No sooner does the weather cool off than our attention is called to the approach of frosty elements and the need of putting in the winter's coal supply. Ice and coal seasons overlap, there being no happy gap between.

The best looking corn between Wayne and Lake Okoboji is that in Dakota county. More moisture has fallen there, and the soil has exceptional heat-resisting qualities. Maturing crops in Iowa look no better than the least favored fields around Wayne.

A review of advertisements in today's Herald will give you strong reasons why you should come to Wayne to do your trading and buy your fall and winter supplies. Bargains set forth in these pages will bring down the cost of living. Note them carefully and turn them to advantage.

A Council Bluffs woman explained to the court that she marked like a dog at her neighbors to keep from sweating at them. She preferred to be arrested for barking than for swearing, and her wish was granted. Doubtless confused by absence of a law against barking, the judge took the matter under advisement.

Plans for the Wayne county fair are going forward satisfactorily, and according to present indications there will be plenty of home-grown agricultural products to exhibit. The annual fair is a happy and encouraging experience for everybody, and the coming one with more elaborate arrangements, promises to be better than ever.

A movement is on foot to get rid of or greatly modify the national bankruptcy law. Under that convenient and much-abused statute one may dissolve a mountain of obligations without subsequent burden of responsibility, and it seems unfair to those who have extended credit and who lose through over-confidence. In England and Canada a bankrupt is not discharged from liability until all debts have been paid.

R. G. Rohrke, Hoskins banker, recalls the lean years from 1894 to and including part of 1897 when corn sold as low as eight cents per bushel. He remembers that renters disposed of their corn crops early in 1897 for eight cents in order to pay debts and the upgrade was terrifically hard. Later in that year a turn for the better set in, and the world began getting well, and since then conditions have never been so bad. Contrasted with that black period, conditions are now wonderfully prosperous.

Referring to a bride who was married without stockings on, the Omaha World-Herald inquires: "If stockings weren't intended to be worn, why did the Lord give us legs?" Thus, the assumption is that supplying such things as legs, arms and necks, the Lord had chiefly in mind the creation of a market for hosiery, wrist watches and strings of beads. When our remote antecedents fed on roots and wild fruits, and slept in clumps of brush, or snuggled up against a fallen log to snooze, with no time or effort required to take off or put on clothes, did the Lord have in mind future habiliments and ornaments? Was man created to use up a lot of raw material?

The primaries are over, and nominees who go down to defeat in November, will wish they had been defeated in August. There were too many Johnsons and others of similar names on the state ticket to make voting intelligently accomplished. Notwithstanding all possible information, candidates for state offices with limited acquaintance, were largely objects of guess work on the part of voters. Senator Norris was an easy winner over Stebbins, and he will be pitted against former Senator G. M. Hitchcock in November. Both favored Al Smith last year and both from on the policies of the present administration, one as a republican and the other as a democrat. As it now operates, the primary system is confusing, to say the least. Perhaps the next legislature will be inspired to improve it.

THE DROUGHT.

Relief from scorching heat and prolonged drought has come and the change will help suffering fields and revive pastures. According to reports, the unprecedentedly dry spell was almost nationwide. With relief will come a careful survey of the damage done and the results to be expected.

Reports of devastation by drought have been made as strong as words could make them, and while they may be true with reference to other states, they are an exaggeration of conditions in Nebraska. In Kentucky the governor reports a most unfortunate plight. He says all farm crops are almost complete failures. Sheep and cattle, the latter including dairy herds, have been sacrificed on glutted markets on account of scarcity of feed. Streams have dried up and water has become scarce.

According to reports, the drought covered North Dakota and spread over the tier of states south to the Gulf. It extended as far east as Pennsylvania. Nebraska is included, and while considerable damage is certain here, large areas are at or near normal.

Some parts of Wayne county will have short yields of corn. Others will turn out as much as during any average year. Cedar county has suffered a near failure. South and southeast of here extending through and beyond Wayne county, corn will score an average yield. Crop damages are usually reported worse than the facts warrant.

While short crops are deplored, there is compensation in the strengthening of prices. H. A. Wallace of Wallace Farmer, Des Moines, predicts that "we shall see that the drought was the first thing which happened to stop the depression of 1930 and start the prices the other way."

Business.

Sloux City Journal: Whatever the actual business situation may be with reference to industry, to merchandising, to employment and to money in circulation the fact remains that at this time there is a strong undercurrent of optimism as to the future. Leaders continue to insist that recovery is certain and that it is not far distant. They declare that the bottom has been reached, and that the upturn is about to begin.

One of the most striking examples of this optimism is seen in the automobile industry. Car sales have been light for the last three months or longer, and as a result production has been greatly reduced. But now, as though having looked into some kind of economic crystal ball to see there a great promise as to the future, manufacturers of motor cars are going ahead with plans that to the average man may appear astounding.

The seasonal layoff in Detroit has ended with 116,500 employees going back to work. One hundred thousand of these workers are Ford men. They are back in the shops on a four-day week basis. So it is not full time employment, but it still is impressive when the size of the Ford army is considered. Other manufacturers who have called their men back to work are the Oakland Motor Car company with 5,300 restored to the pay roll; Timken-Detroit Axle company, with 2,000, Graham-Paige Motor corporation with 1,150, and Packard Motor Car company with 8,500.

In almost every instance the employees went back to work on lighter schedules than when the layoff began, but manufacturers declared they expected production gradually to climb. The General

CRYSTAL LAKE.

Editor Mell A. Schmiel of the South Sloux City Eagle issues protest against reference to Crystal lake as being located "near Sloux City." That editor wants it clearly understood that the lake is near South Sloux City in Nebraska as the following from the Eagle leads one to infer:

"There are still a few of The Eagle's nearby exchanges who continue to refer to Crystal lake as 'near Sloux City.' Come out of it, brother editors! Visit Crystal lake and you will find it is in Dakota county, adjacent to South Sloux City, in the state of Nebraska, and is not in Iowa, and five miles distant from Sloux City. Be loyal to your own home state, and if it is worthy of any free advertising give it. This item is especially dedicated to the Wayne Herald, which is among northeast Nebraska papers that eternally persists in referring to Crystal lake as 'near Sloux City.' The Herald is too good a newspaper to continue this practice, so there now, Bro. Huse, take that slap on the wrist."

