

Veteran Of War Dies On Friday

Funeral For Sommers Fox Sunday Afternoon At Parlors Here.

Served in Sixties

Deceased Was Friend of President Abraham Lincoln in Illinois.

Sommers Fox, one of Wayne's three Civil war veterans, passed away Friday evening, November 7, at 6:45 after an illness of six weeks with complications due to his advanced age of almost 90 years. Funeral services were conducted at the Beckenbauer chapel in Wayne Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Rev. W. W. Whitman, Methodist pastor, in charge. The Legion members attended in a group and officiated at military rites at Greenwood cemetery.

Sommers Fox was born in Jersey City, N. J., January 28, 1841, and was thus aged 89 years, 8 months and 7 days. He was a son of Aaron and Phebe Fox with whom he came to Springfield, Ill., when he was a small lad. Mr. Fox married Miss Caroline G. Nicholson at Springfield August 18, 1862. The couple had lived together for 68 years when the latter died, just after their marriage Mr. Fox joined the U. S. army and served in the Civil war in the 114th Illinois Infantry, Co. C. He remained in Camp Butler, near Springfield, for training until November of 1862 when his company went south and saw hard fighting until the end of the war. Mr. Fox was with the troops that captured Vicksburg, and suffered much for want of food in the engagement. While Mr. Fox was serving in the army, Mrs. Fox did housework in the home of a Presbyterian minister for three years.

After Mr. Fox's discharge from service, the family went with a group of 42 relatives to southeastern Kansas and located at Leola, Mo., where they lived 40 years. Mr. and Mrs. Fox came to Wayne in 1909 and made their home here most of the time since.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox knew Abraham Lincoln, the latter's father being a neighbor of the Lincolns at Springfield, Ill. Mr. Fox had delivered wood to the Lincoln home. Everyone at Springfield had high respect for the Lincoln family. Mr. and Mrs. Fox attended a reception for Abraham Lincoln when he was inaugurated president the first time.

Mr. Fox leaves three daughters, Mrs. Emma E. Gamble of Wayne, Mrs. Oliver Gamble of San Pedro, Calif., and Mrs. J. H. Smith of Valparaiso, Wash., and one son, J. W. Fox of Lone Elm, Kan. Another son, Aaron Fox, died three years ago, and Mrs. Fox passed away two years ago.

Besides Mrs. Emma E. Gamble and Miss Ruth Gamble of Wayne, relatives here Sunday for the services included Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fox of Lone Elm, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. George Fox of Hartington, Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Smith of Winside, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Gamble of Wakefield.

A. J. Hyatt and R. P. Williams are the two Civil War veterans surviving here.

At the same time Mrs. Arthur J. Weaver, state chairman, will present the medals of award to these two rising musicians. The midwestern district contest will be broadcast through station WGN and a special network, Sunday, November 16.

The money to be used in buying some of these prints for the classrooms.

SEASON OF GOOD WILL STARTS AS CHRISTMAS NEARS

THE season of generous good will begins with the annual Red Cross drive which is now in progress. The service of the Red Cross in behalf of suffering humanity grips the sympathetic heart. Wherever disaster falls, wherever distress calls, the Red Cross responds. Thus we have worthy ground for the annual roll call and the annual contributions. The spirit of good feeling runs high over the Thanksgiving period when gratitude is encouraged and expressed. People are lifted nearer supernatural forces and brought into closer accord with the first great cause. All through December the holiday spirit prevails and grows, fellowship is warmed and human ties are knitted together more securely by kindly touches. The climax is reached on Christmas when good cheer pervades the air, drooping souls are revived, griefs are thrilled by the joy of giving, and the whole world, by and by, exults under the influence of the great Nazarene. If envy is not modified, ill will dissolved and asperities softened during this season when spiritual values rule, there would seem little to encourage, little to hope for.

INCREASE COUNTY AREA IN BEHALF OF LOWER TAXES

COUNTY consolidation would undoubtedly save more to taxpayers without in the least impairing the efficiency of government than any other one thing that could be done. It would permit road building and other improvements without hardship. It would stimulate farm ownership and other investments on account of the decreased tax burden. A consolidation of eight northeast Nebraska counties would form an area no larger than lies within many single counties of the country at this time. The old-time advantage of being a county seat is now little felt. A day's journey to the seat of government to pay taxes or look after other business has been reduced to an hour, trifle more or less, and the location of county headquarters has almost entirely ceased to excite rivalry. Some leading citizens in other towns have been quoted in favor of consolidation, and certainly farmers, with the prospect of economy and improvement, to the advantage of farm values, would not be against it. The experiment of consolidation in Tennessee has been a wonderful success, and there is no good reason why other sections of the country should not gain similar benefit. The Herald would be glad to hear from people in other towns and in different parts of the country touching the subject.

Other Cases Are Heard at Fall Term of District Court in County.

Sudden Deaths Take Victims

Mrs. Will Beith Succumbs After Attending Rites In Sioux City.

Services Yesterday

W. S. Ebersole, Former Resident of Wakefield, Dies on Duty As Night Watchman.

Coming with shocking unexpectedness was the death Monday afternoon of Mrs. Will Beith, 50, who succumbed to a heart attack in the Mrs. William Ebersole home at Sioux City, just after attending funeral rites for William Ebersole. Mrs. Beith, who lived between Dakota City and Sioux City, leaves her husband and five children between the ages of 17 and 7 years. Hers was the first death in the family circle.

Mrs. Beith, nee Kate McCorkindale, was a daughter of Mrs. M. McCorkindale, of Wakefield. She leaves the following brothers and sisters: John, Malcolm and Neil McCorkindale, Miss Mamie McCorkindale, instructor at the Wayne State Teachers College, Mrs. Frank Westrand of Laurel, and Mrs. Lessman of near Wakefield. Mrs. Westrand was, with her sisters at the time of her sudden demise.

Funeral services were held for Mrs. Beith at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at Twin Churches, near Sioux City. Burial was in the Wakefield cemetery. Among Wayne persons who attended besides Miss McCorkindale, were Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Scace, Miss Ruth Pearson, Miss Lettie Scott and Miss Mildred Piper.

At Beith's funeral, Friends remarked on the strange similarity between the two deaths, that of Mrs. Beith, and of William Ebersole, services for whom she had just attended. Mr. Ebersole, employed in Sioux City as a night watchman at Pelletier's store, died Friday morning while on duty. He was 65 years old.

His malady was described as acute heart trouble, which also claimed Mrs. Beith so unexpectedly.

William Ebersole was well known in Wakefield and community, where he had been engaged in business for a quarter century, coming there from Allen. Four years ago he and his family moved to Sioux City, where he had been employed since.

Numbers of friends who had known Mr. Ebersole as a business man attended services held Monday afternoon at the Mayflower Congregational church in Sioux City. Rev. Joseph Steele, Jr., officiating. Interment was made in Logan Park cemetery.

Mr. Ebersole, who was by birth a Pennsylvanian, had spent most of his life in the middlewest, where most of his children also live. He leaves his wife, his sons, Harold, John and Gordon of Sioux City, Robert, who lives in Michigan, Eugene, who resides in Texas; and two daughters, Mrs. Elmer Jones of Sioux City and Miss Alice Ebersole, also of Sioux City. Gordon Ebersole is attending college at Ames, Iowa.

Red Cross Roll Call Reaches Climax With Saturday's Thorough Canvassing

Committees Arrange For County Coverage Between Holidays, Closing Thanksgiving.

Red Cross campaigning will have its biggest day in Wayne on Saturday when the streets will be canvassed, and householders will be given an opportunity to subscribe to a year's membership in this world organization for charity. The national campaign lasts, officially, from November 11 to 27, coming to a climax Thanksgiving day, the time for national giving of thanks for such charities as the organization expresses.

County chairman as appointed this week by Mrs. D. J. Cavanaugh, who is in charge of the campaign, are: Mrs. W. C. Logan, Carroll; Russell Melberg, Hoskins; George Hall, Winside. These chairmen planned to arrange for canvassing of their localities on Saturday, during the campaign, which will be nationwide.

Local house to house canvass will be made by girls sent out by twos as follows: Kathryn Kemp and Margaret Fenske, Peggy Morris and Gwendolyn Mulvey, Jean Wright and Elaine Tooty, Helen Jones and Mary Alice Strahan and Mildred Moses and one other not yet chosen.

