Breeders Hold Annual Picnic

Bud Chilcott Elected To State Board of Directors—D. H. Cunningham Speaks.

Bud Chilcott of Wayne was elected to membership in the board of directors of the Nebraska Hampshire Swine Breeders' association at the annual meeting held Friday afternoon in King's Park at Norfolk and D. H. Cunningham also of Wayne gave one of the main talks at the meeting.

About 150 members of the association gathered for an interesting and instructive program while their families enjoyed games and athletic contests. National officials and men of more local prominence were included in the formal program of the meeting.

Elect Officers.

Officers to serve the state association during the coming year were elected during the business session as follows: A. E. Magdanz, Pierce, president; Harry M. Knabe, Nebraska, vice-president; Ed. S. Rennick, Pilger, secretary; treasurer; and John Volk, Battle Creek, W. A. Tyrow, Peru; A. F. Garrett, Aurora; R. S. Hollstein, Cairo, in addition to Mr. Chilcott were made members of the board of directors.

Picnic luncheon for all members and their families opened, the program in the park. Members had brought their own lunches and ice cream for all was provided by the chamber of commerce. W. A. Pixley, secretary of the chamber of commerce welcomed the guests to Norfolk and assisted in directing the recreational activities which were held later in the afternoon. D. H. Cunningham followed Mr. Pixley with a talk which stressed the theme of "having confidence in your own business."

National Officer Speaks.

E. M. Harsch of Joliet, Ill., secretary of the Hampshire Swine Record association, which is the national organization of Hampshire breeders, and editor of the "American Herdsman," official Hampshire publication, addressed the meeting concerning the organization and some important factors to be considered in preparing hogs for market.

Russell P. Hall, managing editor of the "American Herdsman," who is frequently in Wayne, was also present for the meeting.

Plan Fall Meeting.

Plans for holding a herd promotion sale next winter were laid at the meeting. Half the selling price of each animal at this sale will go to the consignor and the other half to the treasurer of the Nebraska group. The fund thus created will be used to provide special Hampshire prizes at the 1931 Nebraska state fair, competition to be limited to Nebraska Hampshire breeders. Reports indicated that a large number of Hampshire show herds would be exhibited at the state fair this year.

Members of the association from many sections of the state were present for the picnic which is to be made an annual affair, with a business session to be held each winter. A. D. Jones of Litchfield was believed to have traveled the greatest distance for the meeting.

Athletic contests at the picnic were featured by the running of Jimmie Rennick, twelve-year-old son of Ed. S. Rennick of Pilger, who won the 75-yard dash for boys with ease and then competed with nine adults in another 75-yard dash when he again took first place. He was awarded a prize for each victory by the Norfolk chamber of commerce.

Those from Wayne who were present at the gathering included the following: Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Chilcott, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Chilcott, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Chilcott and D. H. Cunningham.

What Happens To Milk In Creamery

Everyone buys milk or cream or ice cream or butter in one form or another yet the processes through which the raw milk is put in the creamery before the finished product is ready for the consumer are still mysteries to most people. How is milk pasteurized? How is ice cream made? How could most creamery products be kept?

Milk, in a modern creamery like the one in Wayne, is first strained, forced at 200 pounds through a pressure filter to remove any remaining foreign particles and is then run through a spray pasteurizer. In the pasteurizer the milk is heated to 140 degrees in about ten minutes at which temperature it is held for fifteen minutes. It must be kept in constant circulation in order to avoid burning. From the pasteurizer the milk is pumped over a sanitary nickel tubular cooler which lowers its temperature to 38 degrees. The milk then flows through a second strainer into the bottling machine. The bottles are capped by machine and placed in a cooler at 36 degrees. The complete machinery must be scalded and sterilized both before and after it is used.

State Sets Cream Content.

Standard requirements set the standard for milk at 2 1/2 percent fat. At the local creamery this standard is met before the milk goes into the pasteurizer. Coffee cream and whipping cream, which are put through the same processes as the milk have set percentages of fat content also. Coffee cream has 25 percent fat and whipping cream has 34 percent.

Milk for ice cream is first pasteurized at about 145 degrees. To make creamery ice cream smoother than the home-made product the cream is first put through a homogenizer under 2,500 pounds pressure which removes the granular texture of the cream. State requirements for the cream in ice cream set the fat content at 14 percent. After the cream is frozen it is packed in containers and kept in storage at a temperature between 0 and 10 degrees.

Milk's Eskimo Pies.

Eskimo pies, a patented creamery product which rose to sudden popularity several years ago, are made of small oblongs of ice cream which are picked up on long pipes, dipped in hot chocolate and hung on a rack to dry. The hot chocolate cools very rapidly on the outside of a square of ice cream.

Butter like ice cream, is made from cream, pasteurized at about 145 degrees. This is then cooled to 44 degrees and held at that temperature about six hours before it is churned. Butter is washed, watered and salted before it is placed in the printer's box which is placed in the cooler until it is out into pound or quarter pound squares or prints.

is complete and only the inside woodwork and flooring remain to be finished. The family will probably move into the new home about the first of September. Floors are being laid in the Prof. G. W. Costerian home south of the college campus and it will be ready for occupancy about August 1. Last touches on the new W. A. Meyer home on East Seventh street were completed this week and the family will move in soon. Plumbers and painters are still busy at the Howard James home at Ninth and Main, but the family expects to move in about the first of August.

Construction of some other new homes is expected to begin in the near future but no definite plans have been announced yet.

Record-Breaking Heat Wave Sends Farmers To Field Work at Night

Pool Doubles Trade; Ice Cream Sales Grow As Mercury Goes Above 100 Daily.

Heat records broken, lives cost, animals lost, crops hurt, gardens suffering and flowers drooping! In one of the longest hot spells experienced in many parts of the central west, Lady Weather has held the center of the stage the past week.

Pool Is Popular. Noticeable increase has been experienced in the ice business, the sale of ice cream and cold drinks and the number of people who daily patronize the swimming pools. Since the first of July tons of artificial and natural ice have been disposed of in the same period, a very marked increase over the usual quantity. Cafes and other eating parlors have noted a decided preference for ice cream, iced watermelon, iced tea, salads, cold meats and other light diets. Swimming pool trade has almost doubled in the past week, with more than two hundred patrons present practically every day since the first of July. Two Sundays, June 29 and July 6, drew the biggest crowds and Wednesday evening the patronage reached 260.

Water Supply Holds. Considerably more water has been used in Wayne than has been pumped during the past few days but the reservoir supply is sufficient to accommodate this. Wayne's new wells have proved themselves equal to the demand for sprinkling lawns and for other cooling purposes. The new street flusher has been employed about three times a day not only to clean the streets but to cool off the air by sprinkling the hot down-town pavements.

People in the towns have complained of the lack of breeze and other difficulties in the way of keeping cool but farmers in the open country have found it even more difficult to continue in the fields, and a great many of them have taken to doing their field work by moonlight, starting about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. This night work not only saves the farmers but it saves the animals, many of which have died during the prolonged hot spell.

Wayne Man Prostrated. Though casualties in the middle west amounted to nearly eighty due to the heat wave of the past week, only three of these were reported in Nebraska, two of which were suicides in Omaha by men who killed themselves rather than undergo any more of the tortuous temperatures. Only one Wayne man here was prostrated by the heat, Ernest Kohrt, blacksmith, who was overcome Friday. Mr. Kohrt was reported improving by Saturday afternoon.

Hottest In Years. Clouds and a good south breeze helped considerably Friday night, but the wind switched to the north Saturday morning and in spite of the encouragement of a very light sprinkle south of town and to the southwest the temperatures continued high. Official temperature records at Norfolk and Sioux City over a period of years showed that this is probably the worst long-continued hot spell known for years. Friday was the sixth consecutive day in Norfolk when the mercury climbed above 103, the highest mark being reached on Wednesday when it touched 111 degrees, shattering the all-time heat record for the city.

In July, 1901, in Norfolk there were ten consecutive days when the official thermometer touched at least 100 degrees or higher, but during this period 103 was the highest temperature reached. This figure, reached on July 11, 1901, was the heat record for Norfolk until Wednesday when it was broken by the record of the 111 mark and again Thursday when 109 degrees was recorded. The only other six-day period in Norfolk comparable to the one last week began on July 15, 1926, when the maxima on the six days were 106, 105, 103, 102, 101 and 100, making an average of 102.8.

Sioux City Is Hot. In Sioux City the thermometer climbed to 103 or 104 for several consecutive days. Sioux City also had its record long-continued heat wave in 1901 when for nineteen successive days a temperature of at least 94 was recorded. One ten of these days it soared above 100, the maximum temperature record being 106.

Sleep Out Doors. Interesting devices for assisting in keeping as cool as possible have been noted. A great many people sleep out of doors and those who do not have such secluded yards place their mattresses and covers on the floor in front of the front doors, open all the windows and turn on the fans. Some stores and shops have installed fans which suck the hot air out at the front of the building while a ceiling fan circulates the other air. Many college students were found every night studying at the tables in the park by means of street lamps or flash lights as their rooms were too hot for successful work.

Animal Loss Heavy. The number of animals which died from the heat reached hundreds in the middle west. About thirty horses, and an equal number of cows besides many more hogs were lost in the vicinity about ten miles around Wayne.

Crops Not Hurt. Heat of last week made corn shoot from a few inches in height to three and four feet size. So far the crop is not hurt. It is just ready to tassel out and moisture would be of great benefit at this period.