Dakota City which is also near the lake, but which is now little more than an honored memory, is too feeble to arrest attention and insist on its rights. Doubtless the reason the lake is connected with Sloux City is because that is the big town of the neighborhood, and the fact that South Sloux City is closely affiliated with Sloux City in business and social relationships prompts the assumption that either would be glad to share with the other whatever glory may be extracted from proximity to the lake. If we were sojourning in San Francisco or New York City, and if some one who happened to know of the existence of Crystal lake, asked us where it was located, probably we would run the risk of making Omaha mad by saying it was near that town.

The Right to Sustenance.

Sloux City Journal: Everybody surely would agree that the individual has an inalienable right to sustenance. Also that if there is not sufficient sustenance in a given area for all to have enough to satisfy needs and desires, then it should be shared. That is to say every person ought to be given the right to procure sustenance by labor or purchase according to accepted customs.

The right to live is what it all amounts to in the beginning and the end. Denial of that right through cruelty or neglect or the rearing of an economic system that usurps it is bound to be in violation of moral law. So when it comes to a question of who shall work and who must remain idle when there is not a sufficient number of tasks for all, there is just one thing to be considered. And that is that workers must be put on a share basis. The individual must be given the right to the necessities of life and their procurement.

In a letter to the Chicago Tribune William Hammerstroem, who joined the bricklayers' union in 1892, may have predicted an inevitable development in the industrial field. He wrote as follows:

"I do sincerely hope that it will dawn upon all labor organizations that the most important issue is to have and keep labor in demand. High wages will regulate accordingly. Let's have six hours a day, five days a week and no overtime. That will establish a new foundation for banks, property owners and all other industries.

with its own welfare and the protection of its own industries. Each did, perhaps, watch things in this country, but the upward revision in these countries would have been made had the Hawley-Smoot tariff gone down in defeat.

The irritation felt in other countries over our tariff revision is also exaggerated. Only the other day French automobile makers, who have been most voluble in their protests and threats, failed to agree on prohibitive measures which would practically ban American automobiles from that country.

Nor is the depression in this country traceable to the new tariff. That bill did not go into effect until many months after the depression had become general in this country. And the depression is almost universal. Other nations are suffering. Surely, that is not because of the tariff in this country?

There is a serious aspect to the tariff to be sure. But the senator from Virginia, overlooked or ignored it. And that is the universality of its adoption. Practically every nation in the world has tariff laws revising rates upward from time to time. The famous free trading nations are changing their policy. England, the old home of free trade, has found that while it is impossible to raise enough grain at home for bread, that local farmers must be given protection if they are to survive.

The United States capitalized on the tariff early. Now that other nations are using it, its effectiveness has gone. We are burdened with surpluses which we must sell abroad. Yet we can no longer sell in an unprotected market. Our sole advantage is that the United States is an almost self-supporting unit. Most other nations are not and must make concessions for the things they need. But the advantage is not a great one. Our customers are able, pretty generally, to neutralize any tariff advantage by a tariff of their own.

That is why the future of the tariff is not so bright.

Omaha World-Herald: It is obvious from Henry Ford's latest comment on the subject that, when he speaks of history, he is not referring to that branch of knowledge which records and explains past events as steps in human progress in its broadest sense. He refers to a very limited application of it which passed as history, the form in which it is taught in the public schools.

Keeping that in mind it is not at all difficult to go along with Henry. "They just use it on war and then don't get one word right," he says. That we take it is just Mr. Ford's way of saying that war is overemphasized and its facts often misstated in the textbooks. And indeed it seems to be so. One cannot but be struck by the preponderance of space given to war in text books of American history and by the obvious purpose of the authors to give ourselves all the best of it. The purpose of American history in short, as it is taught to schoolboys and girls, is not to acquaint them with impartial knowledge but to make American patriots.

much more than the establishment of institutions for art and science." Labor, of course, is a commodity. It is amenable to the law of supply and demand as are other commodities. We have learned in recent years what it meant to have unsold surpluses in farm products. The surpluses affect the prices of goods for which there is a demand. Ordinarily that effect would be produced with reference to a labor surplus. If extensive unemployment became permanent here, for example, the men and women would offer their services at a lower wage. This would correspond to lower prices on market commodities when there is a heavy unsold surplus.

What is needed and what would be much closer to an ideal condition would be a comfortable balance between supply and demand. This applies to labor as well as to commodities. There ought to be a labor demand sufficient to maintain wages at a reasonably high level; there should not be a shortage because of changed working conditions that would force pay schedules up beyond reason. Balance, rather than advantage, is what both capital and labor ought to have.

But going back to Mr. Hammerstroem's suggestion, one may agree that it would be no more than simple human justice to give every individual the right to make a living. The individual also ought to have the right to a livelihood that would support him and his dependents without any loss of pride or self respect. No doubt, but work is what satisfies honest labor.

Whatever the situation may be in the future, society everywhere must recognize that right of the individual. Every human being has the right to such opportunities as are within his capabilities.

History.

Omaha World-Herald: It is obvious from Henry Ford's latest comment on the subject that, when he speaks of history, he is not referring to that branch of knowledge which records and explains past events as steps in human progress in its broadest sense. He refers to a very limited application of it which passed as history, the form in which it is taught in the public schools.

Keeping that in mind it is not at all difficult to go along with Henry. "They just use it on war and then don't get one word right," he says. That we take it is just Mr. Ford's way of saying that war is overemphasized and its facts often misstated in the textbooks. And indeed it seems to be so. One cannot but be struck by the preponderance of space given to war in text books of American history and by the obvious purpose of the authors to give ourselves all the best of it. The purpose of American history in short, as it is taught to schoolboys and girls, is not to acquaint them with impartial knowledge but to make American patriots.

The civil war was an important event in American history, but it should not have blinded the eyes of the textbook writers to the equally important events of the period of reconstruction which followed. And yet in contrast to the detail with which civil war details are chronicled we have only the sketchiest description of the period succeeding it, its disgraceful politics, its expansion of railroad building, its vast westward migrations, its subjugation of the great Indian nations, the acceleration of the change from a hand made to a machine made culture.

