Attend Meeting For Chick Men

International Convention In Detroit Brings Helpful Suggestions to Many.

Hatching better chicks through use of better stock and better equipment and improving service to buyers are outstanding objects of the International Baby Chick association, according to a report formulated by the 3,000 hatchery men of the United States and Canada who assembled at Detroit, Mich., July 7 to 10 for their annual convention. Mr. and Mrs. Myron Colson of Wayne, were among those present and they drove to northern points afterward, arriving home last Thursday.

The three-day program at the convention was filled with lectures, trips, exhibits, banquets, etc. Men of national prominence spoke. Increased consumption of poultry products was given as the key to improved conditions in the industry. The country has 400,000,000 chickens. A hen fed properly, given plenty of mash and balanced ration, will lay 120 to 140 eggs a year, an extra dozen eggs over ordinary production. The income from this increase would amount to $120,000,000 a year.

Per capita consumption of eggs is now 207 in the United States and 337 in Canada. If each person in this country would eat three dozen more eggs a year than now the extra supply would be used. An increase in demand can be created, speakers stated, by an improved quality of products. And quality is improved by careful selection of cockerels and other stock, careful selection of eggs and proper feeding of chickens.

"Milk is just as necessary in the diet of an adult as in the diet of children," one speaker pointed out. "It is our greatest protective food and its use must be increased." Each adult should drink at least one quart a day and each child as much and more if possible. By increasing milk consumption in this country to one quart a day per person a market would bring farmers $876,000,000 a year.

In the same way it was pointed out that if Americans would eat 2 1/2 pounds of butter a year, as Canadians do, instead of 17, additional revenue would amount to $400,000,000. These figures on dairy products show that if Americans would consume milk, eggs and butter at the same rate as Canadians the farm relief problem would be solved. Additional revenue to farmers would amount to more than one billion.

Other Poultry Problems. It was shown that the poultry industry is growing by tremendous bounds and one of its big advantages is its quick turnover. A few months bring returns. Farmers and their wives the nation over are more interested in chicken raising than ever. The commercial hatchery which provides scientific incubation and care has an increasing importance in the work. Several problems in care of chickens were considered. In regard to feeding baby chicks, it was shown that just as good results are obtained by feeding right after hatching as by waiting.

Research has developed practical means of checking poultry diseases. To rid a flock of coccidiosis it has been found helpful to dip eggs in iodine suspensions before hatching. To prevent feather picking the following suggestions were given: Remove chicks which have been picked from the flock and paint injured parts with flock; allow about one inch mesh hopper space per chick; feed a liberal amount of tender green feed; and allow at least one square foot of floor space per chick.

Visit Ford Plant. Mr. and Mrs. Colson visited the Ford plant at Detroit. Henry Ford's grounds occupy 10,000 acres at the edge of the city. They visited buildings in which car parts were being assembled, 105,000 men turning out 9,000 cars a day, an average of one in 20 minutes. Groups of men do one thing each and work in lines, the car going from one group to another until it comes out a finished machine. The airplane factory operates on the same plan though production is not so fast.

Greenfield Village, the city of fifty years ago which Mr. Ford is constructing on the grounds as an historic undertaking, was not open to visitors when the Colsons were there. They could see it through a main highway. The home in which Ford was born and other residences typical of half a century of more ago are being constructed in the village. Horses will be used, no cars allowed. Wells with old oaken buckets will draw water for inhabitants. The building in which Thomas Edison made the first electric light will be in the village. The museum will contain many relics from all parts of the world, and the tower on one building will duplicate the one on Independence hall at Philadelphia. A college is also to be included among the buildings.

Drive to Wooded Land. Leaving Detroit Mr. and Mrs. Colson drove north to the peninsula which separates Lake Michigan from Lake St. Clair. They crossed the straits there and went back of the land between Lake Michigan and Lake Superior. These two peninsulas are dense

Two-Week Period Including Fourth Shows Forty Per Cent Increase In Nebraska

Accident statistics for Nebraska as compiled by The Nebraska State division and the rehabilitation division of the state department of vocational education for the two-week period ending July 15, 1930:

	Accid.	Dths.	Inj.	Tot.
Motor accid.	210	14	290	304

Of the 520 persons injured, 28 were permanently disabled. Accidents for the two-week period including July 4 show a 40 per cent increase over the same period last year with 23 per cent less fatalities, 45 per cent increase in permanent disabilities and 43 per cent increase of injuries.

There were 21 injuries and 7 disabilities from firecrackers. Agriculture had 3 times the injuries and 10 times the fatalities that occurred in the same period in 1929.

The opinion is held by many conscientious people that the great majority of drownings occur to swimmers while indulging in the sport. To determine the facts as apply to Nebraska, the following analysis was made of fatalities by drowning during the past 60 weeks that this accident study has been in progress:

We find that while swimming, or boating or rescuing drowning persons, 33 swimmers have been drowned. Ten of these died from the result of diving; 3 from illness brought on by taking water into the lungs; 14 suffered cramps and 6 were drowned while attempting to rescue non-swimmers in distress.

Forty-two non-swimmers have been drowned while engaged in some form of aquatic sport. Of 18 other accidental drownings due to floods and accidental falls into water, only one person was a swimmer and he was caught with a cramp.

Fifteen small children have been drowned in tanks or washbats. Of a total of 108 persons drowned in Nebraska in 60 weeks only 34 have been swimmers.

A Nebraska Daily paper has done an outstanding piece of public service by promoting in Lincoln a "learn to swim week." While all communities in the state do not have facilities for a similar activity, yet some phase of accident prevention, which will result in saving human lives, can be sponsored locally by every newspaper in the state.

Plug 3,000 Calls Daily In Wayne

"Number please." A signal has flashed on the telephone operator's board and she is ready to plug the call desired. Telephones today are so commonplace that few people stop to realize the many different processes involved in completing even a short local call, yet when one knows that the average number of local calls put through on all of the 1,125 phones in Wayne and the Wayne rural lines amounts to a daily average well above 3,000 he can appreciate the fact that the operator's is not a life of ease.

