Speaker Tells Of New Trends

Prof. O. R. Bowen Talks On Relations of the World Powers.

Finds New Forces

Moder International Situation Has Been Changed by Action of Newer Influences.

The world must be, when one considers all the influences which are at work, closer than ever before to being shields into ploughshares and swords into pruning hooks. Insisted Prof. O. R. Bowen of Wayne State Teachers College, in an address on "The Modern Trend in International Relations." Mr. Bowen gave this talk at the meeting Tuesday afternoon of P. E. O., which was held at the home of Miss Mary Mason.

He began by outlining the various causes of international unrest, clouds on the international horizon, and completed the address with a review of the forces which are at work to make such relations more peaceful.

Fight among causes of disturbance, Prof. Bowen mentioned the great preparedness, military and scientific, which the nations of the world are guilty of sponsoring. Such a condition, he emphasized, cannot lead to the establishment of a feeling of security and trust among the powers.

War Will Destroy. "Civilization," the speaker quoted, "must destroy war, or war will destroy it." In this connection he pointed out the menace of eternal preparedness, showing how the advance preparations made by some of the powers cause other powers to feel insecure and insecure.

Unrest, such as that in India, where 350 millions of people are restless and seeking to revolt against the British he used as an example of menace to peace.

Other forces of insecurity, so far as the world is concerned, Prof. Bowen mentioned were the revolutions in Latin America. He gave a brief history of the revolting forces at work in Peru, Argentina, Brazil and Bolivia, where the presidents have been overthrown, and provisional governments established. He referred also to the state of unrest which exists in Mexico, Cuba and Panama.

Another menace mentioned by Prof. Bowen was the tariff restriction which the United States has arranged. The last revision met with decided protests from Canada, Latin American countries, Europe and Japan.

High protective tariffs lead to the same kind of distrust that excessive armaments and preparation for war lead to—justified or not.

Revolt Russia, outlaw among the nations, unrestricted by the policy of without exchange of ambassadors, repudiation of national debts, Prof. Bowen mentioned as another menace to peaceful agreement.

Treaty of Versailles. "The agitation concerning the Treaty of Versailles, and its possible revision, is an important consideration," reported Mr. Bowen. The treaty was made at the close of the war in Germany, which but a representative at the conference table, found it imperative for her to sign, although the document was stated in such a way that it sought to fix the responsibility for war on Germany.

If, as so many of the jobbers in the various countries are beginning to believe, Germany was not alone responsible for the war, then she is not responsible for the payment of the 31 billions of dollars assessed against her for payment, developed the speaker.

This point leads to another of equal importance, especially to the United States. European nations have agreed to pay this country a sum of 11 billion dollars in a period of 63 years. Plus the ordinary interest, this sum will swell to over 22 billions. England and France are only two among the 12 or 13 countries which are making reparations on Germany with which to meet their obligations to the United States.

If the treaty of Versailles is revised, and the responsibility for the war is shifted, so that Germany shares it with Russia, Austria and some of the other countries of Europe, Germany will cease to be solely responsible for the entire sum of the reparations.

"There is," as the speaker proceeded to show, "no political connection between reparations and war debts, but there is an unmistakable economic connection."

Thus, if the treaty is revised, the sole responsibility for war shifted, and the source of reparations payment cut down, there arises the question of whether or not the nations will be able to

NATURAL GAS IS PROVING SUCCESS IN OTHER TOWNS

TO support the judgment of Wayne people in voting to grant a franchise for admission of natural gas, the Herald will publish results of experiences in other towns as they appear in today's Herald and reports from Auburn, Falls City and Dodge. In addition, the Schuyler Sun quotes W. J. Scott, for several years connected with the electric and gas service in Kearney, in regard to the natural gas development in that city, and Mr. Scott says: "We were never able to get our loading above 125,000 cubic feet per day with artificial gas, but since natural gas has been delivered to Kearney, the consumption has reached over 400,000 cubic feet per day and natural gas carries almost double the B. T. U.s. of the artificial gas. That answers your question how natural gas is being regarded in the city of Kearney." One after another objections have been swept aside under the light of fact and reason, and any differences that may exist over the wording of the franchise may be met and adjusted without prolonged delay.

Wayne Herd High In Testing Group

Seven in Dairy Association of Three Counties To Receive Medals.

The first year of testing for the Cuming, Wayne, Dixon, Dairy Herd Improvement association was finished in December and the cows in the association made an average of 293.3 pounds of butter fat. Seven of the twenty-six herds averaged over 300 pounds of butter fat for the year. The owners of these herds will receive medals from the Nebraska College of Agriculture. Medals are awarded to herd owners whose herds have averaged over 300 pounds for a year's test.

Wm. Val Seggern of Wayne, has the high herd of the association, it averaging 362 pounds of butter fat per cow. Other herds which averaged 300 pounds or over are those of Gale Selton, Laurel, Hugo Nicholson, Wisner, Wm. Morris, Winside, C. D. Ankney, Dixon, Lyle Gamble, Wayne, and McGuire & Rees, Winfar. Three other herds in the association would have averaged over 300 pounds per cow had they been tested for a complete year. However, as they were not tested for a complete year they will not be awarded medals but will receive certificates of merit. These herds are owned by Wm. Peggles, West Point, Ed. S. Zennick, Filger, and Arthur Egels, Bancroft.

Hugh McGee of Lincoln, has been hired as the tester for the year. He has taken the place of Arthur Anderson, who had been the tester for 1930 and under whose direction the herds in the association made an exceptional record for the first year's testing. Mr. Anderson resigned his position to go on a farm in Sheridan county. Mr. McGee has been on the job during the past ten days and will continue through 1931.

FARMERS TO MEET HERE AS GUESTS OF KIWANIS CLUB

NEXT Monday noon farmers will be guests of members of the Kiwanis club and other business men at a luncheon and dinner, the latter by Francis Flood, noted traveler. Farmers are urged to attend on the strength of newspaper announcement and without personal solicitation. These groups are interdependent, and it is important for them to get together occasionally and talk things over. Personal contacts often prompt suggestions that are stimulating and mutually helpful. All have problems to solve, and all may be benefited by discussion, reciprocity of ideas, exchange of experiences. Differences which are usually petty and often aggravated by imagination, are easily removed by talking shoulders and hearing understanding. Close relationships reveal better intentions than are sometimes suspected. The coming farmer-townsman meeting tends in the direction of more just appreciation of human values. More such meetings would be valuable in strengthening the position of each in the steadily rising social standard.

Learned Group Is Progressive

Dr. J. G. W. Lewis Finds Profes- sors Solving National and World Problems.

"The American Political Science association," the annual meeting of which was held in Cleveland, Ohio, last week, "is an organization of professors of political science and all the principal colleges and universities of the United States," says Dr. J. G. W. Lewis who arrived home Friday from the convention. "Members attend from places as far separated as Canada and Mexico, New York and Seattle, Maine and California."

This year, Dr. Lewis explains, the association met with a number of similar associations such as the American Economic and the American Sociological society. At the same time and place a most notable gathering of specialists in the fields of natural and biological science was held. There were some exchanges of attendance and some joint meetings.

"Perhaps the most significant feature of the meeting," explained Dr. Lewis, "was the increasing evidence of cooperation between learned groups and the very evident tendency actually to use accumulated knowledge for the betterment of mankind." If anyone still has the notion that professors of political science, economics and sociology, for instance, are theoretical and impractical idealists, explains Dr. Lewis, he is due for a great disillusionment. These men are actually taking the lead in practical politics, writing constitutions, city charters and laws, making statutes for world courts, modifying international law, managing cities and commonwealths.

In short, Dr. Lewis asserts, there is no greater knowledge of all sides of American social life anywhere than is to be found in the aggregate membership of such bodies as the American Political Science association and similar groups.

If one were to say truthfully what is the general attitude of such a gathering, he would have to answer, "emphatically progressive." The so-called "stand-patter" would find little encouragement in such company. The general attitude is one of progressivism in politics, economics and international relations. Only a progressive would find the atmosphere congenial.

Dr. Lewis reported very visible evidence of unemployment and destitution especially in such cities as Chicago and Cleveland.

