Wayne Students To Conference

The national Anti-Saloon League conference, held last week in Detroit, Mich., was attended by almost 1,000 people from all parts of the country. Of the number about 100 were students from schools of various states. Nebraska was represented by Supt. and Mrs. F. A. High and Mr. San De Fur, state officers in the League, and by thirty students who received free trips for winning in oratorical and essay contests conducted in colleges. Miss Jeanette Lewis and Merrill Whitman of Wayne, winners respectively in the essay and oratorical contests in the Wayne school, were in the group. They left Tuesday of last week and arrived home this Tuesday morning. Ten years of victory in the Anti-Saloon League movement was the theme of addresses by many prominent men and women of the country. It was cited that according to popular elections, for president and congress, the "dry" movement is gaining ground. Among the important speakers at the conference was Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon League. Others were S. Scott McBride, Ernest Cherrington, Judge Florence Allen, only woman supreme court justice, "Pussy Foot" William Johnson, Maurice Shepherd, and Bishop Nicholson of Detroit, national president. Students from the middle west comprised the large part of the delegation of young folks. Nebraska and Kentucky were the only two states which conducted college contests, the former having thirty and the latter twenty delegates. Iowa had about thirty high school students who had won in county contests. Four or five represented each of a group of other states. The student delegation had some part in the programs. The two Nebraska and two Kentucky orators, whose works were judged best in recent contests, presented their orations. In response to request from Supt. High of Lincoln, for a slogan song, Mrs. J. G. W. Lewis sent "Nebraska, My Native Land." This song, written by Mrs. S. A. Luttgen, and "Nebraska, My Nebraska" were used by the student group from this state. Dr. Russell, League founder, entertained personally the student group at banquet and two luncheons at Detroit hotels. People of Detroit took the visitors about the city and to the Ford plant. An opportunity was given to ride in the Ford trimotor plane. The Nebraska and Iowa students also went to Windsor, Canada, on a sight-seeing trip. The Wayne R. Wheeler memorial fund of $100,000 was practically assured when the conference closed.

Christmas Seals Sold In County

Funds Will Be Used In Wayne For Health Work Conducted Locally and in State. The sale of Christmas seals for the support of work of the Nebraska Tuberculosis association in promotion of health in schools and throughout the state amounted to $284.13 in Wayne county this year. This includes reports from all but four instructors. Miss Pearl E. Sewell is in charge for Wayne county. Fifty percent of the amount received will be used for health work in Wayne county and the other fifty percent goes to the state organization and is used for health promotion throughout Nebraska. The money on hand the past fall from sales in previous years was spent in hiring a physician to give health examinations which the school law requires each year. Before Christmas this year 300 seals were sent to each teacher. Several sold the number and sent for more. A great many double-barred pins were given to young folks of the county who sold twenty-five seals each. The Wilson volleyball ball which is given to the room in the town school selling the most seals per capita enrollment, went to Miss Florence Buol's room at Carroll. Hers is the grammar room with an enrollment of fifteen pupils. They sold seals to the amount of $13.54. The rural school selling the most per capita enrollment was district twelve, of which Miss Ruth Hanson is teacher. There are four in the school and the pupils sold seals to the amount of $2. The next highest were district five, taught by Miss Vera Worrell, and district seventy-three, taught by Miss Martha Wolmer. Each school sold seals to the amount of $3 and each has an enrollment of eight. Schools in district forty-four, taught by Miss Mildred Francis, and district fifty-five, taught by Miss Carrie Stamm, each sold $6

THE KNOT-HOLE

No. 23 Wayne, Neb., Thursday, January 28, 1930 Vol. 74. Some people buy, and some people sell, on price alone. They buy and sell merchandise, and neither of them either buys or sells more than he pays for. No price is ever made low enough to suit the buyer. "Some folks pay their bills when due. Others - when overdue. Some never do. How do you do, folks. How do you do?" It will pay you to look at our Sunshine Brooder stoves, before buying. Ed Echtenkamp tells us about a generous Scotch lad who intended to give his girl a ring one night - but the line was busy. "Are raw oysters healthy?" asked an office visitor. "Well, we never heard one complain, did you?" There's mighty little carrying of ashes when you burn Flaminco coal. It's full of heat - and nothing else. "The time will come," shouted the speaker, "when women will get it." This snapshot of the actor at a Hot Line had been taken midnight. It's not to think about being long before spring break. Style Decrees Colored Velveteen Jacket or Coat for Spring Wear

COATING the spring wardrobe properly will include at least one jacket or coat made of velveteen.