Teachers may take the downtown business district, covering it for subscribers to the national, county and city welfare fund.

The following teachers have been appointed to take care of the downtown districts: Miss Anna Giesler; Miss May Gillies; Miss Ahene Urban, Miss Ada Tollefsen, Miss Louise Eggert and Miss Verma Mae O'Neill.

Saturday evening stations for Red Cross membership will be maintained in the downtown business district. Two such stations will be open during the evening hours in order that county people, who have not been reached, will have an opportunity to enlist as members.

Where Funds Go. Membership in a Red Cross chapter, it has been pointed out, gives the donor of a membership fee an opportunity to serve in various ways. Fifty cents of the dollar goes to support the services of the chapters' national organization, carrying out the relief work which is necessary in times of national disaster. First aid work, life saving, and public nursing are other activities which come under the jurisdiction of the national fund.

Local interests, county and city, are served from the Red Cross funds.

John Barton Payne, St. Louis, at the head of the great campaign, wired Wayne county heads "calling for the earnest devotion, courage, and persistent effort of all Red Cross men and women, measuring up to demands, and making the roll call a great success. The Red Cross has its own great responsibilities, and must meet them."

National radio hook-ups have been arranged, and no day during the campaign will be without its special program, in which the ends of the organization will be furthered.

Red Cross Needs

National and local Red Cross budgets, say officials, are characterized by extreme conservatism, which makes for efficiency in their use. Everyone knows of the excellent work done during the San Domingo hurricane last September and of the work accomplished for relief of persons living in extremely drouth-ridden sections. Minimum relief was given in both of these instances, however, because funds were not large enough to warrant a maximum expenditure. The Red Cross helped northeast Nebraskans when tornadoes struck near Pender and Walthill in the past two years.

Farm interests, labor interests, and the business interests of the county are expected to respond this season to the roll call. Inasmuch as Red Cross work may readily touch almost any individual at any time, money spent for membership is indeed a charity that in coming back to the donor. Red Cross work has flourished in Wayne county, and those in charge feel that a section which is comparatively untouched by hardship this fall should be able to make an excellent standing in the state.

Miss Virginia Stoltenberg presented three tap dances, Miss Marjorie Pugh playing her accompaniment. Mr. Hickman introduced the various numbers with appropriate remarks.

Monday evening Kiwanis club directors held their regular monthly meeting, at which the business for October was discussed, and new business taken up. THE KNOT-HOLE. No. 36 Wayne, Neb., Thursday, November 13, 1930. Vol. 4. Merchant: "Look here, you've been owing me this bill for a year. I'll meet you half way. I'm ready to forgive half what you owe me." Customer: "I'm ready to forget the other half." Yesterday we heard of an oil man who sold his radiator, also, and let his own car freeze up the other night. Personally, we're blamed, glad we don't have to wear knee pants and silk stockings this winter. One of the finest things about living in Wayne is the fine school equipment it offers. That's a real asset to any town, too. A few days ago a man came into our office and said, "How cheap a coal did you buy? We had one at $8.50 that a lot of people liked. He said, 'That stuff's no good. We asked him if he had ever used it and he said, 'No. What else you got?' We told him we had one for $15.00. He said, 'That's too high. We asked him if he had tried it and he said, 'No.' We quoted him other coals we have at $9.50, $11.00 and $14.50, and he said, 'I'll take the $14.50 one. It's the best I've ever used, and all of which he refused to try. Did we get peevish? We did not. Daily episodes, similar to this, are the spice of the coal business. It is reported that a Norfolk man appears in the porch of his home every time his wife starts singing so that the neighbors will know Carhart Lumber Co. Wayne, Neb. Phone 147. One Man's Keen Interest in Aviation Brings Dallas Into World Prominence

THE name of Colonel William E. Easterwood, Jr., who gave the prize of $25,000 which the French flyers, Costes and Bellonte, won for their flight from Paris to Dallas, Tex., with a stop at New Orleans, has always been synonymous with aviation in the southwest.

These Big Dallas Prizes He posted $25,000 prizes for a five-day flight, a Honolulu-Dallas flight and a Rome-Dallas flight. He obtained airports at many Texas towns, and was instrumental in having names printed on roofs, as a guide to aviators, in most Texas towns. But as big a figure as Easterwood has become, few know of the man's big heart.

In Dallas he has given generously his charities, to hospitals, clinics, the Community Chest, churches, orphanages, the blind, the deaf, World War veterans and others. The nature of the man is better revealed, however, in this account of a newspaper reporter.

"The latest memory of Easterwood which I possess," he writes, "occurred an afternoon in Dallas at a home for forsaken babies, 'Hope Cottage.' Colonel Bill was on his way to take Amelia Earhart to lunch. He stopped off at Hope Cottage to give a $500 donation and there he found a baby who had no legal parents anywhere, and no place to go except to a home such as this. Colonel Easterwood hung over the little crib and finally got the baby up in his arms. There was something in his eyes that the big business man had never seen. So he made his donation $1,000 instead of $500."

Ten days later, Easterwood was informed in San Antonio, where he was attending a convention, that the baby had died. He left on a special train for Dallas, the reporter wrote, and personally arranged the funeral.

Began as Salesman Colonel Easterwood, 44, and a millionaire, was a traveling salesman less than 10 years ago. He came to Dallas in 1922 and set himself up in business there as factory representative for many large eastern firms. His success was phenomenal. In 1923 he decided to devote himself exclusively to the marketing of a listerated chewing gum. Two years later he sold the business, which by now he made famous, to one of the nation's leading gum manufacturers. Now he is head of the company's southern branch.

Easterwood's interest in aviation probably dates back to the time he served on the U. S. army's aviation staff of Mexico. Since then he has worked zealously to promote interest in aeronautics. According to one report, Colonel Easterwood gave $75,000 to finance the Costes-Bellonte trans-Atlantic flight and that one-third of the sum was given the flyers outright. It is interesting to note a prediction of Easterwood's. He said recently that the time is not far distant when planes will be built to carry more than 3000 passengers and capable of a speed 1000 miles an hour. And if Colonel Easterwood continues his philanthropies in aviation, his prophesy won't be so fantastic as it seems.

Go To Quarries To See Granite

C. O. Mitchell of Wayne, V. T. Gildea of Omaha, representative of the Mountain Cross Granite corporation of Salida, Colo., and Ira Payne of Grand Island, left Monday last for Salida, Colo., to visit the quarries of the granite corporation. Enroute they stopped at Denver where they were met by W. H. Wade, president of the company, and were entertained at the Denver club. While in Denver Mr. Mitchell called on Mrs. E. O. Gardner relatives there. Mr. Wade accompanied the party from Denver to Salida. After a short stay at Colorado Springs, the party went to Canon City where they took the skyline drive. This is a road built along a ledge about 1500 feet high with no protection on either side of the road, a breath-taking trip of five miles. The scenery is worth the trip, the mountain Leaning Canon City for Salida they visited the Royal gorge and took a trip on foot and by car over the world's highest bridge which is a span of 800 feet and is 1,053 feet above the Arkansas river. The bridge is held by cables anchored to mountains. It sways and moves up and down slightly with the weight of a car. The railroad of the canon looks like a toy track. Scenery from the bridge is beautiful now with the varied shades of autumn to add a touch of color and the snow-capped mountains in the distance giving a background to make the picture complete. The men followed the Arkansas river to Salida and arrived at the quarries plant, at noon Thursday. Mr. Mitchell was amazed to find this the largest plant he had ever visited, including a giant electric circle saw which cuts granite with ease. Electric machinery takes the granite in the rough from the quarry and the length of the building through all the processes of finishing, the material coming out crated ready to ship. The granite quarry is located 12 miles from the plant with an elevation of 3,000 feet. The quarry itself is fitted with modern electric machinery. The granite is hauled in 15-ton trucks over a dangerous road with turns so short that the trucks cannot make some of them without backing up a short distance first. Solid walls of rock falling to distances of more than 200 feet in some places make the truck drivers' work very hazardous. On account of these sharp turns two poles which are 148 feet long, taken from Salida to the quarry. It took workmen two weeks to get the poles the distance of 12 miles. The boom poles are fir from Oregon. The first cost was $350, the freight was $500 and the cost of transporting and placing them brought their cost to $1,150. This is mentioned to give an idea of the expenses connected with placing a quarry in such an inaccessible region. These booms are part of a giant hoist that lifts the granite from the bottom of the quarry to the surface. The enormous cost of the plant and quarry seem worthwhile, however, when the granite is examined and its marvelous beauty revealed in the finished product. It is a dark gray with a scintillating sheen and when letters are cut the background is very light, giving an unusual contrast. The party left Salida Friday afternoon, returning to Denver through the mountains. They reached Wayne Sunday afternoon. Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Payne feel well repaid and are deeply grateful for their host, Mr. Gildea, for the opportunity to visit the quarries. Both added this granite to their stock.

