.00 a month. There are no tuition charges and fees of all kinds need not exceed $15.00 for the entire year. The student, however, who feels impelled to support an automobile and to engage in expensive outside activities runs the risk of becoming financially embarrassed unless he is frequently assisted by an indulgent and liberal minded parent."

Increase Is Made In Grain Prices

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 10.—Grain prices in America climbed a bit higher last week, says the U. S. department of agriculture, and held the gain.

Wheat advanced steadily early in the week due to moderate export inquiry, fair demand, and continued unfavorable crop reports from the southland. Export sales declined sharply and domestic flour trade slackened during the latter half of the week.
Backed by lighter offerings and better demands, feed grains developed a decidedly firmer tone. Flax averaged higher.
World wheat and flour shipments decreased sharply during the week to the next lowest point for the season to date and were less than half the corresponding figures a year ago. The decline was felt chiefly on shipments from North America, the Argentine and Uruguay.
On passage figures also have fallen off, but arrivals in the United Kingdom continue heavy notwithstanding the large stocks already in store there.
Milling regulations and high import duties continue to restrict the takings at European markets. German millers must still use 50 percent native wheat, while the French must use at least 97 percent of the home grown product. Spain's native supplies are supposed to be ample for current needs. Greece and Austria recently purchased Canadian wheat for mixing. Prices on native wheat abroad have been practically steady.

Is Bound Over On Shooting Charge

Fremont, Neb.—On entering a plea of not guilty to a charge of shooting with intent to kill, Virgil Kelley, twenty-six, was bound over to district court on $10,000 bond Tuesday by Judge Homer Heine. He waived preliminary hearing.
Officers Rogers and Vinci of the Omaha police department identified Kelley as the man who, on Nov. 26, wounded an Omaha detective while making his escape after being surprised in the act of looting the cash register of an Omaha filling station. He held four officers at bay while making his escape and three of the officers were subsequently demoted.
Examination of Kelley by Dr. C. G. Moore revealed that three buckshot slugs are lodged in his left shoulder. It is believed that these are from the riot gun of Sheriff W. A. Johnson, who exchanged shots with Kelley and a companion here Nov. 7, when he escaped from local officers.
Kelley, who was arrested at Emerson, Neb., Sunday, is said to have offered to plead guilty to charges of carrying concealed weapons. The offer was refused by County Attorney Marlin.
The date of Kelley's trial has not been set, but it is believed he will be arraigned during the January term of court.

Catholic Census Work Is Started

Rev. William Kearns of Wayne, Is Director of Norfolk District in Project.

Rev. William Kearns of Wayne, Neb., has been appointed by Rt. Rev. Joseph F. Rummel, bishop of Omaha, as director of the Catholic census for the Norfolk district.

Father Kearns is pastor of St. Mary's church and also of Our Mother of Sorrows mission at Carroll, Neb.

Mrs. Fred S. Berry of Wayne, is lay chairman of the census for St. Mary's parish, while Mrs. Mamie Ahern, of Carroll, is vice chairman.

The census started following an inspirational meeting at St. Mary's church, Wayne, and at Carroll on Wednesday evening. The work of collecting census information will continue each evening with meeting of workers at 9 p. m. Final reports will be made Monday, December 16.

Seven teams have been organized with about four workers each to take the census of St. Mary's parish. There are about 3,000 workers in 140 parishes and twenty-three counties of Nebraska compiling the census of the Omaha diocese. The local figures will be gathered with others of the fourth district and then sent to headquarters in Omaha.

Besides Rev. William Kearns, honorary chairman, and Mrs. Fred S. Berry, lay chairman, the following workers will assist in the local census: Team one, J. C. Nuss, captain, aided by Miss Irene Collins, Mrs. W. F. Perdue, Mrs. Grace Johnson and Mrs. Kate Surber; team two, Prof. E. J. Huntermer, chairman, aided by Mrs. Elizabeth Martischang, Mrs. E. J. Huntermer, Miss Helen Thielman, Miss Ellen Finn and Will Finn; and team three, J. H. Brugger, captain, aided by Mrs. B. M. McIntyre.

The Carroll division of the parish is under chairmanship of Mrs. Maurice Ahern, with Mrs. Gertrude Noyes as secretary. The workers are: Team four, James Stanton, captain, aided by Miss Marie Stanton and Frank Stanton; team five, Maurice Ahern, captain, aided by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Broker; team six, Will Collins, captain, aided by Miss Winnet Collins and Miss Margaret O'Keefe; and team seven, Charles Denesia, captain, aided by Mr. and Mrs. Leo Collins.

The parish committee, at the meeting with Mrs. Fred S. Berry Tuesday, planned divisions and assigned districts for the census. A social hour and luncheon followed. All reports of the census will be in the hands of Mrs. E. J. Huntermer, secretary, by December 16.

Holiday Observance As Held In Sweden

To begin with, there is the children's view point. They put their faith in little trolls in Sweden. A troll is a tiny Santa Claus—it is as if Santa had a great many helpers who are called Jul Tomtar. There is always a troll for every home. The old grandfather said he remembered the bowl of rice that was always placed in the barn on Christmas eve for the trolls. In the morning the rice was gone! And that day the work went so quickly because all the little trolls helped! Who could doubt grandfather?

Then there is this matter of wooden shoes. In Sweden in the school house entry is a row of pigeon holes. Each lad places his wooden shoes therein, before he enters the school room. Inside he wears soft shoes or heavy woolen socks. The trolls are watching him. If he has been naughty, on Christmas morning he may find a little switch in his shoes. But if he has been good there will be presents. All through the holidays the children take part. They must be very busy with preparations, and songs to learn, and mother to help, and presents to pack.

Placed in Various Positions. Then they must watch while father or uncle ties a sheaf of wheat to a post for the birds' Christmas. This may be oats. It is sometimes tied to a chimney, sometimes on the top of a post, and then other times is placed in the branches of a tree.