This is wearable, has femininity about it, comes in lovely colors and is very chic right now. The wide wale velveteen pique is exceptionally good for sportswear. A jacket made of it in orange, flamingo, billiard green or a nautical blue makes an exceptionally nice covering for simple sports frocks that one wears on the tennis courts.

There is great latitude in jacket modes this season. The bolero is receiving increased attention, but for the separate coat the hiplength jacket may be a trifle more satisfactory, especially if it is of a brighter or different material from the dress.

Cardigans are not quite so feminine as jackets that have soft collars, a cuff belt, pockets and perhaps a marked waistline. The old-fashioned nipped in at the waistline mode is very good, as a matter of fact. With flaring skirts this type of jacket is extremely modish.

For a smart little working costume for street, business or school, the plain velveteen skirt, tucked in blouse and wide wale velveteen coat makes a nice outfit. One such is developed in greens, with the plain velveteen skirt, a wrap-around, made of dark green, the tucked-in silk blouse with ruffled jabot of quite a lighter tone and the jacket of medium green. This jacket is just a little shorter than finger tip length, has double-breasted effect with green bone buttons, pockets and smart peaked lapels.

For dressier affairs, velveteen is used now, too. The long coats usually have semi-princess cut with flare at the bottom and a rather individual type of collar and cuffs.

The best colors for these dressy separate coats are some of the new blues, the new dahlias or browns. These colors are dignified yet not at all somber. Black velveteen coats are not so rich looking as colored ones. A very cleverly cut coat in bright effect.

A green velveteen jacket (left) has a double-breasted effect and matched lapels. The blue velveteen has 300 pieces in its intricate cut.

Another unusual sport for dressier occasions is a rich dahlia red, with its shoulder yoke and its knee bounce made of tiny diamond pieces of the material, like a patchwork quilt, and the rest made of plain cut, fitted slightly to the body. From all indications these jackets will be tremendous variety and individuality in separate coats this spring. One could so easily make herself a very chic one, if she is handy with the needle. And these early months in the year invariably offer great bargains in remnants. If choosing one, remember the real vogue there is in velveteen. It can be very effective.

Visitor Praises College In Wayne

F. A. Lister of St. Edward, regent of Wayne about twenty years ago, visited the Teachers College here a few weeks ago and writes the following about the institution.

The writer went over to Wayne and spent a few hours on the college grounds recently and we are frank to say we were amazed at the magnitude of it and rather ashamed of ourselves for not having comprehended it sooner.

It was through the courtesy of an old friend that we were enabled in a short time to obtain a most comprehensive knowledge of the wonderful progress that is being made at this seat of learning.

Wayne college was founded by Prof. J. M. Pike and operated as a private institution of learning. He was a wonderful teacher who had capacity far above his means of financial development.

But it is the purpose of this article to give a "once over" of impressions. All but one of the state buildings look as though they had been just newly built and this one will soon be discarded.

Market Report.

Furnished by Steele, Simon & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.

Few differences were noted in the general trade on live stock at the expiration of the first two days' trading, compared with the close of last week.

Thirteen leading markets of the country received 95,600 cattle on Monday and Tuesday, 22,000 less than the same days last week.

Fed yearlings were in broad demand and prices ruled strong to a quarter higher with the better grades showing the most strength.

Receipts of butcher stock ran rather light and demands were broad enough to force a strong to quarter advance over the close of last week when the market took a slump.

Most of the short fed heifers brought $10.50 to 11.50 with a few good grades to $12.25.

Bulls advanced a quarter with most sales at $8.50 to 9.00. Heavy beef types sold at the latter figure and plain, thin bolognas ranged down to and under $8.00.

Stocks and feeder supplies were small and sellers managed to peddle at mostly steady prices even though country demand was narrow.

Prices advanced to the highest level since September on the opening day of the week but took a quarter set back on the following day.

Sellers found good going on the light weight butchers and sales were made freely at $9.65 to 9.75 on the second day of the week.

Sheep receipts amounted to 108,000 at the 13 leading markets on Monday and Tuesday, nearly the same as for the same two days of the previous week. Fat lamb prices strengthened a little on the initial session and eased back again on the second day.

California's Famous Sunshine Bows to Ethylene Gas as Fruit Ripener

CALIFORNIA'S famous sunshine has finally bowed to a chemical rival.