Black Hills Trip Proves Interesting

C. E. Carhart Family See Paramount Pageant at Lead—Visit Famous Caves.

Vacation trips take people from this vicinity to many parts of the country, but whether they travel a long way or a short distance most of them find something new and different to add to their experience. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Carhart, Miss Elsie Mae Carhart and Miss Dorothy Feiler who recently returned from a trip through the Black Hills not only saw some interesting scenic and historic country but were lucky enough to be present when some special events were taking place. They traveled about 1,800 miles during the time they were away.

See Rushmore Monument. Mount Rushmore, not far from Rapid City, S. D., has received considerable attention the last few days because of the unveiling July 4 of the first of the large figure heads carved against the stone face of the mountain. This first head represents George Washington and is sixty feet high from the chin to the top of the forehead. The Carharts also visited an interesting saw mill where the Black Hill pine is cut and a cement plant at Rapid City. A drive over the Needles took them to the Custer park game lodge where former President Calvin Coolidge spent his vacation four years ago. On this federal game preserve antelopes and deer and buffalo may be seen.

Man Is Burned In Wisner Blaze

Wisner, Neb., July 18.—In an attempt to rescue his 7-year-old son, believed to be hemmed in by flames on the second floor of his home, Fred L. Brehrer, 36, of this place sustained severe burns on his arms, neck and face Thursday forenoon.

Unknown to Mr. Brehrer the boy had leaped to safety from a window. When the fire broke out all the members of the family except the small boy were down stairs. The flames had gained considerable headway before being discovered and the upper floor was filled with smoke and flame when Mr. Brehrer sought to bring his son to safety.

The blaze, which is believed to have started from spontaneous combustion in a closet, practically destroyed the upper portion of the house, while most of the lower floor was ruined by water.

After being attended by a local surgeon Mr. Brehrer was taken to a Norfolk hospital where it was reported his condition was good. The most serious burns were on his arms and face, but were not particularly extensive.

Corn Stands Heat Well In Nebraska

Lincoln, Neb., July 17.—Corn over the state is standing the hot, dry weather well, according to the crop and weather report of the weather bureau for the week ending July 15.

"The very high temperatures which prevailed throughout the state until Saturday caused a moderate amount of damage to spring wheat and late oats, which were not yet filled, and a drying out of pastures, but resulted in 2 rapid growing of corn," the report says.

Club Group Gathers At Madison Camp

Fourth annual district 4-H club camp opened Wednesday last week at the Madison county fair grounds with registration of about 125 delegates, representing Colfax, Madison, Cuming, Platte, Stanton and Pierce counties.

Organization of the camp on the city plan with a mayor, clerk and city councilmen to run affairs of the group during the three days they were located on the Madison fair grounds occupied the group during the early afternoon. Wednesday evening's program included a campfire; vespers service at 7 o'clock to which all parents and friends of the campers were invited. Following this Dr. C. M. Hanson of Madison, gave a short address on health and its problems.

Another point of interest which was included in the itinerary followed by the Carharts was Mount Coolidge from the top of which it is possible to see as far away as 150 miles on a clear day. A fifty-foot platform of logs has been erected here to enable people to see still farther.

Edgemont brought the hottest weather experienced by the travelers with a temperature of 116 degrees. Near Edgemont there was once a fine petrified forest which has been practically destroyed because no one has been interested in keeping people from carrying off specimens of the petrified wood for souvenirs. The only good specimens which remain are those in the Burlington railroad yards at Edgemont.

Registration for the second six-week period of the summer session at the Teachers College is fully up to expectations—a fact which testifies to the growing popularity of the school.

Not to allow Wayne to lag behind other progressive cities, E. E. Gailey has established a miniature golf course, and popularity of the sport elsewhere promises to be fully equalled here.

When a man takes time from work to shake hands with himself over his endowment of superior mental acumen, contrasting his sagacity with that of others, one has reason to suspect he is riding for a fall.

Approval and signing of the London naval treaty should be good news to taxpayers and peace-loving people. It is a practical step in the direction of reducing costly naval equipment, and it is a blow to foolish war as a means of settling international disputes.

The suggestion by Senator Capper that the government buy 100,000,000 bushels of wheat and donate the entire lot to hungry China and India, thus performing worthy charity and at the same time stimulating the local market, strikes us as good judgment and certain to meet universal approval.

The Lincoln Journal is 60 years old. It started when Lincoln was started, and it grew with the city. It has occupied a position of leadership in the development of a great state. Its files reveal a history of progress—a story of achievements and of constant change to higher standards. From the first many brilliant men have contributed to the rising strength of the Journal, and the state could as well get along without the DEAD RAISED.

 A report comes from Juan de Los Lagos, Jalisco, Mexico, that a 15-year-old girl who had been pronounced dead by two doctors, came to life following the prayers of family and friends. It seems that the girl's body was in a coffin ready for burial. While prayers were being offered, a knocking inside the coffin was heard, and on investigation, she was found alive. If she were embalmed according to the methods employed by modern embalmers, a lot of reconstruction work was required to bring the girl's body back into commission in usual form. The science of embalming may not have reached Juan de Los Lagos, Jalisco, and it may not be necessary in a town with a name that presents such a tremendously powerful combination. However, embalmed or not, if she were raised from the dead, the result was in harmony with the Christian religion which believes in the efficacy of earnest prayer. But many who profess to believe in prayer and who pray at regular intervals, often following the habit, unfortunately, would discredit the report as a fabrication or as a delusion. While professing to believe in prayer as an agency for good, they shy at any outstanding evidence. They profess to believe in the infinite power of God, and they ask for everything from a new hat to a new lease on life, and yet they limit His power, expect prayers to be answered in a mild and unpronounced fashion 'if at all, and if any startling result happens, they shrink from it as an impossible violation of the natural order. How much dead was the girl at Juan de Los Lagos, Jalisco, Mexico, and how much was she raised to life by the prayers of family and friends?

Platte river as to try to get along without that stalwart capitol city newspaper.

The supreme court has ruled Geo. W. Norris of Broken Bow, out of the race for United States senator against Senator Geo. W. Norris of McCook. The decision pointed out that the Broken Bow man's filing was not received within the time provided by the statutes. The filing was manifestly a trick in politics, possibility for which the next legislature will doubtless try to remove.

A New York report following a survey of business and market conditions, encourages the belief that the low ebb has been reached, and that an upward flow will start in August, reaching near high tide at the close of the year. Market recessions and unemployment will not be without some benefit if they teach people to avoid dangerous stock speculations, steer away from perilous chances and keep expenses well within the bounds of earnings.