These men will be installed at the morning service next Sunday. The Ladies' Aid meets this Thursday at the church. The new president, Mrs. A. C. Thompson, will be in charge. Come and let us worship together. Methodist Episcopal Church. (Rev. W. W. Whitman, Pastor) The response to our "Church Workers Inventory" last Sunday was very encouraging. We expect to classify and organize the results as soon as possible so that every member will have definite work. Wayne Churches (Continued) social evening, program, games. It ought to be a splendid, worthwhile evening. The pastor thanks all those who are making our work an interesting, delightful, and fun-filled affair, especially evenings. Come again, and often. Presbyterian Church. (Rev. P. A. Davies, Pastor) It certainly was a privilege to hear Dr. Morrill last Tuesday afternoon and evening. And what a crowd there were about the tables in the evening. One hundred and eighty were present. Our beautiful dining hall well filled to overflowing, a wonderful supper prepared by our ladies and best of all a masterly address by one of the great leaders of the church, gave our people an evening that will be long remembered. We hope that it will be our privilege to hear Dr. Morrill again in Wayne. We wish to thank the ladies for the supper and the crowd. For in great part the people were present because they had been called by members of the committee. It is hard work but who can estimate the value of the larger fellowship of such times. Again the pastor wishes to say thank you. The Ladies' Aid was entertained in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. R. A. McEachern, Mrs. W. C. Coryell, Mrs. R. L. Larson and Mrs. C. E. Fisher. The committee in charge of obtaining new song books for our Sunday school and the evening hour is asking people to be as generous as possible. We will need at least 50 books and organized. Books will cost about $140. Services were well attended last Sunday. We are asking for two large congregations next Sunday. Our young people's work is growing. Are you interested in the young people of Wayne? If you are, will you not be present next Sunday evening? The evening services as you know are in great part the work of the young people. Our services for next Sunday are as follows: Sunday school, 10 a. m., morning worship, 11: evening services, 7:30 p. m. First Baptist Church. (Rev. W. E. Braisted, Minister) 608 Logan St., Phone 309J. Sunday, January 11: 10:00 a. m., the church Sunday school Bible study. "Watch us grow." Lesson: "The Religious Training of Jesus." Classes for all. 11:00 a. m., worship, praise in song and prayer, with message, subject: "Sower, Seed, Soil, Success." Interested? Come. 6:30 p. m., Young People's discussion group. Topic: "My Idea of What a Young Man Ought to Be." That's interesting. Especially as the discussion is to be led by a young woman. Young men, better come and find out what it's all about. And that is a mighty fine topic. And the next week, we'll get the "other half." Better get both sides. 7:30 p. m., the evening good fellowship hour. Fine, group singing the great hymns of the church, sometimes special numbers, and always a vital Gospel message, applicable to daily living right where we live. This will be on "Life and Life." What about it? Each Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock the Life Enrichment group for Bible study, discussion, prayer, have you tried it? Welcome. THE KNOT-HOLE No. 43 Wayne, Neb., Thursday, January 8, 1931. Vol. 4 HOLD EVERYTHING! Are you still dating your letters 1930? Make the Carhart Lumber Co. your fuel and building material headquarters during 1931. One good way to celebrate a thrift week would be to get that 1931 auto license. And speaking of thrift further of that week, why not get a load of St. Louis furnace coal at $8.50 the ton? And then Hank Suhr had to stick his head in the door and shout, "Wayne smells gassy." Now just what does Hank mean by that? We have a number of Nebraska type "dry" houses made up ready for the spring pig crop. Look 'em over. A Wayne husband, who recently had a new house present, is quoted as saying that many a wedded battle is started for the purpose of securing an indemnity. Five thousand new railroad rail, orange colored steel posts unloaded into our yard last week. We don't like to buy them this time of year, but the demand for this wonderful post completely used up our stock. We simply had to do it. No hooch-hound would trust a shift-eyed stranger if he were buying oil to put in his car. But even a confirmed "dry" has been known to give their money to strangers for something they hoped would prove to be as good as represented. Philosophy, as a general thing, is just the snug complacency of the man whose nest is well feathered. Time was when cement was not used in the winter time. While not used so extensively in winter as in summer, it forms a considerable part of our winter building material output. A fresh car arrived this week. A friend of ours over in Wakefield claims they have a strictly up-to-date police force. He says Wakefield police officers even have caddies to carry their clubs. Did the people vote for gas they did! And being firm believers in the principle of majority rule, we believe they should have the opportunity to use it at the earliest possible date. How's business with you, old man? "Oh, lookin' in." "What do you mean, lookin' in?" "Well, it's flat on its back, isn't it?" Here They Are Again! Home From Trip To Many States

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Gildersleeve Have Enjoyable Visit in East and South.

A three-month trip through seventeen states and to Canada proved most interesting to Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Gildersleeve who arrived home Monday.

They had lived and visited places as well as the many new scenes made the months delightful.

Leaving Wayne in October the Gildersleeves went to Albion, Mich., to see their daughter, Miss Helen, who has a position at a college there.

They then went to Niagara Falls and afterward to Pittsburgh, Pa., visiting Mrs. E. R. Phillips, formerly Miss Elizabeth Gildersleeve, at the latter place.

Mrs. Gildersleeve's native home, Astor, visiting Pennsylvania points the Gildersleeves went to Dover, Del., to see their son, Glenn, who instructs in music there.

They took trips to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Wilmington, Washington and other places of interest on the coast, and saw Gettysburg, the Statue of Liberty and other points of special note.

Pennsylvania and Delaware were exceptionally beautiful when the Gildersleeves went through the states this fall.

The many varieties of trees and shrubs had turned the hills and valleys into scenes of bright colors.

Many things have been mild in the east and this fact has helped much in preventing suffering among unemployed.

Through many factories are not operating at capacity and the bread lines are long in the large cities, the Gildersleeves were informed that business conditions are beginning to improve there.

Much highway work and other construction are being started to give laborers something to do.

Mr. and Mrs. Gildersleeve went down the coast from Dover to the Penney farms in Florida to visit Rev. and Mrs. C. D. Gearhart, the latter a sister of Mrs. Gildersleeve.

The Penney farms is a large tract of land which J. C. Penney, store owner, has established for ministrations of all denominations who are no longer able to conduct their work.

A number of houses containing three or more apartments have been built, all of stucco with red tile roofs.

Furniture, electric stoves and heating are provided. Mr. Penney has set aside a fund for their upkeep.

Accommodations are provided for 40 ministers and their wives and they need only furnish their food and bedding. A minister must have an income of at least $400 a year with which to buy his provisions.

Grounds of the farms are beautifully landscaped and such games as horse-shoe pitching and croquet are provided.

The Penney fund hires help to care for the grounds and buildings. The climate at Penney farms is ideal.

With Rev. and Mrs. Gearhart the Gildersleeves drove about 900 miles through Florida, going down the eastern coast and then across to the gulf and back through the orange growing districts and the Indian settlement.

They enjoyed stops at the beaches which are beautiful with palms and buildings.

In crossing the southern part of Florida to go to the gulf the party had to drive over 100 miles of highway which had been built from a swamp.

A canal 30 feet deep was dug and the material taken from this for the grade. When removed from the swamp the material hardened like stone.

When covered with concrete it made an ideal road. One stretch of the road has no houses for 75 miles.

The Gildersleeves made their trip by train excepting the drive through Florida and trips out of Dover. They found wonderfully fine roads all through the east though concrete being the surfacing used.

Mr. and Mrs. Gildersleeve returned to Dover from Florida and spent the holidays. Miss Helen Gildersleeve went there from Michigan and the family was together for Christmas for the first time in ten years.

The Wayne people returned home directly from Dover.

One finally grows old enough so that he may call almost anyone a young man or young woman without making a mistake or giving offense.

The need of a modern apartment house in Wayne, necessitating teachers and others, is said to be urgent. It is believed it could be made a paying investment.

The weather is still mild enough to be considered a close rival of the brand dealt out in California. However, any suspicion that the elements here have forgotten how to freeze and blow may be quickly removed any day.

The Nebraska legislature is in session again, and Lincoln becomes the center of attraction. Our hope is that the session will do more good than harm, and that the money received by the solons will be fairly well earned.

A contest in accuracy is being carried on by a Philadelphia newspaper to determine the comparative skill of a government weather prophet and a backyard soothsayer who depends on goosebones and groundhogs. The last accounts the federal forecaster was somewhat in the lead.

We are reading Albert Edward Wiggam's book on heredity, and we will soon be able to understand what the matter is with people who disagree with us. But heredity is a serious question. Wiggam takes a family tree and defines contributing causes for defects or for strong points. We judge favorable heredity is much like college training. It helps success, but is not indispensable to it. Proper environment, spurring ambition, may modify or overcome unfortunate natural tendencies. On the contrary, unwholesome environment that persists, may break down a high inheritance. Heredity of the right sort, under the influence of proper environment, would seem likely to develop the highest human type.

Use of the radio in large centers to detect criminals and run down criminals has made practical the reduction of police forces. Officers should have thought of this substitution in advance and organized against it, demanding abolition of the radio on the ground of interfering with the original and conventional order.

The state auditor reports that Nebraska has resources of $81,263,381 with no indebtedness. Compared with 1928, resources show an increase of $7,283,607. The auditor reports the largest general fund balance in the history of the state. Results would indicate a most satisfactory condition during a period when crepe hanging and gloomy preachment are in vogue.

Encouraging news comes from large employing industries. About 40,000 workmen were returned to work this week in automobile factories and railroad shops. This is noted the first reemployment since last May. Now if the government will talk less and act more in starting its building program, the armies of unemployed will fast dwindle and demands for farm products and manufactured goods will increase and put needed life into markets.

As natural gas is odorless, we are informed that the company safeguards use of the product by injecting an odor into it. Thus, in case of a leak or an open jet, people are apprised of what is happening and are in no danger of being asphyxiated unless they neglect to be. Just so the odor is strong enough to be detected, people will not disagree over the kind. It will be selected for the purpose of making it most noticeable rather than most pleasing.

From his health haven in Phoenix, Arizona, Editor F. D. Stone contributes each week to his Hartington Herald a gist of editorials and feature stories, and in the last edition of that progressive newspaper, he gives a New Year's sermon, quoting from St. Paul whose suggestion about opportunities and lurking adversaries was applied to present times. As pointed out, Paul had a big field for service with the stimulus of plenty of ugly knickers. Editor Stone correctly believes there were never more opportunities than are to be found today, but that numerous adversaries are loitering around to afflict hardship and handicap progress. But, he concludes, "If we go forward with the same high purpose, dauntless courage and unswerving faith which characterized Paul, we may be assured that the year will be an era of conquest and achievement."