Balto, Dog Hero of Nome Epidemic, Lives With Mates in Cleveland Zoo

BALTO and four of his teammates who saved the lives of hundreds of women and children five years ago when they raced through the Arctic wastes to carry serum to the diphtheria-stricken city of Nome, Alaska, are today enjoying their reward.

Far from the Arctic's snow and ice and biting winds, Balto, leader of the pack, old Mottoc, Slim, Syc and Tilly are living together in a merited life of ease at Brookside zoo in Cleveland, Ohio. Thousands come weekly to admire them.

Amiable, playful, seemingly as energetic as the day they tugged Ginnah, Kasson's serum-laden sled through the frozen tundra, the famed Siberian huskies frolic and caper in their large, outdoor arena. Even 14-year-old Mottoc, by his very spryness, shows no traces of the rigors of that famous day.

The role these animals played in those exciting days of January, 1925, has already become part of the legend of America.

A 675-Mile Race The precious package of anti-toxin started on its way from Anchorage, Alaska. It was to be carried by relays of dog teams to Nome, a distance of 675 miles. Kasson was waiting 120 miles from Nome with a team of 13 dogs, headed by Balto.

Today, another Siberian husky, had done heroic work in tugging the sled a long distance in the early stages of the race, but the question the world asked when the serum finally was entrusted to Balto's team was, "Would they make it in time?"

Kasson galloped his team at a terrific speed. Several times he halted to rub the dogs to prevent them from being frozen to death. The race now took on the aspects of a thrilling melodrama.

An indication of the suspense with which the arrival of Balto's team was awaited is contained in these words of a Nome correspondent: "The approach of the racing dogs lightened the hearts of the Nome residents, shut off from the rest of the world, and fearful that the entire town would be wiped out by the fearful scourge grew less.

After the serum was safely delivered, Balto, who symbolized the success of the expedition, because of the fact the lead dog bears the brunt of a sledge trip, was taken on a tour of the country. He was the guest of movie stars in Hollywood. He arrived in New York in time to witness the unveiling of a bronze monument of himself in Central Park.

Cleveland's Reception In 1927, an effort was made by both the Los Angeles Alaskan Society and the citizens of Cleveland to purchase Balto and his teammates. But the Clevelanders raised enough money by publik subscription to outfit their trip on the coast.

The animals, brought to the Ohio city, were acclaimed in a reception and parade which would have done honor to a trans-Atlantic flyer.

The heroes are maintained with excellent care. Happiest when they are at work, the dogs are sometimes given a lawn roller to tug at for exercise. And they do develop keen appetites in the open air cage. In the morning they are fed vegetables and a pound of raw meat, and in the afternoon, dog biscuits.

There is a bronze tablet pinned to the monument in the zoo which tells the achievements of the heroes.

Speeches on Armistice day breathed the hope for permanent banishment of cruel war and the substitution of peaceful methods in settling disputes. In the course of his tributes to departed and living soldiers, President Hoover said that the time had come when we can assume that righteousness has so far advanced in the world that we may yet have complete confidence in the full growth of pacific means or rest solely upon the processes of peace for defense.

COOPERATION.
The Lincoln Journal calls attention approvingly to the announced determination of democratic leaders to cooperate with President Hoover in any constructive program that may be proposed for the betterment of conditions. Manifestly the past few years have been the height of a move toward the country, republicans and democrats alike seemingly having tied with one another in trying to harass and obstruct the work of the administration.

WATCH OUT FOR SNAPPY COMEBACKS!
AND NOW!

It is the opinion of experts that the market pendulum is swinging back toward higher levels and that industry has reached its lowest ebb with a pronounced tendency to improvement. Unemployment is large with total wages in industries reduced from $44,607,000,000 to $35,754,000,000 per year. But the prospect is encouraging. The national government and the heads of industries are cooperating in a movement to absorb the idle as fast as possible and maintain wage scales. The president is urging needed public improvements without delay to set people to work and relieve distress. The result will strengthen buying power and stimulate markets.

age. Often cars are bumped and scratched—sometimes ripped—by disregard of regulations, and the bumper or ripper is likely to pass on unobserved and unknown. With clearly defined parking spaces there is no reason to straddle them or plant too far either way, and officers bearing the strong arm of the law may become powerfully influential in enforcing uniformity if necessary.

It is announced that Governor-elect Bryan expects to arrange affairs on his two farms so that he will not be needed to do any of the work, and will be prepared to take over the duties of the governorship with free hands to wrestle with its responsibilities. Mr. Bryan says he will consider candidates for jobs on merit and will be little influenced by petitions or endorsements. Employees whom he appoints must be in harmony with his policies in which stand he is manifestly exercising sound judgment. His helpers should be in full sympathy with his plans and purposes, and the vote which he received would indicate that he could find plenty of them.

The payment plan is often used to buy things that are not needed. The same fellow who buys luxuries on an agreement to make monthly payments, sometimes finds it necessary to stand off creditors who have trusted him for necessities. The payment plan is a convenience if it is not carried to the point where it interferes with payments due for essentials. It would seem the part of wisdom for a man first to figure his income to cover his physical needs, and then tinkle his fancy with supernumeraries that may be comfortably taken care of by the monthly or weekly arrangement. Often the tempting call of luxury, beckoning on an easy basis of so much per month, leads one to forget adequate provision for things that must be had to keep going from day to day.

For two years the country has been fed up on bitter political controversies. The hope to discredit the administration or some one else trusted with official responsibility seemed greater than the desire for the public welfare. Party supremacy or individual ascendancy seemed more important than the country's prosperity. While republicans and democrats are not in fact far apart in ideas of public policy, they succeeded in keeping the air aflame with conflict, locking more to coming elections than to immediate needs. Necessarily the result was growing unrest. The voting masses, bewildered and chagrined, often did not know where to place support in behalf of orderly and healthy development. An election would be less an experiment if evils were not magnified and possibilities were not exaggerated in trying to promote the selfish hopes of office-seeking groups.

Another thing that is passing, due to disappearance of old-fashioned heating stoves and open-hearth cooking stoves, is the privilege of elderly housewives to sit at grates and poke fires at critical junctures in conversation. Perhaps a veteran of the Civil war is detailing his experience at Antietam—the fiercest single day's battle in the four years' conflict—and as he reaches the climax and starts to speculate on results affecting the future of the war, the housewife who is listening admiringly, suddenly discovers that the fire needs poking and she grabs the poker and goes after it with vigor akin to that which her husband displayed on the memorable September day in 1862. New-fangled heating arrangements remove old-time possibilities in the way of jiggling grates and banging lids, and thus it would seem that a loud, and vehement

It is the opinion of experts that the market pendulum is swinging back toward higher levels and that industry has reached its lowest ebb with a pronounced tendency to improvement. Unemployment is large with total wages in industries reduced from $44,607,000,000 to $35,754,000,000 per year. But the prospect is encouraging. The national government and the heads of industries are cooperating in a movement to absorb the idle as fast as possible and maintain wage scales. The president is urging needed public improvements without delay to set people to work and relieve distress. The result will strengthen buying power and stimulate markets.

Not only the administration and industrial leaders, but many influential spirits in the two big political parties see the importance of pulling together for improved labor and market conditions. These forces working in accord for the general welfare will be in marked contrast with past experiences and should produce desired results.

Business.
Sioux City Journal: Freight car loadings have been low week after week throughout the year, proving conclusively that shipment of goods has been reduced and that business activity has been appreciably lessened. There probably is no better business barometer than freight shipments, for even without extensive truck haulage everywhere, railroad operation is still responsible for the major portion of merchandise movement.