To begin the holidays there is a little ceremony for the thirteenth of December. "Santa Lucia," a pretty girl, attended by five baker boys, comes to call on a family at five o'clock in the morning. Since they will surely be in bed, she walks in, bringing coffee, while the baker boys bring buns, one kind like a cat with a raisin for an eye, and the other with four wheels. "Santa Lucia" wears a green wreath about her head in which are thirteen lighted candles. Just think, she will have to go to school that day—and get the candle grease out of her hair before she goes.

The day of Christmas eve is a full holiday and is very jolly and gay. Christmas day in contrast is very quiet and thoughtful. Each has its special dinner, at which certain viands are part of tradition.

Start With Many Relishes. Dinner, Christmas eve, started with "Smorgasbord." This is typically Swedish and consists of many relishes, archovies, sausages, potato salad and cheese. This was followed by a traditional dish, "Lutfisk." This is a special creamed cod fish. The fish is dried and prepared weeks in advance. It must be cooked exactly ten minutes or it will dissolve. At this meal "Rullsytt" is another special dish. This is a head cheese made of rolled pork and beef. The mention of cheese makes one remember the "Jul ost," a special Christmas cheese, prepared many weeks ahead of Christmas. It must stand all this time in order to acquire flavor.

Dessert for Christmas eve is a rice pudding flavored with cinnamon and served with milk. In it are placed a thimble for the one who is to be an old maid—a ring for the first to be married, and a gold coin for riches. It is a bowl of this rice that is served to the trolls. No wonder they help so blithely the next day.

Popcorn Is Missing. After all this food, comes the Christmas tree. The American girl who was visiting noticed the absence of our popcorn. Her Swedish friends assured her it was quite unknown, but that was twenty years ago. The tree was very lovely with its bright candles and many packages. These were gifts with little jokes for the family as well as more treasured presents.

Christmas day begins very early with a special church service at five o'clock. Every one attends regardless of their attendance the rest of the year. One old custom must have been a beautiful sight. Each sleigh as it started out in the dimness of winter dawn carried a torch fore and aft. A procession of these sleighs must have presented a fairy-like appearance worth remembering. The torches were planted in the snow when the church was reached.

Another church service is at ten o'clock and then there is the evening service. Christmas Day Dinner. Dinner on Christmas day has its traditional dishes. The guests may stand while enjoying "Smorgasbord." They visit and chat until their plates are removed. The main meal is served at the table with the guests seated. The first course may be a clear soup with tiny meat balls in it. The meat course may be either roast young pig or chicken. The head of the pig is decorated with a paper fringe behind the ears, and in the open mouth is a bright red apple. Often there is more than one kind of roast.

A special ceremony is connected with this meal. Its Swedish name is "Doppe i gryten," which is "dipping in the pot." A sauce from ham is prepared on the kitchen stove. Slices of rye bread are served to everyone and all must parade to the kitchen to dip bits of bread in the pot and eat them. It is most important, not to let the bread get too soft and fall off one's fork.

Like Our Carol Singing. For the day after Christmas

there is a pretty custom carried out by the boys. They each make a star for a head dress, in the center of which is an open space holding a candle. These "Stjarnor" or star boys go about with a leader from house to house and sing for their friends. The leader asks for money. Except that this occurs in the morning, it is very similar to our carol singing.

The entire week holds gay festivities. All the shops are closed, and every one makes merry. The end comes on New Year's day. This is devoted to making and receiving calls. As all through the week, the sound of the coffee grinder is heard in the land, so this day, too, coffee is served to visitors. Cakes and cookies add to the cheer and many a health is pledged. Surely Sweden seems to present a very abundant and satisfying way to enjoy the Christmas season.

Humphrey Cadet Is Rhodes Scholar

Humphrey, Neb. — Irvin R. Schimmelpennig, Humphrey, named as the 1929 Rhodes scholar from Nebraska, out of 15 who applied, is the son of a late Lutheran minister, Rev. K. A. Schimmelpennig. The young man, who is 21 years old, now is in his fourth year in the military academy at West Point, where he will be graduated in the spring as a second lieutenant. His early education was received in Humphrey. His mother lives in Humphrey and his sister, Miss Marjorie W. Schimmelpennig, is a student at the State university.

The young man has won his scholastic honors at West Point and ranks as cadet captain, the highest rank in the cadet corps. He has taken part in army athletics, playing in the first two army football games, but was out later on account of injury. He has an army letter in track and is a boxer and has represented the army in an intercollegiate match.

Special permission was required in order for him to apply for the Oxford scholarship. He will be a detail on the detached office list while at Oxford and will be put back into the regular army service at the end of three years.

Escapes Injury In Corn Picker

Wisner, Neb., Dec. 11.—While John McGill, 26-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McGill, living six miles northwest of Wisner, was operating a thirty-horse-power tractor, used in connection with a corn-picking machine on his father's farm Tuesday forenoon, his clothing became caught in the power take-off and literally torn from his body. He suffered severe bodily bruises and burns from friction, and a dislocated hip. The only thing that saved young McGill was that the clothing clogged the tractor, causing it to stop.

A brother and hired man near by freed him by cutting his clothing. A medical examination revealed that although suffering intensely his injuries are not as severe as was at first thought. He will, however, be laid up for a number of weeks.

Gagging the Press.

Lincoln Journal: Years after it had been provided in the Minnesota bill of rights that the liberty of the press shall forever remain inviolate and that all persons may freely speak, write and publish their sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of such rights, the legislature passed a law that turns the hands of any county attorney or the attorney general of that state a club by which the press may be gagged. The Minnesota supreme court now has before it a case brought to test the constitutionality of that law.

The "gag" law, passed in 1925, provides that county attorneys or the attorney general may apply for a writ of injunction against any publication and applying against the circulation of any publication that may be considered by them obscene, lewd, and lascivious; or that may be considered malicious, scandalous and defamatory, and the district courts are empowered to grant such an injunction. Summary punishment through contempt action is provided for any violation of such an injunction.