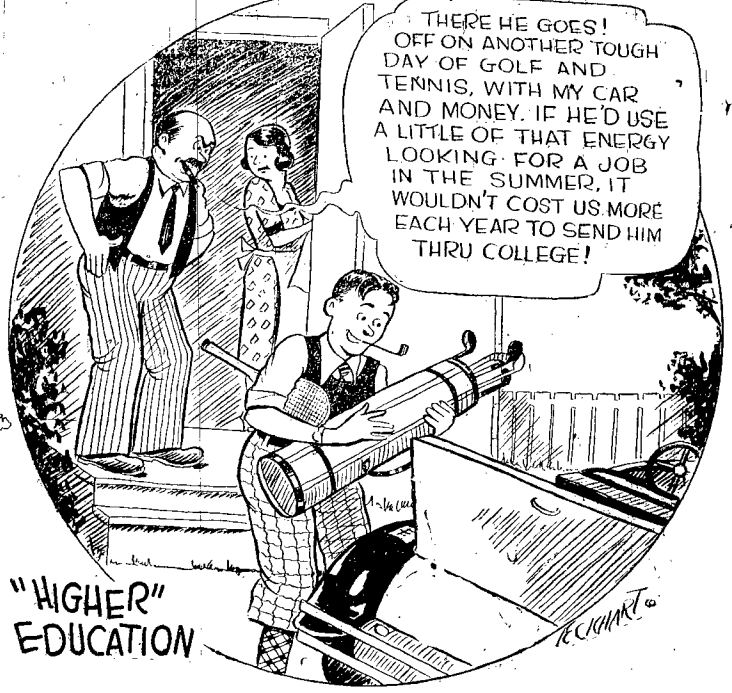

If the school historian of the future follows the model of the past we shall expect him to devote acres of white paper to the great war, where he gives square inches to the invention and development of the automobile. And yet we rather suspect Henry Ford and his brother motor makers have had a profound effect on American life than Pershing and the whole general staff. Moreover we feel in a vague way that bobbed hair, the ups and downs of skirts, the invasion of trade and industry by women, the economic effect of the growth of the army of pin money workers, the movies and the amusement craze, these and hundreds of other phenomena that make up the woof of our ever changing social fabric, deserve a place which they never will have in history.

De Luxe.

Omaha World-Herald: Progress has its drawbacks in spite of the convenience, comfort and pleasure it has brought. The old tallow candle couldn't compare with the electric light as an illuminant, but there were no fuses to blow and no short circuits to plunge a home or a city into sudden darkness in the tallow candle days.

There was nothing de luxe about travel in the stagecoach days unless having a seat inside in stormy weather or one outside in fair weather answered that description. The old coach passenger might arrive at his destination pretty much unknocked and disheveled, but he didn't have to worry over the likelihood of showing up trouserless as now appears to be one of the interesting possibilities of the latest in railroad travel.

It is pretty fine to be able to come to the end of a long, hot journey with freshly pressed, sharply creased trousers, but not so good when those trousers are on another train as they were in the case of a group of St. Louis men arriving in New York recently. That's de luxe gone haywire.

Overproduction.

Lincoln Journal: Much is being written and said these days about over production, surpluses and under consumption. The existence of a surplus in any line of agricultural or factory products does not necessarily mean that food stuffs or goods produced are not needed and could not be used or consumed. More has been produced than the market will absorb. In the usual sense in which the term is used over production means a surplus of anything the market will not absorb at a reasonable price. A reasonable price naturally includes a fair profit for the producer.

An exchange finds that there are near seven million families in the United States without a car, therefore as these families have not been supplied with a car, there has been no overproduction of cars. Possibly not, because the manufacturers of cars watch the market carefully and produce very little more, if any more, than the demand calls for. Manufacturers have long practiced restricted production. There are many families in the United States who take no daily newspaper. In every territory there are facilities for supplying these families with daily papers, but the papers are not printed because they are not bought. Only a sufficient number to supply the demand is offered on the market.

It is further claimed that there are five million families in the United States illly supplied with food, or clothing, or both. The food producers are complaining of a surplus, more produce than the market will absorb at a reasonable price. Clothing manufacturers could instantly enlarge their output to supply these families if the buying power were there. Thousands of workmen would gladly respond to the call for labor to supply the demand, if the buying power existed.

Over or under production are measured by the needs of thousands who may be unable to buy what could easily be produced. What is most needed is a means of increasing the buying power of many thousands who are poorly supplied, if supplied at all, with life's necessities.

Aid Of Red Cross Reaches Big Total

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 6—Red Cross reports received here from St. Louis headquarters today show that $66,336 was spent for tornado sufferers this spring in Nebraska. The reports stated, moreover, that an insurance company paid 750 thousand of the million dollar loss in the Hastings tornado district.

Emergency relief was given 86 persons at Tekamah. Rehabilitation aid was extended 76 families. "Relief in Adams county," the report continued, "where the city of Hastings was severely damaged involving emergency aid for 96 persons, in the form of food, maintenance, medical aid and nursing care, transportation, household goods, clothing and tools.

"When each family situation was investigated, it was found that an extraordinary amount of insurance was carried, reflecting the thrift and fore-sightedness of this section. Even families of meager income carried it.

"Out of an estimated property damage of one million dollars, insurance adjustments made are estimated at 750 thousand dollars. As a result of this, only 81 families required rehabilitation aid."

MENTIONS HERALD.

O BYRON COPPER of Fremont, author of an article appearing in the current number of the National Printer-Journalist, published in Milwaukee, and discussing the needs of modern newspaper-building, the importance of balance between art and utility, makes generous reference to the Wayne Herald as follows:

"One of the best actual examples of a newspaper built under such a combination plan, that I have seen in my recent travels throughout the middle-western states—a newspaper in which the golden quality of beauty and usefulness is achieved—is the Herald at Wayne, Nebraska. E. W. Huse, the publisher of this fine newspaper, is plainly a man who possesses wholesome regard for appearances and at the same time is practical enough to appreciate that, after all, it is the counting room to which one must look for the wherewithal to provide proper equipment for the production of the best in typography and presswork, as well as to pay the wages of skilled and competent workmen."

"This beautiful newspaper of Wayne, Nebraska, has not only won several state and national prizes for excellence of makeup and typography and editorial superiority, but it likewise emanates from one of the most completely equipped modern printing plants to be found anywhere in a city of Wayne's class. The plant is housed in a home of its own, built and planned expressly for the purpose. And the weekly editions consist regularly of sixteen or more pages, in order to accommodate the vast array of reading matter and liberal spaces of displayed advertisements, all features of practical utility, but all embellished with all the art possible to typography."

Explosions Damage South Sioux Plant

South Sioux City, August 7: Two explosions Wednesday in the cleaning plant of the South Sioux City Cleaning and Toggery shop resulted in a total damage of about $5,000, George Sheets, fire chief, said. The blasts were followed by fire.

Four firemen narrowly escaped being injured during one of the explosions and the fire. The explosions occurred about 15 minutes apart. The cause of the explosions had not been determined, the fire chief said.

Several hundred dollars worth of clothing was in the cleaning plant when the explosions occurred. Three drums of high test gasoline, containing 50 gallons each, were destroyed by fire.