Early small grain was developed before the heat and is now being harvested with good returns. Later grain may be damaged somewhat by the heat. Gardens need moisture.

Sections Grow More Similar

Prof. C. L. Reinhold Says East And West Alike—Tells Of Home In Baltimore.

"Standardization of clothes and of automobiles, of the books we read and the movies we see has become so universal in the United States," states Prof. C. L. Reinhold, "that there is no longer any very great difference between the different sections of the country." Prof. Reinhold arrived in Wayne from Baltimore, Md., recently, to take the position as head of the commercial department at the Wayne State Teachers College. This is the first time he has been so far west as Wayne, and Norfolk is the only place further west which he has yet visited, he says with a smile.

Though Baltimore, which has been his home for many years, is the third seaport of the United States, though it is a distinctly southern city with southern traditions and a colonial background, Prof. Reinhold can find no very great difference between the attitudes of Baltimoreans and Nebraskans toward the important questions of the day or toward matters of more trivial interest. While he admits that there are some differences in minor respects between different parts of the country he believes that the standardization is rapidly becoming more and more complete.

Old Lexington Market. Baltimore, ranking as it does as the third seaport of the country, is naturally much more of an industrial center than any Nebraskan town, but it is nevertheless surrounded by some good farm land which is used principally for truck gardening. This large quantity of garden produce and the influx of products from more southern farms has led to the maintenance of the Lexington Market probably the finest of its kind anywhere. Lexington Market is municipally owned and consists of hundreds of stalls, which are rented out to retailers. Unlike many of its rivals for fame in other eastern cities, it has been renovated over though it is in other respects an open market. It is blocks long and a half a block wide. All sorts of food stuffs are retained here by all sorts of people of all students at the academy a large number of seaports, always hover over the harbor.

Increasingly Important as a world-distributing point because of its easy access to midwestern United States Baltimore saw a big boom during the war because of the steel works there. Bethlehem Steel works at Sparrow's Point are among the largest in the world and the copper works at Canton are the largest. Ore is hauled in from the lake region of the United States and also from South America. The South American boats take coal back with them. Other big companies are also establishing big distributing centers at Baltimore. Electric recently completed a $24,000,000 plant there and Proctor & Gamble have also built a large new plant there.

The Glenn-Martin plane manufacturing company, the strategic geographical location of the city and other factors as well have combined to make Baltimore an important air center. The government is sponsoring the manufacture of planes here too.

Has Varied Experience. Professor Reinhold has come to Wayne after a varied school experience both as a teacher and as a student. He began his teaching experience as a principal in a small high school in Manchester, Md., going from there to a private preparatory school in Southport, N. C., to a private business college in New York and another private business college in Baltimore. For thirteen years he was principal of a high school in Cincinnati, a school which this year celebrates its hundredth anniversary, and which claims the honor of having graduated former President William Howard Taft. From Cincinnati Prof. Reinhold went first to Rider College in Trenton, N. J., then to Baltimore City College in Baltimore and he came to Wayne late in June.

After receiving his B. A. from Western Maryland College at Westminster Prof. Reinhold studied at Hamilton College of Law in Chicago where he earned the LL.B. degree and at Columbia University in New York from which he received his M. A. in commercial and administrative work. He has done special graduate work at the University of Cincinnati.

IDEAL DISTRIBUTION OF NECESSITIES OF LIFE.—Every home MUST be supplied with food, for food is necessary to life and health. The most ideal method to obtain food would be to go direct to the producer and buy it; but this is impossible for most people. Only a very few could deal directly with the producer or manufacturer.

THERE MUST BE A DISTRIBUTION.—Some person or organization must keep in touch with the Consumer and know his wants; he must also keep in touch with the producer or manufacturer and know what he is producing. The fewer number of persons between producer and consumer makes it possible to sell at a lower cost, for every agency handling an item must have pay for doing so and this adds to the cost of the article.

THE SIZE OF THE DISTRIBUTOR IMPORTANT.—We do not believe in monopolies. The organization of which the Robert C. Moore Stores are a part is a comparatively small organization, yet with facilities, connections, capital resources and experience to assemble from the world's markets direct the products we would handle and distribute to the consuming public with only one profit added.

THE ROBERT C. MOORE STORES AS DISTRIBUTOR.—Through our organizations we buy Oranges from the Orange Grower, Watermelons from the man who grows them, Peas from the factory that cans them, Fruits and Vegetables as well as practically all stock in our stores from the very Manufacturer or Producer. These items are shipped either to our warehouse or direct to the stores. There is therefore only one very small profit added.

Is not the program under which we operate our stores ideal? We do not believe this method of distribution of foods can be improved today. It is the plan our farmer friends have been trying to work out for years in the grange stores and farmer associations. Through the service the Robert C. Moore Stores render you get the results of savings without the investment and bother of store operation.

It is during a dull season that one should put the most punch into his business. If he lies down his business is likely to lie down with him.

The new city street flusher is an appreciated contribution to cleanliness, and it will increase proof of its worth as the water supply permits more frequent use.

At this season and until frost people are led to wonder why files were treated. Perhaps with equal reason and equal perplexity, files wonder why we were created.

The pope has warned the United States to look out for the development of bolshevism which thrives most, as suggested, during a period of depression and unemployment.

More candidates than usual have filed for offices in Wayne county, but they are still more numerous in other counties. The comparative scarcity of other jobs makes public office more attractive.

The prospect for graveled roads in Wayne county is encouraging. When farms have the advantage of hard-surfaced roads, the county seat will be a conveniently reached center regardless of weather, and making produce and buying supplies will save much time and expense.

"Whatever their predilections concerning the validity of the allegations at the services in Albert Hall for the late Conan Doyle," observes Dr. A. L. Binixy, "the discourtesy shown by the people who interrupted the meeting by walking out was inexcusable. It was poor sportsmanship."

We are glad the town whistle has quit blowing in the morning, not for the reason given—to avoid disturbing late sleepers—but because we don't like the tone of its notes, nor the length of time required to sound off.

THE PRIMARY.

In theory the primary is a contribution to popular government, but in practice it has shown weaknesses that are quite as great as those of the convention system. A man has plenty of money to divert his candidacy, secure large advantage, though in fitness for public service he may be inferior to his less rich and less known opponent. The primary destroys party regularity. This may or may not be important. One may be nominated and elected to office as a partisan, and still oppose policies adopted by the party whose label he bears during a campaign. Senator Norris has done that very thing. A spirit of independence which does not swallow everything offered by party leaders, is manifestly advisable as a force for good government, though it seems hardly inconsistent to find nothing acceptable in the program of the party organization which one has appropriated merely as a vehicle in which to ride into office. The primary law makes this possible. But now the instrument which has held the Norris star in the political firmament, has turned against him with a trick that is subversive of popular expression and entirely inexcusable. The filing of another man with exactly the same name will of course mislead voters. Men of similar names are also running for other offices, notably for state auditor, secretary of state and state treasurer. These are frailties of the primary law, hindering exercise of popular judgment and wrecking the original intention of the system. If these faults cannot be cured, people may, though realizing the delinquencies of the old convention, ask the legislature to fling the primary law with all its riggings and appointments through the transom.

The Rear Seat driver of the Sioux City Journal says he will not be satisfied with readjustments in the distribution of meats until the time-honored practice of charging nothing for liver is restored. This satisfactory concession to the public would seem about due according to decline in prices for animals on the hoof.

Cool weather Monday relieved an unusually protracted period of drought and intense heat, but another hot wave of less severity took hold Tuesday. Corn is up to normal in growth, but its need for moisture is becoming more and more apparent. While it is generally believed the corn is still unharmed, a rain soon would remove anxiety and establish confidence.

When markets for farm products are reduced, wages and prices for manufactured goods and other commodities must necessarily drop to correspondingly low levels. Then purchasing power is not materially diminished, and the circle of buying and selling keeps up consumption, and in time the standard lifts with advantages equally distributed.

In refusing the senate's demand for publicity of all papers pertaining to the London naval conference, President Hoover is following precedents established by Washington and other national executives. Poik Pillsbury, Wilson and Harding did the same thing. Senators know these precedents and know the reasons for them. They know the inadvisability of making public all details looking to an international pact. They have been invited to see and know everything under pledge of secrecy, but they are not satisfied. They want to make a showy parade of secret documents involving the affairs of interested nations, and this course, backed by plenty of precedents, is considered unwise.

The author of a recent magazine article says the way to keep young is to cultivate and maintain friendships—find and hold the friendships of young people. The author does not advise one to adopt the habits and mannerisms of young people, but to take a sympathetic interest in their activities, to appreciate their motives and ambitions. It is pointed out that if one neglects friendships while engaged in business, he finds greater difficulty in winning them when age is well advanced and the advantage is most needed. The solitude of multiplied years is cheered and made more agreeable by the companionship of good books and by a religious faith which prepares one to live as well as to die.

Prompted by serious accidents from explosives within its midst on the Fourth Falls City has taken steps to adopt an ordinance to prohibit fireworks and fire-crackers. Early action is taken as a warning to dealers not to lay in supplies for next year. Omaha has an ordinance against independence day fireworks, and the police commissioner of that city urges a movement to make prohibition national. Cost in dead and injured is the deciding cause, though the big loss in wasted money is worth mentioning. It is no longer deemed necessary to spread the smell and noise of exploding powder in order to exalt the flag, and an effectual ban on the hazard is being placed by one city and town after another.