Such laws may well become the instruments of tyrants and those who would restrain free speech. They place power in the hands of officers who may become despotic and who may use such power to hide their own misdoings or weaknesses. The decision of the high court of Minnesota is awaited with interest. Upholding such a law would be a step back into the gloom from which modern civilization emerged after so much effort and bloodshed. The freedom thus bought should not be surrendered lightly.

Need of Reform. Norfolk Press: A Norfolk man tells me he was in Wayne the other day and he saw a man who looked like a farmer buying a couple of pounds of oleo in a grocery store there. A little later he had his convictions confirmed as to the oleo purchaser's calling when he saw him handed his cream check in a Wayne cream station. The farmer who bought the oleo and who had sold the cream was rather violent in his remarks about the drop in the butterfat market and my friend proceeded to give the farmer his lecture. Even Wayne farmers make grave mistakes, I admit, but no more silly, no more grave are these mistakes of the farmers who eat oleo and wonder why the butterfat market is down than are these of city and town folks of Nebraska who send their money east and then wonder what is the matter with the middle west.

Has Hand Injured In Husking Machine

Page, Neb., Dec. 6.—Fred Clark, son of William Clark of Page, was injured yesterday afternoon when his hand was caught in a corn husking machine on the Ray Parker farm. He was not working on the machine, but was watching it operate, and it is not known how the accident happened.

Mr. Clark was taken to a Norfolk hospital where several fingers were removed Thursday night. One reason we await television with eager anticipation is to see if the morning exercise announcer is actually going through the exercises himself. Brunswick Pilot.

Harold Lloyd Here In Talking Film

"Help! Help!" That's the first line of dialog recited by Harold Lloyd for public entertainment. But it goes back nearly twenty-five years, and has nothing to do with his first all-talking picture "Welcome Danger" at the Gay theatre, next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, except that it started him on a stage career which led up to his connection with motion pictures.

"It was at Beatrice, Neb., in Macbeth, that I first set foot on the stage itself. A Shakespearean repertoire company, bridging the gap from Omaha to Denver with one night stands, stopped off for an evening. Such troupes always picked up their supers and children locally. Gaylord, my brother, who was property boy and handy man at the opera house, promptly nominated the kid brother to fill one of the breaches. There are three parts in Macbeth which might be played by a boy, and my memory is hazier than usual, but apparently I was Fleance, Banquo's son and witness to his murder, for I recall coming on the left of the stage with a man who seems to have been my father and running off right alone and crying "Help! Help! I had been drilled that afternoon to continue the cry from the wings; but my voice, which had been vocal enough on stage, froze with embarrassment in the presence of the offstage company and one of them had to take up the cry where I left off."

With that kind of background, it is not surprising no stories have been issued from the Lloyd studio telling how the comedian "froze with fright" when he made his debut before the microphone.

A Truly Better and Different Motor Lubricant!

LABORATORY tests prove DIAMOND "SEVEN-SIXTY" to be a 100% heat resisting oil. It is tested for volatility (evaporation) at 760° F. which insures a wide margin of safety above the temperature of the working parts of even the new high speed, high compression motors. At this terrific heat, the evaporation loss of DIAMOND "SEVEN-SIXTY" is negligible. But scientific tests are unnecessary.

You be the judge, make the test in your own car. The superior qualities of DIAMOND "SEVEN-SIXTY" can be felt in better motor performance... smoother running... more power... cooler operation... longer service... much greater economy! DIAMOND "SEVEN-SIXTY" is a modern oil for modern conditions—the first of its kind on the market: 100% Paraffin Base.

Makes Success In Raising Turkeys

Pierce, Neb.—Unlike the average northeastern Nebraska farm, where one finds the usual flock of from 900 to 900 or more chickens, the Allen Wichman farm, southeast of Pierce, has its flock of 1,200 Bronze turkeys.

Mr. Wichman farms 320 acres and cares for the usual number of hogs and other live stock, as would any farmer. With him turkey raising merely is a sideline and a sort of hobby and it has turned out to be a profitable one. The owner started his turkey flock with an investment of approximately $3,000. This amount included the cost of the original breeding stock and layers, incubators, fencing and various other necessities. Several hundreds of young turkeys were lost early in the season, but this is considered a small loss in comparison with the large number of young birds in the original flock and those hatched by incubators.

Wichman turkeys are kept in a five-acre enclosure. There they are fed and fattened preparatory to being placed on the holiday market. The weights of the turkeys in this flock range from 5 to 20 pounds.

Mr. Wichman says that it is impracticable to raise turkeys on ground that has been overrun by poultry. This is due to the fact that poultry droppings have a tendency to contaminate the ground and turkeys will contract a destructive disease. For this reason, his turkey enclosure is about half a mile from the farm.

It is protected on the north side by a dense grove of jack pines and on the south by a grove of trees of another variety. The only building in the lot is what might be termed a sort of a "roosting shed." This shed is about the size and shape of a medium sized cattle barn and has only two sides enclosed, the other two—the south and east sides—are covered with wire netting as a protection against dogs and other intruders. Most of the turkeys, however, do not roost in this shed, but each night seek shelter in branches of the pine trees.

As a guard against thieves, the owner has comfortable sleeping quarters near the turkey lot where he spends the night with his shotgun and dog.

As the turkeys practically are all incubator birds, they are very tame and when one enters their enclosure they crowd around like so many curious children looking for something to eat. A slight unusual noise will bring the big gobblers to the front, their heads up the pine trees.

Turkeys apparently have been sighted, for they can see a hawk or crow although it is but a mere speck in the distance. As soon as an enemy is sighted all the turkeys scurry for cover.

Mr. Wichman estimates that about half of his present flock of turkeys will bring in enough money to pay for the original investment and that the amount realized on the remaining 600 will be his net profit for the season.

About Nebraska and Nebraskans

Will M. Maupin.

Wards of the state will not be allowed to forget that there is a Santa Claus. There are 17 state institutions, housing about 11,000 wards and employees, and to give each one of this small army will require 5,500 pounds of the sweet stuff. But Christmas with candy would still not be Christmas without nuts, so the wards and employees will be given about 4,000 pounds of nuts. The Hastings asylum raises its own ducks, geese and turkeys for holiday consumption, and probably the asylums at Norfolk and Lincoln do the same.