And to Dr. F. E. Denny, former research worker for the United States Department of Agriculture, goes the credit for discovering that ethylene gas ripens fruit quicker than the sun does.

Sol's latest rival has proved a boon to citrus fruit growers who previously trembled all through December for fear a frost might kill the early-ripening naval oranges, lemons and grapefruit.

Picked When Green Now, fruit can be picked green, placed in chambers containing a small portion of ethylene gas, and ripened and colored in half the time it would take on the tree.

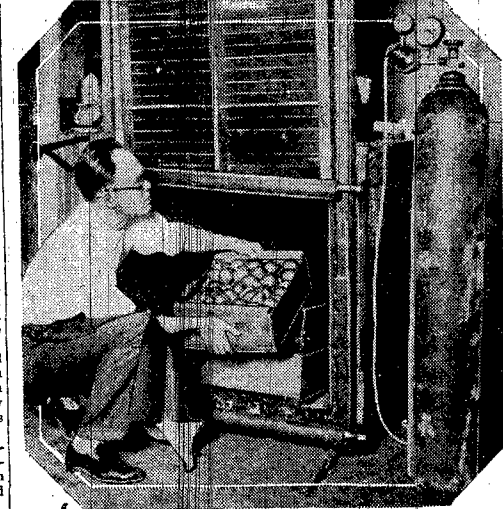

In addition, the discovery will enable growers to reach eastern Thanksgiving markets with oranges and will reduce the now prohibitive prices on early citrus fruits in the east.

Not only citrus fruits, but persimmons, apricots, pears, tomatoes, celery and other produce can be ripened by the process. And the cost is negligible.

The story of the discovery of the ethylene process is a scientific romance as great as any recounted by Paul de Kruif in his book "Hunger Fighters." The discovery dates back several winters.

Story of Discovery

A carload of lemons were being shipped east one winter, and to prevent freezing, a small kerosene stove was placed in one of the cars. When the fruit arrived, it was found to be ripe and yellow, while cars that had not been heated by a kerosene stove contained fruit that was still green and hard.

D. G. Sorber, Jr., government chemist, is shown above placing in a laboratory cabinet a tray of green fruit preparatory to ripening it with ethylene gas. This process, which cuts in half the time for natural ripening, was accidentally discovered by Dr. F. E. Denny, former research worker for the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

experiments, the lemons some distance from the kerosene stove ripened as well as those next to it.

Treatment Inexpensive He then analyzed the hydrocarbon gases given off by the stove and proceeded to treat fruit with each gas separately. No results appeared until ethylene was tried, which produced the desired results. One cylinder, he found, was enough to treat a whole trainload of fruit. One pound of ethylene in 5000 cu. ft. of air was enough. The cost of the treatment was estimated at 18 cents per carload.

A bulletin on the subject was published by the United States Department of Agriculture, but it went unheeded. Denny was called to other fields of work, and the work of experiment with ethylene went on under the direction of Dr.

ATTRACTIVE PAY TO TRAPPERS OF NEBRASKA FURS

TRAPPING in Nebraska is estimated by members of the state game, forestation and parks commission to produce an annual income of a quarter of a million dollars for those engaged in it. A few years ago a survey was made which resulted in finding the income derived from fur bearing animals (to be: muskrat, $600,000; mink, $500,000; coyote, $400,000; skunk, $400,000; oppossum, $20,000; all other animals, $5,000).

A considerable number of persons find a winter occupation in trapping on Nebraska lakes and streams. The sandhill lakes of northwestern Nebraska are excellent recruiting places for muskrat. Trappers who own the land on which the lakes are located lease them to trappers on a percentage basis and some of them have derived as high as $5,000 a year from a half share of the pelts taken.

So profitable is the trapping of muskrats in the sandhill lakes that during the period of deflation, when the ranges were cleaned of cattle, many trappers went into trapping on their own lands and were able to keep up their interest payments from the proceeds of their traps.

The game commission has warned against too heavy trapping of muskrats. In large lakes where there are large plantings of fish the muskrat houses afford ventilation and allow for the escape of gases which form under the water through decaying vegetable matter. The destruction of muskrats is fatal to game fish in the rat lakes.