Dr. A. L. Bixby who is spjourning in southern California, writes of descending frost and threatening damage to unpicker oranges. Warning of impending low temperature is issued and out come hundreds of snudge pots to avert the calamity. When the mercury hovers below thirty in the citrus fruit belt, a battle is waged with flaming pots, and everybody is gripped with feverish uneasiness. All through weary nights during a cold snap, the war is kept up to save the fruit for the world and to insure compensation for growers. Distance lends enchantment to the orange industry, but the charm vanishes with proximity and experience. However, California must raise fruit to exchange for our fat hogs and cattle, and the only way to do it will be through the register around twentyfour above zero is to start the snudge business on time and keep it up until the frosting moves on.

The guaranty of free speech in the United States senate is turned to advantage by members in describing the weaknesses of one another engaged in the task of upholding popular government. The after-election pledge of peace and cooperation was reassuring, but so far it has failed to function, according to reports from the seat of government. Just before adjournment for the Christmas holidays, the batteries of the two opposing groups in the republican party were turned against each other, Lucas leading as a conservative and Norris swinging into action as an insurgent. Lucas declared that the Norris ought to be put out of the republican party, and the exchange of strongly worded accusations would have been more appropriate in a prize ring than in the councils of our highest legislative body. Insurgents invited Lucas to move out of the republican party. Members of neither faction indicated any desire or intention to be kicked out of the party. The conflict was interrupted for adjournment, so that members could get home in time to commemorate the nativity of the Prince of Peace.

We still believe other countries could well afford to join the United States in contributing the aid necessary to reach the North China and India. This charity would serve philanthropic ends and at the same time strengthen and stabilize markets. The Omaha Journal-Stockman emphasizes the failure of governments to fix or control prices, advising that "all history has demonstrated the futility of attempting either by combination of interests or by the power of government to fix and control prices of commodities of world-wide production and use. And yet man attempts to do this very thing." The Journal-Stockman concludes with this quotation from Macaulay, the English essayist: "Our rulers will best promote the improvement of the nation by strictly confining themselves to their own legitimate duties—by leaving capital to find its most lucrative course, commodities their fair price, industry and intelligence their natural reward, idleness and folly their natural punishment—by maintaining peace, by defending property, by diminishing the price of law, and by observing strict economy in every department of the state."

Business. Sioux City Journal: As leading economists express themselves regarding the outlook for the present year, one wonders whether they have taken everything into account in predicting a rather slow upturn in business. Reference is made to the prediction that the bottom has not yet been reached, and that this will come in the spring. Also to the speculation that the last half of 1931 may be as good as or a little better than the first six months of 1930, with the appreciable upturn beginning January 1, 1932.

It is quite possible—in fact it is believed to be likely—that these calculations have been based for the most part on the assumption that natural processes would bring the change. If that is true, then it is reasonable to assume that, because of the development of what may be described as artificial acceleration, the future may be brighter in greater degree than the economists are expecting.

The Journal now makes reference to the forces that are being brought to bear upon the economic situation throughout the country. It is known that in every state and every community there is to be increased activity as part of the general plan to revive business and absorb a large part of the unemployment. Leading off with planned expenditures of nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars, the federal government is encouraging states and municipalities to put more than $4,000,000,000 additional into public works of various kinds. Thus a total of about $5,000,000,000 will be available for this purpose.

That means that public expenditures in this amount will be added to the general movement for a business advance. Five billion dollars will buy a vast amount of materials and will employ an impressive number of workers. That is to be far the largest amount ever devoted in a single year to public works in this country. One wonders, indeed, whether the upturn is to be so long delayed if that amount of money is to be poured into the business hopper. Incidentally, a good deal of dependence may be put in the suggestion that this public movement will encourage industry and thousands of private persons to go ahead with plans for improvement. And, once everybody gets the impression that the situation actually is improving, progress will become automatic. At this time it seems reasonably safe to say that the outlook for recovery this year is most encouraging.

AS TO RESENTMENT.

Dining with a group of physicians and one professional educator at the Kewanee luncheon Monday, we were impressed by the course supported as the proper one to follow in the presence of conflict or attack. One doctor leaned farther in the direction of amity under pressure of misrepresentation than his temperament would lead one to guess. However, his idea to suffer some injustice without imparting usefulness by offering resentment seemed sound and sensible.

The educator took the position that he would not fight for the principle, but that he would not waste time and nerve force in averting personal affronts. He can tolerate abuse undisturbed as long as it does not trample on the things he stands for. In the ordinary course of affairs people may be about him with impunity, but they cannot trip him in his pursuit of a principle without drawing fire. His philosophy doubtless insures more peace of mind and more accomplishment than the habit of the fellow who is easily peeved and who harrows himself in trying to redress real or fancied wrongs.

Often persons push forward the ground for which they fight. The real reason which is too superficial or selfish to gain respectful attention, is camouflaged by misinterpretation and falsehood developed from plausible suspicion. The actual reason is too frail to stand on its own feet, and is admitted. Thus, if busy people devoted themselves to defense against false charges or to kicking carping critics, they would, as suggested by the philosophers at the Kewanee luncheon, absorb in the effort force of mind and body needed for constructive work.

Dr. A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: Porterville, Calif., Dec. 31. At home I go to bed early and get up when the roosters crow. Out here in the grove the boy goes out until 10 o'clock or later, and the first call for breakfast comes at very near sunup. The harvesting crew doesn't start work much before 11 because of morning dampness in the trees. Yesterday seven pickers gathered 423 boxes of oranges, gleaming $42.30 in six hours of rather strenuous activity, a fraction above 60 cents an hour for each toiler, if I haven't stumbled in my mathematics.

There are hundreds of people in this coast country who make fruit harvesting their profession and are experts in the work. Many of them are nomads, having "no abiding city," but pitching their tents wherever their services may be in demand. Many toilers craving to get in the game where the winter climate is inviting, come from the east in their flivvers, with all the folks on board, thinking this is of unlimited opportunity. A majority of these people are bitterly disappointed. The land of milk and honey and roast turkey is on further, in a narrow valley, where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest.

California is a big state. Its resources are being heavily taxed to sustain its present large population. Just now its cities are crowded with "soldiers of fortune" having no visible means of support. It makes the good hard for them and for the community that just give relief or go to the expense of burying those who perish for want of food.

In the cities of the far west, as well as those where walks are icy in the winter time, the soul of Christian philanthropy glows like a political bonfire at this time of year. As an example the San Francisco Chronicle is raising a fund for Christmas dinners for families in the city who otherwise wouldn't know it was Christmas. Already the budget has totaled about $5,000, and more coming in every day. The same spirit is prevailing in Lincoln, Omaha and Sioux City. I like to see such an expression in generous giving. But I wish our statements and philanthropists would go a little deeper into the problem of human brotherhood and work out some plan for helping the worthy to earn and enjoy three squares a day from one year's end to the other. If in a Christmas dinner only I have hope, "I am of all men most miserable."

Stock Shipping Is Again Very Light. Omaha Daily Journal-Stockman: Just about this time every year, particularly if the winter happens to be early and severe, a good many people of the Middle West become afflicted with the California itch. When their friends write from the coast they tell of sunny skies and beautiful flowers and the picture certainly has its attractions to folks who are wrestling with snow shovels, stubborn furnaces and frozen water pipes.

There is another side of the picture that is not usually stressed and that is the bread and butter side. People must eat no matter where they are and you can't live on sunny skies and beautiful flowers. The first thing the practical farmer thinks about is the farm prospects, the chances of making a living and perhaps some profit. Here is where the real estate agent gets in his deadly work. According to this individual the sure road to easily acquired wealth is the purchase and operation of an orange grove.

Undoubtedly more people have been lured to southern California by the picture of an orange grove than anything else. The real estate circulars are very attractive, it all looks so comfortable, so easy and so profitable that it is little wonder that people fall for the game. It is only after it is too late that the victim realizes that orange growing is no soft snap and that the profits are generally in the real estate circuit.

The story of disillusionment is frequently long and harrowing but there is not a great deal of variation to it. There is really only one way to get at the facts in the case and that is to go out to California and visit around among the people from the Middle West who are now living there. Dr. A. L. Bixby of the Lincoln Journal is doing just that and he is keeping his eyes and ears open for the low down on the orange grove racket. Here it is as he sees it:

"As a matter of fact the orange industry requires money as a prerequisite, intelligent thought and tireless industry. A native was heard to remark the other day, 'Any damphool can raise grapes, but it takes a smart man to raise oranges.'"

Just to give an idea of what is to be expected: You select an available tract of what may not have been wheat land near the foothills. It costs $150 to $200 for your forty acre experiment. First thing is the installation of a pumping plant for irrigation at a cost of $5,000. Then three thousand three set you back $6,000 more. It requires seven years of irrigation, cultivation and profanation before the grove begins to give tardy and incomplete returns, and in that time your total expenditures if you have kept up and are not in the poor house, may be set down, taxes and all, at very close to $25,000. When the trees are ten to twelve years old, if judiciously sprayed and fertilized, the pump going day and night during the heated season, the grove at harvest time has become a pleasant picture and, barring the unusual, there may be a balance to your credit when everything is settled for at the end of the fiscal year.

"It will be seen by these casual figures that the man who comes out here, with no money in his purse, expecting to grow oranges, will be in good luck if he finds passable going back to the place from whence he came."

California orange culture makes delightful winter reading but it is dangerous.