What and where was the first daily newspaper published in the state? Not in Omaha, as most of us have thought. The first daily newspaper in Nebraska was published in a town that now has fewer than 400 inhabitants, although at one time its citizens envisioned it as being the capitol of Nebraska. "The Daily Snort," so we are informed by the Nebraska City News-Press, was the first daily newspaper in Nebraska, published at Brownville in 1859. It lasted less than a week, but it was a daily, just the same. One interesting item in Vol. 1, No. 1, was the following: "We'll take good Monogehie, stiff Rye, Old Bourbon, Scotch and Irish Whiskey for subscription to The Snort." Perhaps a rush of subscribers was responsible for the early demise of The Snort.

Employers who insist on refusing to employ men who have reached the decrepit age of 40 or 45 should consider the case of James L. Slocum of Falls City, president of the Richardson County Bank. At the age of 85 plus he walks to and from the bank every day except Sunday and puts in full time at his desk. He has been actively engaged in the banking business more years than some employers credit a man with the right to live.

Speaking of Banner county, which I have had occasion to do at various times, I am reminded of a bit of Banner county history. The county has no railroad. When the Union Pacific was constructed its land grant included an immense acreage in what is now Banner county. Some 30 years ago a little coterie of men evolved a great idea. They bought three or four hundred sections of Union Pacific lands in Banner. Then they employed a bunch of civil engineers to run a survey across the county from east to west. The surveyors were very mysterious, but somehow or other the impression got out that they were surveying for a railroad, probably a branch of the Union Pacific. Indeed, the surveyors denied that they were surveying for the Union Pacific with such vehemence that everybody just knew they were lying. Of course a railroad would greatly increase the value of land in the county, and of course the promise of a railroad stimulated the demand for land. In the course of time the wily promoters who had bought railroad land at from $1.50 to $2.50 an acre sold their holdings at from $7.50 to $12.00 an acre. And the surveyors packed up and departed, and the railroad never came.

Representative Edgar Howard, former lieutenant governor, was one of the many who bought Banner county land under the delusion that a railroad would be constructed. The promoters may have profited by selling Howard what they thought was a gold brick, but his proverbial luck held. His section became a wonderful wheat producer. A few years after he bought the section he sold half of it for $20 an acre, or $1,600 more than he paid for it. In addition he sold enough wheat from that half-section to more than pay for the whole section. While he was lieutenant governor he went to Denver to attend the funeral of Col. William F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill." On his way back to Lincoln he stopped off at Kimball and drove over into Banner county to see how the wheat on his half-section was coming. He had a middle-aged man of Harrisburg drive him out to the land, and after looking it over drove to Minatare to catch a train for Lincoln.

On the way to Minatare Howard's driver asked him what he would take for the half-section. Howard, in his peculiar drawl replied: "I owned a whole section there once, and I got it pretty cheap. I sold half of it at $20 an acre, and later learned that I had sold too quickly. So I decided to hold the other half-section until some darned fool came along and offered me $35 an acre for it, then I'd sell."

"Well, you've sold," said Howard's driver, stopping the automobile and pulling out a roll of bills, handing Howard $50. "That binds the bargain."

Howard asked to be relieved, but the driver was obdurate and Howard kept his word.

A few years after this occurrence the writer was telling the story to a little party of friends at the Elks Club in Hastings. An elderly gentleman who was present listened at the story, and at the close of the story spoke up: "That is a true story. I'm the darned fool that bought the land."

"How did you come out with it?" asked the teller of the story.

"O, pretty good. I sold nearly $11,000 worth of wheat I raised on 240 acres of it the next year."

And that's another true story.

The highest golf course in Nebraska is that of the Scottsbluff Country Club. It is located a mile and one-half west of Gering, and the 18th hole is a bit more than 4,000 feet above sea level.

The pioneers of western Nebraska possessed a grim sense of humor. Shortly after the Camp Clarke bridge was completed across the North Platte river just west of Bridgeport in 1875, a notorious desperado gambler by hanging him to a bridge timber. On his breast they pinned a placard bearing this laconic statement: "In some ways he was a bad man, and in some others he was a damstie wuss."

Believe it or not, but a steamboat once plowed the bosom of the Platte from its mouth to a point opposite old Fort Mitchell, just across the North Platte river a few miles south of the present city of Mitchell. The steamboat was the "El Paso," and it appeared at Fort Mitchell in June, 1855, after coursing the Platte and North Platte rivers for more than 500 miles. But it was the first and last steamboat seen on the upper reaches of the Platte.

Debate Students To Meet Norfolk

The debate teams of Wayne high school will compete with the strong teams from Norfolk high school on December 19 at 3:30 and 7:30 o'clock here in the high school auditorium. The question which they will discuss is, "Resolved, That the present jury system in criminal cases in the United States should be abolished."

Eleven debaters are trying for positions on the squad to meet the Norfolk squad. The names of those seeking positions are: Helen Hanson, Virgil Keeney, Mary Jane Morgan, Margaret Fanske, James Morris, William Von Seggern, Kathryn Kemp, Max Hendrickson, Ralph Jacques, Frank Claycomb and Melvin Seymour. Several of these debaters have shown excellent flashes of debating in the class encounters. Most of the squad are inexperienced in the art of verbal combat, but they are working hard to be in fair shape to meet the Norfolk team. This is to be a decision debate but the decision will not have any bearing on the season's outcome because the season has not been formally opened by the state officers.

Business.
Sioux City Journal: As the year nears its close, public interest will be centered more and more upon the business trend in an effort to determine what the future is to promise. Year end activities are always seen as accentuating more or less definite prospects. Everybody is interested in the outlook for the new year.

At this time it is possible to say that the situation is somewhat improved. The country's confidence is stronger, owing for the most part to the general realization that basic foundations are sound and to the timely intercession of the federal government in encouraging and stimulating business activity. The hysteria noted following the stock market crashes some weeks ago has been largely dissipated and there is to be expected when President Hoover marshaled the business leaders of the country and enlisted their support in a prosperity program.