The firemen that narrowly escaped injury were battling the blaze when the second explosion took place. One of the firemen was thrown about four feet by the blast.

The building in which the blasts occurred was about 40 feet long and about 25 feet wide. It was destroyed. For several minutes firemen thought that the blaze would spread to the adjoining building, but the timely arrival of the South Sioux City fire department prevented greater damage.

Firemen fought the blaze for more than an hour before they brought it under control.

French Couples Wed, Then Go Up Tree To Celebrate a la Robinson Crusoe

WHEN Daniel Defoe had Robinson Crusoe build his wilderness home in a tree, he little dreamed that he was inspiring merry wedding parties for countless brides of France. Yet no proper wedding party among the bourgeois or working classes of Paris is complete without a celebration around "Robinson's Genuine Tree."

Although an old custom, the Robinson wedding fetes are more popular this year than ever, and the festivities are attracting American visitors as never before.

Spectacle Amuses Americans

The Vrai Arbre de Robinson is an old inn in the Valley of the Chevreuse, about five miles from the gates of Paris, and its most distinctive feature is the fact that its more exclusive tables are among the branches of ancient oaks. Here Americans live to take lunch or dinner, surrounded by the romance and fun of wedding parties. Whether Crusoe's original domicile was in a French tree in that neighborhood is not important; the parties are very French.

Established in 1848, Robinson's has entertained many thousands of wedding parties. In the old days it was in a dense wood, but the suburbs of the capital have by now overgrown it. Originally it was popular with fashionable wedding parties, sedately driving out in their best carriages, but now only the working classes so there, using motor buses, highly decorated with flowers, or riding on donkeys with an accordion player in the vanguard.

These wedding parties usually take place at noon and are followed by lunch in town, which consists of a turkey. Then comes the ride to Robinson's, where dancing and frolicking continue for several hours. Such a wedding is a family affair and all

The bride and groom, shown above at the extreme right, are riding with their wedding guests astride donkeys to a jolly party at "Robinson's Genuine Tree," while an accordion player leads the procession. The newlyweds, right, are shown in the dining room but in the trees.

The relatives take part, as well as friends. The bride wears her white wedding dress, with orange blossoms in her hair and all the men wear Tuxedos for the wedding and the fetes.

Butchers Wed on Monday

On one day this summer 45 wedding parties visited Robinson's and the patron estimates that he entertains between 3,000 and 4,000 a year. No weddings are held on Sunday and Friday is the worst day at Robinson's because of the superstitious belief being that the bride and groom are very lucky. Saturdays and Monday are the best days. Saturdays being Sunday is not a working day, and

Cattle Being Fed Show Good Increase

Lincoln Journal, August 7: There are 1 percent less cattle on feed in the corn belt states than last year, according to state and federal division of agricultural statistics. Nebraska and Iowa are the only states showing a substantial increase in the number of cattle on feed.

Corn belt states east of the Mississippi river have 8 percent less than a year ago, while the states west of the Mississippi have 2 percent more. Reports of cattle feeders as to weights of cattle on feed weighing over 1,100 pounds show a rather marked decrease from last year, with a corresponding increase in the cattle weighing from 900 to 1,100 pounds.

Intentions of cattle feeders to feed cattle during the last five months of the year indicate a sharp decrease of feeder cattle into the corn belt states. The plans reflect the poor condition of pastures and unfavorable prospects for corn as well as unfavorable returns from fattened cattle during the recent months.

The improvement in any of these conditions would undoubtedly tend to strengthen the demand for

Turtle In Lake Eats Young Ducks

Wisner, Neb., Aug. 7.—On the Butterfield farm, four miles west of Wisner, there is a small lake near the windmill which Mr. Butterfield has used in raising call ducks for a number of years. But what puzzled the Butterfields was that as soon as the ducks were large enough to make use of the little lake, many of them, one at a time, would disappear. This led to their watching. They found that when a duck was swimming in the pond, suddenly it would go under and not reappear. This would be repeated any number of times. Upon investigation, they discovered a big mud turtle that had grown fat on the plump young ducks. However, Mr. Turtle had to pay with his life for his ravenous appetite.

Newest Styles Eliminate Task Of Laundering Lingerie Effects

BY HARRIET
MANY of the season's smartest dresses are made quite without benefit of lingerie touches. After all, white effects do have to come off for washing, often there even a delicate pastel shaded garter. And the fact that most of the lingerie touches do have to come off for laundering makes them almost a luxury from the point of view of the business girl and busy woman pressed for time.

There is none of the softness lost in shedding lingerie touches in the new styles. All of the dresses merely use their own material to fashion collars, cuffs, ruffles, bows and decorative waist-nests of all kinds. The feminine flattering effect is there. The trouble of detaching for laundering is gone. What more can women ask?

One of the new neck treatments uses a shirt collar for the back of the neck, and then when it gets to the front, it notches itself under jauntily and appears as a circular collar. A ruffled jabot of a pointed front bib-collared.

A little egg-colored wash silk uses this tricky collar to give itself smartness as well as utility. It is a rich, heavy wash silk, like a man's silk shirting, and so it falls nicely, with considerable dignity.

The skirt joins the waist at a normal line, has a stiff inside belt to hold it in place and a stitched, tailored outside belt with a novel buckle. It buttons clear down the front, with big egg-shell colored buttons below the waistline and much smaller ones above.

FOR afternoon, floral chiffons are using the same self-trim idea. A simple but absolutely charming little blue and white striped garter, typical shirt collar, the kind sports blouse might take, has a rather low V where the bow ties. It's a novel idea for an afternoon dress.

The long sleeves have a little scarf swinging from each wrist.

Smart as well as practical is the egg-colored wash silk at the left. It has a novel turned down collar and double jabot effect. Excellent for afternoon wear is the floral chiffon, right, trimmed with the frock's material. Notice the effectiveness of the scarf swinging from each wrist.

Quite as well as practical is the wispie make for herself. It has a natural chiffon right swing. This is an admirable pattern for sheer voile that hand-sewing is quite rare to frocks or chignons that one might catch.

Sun'Hats May Be Popular in Autumn

SMART FOR SUMMER WEAR, WHITE PANAMAS ARE LIKELY TO BE THE VOGUE FOR FALL FROCKS, HARRIET BELIEVES—BANDS ARE COLORED

BY HARRIET

AS an antidote to the end-of-the-summer tag, why not finish the season with chic?

It is so easy to do. Prices are reduced by this time so that you can pick up bargains. Since clothes have a direct bearing on your psychology, you can set yourself up in spirits by gliding a costume or two to your wardrobe.