Former Student Wed In August. Miss Selma Pearson and Edward E. Smith of Grand Island, Miss Pearson a former student of the Wayne State Teachers College, were married August 19 and the wedding has just been announced. They will live in Grand Island.

Carl Brudigan Has A Painful Accident. Carl Brudigan, living southeast of Wayne, suffered a very painful injury Wednesday morning, when he caught his hand in the corn-sheller which he was operating, mangle the member. Mr. Brudigan had attempted to remove lint from the machine when the accident occurred. He was taken to a Sioux City hospital for treatment.

The Farmer's Problem.

Lincoln Journal: Nebraska has reduced wheat acreage about 22 percent, comparing 1930 seeding with that of 1929. The acreage reduction is about 446,000 acres. Reduction in the country as a whole is only about 471,000 acres. This it will be seen that most of the wheat acreage reduction is in the United States is in Nebraska.

A Washington dispatch tells us that Russia is contemplating a wheat acreage increase of 19 percent for the next season, that is for spring seeding. With an increase in acreage in most states and in several foreign countries, it would seem that Nebraskans alone have accepted as certain the probability of a glutted wheat market next season.

If Nebraskans will make use of abandoned wheat land in other ways, if they will increase alfalfa and other crops, crop acreage and production of beef and pork, they may gain by the reduction. Certainly a great deal could not be made by increasing wheat acreage when low prices seem certain for the next few years.

"What shall I turn?" asks the farmer who sees the slump in prices of dairy products, of poultry and eggs and prices none too good for pork and beef. No one can answer that question for the individual farmer. He knows the capabilities of his farming plant, he knows what he can grow best, and at least cost, and that for which he can realize the greater returns.

One of the troubles of the past has been that advisers of the farmer have assumed to tell him what to do when their object was chiefly selfish. If the farmer will reason for himself and listen little to those moved by personal interests he will fare better. The farmer's problem, like that of the merchant, the manufacturer and the laborer, is his own. It must be solved by the man or men concerned.

If Nebraskans will make use of abandoned wheat land in other ways, if they will increase alfalfa and other crops, crop acreage and production of beef and pork, they may gain by the reduction. Certainly a great deal could not be made by increasing wheat acreage when low prices seem certain for the next few years.

"What shall I turn?" asks the farmer who sees the slump in prices of dairy products, of poultry and eggs and prices none too good for pork and beef. No one can answer that question for the individual farmer. He knows the capabilities of his farming plant, he knows what he can grow best, and at least cost, and that for which he can realize the greater returns.

One of the troubles of the past has been that advisers of the farmer have assumed to tell him what to do when their object was chiefly selfish. If the farmer will reason for himself and listen little to those moved by personal interests he will fare better. The farmer's problem, like that of the merchant, the manufacturer and the laborer, is his own. It must be solved by the man or men concerned.

In California. Dr. A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: Porterville, Calif., Dec. 31. At home I go to bed early and get up when the roosters crow. Out here in the grove the boy goes out until 10 o'clock or later, and the first call for breakfast comes at very near sunup. The harvesting crew doesn't start work much before 11 because of morning dampness in the trees. Yesterday seven pickers gathered 423 boxes of oranges, gleaming $42.30 in six hours of rather strenuous activity, a fraction above 60 cents an hour for each toiler, if I haven't stumbled in my mathematics.

There are hundreds of people in this coast country who make fruit harvesting their profession and are experts in the work. Many of them are nomads, having "no abiding city," but pitching their tents wherever their services may be in demand. Many toilers craving to get in the game where the winter climate is inviting, come from the east in their flivvers, with all the folks on board, thinking this is of unlimited opportunity. A majority of these people are bitterly disappointed. The land of milk and honey and roast turkey is on further, in a narrow valley, where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest.

California is a big state. Its resources are being heavily taxed to sustain its present large population. Just now its cities are crowded with "soldiers of fortune" having no visible means of support. It makes the good hard for them and for the community that just give relief or go to the expense of burying those who perish for want of food.

In the cities of the far west, as well as those where walks are icy in the winter time, the soul of Christian philanthropy glows like a political bonfire at this time of year. As an example the San Francisco Chronicle is raising a fund for Christmas dinners for families in the city who otherwise wouldn't know it was Christmas. Already the budget has totaled about $5,000, and more coming in every day. The same spirit is prevailing in Lincoln, Omaha and Sioux City. I like to see such an expression in generous giving. But I wish our statements and philanthropists would go a little deeper into the problem of human brotherhood and work out some plan for helping the worthy to earn and enjoy three squares a day from one year's end to the other. If in a Christmas dinner only I have hope, "I am of all men most miserable."

College High Is Winner In Games. Wayne college high school basketball teams met Belden at Belden Tuesday evening, both Wayne teams winning. The first team score was 21 to 12, and the second was 20 to 2.

Former Resident Hurt in Dakota. Mrs. R. E. Dimick of Deadwood, S. D., former resident of Wayne, was severely injured last week when she was struck by a car while crossing a street.

Stock Shipping Is Again Very Light. Omaha Daily Journal-Stockman: Just about this time every year, particularly if the winter happens to be early and severe, a good many people of the Middle West become afflicted with the California itch. When their friends write from the coast they tell of sunny skies and beautiful flowers and the picture certainly has its attractions to folks who are wrestling with snow shovels, stubborn furnaces and frozen water pipes.

There is another side of the picture that is not usually stressed and that is the bread and butter side. People must eat no matter where they are and you can't live on sunny skies and beautiful flowers. The first thing the practical farmer thinks about is the farm prospects, the chances of making a living and perhaps some profit. Here is where the real estate agent gets in his deadly work. According to this individual the sure road to easily acquired wealth is the purchase and operation of an orange grove.

Undoubtedly more people have been lured to southern California by the picture of an orange grove than anything else. The real estate circulars are very attractive, it all looks so comfortable, so easy and so profitable that it is little wonder that people fall for the game. It is only after it is too late that the victim realizes that orange

United States a war debt will meet that obligation.

Mentions Monroe Doctrine.

Another menace which the speaker mentioned is the Latin American attitude toward the Monroe doctrine. He enlarged this point, by explaining briefly the doctrine, and the Latin American reaction to its stipulations.

Concluding the discussion of the darker side of the picture of relations among the nations, Prof. Bowen turned to a consideration of the brighter aspects. He treated of the modern movements for the promotion of understanding and good will, seeing in them a means of rescue for the troubled nations.

Arbitration Will Help.

Arbitration, the vogue for treaty making, and the trend toward the holding of conferences and congresses the speaker stressed particularly. Among congresses and conferences he mentioned the Washington congress of 1921, the Havana Pan-American congress of 1928, the London disarmament conference of 1930, and the recent Dominion congress held in London.

Another good force, he pointed out, is the Pan American union which operates in Washington, D. C. where a large million dollar building has been constructed, and where frequent meetings of the powers are held. As a result, better feeling and understanding prevail than was possible formerly.

Conferences and discussions have led to the acceptance of a new interpretation of the Monroe doctrine, with the result that the countries of the western hemisphere understand that the doctrine does not mean an intervention in Latin American internal affairs.

Although Prof. Bowen did not state that he favored the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations, he mentioned the organization of 50 nations as beneficial to the countries which have gone into it for better understanding of each others' problems. The World Court, too, he spoke of, as being called a tribunal of international justice, and of its importance to the world as such.

Secret treaties are fast losing in popularity, Prof. Bowen showed, and there is a more honest, above board attitude in all international relations than there was before the war.

For World Peace.

One of the great forces toward world peace, as the address presented them, is the Kellogg peace pact, to which 64 nations of the world are signatory. The pact enforces peace through a renunciation of war as an institution of national policy, and seeks a settlement of disputes by peaceful means.

At the close of his talk, Prof. Bowen brought out the importance of the contributions of modern science to the furthering of peace in the world. Rapid transportation and communication, he urged the remote countries neighbors now, and great new bonds of mutual understanding and fellowship. It was for these reasons that he felt free to make the statement that the nations of the earth are approaching a state of peaceful agreement, which will further the ends of real progress.

Several Attend Naze Bruce Rites at Old River Town of Decatur.

Naze Bruce, 82, pioneer of Burt county territory in the early days, died January 2 in a Sioux City hospital while he was waiting to undergo an operation for cataract. He had been blind for some time, and had such an operation on the other eye previously. He had gone to the hospital the day after Christmas in the hope of having his sight restored.

He was born in New York state, and came, at the age of 20 years, 62 years ago, to the river country in eastern Nebraska. For a number of years Mr. Bruce served as a trucker in and out of Omaha, then a small town, as was Decatur. K. N. Parke Shows Some Rare Volumes

A perfect example of the book-binder's art is the half-postage stamp size volume of Lincoln's addresses which is in the possession of K. N. Parke of Wayne State Teachers college. The little book, which has the addresses nicely arranged, page by page, is about three-eighths of an inch thick, is finely bound in a fragment of red leather, and is stamped in gold with the word Lincoln and the customary gold lines. The addresses are perfectly legible.

Another interesting possession of Mr. Parke is the volume of Locke's "Essay on Human Understanding," a volume published in the east during the 1700's, and is a good study of preservation. The volume was the gift of Harry Ellis Fisher, who found it in a collection of old books belonging to his grandmother, Mrs. C. O. Fisher.