Moisture is reported short in the entire corn growing area, and it is estimated that the crop will fall 50,000,000 bushels below normal. In Missouri the damage is reported more disastrous than that of 1901 when the drought was severe and long-continued. Blighting effects in Indiana have had no parallel in twenty-nine years. Where corn is not too far advanced no damage is apparent, and rainfall before long will bring it back to near normal. With the corn generally short, prices may be expected to increase.

"Soon with sun and rain a plenty," observes Dr. A. L. Bixby, poet-philosopher, "our great crop will be made, so let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. Crib and bins will soon be groaning with the fruits of farm and field and, when winter winds are moaning, we'll be happy and well heeled. Torrid heat is now a burden. It is pretty maddening tough, but from Laramie to Verdun, corn is doing well enough. Cattle still find tender grasses; and when winter comes apace, there'll be corn-cakes and molasses smeared on many a hungry face. Cheerfully the future facing, let us don our overalls and be vigilant in chasing wheresoever duty calls."

Congressman Howard says he has yielded to a request for an opinion in regard to President Hoover. The congressman says he feels free from prejudice, that he has tried to cooperate with the president, and indicates that his suggestions tending to impair the statesmanlike leadership of the president are expressed reluctantly and sorrowfully. The congressman says the president is clean and honest, but weak as a leader of men. As to the tariff, the president had set forth what he wanted done for agriculture, but that congress did not follow. Despite his protests and threats of a veto, the president signed the bill on assurance of being able to employ the flexible clause to make advisable changes. Perhaps the president's leadership does not satisfy congress, but we think the people will discriminate carefully enough to place the burden of blame for hurtful delay and mistakes of judgment on congress rather than on the chief executive.

Business.
 Sioux City Journal: Business leaders in the eastern districts are more hopeful now than at any time since the period of depression began that recovery is on the way. Industrialists particularly insist that the signs of recovery are unmistakable. They all agree that the foundation is remarkably sound, and on that is based the conclusion that when the improvement begins recovery will not require a good deal of time.

The steel business is one of the most sensitive in all industry. That is well known. Of all barometers of business steel reacts in either direction with more accuracy than anything else. And at this time the steel and iron people are optimistic over the outlook for business recovery.

Motor car manufacturing has been reduced considerably, some plants having practically shut down temporarily. But all are planning resumption in the immediate future and are placing orders for steel. In sight at the present time are orders sufficient to indicate an actual upturn in industry. In other lines than automotive, this is a good sign. It is well established that next to steel the motor car industry is able to sense changes very quickly. Obviously, if manufacturers are to resume production on a larger scale than for the last several months they must have excellent reasons for so doing. The automobile business must depend upon general buying power such as obtains when pay rolls are satisfactory in various lines of activity. It is evident that a decrease in unemployment is expected throughout the country.

General trade is slow. No claim of an upturn is made by anyone at this time. Buying power admittedly is weak, but a good deal of that weakness is the result of seasonal sluggishness. This coupled with the general depression, has aggravated the situation. The hope is for an appreciable change in rainfall and improvement in the general business conditions.

Picnic At Homer In Dakota County
 Homer, Neb.—The annual Dakota County Farmers' union picnic will be held at Homer, August 14. H. G. Keeney, president of the Nebraska Farmers' union, and Mr. Iverson, president of the South Dakota Farmers' union, have been engaged as speakers for the day. THE TIMES
 In viewing the times people are often inclined to look on the dark side, making themselves miserable by magnifying ills and imagining calamities that are not warranted by the facts.

We are in the richest country and under the best government in the world. We are here to stay. Less so than in other countries, we are subject to fluctuating times. We go up and down. We make and correct mistakes. When people engage in wild land speculations as they did ten years ago, a reaction sets in and a hither-to roseate pathway is strewn with wrecks and near wrecks. Then the struggle back begins. When people are led by the lure of possible fortunes to violate reason in Wall street speculations and over-inflation breaks the bubble, as it did last fall, industry is disturbed, capital seeks hiding and unemployment follows. Out of work, people struggle along on short rations. Curtailed consumption increases surplus, and markets drop. With demand for agricultural products thus depressed, manufactured goods find sluggish outlets. All lines of human endeavor are directly or indirectly affected. When we get to riding along in high and reckless abandon, figuring that the present is a snap and the future is secure, an accumulation of bucking circumstances stops the machinery, and we have to start over. That is the way of the world, and no part of the world is more resourceful and friendly than this in wresting recovery out of backsets. Neither depressed nor inflated markets can last. The great middle course is the healthiest, and it endures until another crazy flight brings another fall. Conditions could be worse and have been worse, but they are growing better as adjustments are made in fields of industry and trade, and there is no good reason to look forward with gloomy forebodings.

Watermelon Costs Boys Considerable

West Point, Neb., July 22.—A 50 cent watermelon cost almost $20 before the Tooley boys from Missouri, Willard and Charles, brothers, and Edward, a cousin, were thrown with it. The boys had borrowed their sister-in-law's car and were returning from South Dakota where they had gone to look for work in the harvest fields. The joint sum of money among the three had dwindled to $5.25 which they were saving to buy the gas to get home.

Thurston County Case Is Resumed

Lincoln, Neb.—Plaintiffs in the case from Thurston county, Fred Kelly and Robert G. Fuhrman, who lost their suit to Sheriff Iler C. Jensen, have asked the supreme court for a rehearing. Loss of companionship as an element of damages is proper only under special circumstances, where it reasonably can be said that under the evidence it has a monetary value; the high court holds, adding that the trial judge erred in submitting it to the jury as such.