Business.
Sioux City Journal: A large part of the slow trade condition throughout the country is due to the general business depression, but there's no denying that another large part of it is purely psychological. If there could be a stimulation of buying power—the part, of course, of persons who can afford it—the situation could be improved appreciably.

Trade is slow. Buying power has weakened for two reasons. The one is that unemployed persons in hundreds of thousands have nothing with which to buy. Reduced pay rolls always mean a reduction in trade. The other reason is that all classes are hesitating to go into the market, and buy more than necessities as a rule. This element of national life could buy more commodities for which it could find ready uses, but the psychological factor enters, and the injury is done.

The American people are fond of luxuries and luxurious living. It is vacation time. One well may wonder whether for that class of society that easily could afford more pronounced buying it is at this time a wise precaution to retrench. The whole proposition of trade is reciprocal in its effects. The element that can but won't buy would contribute to its own welfare by stimulating sales in all commodities and for the reason that this would provide employment, would increase industrial activity, would put more money in circulation and would finally return to the class that started the cycle.

If happens, however, that psychological factors are usually the most difficult to control. When there is a depression of any kind people get scared, wondering what is to happen next. Business operators commence to worry whether their profits will fall off or the

FARMING.
Sinclair Lewis tackles the farming industry in a recent article and suggests that cooperative farming with a central management and with farmers and their employees living in towns would make agriculture more pleasant and more profitable. As we understand, in parts of Europe farmers live in groups and go out to their farms every morning. Centralized management and cooperative use of equipment might cut down overhead and strengthen selling values, but they would not maintain the present spirit of happy and stimulating independence. Usually farmers in the middle west do not lack social contacts nor modern conveniences. Neighbors and towns are near, made more easily accessible by automobiles and hard-surfaced roads. Telephones and radios are potent in this day in banishing possible dreariness. Farmers have the advantages without the disadvantages of the city. Social relationships are just as numerous and pleasant on the farm as in large centers. We doubt if farmers could enjoy greater convenience or greater content by living in towns and commuting daily to their farms. By so doing their operations would suffer lack of close supervision and likely results would return less profit. Perhaps combinations would be practical, though we doubt if farmers would yield management or forfeit independence—the spirit which encourages initiative and develops resourcefulness. We believe they would prefer to paddle their own canoes and take their chances from year to year in making much or little according to seasons and the markets.

Retail Prices Are Out of Line.
Nebraska Farmer: A gradual lowering of price levels is slowly but surely taking place. Wholesale prices already reflect a considerably lower plane compared with a year ago. Retail prices, however, are lagging behind the downward decline and are failing to give the consumer of foods and other products of the farm the reduction in costs which prices of farm products justify. The longer this condition exists, the greater the obstacle to normal purchasing power and consumption which will do more than anything to lower the surplus and help business generally.

"Substantial declines in wholesale prices featured the past trade during the month ending June 30," says a review of the livestock and meat situation issued by the Institute of American Meat Packers. Declines during the month in beef prices ranged from 7 to 26 percent, varying with grade and weight, according to the review. Fresh pork loins declined 22 to 28 percent, along with declines in other cuts of pork.

While wholesale prices have been moving downward, in line with prices paid the producers of live-stock, retail prices for meats have remained at relatively high levels. Economic history bears out the fact that lower retail prices ordinarily bring about larger consumption of the products concerned.

The farmer is at a great disadvantage when the prices for his products bear the brunt of the decline while commodities for which he spends are but little changed, despite the facts that wholesale prices are down. Farm people, therefore, cannot be blamed for having a feeling of resentment toward retailers because of the present disparity between producer and consumer prices. Bread retailers for the same price, regardless whether it is made from 65-cent or $1.50 wheat. Clothing costs just about as much as ever, although wool prices are at extremely low levels.

After all, it is the relationship of price levels rather than price itself which determines prosperity.

Primary at Its Worst.
York Republican: The people of this state are about to see the primary at its worst. In fact, the sad spectacle is even now before them.

In several instances persons of similar names have filed against candidates of statewide reputation. Some of such filings were made in good faith, some with the view of creating the other's campaign popularity and still others with the sole thought of embarrassing the better known candidate. In the latter group comes the Broken Bow George W. Norris, who has filed against Senator George W. Norris. The Broken Bow man's filing could not have been made with the thought that he could win a nomination. The natural assumption is he was induced to file by the enemies of Senator Norris to steal votes away from the senator and harass and embarrass him. Whoever induced the Broken Bow man to file played poor politics and showed detestable sportsmanship. Nothing could be better timed to rally the senator's friends. Nothing could be devised to throw more heat and prejudice and venom into the primary campaign. The Broken

How tool may be able to get on the ballot, but the senator's staunchest foes will not have the temerity to believe the ruse will be successful of its object.

Between the Johnsons and the Marshes and legion candidates of similar names the voters are going to be perplexed this year as they never were before. The primary will have the test of its career. If the present situation and the disgust that will be registered around August 12 shall evoke a courage that will allow members of the legislature to lay hands on the primary law and cure some of its glaring defects, the present cloud of Johnsons and Marshes and Norrises will not have filed in vain.

Work Progresses On Road Projects
Norfolk, Neb., July 15.—The detour on Nebraska highway No. 8 between Norfolk and Stanton should be removed within the next ten days or two weeks, District Engineer Marquis stated Monday afternoon. The bridges being constructed a short distance this side of Stanton are practically completed and the work of filling in around them will be finished as rapidly as possible.

Gravel hauling is to start on Wednesday on the project near Randolph, while gravel will be placed on the new highway between Allen and South Sioux City beginning within a few days.

All other projects under construction in this highway district have been making exceptional progress during recent weeks, there having been no inclement weather to halt the workmen for some time.

The Big Issue.
Lincoln Journal: To the credit of the Hoover administration it may be said that it has carried the world wheat situation to the producer; has laid before the man most interested the facts and figures and the deductions that administration experts have found. The statistics are not questioned. The deductions may be open to argument.

"Reduce wheat acreage or take less wheat than you get now," is what both Secretary Hyde and Chairman Legge have told the producers. On this proposition they have not escaped attack. Their most logical, vociferous and persistent antagonist has not been the wheat growers, themselves, to this date. Governor Reed of Kansas has filled that role. Governor Reed is a candidate for re-election, and it may be that Mr. Legge had the governor in mind at the Hastings meeting when he told the wheat growers that politicians tell the people what the people want to hear.

The following resume of statistics has been made:
"World wheat acreage before the war was about 204 million acres. In 1929 it increased to 245 million; average wheat consumption for seven years was 3,466 million bushels; average production for the same period was 3,509 million, an average carryover of 43 million bushels. This carryover for any one year is not large, but it piles up year after year. The carryover at the beginning of 1926 was 272 million bushels; 1927, 332 million; 1928, 418 million; 1929, 589 million."

Governor Reed argues that world wheat consumption is not far behind production and that it is increasing; that the present emergency has been caused by several years of heavy production, especially that of the year 1928, when the surplus amounted to 500 million bushels. He holds the market glut is temporary and that better times are ahead. A short crop would help. To that government experts will assent.

Hyde and Legge see no such prospect for the future and argue that from the showing of statistics the surplus will continue to grow unless acreage is reduced. Consumption is increasing but production is increasing more rapidly. Railing at the failure or inaction of the farm board will not get the wheat grower half so far as an intensive study of the figures the board has to offer. After that the producer may make up his mind who is right and who is wrong.

The Kansas City Star says the long range view demands a curtailment of acreage. Where the reduction is to be made and how are the vital questions for the farmers.

"Senator Capper's newspaper, the Topeka Capital, says: 'Mr. Legge damned both the debenture, which in fact is not a solution of the surplus problem, and the equalization fee, which may be, and which congress has favored in the past and may hold in reserve in the event of failure of the present act. Both are condemned by the farm board equally as ineffective.'"

With production increasing at a rate that apparently makes certain a surplus every year over what the market will absorb, many will question the effectiveness of either the debenture, the equalization fee or orderly marketing. There can be no orderly marketing when there is no market, and unless someone pays for the surplus the producer loses.

Happy Chick News
Saturday, July 12. Filled the old gas machine up with gas and oil, packed the luggage on the side of her, well in fact, got her ready for an early start Sunday for destination unknown but west.

Sunday, July 13. Left Wayne at 8 o'clock in the morning, going by way of Pilger and Schuyler, then over the Lincoln highway to Columbus, south on the Meridian to number 38 or D. L. D., and from there west to Culbertson where we branched off on number 3, or the Goldenrod. We made it to a shade tree near Sutton for the noon meal and to Trenton for the night. Drove about nine and a half hours and covered 365 miles.

Corn looks as good if not better between Wayne and Pilger than any place on the road.

Wheat looks good around Holdrege. Lots of people harvesting by means of the header or combine.

Went through a little town by the name of Edison. Don't know whether it was one of Thomas' inventions or not, but if so, can't say much for his invention.

Didn't hit any rain today but did hit some muddy road from Culbertson on.

Monday, July 14. Well, we stopped all night at Trenton as I told you yesterday. Got a fairly early start because we gained an hour at McCook and I forgot to change my watch.

Had pretty good roads for awhile, then, Oh Boy! We got on one of those fifteen mile per hour roads. It didn't have to be patrolled either. Some rough. One consolation, it only lasted 130 miles. I broke a spring driving on that road but didn't have to stop driving. When I stopped at every town to get a new spring they all told me they could order one from Denver that would get there sometime within 24 hours so I kept going till I finally got to Denver. They didn't even have one there but at the spring factory they will make one and have it installed by 9:30 tomorrow morning.