Wayne County Officers Take Up Duties of New Term Today

Wayne county officers began their terms today—some newly elected, others re-elected and some continuing an unexpired term. A brief sketch of each will be appropriate at this time:

Judge J. Cherry Serves In Many County Offices

County Judge J. M. Cherry, now serving his eleventh year in his present capacity, has also held the positions of deputy county clerk, county treasurer and county sheriff of Wayne county. He has been a resident of the county for 47 years.

Judge Cherry was born at Iowa City, Iowa, and came to Wayne March 31, 1884. His first position in Wayne was in the E. L. Jones Lumber yards, the next, in the same line of business with J. O. Milliken and Paul A. English. In January, 1886, Mr. Cherry was sent to Winside where his company had opened a new lumber yard and grain house. Two years later the company sold the Winside business and Mr. Cherry went to Lindsay, Neb., where he entered the employ of Fuller, Smith and Fuller, lumber and grain company. On January 1, 1890, after the election of S. B. Russell to the office of county clerk of Wayne county, Mr. Cherry returned to Wayne and took Mr. Russell's place in an elevator. Upon the death of Jacob H. Brown, deputy county clerk, Mr. Cherry was appointed to fill the vacancy. This position he held from 1895 to 1897, until elected to the office of county sheriff, serving for four years, from 1898 until 1901. Mr. Cherry then went back to the carpenter trade which was originally his vocation, and worked at this for two years, from 1902 until 1903 at the end of which time he was named for county treasurer, serving from 1904 until 1907. After four years in the treasurer's office he went into the A. J. Ferguson real estate office. He was elected to the position of city clerk and water commissioner in 1912, serving until 1918. In January, 1919, he became county judge and has since held the position.

Clerk Youngest County Official Nebraska Boasts

The youngest county official in the state to be named at the past election, Miss Bertha Berres, was appointed as clerk April 15, 1930, following the death of Chas. W. Reynolds who then held the office. Miss Berres began her work as assistant deputy under Mr. Reynolds in 1925 and became deputy October 4, 1927 following the resignation of Mrs. Ellis Miner.

The young officer was nominated for election as clerk at the primaries and was elected at the November 4 polls.

Miss Berres was born in Wayne county on a farm seven miles south of Wayne. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Berres have been residents of the county for forty years. She attended the Wayne Teachers college.

Native Of Wayne County Serves As Commissioner

Frank Erxleben, of Wayne, county commissioner for eight years, was born in Wayne county on a farm one mile north and one mile east of Altona in 1871 and lived on the same section of land for more than fifty years or until moving into Wayne six years ago. Mr. Erxleben still owns his farm in the Plum Creek precinct.

Thirty years ago, February 14, 1901, Mr. Erxleben married Miss Emma Schack of the Wisner vicinity. Mr. and Mrs. Erxleben have two sons and three daughters. Miss Esther teaches at Brighton, Ohio, and Miss Frances is now teaching for her fourth term in a South Sioux City high school. Mrs. W. H. Hall lives in Omaha. A son, Irvin, is working toward a position with an air mail or air transport line. The youngest child, Lloyd, attends the Wayne high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Erxleben have one grandchild, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hall of Omaha.

Pearl E. Sewell Begins On Fifth Term Of Office

Miss Pearl E. Sewell is now beginning her fifth term as county superintendent of Wayne county. She was first elected in 1914 and took office January 1, 1915, succeeding Mrs. Elsie Ringer Vaughn.

Miss Sewell was born at Newton, Iowa, and came with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Sewell, to Wayne when 4 years old. She was graduated from the Wayne high school in 1896 and from the Nebraska Normal School in 1900. In the summer of 1910 she attended the state university at Lincoln.

Miss Sewell taught in the rural schools of Wayne county for several years before accepting a position as instructor in the fourth grade of the Carroll schools. Later she had charge of departmental work in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of a Norfolk school, teaching history, penmanship and drawing. At the time of her election to the county superintendency, Miss Sewell was instructing in the fourth grade of the Wayne school.

Miss Sewell has had a number of interesting trips which have proved helpful in her experience with teachers. Twice she has taken trips to Denver and Colorado Springs and the coastal trip including points in Oregon, Washington and California. In 1925 she took the "Sunshine" trip to the south and visiting New Orleans and Galveston and other places of interest. Four years ago she visited the Great Lakes, going as far east as Niagara Falls and Buffalo, N. Y. Lesser trips have included excursions to Excelsior Springs, Mo., and two trips to Hot Springs, S. D., and other points in the Black Hills.

Miss Sewell and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Sewell, who are now 82 years old, live at 215 West Fourth street, Wayne.

Mr. Rethwisch came to Carroll from Washington county in 1893. Twenty years ago he settled on the farm five and one-half miles northwest of Carroll where he now lives.

The veteran officer had lived in Nebraska a number of years prior to the time he settled at Carroll. At the age of 12 Mr. Rethwisch came to America from Germany. In 1894, the year after Mr. Rethwisch settled at Carroll, he married Miss Anna Schmidt of Blair. Mr. Rethwisch was elected to the county board in 1912.

J. J. Steele, now beginning his third term as treasurer of Wayne county, is a veteran of the World war having served in the United States infantry and in the aviation corps. He has been a resident of Wayne county for thirtyeight years.

Mr. Steele was born in Smith county, Virginia, in the Blue Ridge range of the Alleghany mountains and lived there until he was 8 years old. With his parents he came west, the family settling first in Stanton county where they lived one year. At the end of that time they moved to Brenna precinct in Wayne county, on a farm eleven miles southwest of Wayne, living in that precinct for thirteen years. In 1907 the family moved to Strahan precinct, living there until 1914 when they moved into Wayne.

Mr. Steele attended the Wayne Teachers College and taught in rural schools of the county for three years. In 1917 while teaching at Napier, Neb., he joined the United States army and served on the Mexican border for seven months. Following his return to Nebraska at the cessation of the border outbreak, the world war was declared and Mr. Steele served in the army for two and one-half years. He was honorably discharged on October 29, 1919.

Three years after the armistice was signed, or in 1922, Mr. Steele was elected to the office of county treasurer and has since held the office.

STATE IN BATH OF NATURAL GAS LINES OF SOUTH

A NEW industry that has developed with amazing speed has mightily affected Nebraska and is effecting some sweeping changes in several fields. Natural gas, a few years ago a term used and understood only in the regions where petroleum is found, has become known in far distant places. Nebraska has been crossed and re-crossed with pipe lines carrying gas from the Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas oil fields.

Three miles north of Beatrice a miniature industrial town is being erected. A force of 150 men is at work there constructing a booster station and quarters for the men who will be kept there. A great 24-inch pipe line will carry gas from the Texas oil fields to Chicago. The Beatrice station is one of ten erected along the main that will maintain the pressure that will equalize supply and demand. There will be five engines, each weighing 300 tons. It will take 1,500 gallons of water a minute to cool the engines. This will require a water tower of 100,000 gallons capacity that is being erected on the property. The water supply will be obtained from three wells that have been bored on the property.

F. E. Nangle Tells About Newspaper

Visitors observe change at work in Wayne during last ten years. "Hard work and lots of sweating are back of newspapering," states Frank E. Nangle, editor of the Lee County Times, Paw Paw, Ill., but there are many compensations for it. Mr. Nangle, who with Mrs. Nangle has been a holiday visitor in the Dr. T. Jones and Eph Beckenhauer homes, is enthusiastic for this branch of work, and has many stories to tell of experiences at it. He has been a newspaperman at Paw Paw for the past five or six years, and finds the country good territory for his activities.

Paw Paw is a small town about a century old and was the original home of the following families which came to Wayne county in the early seventies: Britains, Aglers, Goodyears, Merrimans, Foxes, Hunters and George Roberts. These families came to the county as pipers, settling at La Porte, then the county seat.

Mr. Nangle's family came to Wayne county from Pennsylvania in 1833, and the family was reared in Wayne. "I went to school at five different places in Wayne," Mr. Nangle recounted, enumerating the following: Lutheran church chapel, one block east of the Ford garage site; old frame building on the present J. C. Nass store property; old town hall, across from the Ford garage; Protestant church which stood on the land occupied by the same denomination today; old frame school house on the hill where the modern public school stands.

Many changes here. Seven years ago the Nangles made a visit to Wayne, and this visit has revealed many changes made during the interim. "There has been more change in the past 10 years than there was in the two decades before," Mr. Nangle enthused, discussing the progress of the county seat town.

"Highways and facilitated transportation have made the difference here, as everywhere," he observed, "and will make even greater changes in the future. Especially he mentioned the changes in the school systems, made possible because children can go greater distances to attend even grade schools in the country districts. One of his predictions is the steadily increasing popularity of the consolidated school.

Wayne State Teachers college, with its magnificent new dormitory, the newly arranged classroom facilities, and the great number of students, impressed Mr. Nangle, who was a graduate of the Normal in 1896. He praised the people of Wayne in their consistent effort to get for the old school the improvements which are making it an important part of the state system of education.

Mr. and Mrs. Nangle entertained with several musical numbers at the college Tuesday morning, when they sang in chapel. Changes on street. The many changes on Main street did not pass unnoticed by the Nangles. The future of business on Main street, as they see it, is to be shaped by the personality of the various dealers, and the ways in which they meet with new stock and new ideas the competition of the day.