Leaders in whom the people have faith are agreed that the future is bright. Business ought to be good in 1930, and it will be if the Hoover plan is carried far enough in a united effort to restore confidence and strengthen buying power. Assuredly the conditions essential to prosperity have not changed. That is to say that there is just as much reason for large production of goods and for their consumption and use as there was before. There is just as much money in the country. There ought to be just as strong a demand for necessities and luxuries. The standard of living must not change. Herein seem to be found the basic reasons for continued prosperity.

Eventually the stock market will settle to a normal condition when the public will be guided by proved values rather than led astray by rocketing advances. That was the only difficulty before. It probably will never again obtain with such emphasis. The burnt child dreads the fire.

Flight car loadings for the week ending November 23 were off 78,957 from the figure for the same week last year. The total was 850,230. This, however, was an increase over the same week in 1927 of 100,638 cars.

A satisfactory holiday trade is expected generally. Colder weather increased retail sales over wide areas during the past week or so.

Wayne Churches
New Types of Exhibits.
Omaha Journal-Stock man: Those who attended the recent Ak-Sar-Ben Live Stock show were particularly interested in the exhibit brought together from 21 different counties of Nebraska. These exhibits were typical of various sections of the state. They came from Douglas county on the east to Kimball and Cheyenne counties in the western part of the state.

The old type of county exhibit which has been featured for years at various fairs has been the grouping of a lot of agricultural products of the county into a county booth. Such booths differ to some extent, of course, in the character of the products shown. There has been this main fault, however, that being that there is not a well-marked difference between the various county exhibits especially if they come from a similar section of the state.

In the county exhibits at Ak-Sar-Ben show, the idea was to have each county feature a particular industry or type of farming within the county. For example, Wayne county featured the production of corn and showed in very neat and efficient fashion some of the factors making for high yield and high quality in corn. These included the part played in building up soil fertility by those two well known legumes, alfalfa and sweet clover. The part that type in corn plays in relation to yield was well featured. In the Cuming county exhibit this county was featured as a great live stock feeding center where the two major crops, corn and alfalfa, are marketed in the form of live stock.

The winning county of Dawes featured the production of good quality hardy alfalfa seed. Dawson county stressed the fact that this was a great alfalfa hay producing section and showed by a map of the United States the distribution of this hay. Douglas county told the visitors to the show that it was a great center for the production of commercial seed corn. The county of Valley featured the production of pop corn and showed this was one of their important industries. All of the county exhibits were well put up and all of them deserve favorable comment.

These county exhibits were especially interesting to George Jackson, secretary of the Nebraska State Fair, who stated that he felt such exhibits filled a real place in emphasizing the different resources and farm practices of various sections of the state. The men who put up the exhibits had no previous experience along this line to guide them. Next year if the feature is continued as it no doubt will be, there will no doubt be a battle royal between the different counties and quality will be higher than ever.

We comment again this exhibit idea and believe that it may have an increasing place everywhere in the land.

Dr. Durant's Optimism.
Sioux City Journal: In an editorial in the Mentor, Dr. Will Durant expresses under the caption, "Denim," some beliefs that never under any circumstances would recommend him to the intelligentsia. They may appear, however, to a larger number of hopeful souls, who, like the philosopher, find more pleasures in life than the pessimist and chiefly because they eagerly look forward to their discovery.

Dr. Durant begins with his: "It is so fashionable to be cynical that I feel apologetic in daring to say that I am very well pleased with a number of things. My complacency runs the gamut from the autumn roses in my garden to the MacDonald regime and the quiet achievements of Mr. Hoover." He then proceeds to review the events that led to the rap prochement between Great Britain and the United States at a time when "bad feeling was engulfing England and America, and describes it as "the good fortune that shines upon us from London and Washington." In consequence of which Dr. Durant envisages "a happy day which we had expected that only our children would see."

But "our warmest gratitude" is because "in this conjunction of great states (Great Britain and the United States) moving toward brotherhood or war it is Herbert Hoover who speaks and acts for America." For in the chief executive the philosopher finds "genius, which without oratory and without tyranny had brought conference and knowledge to pacify and elevate American industry," wherefore "we knew that a certain noiseless statesmanship was in him and that he would make a president to be remembered among the best."

Thenceforth Mr. Hoover "fulfilled our hopes," "considered all and drove none," "on his victories without derogation or the manipulation of patronage, purely by force of his wider knowledge and study, by his simple courtesy and tact, by his sincerity and impartiality, by the sweep and scope and benevolence of his purpose." There was an example of "industry and devotion," "the vision and skill of a great administrator with those human qualities of sympathy and kindness," and from a man who "cannot touch any problem without transforming chaos into clarity and hostility into trust."

"This is refreshing, but its deepest encouragement lies in its truth. Dr. Durant has admirably succeeded in interpreting major sentiment in this country."

Mark Twain's Birthplace to Be Moved To Memorial Park in Missouri

THE two-room cabin in Florida, Mo., in which Samuel Langhorne Clemens, the beloved Mark Twain, was born in 1835, has been saved from threatened destruction.

The tiny cabin is being moved from the village of Florida to the Mark Twain State Park in Monroe county. The park commemorating the creator of Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer was purchased with funds raised by Missouri newspaper men and given to the state.

Just off U. S. highway No. 24, the cabin will stand on the highest point within the 120-acre recreational and game park. It will be placed upon a substantial foundation and restored, as nearly as possible, to its original condition, except, perhaps, for the lean-to kitchen which adjoined the house. This old kitchen has long ago fallen away and now only the two small rooms remain.

It is believed now, with the cabin secure within the confines of the park where attendants can prevent curious and vandals from destroying the place, that it can be successfully saved for posterity. It at least has not suffered the fate of the U. S. Grant cabin, also located in the village, which only a few months ago was converted into a shelter for a non-descript motor car.

placed within the cabin by Mr. Madsen. The cabin is being moved to the memorial park, the site of which was saved by the timely efforts of M. A. Violette, a wealthy Florida villager, who purchased the cabin, lest it be torn down to make way for a modern house, and had it moved to a vacant lot nearby.

