WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 15, 1931.

Vol. 50, No. 11

County Board Makes Ruling

Tuesday's Session Is Devoted To Study of Situation In This County.

Add To Salaries

Many Resolutions Concerning Compensation to Workers During Coming Year.

Expenses for Wayne county in 1931 were estimated at the meeting of the board Tuesday at the court house. Frank Erickson, commissioner, acted as chairman of the meeting, at which committees were appointed, and bids were opened. In the estimate as submitted, the county general fund was given $60,000, with other funds as follows: County bridge fund, $40,000; county road fund, $50,000; mothers' pension fund, $2,000; soldiers' relief fund, $2,000; Wayne county fair and agricultural association, $2,000.

After an examination of bids of stationery and blanks, the contract for the printing of legal blanks was awarded for 1931 to the Wayne Herald, and the contract for the printing of stationery went to the Nebraska Democrat. It was moved that the Wayne Herald should be designated as the official county paper for the publishing of all legal notices emanating from the Department of Public Works at Lincoln, which has to do with state roads and bridges.

Subsequent law lists, treasurer's statements, commissioners' proceedings, and all legal notices and other notices ordered published by the board are to occur in the Wayne Herald, the Nebraska Democrat, and the Winside Tribune at full legal rate, each paper getting one third of the work, as the three designated official county papers.

Discuss Pauper Question.

Paupers in Wayne county are to be cared for by the county under the plan whereby each commissioner is designated as a committee of one to investigate claims of demand on the county for such maintenance, and to give immediate relief in such cases as are necessary. Full reports are to be made by the board on any such cases, and the commissioners are in full charge, and in their application must be made in territory designated. Frank Erickson, all territory in first commissioner district, or road dragging district number one; Henry Rethwisch, second commissioner district; David Koch, third commissioner district. Commissioners were charged with these duties, equally with the work of hearing and investigating claims and demands on county road and bridge funds.

Road dragging rates were fixed at 75 cents per mile round trip for the year 1931, where four horses are used, and written contract must be entered into with the county commissioner of the road dragging district where claim is made before such a claim can be allowed.

Make Other Provisions.

Other provisions made concerning the pay of county workers included that of $1,500 for extra help in the office of county clerk, and above clerk and deputy salaries as fixed by law, and of the same amount additional for extra help in the county treasurer's office. J. G. Bergt, county assessor, was allowed an additional $300 for help in his office. L. P. Karabak was appointed janitor of the court house and grounds for the year, at a salary of $60 a month. The salary of the county superintendent was fixed at $2,000, and she was allowed the sum of $100 above the amount for extra help in the office. A sum of $250 was also allowed the county superintendent as help in defraying the expenses of the county institute, the amount being set aside as an institute fund for 1931. The county judge was allowed $1,000 as compensation for extra help or clerk hire in his office for the year, completing the list of extra compensation appointments.

Frank Wilson was appointed member of the soldiers' relief commission for the three-year term. Wages for road work during the year were fixed at fifty cents an hour for man and team, seventy cents an hour for man and two teams, forty cents an hour for single man. Complete dates and records are required of work done, and it is required that all lumber must be accounted for, and the use of all new lumber designated. Overseers are required to purchase the lumber from the person with whom the county has its contract.

FLOOD COMMENDS WAY OF HANDLING RECENT LECTURE

The generous response by farmers to the invitation of members of the Kiwanis club and other business men to attend the lecture by Francis Flood following noonday luncheon Monday shows high intelligence and fine appreciation. Mr. Flood said he had never talked to a more responsive audience and had never seen a similar function handled with more dignity or dispatch. Mr. Flood commended the high standards of both town and farm communities as reflected at the meeting. He praised the excellence of the service in handling the pictures by Manager E. E. Galley of the City theatre where the lecture took place. With increasing attendance this year, Mr. Galley predicts that he will have to open both theatres to accommodate the crowd next year. The generalship with which all events of the day were carried out impressed Mr. Flood most favorably. It was found that the more than 700 people in the theatre came from as far away as forty miles. Mr. Flood's discovery of extraordinary minds and extraordinary citizenship in the towns and farm communities of this territory only confirms the opinion of many other persons conversant with the facts.