Happy Chick News

Hope you are enjoying some of the weather that we are here. July 15. Went back into Denver and got my spring fixed and watched them make it. It was put in the car while it was still so hot they couldn't handle it with their hands. While waiting in Denver I saw a boy on a bicycle hit by a car. He was in pretty bad shape. Don't know whether he died or not. Drove from Denver to Colorado Springs. We are staying all night in Pike's Peak camp. Little chilly. Have to wear a sweater. July 16. Another day. Saw more today than our eyes could stand. Took two drives through the Garden of the Gods. Of course that was no place for me but thought I would go up and see their garden anyway. Also we took in the Cave of the Winds which was really worth the price of admission of $1 each person. Contains 10 rooms. They have just discovered a new part and added it to the original cave. The guide only turned the lights out on us twice. When I got back to camp thought I would shave. I sat myself down and started and a snake ran under my stool. I proceeded to kill him. After I got him killed I inquired to find out what he was and found it was a spreading adder and deadly poison. July 17. Went over to Corley mountain drive to Cripple Creek and back by way of Victor and Phantom canyon to Canyon City, then up to Colorado Springs, making a drive of 160 miles. Saw some real mountain scenery. Pulled both ways in high gear. The towns looked dilapidated, especially Cripple Creek and Victor. July 18. Left Colorado Springs for Estes Park. Went by way of Denver, Boulder, Boulder canyon and South St. Vrain canyon to Estes Park. This was a nice drive but got tiresome. Saw Castle rock, Boulder falls, the peacocks, Drove up Peacocks valley. Sure lots to look at. Well, we finally arrived at our old camp, Aspen, which has an elevation of about 5,600 feet. Here you build the wood fires and have good, cold mountain water running right out the side of the mountain. July 19. We stayed around camp all morning and then in the afternoon we undertook to climb a mountain. It was some job. When I got down I sure was sore and tired and believe one leg had got shorter or the other longer from walking on the side hill. Sure could get a good view from the top. Saw them blasting way over on the new road they are building to Grand lake. This road is estimated to cost around $900,000. President Hoover is coming out to inspect it when finished. Sure took a good look around while up there. Ran into hen party and about six young. Forgot to tell you that when I went through Denver the last time I bought a 20-power telescope. Well this morning I spotted a man on a mountain off about five or six miles. He was sitting on a rock. I suppose he thought he was alone. But with the aid of the telescope I was right beside him. I can read signs off about two miles, also can read car numbers a good long distance. July 20. We went up to the top of the Continental Divide today. Got up to an altitude of about 12,000 feet. Car-bolted quite a bit. Had some rain and sleet storm at the top. Couldn't see much for clouds. You could look right down on top of them. While up there the temperature dropped from 43 degrees to 36 degrees. Sure was cold for summer underwear. Quite a bit of snow up there but not nearly so much as two years ago. After getting down we went to see the fish hatchery. Boy, talk about seeing fish! Saw trout from 1/2 inch to 18 inches long and millions of them. Well, I guess I'll let you rest a while. This is for the Happy Chick Brooder House Factory. Rocky mountain time station. PETE signing off, somewhere in Colorado.

Tiny "Monarchy," Under U. S. Flag, Has No Jails, Radios, Autos or Rum

A NEW land has been "discovered" under the American flag where for 60 years prohibition has been in actual force, where no man or woman may smoke, where everyone is a church member, where jails, radios, automobiles, airplanes, wireless and even dogs are unknown.

It is the remote island of Nihau, smallest of the Hawaiian group and until recently a place of the deepest mystery. For years Nihau has been a byword on the map to passing steamers. Then the new governor, Lawrence M. Judd, paid it a visit, the first Hawaiian governor to do so. In Judd's party was the first newspaper man ever to set foot upon the tiny island's shore. Here is what he found:

An entire island owned by one white man, Aubrey Robinson, dictator by right of ownership, by his own strict moral code, his determination to keep his "family" of native Hawaiians untainted by the foreigner.

"Dry" for 60 years

A population of 130 souls lives under Robinson's benevolent feudalism. For 60 years there has been prohibition such as "the states" never dreamed of. Most of the inhabitants never saw or smelled liquor. Tobacco is taboo. School attendance at the one village school is compulsory up to the fourth grade. After that the children work, the boys on the estate, the girls at home. Everyone must also go to the one village church.

A land devoid of a single "modern" invention—autos, radio, wireless, irrigation works, even a village store. One single passenger vehicle, an ancient surry, is the transportation system, the men ride blooded horses, the rest walk. Rainfall is the only water-works. One temperamental spring furnishes water for the island, that and rain water gathered in receptacles. Because of the limited water supply the population is limited to 150, 20 persons more than the present population.

"Radio Stock"

The chief industry of the island is stock-raising—cattle, sheep, turkeys—all of the best variety. All males work on the great range. The women are very sheltered, the girls doing housework in their parents' huts, making red-mats, shell-les, preparing for marriage. The aged are taken care of by Robinson.

The humans, like the stock, all are pure-bred. Nothing but the purest of Hawaiian Polynesians are found, a contrast to the racial hodge-podge of the other Hawaiian islands. They go barefoot or dress in "store clothes" shipped from a Chicago mail-order house.

There are no jails. The few misdemeanants are deported. No ships sail from Nihau's precarious piers, except an occasional whaleboat or small freighter that brings the mail and takes away wool, hides, cattle and other produce.

Hawaiian Governor L. M. Judd discovered the "monarchy."

Republicans will now take heed of the Morrow.—Tampa Tribune.

Jake Schwindt, Driver of Car, Suffers Minor Injuries—Machine Is Wrecked.

Hurled from an automobile which turned over twice one mile south of Hoskins about 1:45 Monday morning, Elmer Planner, 23, Hoskins, suffered internal injuries from which he died four hours later in a Norfolk hospital.

Planner who was thrown from the car, was rendered unconscious. He was picked up by a passing motorist and taken to a Hoskins doctor who had him rushed to a Norfolk hospital. Planner died without regaining consciousness at 6 o'clock Monday morning. Schwindt remained in the car until it stopped and received only minor injuries. He was taken to Norfolk also. The automobile was wrecked beyond repair.

Mr. Planner, who lived most of his life at Hoskins, is survived by his mother, Mrs. Minnie Planner of Hoskins, six brothers and seven sisters. SWEET CLOVER IS SLIGHTLY BEHIND ALFALFA AS CROP

NEBRASKA'S queen of the meadows, Miss Alfalfa, who has reigned unchallenged for many years and enjoyed a great popularity, is casting some fearful glances in the direction of a new princess, Miss Sweet Clover, who is getting clamorous attention and achieving sudden honor. The crown may be slipping to a fall.

Nebbraska has ranked first in alfalfa acreage and second in production. But this year there are more acres of sweet clover under cultivation than alfalfa and a new forage crop has come into first prominence.