In order to replenish the supply of muskrats, which has become depleted by too heavy trapping, the game commission has closed all state lands and state controlled lakes to trappers for this season. The commission does not propose to allow a profitable industry to be destroyed by overwork.

will soon begin the study of Caesar's Gallic wars. The English II students are having a grammar review. The major classics which will be studied next semester are "Julius Caesar," "The Song of Hugh Glass" and "The Tale of Two Cities." The students will have oral reports once a week and will write four book reports next semester.

Reynolds of the Congregational church at Newcastle, Neb., for William Stewart, 66-year-old retired farmer, who succumbed in a Sioux City hospital Wednesday of exposure and paralysis after lying in the snow for two days and two nights.

Burial will be in a Newcastle cemetery under the direction of Otto E. Kuk's funeral home.

Mr. Stewart's death was due immediately to a second stroke.

Found in Willows.
Mr. Stewart left the home of his son, Jay Stewart, seven miles north of Newcastle, Neb., last Friday afternoon to make the rounds of some traps he had set out along the river bottoms. When returning home in the evening, and within three-quarters of a mile from the farmhouse of his son, he suffered a stroke and lay helpless on the ground until he was discovered Sunday morning in a patch of willows by Gaylord Harding, a neighbor boy.

When his father did not return home Friday night his son believed the elderly man had stayed with friends, but when he was also missing Saturday night and inquiries failed to reveal his whereabouts, a posse was organized Sunday morning to make a search of the neighborhood.

After being brought to a hospital here Sunday serious complications developed, followed by the fatal second stroke Wednesday morning.

Conscious most of the time, Mr. Stewart said that he had managed to keep from freezing during his long exposure to the elements by vigorous movement of his left arm, which had not been affected by the paralysis.

Born in Canada.

HEAD OF YOUTHS' SCHOOL ADVISES RULES TO FOLLOW

DR. Samuel S. Drury, rector of St. Paul's school for boys at Concord, and recognized specialist in shaping the formative period in boys, is quoted by the Literary Digest in regard to managing youths. He advises parents to regain command of the family, inaugurate a "rule-and-reason" era, and cut out the jazz menace. Dr. Drury is quoted as summarizing his points as follows:

"1. Make the second decade of youths' lives prezy, wholesome and simple.

"2. Provide the spur of necessity for them, especially if you are wealthy.

"3. Don't invite other people's children to parties primarily arranged for elder people.

"4. Don't destroy young people's characters in order to make one of your parties 'successful'.

"5. Don't offer children in their 'second decade' liquor, unless they are your own children. (Which rule Dr. Drury really directs to members of the 'second decade' themselves. It runs: Don't drink unless at your father's table.)

"6. Give your boy or girl at least a month in camp, or a cruise on a tanker, or a course in a citizens' training-camp during the summer vacation.

"7. Don't postpone your child's education. Begin in January what you contemplate for him in July.

"8. Don't hesitate to place your boy of from 16 to 19 in unsupervised situations in life. There is an inner armor boys possess during these years that keeps them from the smirch of the world.

"9. Don't put the smirch that creeps into older minds into the minds of those in the 'second decade'.

"10. Give your growing boy a thrilling job, one that taxes his powers and puts him on his own responsibility.

"11. Don't 'fiddle' around with your boy or girl. Theirs not to make reply during the 'second decade.' There should be no rule without reason. But you should rule!"

About Nebraska and Nebraskans

Will M. Maupin.

Added interest is lent to the political campaign this year by reason of the fact that a full set of county officers is to be elected together with a full state and congressional ticket and a United States senator. Political observers see in this situation an indication that there will be closer adherence to party lines than has been the case in recent years.

For many years Nebraska had election every twelve months, the "off year" elections being for judges of the supreme court and regents of the university. Then came the election of judges of the supreme court by districts and on "non-partisan" ballots, together with regents, county judges and superintendents of public education on "non-partisan" ballots, and the old off-year elections were abandoned. Then came the lengthening of the terms of county officers to four years.

For years Nebraska had a law prohibiting a man from holding the office of county treasurer more than two successive terms. The last legislature repealed that law. However the law which prevents a state treasurer from serving more than two successive terms still holds good. The law prohibits any elective state officer from being a candidate for any other state office during the term for which he is elected. For example, a lieutenant governor is stopped from being a candidate for governor during the time for which he was elected lieutenant governor. Some have questioned the legality of the candidacy of W. M. Stebbins for the senatorial nomination, but the answer to that is that the senatorship is a federal office, not a state office.