The cabin was temporarily located near the village pump and there during the last four years was visited by more than 26,000 persons who signed the register

THE MODERN GOLDEN RULE

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Dec. 15.
The Golden Rule in the Work of the World. Deut. 24:14, 15; Eph. 6:7-9; 1 Tim. 6:17-19.

THE Golden Rule is usually associated with the teaching of Jesus, but it is interesting to see that in the first section of our lesson we go back a long distance beyond the teaching of Jesus, as Jesus himself went into the very heart and spirit of the Jewish law.

In his clear enunciation of the Golden Rule "that men should do unto others as they would that others should do to them," Jesus was expressing what to him was the sum and substance of the Mosaic law and the whole practical content of religion. Like all the teaching of Jesus, it is a principle emphasized in the very constitution of human life and in the nature of human relationships. What rule could be more natural or more thoroughly justified in its sanctions in reason and common sense than that where men have to live together each should act upon the principle and with the same spirit which he expects to be manifest in the action of others toward himself?

"As ye would that men should do to you, so ye also to them likewise." Any other principle of action is manifestly selfish and unjust and unfair.

We Cannot Ignore It
The man who is not willing to live according to the principle of the Golden Rule is manifestly selfish. He is trying to take advantage of somebody else and is seeking to get from his fellow-men something that does not belong to him. In subjecting other men to a treatment that he would resent himself he is to that extent showing himself not a man but a brute.

This seems all so clear and axiomatic that it is strange that sensible men would recognize or uphold any other principle. The duty of every man is in the effort to adapt the Golden Rule to life. Here we come into a world of privileged, privileged interests and the conserving of these things or the holding of what one has himself, no matter how he may have gotten it, very dishonorably and dishonestly, becomes of more importance than human decency and fairness.

Gas-Filled Chambers to Help Keep Planes Up Is Inventor's Plan

TWO innovations in aircraft, designed to add safety to flying, have been disclosed at Los Angeles recently.

One is an airplane with gas-filled chambers to add buoyancy to the craft, and a variable wing area for low-cruising speed as an added safety factor.

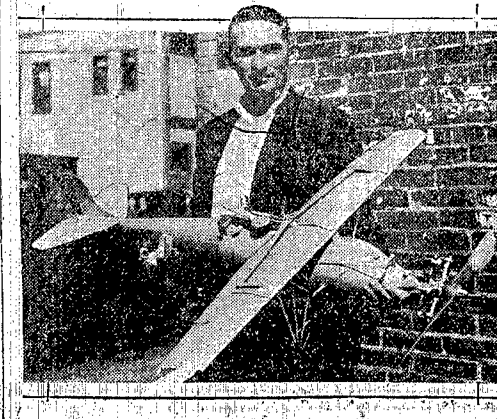

The other invention is a helicopter, a craft that combines the principles of the helicopter and the airplane.

Fred Ries of Compton, Calif., is the inventor of the gas-filled plane. The ship that he has designed is a monoplane, with the rear part of the wing held stationary and a sliding front part giving greater wing-area. The variable wing, the inventor believes, will greatly aid the craft in taking off and landing with heavy loads.

In the bottom of the ship, chambers filled with helium gas, will lift a considerable portion of the dead weight, while in case of a forced landing at sea, the gas-filled chambers would add buoyancy.

The monoplane would be constructed of duraluminum and steel, to be either single or multi-motored. A large six-motored craft, he believes, could carry about 100 passengers.

Principal safety factor in this ship, Ries states, is the variable wing, which could be moved forward in case the engine should stall at a low altitude, enabling the craft to glide to safety.

Fred Ries, inventor, is shown with his model of a variable wing plane, with gas-filled chambers, adding buoyancy and safety to the plane, he claims.

Wings and propeller are combined in Hess' ship as in a helicopter. Small fins on each side of the front and rear of the fuselage enable the pilot to control its direction, either vertically or horizontally.

Two 12-foot wing-propellers furnish both motive power and resistance to gravity. Hess' states that the plane will have a forward speed of 120 miles an hour, while the vertical lift can be made at the rate of 90 miles per hour.

The plane is said to be absolutely fool-proof, and can take off and land in a space as small as thirty feet square.

A light weight, low-speed engine, is used.

Hess has been working about a year and a half on the plane, and expects that within a year or two, the craft can be put on the market for general use, at an estimated cost of $800.

Marvin Nuernberger has been elected captain of the Wakefield football team for next season.

MAJOR LEAGUES WILL FIND MANY NEW MANAGERS IN PILOT SEATS NEXT SPRING AS GREATEST UPEAVEAL IN YEARS HITS BOTH CIRCUITS

BY PHILIP MARTIN

SPRINGTIME, with its blossoms and golden shafts of sunlight streaming through leafy trees, is still far away—in fact, Santa Claus isn't due yet—but that doesn't mean a thing to the owner or manager of a big league team who has been trading, purchasing and drafting as if his very life depended on it.

The baseball mind, so it seems, knows no off season. All are building with but one object in mind—a pennant contender in the major league races of 1930.

It's a long time till the balmy breezes beckon 16 exuberant aggregations to the southland, but already much has been accomplished in one way or another since early October when the Athletics impressed firmly on the baseball world that they were 4-to-1 better ball players than the Cubs. Furthermore, the fun has only started.

Many years have passed since the big leagues have known an upheaval of managers such as came near the end and directly following the end of the 1929 campaign. It wasn't only managers, either, for the Cincinnati Reds acquired a new owner.

If we can believe all we read and hear, the American League will see these men in the pilot seats next spring: Philadelphia, Connie Mack; New York, Bob Shawkey; Cleveland, Roger Peckinpaugh; St. Louis, Bill Killefer; Washington, Walter Johnson; Detroit, Stanley Harris; Chicago, Donie Bush, and Boston, Bill Carrigan. They say that Boston at any minute is likely to hire somebody to assume the Red Sox reins in place of Carrigan. But then anything is likely to happen in Boston—particularly with regard to the Red Sox.