Am stopping tonight at the Municipal camp ground which is the state fair ground. There are cars from everywhere here, all kinds of camping rigs, and a bunch of boy scouts.

There was quite a food at Benkiteman. They were shoveling dirt from the sidewalks when we went through and there was quite a lot of drift-wood and rubbish in the street.

Saw a hog ranch between Doane and Parks. If they had one individual hog house they had at least three hundred. It seemed like they covered the whole ranch just row after row.

Glad to know that Ross Porterfield got home from taking the short course in drafting on farm buildings at the Lincoln agricultural college. I sure would like to take a course like that myself. Ross now will be able to blue print any old kind of farm remodeling job from the house on down.

This is for the Happy Chick Broder house factory, Wayne, Nebraska. Statist, F. H. T. B., somewhere in Colorado, signing off until next week.

One can easily agree with the Kansas attitude on reduction of wheat acreage, which is that in states or sections where little else will grow planting on a large scale is imperative. In such cases the proper thing would be to urge reduction in other states and sections where crop diversification is possible. The Levands and Mr. Legge ought to be able to see the thing alike. It is believed they could and would if they avoided personalities and devoted themselves to a study and discussion of the subject alone.

It is during a dull season that one should put the most punch into his business. If he lies down his business is likely to lie down with him.

The new city street flusher is an appreciated contribution to cleanliness, and it will increase proof of its worth as the water supply permits more frequent use.

At this season and until frost people are led to wonder why files were treated. Perhaps with equal reason and equal perplexity, files wonder why we were created.

The pope has warned the United States to look out for the development of bolshevism which thrives most, as suggested, during a period of depression and unemployment.

More candidates than usual have filed for offices in Wayne county, but they are still more numerous in other counties. The comparative scarcity of other jobs makes public office more attractive.

The prospect for graveled roads in Wayne county is encouraging. When farms have the advantage of hard-surfaced roads, the county seat will be a conveniently reached center regardless of weather, and making produce and buying supplies will save much time and expense.

"Whatever their predilections concerning the validity of the allegations at the services in Albert Hall for the late Conan Doyle," observes Dr. A. L. Binixy, "the discourtesy shown by the people who interrupted the meeting by walking out was inexcusable. It was poor sportsmanship."

We are glad the town whistle has quit blowing in the morning, not for the reason given—to avoid disturbing late sleepers—but because we don't like the tone of its notes, nor the length of time required to sound off.

In theory the primary is a contribution to popular government, but in practice it has shown weaknesses that are quite as great as those of the convention system. A man has plenty of money to divert his candidacy, secure large advantage, though in fitness for public service he may be inferior to his less rich and less known opponent. The primary destroys party regularity. This may or may not be important. One may be nominated and elected to office as a partisan, and still oppose policies adopted by the party whose label he bears during a campaign. Senator Norris has done that very thing. A spirit of independence which does not swallow everything offered by party leaders, is manifestly advisable as a force for good government, though it seems hardly inconsistent to find nothing acceptable in the program of the party organization which one has appropriated merely as a vehicle in which to ride into office. The primary law makes this possible. But now the instrument which has held the Norris star in the political firmament, has turned against him with a trick that is subversive of popular expression and entirely inexcusable. The filing of another man with exactly the same name will of course mislead voters. Men of similar names are also running for other offices, notably for state auditor, secretary of state and state treasurer. These are frailties of the primary law, hindering exercise of popular judgment and wrecking the original intention of the system. If these faults cannot be cured, people may, though realizing the delinquencies of the old convention, ask the legislature to fling the primary law with all its riggings and appointments through the transom.

If happens, however, that psychological factors are usually the most difficult to control. When there is a depression of any kind people get scared, wondering what is to happen next. Business operators commence to worry whether their profits will fall off or the

How tool may be able to get on the ballot, but the senator's staunchest foes will not have the temerity to believe the ruse will be successful of its object.

Between the Johnsons and the Marshes and legion candidates of similar names the voters are going to be perplexed this year as they never were before. The primary will have the test of its career. If the present situation and the disgust that will be registered around August 12 shall evoke a courage that will allow members of the legislature to lay hands on the primary law and cure some of its glaring defects, the present cloud of Johnsons and Marshes and Norrises will not have filed in vain.

Retail Prices Are Out of Line.
Nebraska Farmer: A gradual lowering of price levels is slowly but surely taking place. Wholesale prices already reflect a considerably lower plane compared with a year ago. Retail prices, however, are lagging behind the downward decline and are failing to give the consumer of foods and other products of the farm the reduction in costs which prices of farm products justify. The longer this condition exists, the greater the obstacle to normal purchasing power and consumption which will do more than anything to lower the surplus and help business generally.

"Substantial declines in wholesale prices featured the past trade during the month ending June 30," says a review of the livestock and meat situation issued by the Institute of American Meat Packers. Declines during the month in beef prices ranged from 7 to 26 percent, varying with grade and weight, according to the review. Fresh pork loins declined 22 to 28 percent, along with declines in other cuts of pork.

While wholesale prices have been moving downward, in line with prices paid the producers of live-stock, retail prices for meats have remained at relatively high levels. Economic history bears out the fact that lower retail prices ordinarily bring about larger consumption of the products concerned.

The farmer is at a great disadvantage when the prices for his products bear the brunt of the decline while commodities for which he spends are but little changed, despite the facts that wholesale prices are down. Farm people, therefore, cannot be blamed for having a feeling of resentment toward retailers because of the present disparity between producer and consumer prices. Bread retailers for the same price, regardless whether it is made from 65-cent or $1.50 wheat. Clothing costs just about as much as ever, although wool prices are at extremely low levels.

After all, it is the relationship of price levels rather than price itself which determines prosperity.

Happy Chick News
Saturday, July 12. Filled the old gas machine up with gas and oil, packed the luggage on the side of her, well in fact, got her ready for an early start Sunday for destination unknown but west.

Sunday, July 13. Left Wayne at 8 o'clock in the morning, going by way of Pilger and Schuyler, then over the Lincoln highway to Columbus, south on the Meridian to number 38 or D. L. D., and from there west to Culbertson where we branched off on number 3, or the Goldenrod. We made it to a shade tree near Sutton for the noon meal and to Trenton for the night. Drove about nine and a half hours and covered 365 miles.

Corn looks as good if not better between Wayne and Pilger than any place on the road.

Wheat looks good around Holdrege. Lots of people harvesting by means of the header or combine.

Went through a little town by the name of Edison. Don't know whether it was one of Thomas' inventions or not, but if so, can't say much for his invention.

Didn't hit any rain today but did hit some muddy road from Culbertson on.

Monday, July 14. Well, we stopped all night at Trenton as I told you yesterday. Got a fairly early start because we gained an hour at McCook and I forgot to change my watch.

Had pretty good roads for awhile, then, Oh Boy! We got on one of those fifteen mile per hour roads. It didn't have to be patrolled either. Some rough. One consolation, it only lasted 130 miles. I broke a spring driving on that road but didn't have to stop driving. When I stopped at every town to get a new spring they all told me they could order one from Denver that would get there sometime within 24 hours so I kept going till I finally got to Denver. They didn't even have one there but at the spring factory they will make one and have it installed by 9:30 tomorrow morning.

Am stopping tonight at the Municipal camp ground which is the state fair ground. There are cars from everywhere here, all kinds of camping rigs, and a bunch of boy scouts.

There was quite a food at Benkiteman. They were shoveling dirt from the sidewalks when we went through and there was quite a lot of drift-wood and rubbish in the street.

Saw a hog ranch between Doane and Parks. If they had one individual hog house they had at least three hundred. It seemed like they covered the whole ranch just row after row.

Glad to know that Ross Porterfield got home from taking the short course in drafting on farm buildings at the Lincoln agricultural college. I sure would like to take a course like that myself. Ross now will be able to blue print any old kind of farm remodeling job from the house on down.

This is for the Happy Chick Broder house factory, Wayne, Nebraska. Statist, F. H. T. B., somewhere in Colorado, signing off until next week.

Work Progresses On Road Projects
Norfolk, Neb., July 15.—The detour on Nebraska highway No. 8 between Norfolk and Stanton should be removed within the next ten days or two weeks, District Engineer Marquis stated Monday afternoon. The bridges being constructed a short distance this side of Stanton are practically completed and the work of filling in around them will be finished as rapidly as possible.

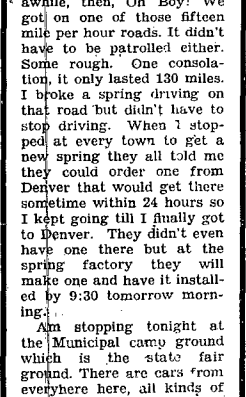

Gravel hauling is to start on Wednesday on the project near Randolph, while gravel will be placed on the new highway between Allen and South Sioux City beginning within a few days.

All other projects under construction in this highway district have been making exceptional progress during recent weeks, there having been no inclement weather to halt the workmen for some time.

Wayne Men See Expert Golfing

Three Drive to Minneapolis and See Bobby Jones Take National Open Title.