There are 300,000 acres of sweet clover in Nebraska this year besides 826,000 acres of small grain, such as winter wheat, barley and oats, in which sweet clover has been sown. After the small grain is harvested the clover will come on and produce the fall pasture. During the succeeding year it may be retained for use as pasture, hay or seed. Many farmers plow it under the spring of the following year to enrich the soil.

No other crop seems to have grown so rapidly in popular favor as sweet clover. Its value as a pasture is high. It is unexcelled as a soil building crop. It is not hay crop that alfalfa is, but its rapid growth, its pasture value and its soil building properties make it a favorite with farmers who have cows and stock to feed.

Sweet clover seems to be well adapted to Nebraska's rich soil, deriving a rapid growth from the soil and affording a rich food for stock, then compensating the soil in return by giving back to it valuable properties which are lost in cropping.

Sievers Depart For Hay Ranch

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Sievers and baby daughter, Bernadine, Mrs. Emma Sievers and Otto Sievers left early this week for Lancaster, Calif., where the latter two will visit at the ranch of Wilbur and Rudolph Sievers. They plan to make the return trip through the Black Hills and Yellowstone park.

In the Antelope valley ninety miles north of Los Angeles the Sievers brothers operate a 160-acre alfalfa hay ranch. Hay is cut five times in a year there, the yield averaging about eight tons to the acre. At the first cutting, the middle of May the yield is two tons to the acre and the second cutting betters this a little. By the time one crop is cut, raked and baled, the next one is almost ready to be cut. The having keeps the farmers busy about six months of the year. Two irrigated ditches about three feet across and three feet deep are cut across each forty acres of alfalfa and one pumping plant is kept busy irrigating each forty.

Bale In Field.
Falling is done in the hay field. The hay is cut and laid into windrows and the baler, driven along these rows, gathers up the hay and wires it. Wagons haul it to the trucks which carry it to the dairymen near Los Angeles. One truck can carry approximately fifteen tons of hay at a time.

Antelope valley is in the mountains and is largely filled with fruit ranches where there are pear and apricot orchards as well as groves of almond trees. The almond trees are a mass of blossoms when they bloom and make a very beautiful sight.

Country Is Different.
"The country in California is very different from that in Nebraska," says Mr. Sievers. "There is lots of rough waste land and the mountains are very coarse." Although he has been there but two years he is a staunch supporter of the California climate which rarely grows colder than freezing and which always brings cool nights even if the days are hot.

In Lancaster there are a number of former Wayne people including Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Thomsen, Will Thomsen and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Phillippe.

Drowns In Lake At West Point

West Point, July 18.—William Ackerman, 45, of West Point, was drowned in the newly-dredged city park lake Tuesday night while on a picnic with his wife.

Ackerman went rowing on the lake. Some time later his wife noticed the empty boat, and knowing her husband was a good swimmer, she concluded that he had swum to shore and gone home.

Returning home herself, Mrs. Ackerman couldn't find her husband, so spread the alarm. His body was found at an early hour. It is believed a cramp caused his drowning.

Facts Told About Gypsy Evangelist

Ensign Young Speaks of Work, Ideas and Self-Training of the Man, Smith.

"Gypsy Smith would say, I think, if asked as to conditions in the world today, that the field for work is even greater than ever before," remarked Ensign Young, in an interview recently. "And, as for the world getting worse, there is always an element which is not as it should be—with only that element to judge by, Gypsy would refuse to take sides on the issue."

Ensign Young with his wife and daughter came a week ago to visit in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Young, parents of the first named. Mr. Young has been with the famous gypsy evangelist for a number of years and has a great admiration and liking for the man, and for the worker. For the past year while Gypsy has been at his old home at Cambridge, England, the Youngs have made their home at Phoenix, Ariz.

Mr. Young has charge of music in the Central M. E. church at Phoenix and gives five radio programs a week over KTAR, new N. B. C. station. He also gives piano and organ instruction to forty pupils. For the coming year, Mr. Young expects his classes of students to increase materially. He has studios at his home and at the church.

Mrs. Young, who assists with music at the Gypsy Smith evangelistic meetings, is secretary of the First Presbyterian church of Phoenix. "This is the largest church in the city, having a membership of 15,000."

Evangelist Returns To States.
The famous evangelist will arrive in America August 15 on the liner, Aquatana. The Youngs will meet him in New York City. They left here Sunday for Chicago where Mr. Young will spend a few days looking after publication of a hymn book of which he has charge. The books are published in editions of 10,000.

Gypsy Smith will speak for ten days at Ocean Grove, N. J., as his first work upon his arrival in the States. In October he and the Youngs go to Rochester, N. Y., for a united church campaign at the Municipal auditorium. The November work will take the party to San Antonio, Texas, all churches of the city uniting for the campaign. The evangelist will remain in America until Christmas, when he will again return to his home in England. At that time the Young family will go to their home in Phoenix, to remain until Gypsy Smith again returns.

English People Respect Gypsy.
"People of the city of Cambridge, England, all know and have great respect for Gypsy," stated Mr. Young. "Many of the university people are known to him by name and he often speaks to classes of students."

The evangelist is often called upon for lectures on birds and animals. In his early boyhood, with a camp of roving gypsies, he became well acquainted with plant and animal life and speaks of his friends with first-hand information. The public orator of the Cambridge university is a very close friend of the world-famous man.

Has Visited In England.
Mr. Young has visited England several times with Gypsy. The city of Cambridge is a very beautiful old place with a population of 60,000. It is located sixty miles northeast of London. The University of Cambridge is the oldest English university in the world. "Think of grass growing on a college campus for over a thousand years!" exclaimed Mr. Young. "It makes our oldest schools still seem in their infancy."

Cambridge University Beautiful.
Mr. Young expressed a preference for the beauty of the Cambridge school to that of Oxford. The presentation of the Rhodes scholarship each year in America has made Oxford seem closer and more familiar to people of our country than does Cambridge. It has only been recently that it was made possible for women to obtain degrees from the university of Cambridge.

Studies English Dictionary.

One of Gypsy's favorite pastimes is the study of the dictionary and from it he has acquired a thorough understanding and usage of words. "His vocabulary," declared Mr. Young, "is absolutely astounding. It amazes me at his usage of words and wide command of phrases." He added, "It may seem far-fetched but I believe that one would find scarcely a word in the English dictionary that he could not give its meaning, spelling, pronunciation and usage."