Covering the first nine months of the year, is a statement relating to the earnings of the class I railroads. The net operating income was $659,427,561 as against $962,854,453 for the same period last year. On the property investment this shows a return this year of 3.54 per cent. In 1929 the return was 5.29 per cent.

The return shown for each of the two years might be increased somewhat if based on revised valuation figures. The property investment basis on which the railroads calculated their net is the value of road and equipment as shown by the books of the railway company. This includes materials, supplies and cash. The net operating income is what is left after operating expenses are paid, together with taxes and equipment rental, but before interest and other fixed charges are settled. Railroad figures on valuation, however, are probably higher than might be generally accepted as fair and just, so the low return for the first nine months of this year may not be so discouraging as it first appears.

The Government In Business.
(South St. Paul Daily Reporter)
There has been gradual extension of the functions of government in this country in the past fifty years until almost every phase of our commercial, industrial and agricultural life, not to mention our private affairs as individual citizens is regulated, controlled, supervised or licensed by some branch of government.

Whether the licensing, de-regulating and supervising functions of government are desirable effects it has had on the welfare of all the people is a question that may be fairly asked. One need not be a particularly close observer of public sentiment to discover that there are many folks who feel the way out of the present depression will be found more quickly with a minimum of governmental intervention. These folks have a strong conviction that the less the government interferes with business and industry and agriculture the more confidence will be restored and the sooner prosperity will be returned.

It is a rather significant fact that in spite of the great increase in government expenditures and commissions in the past fifteen years there is much public clamor over the same things which these bureaus and commissions were set up to improve or eliminate. This prompts the thought that perhaps more could be accomplished by looking elsewhere than to the government to remedy whatever may be wrong.

This country has been made what it is by the opportunities which it has offered private enterprise and individual initiative, encouraging the citizens to work to experiment to invent and to invest in legitimate projects with the promise of reward. Every American citizen has a right to engage in any honest occupation or business without interference or undue restraint or handicap by the government. That is one of the rights which must be zealously maintained if the progress of the past century and a half is not to be canceled.

Unemployment
Lincoln Journal—It is not questioned that cities, states and the nation are governed in a much more relative situation created by business, agricultural and industrial depression by going ahead now with public works that under usual conditions would be unobtainable for months. Keeping men at work thru the winter will help much in relieving a situation that is admittedly serious. England has done it, but in this country money is spent to create work for those able to labor. That seems the better scheme, but the fact that necessity forces this is regrettable.

Two Girls Shot At Hadar Home

Hadar, Neb., Nov. 10.—Miss Myrtle Granfield, 24, who lives three miles northeast of this village, was taken to a Norfolk hospital about 1:30 Monday morning suffering from shotgun wounds sustained when a man alleged to be her uncle, Milton Jones, 50, Winside, fired at her and her sister, Iola, thru a window of the Granfield home.

The shooting is said to have taken place about 9 p. m. Hugo Mittelstaedt of Hadar and Sheriff E. A. Lambrecht of Pierce were summoned to the Granfield place about that hour. They took the two young women to a physician at Pierce where it was learned that Miss Myrtle Granfield had sustained wounds from shot in both of her legs and one arm and hand.

Miss Iola Granfield was not hurt seriously although a few of the shot are said to have struck her. Jones was taken into custody and Monday forenoon was in jail at Pierce.

It is understood that the shooting took place because Miss Myrtle Granfield had refused to accept the attention of her uncle, who is a brother of the young woman's mother.

It was said that Jones had been drinking.

To Help Laborers Now Out Of Work Estimate Corn Crop As Fairly Heavy

Washington—The 1930 corn crop was estimated at 2,094,481,000 bushels by the agriculture department on the basis of a Nov. 1 estimate, 78.6 percent of normal, Monday.

The 1929 corn crop was 2,614,000,000 bushels. Yield per acre of corn was indicated at 20.6 bushels in Monday's report. The report estimated old corn on farms on Nov. 1 at 72,349,000 bushels, or 2.77 percent of the 1929 crop.

Production of some other crops was estimated by the department's report at: buckwheat, bu., 9,400,000; flax seed, bu., 24,200,000; rice, bu., 41,000,000; beans, bu., 21,000,000; peanuts, lbs., 759,000,000; apples, bu., 162,000,000; grapes, tons, 2,370,000; potatoes, bu., 368,000,000; sweet potatoes, bu., 72,000,000; tobacco, lbs., 1,619,000,000; sugar beets, tons, 8,950,000.

It is estimated corn production in 1930 at 2,094,481,000 bushels which was an increase of 2 percent over the production estimate made a month ago.

Ask New Trial In Accident Case

The case in which Albert Killion, administrator for his son, Charles Killion, was awarded $8,300 judgment in district court, has been appealed to the state supreme court. Herman Dinklage, against whom the judgment was rendered, claims that the amount is excessive. Dinklage states that he had his promised wife riding August 18, 1929, to a friend's home where they were to be honored at a wedding shower when his car and the Killion machine, containing young people, collided at the top of a hill four miles west of Pender. The Killion boy, 16, and one of the girls were killed. Dinklage asks the supreme court to send the case back for a new trial.

two large commercial trucks to pass on the average bridge which was erected prior to about five years ago. Many of the Platte river bridges now in use on main state highways which carry heavy commercial traffic have 16 foot roadways.

The lack of sufficient space often makes it difficult for passenger cars also to pass the larger trucks. The danger is chiefly at night when the glare and reflections of lights hinder drivers in gauging distance properly.

Need $3,000,000 for Bridges.
Cochran estimates that it would require an expenditure of approximately three million dollars to replace or rebuild all the structures in need of it. At least a million dollars or more would be required to eliminate the most dangerous structures.

Husking for Honors.
Omaha World-Herald: To those who are genuinely interested in sport, we commend the corn husking contests which are held annually at this season in the great midland empire which is America's corn crib.

There is no spurious drama, no promotion by skilled press agents, in these contests. Neither is there any of the "fixing" which has become so common in other branches of sport. No leading contender ever "takes a dive," or "goes in the tank." Every man does his best in an honest contest, and the race is a genuine test of skill and endurance.

Neither are there meaningless standards of amateurism. Corn husking is recognized as a gainful occupation, although not so gainful as expert football, tennis or golf playing. Every husker realizes that in this season 5 or 6 cents a bushel to rip the ear off the stalk, fling it into the wagon and then transfer it to the crib. He would not be enough of a yokel to work all fall, without wages, for the privilege of competing in the contests. He accepts his honest wages, honestly earned, and by his daily, gainful labor trains for the fall classics.

The element of chance is present in a husking contest, just as it is in a horse race or ball game. A lot depends on the condition of the field. Some men do better on dry ground. Others are not at their competitive best unless the going is heavy. Some contestants are only dangerous if the stalks are absolutely dry and brittle, so that the ear snaps off sharply and easily. Other huskers are good wrists to wrench them loose at top speed, regardless of conditions. There is just as much chance as in any other game for the colorful "break" which leads to victory.

But none of the huskers are pampered darlings of a highly commercialized sport. They have their coaches in the field, it is true, but they do not have, or need, retinues of trainers and lackeys. They do not find it necessary to ballyhoo their prowess or to issue statements on the eve of battle. Neither do they go to a country club on the eve of the contest, to spend the night in seclusion.

It is wholesome sport at its best. Sponsors of other athletic contests might well ponder the ways of the corn-huskers.

Happy Chick News

Lots of farmers have finished picking corn, and the most of them can see the end, with the fine weather we are having I don't think it will be long.

An old codger was crossing a busy corner when a huge police dog dashed into him and bowled him over. The next instant a 1924 Ford skidded around the corner, bumped into him, inflicting more severe bruises. By-standers assisted him to his feet and someone asked him if the dog had hurt him. "Not exactly," replied the breathless victim; "it was the tin can tied to his tail that did the most damage."

Have you filled your coal bin yet? How about leaving your order now? Some of these days the weather is going to take a change. It is quite a relief of mind to know that your winter's supply of coal is in your bin.

"Mary," inquired the mistress, suspiciously, "did you wash this fish carefully before you baked it?"

"Lor' ma'am," replied Mary, "twos the use of washin' a fish that lived all his life in the water?"

We just unloaded another fine car of Pinnacle lump. This is the best of soft coal—clean for handling, no soot, very little ash, and a good, clean-burning coal.