Expert golfing was demonstrated by Bobby Jones, Macdonald Smith and other amateur and professional players in the national open golf tournament at Interlachen lake club, Minneapolis, last Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and the two named took first and second honors. D. H. Larson and Roy McDonald of Wayne, and Coach O. Weng of Morningside, winner in the district meet at Wayne last week, saw the Saturday games at Minneapolis. They drove the 375 miles to the city Friday night, reaching there at 5 Saturday morning, and returned Sunday.

One hundred fifty amateur and professional golfers from all parts of the country played in the tourney. The men contested with par scores on the course, playing in twos. The sixty who made lowest records in the eighteen holes Thursday and the eighteen Friday entered the thirty-six-hole competition Saturday.

Bobby Jones, who holds the British open and amateur titles this year and who is out for the American open and national titles, scored first with 287 for the thirty-six holes, one under par. This gives him the national open title. He will contend for the national amateur honor in Pennsylvania in September.

Macdonald Smith, professional, was second with 289, and Horton Smith, professional, was third. John Goodman, Omaha, only Nebraska man who was among the sixty in the finals, finished eleventh with a score of 301.

Bobby Jones is as wonderful a golfer as reports state, Mr. Larson found. He is quiet and puts his best efforts into each stroke for good, hard playing. He did not converse and joke with the galleries as did Macdonald Smith. Amateurs received medals and one of these was Jones' award. Smith received $1,000 as first prize to a professional.

Fifteen thousand people witnessed the games Saturday, and about two-thirds followed Jones. The eighteen-hole course was crowded with spectators. Police guided them. Each stroke made by Jones measured 275 to 300 yards. A group of men with bamboo poles lapped together estimated the place ball would light. As soon as it was on the ground they stretched the poles a distance back of the ball in a semi-circle and crowds rushed to get as close to this as possible. Police made paths through the crowd for the players.

Jones' sensational record in making one of the eighteen-hole matches Saturday in 68, four under par, gave him the lead. Smith was ahead until then. Jones shot one ball into a marsh and a grounds rule allowed him to drop another on the shore and resume. The play closed with a forty-foot putt for the last hole by Jones.

The eighteen-hole private course on which the tourney was played was marvelous grounds. The entire course, greens and fairways, are grown with bent grass which is kept in excellent condition. Every accommodation is provided.

Admission to the games Saturday was $3 a person. If one left the grounds and returned before the amount a second time. A Minneapolis firm provided luncheons at the grounds, prices being 25c for a ham sandwich, 20c for a piece of pie and other things accordingly high. One man bought a $1.25 luncheon and was still hungry after eating it.

Seeing the tourney was an interesting experience, the local men found.

Pioneer Of County Tells Some Facts

It is often hard for the pioneers in a country to accommodate their thoughts to the new ideas of the younger generation, but when they have a rich and varied experience to fall back on for reminiscence they really have some very interesting items to contribute to the information of the same younger generation. Recently someone discovered that there were two graves in a small plot on the old George Scott homestead where the first papers for Wayne county were drawn up. There is a fairly large plot known as the LaPorte cemetery not far from this spot so the question naturally arose as to why anyone should have been buried on the farm.

The George Scott family was among the first to come to the territory now known as LaPorte and Mr. Scott was instrumental in assisting with the organization of the county. When he and his family unloaded on the land which became their homestead they decided to mark the spot by making it into a garden. They cherished the spot and it was made very attractive with moss beds. The first adult death in the LaPorte country in 1871 when Charles Durin was killed by a falling tree. Mr. Durin's father, Wilson Durin, decided at this time to donate a plot for a cemetery, and this plot became the LaPorte cemetery with which many people are familiar. The Scotts, however, holding very strongly their association with their own homestead, decided that they would prefer to be buried in the little garden spot which they had already arranged as a sort of memorial to their arrival at the homestead. Consequently in August, 1880, when Mrs. Scott died, she was laid to rest in this garden. The golden anniversary of her death will fall on August 16 this year. Mr. Scott died in 1894 and was buried beside his wife. Other members of the family were buried in the LaPorte cemetery at a later time.

Furniture Was Hand Made

Wayne county was organized soon after the first settlers at LaPorte arrived. The meeting was held in the George Scott home which was at that time the largest and most permanent structure in the vicinity. The first court house was built on the C. E. Hunter homestead in 1871 and served three or four years, though it was only a temporary structure. Desks and tables for the court house were hand made of black walnut hauled from Sioux City. Both Mr. Scott and Mr. Durin, who were also among the first county officers, worked in making this furniture.

What has become of the original furniture is not a matter of record today, though it is known that it was taken from the LaPorte court house to the original temporary court house at Wayne. Whether or not it was destroyed when that temporary building burned is unknown. Mrs. W. A. Hunter, daughter of Mr. Scott, who assisted him in keeping the county treasurer's books, has a few souvenirs in her home made from the scraps of the black walnut used for these old desks, a towel roller, a rolling pin and a picture frame.

The original courthouse was never completely destroyed but is now a part of the Ray Agler home in LaPorte. The cupola of the permanent courthouse, all that remains of that building, stands on the F. C. Hammer farm today.

Is Very Active At Advanced Age

Mrs. J. R. Rogers Will Celebrate Ninety-Fifth Birthday By Going to Lake.

One of the most inspiring and cheerful women in Wayne is Mrs. J. R. Rogers, mother of Mrs. J. G. Mines, who will be 95 years old July 22 and who will go by car to Lake Okoboji to observe the anniversary. The many who know Mrs. Rogers admire her activity, her alertness and her ability. Her example of living is a tonic to others.

Mrs. Rogers, who has made her home in Wayne four years, is always active. She helps Mrs. Mines in many duties about the home. She keeps regular hours for work, rest and recreation. Mrs. Rogers reads thoroughly three daily papers and she does considerable other reading also. She is interested in present day topics and is better informed than the average person on these. Mrs. Rogers takes much pleasure in radio programs. A diary which she has written for years is faithfully kept and in it Mrs. Rogers puts important happenings in national affairs as well as happenings in her daily life.

Mrs. Rogers does not go many places, though she is able if she cared to do so. She attends Presbyterian church services faithfully for she enjoys these.

Donald Clark of St. Louis, who visits Mrs. Rogers at least once a year, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Clark and son of Chicago, and Allison Durham of Westington Springs, who were here this week, found Mrs. Rogers just as well and active as she was a year ago.

Each year since Mrs. Rogers has lived here she has spent her birthday at Lake Okoboji. This year she, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mines and Mrs. R. B. Atwater and daughter, the last two of Des Moines, plan to drive there for the occasion. All will return here the last of this week. Mrs. Rogers likes automobile rides and is able to make the trip to the lake easily.

One five-generation and two four-generation groups are in Mrs. Rogers' family. The first named is in the Avery family at Spencer, Iowa. The four-generation is in the Paul Mines and R. B. Atwater families, where there are three great grandchildren. Mrs. Rogers' three surviving children are Mrs. J. G. Mines of Wayne, Mrs. Clara Dunham of Westington Springs, S. D., and Sam Rogers of Oregon.

James F. Hanson, pioneer figure in Nebraska history who died, July 6, in Fremont, was a man who laid out many of the farms and townsites in the vicinity of Wayne and who was closely associated with much of the development work accomplished in this part of the state in early days.

Mr. Hanson began his business career in 1885 after graduating from Doane College at Crele, when, as a member of the large eastern investment firm, Richard, Keene and company, he assisted in laying out many farmlands and townsites in northeast Nebraska. Later, because of his experience he was selected by the Great Northern railway to purchase its right of way between Ashland and Sioux City.

When he resigned from the Richard's firm in 1897 Mr. Hanson established the Hanson Audit company in Fremont with which Irving H. Bahde of this city is at present connected. The scope of his operations gradually broadened to include estates and farmlands in South Dakota, Kansas and Colorado as well as Nebraska and the extensive traveling which this business necessitated gave him a fundamental knowledge of farming conditions in this section of the country. He became a prominent political and civic figure and did much in the way of community service carrying to a successful conclusion the huge diking project which protects the city of Fremont from the ravages of the Platte river.

Mr. Hanson's death marks the passing of one of the best known Nebraska pioneers. His was a wide and varied experience in the life of the people of this state and his memory and perception were so clear that he became known as a living encyclopedia of information concerning the state.

Cotton Materials Stage Comeback by Using Latest Fabric Styling in Designs

BY HARRIET

It is smart to wear cotton frocks this summer.

Take one look at them and it is easy to understand why. So chic and attractive are the new wide-awake pique suits, the gingham sports frocks, the shirting outfits and the dimity, dotted Swiss, voile and printed calico dresses that every woman will want some of them.

Perhaps the noticeable thing about the comeback cotton materials are staging is their readiness to utilize all the latest fabric styling in their designs. Prints are as attractive and delicately flattering as silks, colors are as vivid, clear and lovely or as delicately pastel as the finest chiffons.

The care with which these new cotton fashionables are made insure their chic. Tailored lines, or the hand-made blouses and dressmaker outfits are all done in the best style manner.

There are many kinds of cotton or linen suits that women will find useful and enchantingly lovely this summer. The peplum suit has its following in pique, the fitted tailored suit has its representatives and the little bolero is not left behind.

LATEST is the sleeveless cardigan suit that takes its little short sleeved blouse to complete it. A sports ensemble of this type is made of delicate pink cotton pique with a dotted Swiss blouse of white pink dots. The skirt of the suit has a pleated lower part below an elaborately cut yoke of bandings attached for tailored effect.