It is with this point of view that Mr. Nangle publishes his paper in Paw Paw, endeavoring to make of it an instrument of progress. "I work hard at it, and if I get behind, work nights," he says, "with every appearance of enjoying it. The Nangles like Paw Paw. With its main street that was the old Chicago road in 1833, passing from the Windy City to Calena, and with its rather colorful pioneer history. Its name, Mr. Nangle explains, is derived from the grove of wild paw paw trees which grows near the town. He described the fruit as being similar in appearance to the persimmon. "Are they edible?" he was asked. "Some call them edible," he replied, chuckling, "but I call them horrible!"

At certain periods of the day the demand for gas pressure is greater. At meal time when cooking is being done and in the morning when furnaces are being "fired up" the pressure will need boosting. The ten stations are expected to counteract the unusual demand and keep the flow of gas steady.

Rags To Riches Takes Planning

The transition from "rags to riches" in real life is not like in the fairy stories, accomplished by the waving of a wand. It's the result of intelligence which can grab opportunity when it knocks at the door—as in the case of the heroine of "Sin Takes a Holiday," Constance Bennett's latest Pathé starring vehicle directed by Paul L. Stein which will be on view at the Gay theatre on Friday and Saturday.

"The girl impersonate in the picture," explains Miss Bennett, "is at first a simple little stenographer with no knowledge of the world outside her office, and with no taste for clothes. She gets a chance to step out into smart society, wear smart clothes, indulge in smart conversation with the result that she turns out to be smart enough to keep the man she wants—her husband."

Kenneth MacKenna, a well known stage and screen player, is featured opposite Miss Bennett. Basil Rathbone has a strong part as also have Rita La Roy and Louis Bartels.

Decide No Felony In Norfolk Death

Norfolk—A verdict that Theron T. Spoor, twenty-one year old cigarette salesman, came to his death here last Friday as the result of a "fall or poison, or both, not feloniously inflicted" was returned by a coroner's jury that met here late Wednesday.

Spoor returned to his apartment here early last Friday morning, his landlord, John Reinhold, said. Soon after a loud crash was heard. Reinhold said he rushed to Spoor's apartment and found the young man unconscious. Spoor died two hours later, while being taken to a Norfolk hospital.

An examination of the dead man's stomach brought from state chemists a report that there was sufficient poison to cause death. It was understood here that Spoor was buried at Maryville, Mo., Tuesday. Spoor's mother, Mrs. Sidie Spoor, lives at Maryville.

Travel Books Are On Library List

Smart New Fiction Completes Winter List Which Has Variety of Values.

Filing and classifying of numbers of the Literary Digest back to 1912, of the Nation to 1919, and of the Outlook back to pre-war days has occupied Mrs. E. S. Blair, librarian for the last days of the year. The magazines are to be classified and placed in small, convenient alcoves where they will be accessible for interested readers. (The work is being done as a part of the yearly improvement which is planned for the library.)

With interest in reading running rather higher this year than usual, the purchase of new books for the library has taken on new importance. In the current new list are books of several kinds, the smart novel, the popular mystery story, and the more literary volume which will appeal to the reader whose tastes are more sophisticated.

Among new numbers are some gorgeous books of travel with which the home-bound wanderer can vicariously regale his soul, and several smart new detective stories which make excellent winter reading for those who like light fiction, well done. This volume reviews a number of volumes which, although they are not light reading, will satisfy readers who appreciate the well-turned sentence, the delicate plot, and finely-arranged subject matter.

Mignon Godd Eberhardt, whose skill with the mystery story has carried her far from Valentine, Neb., where she was living when her first appeared, has out a new Crime Club volume, "The Mystery of Hunting's End," which is of the same genre as its predecessors.

Among the travel books are several splendid examples of the modern "bookmakers' art, fine printing, and pleasing format as well as fascinating reading, "Four Months Afraid in Spain" by Harry A. Franck is one which will appeal to the traveler who does not insist that he must go de luxe.

Richard Halliburton's "The Glorious Adventure" has lost none of the charm of the first edition for those who have not read it, or subsequent articles on the same pattern.

Lowell Thomas' Book, "The Land of the Black Pigoda," tells of a $100,000 journey to the much-disputed land. The book is a large size volume, printed in large, readable type on an eggshell paper, making it easy to read physically as well as from the point of view of content.

Richard E. Byrd's account of "Little America" will interest those who wish to review the newspaper accounts of the thrilling days spent by Rear Admiral Byrd in a new land.

Several replacements fill in the list of books and a miscellany of titles seeks to suit the varied requirements of the added quota of winter readers. Among these are: "Outlaws of Eden," a valley story of irrigation problems, written by Peter E. Kyne; "Philippa," successor to "The Little French Girl" by Anne Douglas Sedgewick; "The Deepening Stream," by Dorothy Canfield; "The Valiant," by McLeod Raine and others.

Story of Presidents.

"The Adams Family," by James Truslow Adams, is an Atlantic Monthly press publication dealing with the great names in the Adams family as they are found in the history of the country.

"The Great Meadows," by Elizabeth Madox Roberts, a story of early settlement of Kentucky, has its appeal to those who like tales of the early days.

Marta Ostenso's brilliant success with "Wild Geese" is followed with this season's offering "The Waters Under the Earth," which carries promise of delicate touches in the writing, and real cleverness in handling of the plot, which is biographical.

For Budding Aviators.

"Conquering the Air," by Archibald Williams, is a volume which will interest budding aviators, and others who are attracted to the history of flying.

"Long Bondage," by Donald Joseph, is said to be one of the beautifully written books of the year, one which may be read to be remembered.

A historical story of the struggle between the two English queens, Elizabeth and Mary, is the volume "The Duel of Queens," by E. Barington, whose style is so well adapted to treating of such subject matter.

Perival Christopher Wren strikes a new note in his "Mystic" a departure from the usual type of thing which has flooded the literary market for so long. The book is an adventurous tale boldly told. Love and intrigue are featured in "Petticoat Court" by Maud Hart Lovelace, suitably told.

A London Novel.

"Angel Pavement," J. E. Priestley, a novel of London, tells the story of life in the world's greatest city, and tells it with the technical smoothness which is necessary to a book which is as considerable as this one is.

Arnold Bennett, whose admirers are among those who do not care for the lighter fiction, writes as well as usual on an excellent subject in "Imperial Palace." The book may not be read so widely as some others on the shelves this winter, but it will be read thoroughly and with pleasure. Its black and silver format makes the large volume a beautiful one which several will covet.

Replacements and the following volumes complete the adult list: "Brave Little Peggy," Nina Rhoades; "Bridging the Seven Seas," John Prentice Langley; "Dolly's First Year of Boarding School," Dorothy Whitehall; "Chasing the Setting Sun," John Prentice Langley; "Peggy of Old Annapolis," Hawthorne Daniel, a Coward McCann juvenile; "The Voyages of Dr. Dolittle," Hugh Lofting and a book telling 50 ways to play solitaire.

Poems for Children.

"Silver Pennies," a volume of modern verse for modern children, by Blanche Jennings Thompson, is one which the poetry-loving child will enjoy. It is a small volume, illustrated, and finished with vermilion and gold end papers, making it quite a sophisticated book for the young reader to enjoy.

Other books for children include "First Lessons in Nature Study," Edith M. Patch; "Toots in School," by Clara E. Baker and Edna D. Baker; "Here and Now Story Book" by Lucy Sprague Mitchell; "I Go a-Travelling," and "I Spend the Summer," two fine small books published by Harpers; the Alpha Individual Primer; "Animal Pets in Story and Picture," with illustrations in color, by Milo Winter; and the usual array of new material for children completes the new list.

Indian Is Killed.
Winnebago, Neb., Jan. 1.—Reuben Black Hawk, 19, Winnebago Indian, is held in the county jail at Pender for the killing late on Wednesday night of George Raymond, 21, also an Indian. The two had attended a watch night program at the Indian reservation community center.
It is said Black Hawk became angered because of attentions paid to his wife by a relative of Raymond, that he secured a shotgun and started on the warpath. Raymond was shot in the upper part of the body, and died in a couple of hours.

Politics sometimes makes queer jail mates, too. Macon Telegraph.

More Will Keep Accounts In State

Lincoln, Neb.—Arthur Grogan of the rural economics department of the Agricultural Experiment Station says that more farmers will keep account books issued by the Agricultural college next year than during 1930. About 2,000 practical farmers started keeping these books a year ago.

Under the arrangement of the project, the representatives of the rural economics department and the extension service will collect the farm account books and summarize them for the farmers during the next two or three months. All the farmers who want books for 1931 will be furnished them at the same time.

This is one year, he said, when the inventory system of keeping farm account books will show the decline in farm property on hand January 1, 1930, and January 1, 1931. Feed, seed and live stock were probably valued at a higher figure a year ago than they are considered worth at the present time.

Natural Gas Is Liked By Users

Consumers In Holdrege Are Given New Low Rate In January.

Quote Statements

Reports Agree on Efficiency of Gas as Fuel for Homes and Public Buildings.

Since last week's election has shown the people of Wayne to be in favor of granting to the Mid-West natural gas company the franchise which will allow it to come into the city, people have been interested in the operation of natural gas lines in other towns. Interviews with users from other towns bring out points on which prospective users in Wayne may have had questions.

In Holdrege, where natural gas was installed this summer, the maximum rate was charged according to the terms of the franchise. With the development of the company, and the increase in number of users which followed, the rates were due for a reduction, which the company has just announced.