COUNTY SHERIFF KEEPS CLOSE TAB ON LAW BREAKERS

SHERIFF Archie W. Stephens was out of range of the report which gathered material for references to county officers last week, and therefore he was inadvertently omitted. The general sheriff is none the less conspicuous and efficient in public service. As a native of Wayne county, and having lived here all the years of his life, he knows every section and every individual. He was first elected to fill the one remaining year of the unexpired term of the late O. C. Lewis. Then Mr. Stephens was elected for a full term. Last November he was endorsed for another four years. He keeps close tab on criminals. A few years ago he had the record of a man serving time in Minnesota, but who was wanted here for a crime. At the expiration of the Minnesota sentence the sheriff was on hand in Minnesota to bring the criminal to justice in Wayne. Following his carefully kept record, Mr. Stephens only recently met a prisoner released from the Oklahoma penitentiary and welcomed him into the clutches of the Nebraska law. Mrs. Stephens understands the sheriff's duties thoroughly, and she is an active and valuable aid in discharging them. In his absence, she is in full charge, and he knows every duty will be well performed. One daughter, Miss Evelyn, teaches in a school east of Wayne.

Given Sentence In Theft Case

Wallace A. Andrew To Serve Period Of Two Years In Penitentiary.

Denies Confession

Man Brought Here States That Story of Lady's Suicide Was Faked By Him.

Waiving preliminary hearing in Wayne county court Tuesday by a charge of larceny of the car belonging to the late J. H. Logan of Carroll, Wallace A. Andrew pleaded guilty to the charge before District Judge Charles H. Stewart at Norfolk the same day and was sentenced to serve two years in the state penitentiary.

Before being taken to Lincoln, Andrew will be questioned regarding a woman companion whom he previously stated committed suicide when she was riding with him to Pierce September 28, 1927, after he had broken jail at Wayne and had stolen a car at Carroll.

When Andrew was apprehended in Oklahoma on an egg theft charge and was sentenced to serve a term in the McClister penitentiary, he signed a written statement, which Sheriff A. W. Stephens has, saying that Miss Marie Sizer, missing Mt. Vernon, Iowa, school teacher, was with him when he drove from Carroll to Pierce and that the girl shot herself while he was looking at the motor of the car. He also claimed that he buried the body in a field between the two towns.

Confession made here this week by Andrew says the story was faked by him in an effort to have authorities bring him back to Nebraska to hunt the grave. He thought in this way he would escape serving the Oklahoma term. Now that the Oklahoma sentence is finished, Sheriff Stephens brought Andrew to Wayne county on the theft charge.

Andrew here this week stated that the lady with him in the trip to Pierce three years ago was his wife and was not the former Iowa teacher. He asserts that his wife is still alive and is in Missouri and that he can get her to come here. Andrew says he never knew her.

Baby Beef Club Begins Feeding

Membership Drive Interests Calf Club Boys During Month of January.

Wayne county's famous 4-H Baby Beef club is at work again, with fine, sturdy calves on feed, and big plans for winning awards again this fall. Hereford seem to predominate, says Dr. Wm. Hawkins, in charge of the group, although no effort is made to keep the club to a single breed. The club members are to meet at the city hall Friday evening to determine the outcome of a membership drive which began with the December meeting. At that time, sides were chosen, and the groups were to work for new members, making an attempt to see which one would get the largest number of new workers for the calf club. Reports will be heard Friday.

Ernest Spittgerber is captain of the following team: Leroy Stamm, Leland Stamm, Marvin Peters, George Claycomb, Lowell Meyers, Dean Baird, Don Baird, Marvin Dunklau. On the other team, of which Frank Claycomb is captain, the following boys are members: William Peters, Walter Baier, Burdette Nilgren, Wilfred Carlson, Dan Luff, Elmer Peters, Edward Dunklau and Howard Mau. The boys have put forth a real effort to get new members, and the side which gets the most new calf club workers will provide a banquet to the losing side. The time for this affair will be set later.

Farmers Are Guests of Wayne Men At Luncheon And Lecture Monday

Visitor Tells of Country and Experiences in South America.

GOOD POLICY NOT TO PUT OFF JOBS IN LINE OF NEED

While conditions here are far better than in many less favored sections, it is no doubt true that some unusual unemployment is working hard, and we believe persons who contemplate improvements or who have small jobs waiting to be done, would perform acts of worthy public service by acting promptly. Supplying a need now is likely to cost less than during the rush season later, and at the same time it will give work to some one who is otherwise distressed. It would be a desirable and helpful act to put off a desirable improvement in cases of pressing want through sickness or unavoidable unemployment, the Red Cross which has a good cash balance to its credit, may be expected to give aid as it has done in the past. There should be no hesitancy on the part of the Red Cross or on the part of individuals to help deserving unfortunates.