Evangelist Self-Taught.
The famous evangelist is self-taught in the true sense of the word. His use of fluent and correct English has been classed with that of Brigham, famous British orator. His gypsy boyhood has taught him a love of nature which has made the man bigger. He is now 70 years old but gives an appearance of much greater youth.

The Original Gypsy Smith.
"Let me say here," the speaker continued, "that our Gypsy Smith is the original man who has made the name famous. The name has been trespassed upon by much inferior men, causing the evangelist a great deal of unpleasantness. Gypsy Smith has three children: Gypsy Smith, Jr., of Mississippi, who also does some evangelistic work; Hanley Smith, a Methodist minister in England; and a daughter, Zillah, who is married and lives in England."

A cousin of the evangelist, Simon Smith, sometimes adds the title of "Gypsy" to his name. Like Names Cause Difficulty. The man who has caused the most difficulty by use of the name made famous by the evangelist, is Pat Smith, who is in no way related to Gypsy Smith and who has no right to the title, inasmuch as he is not a gypsy. A divorce case of great notoriety in which Pat Smith recently figured, caused the evangelist a great deal of unpleasantness. Gypsy Smith's picture appeared in a large daily with the divorce story as written up at that time. Many of the larger dailies and a well-known newspaper syndicate also made the same error. These stories were all publicly retracted through the efforts of Mr. Young, but many people today are still puzzled by the similarity in names. The man who goes by the name of "Gypsy" Pat Smith is also an evangelist.

Great Response to Talks.
"If anything, I believe that greater response is given to Gypsy's work now than in the past," Mr. Young went on. At the evangelist's last appearance in Boston, 20,000 people were present for a Sunday afternoon service. This is the seating capacity of the Boston Gardens. At that service 8,000 people had to be turned away from the doors because of lack of room. Eight loud speakers and four microphones were used in the auditorium.

Like the Southwest.
Mr. and Mrs. Young like the southwest where they have made their home. The summers are very warm but the winters in the city are heated in winter, extra warmth being needed on chilly days. When the Youngs left for the north, thermometers were registering 115 degrees with promise of rising temperatures.

Cotton of the long, staple, South seas variety is one of the most important crops raised in the vicinity of Phoenix. This variety of cotton grows on bushes over five feet high. Other products for which the city is famous are the excellent oranges, lemons, grapefruit, head lettuce, tomatoes, cantaloupes and watermelons.

The land about Phoenix is all irrigated, there being practically no rain. In the past two or three years inhabitants have been worried about water supply for irrigation as dams are inadequate. Conditions are better this year for irrigation than since 1920.

Wayne Boy's Backyard Poultry Project Makes Interesting, Novel Experiment

Darrell Trumbauer Uses Poultry Methods in Caring for His Priced Leghorns

Chickens in the back yard are no novelty in small town towns, but the backyard chicken raising which is according to strict rules and which is kept immaculate at all times is not familiar. Three years ago Darrell Trumbauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Trumbauer, of Wayne, bought 300 chicks and started his backyard poultry project, which is particularly interesting because he does everything exactly, and according to rules which both his experience and information have proved to be most successful.

The poultry yard at the rear of the Trumbauer home is a model in construction and operation which might well be copied by other aspiring breeders, and the white Leghorn stock which runs in the yard is one which has proved its superiority over other strains with which the young poultry raiser has experimented. To secure first of all a good strain of chickens, then to feed them correctly and keep them clean are prime essentials of successful poultry raising or egg production.

Plans for City Trade. Darrell Trumbauer raises chickens for the eggs which they produce and though they cost him 18 cents a dozen to produce and the present market is not encouraging, he plans to build up a direct parcel post trade with customers in large cities, which later in the year should develop into a good business. It should not be hard to secure the trade when it is explained to prospective customers that the eggs which they will receive keep longer and stay fresher because they are strictly sterile, and when the conditions under which the eggs are produced are also explained.

Accurate Food Ration. This year Darrell started out with 500 chicks secured from a large Michigan hatchery the first of March. These chicks were all sired by pedigreed cockerels and hens with records of production of from 260 to 300 eggs a year. When they arrived in Wayne they were put into an air blast brooder and later into houses which had been thoroughly cleaned and sprayed beforehand. Plenty of watering space and feeding space are allowed so that the chicks are forced along and start laying early in the summer, the first one beginning when it was only four months and four days old. A dry commercial mash is kept before the chickens all day long and twice a day equal parts of barley and corn are added to them from troughs. Absolutely no garbage is allowed in the chicken pens because it upsets the balanced ration of the mash.

Rotate in Yards. Three yards are used in which to rotate the chickens. The first one provides the chicks with green feed until they are six weeks old, and they are left in the second yard until the green feed is gone. The old yards are replanted as soon as they are scratched out, but in dry weather like that of the past few weeks it is useless to try to replant the yards, so the chickens are given clippings from the lawn and otherwise have no green food. All other food is given to them in hoppers or troughs which are cleaned and disinfected once a week so that all the feeding is much cleaner than it would be if the food were scattered on the ground.

House Carefully Built. One chicken house opens into each of the three yards but each house is arranged so that it can be thrown into the others or shut off by itself. The floors of the houses are cement and there is a drain at one end. The houses are thoroughly scrubbed out with a good lye solution three times a year. About the middle of August the pullets will be shut up in the houses until late spring. During the cold weather lights may be required to give the chickens a full 12-hour day so that they will get more and consequently lay more. Whether or not the increased laying will make up for the cost of the lights is a question which can only be settled by experimentation, however. The houses sometimes have to be heated in the winter since the chickens will not lay if their combs are frozen and the Leghorn has an unusually large comb. Ventilation in the houses is accomplished by two openings with slide doors, one opening in the ceiling and the other in the floor.

Costs of production in the model poultry yard are interesting. Darrell keeps an accurate record of all that he spends and all that comes in and is able to figure out his profits on a percentage basis in many instances. His own work requires only about half an hour a day outside of two or three days each month spent in cleaning out the houses so that he allows no expense for labor. Roosters, from the time they are a day old to the time they can be sold for what they will bring on the market, cost about 43 cents apiece to raise. Pullets cost 90 cents to raise to maturity. Eggs cost 18 cents a dozen.