The new rate schedule follows: First 100 cu. ft. per month, 20¢ per 100 cu. ft.; Next 100 cu. ft. per month, 15¢ per 100 cu. ft.; Next 1,000 cu. ft. per month, 10¢ per 100 cu. ft.; Next 1,000 cu. ft. per month, 60¢ per 1,000 cu. ft.; Next 50,000 cu. ft. per month, 50¢ per 1,000 cu. ft.; Next 100,000 cu. ft. per month, 40¢ per 1,000 cu. ft.; Balance, 35¢ per 1,000 cu. ft. Minimum charge for any one individual for each month is one dollar, the same as previously announced.

Users find that natural gas has been very satisfactory for the heating of homes, large places of business, and for the cooking and other uses to which the fuel is applied. Public sentiment for natural gas is pronounced to be strong in Holdrege.

Auburn has word. Auburn is another Nebraska town which has strong commendation for the new source of fuel. In the Nemaha County Herald for Dec. 19, 1930, occurs the following article:

Considerable difference of opinion prevailed when natural gas was first brought to Auburn. A good many were skeptical because it was something new and untried here and most people were not quite sure what to expect. It is apparent now that those who have put doubt aside and had gas equipment installed in their homes have been agreeably surprised. The heating of homes with gas is proving practical and the advantages which were claimed are working out in reality. Users find that a furnace and handling coal and ashes, and housewives are greatly pleased over the cleanliness of the new fuel.

The great advantage lies in the possibility of maintaining even temperature night and day, and there is no doubt but that this will result in better health conditions and remove peril of sickness caused by varying temperatures. It seems to be working satisfactorily in the larger buildings as well as in the smaller ones. At the high school and the court house, the clean, even heat is proving an advantage, and the same is true in the various business houses where gas is being used.

From Falls City. In the Herald article is included a dispatch from Falls City, which reads as follows: "After seven months as a natural gas user, H. McCoy, chief of the Falls City Creamery company, is satisfied that no other fuel can take its place, despite the fact that it pays slightly more for gas than he paid for coal which he used formerly.

"The creamery plant used coal until last May, when the distributing company installed natural gas, informing McCoy at the time that he could expect to pay 10 per cent more for the new heat. No gas of any kind had been introduced in Falls City until natural gas made its appearance January 1, 1929.

"The Falls City creamery is one of the largest users of gas in this section, approximately the million cubic feet of fuel being consumed each month. The rate runs as low as $.025 a hundred cubic feet. "For the period from June to November inclusive this year, the creamery expended an average of $280 monthly for gas, whereas during the corresponding period a year ago, $359 a month was spent for coal, an increase of about eight per cent.

"The sanitation and cleanliness under the present heating method," McCoy asserted, "more than compensates for the differences in cost. We always have uniform heat, something that was impossible while using coal.

"Besides heating the plant, gas is used to operate the entire creamery and to dry buttermilk to put up as buttermilk powder for commercial feeding purposes. "McCoy has also installed gas in his home for both cooking and heating purposes."

The consensus of opinion among users of natural gas seems to be that the fuel is clean, hot, efficient, and economical, possessing many qualities which make it desirable to the user, whether on a domestic or a commercial scale.

Band In Program At Radio Station

Wayne Organization Benefits Many Listeners: New Year's Day at Norfolk.

The Wayne band, under the direction of Prof. F. C. Reed, presented a program of music from radio station WJAG, Norfolk, New Year's afternoon from 3 until 5 o'clock. That the band is one of the most polished music organizations in the middle west was the comment of many who sent telegrams and telephoned messages from Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and North Dakota.

Besides the regular group numbers, Miss Gretchen Deckhaus, accompanied by Miss Doris Blackner, sang "In the Garden of My Heart," and Bennie Kay played a carolin solo.

The band read the following greeting to listeners: "The Wayne band extends greetings to the radio audience. May the new year bring you health, happiness and prosperity. The band particularly wishes to take this means of thanking the citizens of Wayne for your hearty cooperation and support through the past four years which has made possible the present organization.

"We are proud in knowing that we represent the city of Wayne. We are trying to merit this wonderful support. We also hope that every city and town can have a good music organization. "The Wayne band has been developed through the public schools of Wayne. It is now the Wayne Municipal band. Most of the band personnel is out of high school. "It is governed by the city council and a committee of business men who work together for the interest of the organization. Burr Davis is general overseer of the band's interests."

Laurel Woman Is One Honored

Mrs. Jacob Norris of Laurel is one of the five Nebraska women honored January 7 as master farm homemakers. The selection was made by the Farmer's Wife national farm women's magazine published at St. Paul, and the agricultural extension service of the Nebraska university. The other women are from Waverly, Elmwood, Lexington and Beaver Crossing.

To be eligible for selection each woman must be nominated by five neighbors. She then answers 500 questions concerning all phases of home making. The state judging committee then makes the selection.

Mrs. Norris believes every woman should have a hobby and she has chosen children, flowers and a garden for hers. She has served eight years as school board member, and has boarded the district teacher 20 years. She is a leader in community activities, and won $105 as premium money on canned goods at fairs last year.

Nebraska Crop Values Placed

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 31.—In a year-end review of 1930 crop values in Nebraska, A. E. Anderson state and federal crop specialist, today estimated the Dec. 1 value of horticultural and agricultural products at $299,556,000. While crop production in the state was reduced only in corn, a general downward trend in values and prices lowered the 1930 estimate to the extent of $87,461,000 under the 1929 figure, which was $347,017,000, Mr. Anderson pointed out.

Corn tops crop values. Topping the list of crop values was Nebraska's current production of 255,628,000 bushels of corn. On a basis of $1.51 per bushel, a value of $385,998,000 was realized.

In contrast with prior years, the 1930 crop stood up favorably despite the lowered market price. In 1929, Mr. Anderson said, the crop was estimated at $184,042,000; in 1928 it was $151,118,000.

The state's hay crop ranked high in values with an estimated Dec. 1 worth of $46,763,000. Alfalfa, worth $8.45 per ton on the market, was valued at $25,130,000. The hay figure, Mr. Anderson explained, included the estimated value of both wild and tame hays of which there was an abundance this year.

Wheat Values, Shrink. Nebraska's 1930 winter wheat crop, Mr. Anderson said, had a Dec. 1 value of $37,242,000 for the member, and has boarded the district. The production this year, he pointed out, was the largest for the past three years. The estimated value was based on a market price of $5.2 per bushel.

The spring wheat crop of 3,008,000 bushels, the statistician said, was valued at $1,314,000 on a basis of $4.7 per bushel.

Other crop values were estimated by Mr. Anderson as follows: Oats—80,017,000 bushels; 1930 value, $22,402,000.

Barley—22,330,000 bushels; 1930 value, $7,816,000.

Rye—4,985,000 bushels; 1930 value, $1,898,000.

Sorghum—1,008,000 bushels; 1930 value, $382,000.

Buckwheat—2,000 bushels; 1930 value, $6,000 (at 75 cents per bu.).

Goes To Houston To Spend Winter

Miss Charlotte White who went from Wayne a few days ago to Houston, Texas, to spend the winter with her niece, Mrs. Al Hur Neely, and family, writes the Herald as follows: "The trip to Houston was very pleasant. The Omaha spoke to me as if he knew I cannot remember your name. When I told him he said, 'Now I remember, when you were elected Wayne county superintendent at Winslow. From that time on he was all attention. I was the only woman in the car. Before we arrived at Omaha, he came in and had to sit still when we got there. He came in and took my satchel and carried it to the depot."

Nebraska Roadside

York Republican: Nebraska grows more beautiful each year. The dream of a Sterling Morton and Robert W. Furnas has come true. The naked prairies are appurled with timber. Farm homes are no longer just human habitations. They are rapidly becoming country estates with comfortable homes enveloped in protecting and beautifying timber. All this Morton and Furnas may have seen in their rarest visions. But they never foresaw the miles of billboards and sign boards that stretch along the highways and obscure the landscape. They could not have realized in their day how a spirit of commercialism attaches to every advance the American people make. A view of a beautiful landscape must now be taken with an injunction to use Skinner's soap. The sight of a neat farm must be dignified with a glaring sign on the roof of the barn which recommends somebody's all-omnipotent remedy. As we drive through Nebraska on missions of good will and respect of mind is widely shattered by the billboards and signs that disfigure the country and foist a commercialism on the traveler he ought not to have to endure. Sometime, if the bill board users do not arrive at a better sense of regard for Nebraska scenery and the safety of Nebraska travelers a legislature, with an eye for the beautiful and sense of common justice will wipe the billboards from the highways and let the people see what Nebraska really looks like.