Company Tells Of Gas Mains J. W. Densford Describes Laying Of Lines To This Territory. Tells Of Ownership Studebaker Interests Finance Group of Pipelines and Distributing Groups. The advance of spring will mean the beginning of work on the digging of mains which are to carry natural gas to Wayne, say officials of the gas company. Many inquiries have been heard concerning the point at which the lines which serve Wayne will be derived from the larger pipe line. These questions are answered in a dispatch from J. W. Densford of the company. In referring to the building of the lines he says: "We are going to build a line to Columbus from David City, and we want to run it up to Norfolk, and will, provided we get a franchise at Madison. We are endeavoring to get this franchise now, but unless we do get it there will be no occasion to build a line across Madison county from the south because we have franchises in all of the towns in northeast Nebraska, and will run a line into Norfolk, and probably two lines, from a point south of Sioux City, which is now the northern terminus of a 16-inch pipeline. In the event that two lines were run from the 16-inch line between Lincoln and Sioux City, one would be placed from a point not far south of Sioux City, and the other would begin at some point along the line, probably near Lyons. Thus a complete circuit for the towns in this territory would be finished, and danger of shortage would be minimized. Explains Ownership. The same communication from Mr. Densford explains some points of ownership of the company which may not have been clarified in the minds of some who did not attend the public meetings held in Wayne recently. He states: "Natural gas is being brought into Nebraska by the Missouri Valley Pipe Line company, which is controlled by the Studebaker interests of Chicago. The Nebraska Natural Gas company, a Nebraska corporation, is owned by the Missouri Valley Pipe Line company. The Missouri Valley owns the Kansas Pipe Line company which brings it to the Nebraska line." Speaks at Columbus. From the Columbus Telegram comes the following statement concerning the address made at Columbus Rotary club last week: "That a natural gas line will be extended past Columbus during the coming spring and that Norfolk will be using gas through this line by fall was a statement made by James Densford, of Salina, Kan., in a talk at the Rotary club meeting at the Evans hotel Tuesday evening. Mr. Densford, who was enroute to Madison, stopped in Columbus to attend the club meeting as a visiting Rotarian and accepted the invitation to give a talk on the natural gas industry. "Mr. Densford explained that his company was seeking no franchise in any cities or towns where there are artificial plants but it is willing to furnish natural gas in cases where the gas company or the people of a city or town asked for it. "Mr. Densford devoted the first part of the talk to a short history of the development of the natural gas industry. He also predicted a rapid growth of the industry during the next few years. By the fall of 1931, natural gas will be being pumped from Texas fields to Chicago and the Twin Cities and in two years, it will be furnished to New York City, he predicted. Madison To Decide. Madison councilmen were scheduled to make a decision at their council meeting late Tuesday evening when they met to discuss the granting of a franchise to the Mid West Natural Gas company. Madison News for last week has the following statement from an interview with Mr. Densford: "Mr. Densford states that it will require about 150 men approximately three months to build the distribution system—that they pay a minimum of $4.00 per day for such labor and that practically all of it is local. Men who live in Madison and nearby will be given the work if they want it. This would be a payroll of about $600 a day and it should be kept in Madison county and will be if a franchise is granted." Although councilmen at Madison are of a divided opinion, several have expressed themselves to be of the mind that Madison has already held out too long, since other northeast Nebraska towns are rapidly following the footsteps of Wayne in voting to grant the franchise. Madison Discusses Use Of Natural Gas Madison has been undergoing discussion of the natural gas proposition in the past few days with a city council divided in opinion on the matter, and the people of the town aroused to keen interest. J. W. Densford, company representative, stated on Wednesday morning that about 100 persons attended the council meeting in Madison Tuesday evening participating in an informal vote on the matter. Two of the councilmen were against granting a franchise to the natural gas company, two were in favor of it, and the mayor cast a deciding vote against it. There were half a dozen dissenting votes from the citizens attending the meeting, and the 100 persons in attendance voted decisively in favor of granting the company a franchise in Madison. The matter was then placed under advisement, although Mr. Densford stated that public opinion is apparently very strongly in favor of natural gas for the city of Madison, and action is expected to follow soon. First Steam Wagon Of Plains Wrecked Not far outside Nebraska City is a stone which marks the place where the "steam wagon," that was to haul traffic on the Nebraska plains, broke down on its maiden trip. It is a fine mile and a half from Nebraska City when a casting broke, incapacitating the machine, which was never repaired. The work remained on the trail for a number of years, a rusted reminder of a perfectly feasible idea which was never put into actual practice. In 1862 a firm at Nebraska City had a contract for supplying Fort Kearny and Fort Laramie with military stores. A Major Brown, who had established trading posts in South Dakota, had experimented in Minnesota with a steam wagon of his own invention. A new model was shipped to Nebraska City and tried out. The tests were so satisfactory the citizens of that county by an almost unanimous vote appropriated $12,000 for the construction of bridges and the improvement of a road over which the stoking monster was to pass. It was to draw a half dozen wagons with loads weighing a ton and half each. The arrival of the "wagon" was an event of surpassing interest at Nebraska City. The initial trip was like the flight of a Lindbergh over the ocean today. Speed was not a chief element. The wagon made about seven miles an hour. But economy of transportation was the guiding motive and a broken casting spoiled an otherwise successful demonstration. Before the casting ever arrived the scene of development shifted. The Union Pacific was building its line across the state and the settlers and freighting contractors could see the early eclipse of a steam wagon traveling on uncertain roads and making only seven miles an hour. The steam wagon that steamed out of Nebraska City that far off day and sank into dust beside the road was the first horseless carriage ever to be driven on the Nebraska plains. Relative Of Wayne Man Passes Away Dr. Gertrude Gamble of Missouri Valley, Iowa, sister-in-law of F. E. Gamble of Wayne, died January 3 at her home after an illness of many weeks. Aged 54 years, 3 months and 2 days. Funeral services were held at the First Presbyterian church in Missouri Valley January 5 with Rev. A. J. Kearns and Dr. E. M. Bell officiating. Interment was in Rose Hill cemetery there. Dr. Gamble's maiden name was Miss Gertrude Bowman. She was born October 1, 1876, in Lewiston, Mo. She was graduated from the college of osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo. June 28, 1900, and the same day was married to Dr. Harry Gamble, a classmate. For the past 30 years they had practiced at Missouri Valley. Besides her husband, Dr. Gamble deceased leaves two sons, William, a junior in the Kirksville college, and Harold, who lives in Kansas City. Her mother, one sister and one brother also survive.