Breeders Bring Most. Of the five hundred chicks bought this spring only four percent were lost up to the time of maturity except for some which were stolen. Of these there are about 150 pullets left which are laying at the present time or will be before long; 175 cockerels were sold and five choice breeders. Eight breeders, the pick of the flock, were kept. Breeders bring from $3 to $4 apiece depending on their age, since even a week's feed cost counts in the net profits to be realized from each chicken.

Must Watch Flock Closely. The pullets in the yards must be watched closely all the time for sick chickens or for those which are not laying well so that they can be culled out and the average of the flock kept up to standard. Last year a laying average through the winter of between 50 and 70 percent was maintained and it is reasonable to expect that an average of at least 60 percent can be kept this year with a stock that has so far proved itself better. This year's pullets laid earlier and weighed about four pounds when they began laying.

Backyard projects often develop into some life work and this one may well be counted among those, for Darrell Trumbauer is very particular about his chickens and is anxious to go on and learn something more about what and how to feed and care for them for best and most economical results.

Visitors In Wayne Traveling Widely. C. G. Mears and Daughter of Ohio, Who Have Been In Wayne With Relatives, See Much.

Vagabonding across country in the past six months from the east coast to the middle west C. G. Mears and his daughter, Miss Mary E. Mears, have traveled more than 6,000 miles since they first left their home in Alexandria, Ohio. At the present time they are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Grant Mears and other relatives in Wayne before they go on to see new parts of the country and other relatives.

Last winter Mr. Mears and his daughter left the farm home in Alexandria, about twenty-five miles northeast of Columbus, Ohio, and set out for Florida where they spent the winter. By taking their time and stopping wherever they thought they might enjoy either the fishing or the scenery they covered a large section of interesting country and have many pictures and souvenirs to show for their travels.

See Cumberland Gap. On their way to Florida the Mears crossed the famous Cumberland gap where it is possible to see into several states at one time. This gap is at the extreme west tip of Virginia. One of the first interesting places in Florida which they visited was the Bok Singing Tower in central Florida where the one-time editor of the Ladies Home Journal is now buried. Edward Bok built this tower and equipped it with a beautiful carillon or chimes which play every Sunday and twice each week beside. People by the thousand come from all over the country to hear the chimes and to visit the bird sanctuary at the tower. A water moat has been built around the tower so that no one can cross to it, even though it is said to be one of the highest points in Florida. Not far away is Lake Wales from which it is possible to see the reflection of the tower in the water.

Catches Big Bass. At Lake City, Fla., Mr. Mears caught some of the big black bass which are known as trout there. Small fish are caught in large numbers but first he catches no more than one or two.

As bait for the bass whose mouth is so large one can almost put his fist into it. Silver Springs, where the Mears stayed a whole week, is famous for the clear water and the excellent opportunity of observing the fish. Fifteen hundred people every day take the half-hour rides on the glass-bottomed boats to watch the fish. These boats become so tame that like chickens around a person when they see food floating on the water. While Mr. Mears was scattering crumbs of bread a large water turtle came up and stretched out his neck asking to be fed also.

Winter Park at Orlando was the next stop made. This is one of the most beautiful cities in Florida and is well built up with wealthy homes and estates. Some of these have been opened for inspection by the public.

Through Fruit Country. From Winter Park to Winterhaven the Mears took a road through the heart of the fruit country and enjoyed seeing the oranges, lemons and grapefruit growing on the trees. Most of these trees are smaller than apple trees but are so loaded with the heavy fruit that it is hard to realize why the branches do not break under the strain. The trees are usually very shapely and are trimmed so that the foliage reaches the ground. Frequently there are as many as half a dozen grapefruit in a single cluster. Lemons grow as large as one's fist but do not fall from the tree in the wind ordinarily.

See Circus Quarters. At Long Beach or the Long Boat Key the Mears visited the long island where are the winter quarters of the Ringling Brothers circus. Houses on this island are built with cement floors as they are frequently slightly flooded when the wind is from the west. If the wind blows hard enough from the west it holds the tide in this direction it will still be holding the water when the tide comes in again. It is at these times that the water rises in the island houses. As soon as the wind dies down, however, the water recedes with it. Cocoanuts and mulberries may be seen growing on these islands, the mulberries being ripe enough to eat three weeks after the blooming.

Fish for Oysters. In the Alafia river, which is the Indian interpretation of 'all affre' there are oyster beds from which the Ohio folk gathered enough oysters to shell about a gallon. The river got its name from the beds of phosphorus which line its banks.

Tarpon Springs is known for the sponge exchange to which divers bring the sponges from the deep sea. The sponge plants are very dirty when they are brought up and must be washed several times and put through various processes before they are ready to be sold. It requires two or three days to clean them.

Came on Swaine River. Fort Fanning at Fanning Springs is located on the Swaine river of ballad fame. The Springs boil up for several feet around and then flow away in a river that is remarkable for the clearness of the water. It is easy to see through ten feet of water in the springs; The Swaine river is swift and deep clear to the banks and the water, though clear, is black.

To Old Battlefields. On the return trip to Ohio Mr. Mears and his daughter passed through some of the most interesting Civil war battlefields. At Kenesaw mountain they took a picture of the field where Mr. Mears' brother-in-law had lost his life. Instead of crossing the mountains they drove through them for about a hundred miles past the old Kentucky hills on which it hardly seemed possible that people could build homes and live. Yet where "it was steeper than a roof," as Mr. Mears said, they could see patches of corn and little shacks rising high above the roads. They visited in Washington and Virginia before going to Pennsylvania to see relatives.

Returns to Old Home. After resting a few days at their home the travelers again set out to see the country. This time heading west to the land which Mr. Mears had not seen for sixty-five years. His father returned to Ohio from his Iowa homestead when Mr. Mears was only 10; thus he found many changes in the land he had known at that time. Then it was customary to cut across the prairie to reach another home instead of having to go to corners around fenced fields. There was open prairie all around and the towns consisted mainly of shacks which have pretty well been torn down to make way for more respectable buildings in the thriving middle western towns of today.