Replacing of Ducks Shot by Hunters Aim of Two San Francisco Sportsmen

FOR every duck killed, another of the same species shall take its place in the migration south. With this as their maxim, two San Francisco sportsmen have instituted a fine bit of game conservation and propagation. Four years ago Niles E. Tucker, stock broker, and J. O. Tobin, banker, started the Pintail Duck Club with a two-fold purpose: To provide excellent duck shooting and to raise a sufficient number of water fowl so that the number released at the close of the season would equal the number killed during open months. Permission of the government to take over 300 acres in the San Francisco Bay for raising purposes was secured and a semi-circular breakwater was erected around the area. Problem of Raising One summer later the salt water had dried up and the process of filling the gap with clear fresh water was started. Within the 300 acres several smaller breakwaters had been erected, breaking up the large pond into several smaller ones. Several panned deep water ponds were filled. Into these was put the nucleus of what now has bred into nearly 1000 game birds. During the first shooting season many mallards were trapped and carefully penned for the breeding season. Sprig, canvasback, redhead, wiggon and bluebills found their way into the baited ponds, but after the first season it was found these species did not take to domestic raising. The second year of the migratory bird hunting season found Tucker and Tobin ready to start their propagation work. In their nearly 1000 birds were sent aloft to join the members of their own kind flying high overhead on the way southward to the winter feeding grounds. Ending the Birds In addition to the excellent work in replacing all birds taken during the season, a government banding station has been established at the Pintail Duck Club. There, after the shooting season is concluded, hundreds of birds are trapped, banded with a numbered metal strip, and released. Reports and the continent are listed the of the birds being shot have come from virtually every state and from Alaska and Mexico. In 1929, 743 birds were caught by means of a specially constructed non trap, baited and released. In 1930, due to a late start, after the southern flight had practically ceased, only 687 were thus treated. Both students of ornithology, Tucker and Tobin have a collection of rare and semi-rare game birds that would be a credit to almost any zoo. Some have been brought from Africa. Big prices have been paid for several species in the hope they would propagate and furnish sport to American hunters. Among rarer geese imported from Japan, Java, England, Africa,

Flowers "Bloom" on Winter Frocks

SATIN ROSES, VELVET GARDENIAS LEND UNUSUAL TOUCH OF COLOR TO SOMBER COSTUMES WHEN WORN CLOSE TO THE NECK OR AT THE WAISTLINE

BY HARRIET

Flowers bloom in the winter time on many of the loveliest costumes.

Not real flowers, of course, but some of the prettiest of artificial flowers. They are made of chiffon, organdie, velvet and even patent leather.

Arranging flowers as trimmings demands a real artistic sense. If a woman is chic, she can add such a touch herself to enhance completely the charm of a gown.

A black velvet gown, for instance, can have a velvet or satin rose placed just right at the side of her waist and presto, she has a lovely costume.

Varied Materials Make Up New Frocks

IF NONE OF THE MATERIALS YOU HAVE ON HAND ARE LARGE ENOUGH FOR AN ENTIRE COSUME, COMBINE THEM TO MAKE A SMART OUTFIT, SAYS HARRIET

BY HARRIET

There is nothing elaborate about the cut of some of the smart frocks that look quite plain to the naked eye.

If you happen to wield the needle you will probably be surprised to find how many pieces go into the making of a single frock by suit today.

Instead of merely collaring and cuffing a suit in fur, for instance, some of the really beautiful suits use fur for the top of the sleeve or the center portion, for part of the coat and even for pointed or rounded godelts in the skirt.

Whereas last season's frocks collared and cuffed in best material, or simply added white lace, some of the new dresses have two or even three materials, including novelty weaves.

It is a good season to use up materials you have on hand. You might discover that two or three different materials, none of them large enough in the piece to make an entire costume, might combine to give you an excellent outfit.

For instance, a new model that is much copied has pale green fur crepe for the top of the yoke. It drops over the top of the sleeves which are of a medium crepe crease wool. There is a pointed band of green checked rat wool crepe material around the skirt just above the flounce, which is of the dark green wool. It is a frock that should give many ideas on combining materials and colors.

A dress that is as satisfactory as a brown woolen suit material coat frock. It fastens in a double-breasted manner, with matching buttons to indicate this. There is a brown shiny leather belt, just at the top of a natural waistline. But the tricky part of the frock is the collar and cuffs. The brown jersey dots a dot in white, with the polka square. This is outlined with a wide band of plain white jersey and together the brown and white novelty material and the plain white make a collar that looks as if it were a fancy kerchief knotted to hang down the front. Then there are pointed cuffs of the two materials, too.

A chic suit that illustrates the intricacies of the new mode and which might be pregnant with ideas on combining material and fur is a black cloth and black broadtail fabric from Follmer. This fabric looks almost exactly like real broadtail fur, and is used in many instances instead of fur. One-half the skirt is of the broadtail cloth, with a narrow shaped hip portion on the outside of the broadtail cloth. The rest of the skirt is the plain black, in a slightly high. The little jacket is made of dull black material, with broadtail cloth for front panel and a pointed back yoke at collar.

This intricate use of two more materials for a given tune does much to enrich feeling of all of the new things.

Pecan Nut Discovered by Farm Agent Brings Prosperity to Mississippi Area

ABOUT 10 years ago an alert farm agent of Adams county, Mississippi, named H. J. Greer found what he thought to be a new type of pecan nut growing on a plantation near Natchez.

His discovery aroused little interest in Natchez at the time but the young agent started out to tell the land owners about the new nut and the advantages in cultivating it. And now they're glad he did.

Drought Results

Not long ago the drought hit Natchez hard. Feed and food crops were lost. The price of cotton fell. Farmers had no money from their crops and lacked credit to carry on. In this time of depression, until another crop was made. On top of it all came the widespread depression.

Greer's missionary work began to bear fruit. Pecan nut growers who had listened Greer's advice to top work and graft the abundant wild pecan trees with new paper shelled varieties found the trees just coming into bearing. So this year, for the first time, the marketing of the nut crop forged to the front as a major business.

Articles in pounds of nuts are being shipped by the local co-operative pecan marketing association through the national association with headquarters at Jackson, Miss. Independent buyers are commanding prices of from 10 to 60 cents a pound.

The Co-operative Scheme

When local paper shell growers decided that the co-operative marketing plan offered the best opportunity to obtain top prices for their product, they organized the Natchez Co-operative Pecan Marketing Association, leased a warehouse and purchased grading machinery.

By Dec. 15 the total of pecan shipments from Natchez reached 4,000,000 pounds, with the prospects for the shipping season to continue for two months longer.

The co-operative plan for marketing is functioning so well that the manager of the Natchez association predicts that 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 pounds will be marketed next year.

There are several recognized types of paper shelled pecan, but the "Natchez" is considered best of all because the trees bear heavily, the nuts are larger and mature well.

When Greer discovered the seedling from which the "Natchez" was propagated, he notified the United States Department of Agriculture. Experts there confirm the fact that a new type of paper shell pecan had been discovered and officially listed it as "The Natchez".

A state experimental station specializing in pecan culture, was established in Adams county. Greer appointed the director. He is continuing his work of producing ger and better pecans.

THE EXTRA THICK HIDE AND THREAD ON THE NEW BASEBALL IS BAD NEWS TO HOME RUN SMACKERS, BUT FOR PITCHERS IT'S JUST DANDY

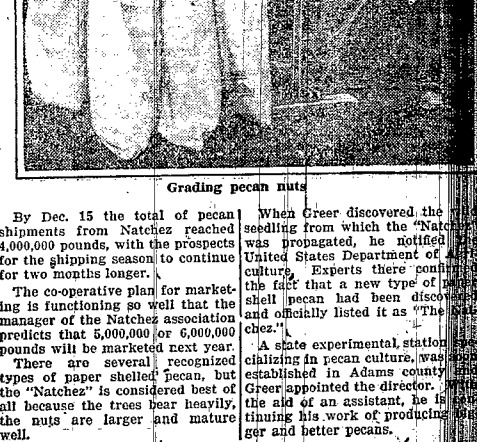

BY PHILIP MARTIN

THE name of the gentleman who remarked that "a stitch in time saves nine" has slipped my mind, but I am able to give you the correct dope on several stitches that may revolutionize the game of ball as baseball.

The powers who settle problems arising in our national pastimes have settled one much-mooted question for 1931. They are going to make the game safe for pitchers and infielders by operating on the baseball.

There are several reasons for this operation on the ball which has been in use for the past 10 years. One is that entirely too many pitchers have had an arm torn off by slicing liners from the bats of the Ruths, Wilsons, Bergers and Gehrigs. Another is that the recent excessive home run production has given sluggers a decided edge in salary over the players who field and throw the base paths with abandon. And still another sound reason is that an overabundance of home run hitting, in cheapening all other departments of attack, has cheapened the four-base blow.

The moguls in their recent meeting in New York decided that the 1934 baseball should have the same core and the same outside red and blue threads.

However, the horse cover will be just twice as thick as that sewed to the "lively" and will be stitched with the just twice as heavy as the stitching of the "jack rabbit" pug.

BASEBALL officials expect to see pitchers using the ball get even with the boys who have been splintering their hands against distant outfield. The heavier stitching will make a raised ridge around the ball, enabling the pitcher to get a grip on it. These raised spots will offer greater resistance to the air when the ball is livened. Can you picture this? It will take because this added resistance?

The cover of double thickness means that a certain amount of string used in winding around core will have to be eliminated that the ball may retain its size. Omitting this string would string will take away of the ball's liveliness.

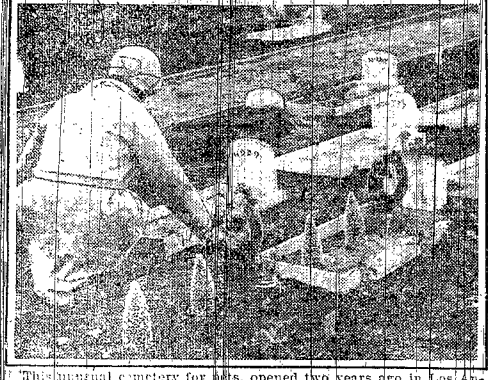

There will be two reasons. If Babe Ruth, Hack Wilson, Gehrig and some other behemoths of slug fall to hit more home runs against the new ball, the home runs appear in the hands of the pitcher and subtracted rebound of the bat are expected to be the trick.