Perhaps a new hat is one of the best first buys. Not a hat that you look upon as a possible winter filler-in, but one that was made with a burning sun in mind.

You will make no mistake in choosing a white hat, for it is likely to be the most popular song with autumn frocks. Further it is quite the smartest hat right now. There are all kinds of white hats to be chosen. The sun hat, perhaps in modified form, is the ideal choice for August.

Patou makes a number of charming featherweight models in paper panama. They have enough brim to shade your eyes and are banded with different colors to match your pastel shaded frocks.

One of these uses the favorite tri-color scheme for its banding. The hat itself being white, red and blue grosgrain ribbon is used. The blue banding faces through the crown and the red ribbon faces through the crown, at one side.

Regulation panama hats are just as popular as paper panamas and scarcely heavier on the head. A trick with these is to have any number of different bandings, all made up with their tailored bows, which snap in place to make it seem you have several hats.

To finish the season properly, you should have at least one perfect afternoon ensemble. A perfect one is somewhat preferable to a good one, because you do not get the same ready and give a better shade, you are liable to wear a little more frequently.

A recent fashion book tends from above the elbow to the cuff. This beige ensemble has an additional value. You can wear it with assurance and comfort during the remainder of the summer and then, if you wish, have it dyed one of the new raspberry or wine shades for practical winter wear. Or, you can keep it beige and wear it all winter, for there is no color more distinguished than beige. The perfect outfit is all beige with perhaps a gold chain and earrings or pearls.

A Jean Patou model hat of white paper panama straw, left, is trimmed with red and navy grosgrain ribbon. Suitable for the luncheon engagement is the beige georgette afternoon ensemble, right. This frock might well be worn during the winter.

Madame Chantal ensemble of beige georgette which uses hand-run tucks in the most intricate of decorative designs as its only trim. The frock has a normal waistline, with a sash; and the bodice blouses slightly over it. The sleeves are short.

Over this slips a flaring three-quarters coat, also heavily tucked in its front portions and sleeves, giving a rich effect. The sleeves are especially chic, having a big puff let in on the outside that ex-

What the "Ole Swimming Hole" Means to City Kids

They may not have the joys of their country cousins in the "old swimming hole," but these city children of New York, achieve the same purpose on hot days by splashing in the lake in Central Park and ducking under cooling sprays of the shower, erected for them by the city. ONE of the secrets of being well-dressed is to have a spirit of harmony running through your wardrobe.

If you happen to hold a position of importance, your dignity should be reflected in your clothes. If you are a professional woman, dignity too should persist in your evening things as well as in what you wear of a day.

One of the reasons Helen Wills Moody has such a reputation for good-dressing is because of this very spirit of continuity in her wardrobe.

Jean Patou once complimented her on being an outstanding example of consistency, saying she looked thoroughly admirable and charming both on and off the court.

The kind of clothes Mrs. Moody wears are quite the type the average American young woman would do well to copy. They are the type one can be casual but exceedingly smart in.

RETURNING to the country recently, the wardrobe of this famous athlete contained several costumes seemingly created to suit the demands of the college girl or the girl who works.

Such a one, for instance, is a walking dress, or street frock of navy blue woolflower, with white pique trimming. There is fine banding on the skirt, with plenty of fullness in the center and tucks to give graceful sway for one who likes freedom of motion. The little bodice is bolero cut, with a strapped effect of bands in front which shows the white vest through. The cuffs of pique button on.

For formal wear, the longer coat suit is now tucked delightfully easy to wear. One in a modernistic design of different shades of the new blue-greens, on a beige background, made with a skirt that has pleats front and back and a two-thirds coat that has its waistline banded right up into the bellline. The bodice, made with a square neck, is Russian in its closing. This is a very new style frock, the kind you could make this summer for autumn wear from a few yards of inexpensive silk or wool crepe. There are no flange touches to launder daily, and no extra trim to weary you. Though it has classic simplicity, it is original in its cut.

Here are three frocks of Helen Wills Moody having a "spirit of continuity." A walking dress or street frock of navy woolflower is shown at the left with blue pique trimming. In the center is an afternoon ensemble in marocain for formal wear. Note its modernistic pattern. For a simple afternoon frock the model on the right, cut on tailored lines in plain beige marocain, is smart for autumn wear.

Added for its prestige, the south is now tucked delightfully easy to wear. One of the new beauty queens of the universe at the International Beauty Pageant at Galveston, Tex. Marianne Mitche, below, as "Miss Rumania," was awarded second prize.

Sustains Burns As Acid Ignites

Lyle Mabbutt Has Face, Neck, Ear and Hands Injured in Cleaning Bottle.

When carbon disulphide acid with which he was cleaning an oil bottle caught fire from a gas jet flame about five feet away, Lyle Mabbutt, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Mabbutt of Wayne, suffered severe burns on his face, neck, one ear and hands at the university laboratory in Lincoln July 31. The injured parts are healing nicely and it is thought no scars will be left. He was able to go from the university hospital last Thursday to his home in Lincoln. Mr. Mabbutt, who is studying surveying at the state university, was testing oils in the laboratory when the accident happened. As soon as the acid exploded the burning liquid was thrown onto him. His head and hands were aflame. He threw the bottle and others in the laboratory helped extinguish the blaze.

Just a few days before Mr. Mabbutt was hurt his wife had gone from Lincoln to Winner, S. D., to see a brother, Joe Prescote, who had been seriously injured in a binder accident. The lad was standing by the binder when his team became frightened and ran away, knocking the boy down and pulling the binder over him. Joe's chest was crushed, his spine injured and bones in one foot broken. He is improving at his home.

Mrs. Mabbutt returned to Lincoln from Winner as soon as she heard of her husband's accident.

Agriculture Book To Be Used In State

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 6. Nebraska's 1929 yearbook on agriculture is to become a textbook in the schools of the state. A. F. Anderson, state and federal crop statistician, announced today as the manual came from the presses.

Fifteen thousand copies will be available. One copy will be placed in every school of the state. The yearbook has been dedicated, Anderson announced, to the teachers of Nebraska who during the ensuing school year will give added time to the teaching of basic agriculture and its kindred subjects. Every other year, he explained, is designated for that purpose.

NEBRASKA LEADS IN TREATING ITS HIGHWAYS TO OIL

OLLING roads to keep down the dust is rather new on gravelled highways and the road builders of the nation are watching to see how Nebraska comes out with its present experiments in treating roads with oil.