Ohio Has Small Farms. Nebraska and Iowa farms make a contrast with Ohio farms because the fields are so much larger. Many feel cramped in Ohio because there are no large vistas of great corn and wheat fields according to Mr. Mears. Ohio specializes in more varied crops, including potatoes, than most farmers in this section do. The "Of course Ohio is a better state than any of those we have passed through," Mr. Mears smilingly assures you, but he does admit that the farm land is better here, and he likes the scenery too. He is also pleased with the hard roads in Ohio and doesn't brag of Nebraska roads. Though he is 76 years old Mr. Mears has done all the driving in the long trip he has taken and is ready to drive another 6,000 miles as soon as he decides where he wants to go. The two plan to go back to Florida this winter but will visit in this section before their return.

Yes, There Are Thrills in the Banking Business

We have occasion here in The First National Bank to observe certain savings accounts grow and accumulate. We know the people back of these accounts. And we confess to a real thrill as we witness the financial successes of these customers. A young man sets his goal at $1000, and finally reaches it. A young lady borrows money to put herself through school, and succeeds in paying every cent of it. A hard working man pays off a mortgage. These are financial victories we are privileged to see, and we share in the thrills. That is one of the compensations in the banking business.

Home Tried Recipes

Warm weather makes the home-keeper's problem of providing appetizing food for her family more difficult. The Herald hopes this newly added recipe column will prove helpful. Everyone is invited to turn in recipes for this section.

Surprise Salad.
(By Mrs. C. A. Chace, Wayne)
This is a colorful salad and is easily made. For a party it may well be made the day before. Stuff flat pears with any good soft cheese and chopped nuts. Place flat side down in a pan and pour over jello. Let set. Cut and serve with round side of pear up. For variation put a layer of green jello in a pan and when nearly hard place the pears on the jello, flat side down. Then pour over pink or orchid jello and let set. Cut in squares and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Quick Cake.
(By Mrs. Henry Buss, Hoskins)
This recipe is excellent when the housewife needs to make a cake in a hurry. Mrs. Buss heated it first over the radio and has used it for several years with great success. It may be served with sugar sprinkled on top or with boiling icing with bananas in it, or with any other simple icing.
3 eggs, beat until foamy.
Add 1 1/2 cups sugar and beat to stiff foam.
Add 2-3 cup thin sweet cream
1-3 cup milk
2 rounding teaspoons baking powder
1 1/2 to 1 3/4 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt.
Flavor to taste. Beat well. Pour into a large pan so that it will not raise much above an inch. This makes a thin batter. Bake not longer than fifteen minutes in a quick oven.

Grapenut Speal.
(By Mrs. W. E. Mordhorst, Hoskins)
Mrs. Mordhorst got this recipe from the Norfolk cooking school about a year ago. It makes a very nice chilled dessert.
1 pint vanilla ice cream
1 cup grape nuts
3 ripe bananas.
Mash bananas. Add grapenuts and ice cream. Put in freezing tray and let set for two hours. This is good either with whipped cream or without.

Ice Cream.
(By Mrs. Charles Helkes, Wayne)
This is an old recipe used by Mrs. Helkes which many of her friends have had an opportunity to sample.
4 well beaten egg whites
Gradually add 1 1/2 cups sugar.
Then add 1 level tablespoon of corn starch dissolved in a little milk.
1 quart of cream (about 35 percent test)

Cream 1 cup sugar and 1 tablespoon butter. Add 1 well beaten egg and 1-2 cups flour sifted with 1-2 teaspoon baking powder. Add 1/2 cup nuts or less. Bake slowly. Serve with either pudding sauce or

Golden Glow Salad.
(Mrs. Eph Beckenhauer, Wayne)
This recipe was used for the salad which was served at the Presbyterian church banquet in the spring and was commented on so highly.
1 package of lemon jello
1 cup boiling water
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup of canned pineapple juice
1 cup of canned pineapple, diced and drained
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 cup of grated raw carrot
1/3 cup of pecan meats, finely cut.
The ingredients are put together as any jello salad.

Waffles.
(By Mrs. Hobert Auker, Wayne)
This recipe came from a nurse in a hospital in Des Moines so it has much to recommend it. The secret of the success of these waffles comes in the method of mixing.
2 eggs well beaten
Add 2 cups rich milk and stir thoroughly by beating with Dover egg beater
Add 2 cups flour, 2 heaping teaspoons of baking powder, and a pinch of salt sifted together, to the liquid mixture a tablespoon at a time, beating with the egg beater after each addition.
Add 2 tablespoons melted butter. Beat well. Batter may be quite thin. This makes five or six waffles, enough to serve about five or six people.

Poet Laureate Works On Epic
"Song of the Messiah" fourth book in the six-section epic which Dr. John G. Neihardt of Bronson, Mo., Nebraska poet laureate and former Wayne resident, is writing will be completed in two years, according to the poet's plans which he announced July 16 to friends while visiting in Omaha. Dr. Neihardt was in Omaha on business and went to Bronson the last of the week. He will continue his book review column for a St. Louis newspaper and work on his epic. Dr. Neihardt has been reading and writing reviews for three to six books a day for the paper.
Dr. Neihardt five years ago completed the third book in his epic. The three finished are "Song of Three Friends," "Song of Hugh Glass" and "Song of Indian Wars." The "Song of Messiah," on which he is now working, is the fourth. The two last planned are "Song of Jed Smith" and "Song of the Great Migration." Critics say the epic will be the most complete presentation of heroism and dynamic sweep of the west. All the stories center around the early history of Nebraska.
In the past five years Dr. Neihardt has written just 500 lines on his fourth epic. Besides doing his book review work he plans to spend a couple hours each day on his poem.

Sandwich NEW IDEA

FOR generations, farmers have known two firms, not in competition with one another, whose products commanded their highest respect. One, THE NEW IDEA Spreader Company, manufacturing manure spreaders, transplanter, husker-shredders, two-row corn pickers and all-steel harvest wagons.

MUSCLE-SAVING machinery on the farm saves time, cuts costs and solves the problem of scarce and costly labor which is so prevalent on the farm during the harvest season.

The Sandwich-New Idea Portable Elevator is the modern machine for saving time, money and muscle in the unloading of corn and small grain from wagons to bins or cribs. It eliminates that constant bending, pushing, lifting and heaving which constitutes such exhausting and laborious drudgery for even the strongest men.

Strength, durability, smooth running and lift draft have been built right into the SANDWICH-NEW IDEA Portable Elevator. One of these elevators on your farm will enable you to store your grain crops quicker, better, with less work and at a lower cost than can be done in any other way.