Co-ed: "Oh, look, the players are all covered with mud. How will they ever get it off?"

Another Ditto: "What do you think the scrub team is for?"

Another car of Zeigler arrived, some of which we hauled right from the car.

Mr. Paul Zeplin has taken charge of our truck department. Paul has been employed by us since last spring. He came here from West Point, where he has had lots of experience in this line of work.

First Plumber: "I heard a good joke on us plumbers yesterday."

Second Ditto: "Let's have it."

First: "Gosh, forgot it."

We received that car of Bonadue Semi-Anthracite coal for furnaces. It has lots of heat, no smoke and no soot. A dandy coal at $13.00 per ton.

It is better to wear out than to rust out.

Speaker Gives Annual Address

Rev. Braisted Stresses Possibilities of Arbitration.

Discusses Last War

Recalls War Conditions in Talk for Armistice Season at First Baptist Church.

Armistice day thoughts were expressed in the address given Sunday, November 9 at the First Baptist church by Rev. W. E. Braisted on the subject, "Let Us Reason Together." He emphasized the fact that all worthy men and women must have, in times like these, some concern for their national as well as their individual lives.

"No man liveth unto himself and no man dieth unto himself," was never so true as it is today, insisted Rev. Braisted, mentioning the pistol shot in Sarajevo in 1914, which involved two-thirds of the world in the most desolating war in human history, at the very time when superficial men were talking of brotherhood, and preparing defenses which were not effective.

War Involves All

"War involved every phase of our lives—food, commerce, domestic life, education, religion. It is not merely unreasoning folly, it is reckless danger for one to declare as did a great criminal lawyer, 'let us long ago that, 'the anything else drinking is a man's private affair and no one else's business.' It does happen to be your business and mine, if that man is on the road in an automobile, or on a railroad in an engine, or in a drugstore putting up prescriptions or a physician, or a man in any other relation where a clear brain and a steady nerve are concerned, and where any other life is involved. Life is complex, and no man can deny it without proclaiming himself to be prejudiced or a fool."

Rev. Braisted pointed out the solidarity of the human race in its personal and social life, quoting the old truth that "the strength of the wolf is in the pack and the strength of the pack is in the wolf."

In 1914 in Europe, and in 1917, 18 here, we did not see the law of life. "Perhaps the time will come when, in the interests of peace, we shall have to yield, to submit to prison and even to death, for the common welfare, and refuse to kill as when we were united to kill and who cannot say it was futile, after 12 years?"

Individual Sacrifice

The sacrifice of the individual to the common good was one of the high points of the Armistice Day address. The speaker referred to the fact that during a plague, the innocent must suffer with the guilty, and the loss of the community is shared by the individuals living therein.

"Personal liberty," he explained, "when that liberty involves the life and liberty and happiness of others, has no valid claim in law, ethics or religion."

"A similar condition prevails in the international political relations as in the social and economic, he stated. History he sees as a record of human achievement, a record more of human stupidity, folly and waste.

concerning the international situation, the speaker mentioned two alternatives: "Fear, suspicion, distrust, rivalries, competition, the biggest navy or army on land, in the air, under the sea, with one sure issue, and that issue, sooner or later, war."

"And, after war, with its waste, cruelty and futility at best, or international reasoning together in mutual trust and good will, with no third alternative," the speaker argued. "And, after war is over, men have to reason together, when war has made the issues infinitely harder to adjust."

"Does anyone for a minute doubt that, if one half the time and effort and cost and compromise that we have been putting forth these last twelve years to find some possible way to go on living together had been honestly done in 1910-14, a world war would have been unnecessary?"

Costs of War

"Ten to 17,000,000 young men were the price in shattered life in 1914-18. Every one was a person with infinite worth and eternal destiny. What right have governments, without the consent of the governed, to kill 27,000,000 of its people, until they have tried all else? Jesus offers the one untried, possible solution. And, hereafter," insisted the speaker, "all rulers of all lands should be held first accountable for international relations being settled by reasoning together. War always denies reason, common sense. To go on with the stupid, insane, futile, unreasoning wars of the past, with increasing fury and destructiveness," he concluded, "leads to mutual, national, moral and racial suicide. Jesus is the sole hope of individual and social salvation."

Wayne County Takes Vote Report Honors

Speed coupled with accuracy were the qualities which marked the early submission of the complete county report of election returns in Wayne county, by Miss Bertha Berres. Miss Berres' report, the first complete county report to be turned in at Norfolk, was sent by T. S. Hook, and covered the vote in a manner remarked as "perfect."

Beaver City turned in the first precinct report in the state, two minutes before the closing of the polls.

First precinct report for the district came from Neligh, and was followed in short order by the reports from Wayne and Antelope counties.

District Meeting In Planned Here

District convention of the Degree of Honor will be held in Wayne December 10 for an all-day program at which the national president, Frances Buol Olson and the state grand president, Frances D. Owen, will be present with several other officers. Different branches of the lodge will be discussed, especially the juvenile department.

Wayne's juvenile lodge has gained much popularity by its rapid and steady growth in a few short weeks. It is now recognized as Nebraska's banner lodge. That the young folks plan a demonstration at the convention for the superior and state officers. Mothers of juveniles and others interested in the work are cordially invited to this part of the meeting.

A special meeting of the juniors was held last Friday to make final plans for the convention. An extra drill is to be put on by the local young folks. The juveniles meet this Thursday, November 13, after school. Each member who has not already paid dues should bring them at that time.

Amos 'n' Andy In First Film

Internationally famous yet practically unknown! Sounds like a paradox, but it applies to the kings of radio entertainment, Amos 'n' Andy, appearing at the Gay Theatre tonight, Friday and Saturday, November 13-14-15. In their first talking picture, "Check and Double Check," a Radio Pictures production.

Motion picture players whose names are not nearly so well known as Amos 'n' Andy, scarcely can go anywhere without being recognized. Yet, Amos 'n' Andy rarely are recognized in their daily movements.

The reason for this is that they are known only as delineators of negro types. When they remove their makeup they reveal their identity. To preserve the illusion that they are what their radio audiences imagine them to be, no one ever sees them broadcast, not even their wives for their manager.

Even in Chicago, where most of their broadcasting is done, they are known only to their immediate circle of friends. Amos 'n' Andy are known to millions—as two voices—but Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll look pretty much like other young business men in a crowd.

In "Check and Double Check" they emerge from their usual seclusion and provide the public with its first view of them. Featured with them in the picture are Sue Carol, Charles Morton, Irene Rich, and a strong supporting cast.

Minnesota Trip Fills Week-End

Minnesota crops looked as well to Nebraska eyes as those in our own state, according to Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Anderson, who arrived home Monday noon from a short trip into Minnesota. They stopped in Granite Falls for a visit overnight in the A. J. Landin home. The Landins are former residents of Wayne.

The Andersons spent another night with relatives at Braham, Minn., before returning home. Roads were good and weather clear and warm, with pleasantly snappy mornings, they reported.

State's Champion Husker Is Named

Alma—A new champion husker his way for the 1930 title of Nebraska's best corn grower here on Tuesday—Guy Simms of Republican City claiming that honor with neatness and dispatch over his thirty-eight opponents, themselves county champions.

In the allotted time of one hour and twenty minutes, Simms husked 27.36 bushels of corn—thirtyone hundredths bushels better than the runner up, Martin Christensen of Kearney county, whose net load was 27.04 bushels.

It was a reversal of the old story of the home town boy who went away to make good, for he was virtually in Simms' own backyard where the battle of the bang boards was staged—the A. Wolf farm, three miles from here.

The unofficial record of Simms' achievement was considerably above that of the 1929 title winner, Henry Sorensen of Washington county, who finished far from the top of the heap Tuesday.

The defending champion, on-lookers said it seemed, had a hard time in hitting his stride. Sorensen was reported as having finished in eighth place.

By virtue of his victory, Simms will be given a cash award by the Nebraska Farmer, and a trip to the national contest at Norton, Kas. The runnerup, Christensen, will likewise have a chance at the national title.

Third, fourth and fifth place winners were:

Third, Peter Wenz, Steele City, Jefferson county, 27.04 bushels; fourth, Oscar Hibbler, Hastings, Adams county, 26.993 bushels; fifth, Otto Sorensen, Blair, Washington county, 26.8 bushels. The latter is a brother of the de-throned champion. Between eight and ten thousand people witnessed the contest.