Council Meets For Discussion

commercial rate in Wayne is too high in comparison with the domestic rate. Councilmen agreed to investigate the situation in other towns, where similar conditions exist, and the reports of the investigation were heard. It was resolved, however, to investigate further, and to write to several other cities where the combination rate is in effect, in an effort to discover whether or not the rate is generally satisfactory, as has been reported.

Fremont, which has an active department of utilities, under the direction of J. Rex Henry, makes the following statement concerning the combination rate:
"The commercial customer is very much more expensive to serve than the residence customer. The commercial lines are more expensive to build, and the commercial user requires more capacity. He also has a higher demand, and therefore uses a larger part of your investment in the central station. Practically all of his current is peak current, and the chances are that he does not use lights every night. As with the stores, are open only on Saturday nights, and this makes a bad load factor.

"We do not charge him a higher rate; he takes double the amount of current in the higher brackets as does the residence customer."
"We have found that a reduction in rates, in any class of service, means an immediate increase in consumption. In our case this increase has nearly compensated for the reduction in charges and the income has been nearly as large as before the reduction."

Fremont Opens Records.
Mr. Henry very graciously offered to open the Fremont records to whoever might happen to be interested, and councilmen hope that it will be possible for Wayne people to investigate the findings of the Fremont group in settling matters here.

"Our rates have proved very satisfactory," states the Falls City city clerk in answer to inquiries made by Walter Bressler, "the residence rate being made into a combination rate to increase the range and refrigeration loads, and to eliminate the necessity for two meters. We were also having trouble with lights being wired to power meters, by being used in outlets originally intended for sweepers and other small appliances. It also saves some time in computing bills and making out statements."

"For the average family 25 KWH per month will furnish light, 25 KWH per month for small appliances, and over that amount electricity is furnished at a rate reasonable for cooking and refrigeration. Our commercial rate for light is less than residence rate to start but does not drop as fast because we require two meters, which gives the benefit of a lower rate for power and only light is used on the light meter. Our commercial rate has also proven satisfactory, and cannot see that it could be called discriminating, for there is a great difference in the character and amount of electricity used in the business district. The most of the commercial light is used in the evenings when the stores are kept open and for window lighting and this is used on the peak load, of course."

Funeral Is Held For Car Victim

Services in Randolph and Burial at Wayne for Willard Williams of Sholes.

Funeral services were conducted at the Randolph Methodist church last Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock for Willard Williams, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Williams of near Sholes, who died on Monday evening last week from injuries sustained when the car in which he and two other young men were riding turned over near Chillicothe, Mo., Saturday evening, January 3, about 6 o'clock. Burial was made in the Wayne cemetery.

Willard Williams and Donald Wilson, both of Sholes and both students at the business college in Chillicothe, and another youth had obtained permission Saturday to hunt on the college grounds. They were returning in the evening and Willard was driving when he was blinded by lights of an approaching machine and did not see a wagon ahead. To avoid striking the wagon Willard turned sharply. The front fender of the car caught the wagon and the machine turned over and skidded on the pavement about 90 feet. Willard sustained a fracture of the left jaw, a torn scalp and was rendered unconscious. Internal hemorrhage caused his death Monday. He had been dragged on the pavement some distance as his sweater and other clothing were torn to shreds on the left side.