Big pearl buttons are on each side of the pockets and there is a striking banding around the edges of the sleeveless cardigan. The blouse has a fuzzy little front of tucks, lace and a bow at the neck. The sleeves have turned back cuffs with lace and tucks and bows. A pique beret tops it.

An illustration of the tailored suit for business wear comes in a peplum colored cotton pique, with white skirt wrap around with pleases on the left side for fullness. There is a little tuck in

Former Pastor Here Is Buried

Funeral Services Are Held in Omaha Saturday for Dr. C. N. Dawson.

Funeral services for Rev. C. N. Dawson who died at his home in Omaha Wednesday, July 9, were held Saturday afternoon at the Masonic Temple at 2 o'clock. Dr. Dawson was dean of Protestant ministers in Omaha at the time of his death and was formerly pastor of the Methodist church in Wayne. He is survived by his wife, a son, William Dale, and a daughter, Dr. Frances E., all of Omaha.

Rev. Dawson was born in Clark county, Illinois, in 1857, and came to Nebraska in 1886. His first pastorate was at North Bend. In 1888 he went to Omaha as pastor of what is now the Dietz Memorial Methodist church. Later he served in the First Methodist church, the Grace church in South Omaha, the Walnut Hill church, the Grove Methodist Episcopal church and the Jennings Memorial church. He was also pastor at Stanton, and was in Wayne in 1902-03.

Dr. Dawson was an organizer of the Methodist hospital in Omaha, served on the first committee and headed the finance campaign for the hospital. Methodists of Nebraska recognized his leadership in 1912 by making him head of the state delegation of the general conference.

Rev. G. W. Snyder was in charge of the funeral services. Sermon was delivered by Rev. E. E. Hosman, and Rev. C. C. Wilson read the scripture. Obituary was read by Rev. F. T. George. Rev. Marvin Gilbert offered prayer during the services and Rev. C. W. Snyder at the burial in Forest Lawn cemetery. "Crossing the Bar" was sung by Edward F. Williams and "Goodnight Beloved" by Mr. and Mrs. Williams. The body lay in state at the Masonic temple in Omaha from 10:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. Saturday.

Mrs. J. M. Cherry and Miss Frances Cherry were the only Wayne friends who were present at the funeral. They left Wayne Friday evening by bus.

THREE CENTS AN ACRE PAID FOR NEBRASKA LAND

WHEN, in 1803, President Jefferson negotiated the purchase from Napoleon of what came to be known as the Louisiana Purchase, enemies of the administration, fired with much the same kind of spirit that possesses opponents of the administration in present times, wailed loudly in public that Jefferson had been stung to a fizzle, or words to that effect. Fifteen million dollars was a whale of a price to pay for such a body of land even if the price was only three cents an acre.

Jefferson may have doubted his own wisdom, for immediately after acquiring possession he arranged to have Lewis and Clark explore that immense domain and report what it contained to justify the purchase price. The report of these explorers convinced Jefferson he had a chance to pay out.

It took a long time, however, for the land to become developed. Settlement was slow and many obstacles of transportation had to be overcome. But if Jefferson could return now, 127 years after, to just that part of his purchase comprised within the present borders of Nebraska, he would be amazed to find the hens of this state laying enough eggs each year to repay the purchase price of the whole Louisiana tract.

Trappers have given place to prosperous farmers, trails to gravelled highways, ox carts to automobiles and ships of the air and a barren plain to a land of surpassing productivity and loveliness.

Even the descendants of the bees that early plainmen tracked to their lairs for the hidden honey have increased at such a rate and fed so well on Nebraska blossoms that they alone create enough honey wealth each year to repay the Louisiana Purchase price in five years. Three cents, it seems, wasn't a bad price after all.

Churches Nearby Have Programs

Four-Hundredth Anniversary of Augsburg Confession Is Celebrated Here Sunday.

Four-hundredth anniversary of the Augsburg Confession delivered to Emperor Charles V at the Diet of Augsburg in Germany in 1530 and establishing a policy of freedom of speech and press, was observed by congregations of the Missouri Lutheran synod in northeast Nebraska Sunday when about 2,000 gathered at the Wayne county fair grounds grand stand to hear the morning and afternoon programs.

Rev. F. C. Doctor, pastor of the church northeast of Wayne, presided. Rev. O. Heilmann of Hastings, addressed the congregation in the morning. He commended the faith which prompted forefathers to confess their Christian religion before the emperor and princess.

Rev. E. Oelschlaeger of West Point, spoke in the afternoon. He emphasized the fact that lay members of the church should hold such faith that they are not afraid to confess it though it may bring loss of station and property. Principles of freedom according to dictates of conscience under the Augsburg doctrine, just as they are basic in American government, the speaker stated.

The West Point choir and Bancroft band led in congregational songs and furnished several other numbers.

Many joined in picnic noon luncheon at the grounds.

Members Of Cow Testing Group Meet

Cow testing association members in northeast Nebraska held a joint conference in Fremont on Monday and Tuesday, July 14 and 15. Results of the past year's cow testing association work was one of the main topics discussed. Plans for future work were also made. The use of dairy exhibits for fairs was taken up, the purpose and character of exhibits being explained. Exhibits are built by the dairy department of the University of Nebraska and sent to all county fairs desiring them. A picnic and tour are being planned for each testing association in northeast Nebraska. The purpose of the picnic and tour is for the members to become better acquainted with one another's herds and methods used in herd management.

Pierce Is Winner In Baseball Meet

Defeats West Point Here Friday for Championship of Third District of State.

Pierce won from West Point Friday in finals of the fourth annual district Three Junior American Legion baseball tournament held in Wayne, the score being 5 to 3. Pierce goes to the state contest to be held in Omaha July 24 to 26. The winner at Omaha goes to Colorado Springs to compete for middle western honors, and the winner there goes to the national contest in the east.

The Legion has sponsored the Junior Baseball League the past four years. A team from each congressional district, one from Omaha and one from Lincoln go to the state contest. The Omaha World-Herald furnishes medals for each of these winners, and also pays the expenses of the Nebraska winner to Colorado Springs. The Nebraska Legion pays expenses to the national meet if a team from this state wins in Colorado.

Six teams entered the district tournament at Wayne. In the first round July 9 West Point won from Crete, 4 to 0, and Pierce won from Emerson by 14 to 2. West Point defeated Winslow on Thursday by a score of 15 to 0. Pierce took the game with Norfolk by 20 to 9.

West Point and Pierce met in the finals Friday and the latter won.

Wayne has organized a Junior Legion team this summer, but the group did not participate in the tournament.

Injuries Fatal To Cuming Farmer

West Point, Neb.—Ferdinand Ulrich, prominent farmer who lived west of this city and who suffered a broken neck Friday, June 27, in an auto accident while he was on his way to visit his wife in a West Point hospital, died Wednesday, July 9, at 2:30 p. m. from the effects of the accident. Funeral services were held Saturday at the St. Boniface church in Montebello, the Rev. Frank Schoof officiating. Mrs. Ulrich had undergone a mastoid operation a few days before the accident. On his way to see her Mr. Ulrich turned out to pass a hay rack and his car upset. His injuries were not thought to be serious at the time.

Breakfast In Bed.

Omaha World-Herald: There's a wholesome naturalness about the Hunter family that can't be dimmed by the quarrels of those who want to make money, with them, over their success in the endurance flight. Mother Hunter, for one, continues to hold our admiration. One reason is that when a waitress called to bring her breakfast in bed, in her strangely luxurious hotel apartment after the endurance record was made, she said, "I have never had breakfast in bed in my life, and I won't start now."

There's ripe wisdom that can't be softened by wealth. Of all the pleasant things that may be done in bed, eating breakfast there is not one of them. Sleep the sleep of the just, in bed, fitting your backbone snugly to mattress and sheet; that's the primary purpose. Read a book in bed, if you like; sages and philosophers have found the practice good. Work in bed if you want to; Mark Twain made a fortune that way, lost it when he got out into other business, and made it back again by going back to bed. Be born in bed and die there; that is the course of nature.

But he who eats breakfast in bed lacks the finer sensibilities. He requires a service from family or hired help that is demeaning. He is guilty of an awkwardness that is destructive of all the necessities of eating. He cannot comport himself with the vigor of a hearty trencherman. And he inevitably attracts enemies within the sheets.

that make bed a place impossible for comfortable rest.

It restores our faith in the soundness of our democracy and the wisdom of the masses that there are women like Mother Hunter who have never eaten breakfast in bed and who will never, no never, do so, regardless of what treasures of money and time fortune gives them. Such persons are the backbone of the nation; as long as they endure, the country and its ideals are safe from the plottings of communists or the entrenched power of great wealth.

Girl At Laurel Is Found Tied

Hartington.—Opal Snyder, sixteen year old daughter of Clifford Snyder of Laurel, was found early Thursday in a pasture one mile south of Laurel, with her hands and feet tied with a man's handkerchief. She is being taken care of at the A. V. Ward home, on whose farm she was found.

County Attorney Haley said Thursday night that the girl had left her home Wednesday at 9 p. m. and had not returned at midnight. The girl's father and Ward started search and found her about 2 a. m. in the corner of a pasture on the Ward farm.

Dr. Lutton of Laurel examined the girl and said that she was neither cut nor bruised on any part of the body. Thursday when attempts were made to get the girl to talk she would become hysterical after moments of apparent normality. When found her hands were tied to one leg by a handkerchief.