In the vicinity of Lincoln several short stretches of road have been oiled and are in use. When a traveler drives his car on one of these he is cheered to find that dust from his wheels or the wheels of any passing car is entirely absent. The pleasure of driving is enhanced immensely.

The roads so treated are under the close surveillance of the engineers of the state department of public works who will later reach conclusions on the permanence of the treatment, the disadvantages of oiled surfaces, if any, and whether the benefits justify the cost.

In some sections of the state the department is trying some seed miles of oil-sand road. These experiments are in sections of sandy roads. Two inches of sand is scraped off the surface and the soil beneath the surface is worked and thoroughly worked. In some instances fine dust is sprinkled over to fill in the space between the grains of sand to get a more compact surface. Oil is then sprinkled and the two-inch layer replaced. Then the two inch layer is treated in the same manner. The result is a four inch oil treated surface. This road is practically impervious to moisture and many think the ideal surface for the sand road section has been discovered.

The cost of constructing an oil-sand road varies in localities but will average about $5,000 per mile. What the maintenance cost will be is yet to be found.

Prospects For Corn Are Fair In States

Omaha.—Iowa and Nebraska will not produce bumper crops of corn as they did last year, but in spite of drought and extreme heat, the yield will be heavy, according to C. L. Harlan, statistician of the division of crop and live stock estimates, who was here Friday.

"I feel certain that while undoubtedly much damage has resulted to crops and pastures from the dry spell and continued dry temperatures, there has been nothing approaching a calamity to the corn belt," Harlan said.

"We will have plenty of good corn to feed this fall and winter. Iowa and Nebraska will be in the best condition of any midwestern states.

"I am on my way west from a trip to the Atlantic coast in which I had an excellent opportunity to observe the changes in crop conditions brought about by the unfavorable weather of the past. There is no use disguising the fact that east of the Mississippi river there has been considerable damage. In Pennsylvania, parts of New York and Ohio, grain and vegetable crops as well as pastures are almost a total loss.

"I found conditions pretty bad in Indiana and southern Illinois. Corn cannot make much of a crop in these states, but an improvement is noted as soon as the Mississippi is crossed.

"From reports I have received from Nebraska, corn is not badly hurt. I believe I will find conditions much the same in Nebraska as I found them in Iowa and I am fully convinced that in these two states there will be no sacrifice of live stock because of feed shortage.

"Furthermore, I cannot see where there will be any serious curtailment in these states in demand for stocker and feeder cattle and sheep this fall. A little more rain will change sentiment quickly. Corn is strictly a hot weather plant."

Find Body Of Man In Missouri River

Stout City Journal, August 8: The hude body of an unidentified man was found lodged on a sandbar in the Missouri river five miles southwest of Sergeant Bluff on Thursday afternoon by three fishermen.

So badly was the body decomposed that early attempts at identification were futile. The condition of the body indicated that it had been in the river for at least a month.

Police late Thursday night said that the body found in the river was either that of Richard Higby or Dirk Wyman. Higby disappeared about five months ago when he was swimming about 300 feet west of the Combination bridge. Wyman disappeared near the Mondamin ranch near Dakota City about a month ago under the same circumstances.

Family Enjoys Northern Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Ole G. Nelson and Daughters Visit In Minne- sota and Canada.

(By Arlyn Nelson)
Mr. and Mrs. Ole G. Nelson and daughters, Arlyn, Doris and Beryl, returned Thursday from a trip through points in Minnesota and Canada.

While in the Twin Cities they visited the Minnesota capitol building and the museum at St. Paul. Among the many articles of historical interest in the museum was a chair which George Washington had used in his home. A large space in the museum was reserved for a natural size log cabin representing the homes of Minnesotans about the year 1865. The cabin was completely furnished with articles which had been in use during the same period in history.

The road from the Twin Cities to Duluth is paved. A heavy dark line about three inches wide marks the center of the pavement and at intervals along the road large signs warn the motorist to "Keep to the right of the black line."

Of special interest in Duluth is the zoo which contains sea lions, tigers, lions, bears, zebras, and hyenas, as well as the more common animals.

The Nelson family enjoyed a ride on an excursion steamer, the Montauk, a boat approximately 150 feet long and fifty feet wide. From Duluth the Montauk sailed up the St. Louis River to Fond du Lac, Wis. The excursion lasted four and one-half hours. During the trip on the river the rain fell so hard that it was impossible to see either shore. When the storm was nearly over the captain said that no one need be afraid. He added that they were experiencing a cloud burst.

The road from Duluth to Port Arthur, Ontario, commonly called International highway, is magnificent. For 100 miles this highway follows closely Lake Superior, the largest of the five great lakes. Huge rocks, pine and birch trees and numerous streams add to the beauty of this drive. The water of Lake Superior is surprisingly clear and pure; it is used for drinking purposes without any filtering.

The Canadians are very courteous to American visitors. Tourists in Fort William are directed to Chippewa park. This park is a pay camp (as are nearly all tourists' camps) and a visitor is allowed to pitch a tent on a tent platform of wood, and is encouraged to use the convenient cooking facilities. The park is situated in a Canadian game reserve.

Before crossing the boundary line into the United States every car must be completely examined. Federal United States men open suit cases, unwrap bundles, unpack boxes, and remove cushions from cars, looking for forbidden articles.

The largest iron mine in the world now in operation. From a cage a visitor gazes into the canyon-like mine which is about 300 feet deep. More than seventy per cent of the rocks and sediment removed from the mine is iron ore.

The Nelson family stopped at Pelican Rapids and at Fergus Falls, Minn., to visit cousins of Mr. Nelson. They also visited over night at the Gilbert Johnson home near Wakonda, S. D. Mrs. Johnson is a sister of Mr. Nelson.

Some time was spent fishing at Leech Lake near Walker, Minn., and at Swan Lake near Fergus Falls. The Nelson family caught pickerel, pike and bass.

Safety Week Is Named By Governor

Whereas, it has been determined by the accident survey of the Nebraska Press association in cooperation with the rehabilitation division of the state department of vocational education that during twentyeight days of July there occurred in Nebraska 1257 severe accident casualties of which 1150 persons were badly injured or permanently disabled and 107 persons were killed, and that during the first six months of 1930 a total of 4033 were injured in accidents, 244 permanently disabled, by accidents, and 466 killed, making a grand total of 4743 killed or injured by accidents in Nebraska in a 6-month period, and

Whereas, the suffering, loss of time and wanton destruction of property and lives attendant to this appalling accident situation constitutes a menace to the social and economic security of our people; it is recognized that an emergency calling for executive action does exist, and

It is hereby proclaimed, that the period from September 1 to September 7, inclusive be observed by the people of Nebraska as Safety Week. During this week, it shall be the duty of each citizen to help to determine and eliminate accident hazards from his home, work, travel and recreation and to cooperate with civil authorities, and others in the promotion of public safety. It is recommended, that all employers in industry, commerce and agriculture and all operators of amusement parks, fairs and carnivals, during this week will make careful inspection of their physical equipment and remove existing accident hazards.