Fourteen Robberies Reported In State

Lincoln, Nov. 10.—Fourteen robberies in six Nebraska towns over the week-end netted petty thieves two automobiles and more than $650 in cash, reports to State Sheriff W. C. Condit's office showed.

At Hastings, two men robbed a grocery store but were caught and the stolen good found. Two other robberies at Hastings were perpetrated at filling stations.

The two stolen automobiles were taken from Hastings, and one of them was recovered there. Condit said he believed the second automobile was used by bandits who robbed a drug store at Red Cloud of $319.

At Beatrice, two residences were broken into, two filling stations were burglarized, and thieves entered a garage.

Two bandits commanded grocery clerks at Falls City to lie on the floor, took $200 and fled in an automobile. The robbers warned employees of the store they were "from Chicago and plenty tough."

The postoffice at Pauline was ransacked. A fraternity house and a residence here were robbed, and farm home near here was burglarized.

Highway Projects Are In Prospect

Omaha, Nov. 10.—Clifford Shoemaker, federal road engineer for the Nebraska district, today estimated that, within the next ninety days approximately $1,750,000 in highway projects can be expected to be put under contract in Nebraska.

"I shall be surprised if this total is not increased to $2,000,000 by February," he said.

Following are the projects which Shoemaker said are expected to go under contract within the next two months:

New overpass at Fort Crook, estimated cost $125,000.

New overpass at La Platte, estimated cost $60,000.

New overpass at Columbus, estimated cost $250,000.

Within ninety days! Paving projects connecting unimproved stretches between Omaha and Lincoln, and construction of a new bridge over Platte river at Ashland. Total estimated cost $850,000.

Grading, structures and paving, Union to Nebraska City, estimated cost $325,000.

Continuing of paving north of Omaha to Fort Calhoun, estimated cost $150,000.

Miscellaneous grading and graveling projects, estimated cost $250,000.

"We are hopeful that State Engineer Cochran will present plans and specifications for most of these projects by the end of December," said the federal engineer.

Shoemaker stated that the speedy preparation for these projects should tend materially to lessen the unemployment peril in the state during the coming winter.

Corn Yield Good

Homer, Neb.—A seven-acre field owned by Ern Harris, three miles north of Homer, produced 128 bushels of corn an acre. Practically all corn of the county is reported to be good.

Progressive Service

Americans have been accustomed to seeing rapid improvements in all things that make for comfort and convenience. There is little patience for old-fashioned inefficient methods in any field.

In the funeral director's work, as elsewhere, the spirit of progress has made itself felt. In technical methods, merchandise and equipment there have been radical changes, all dictated by the public's demand for service in keeping with a high standard of living.

This organization has kept constantly in touch with the latest developments in its field of endeavor. Our technical service reflects the latest scientific research. The merchandise we sell is of the latest design and style. Our motor cars and other equipment are modern in the best sense of the word.

Disabled Kansas City Vet, Armistice Day Hero, Carries on From His Bedside

ON Nov. 11, when the world witnessed the Armistice Day, large numbers of Kansas City residents flocked to a treelined cottage in the suburbs to pay their respects to Jack Copelman, who lay abed there with gas-corroded lungs.

It is a sort of anniversary celebration to commemorate Copelman's heroism on the last day of the war and serve to reassure him that even though he has gone away from the law since his return from France, he still has plenty of friends.

Aids Comrade

The story of his war-time heroism goes back to the night of Nov. 10, 1918 when the surviving sections of Company G of the 35th infantry lay scattered in an exposed sector of the Argonne. There was only one sergeant, and that was the slim, slender Jack Copelman.

Promptly at midnight the enemy launched a gas attack. Just as promptly did the sergeant reach for his mask, but, on noting the difficulty a cumbersome comrade had in manipulating his mask, Copelman paused to assist him. The cost he served costly to the sergeant, for the fumes had already penetrated into his lungs. He was removed to a first aid station and tagged for a base hospital.

Before daybreak, however, Copelman quietly slipped away from the hospital. He summoned all his falling strength to carry him back to the front. A few moments later he was leading his men in battle.

But this is not the only deed for which the former sergeant is admired.

Less than three years after his heroic achievement at the front, Copelman who in pre-war days was prominent in night life in Kansas City, was hospitalized when hard liquors were found in a roadhouse he maintained.

His Hospital Life

His business gone, and the ravages of the war gas showing effect, Copelman entered the city hospital as a charity patient. There he remained in bed for two years. But he was not forgotten, for when he was pronounced well enough to be taken from the hospital he moved into a home provided for him and his wife by friends.

Still bedfast, but happy with his radio and piano, Copelman felt a lack "What I need," he declared, "is to make some others happy."

clans, artists and stage folk to give of their time to entertain bed-ridden folk. And now, thanks to Copelman, stage entertainments are given at regular intervals in wards, in which he lay as a patient so many months. From his home, the former sergeant listens to these concerts over a special telephone.

Thus, Kansas City folk have chosen to forget one experience in Sergeant Copelman's past and dwell rather on his great services in France and for the hospital.

Copelman, with the assistance of his pretty wife, now conduct a successful lawn service company that carries for the grass and flowers of many Kansas City home owners. From this enterprise the couple earn their modest income.

Library Board Has Its Business Meet

Members of the Wayne library board met Tuesday evening to go over the monthly business of the organization, and to make plans for the winter's work. Carl Bertson Has Injury Wednesday

Carl Bertson, employed in a local garage, suffered severe injury Wednesday morning when he slipped his right hand in a cog while working on an automobile. His hand was crushed, although no bones were broken. Several stitches were taken to close the gashes.

Farm Home Burns. Plataview, Neb.—The farm home of Francis Crisp, southwest of here, burned to the ground. The family was at home in bed and asleep when a young man, Sam Mortison, who was returning home from town saw the roof in flames. He aroused the family and, with the help of neighbors, was able to save most of the household effects.

Cincinnati Centenarian, Oldest Yale Graduate, Gives Rules for Long Life

THERE are two things for which Edmund Payson Bradstreet of Cincinnati, O., is most popularly known. The first is that he is the oldest living graduate of Yale and the second, that he is the oldest lawyer in the United States.

Edward P. Bradstreet

He entered Western Reserve, but after two years, was obliged to go elsewhere when the entire faculty but one resigned because of some dispute. So young Bradstreet says he "did the rash thing of going to Yale."

He sleeps about seven hours, but invariably wakes up once or twice in the night. He doesn't sleep in the daytime. As important a factor in long living is a quiet mind has been his freedom from worry.

Appreciation

Theodore W. Metcalfe, Lieutenant, and Governor elect has issued the following statement:

"It would be impossible for me to personally thank my many friends throughout the state of Nebraska who took an interest in my candidacy and helped in my campaign. I certainly appreciate the honor of the office and the splendid vote I received but more than that I appreciate the loyalty and good will of the friends who have found in every county in the state. Emerson said 'the only way to have a friend is to be one' and I can assure my many friends that I expect to continue to merit their respect and good will and so conduct myself in public office that no one will ever have to apologize for having given me their support."

Notice

To the citizens of Wayne county. There were several false alarms given out before election. One was that Mrs. Stephens is my deputy and getting a salary of $80 a month. Another that I kept all fees. Now get this straight. I have no deputy. The county does not allow me one. Here is what Mrs. Stephens gets. 25c a meal for feeding prisoners. And as to fees earned by me, all are paid to the county general fund whether collected or not. I have them to pay. I have tried my best to keep this office up to the standard, and am going to continue to do so. A. W. Stephens, sheriff. n131l

Lady Is Dragged When Hit By Car. Norfolk News, Nov. 10: Mrs. Frank E. Biehle, 26, 903 South Fourth street, was resting fairly comfortably at a local hospital Monday morning where she was taken at 8:15 Saturday evening after she had been run down and dragged for some distance beneath a car driven by Carl "Slim" Mullenberg, Norfolk automobile salesman. The accident occurred at the intersection of Norfolk avenue and Fourth street about 8 o'clock Saturday evening in the midst of the regular Saturday night traffic jam.

Mrs. Biehle with her two children, Delores, 2, and John, three weeks old, was walking across Norfolk avenue on the east side of Fourth street and was proceeding north.

