DEPRESSIONS. Colonel Leonard P. Ayers, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, and well known economist, was recently interviewed by a magazine writer in regard to periods of depression and prosperity.

Mr. Ayers says that when times are prosperous we are sowing seeds of depression, and when depression prevails we are building for prosperity.

People engaged in different industries—different branches of gainful activity—on farms, in factories, in trades, may modify periods of depression by being ready for them.

Mr. Ayers says we have learned to accept a depression every week, Sunday, when general suspension of production and business takes place.

Business. Sioux City Journal: Although the improvement has not been at all sensational, there is comfort to be found in the reports that business in August made a better showing than was made in July.

There were gains, too, in merchandising, taking the country as a whole, yet the improvement in retail trade has been spotted, as might be expected. Some areas have not been so hard hit by the depression as have others.

Of course it is admitted that August ought to make a better showing than made in July.

ROBBING BANKS. Bank robberies have become appallingly frequent.

They employ latest weapons to enforce their demands and latest means to escape. They are skilled and daring, and they use tricks that orderly people do not suspect.

Thus, it is important for officers to awaken to the importance of meeting improved methods of robbery with improved methods of prevention or capture.

showing than made in July. That would come naturally as a seasonal change. August is what may be called the liaison month between dull summer business and rejuvenated fall operations.

American world trade made distinct gains in August. There was a trade balance in our favor of $83,000,000 for the month.

Freight car loadings for the week ending September 6 showed a heavy decrease owing to the fact that Labor day was celebrated during that period.

Opposite Opinions. Lincoln Journal: On the same day two Nebraska editors, one the dean of the profession in Nebraska and the other a congressman.

When the United States secretary of agriculture makes the charge that the Russian government is selling wheat 'short' in the Chicago market the matter becomes at once of sufficient importance to require an investigation.

M. A. Brown is not fighting the republican administration. He is not talking for votes. He does not care to stir political discontent.

Edgar Howard, third district congressman, writing over his signature in the Columbus Telegram, sees in the, investigation being made an attempt to humbug the American people.

American deaths in motor accidents reached the total of 25 thousand in 1927, the figures being those of the National Safety Council. In 1928, there was an addition of 27 thousand killings.

Edgar Howard is a candidate for office. If he can make the voters believe the Hoover administration is in league with the moneyed interests and that these moneyed interests are placing a burden on the Nebraska producer, he as an opponent of the administration, will gain.

Birth Rates Decrease. (New York Times.) Although New York City had a marked decrease in the difference between the birth and death rate in the last 30 years, it still shows a greater normal gain than any of the leading cities of Europe, according to a statement issued by Health Commissioner Wynne. He said that 'startling' decreases in birth rates are shown throughout the civilized world.

The statement continued: 'Twenty years ago the difference between the birth and death rate in New York was 11 per one thousand; in 1915 it was over 12; in 1920 it was 10 1/2; in 1925 it was 8; and last year less than 7 per one thousand.'

Shocking Showing. (Syracuse Post-Standard.) We have completed two-thirds of the calendar year of 1930. The end of August is the height of the motoring season.

According to the definite figures for the three years just past and the best of estimates and indications for that part of the present year which has now elapsed, we have, since the beginning of 1927, made a motor car record of 100 thousand fatalities in this country.

Nebraska To Feed Drouth Hit Areas. Nebraska's efforts in drouth relief will consist for the most part in assistance to less fortunate sections by making available to them some of the surplus feed and grain products with which the Cornhusker state is blessed this year.

Nebraska farmers should realize that with their own good fortune in raising ample crops over most of the state they have a grave responsibility to farmers in other sections whose crops have been destroyed and profits wiped away by drouth.

As pointed out by H. J. McLaughlin, chairman of the Nebraska Drouth Relief Committee, those who sell feed or grain, or buy livestock should be satisfied with a price that insures them a fair margin of profit.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

NOW THAT HE HAS FOUND HIS OLD TIME RIP AND TEAR, YOUNG STRIBLING SHOULD HAVE IT ALL OVER SCHEMELING IN A TITLE SCRAP, MARTIN THINKS

BY PHILIP MARTIN

RESIDENTS of Macon, Ga., may never throw a celebration in honor of a native son as heavy-weight champion of the world—but they will if Max Schmeling dares to risk his title in the same arena with William L. (Young) Stribling. You a correspondent believes Young Stribling, the pride of Dixie fight fans, will gobble up Schmeling, world's championship and all, if somebody can scrape up enough money to induce the German to defend the crown he recently gained on a foul. Possibly I'm too enthusiastic about Strib, who has knocked out Otto Von Porat in one round and Phil Scott in two, within a period of three weeks. Still, those performances would indicate that the young Georgian at last has discarded his uninteresting, careful, stalling and holding tactics in favor of a ripping, tearing, slashing attack, a la Jack Dempsey. Young Stribling has reached the heights on previous occasions only to let himself put on one of his comic stunts in an important fight. Against Loughran in 1927 and against Sharkey at Miami in 1929 he probably could have won handsily but for his careful defensive methods. "Pa" Stribling, Willie's dad and manager, has come through on those occasions with a campaign against setups which a cocky little Georgia boy, Stribling, might have lost. After he had brooked his chance against Sharkey, Stribling practically was forgotten until he came along with the one-round knockout of Von Porat. Now with a quick and decisive victory over Scott, Willie once more is in a choice spot. STRIBLING is a master boxer and showman when he comes to it. Do I remember, however,

Young Stribling, likely challenger for the world's heavyweight title, taking a little counsel from "Pa" Stribling, his dad and manager. that against Sharkey he preferred to use his educated left hand only to jab and hold. That same left hand murderously hooked Von Porat and Scott out of the picture. "If he'd throw caution to the winds and tear in and fight, he'd be champion without a struggle," Jack Dempsey once remarked. "He has everything it takes to make a champion." Against a formidable foe, Stribling too often has gone into a shell and played safe with the result that the decisions have gone the other way. Because of this, some critics have said he lacked a fighting heart. Others are of the opinion that "Pa" and "Ma" Stribling have been more of a hindrance than an aid to his title fight. It would be wonderful, for a guy who likes to wander as much as Stribling, might take it into his head to go over after it.