All that companies operating busses and trucks in Nebraska will carefully check their schedules to be sure that no driver is forced to exceed highway or municipal speed limits in order to make scheduled time and that all motor vehicle owners will have their vehicles inspected and put in safe running order, and will familiarize themselves with state and local traffic laws, and that all state, county and municipal authorities, will enforce all traffic and public safety measures.

That all commercial, civic, service, religious, patriotic, fraternal, educational, labor and trades organizations, who hold a meeting during "Safety Week," will devote part of their program to the consideration of accident prevention.

That municipalities conduct mass meetings for the discussion of accident prevention and to create local safety committees or councils, for the promotion of safety education and law observance.

The safety committee recently appointed by me to attend the national street and highway safety conference called by President Hoover, will be available to furnish information, aid in planning safety meetings and securing speakers. This committee will be further assisted by the Nebraska State Safety Council. Arthur J. Weaver, Governor.

Indian Mission Is Still In Operation

In 1870 the Santee Indian mission at Santee in Knox county was established. It is still imparting instruction and culture to Indian boys and girls.

Rev. A. L. Riggs, father of F. B. Riggs, the present superintendent, sent out by the missionary societies of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches, opened the school to give religious instruction to the Indians. Later it was expanded into a normal training school and gives instruction in common school branches to the twelfth grade.

Indians come a great distance to receive training in the school. The scholars are not all Indians for there is a sprinkling of whites who reside in the vicinity of Santee. The Indian "youths" who attend the school range in age from 6 to 35.

Wood work, forge work and printing are practical subjects in the school. A correspondence course allows a good many Indians to attend school at a distance. The school prints an English and an Indian newspaper.

The institution has 350 acres of land and several substantial buildings. The students earn part of their way assisting with the farming operations. Board for a term at the school costs $100.

The mission is not under the control or patronage of the government like the Indian school at Genoa which is under the direction of the bureau of Indian affairs in the U. S. department of the interior. It has a loyal student body and has done a fine service in educating the Indians and teaching them the ways of their conquerors, the whites.

Funeral Is Held For Norfolk Boy

Funeral services were held on Tuesday, August 5, at the Norfolk Methodist church for Robert Farmer, son of Rev. and Mrs. Frank Farmer of Norfolk, who drowned while wading in a lake near Norfolk the previous Sunday. Rev. E. E. Bowen and Dr. C. G. Goman had charge of rites. Interment was made in Prospect Hill cemetery.

Robert Sophel Farmer was born June 2, 1920, at Butte, Neb. Besides his parents he leaves three sisters, Betty Jane, Maud May and Henrietta, and three brothers, Harry, Eldon and William.

Six friends of the small boy, Russel Uecker, Robert Herton, Max Snesidich, Howard Whitaker, Robin Baughn and Elmer Baughn, all of Stuart, were pallbearers.

Clara Bow Comes In Navy Picture

Believing that "what's sauce for the gander is sauce for the goose," Clara Bow turns the tables on the proverbial roving sailors in her latest hit picture, "True to the Navy." Sailors are said to have a sweetheart in every port; Clara is a sweetheart with a sailor in every port.

An excellent cast, headed by Fredric March, supports the "True to the Navy." It will show at the Gay theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, August 17, 18 and 19. Harry Green, the funny man in "Honey" and "Kibitzer" has an important part, and Sam Hardy, recently seen in "Daming Up," is in the cast.

Elderly Woman Visits At Lake

Mrs. J. R. Rogers, 95, Says People Should Not Criticize President Hoover.

The Spencer, Iowa, Reporter tells of the visit there of Mrs. J. R. Rogers of Wayne, on her ninetyfifth birthday. Mrs. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Mines, Mrs. R. E. Atwater and daughter made the trip from Wayne. The Spencer paper describes the visit as follows:

"You have a grandmother or have known her during your lifetime, though she may be dead now. But you probably do not know that you have ever had one—alive during your lifetime.

"Then it is easy to realize how rare it must be to have a great great grandmother. Yet that is the experience of a certain Spencer little girl, Janet Dunning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joy D. Dunning of this city. Little Janet's grandmother is Mrs. A. H. Avery of Spencer. Her great grandmother is Mrs. Clara Dunham of Westington Springs, S. D., and her great great grandmother is Mrs. J. R. Rogers of Wayne, Neb.

Nears 100 Mark.

"Mrs. Rogers was 95 years old Tuesday, July 22. Her home at present, is at Wayne, Nebraska, with a daughter, Mrs. J. G. Mines. Mrs. Rogers, in spite of her ripe old age, is in excellent health. She rode 175 miles from Wayne, Neb., to the Avery cottage on West Okoboji a week ago Sunday, and enjoyed the trip very much. The party arrived from Wayne about 8:30 in the evening and Mrs. Rogers remained up until nearly 11 o'clock, visiting with the "young folks" as she calls them, although all but Janet are adults.

"Mrs. Rogers insists on helping with the dishes each day and does other little household tasks. She reads extensively and says her eyes are in excellent condition. She wears spectacles only when reading. This beloved old woman who has lived four score and 15 years, nearly a century, takes a keen interest in politics and is well versed in its history down through the years. She is a keen admirer of Hoover but does not approve of George W. Norris, senator from Nebraska. Woodrow Wilson was one of the country's greatest presidents, she believes, but she deplores the common practice of certain individuals and newspapers criticising the presidents. She believes their duties are so tremendous that the ordinary man has no right to criticize.

Voted But Once.

"It is particularly remarkable that this aged woman, although she is as well versed in politics as she is—has cast but one vote. She has influenced hundreds of voters but has always refrained from using the suffrage privileges. The one vote she has cast was for Hoover during the last presidential election.

"Mrs. Rogers was born in New York state, July 22, 1835. She was

Consolation

A Beautiful Rite

The modern mortician is often called upon to take care of some of the most delicate of human situations—particularly at that most trying time, right after the visit of death. Then it is that experience, plus sympathy, understanding, tact and knowledge of human nature, can transform a sad burden into an intrinsically beautiful rite.

educated in the schools of that state and while still a young woman was married to Mr. Rogers. "The original farm of her family, was located in what is now part of the Bronx in New York City. The famous aqueduct which for many years supplied New York City with water, passes directly through the old farm place, now all built up and a part of the city.