Mullenberg's car, going west on Norfolk avenue, came along and struck Mrs. Biehle. She fell beneath the machine and was dragged almost across Fourth street, witnesses say before a police officer stopped Mullenberg. It was necessary to lift the automobile in order to extricate Mrs. Biehle.

Mrs. Biehle was rushed to the hospital where later examination indicated the probability that no bones were broken. She sustained numerous painful contusions and lacerations, however, hospital attaches say. Her condition Monday morning was pronounced "fair."

The two children were said to have escaped injury, although the three-week-old boy was taken to the hospital with his mother.

Preceding the presentation of an evening of plays Friday the Pep club presented Friday noon a few of the numbers as an advertisement. Junior high students were invited guests. Numbers on the evening program, given at the high school auditorium for a Pep club benefit were: Taxi, a one-act play in which Gladys Barnett and James Davies took roles; Suppressed Desires, with Dean Winegar, Mary Jane Morgan and Fannie Beckenbauer; and Wisdom Teeth, with Egan Dennis, Zola Wilson, Mary Norton and Elaine Childers.

Skills were arranged to intersperse the plays. The first of these was a Shakespearean drama, with Catherine Berry, Lucille Wright, Fannie Beckenbauer, Howard Kibborn and Franklin Victor. Pieces of six, another skit, was presented by Mary Norton, Dean Winegar, Mary Jane Morgan, John Kemp, Marvin Noakes and Wilber Paterfield.

Miss Norma Mae O'Neill, Miss May Gillies, Miss Arlene Urban and W. A. Behl trained the casts for the various parts, and Miss Dorothy Felber, Pep club adviser, also assisted.

Teachers Have Meet. Teachers in the schools met after classes were dismissed on Wednesday afternoon. School problems were discussed, and plans were made for the next meeting, which will be held in the near future.

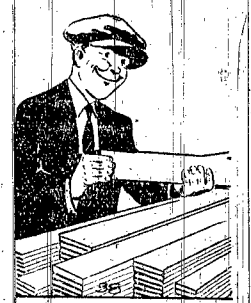

Two new pupils have been admitted to the high school: Wilbur Sheppardson, from a South Dakota high school, and Frances Lindah from the Allan consolidated school. Wilbur is a sophomore and Frances is a junior.

Preliminary enthusiasm ran high for the Laurel-Wayne game played Friday here. Pepsters arranged to sell candy and apples at the game as usual, and made the usual display of school spirit.

Practice on Debate. Debating class has been discussing informally the points for and against the adoption of a world policy of disarmament, the state question for high school debate this season. Teams argue the points before the class, and the points of refutation are gone over informally after the speaking. In

HOMESTEADS ARE OPEN TO CLAIMS GARDEN COUNTY

THE announcement from the land office at Alliance a few days ago that eight stock raising homesteads in north Garden county are open to entry by reason of irregularities in "proving up," sent the memories of many scurrying back to the days when land offices in Nebraska were doing "land office" business. Lincoln, Collette and Broken Bow land offices, conducted by the federal department of the interior. Each had a register and receiver and these offices, as well as the lands they dispensed, were eagerly sought. As the land filled up the offices were closed one by one and finally the work of all was centered in one at Alliance.

The opening of Nebraska lands to homestead entry brought a steady stream of homeseekers across the Missouri, immediately following the Civil war. Young men who had had a taste of soldiering and had broken home ties were quick to accept the bounty of a land grant offered by a grateful government. The boys who had worn the soldier blue donned the denim blue and became the makers of the new state. Among these was Daniel Freeman. He came out to Nebraska in 1862 on a furlough from service in the Union army. He saw a piece of land that pleased his eye, but his furlough would expire before the drawing was to be made. The situation became known to a great number of prospective homesteaders who were awaiting the opening of the drawing. They agreed that the young soldier should not be denied his chance. As a result, a clerk in the land office opened the register at 12:30 a. m. the day of the drawing for the sole benefit of the returning soldier. He made his filing, was awarded entry No. 1. When the fighting was over he came out to Beatrice to claim his homestead. He developed the land, lived to see it a fertile and prosperous farm, enjoyed its bounty and finally, when his work was done, laid down to rest within its spacious borders, true to the land he loved.

This way, weaknesses and strength of the various arguments are brought to light. Arbitration has been mentioned as a substitute for warring, and the point raised that no substitution is necessary, although some change must be made. A debate has been scheduled for Friday, November 14, with Pierce, although arrangements have not been completed. Wakefield high school will lock forensic horns with the Wayne team at some unscheduled date in the near future.

Mr. Behl states that good veterinarian material is on hand for the teams, and that with good preliminary practice, the group should be able to make good in this section. Members of the two preliminary teams appointed to discuss the question, in class last week were the following: Lucille Wright, Mary Jane Morgan and Max Hendrickson in one group, and Stanley Davis, Dean Winegar and Frank Claycomb in the second group. The final teams will not be picked until later in the season, when several practice debates have been completed.

Grades are interested in art projects suitable to the season. Halloween decorations have been arranged in all of the rooms, and Thanksgiving turkeys are promised for the near future.

State On Upgrade Banker Assures

Omaha—Economically Nebraska has "touched bottom" and is now on the upgrade, Walter W. Head, president of the Foreman bank of Chicago and principal owner of Omaha National bank, said the Nebraska Bankers' Association convention here Friday. "Misfortune still afflicts individuals," Head said, but as a whole Nebraska is advancing; Nebraska is marching on. "It is the tragedy of progress that a whole people frequently must advance over the wreckage of individual disaster," he said. "We know that the true picture of conditions shows they have been very bad. "But collectively, in the aggregate, Nebraska is moving forward with all sincerity and complete confidence—has touched bottom and is now on the upgrade. "The two great handicaps under which Nebraska bankers have labored have been removed. Head said in predicting that the bank situation will soon vary greatly. "The handicaps were collapse of real estate values in 1920 and 1921 and the attempt to force competent and honest bankers to insure the customers of incompetent or dishonest bankers," he said. "Real estate values are now up on a sound basis. Only those who refuse to accept the inevitable still face the necessity of taking a loss.

"The so-called guaranty fund legislation has been virtually repealed. Again in Nebraska honesty and competence in banking enjoy a deserved premium. Again in Nebraska diligence, ability, conservatism and integrity in banking have an opportunity to reap a just reward. "Undoubtedly there will be fewer banks in Nebraska than heretofore, few will mourn the loss for there have been too many. The banks which remain will be bigger and better banks with adequate resources and with more competent management."

Laura Lyons Tells Of Trip To West

Miss Laura Lyons of Long Beach, Calif., writes Herald readers November 13 as follows:

"After leaving Wayne October 13 and spending two days with mother's brother, Elzie Kerney, and family near Malvern, Iowa, I spent eleven-day visit with my aunt, Mrs. Nellie Wingett, Allen, and family. This was my initial visit in that city and enjoyed several trips. One was up to Mt. Lookout to see Buffalo Bill Cody's grave. His wife is buried by his side in a strong enclosure. The museum, conducted by their son, is nearly always closed for the winter. We then went through Berger canyon, saw several mines and picnicked near the confluence of two mountain streams. After crossing the divide we entered beautiful Boulder canyon. We stopped at the big dam then again to go aside on foot from the highway to see Boulder falls, also passed the power plant where electricity is made for the city of Boulder.

"A few days later we drove to Longmont and near the highway saw large coal mines where sign-boards stated, one could produce the coal by bushel or ton as desired at a minimum price.

"My niece's husband often sees Ralph Rundell at his place of business. We stopped at the Rundell's delicatessen shop one evening, but were too late for a visit. I got to talk to Miss Lillian Bruggeman, formerly teacher in Flag school in Wayne county.

"I left Denver, Tuesday, October 25, on the Denver and Rio Grande and could see skirts of snow on the way to Pueblo and Colorado Springs. The scenery is simply gorgeous through the Royal gorge. After the train had crossed the hanging bridge about 4:30 in the afternoon all passengers were permitted to get out and view the beautiful sights. Below was the Arkansas river, and behind was the hanging bridge. All around the twilight was so pronounced it was almost uncanny. And 1,000 feet above we could see the highest vehicular suspension bridge in the world. It was recently completed and costs 75c to cross, whether one walks or rides. The ten-minute stop seemed all too short.