Donald Wilson sustained two fractures at the front of his skull and a slight one at the back of the head. Lockjaw set in but cleared up later. His condition was reported critical the last of the week. The third youth was not hurt.

Willard Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Williams, was born January 30, 1911, on a farm southwest of Carroll. He moved with his parents to a place near Sholes five years ago. He was graduated from the Sholes school in 1930 and was continuing his schooling in Missouri. Besides his parents the youth leaves two sisters, Isadore and Ida May, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Jones of Carroll, are his grandparents.

The Williams and Guy Wilson families left Sholes Saturday night as soon as they heard of the accident and arrived in Chillicothe at noon Sunday to be with the boys.

Deceased leaves his wife and three children, Alvin, 13, Mona, 11, and Alta, 10. Mrs. George G. Hart and Mrs. Henry Moeller of Wisner, are sisters. Oklahoma Trip Proves Interesting Sheriff A. W. Stephens, who arrived here Saturday from a business trip to McAlester, Okla., found excellent roads and a good section of the country there. The trip of 700 miles was all made on fine surfaced highways. Only a small amount of farming is done in the vicinity of McAlester, but temperature and soil condition allowed the farmers to begin their spring plowing at this time of year. Many fields of harvested cotton were seen and Mr. Stephens picked some pieces which had been left on the bushes. Oil fields are numerous in the vicinity of McAlester and they are operating at full capacity. Conditions are not normal, however, Mr. Stephens found. Many people are out of work and are walking from one place to another to secure employment. Holdups on highways have made most people stop night driving. Drouth of last summer is largely accountable for the condition.

The penitentiary at McAlester, where Mr. Stephens had gone on business, reports 3,000 inmates. The Wichita, Kan., county jail has an average of about 80. These are larger numbers than usual, Mr. Stephens learned.

The fellow who carries water on both shoulders in considering public questions makes fewer enemies, but contrivance makes fewer able friends.

The weather took a different hold this week and sent the mercury scotching down to below zero. It was unusual for this year, but a touch of winter is not unexpected in this latitude during winter months.

Another problem in connection with motorizing is to avoid being held up on the road by armed robbers. Even if one has nothing of which to be robbed, he does not wish the idea of being forcibly detained and threatened with dangerous firearms.

Automobile accidents, causing injuries and deaths, continue to mount. A tragedy makes people cautious for a brief time, and then they forget and step down on the gas. Notwithstanding restrictions provided by law, motorizing is dangerous, business.

The below zero weather Tuesday night is reported to have been the first since January 29, last. Fifty weeks with the temperature above zero encourages the hope that this section of the country is getting away from climatic severities. But it may be just a hope.

One measure over which no dissenting voice is heard in the legislature at Lincoln, is the bill providing for payment of members and employees. This preliminary chore out of the way, the legislature will get down to business and begin thrashing over proposed laws.

Reports of chicken stealing are numerous again, and authorities will be on the alert to capture offenders and chuck them into prison. Farm wives usually look after raising chickens, and they have enough work and responsibility without loss through nocturnal plunderers.

Muscle Shoals came to the surface in a house committee in Washington this week, and prompted Senator Norris to quit the conference in a disturbed state of mind, charging the existence of a "joker" in a proposed lease.

THE OLD AND NEW
The outgoing and incoming governors spoke at the usual juncture in public affairs at Lincoln Thursday, and each advised the legislature what to do to benefit the populace and to save the state unimpaired for posterity. Thus, Governor Weaver retired, and Governor Bryan took over executive leadership.

In his speech Governor Weaver advised consolidation of the code departments, whereas Governor Bryan suggested that the code law be repealed. The retiring governor favored adding an extra cent to the gasoline tax, increased fees for trucks and buses and a plan for the paving of 300 miles of road in the state each year for three years. The new governor opposed increase in the gas tax, and advised the establishment of municipal gas stations.

Governor Weaver wants general retention of the present banking system, while Governor Bryan would have state-owned savings banks and would require banks to put adequate securities to cover deposits. He suggested reenactment of the guaranty law which, however, would seem as impractical and impossible as trying to revive King Tut.

Both governors agreed on an income tax, the same doubtless designed to draw on an individual or a corporation happening to have an excess of earnings above reasonable operating or living costs. The members of the legislature likely absorbed the two speeches, and they may or may not agree on one or more of the policies set forth.