The law also prohibits an elected officer from accepting other emoluments than those pertaining to the office at the time of his election. Formerly the lieutenant governor was paid on a per diem basis, the same as members of the legislature. Now he and members of the legislature serve on a salary basis. For this reason Lieutenant Governor Williams was not able to accept the appointment tendered him by Governor Weaver to become a special investigator for the governor on a per diem and expense basis.

This peculiar law caused considerable litigation several years ago. The legislature appointed a committee to investigate a certain branch of the state activities and report to the following session. One of the members of the committee presented a claim for several hundred dollars of per diem, together with a healthy expense account. The then secretary of state, Charles Pool, refused to accept the claim, and the legislator went to court to force payment. The court held that under the law the legislator could not collect more than the amount allowed other members of the legislature.

Some of Nebraska's laws are very closely drawn. In the early 90's a legislature enacted a law prohibiting the discharge of firearms on a public highway "except to kill a dangerous animal or an officer in discharge of his duty." Fortunately no one killed an officer in discharge of his duty and cited this peculiar law in extenuation. The law was properly amended by grammar and punctuation at the succeeding session.

Almost 60 years ago a little colony of Swedes, fresh from their native land, arrived in Nebraska and homesteaded in Burt county near the site of the present thriving little city of Oakland. They were the first of the "sod house" pioneers in that section of Nebraska. Among them was Victor Colson, who developed unusual qualities of leadership. He became one of the most successful farmers in northeastern Nebraska. Mr. Colson died Jan. 12, at the age of 96, the last one of that gallant little band of Swedish settlers.

When Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harstiek of Cumung county were married on Jan. 6, 1880, they immediately went to housekeeping in a log house on the homestead Mr. Harstiek had filed on in 1867. When Mr. and Mrs. Harstiek celebrated their golden wedding they were still living on that homestead, but the old log house was abandoned as a habitation years ago and a beautiful home with every modern convenience took its place. To have lived together happily for 50 years, and upon the same farm is a record to point to with pride.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brownhewell of the Springs were married in Jan. 12, 1865, and moved to Nebraska in 1868. They recently celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Thornburgh of Fullerton celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Jan. 7.

It is a matter of history that all that portion of Nebraska lying south of the Platte river came very near being added to Kansas.

During the territorial legislature's session in 1856, J. Sterling Morton introduced a memorial to congress asking that this be done. Strangely enough, for Morton was a violent pro-slavery man, the memorial suggested that such action would insure the admission of Kansas as a "free state." Anti-slavery men in Kansas grasped at the idea, and a similar memorial was presented by the Kansas legislature. There was a bitter political feud between the north and south Platte sections, and Morton's proposition was overwhelmingly favored in the south section. The controversy raged with heat for a long time, but was finally dropped when Kansas was admitted "as is" and a free state.

It was a Connecticut Yankee, Charles F. Holly, who brought the first slaves into Nebraska. Mr. Holly was a lawyer, and prior to moving to Nebraska City in 1854 he lived for ten years in Savannah, Mo. When he came to Nebraska he brought with him from Missouri two slaves, Uncle Hercules and Aunt Dinah, the first chattel slaves in the territory.

John Deere General Purpose

The Two-Flow Tractor That Plants and Cultivates Three Rows at a Time

Twenty-five to forty acres a day in cultivating—that's the average capacity that corn belt farmers are getting with the John Deere General Purpose Tractor and its specially designed cultivating equipment. In small corn or tall corn the General Purpose cultivates efficiently, because you can throttle it down to that steady speed that permits the very best cultivation.

Just picture yourself on a General Purpose doing a quick clean job of weed-killing in your own field.

There you are—seated well up above your work—up where you can get a clear view of the rows ahead. Your hands grasp a wheel that is instantly responsive to your touch, giving you a quick, easy shift to meet irregular conditions.

Your tractor is light-weight for economy, but the strength and power are there to take you steadily up and down the field—at the rate of 25 to 29 acres a day.

No spots are skipped or missed—you have the same flexibility on uneven ground as you have with a single-row cultivator. At your left-hand is a handy device with which you control the depth of the rigs.

No levers to operate—you raise or lower the rigs by a touch of the foot without stopping the tractor. When you reach the ends of the rows the differential brakes enable you to make short, quick turns to right or left with no loss of time.

With four outlets of power available—drawbar, belt, power take-off and power lift—the John Deere General Purpose will show you the real value in power farming, not only on planting and cultivating jobs, but on all other farm jobs as well.

Eventually you will want this outfit. Come in and get all the facts NOW.