"Very soon we were on our way to Salt Lake City, arriving there in time to hear the well-known moonday pipeorgan recital at Temple square. About 400 people were in the hall and the doors were then locked so no one could be disturbed. A guide took us to the different buildings of interest. Here I parted with Gertrude Kaun, a former Hoskins girl, who resides in Orange and who had been in Wayne county with relatives.

"Since arriving in Long Beach I have not yet seen any of the former Wayne folks. Temperatures have been hot, from 80 to 88, here the past week.

Action Is Creed Of Harold Lloyd

When the director orders "Action" for a Harold Lloyd picture, that's exactly what he gets—and plenty of it.

For the sagacious Harold of the horn-rimmed spectacles learned long ago that one of the chief qualities in a film is the quality of action. Action and more ACTION. Consequently every film this astute young comedian has ever produced has been a successful film. He has never allowed the action-continuity to lag for a minute.

When he made his first talkie, "Welcome Danger," he was confronted with a problem: would dialog slow up action?

He attacked the problem with his customary vigor and as a result made a huge success of "Welcome Danger." As most folks will remember, dialog was not permitted to slow up action in that show. Rather, action carried dialog along with it. "Welcome Danger" was a happy teaming of the two, with a slightly greater burden of responsibility on action than on dialog.

Now comes the most recent confession from the happy ha-ha house of Lloyd—"Feet First," which comes to the Gay Theatre, Sunday, November 9, for a three-day run. It is crammed full with action. Of course, "Feet First" is a talking picture, and the lines are, in their proper places, funny, romantic, whimsical, uproarious, descriptive and tense. But the action produces the main burden of the production.

Creamery Is Destroyed

Air Transport Brings Visitor
Mrs. C. F. Curry Steps Off Boeing Plane Seventeen Hours From Sacramento.
Mrs. C. F. Curry, nee Marie Gaebler, arrived in Winside Friday from her home in Sacramento, after a seventeen-hour flight via Boeing air mail plane, and a motor trip from Omaha to her home town. She came to be at the bedside of her mother, Mrs. John Gaebler, 84, who is very ill.

The flight she described as pleasant, with the air smooth most of the way, although it was slightly rough between Lincoln and Omaha. Mrs. Curry and two other persons from Sacramento were the only through passengers, although others rode for shorter distances, as the plane made six stops between Sacramento and Omaha. After landing at the Omaha field, the Boeing line provided motor transportation for Mrs. Curry, facilitating her arrival in Winside and shortening by many hours, the usual time for the journey. It was her first long flight, although Mrs. Curry has been in planes many times, and is thoroughly disinterested.

Mrs. Curry had been spending some time in California, although she and Mr. Curry have been in Washington, D. C., where Mr. Curry has been clerk of the territorial committee, and associated with his father, the late congressman. The elder Curry, who died October 10, had been dean of the California delegation, and it was on his demise just three weeks before the election, that the younger Curry entered the congressional race. His election was without opposition, and the Currys will go soon to Washington, D. C. to enter political circles, where C. F. Curry, Sr., was prominent for 18 years.

Nov. 16, "Gossip."
Nov. 23, "Is the World Growing Better?"
Nov. 30, "Sleeping in Church."
Dec. 7, "How to Get Along With Others."

Let a GENERAL ELECTRIC ALL-STEEL REFRIGERATOR

PAY FOR Sunday's Dinner

PERHAPS you've wondered how so many thousands of people of modern civilization are able to afford to have General Electric Refrigerators in their homes.

Ask your neighbors who own General Electric Refrigerators. They'll tell you how they cut down household expenses. Thousands of women save enough money by preventing spoilage and waste, actually to pay for the whole family's Sunday dinner.

There are dozens of other ways you will save money with a General Electric Refrigerator in your home. We'd like a chance to explain them to you, and to tell you of the special terms we offer. Will you drop in sometime soon?

Air Transport Brings Visitor
Mrs. C. F. Curry Steps Off Boeing Plane Seventeen Hours From Sacramento.
Mrs. C. F. Curry, nee Marie Gaebler, arrived in Winside Friday from her home in Sacramento, after a seventeen-hour flight via Boeing air mail plane, and a motor trip from Omaha to her home town. She came to be at the bedside of her mother, Mrs. John Gaebler, 84, who is very ill.

The flight she described as pleasant, with the air smooth most of the way, although it was slightly rough between Lincoln and Omaha. Mrs. Curry and two other persons from Sacramento were the only through passengers, although others rode for shorter distances, as the plane made six stops between Sacramento and Omaha. After landing at the Omaha field, the Boeing line provided motor transportation for Mrs. Curry, facilitating her arrival in Winside and shortening by many hours, the usual time for the journey. It was her first long flight, although Mrs. Curry has been in planes many times, and is thoroughly disinterested.

Mrs. Curry had been spending some time in California, although she and Mr. Curry have been in Washington, D. C., where Mr. Curry has been clerk of the territorial committee, and associated with his father, the late congressman. The elder Curry, who died October 10, had been dean of the California delegation, and it was on his demise just three weeks before the election, that the younger Curry entered the congressional race. His election was without opposition, and the Currys will go soon to Washington, D. C. to enter political circles, where C. F. Curry, Sr., was prominent for 18 years.

Flowers vs. Brickbats

By Rev. David Simpson Carroll, Neb.

A news item from Canada announces that the Orange Association of British America, received a bouquet of flowers with a tag bearing the inscription, "Greetings and best wishes for a successful convention from the Knights of Columbus."

Last week the Knights of Columbus received a bouquet with a similar inscription from the Orangemen, at the opening of their annual session.

To the average United States reader the above item refers to nothing but an exchange of flowers between fraternal societies and perhaps was hardly worth reading. But when it is realized that the Orange Association is the large militant order of Protestants in Canada engaged in fighting the Catholics on the school question, and the Knights of Columbus is the militant order of Catholicism founded to preserve and extend the so-called rights and privileges of Catholicism, the exchange of flowers between these organizations is a news item of first importance.

Years ago they have exchanged bricks and rocks, disturbed each other's meetings, and interfered with parades. Debates, fist fights, prosecutions have marked the relations of these two influential societies to each other.

Years ago the 12th of July parades of the Orange order were events long talked about. With bands playing, banners flying, and hundreds of members parading, the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne was celebrated with fiery, provocative speeches. Heated on both sides sometimes talked about the day when it would be necessary to resort to arms to drive out to curb the activities of the other society. As both groups had their secret oaths, and met in secret, it was easy to misunderstand, and suspect each other. At least one group always referred to the other as "the enemy."

Most men have read or heard of the terrible oath of the Knights of Columbus, and have trembled for Protestantism. Personally, I always contested the validity of the oath, and maintained that its circulation by Protestants was an outrage.

Now they have exchanged greetings and flowers. Yet there are people who steadfastly maintain that in international relationships it is impossible to change human nature and that there always will be war. But human nature has changed and will change. Slowly but surely the misunderstandings and prejudices in the realm of religion will die. Both Protestantism and Catholicism will maintain their doctrines and theories, which here and there are mutually opposed to each other, but the old antagonisms will die out. The rights and liberties of both groups will be tested at the bar of public opinion in our forums and courts, not by clubs, mud and jeers. The loud mouthed orator whose stock in trade is a gesture toward the flag and an appeal to bigotry, will be out of a job.

Flowers will take the place of the brickbat and outstretched hands the gestures of clenched fists. As a former member of the Orange Association of British North America, I am glad that my brethren were the first to send the flowers. May these flowers be placed, not on a tomb of something that is dead, but on an altar to dedicate to our God, a living spirit of good will and mutual understanding between the two great groups in the Church of the Living God.

Where the Ballot Rules

Geneva Signal—Depression affects the people of different nations differently. In the United States we go to the polls and express our feelings by casting ballots. In South America many of the nations are plunged into revolutionary turmoil by the same influences that depressed business in the United States. In South America when the people of a nation become dissatisfied the time is opportune for some ambitious military man, or group, to start a revolution. Several have been undertaken successfully in recent months. The list of dictators in South America and Europe is long. The ballot vote is more happy, is free from serious bloodshed and thus far has proved more efficient. Education and religion have a chance to exercise some influence where the ballot prevails; none at all when revolutionary leaders take possession of a government.