Attempts will be made to find out something of the case Friday, Haley said. Dr. Lutton hopes to get the girl to give a story of her assailants at that time. Haley also said that neither members of the Snyder family nor officials working on the case had a single clue that would lead to arrests. No motive for the act was seen by Haley.

Two-Reel Comedy Is Filmed Here

One might have thought he was in Hollywood Saturday afternoon in Wayne when a two-reel comedy in Wayne when a two-reel comedy "Two Troublesome Tramps," was filmed for showing at the Crystal theatre next Saturday and Sunday at matinee and evening performances. Scenes were also filmed at the college garden and campus.

The comedy was made by C. D. Tinsley for E. E. Gailey. The picture films two tramps, represented by Vernon Cassel and Harry Ellis Fisher, and "Mandy," the colored woman, portrayed by James Lewis. Among others in the cast are Miss Faunell Beckenhauer, Miss Evelyn Mellor, Miss Jane Von Seggern, Miss Maryah Nokes, Miss Letha Porterfield and Miss Margaret Fanske. Scenes take part about a fake automobile accident in which the young women look part on Main street. A bit of comedy is added by Police Cop George Patterson.

Hundreds of local people were filmed in the picture, though perhaps they did not know it. The picture will be shown in connection with the regular feature at the Crystal this week-end.

Pictures Of Pole To Be Shown Here

Although menaced by countless dangers, facing innumerable terrors, the little band of men that followed Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd into the unknown land at "the bottom of the world" returned to civilization without loss or injury. With them came the film record of one of the most daring achievements of the age. "With Byrd at the South Pole," which will be the feature attraction at the Gay theatre, starting Thursday for three days, July 17, 18 and 19.

Filled with colorful adventure, thrilling drama, aching suspense, hearty humor, "With Byrd at the South Pole" is one of the strangest and most interesting pictures ever made. It is the living record of the men who battled the ferocious elements of Antarctica for twenty months and returned to tell what they saw.

"The foresight of Rear Admiral Byrd was, in large measure, responsible for the fact that his was the first polar expedition to return to civilization with every man in perfect health," according to Joseph Rucker, who, with Wilford Vander Veer, photographed the thrilling real-life romance, "With Byrd at the South Pole."

The entire picture was made in Little America, situated on the Bay of Whales, in the area of 750 miles surrounding the South Pole. The daring flight across the Pole is one of the big thrills in the story. The picture shows the life, the work, the play of the men during those twenty months of practical isolation. The humorous incidents of their every day life are relayed in film.

Couple Married In Fremont Home

Mr. Ray Buskirk Weds Miss Cecil Champney Wednesday At Heit Home.

Dinner was served afterwards. Mr. and Mrs. Buskirk left for Yellowstone park and other points of interest in the northwest. They will be at home on the Buskirk farm in three weeks.

Mr. Buskirk has just recently built a new home on his farm. He and his wife may move to Wisner this fall.

Scotland Farming Conditions Told

Robert Lucas of Pierce, who is spending the summer in Scotland, writes that farming conditions in Nebraska are no much better than in Scotland that no one here should complain. Ninetyeight percent of the farmers in Scotland are renters. Potatoes, the main crop, are selling for $4 per ton of 2,240 pounds, or $3 for fifty bushels. Only one-tenth of the 1929 crop was marketed. The rest of the potatoes are piled in fields and covered with a little straw and dirt. About ninety percent of the small grain is in stack from last year, the market being too low to pay for threshing it.

Farmers in Scotland did not make enough last year to pay their rent and hired help, Mr. Lucas writes. England is a free-trade country and much grain is "dumped" there.

New potatoes are now being marketed so there is no demand for the old crop. There are no hogs to eat them, and no factories in which to extract the starch.

Mr. Lucas says conditions in the States are so much better than in England that farmers in Nebraska should pursue their tasks with courage.

Stanton Band Elects Officers

Annual meeting of the Stanton concert band was held Monday, July 7, when Dr. R. A. Frary was elected president for the third consecutive time. Other officers

In addition to the regular Thursday evening concerts that have proved so popular, the band will give two special Sunday concerts in the city park. The first Sunday concert will be given July 20, beginning at 3:00 p. m. The second concert will be given immediately following the St. John's Lutheran church mission festival which will be held in August.

Home Tried Recipes

The Herald is continuing its column of readers' recipes this week with some hot weather suggestions. All contributions of recipes from readers who have some they would like to pass on to others will be very much appreciated. And a note accompanying them telling where the recipe was secured will be of interest.

Mint Sherbet.
(By Mrs. J. M. Strahan, Wayne)
Hot weather desserts are best if they are frozen and this is especially refreshing because it is not rich. Mrs. Strahan got it from a friend in Madison several years ago and has found it very good because so many people have mint leaves in their gardens.

1/2 cup mint leaves shredded.
Juice of 3 oranges.
Juice of 2 lemons.
Let the mint leaves stand in the fruit juices 1/2 hour. Make a syrup of 2 cups sugar and 1 cup water and while hot pour over fruit. Cool. Strain and put in freezer with beaten white of 1 egg, 1 cup of whipped cream. Fill freezer with water. This makes about three quarts and serves 12 to 15 people.

Potato Muffins.
(By Mrs. A. T. Claycomb, Wayne)
This muffin recipe came from Illinois several years ago.
3 small potatoes riced
1 cup warm milk
1 compressed yeast dissolved in a little warm water
2 tablespoons lard
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs well beaten
Flour to make stiff
Set at 10 and let raise until 4. Put into pans, let raise and bake. Or the dough can be made the night before and baked in the morning.

Ice Box Fudding.
(By Mrs. H. J. Miner, Wayne)
This recipe came from Mrs. Miner's sister, Mrs. H. W. Eldredge in South Bend, Ind. It is also a fine hot-weather dessert.
3 cakes sweet chocolate
3 tablespoons hot water
Put water and chocolate in double boiler. When soft remove from fire and beat until nearly cold. Then add 3 tablespoons sugar and beat well. Add one unbeaten yolk of egg at a time until four have been added. Beat the mixture well before adding each yolk. Add stiffly beaten whites of 3 eggs to chocolate mixture and beat again. Flavor with vanilla and add a pinch of salt. Line a bread pan with lady fingers or sponge cake and pour in the chocolate mixture. Set in ice box for 36 hours. Cut in slices and serve with whipped cream.

Red Devil's Food Cake.
(By Mrs. George W. Kabisch)
This cake recipe came from a friend at Pierson, Iowa, and it is particularly recommended to those who have difficulty in baking a red cake.

1 1/2 cups sugar and 1/2 cup butter or other shortening creamed together
2 cups of flour sifted together with 1 level teaspoon soda
4 tablespoons cocoa dissolved with enough hot water to make a smooth paste
3 eggs beaten whole
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup of warm water
Raisins or nuts may be added if desired.

Lemon Syrup.
(By Mrs. J. A. Ray, Wayne)
2 cups sugar
1 cup water
Boil together to make a thick syrup. When cool add juice of six lemons and grated rind of 3 lemons. This makes an excellent hot weather drink and keeps very well in the ice box. Put as much as wished in the bottom of a glass and fill the glass with ice water. The recipe may be varied by using either oranges or fresh limes.

Egg and Cottage Cheese Salad.
(By Mrs. W. E. Mordhorst, Hoskins)
The following three recipes make excellent additions to the hot weather menu. Salads are easily made and are crisp and cool. This egg and cheese salad is especially good because the cheese will take the place of meat in the diet and because it is unusually easy to make.

Boil 3 eggs hard. Slice and put on the bottom of a mold. Cover with 1 pint cottage cheese which has been mixed with cream and seasoned. Chill thoroughly and serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise.

Vegetable Salad.
(By Mrs. W. E. Mordhorst, Hoskins)
2 cups cabbage
1 cup ground carrots
1 1/2 cups diced celery
Mix and add mayonnaise to taste. Serve on lettuce or tender cabbage leaves.

Pineapple and Carrot Salad.
(By Mrs. W. E. Mordhorst, Hoskins)
1/2 package lemon jello
1/2 package orange jello
1 cup grated raw carrots
1 cup sliced pineapple put through the food chopper
2 cups boiling water poured over the jello. When cool add carrots and pineapple and set in mold.
Pineapple Dressing.
Juice from 1 can pineapple.
3/4 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons flour
Let mixture boil until thick. Thin with unsweetened whipped cream. This dressing makes the salad excellent.

Conditions Good Report Shows

Omaha—First replies to the Omaha chamber of commerce questionnaire mailed to twenty key cities of the state to survey Nebraska business conditions, indicate the Cornhusker commonwealth is healthy and thriving.

The first four cities to report were Alliance, Lincoln, McCook and Nebraska City.

Nebraska City and Alliance, two cities at opposite extremes geographically, were analogous in their enthusiasm of the brilliant outlook for the future, basing their business prophecy upon the existing indications in local commercial and agricultural conditions.

"We believe 1930 will be the best year Alliance has ever had," wrote Walter E. Hagar, secretary of the Alliance chamber of commerce. He reported crop prospects above normal, retail sales increased 11 percent for the first six months of 1930 over the corresponding period last year and business in general improving.

While Alliance registered a 45 percent increase in population during the last decade, unemployment is negligible. Hagar reports 125 men are employed on paving projects and a $116,000 storm and sanitary sewer is nearly completed.