THE last time we saw a list of National League managers, it looked like this: Chicago, Joe Mc-

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

MAJOR LEAGUES WILL FIND MANY NEW MANAGERS IN PILOT SEATS NEXT SPRING AS GREATEST UPEAVEAL IN YEARS HITS BOTH CIRCUITS

BY PHILIP MARTIN

SPRINGTIME, with its blossoms and golden shafts of sunlight streaming through leafy trees, is still far away—in fact, Santa Claus isn't due yet—but that doesn't mean a thing to the owner or manager of a big league team who has been trading, purchasing and drafting as if his very life depended on it.

The baseball mind, so it seems, knows no off season. All are building with but one object in mind—a pennant contender in the major league races of 1930.

It's a long time till the balmy breezes beckon 16 exuberant aggregations to the southland, but already much has been accomplished in one way or another since early October when the Athletics impressed firmly on the baseball world that they were 4-to-1 better ball players than the Cubs. Furthermore, the fun has only started.

Many years have passed since the big leagues have known an upheaval of managers such as came near the end and directly following the end of the 1929 campaign. It wasn't only managers, either, for the Cincinnati Reds acquired a new owner.

If we can believe all we read and hear, the American League will see these men in the pilot seats next spring: Philadelphia, Connie Mack; New York, Bob Shawkey; Cleveland, Roger Peckinpaugh; St. Louis, Bill Killefer; Washington, Walter Johnson; Detroit, Stanley Harris; Chicago, Donie Bush, and Boston, Bill Carrigan. They say that Boston at any minute is likely to hire somebody to assume the Red Sox reins in place of Carrigan. But then anything is likely to happen in Boston—particularly with regard to the Red Sox.

THE last time we saw a list of National League managers, it looked like this: Chicago, Joe Mc-

National League. Still, the fun has only started.

BOB SHAWKEY let out Moore, Grabowski and Paschal to obtain for the Yanks the veteran catching services of Bubbles Hargrave. Manager Peck of the Indians would like to trade Joe Shaute and John Miljus for infielders or outfielders, if they're good. Burlingame Grimes of the Pirates had a run-in with Manager Eas just before the season closed and the spitball yet, as a result of this, may not be employed by the Buccaneers another year. This said by some, and denied by others, that Washington would invite offers of new talent for the veteran Goose Goslin.

Chicago's "Old Roman," Charles Comiskey, in falling health several years, has decided he needs the White Sox and they need him. Consequently the reconditioned Comiskey plans to function as an active owner and operator. His biggest move thus far was the purchase of Smead Jolley, heavy hitting outfielder from the Coast League. William Wrigley, Jr., Cub owner, coached Lester Bell away from the Boston Braves to play third base for the National League champs.

Many startling trades and sales are expected to be cooked up in early December when the minor leagues hold their annual meeting, followed within a few days by the major league session. Bucky Harris is not through sitting his Detroit aggregation, it is said, and the Yankees are going through a build-up process. Since both of these teams boast hitters, Boston or some other team might jump at a chance to swap a pitcher for added strength at the bat. And, of course, we can count on John McGraw making a trade that will react like a boomerang on his team. McGraw invariably draws numerous discomfiting horse laughs and an abundant crop of razberries as a result of any deal in which he and the Giants figure.

Not all the changes have been in the managerial line, however. Bob Meusel and Harry Heilmann, American League stars for many years, will make new acquaintances next spring in an entirely new orbit. From lefty members of the touted Yankee and Tiger wrecking crews, each fell off to the plane of an ordinary ball player last season. Consequently, when Dan Howley asked for them, he found none opposing him and both became Reds in the

He hasn't been getting along well in Flatbush for several seasons.

His Rheumatic Pains Routed

"After 20 years suffering the Sargon treatment took right hold of my case, fixed me up in fine shape and I'm feeling just great."

FRED F. FOUNTAIN

"Constipation and indigestion gradually grew worse with me, and finally, I went through a course of treatments that gave me some temporary relief, but nothing lasting. Then rheumatism came on and my left knee hurt so bad I could hardly walk. A few weeks ago I started Sargon with Sargon Pills, and I'll tell anybody this is a wonderful treatment! My appetite is fine now, my indigestion is over and every rheumatic pain in my body is gone! Sargon Pills regulated me perfectly, toned up my liver and rid my whole system of poisons."—Fred F. Fountain, 115 S. E. 4th St., Mason City, Fisher's Pharmacy, Wayne, Agents.

Graceful, Alluring Lines Add Beauty To Holiday Party Frocks This Season

BY HARRIET

CHOOSING the party frock for the holiday festivities is one of the pleasantest tasks one can have.

Party dresses this year are extremely beautiful. They flatter one in soft textures, alluring color and form-fitting cut.

Their fabrics run the gamut from the softest and most cobwebby of laces, through chiffons, tulle, square mesh nets to rich, lustrous brocaded lames and deep velvets.

Flat crepes and satins are perhaps the most popular materials used for evening frocks, partly because both are exceedingly serviceable, lend themselves gracefully to the new mode and have an authentic correctness about them that puts a woman at her ease.

There are many types of evening frocks this season. The most universal trait is their modified princess lines. While there are some that affect high empire lines and tiny puff sleeves, the majority have a molded bodice and some varied type of skirt fullness, with the full floor length or uneven hemline that dips in the back and perhaps the sides too.

THIS uneven hemline is one of the most flattering ones for most women. Points dipping here and there, or circular pockets that fall longer than the front, carry with them the illusion of beautiful contours beneath. The woman with legs that are not of perfect form will do well to use the uneven hemline whenever possible.

There are two distinct types of evening frocks for the holidays. One is the ultra-sophisticated, form-fitting gown that distinguishes the mature woman and adds a deceiving note of sophistication to the youngster. The other is the ingenuo frock, the lovely party gown that is made for youth and breathes a note of modesty and challenging youthfulness.