Muscle Shoals guarantees that the country will never be without a live, irritating issue.

What is deemed a disgusting report has been sent out from New York to the effect that grand opera has been interrupted and disturbed by an epidemic of colds among opera stars, but judging the grand opera we have heard of had end on the part of a singer would help successful and acceptable execution. The greater the cold, the greater the execution.

In the course of his lecture the first of the week, Francis Ellwood reminded people of the better conditions here over those in most parts of the country at this time. One strong point in favor of this section is the practice of diversified farming. A farmer does not depend on one crop or one kind of live stock. If one thing slumps or falls, another takes its place, and thus paralysis is prevented.

The suspicion that newspapers are subsidized is usually entertained without the remotest shadow of grounds. A newspaper may err in its judgment, but if it has any self-respect or wishes its opinions to carry weight, it will not permit its influence to be sold. A publication of high standard makes careful analysis of a public proposition and then takes the position which it believes will best serve the general welfare without regard for immediate selfish interests. The sale of newspaper influence would be an outrageous betrayal of popular confidence, and to publisher guilty of such practice ever came under our observation.

The sudden and tragic death of I. C. Tribbner, for many years employed in the mechanical department of the Wayne Herald, removes a printer of unusual skill. He learned printing before the days of linotypes or other automatic machines, and he was well qualified to meet all requirements of the work. He had a brighter mind with keener perception than the average, and whatever he undertook he did well. He was employed on Wayne newspapers at different times for more than twenty-five years, and while he lived at other places during comparatively short intervals, he liked Wayne best and was glad to get back here. Thus passes an efficient force from the mechanical branch of the printing industry.

The story of a truck driver who smashed into parked cars as a result of overwork and lack of sleep, comes from Omaha. Railroads are not allowed to work their train crews beyond certain reasonable hours without rest. In the interest of safety why should not trucks be required to observe similar restrictions? No shortage of men demands hours that exceed possibility of endurance. In the course of a comment the Omaha Journal-Stockman says: "Until the conditions under which truckers work are corrected it can be expected that they will be selfish to the point of treachery. No human being can be expected to be very considerate of the feelings of his fellows if he has done hard manual labor for days on end without sleep. The truckers themselves may be in part to blame for the long shifts which they work but until their hours are shortened it may be a case of expediency for drivers of ordinary cars to take the ditch when one of these big vehicles comes in sight."

Prosperity has been around the corner so long we're going to take a look to make sure that isn't the location of the cemetery.—Ohio State Journal.

GAS STATIONS.
Governor Bryan's recommendation to pass a law authorizing municipalities to establish gasoline stations has been discussed in legislative circles this week. As reported, the purpose is to regulate the price of gasoline. With the number of gasoline stations in operation and the sharp competition existing, it would not seem necessary or advisable for the state to engage in the business either for profit or to lower prices.

As a matter of fact, competition does a very thorough job of regulating, and there would seem to be good reason why public ownership should not be. The state does not need the money, doubtless nothing could be exacted from consumers, and it would add burdens of official management. On the other hand, it is one way for a lot of persons to make an honest living and to be able to exchange earned dollars for other service and other commodities. If one received a sufficient request from Santa Claus, it would be possible to stand around and buy gasoline or other supplies from the state, but as acquisitiveness is necessary to expenditure, and as both are necessary to live, the state should not absorb private opportunities based on popular need.

This would be a step in the direction of socialism, and it would establish a precedent for the state to take over and operate one business after another. Then initiative and ambition would be stifled, and we would be headed in the direction of the unhappy Russian experiment.

There are some things the state could and should do to reduce the cost of living and to promote the general welfare—consolidate school districts, extend the size of counties and harness rivers that are going to waste—but engaging in businesses handled satisfactorily by individuals and corporations is unwise if not perilous.

Business.
Sick City Journal: It has been pretty well established, of course, that business fell off considerably last year. The evidence is conclusive in many directions. Practically everybody has realized it because of individual reaction of one kind or another. The most compelling proof, however, of the decline has been and now is the long list of unemployed men and women.

By way of showing how great the decline was a comparison of the freight car loadings for last year and for the two previous years is offered. Nineteen twenties was remembered as a good business year. Nineteen twenty-eight was not so good as 1929, but was far better than 1930. Freight car loadings offer in the large way that is generally accepted as the best indication of actual business activity.

In 1930 the total of freight car loadings was 45,887,413. This was a weekly average of 882,450. There must be at least an average of 1,000,000 cars weekly for business to be good. The total in 1929 was 52,827,925. This was a weekly average of $1,015,921. There was an average weekly decrease last year below the figure for 1929 of 133,471 cars. There was a total decrease for the year of 6,940,512 cars.