W. Metz, secretary of the Nebraska City chamber, summarized the general business outlook for the near future as "brilliant beyond the peradventure of a doubt," and the agricultural and livestock outlook as the best ever, "always good." During the second quarter of 1930 Nebraska City retail sales increased 10 percent over the second quarter of 1929, while manufacture increased 33 percent during the same period. Retail sales for the first half of this year held their consistent 10 percent increase while manufactures were recorded at 15 percent over 1929.

Metz, in a general summary of conditions in Nebraska, City during the second quarter of 1930 said the cherry, wheat and alfalfa crops were good and the prospects for the corn crop were splendid. Factories are running at full time, there is very little unemployment and a greater demand for harvest hands than the community can supply.

"Nebraska City is located happily," Metz added. "We have never had a bank failure or a crop failure except for the grasshopper year in 1874."

McCook's report called business normal and pronounced the crop and livestock outlook for that area "very good."

Lincoln replied there was a feeling that a slight improvement in farm prices is forthcoming and that this increase will undoubtedly be reflected in general business.

"What seems to be most needed in the modern home is the family."

Fixing Prices

Many people seem to be under the impression that there is something mysterious about the way funeral directors fix prices for their services and the goods they sell. For this reason we wish to state our own policy in this respect.

We consider ourselves as having a special relation to our patrons. Insofar as we sell caskets and other goods, we are in the position of a merchant. Insofar as we give skilled service, we occupy the place of a professional man.

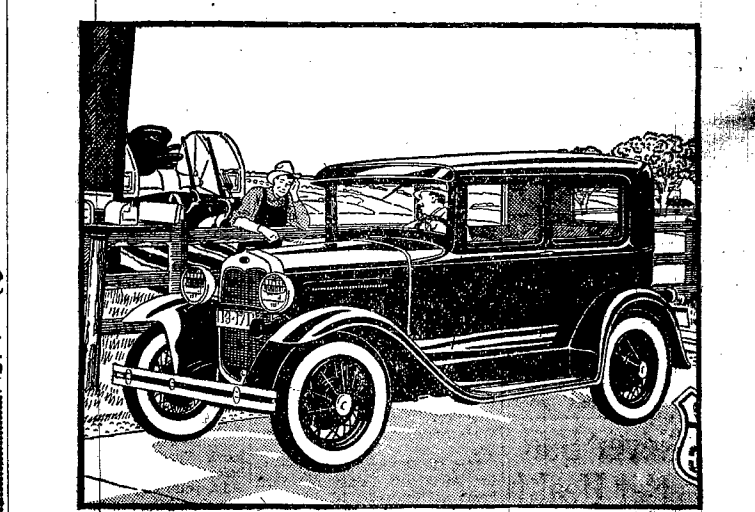

This point of view makes it easy to fix prices. For the goods we sell, we ask what any ethical merchant would—the cost of the merchandise plus a reasonable profit. For our professional services we make a charge in proportion to the amount of labor involved and the extent to which our special equipment is called into play.

hands and soles of my feet kept me in misery. My stomach was out of fix, my kidneys acted too freely and I had to take purgatives continually to get relief from constipation, as my liver was so sluggish, and I'd have one bilious spell after another. If I ever had better health or more strength in all my life than I've had since I've taken four bottles of Sargol, I don't know when it was. # NEW POWER from OLD MOTORS more power from new motors

Old, worn, carbon-crueted motors are taking hills more easily and new motors are showing an amazing liveliness and power response everywhere in Nebraska.

"A DISTINCTLY FINER GASOLINE"

The explanation is new Red Crown Ethyl—the motor fuel that eliminates hesitating starts and gas knocks—that enables any motor to pull through loose sand or heavy mud, to climb steep grades with less gear shifting than ever before.

Try this distinctly finer gasoline and see. Check up the gas cost per mile. You'll find new Red Crown Ethyl is economical in truck, tractor and passenger car—in old motors and in new high-compression motors. New Red Crown Ethyl is a luxury but not an extravagance.

The Old Man.

(Chicago Tribune.)

Sixty years ago and less, well bred children called their parents Ma and Pa, frequently pronounced Maw and Paw. No disrespect was intended. There never was a nicer girl than Joe Vance's Lottie and she called the doctor Pa. Pa and Ma became in due time Papa and Mama. About the time of the World's fair the variant Puh-pah and Muh-mah arrived, enjoyed a brief day, and gave way to Mother and Dad, which is now general.

Mother came in with suffrage and woman's rights. It has overtones of respect and a reverence which readily crosses over into sentimentality. Dad is also sentimentalized. It suggests a good scout who pays the bills and is always cheerful, if a little baggy at the knees. His greatest pleasure is in playing with the children all day Sunday. He never tires of it. Applesauce.

We note of late a distinct gain in the number of children who are permitted to call their parents by their Christian names. There always were some who did so, but now there are many. We regard the change with considerable favor. Paw was authority. Papa was only less so. Puh-pah was the victim of a socially ambitious wife. Dad was the victim of his own submissiveness. John is neither patriarch nor bondman. He is a human being who has fallen into the job of straw boss of the family. Nobody likes to call the straw boss Mister.

Musical Groups Large In Concord

Three Self-Maintaining Bands Furnish Community Entertainment.

According to national music firms, no town the size of Concord and many of 5,000 and 6,000 do not do the amount of music business that this community supports. With three bands in which people of Concord and vicinity take much interest, musical talent is being developed in a large group and high class entertainment is being provided the community.

The history of the Concord musical organizations dates back eight years. Some attempts to form groups were made before but the plans now followed were started at that time when H. W. Shackelford, present director, took charge of the groups. The town now has senior, junior and saxophone bands, the last named being organized the past winter. The three groups participate in the public concerts which are furnished each Wednesday evening.

Towns burdened by band sustenance should take heart when they learn of the way Concord finances its musical groups. No tax is levied. People of Concord and the community within a radius of about eight miles make free-will contributions to the fund. The organizations have earned considerable from engagements at fairs, etc., this amount having been as high as $1,500 in a single month during the fair season. All of the money earned by the musical groups goes into the band fund. No member has ever drawn a cent of pay and each has paid his own transportation, room, board and other expenses while away on engagements. This method, Mr. Shackelford finds, has helped rather than hindered the band interest. Those who do not wish to buy their own instruments and pay their own expenses may drop from the organizations, but very few do. If a player cannot take part in an engagement he hires and pays his substitute.

Each group practices one night each week and comes from rural communities faithfully to allow their children to receive the training. A person entering the band pays a small fee for his individual lessons for the first year. After that he receives the instruction free. The band fund has always been in good shape and not one month has the director had to wait for his salary. The Welfare club of Concord sponsored a movement a year ago to build a new band shell. One evening the women held a cake sale and made $360 for the structure. One cake brought $100. The village board provided the other $300 for the building. The shell was constructed last summer. This stand has convex back and many electric lights. The grassy plot in front of it is furnished with chairs for listeners.

The senior band includes the following: Cornets, Fern and Henry Erwin, Hobart Arnold and Irene Erwin; trombones, William Rieth, Roy Postelwaite and Marvin Frederickson; baritone, John and Harold Erwin; bass, Clifford Nimrod; drums, Harold Anderson and Edward Tryon; altos, Dwight French, Dwight Juhlin, Clarence and Anita Erwin and Geraldine Sherman; saxophones, Hazel and Marjorie Paul, William Weiershauser, Gunnar Swanson and Gayle Hughes; clarinets, Roy E. Johnson, Doris Postelwaite, Arnold Peterson, Richard Johnson and Myron Anderson; and piccolo, Waldo Johnson. Junior band members are: Cornets, Walden Kraemer, Leonard Kraemer, Leland Johnson, Irene Erwin, Harold Juhlin, Geheveve Anderson, Norman McCaw and Orpheus Erwin; trombones, Marvin Frederickson, George Monk, jr., Quentin Erwin, Elmer Lehman, Robert Erwin, Milton Johnson and Arthur Doeschler; altos, Virgil Pearson, Paul Johnson, Dwight Juhlin and Dwight French; baritone, Harold Erwin and Gayle Hughes; bass, Clifford Nimrod; drums, Paul Peterson and Jack Erwin; saxophones, Clarence Erwin, Geraldine Sherman, Hazel Paul, Anita Erwin, Russell Olson, Marjorie Paul, Naomi Walden, Georgia Twamley, Edna Shackelford and Geneva Thompson; clarinets, Martin Koch, Paul Bose, Harvey Rastede, Emil Stalling, Verice Nelson, Edna Hansen, Leslie Doeschler, Meredith Johnson, Everett Hank, Richard Johnson, Arnold Peterson and Myron Anderson; and piccolo, Waldo Johnson.

Players in the saxophone band are: Soprano saxophone, Verlie

Trillo, alto saxophones, Mildred Church, Hazel Paul, William Weiershauser, Margaret Monk, Geraldine Sherman, Anita Erwin and Clarice Erwin; melody saxophone, Edna Shackelford and Russell Olson; tenor saxophone, Naomi Walden, Marjorie Paul, Marjorie Monk and Gayle Hughes; baritone saxophone, Gunnar Swanson; bass saxophones, Geneva Thompson and Clifford Nimrod.

Boy Saves Life Of Young Brother

Belden, Neb.—The heroic efforts and presence of mind of 7-year-old Donald Claybaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grey Claybaugh, saved the life of his 2-year-old brother, Darrell when he found Darrell floating in a tank at his home near Belden. Donald was passing the tank when he saw his brother floating face up in the water. He didn't wait to call his mother but drew the little fellow out by himself, then called for help. First aid was given by the mother, while the father called a doctor.