In 1905 Mrs. Rogers journeyed back to the old home, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Clara Dunham. Together they enjoyed a picnic dinner on part of the land which was originally the farm. They came west to Clinton County, Iowa, where they settled before the civil war. Her husband later became a member of the 13th Iowa General Assembly.

"Mrs. Rogers does not accord her longevity to any particular mode of living, but admits she believes in moderation in everything. Her outlook on the future is very bright. The tendency toward long life is natural in this family. Mrs. Rogers' mother lived to be 96 years old and enjoyed fine health. While her mother lived, the family enjoyed a "five generations meeting" at the time when Mrs. Joy D. Dunning was an infant.

"Mrs. Rogers' daughter is likewise in good health and there is every indication that she may live to be equally as old as her mother, thus making it entirely possible that still another "five generations meeting" may be held in about 20 years.

Thieves Take Wires With High Voltage

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 7.—Thieves who have the audacity to strip transmission lines of copper wires carrying 30 thousand volts of electricity are giving State Sheriff Condit and the sheriffs of half dozen counties no end of trouble. Their operations, Condit related Thursday, have recently been centered around Dodge county where thefts of $1,000 to $1,200 worth of wire nightly have been reported.

Near Fremont, Hooper and Valley wires have been stripped repeatedly in the past two months Condit said the thieves had been in operation. Total losses will aggregate several thousands of dollars, he said.

Near Omaha, many thousands of dollars worth of wire in readiness for construction of a belt line around the city was taken.

In removing wires from transmission circuits in operation neither Condit nor other investigators have been able to determine how the heavy strands are cut without injury.

Investigation has indicated, however, that clippers secured to long handled poles may have been used.

Hay Sweeps Are Used.

O'Neill, Neb.—Transporting bundles of grain directly from windrows to threshing machines with a common hay sweep is a new "wrinkle" thought to have been first applied by farmers north of Emmett. Bundled grain is left to cure in windrows and swept to the sides of the separator, where it is pitched to the machine.

Home Tried Recipes

Spanish Rice.

(By Mrs. O. T. Conger)
Steam one cup of rice, not too mushy. (If rice is too soft it will be mushy by the time it has baked in casserole.)

Put layer of rice in buttered casserole, cover with thin layer of diced cheese and green pepper. Season each layer with salt and pepper. Alternate layers until casserole is full. Run cooked tomatoes through a sieve and pour over the filled casserole. Cover the dish with a layer of buttered cracker crumbs. Bake for thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

Butterscotch Pie.

(By Miss Frances Cherry)
1½ cups brown sugar
1½ cups water
3 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
Mix dry ingredients. Add beaten eggs to water and add gradually to the dry ingredients. Cook over direct flame until slightly thickened, then remove from flame and finish cooking in double boiler until thick. Remove from stove and add butter and vanilla. Pour into baked crust, cover with meringue and bake in oven at 300 degrees Fahrenheit until a golden brown.

Pie Crust.

1½ cups of flour
¾ teaspoon salt
Use ¼ or 1-3 cup of shortening as desired. The crust will be flakier if one-half of the shortening used is butter.
4 to 6 tablespoons cold water.
(½ teaspoon of baking powder may be used if desired. Miss Cherry does not use the baking powder.)
Sift the flour and salt together. Cut in the shortening until the mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Add water gradually. Mix lightly with fork. Shape the crust into a ball. Handle lightly but have ball smooth.
Divide the dough into two equal parts and roll to desired thickness. This makes two lower crusts or one double crust pie.

Macaroni and Chicken.

(By Mrs. Hazen Atkins, Wayne)
Cook one chicken and strip meat from bones. Cook until tender one package of macaroni. Make a sauce of the following:

2 cups chicken broth
2 cups milk
½ lb. butter
2 teaspoons flour
Juice from one can of tomatoes with one-eighth teaspoon soda.
Put the chicken and macaroni in casserole or roaster and cover over with the sauce. Over the top sprinkle a layer of bread crumbs, buttered.
Bake for 30 minutes.

Summer Salad.

(By Mrs. Clarence K. Corbit)
1 package of lemon jello
1 cup of boiling water
1 can of pineapple juice from can of shredded pineapple, heated
1 cup shredded pineapple
¼ lb. of grated cheese
10c worth of marshmallows cut fine
Mix as for any jello salad. Serve with mayonnaise and whipped cream dressing.

White Cake.

(Mrs. Wm. Hawkins, Wayne.)
1½ cups sugar
½ cup butter
1 cup water
2 cups Swansdown cake flour, measured after sifting
2 rounded teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon lemon extract
¼ teaspoon almond extract
5 egg whites
Cream butter and sugar well. Add the flour and water alternately. Add the baking powder and flavorings. Add the beaten whites last. Bake in oven at 375 degrees F.

(By Mrs. Hazen Atkins, Wayne)
In deep pie tin lined with any good rich crust, place on ends thickly quartered Jonathan apples. Sprinkle freely with sugar and cinnamon and bits of butter. Fill pan half full with sweet cream. Bake in moderate oven until apples are tender.
This is a one-crust pie.

Why NEW Polarine PREVENTS Lubricating TROUBLES

THE MODERN MOTOR OIL

The cause of most lubricating troubles is motor oil whose body varies widely at different temperatures.

New Polarine changes body least from zero winter temperatures to searing summer heat. New Polarine produces less than half as much carbon to contaminate crankcase oil. It never wears out, resists dilution and consumes slowly.

Made from selected crude oils, by an improved refining process that eliminates wax and tar—no oil at any price assures better motor lubrication than new Polarine. For correct grade consult the new Polarine Chart—25c a quart.

"Konjola Very Medicine My Case Required"

Lady Happy To Indorse New and Different Remedy That Ended All Her Health Troubles.

MRS. GEORGE C. RABER.

"Konjola is the very medicine my case required," said Mrs. George C. Raber, Capitol Hotel, Lincoln. "For seven years I had stomach trouble. I could not eat eggs at all, and lots of other things disagreed with me. After eating, I had awful cramps, and at times vomiting spells. I have taken only three bottles of Konjola, and now eat eggs or anything I like without misery. Konjola has certainly rid me of stomach trouble. Never before have I indorsed a medicine, but I gladly can recommend Konjola after the wonders it worked for me."

Although many people state that one bottle of Konjola brought relief, it is recommended that six or eight bottles be taken to obtain the best results. Konjola is sold in Wayne, Nebraska at Felber's Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.