One of the former type is an evening dress from Mlle. de Saint Chair, Paris. It is pink crepe satin, made of a princess line that flares to real skirt fullness by a series of graduated tiers, each one of which drops from the end to the longer line.

A gown inspired by youth and dedicated to it is a white faille tulle with delicate traceries in silver. This ingenuo frock would be perfectly stunning against the holiday background of holly, evergreen and mistletoe, suggesting as it does the beauty of the mistletoe itself.

It is one of those little "apron" frocks, cut so that its flounce is posed upon the foundation in a manner suggestive of a flaring saucy little apron. This flounce dips much longer in back, but the entire frock is scarcely any longer than last season's.

The neckline is simple and modest, dipping a little deeper in its rear than in front. On one hip a lovely pin of emeralds and crystals adds its note and the white dippers have silver bows.

The evening dress at the left is of pink crepe satin unusually embroidered in tulle. The original gown shown at the right is made of white tulle with silver tracery running through the silk.

SPORTS WRITER PICKS VERSATILE ALL-AMERICA ELEVEN, COMBINING SHIFTY RUNNERS, PLUNGERS, KICKERS, PASSERS AND PASS RECEIVERS

BY PHILIP MARTIN THIS is the time of year when the expert goes off by himself to the quietness of a padded cell to glorify America's horde of collegiate football players.

While he smokes long back cigars and drinks cup after cup of strong coffee, the expert consults hundreds of newspaper clippings and scribbles many notes which are torn up. He reads and re-reads the letters and recommendations of his benches stationed in various sections of the country.

This goes on for several days, during which there is a loss of appetite, sleep and weight. At last the expert emerges, a smile plays over his haggard features and he announces that the 1929 All-America elevens are completed.

UNFORTUNATELY, only 11 men comprise a football team, even if it is an All-America group. Because it seems unfair to name 11 players as supreme, we have selected two other teams. It's not entirely out of the question to believe that the second or third team could defeat the first eleven, were they matched in actual combat.

These men of the 1929 Honor Roll have been chosen with the aid of a confidential report from football coaches and writers in various sections of the country. Twenty-five schools in 16 states produced the athletes selected.

We have sought versatile football players for the All-America teams, believing that in versatility lies a team's strength. A combination of shifty runners, strong line plungers, kickers, passers and pass-receivers is the desired arrangement. And if these teams they are combined in the 9th degree.

Joe Donches at left end on the undefeated Pitt eleven reigned supreme among eastern wingmen. Tappan was the greatest end the trifle short of the pace set by Donches and Tappan. Baker, "Catfish" Smith and Tanner were brilliant in the campaigns of their teams and only a pace behind the others. The wild and untamed Bronko Nagurski and big Red Slight are named at tackles. It was worth a lot to witness these two giants in action. Lou Gordon, the best tackle Bob Zupke ever coached, and Westra, Wakeman and Doude were remarkable linemen. For the guard positions, selection finally settled on Bull Brown and "Hunk" Anderson, fighting captains of Vanderbilt and Northwestern. The work of these two leaders predominated. Coach Sutherland of Pittsburgh called Ray Montgomery "the perfect guard" while a piece of heavy coast artillery was meek and docile as Cannon. Ray Ferris and Walter Magal were outstanding at guard posts.

ALL-AMERICA 1929 HONOR ROLL

- FIRST TEAM: Donches, Pitt; End Nagurski, Minnesota; Tackle Brown, Vanderbilt; Guard Ben Tacknor, Harvard; Center Anderson, Northwestern; Quarterback Slight, Purdue; Fullback Tappan, Southern Calif. End Carideo, Notre Dame (C). SECOND TEAM: Fessler, Ohio State; End Gordon, Illinois; Tackle Heinecke, Stanford; Center Cannon, Notre Dame; Guard Westra, Iowa; Tackle Baker, Northwestern; End Booth, Yale; Quarterback Saunders, Southern Calif.; Fullback Welch, Tulane; Halfback Welch, Purdue (C). THIRD TEAM: V. Smith, Georgia; End Wakeman, Cornell; Tackle Farris, North Carolina; Guard Sloan, Fordham; Center Magal, Penn; Guard Doude, W. & J.; Tackle Tanner, Minnesota; End Harmonson, Purdue. Quarterback Uansa, Pitt; Halfback Cagle, Army (C); Halfback Sloan, Nebraska (C); Fullback

BEN TICKNOR stopped everything Yale had to offer and if there had been two Ben Ticknors, Harvard wouldn't have been forced to accept a tie with the Army. The Ojimon center was a whale of a defensive player and a true passer on the offense. Heinecke and Sloan rated only a fraction below the Ticknor standard. Much could be written about the Honor backfields, but what is the use of it. The names stand out and have been broadcast from coast to coast and from gulf to dominion. Everybody knows that Carideo was the main spring of a gallant, hard-charging Notre Dame team and that Marsters was never totally stopped until felled by Old Man Jinx in the person of infirmer Booth was an inspirational leader; as was Cagle, Welch, Baker, McEver and others. And speaking of versatility—just glance over those backfield rosters.

Shelling Corn with the John Deere No. 9 Srew-Cylinder Sheller

A Big Capacity Sheller for Husked or Snapped Corn

The John Deere No. 9 Cylinder Corn Sheller is of the type and size particularly suitable for large corn-growers or for neighborhood use. It handles both husked and snapped corn and does an equally clean job of shelling in both.

The universal swivel used on the No. 9 Sheller is an original John Deere feature. The feeder can be set at any angle within a half circle, which permits many settings not possible with the ordinary straight-away feeder.

Staves in the shelling cage are adjustable—different kinds, sizes and conditions of corn can be successfully shelled. The No. 9 is ideal for handling present-day corn.

The steel construction of the No. 9, including weather-proof, copper-alloy, galvanized sheet steel sides, gives neat design, long life, and permanent adjustments. You can operate the No. 9 with but a small crew.

Remember—when you own your own sheller, you shell at lowest cost and when the price is right. And there's always corn to shell for your neighbors at a profit. Investigate this profitable sheller now.