The total of freight car loadings for 1928 was 51,589,857. This afforded a weekly average of 992,313. The weekly decrease in 1930 below the figure for 1928 was 109,863. The percentage decrease for the total last year was 13.1 below 1929 and 11.1 below 1928.

Another comparison between 1929 and 1930 shows that all the goods hauled on the railroads last year could have been hauled the year before in 45 weeks. Thus a difference of seven weeks is seen. An enormous amount of business can be done in that period of time.

Freight car loadings at this time are not impressive, but an increase is confidently expected as nationwide plans for various activities are carried out. The railroads are to be kept busier this year than they were in 1930. A vast amount of construction material must be hauled to take care of the various public works projects. Likewise there will be an increase in the shipment of general merchandise, for as the program gets under way buying power will be increased because of heavier employment. It is a foregone conclusion that 1931 freight car loadings will exceed the total for last year.

The Pioneer's Lament.
Lincoln Journal: Nebraska pioneers must read with amazement the story of the progress of the drought relief bill through congress. Thirty or more years ago when they were marking out homesteads and claiming and fighting for each inch of tillable soil against the encroaching buffalo grass, when they carried water in buckets to keep a few trees alive on the barren western plains, when the grasshoppers came along and ate every living thing in sight, there was but one thing to do after a drought: that was to get along on what was left.

More than one family has lived for weeks on wheat cakes made from wheat ground in the family coffee mill. More than one family has browned wheat in the oven to make a substitute for coffee. And more than one family has lived through severe winters in sod houses with no coal and very little wood for fuel. Today things are different. An appeal to the governor brings a bill for $300,000,000 for relief that is sure to pass. A generous senate insists upon doubling the ante.

The Nebraska pioneer does not begrudge the drought afflicted farmer this dose, just because he went through much more severe times without complaint. In fact it seems right that suffering should be alleviated in a land of plenty. But the pioneer does lament the readiness with which aid is asked and granted. Such conditions, he contends, do not make men as the trial by privation and crop failure did a decade or two ago. People raised under such conditions have no self reliance. They live for today since the nation will care for tomorrow.

The pioneer's lament will not curb the senate. It will not make the people of Arkansas self-reliant. Yet there is truth in what he says. If the individual will not depend upon himself for a living but leans upon the government for aid at every turn, he cannot be expected to obey the laws that demand self-restraint and the whole structure of government is weakened.

Debt Paying.
Lincoln Journal: The Florida plan of debt paying to restore prosperity, urged as effective by Roger Babson in his Sunday Journal feature, is being adopted entire or in a modified or changed form by many communities. One of these is Nebraska City. There the chamber of commerce has taken the lead and will undertake to place in circulation debt paying drafts. The sole idea is to stimulate bill paying, and to show that one draft used in paying one bill may be passed on to a large number of others, thus paying many bills with a small amount of money.

A ten dollar bill used to pay a debt is passed from one to another in debt payment, differing from the bill hidden in a deposit box and kept out of circulation. The debt paying travels of a draft will be recorded by the Nebraska City plan. The chamber of commerce will issue the draft which can be passed on from one person to another and eventually can be redeemed in money by presentation to the secretary of the chamber. The plan is to start a campaign of bill paying. The drafts issued are designated as "good will drafts." The trouble would seem to be to get the right people to buy them and start them in circulation.

"If an epidemic of debt paying should develop," says Roger Babson, "the epidemic of bank failures would immediately decrease." Babson urges that the churches aid the preachers should be the leaders in this revival of the fading custom of debt paying. At Nebraska City the chamber of commerce has taken the lead. In the Florida town where the scheme was developed, the churches, chambers of commerce and the dining clubs got behind it. The scheme to induce people to pay their debts would seem to be good enough for any organization to boost. Probably the defect in the plan will be to find people who are able to buy the draft—to pay their debts—now.

Horse Back On Program.
Omaha Journal-Stockman: After a year's absence, old Dobbin, faithful farm servant for so long, is to be returned to his place on the organized agriculture program at Lincoln a year hence. This decision was reached by the Nebraska Improved Livestock Breeders association, in its meeting the other day, when complaints about the lack of horse features during the week's sessions came up for consideration.

Any assumption that the horse is out of the picture on the average corn belt farm at the present time is highly erroneous. In nearly every discussion this past week as to means for operating farms more economically, stress was laid in the part which horses can play, particularly with reference to the low cost of keeping horses at the prevailing low prices of grain and the fact that the use of more grain in horse feed will help just that much in relieving crop surpluses.

It need not be assumed that farmers who already have tractors are going to part with them, or that other farmers are going to quit buying power equipment. But experience is showing that in many operations, particularly on the smaller farms, horses can be used to much greater advantage than any other form of power.

In one respect, horse promotion programs of the future are certain to be more attractive to the average farmer than ever before. For instead of urging farmers to raise more big-type draft horses, as has been a fairly common practice among speakers at such events in the past, leaders of the live stock industry have come to recognize the fact that smaller horses are the more practical in this section. Furthermore, it has been shown quite clearly that for the ordinary small farmer at least, it usually is less economical to raise his own horses than to buy stock which has been grown in districts where horses can be produced more cheaply than under corn belt conditions.

Once these facts are accepted, farmers will be more easily interested in horses, and in addition the remaining horse breeders will have a definite understanding as to how to plan their future operations. Horse programs on this new basis should be of great benefit all around.

The Farm Exodus.
Lincoln Journal: The census bureau has prepared some more figures on the migration from the farm to the city which will make those who view the movement with alarm, hold up their hands in horror. The march to urban communities has gone on, at a slower pace, but it has gone on during recent years. The turn in the tide, if coming, is not yet in sight.

On April 1 a total of 68,955,521 persons or 56.2 percent of the present population was living under urban conditions. Ten years ago this percentage was 51.4. However, this comparison is not exactly accurate since the bureau had adopted a new method of computing urban population. Under the old method, that by which the 1920 figure was reached, the urban population would constitute 55.9 percent of the population. The difference is small and the net gain in urban population is 4.5 percent.

Under the new method the urban population includes not only residents of cities of 2,500 or more but also townships and other incorporated places of 10,000 or more and a population density of 1,000 per square mile. As the figures indicate this new method tends to increase the urban population, and the classification is justifiable in that it "represents more adequately the population living, respectively, under urban conditions and rural conditions."

In a period of fifty years the character of the population of the United States has changed. In 1850 the urban population was 28.6 percent of the total. Since then it has doubled and the rural population shrunk from the great majority to a minority group. The cities and urban communities may even grow larger before the migration comes to an end. And in spite of the dwindling farm population no one is complaining of the danger of our being unable to produce enough food to meet the country's needs.

Mill At Stanton Burned By Fire
Stanton, Neb., Jan. 13.—Fire which broke out in the offices of the Stanton Mills about 9:30 or 10 o'clock Tuesday morning swept through the entire structure and reduced it to a pile of ashes by early afternoon.

The mill has been operated as a grist-mill for local feed grinding for the past four or five years by E. A. Marshall. Mr. Marshall left town early Tuesday morning and it is reported that employees allowed the fire in an oil stove to burn too briskly and ignite papers in the office.

Firemen worked for about an hour in an effort to keep the flames under control but the blaze finally burned through the roof and the entire building was soon destroyed.

A concrete elevator standing adjacent to the mill building and connected to it by a frame loading shed was saved, although the loading shed caught fire. The elevator was about half full of corn, it was said.

It is reported that there was no insurance carried on the mill. The property was once worth about $20,000 but stood idle for about ten years and had deteriorated considerably in value.

The mill was a three-story frame building.

Services Held In Wayne Saturday Afternoon For Mrs. Parker.

Passes Thursday

Deceased Had Been Resident of Carroll and Wayne Most of Her Life.

Funeral services were held at the Beckenhauer chapel in Wayne Saturday morning at 10 o'clock for Mrs. Harry Parker who died here January 8 after several days' illness, aged 39 years, 9 months and 20 days. Rev. P. A. Davies had charge and interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

Mrs. Parker's maiden name was Miss Mattie May Mick. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Mick and was born at Atlantic, Iowa, April 18, 1891. When deceased was a year old she moved with her parents to Carroll, Neb., where she attended school and united with the Methodist church. The family later lived at Wayne.

Miss Mick was married in December, 1910, to Donald Porter of Wayne. Three children were born to this union, Lee, Boniada and Creston. Deceased was married August 11, 1930, to Harry Parker at Highmore, S. D. Besides her husband and children, Mrs. Parker leaves her father, W. R. Mick of Holdrege, Kan., one brother, Otto Mick of Holton, and three sisters, Mrs. Edward Honey of Holton, Mrs. Clark Mossman of Leith, N. D., and Mrs. Lou Surber of Wayne. MAHOGANY CORN DEVELOPED HERE WINNING FAVOR

A NEBRASKA farmer, W. R. Watt of Hastings, has developed a strain of corn that is receiving much consideration in sections of the state where the rainfall varies. It is called mahogany corn from its color. Objections to the color are met by the fact that milling operations remove the color for grain products and when fed to stock the color does not matter. The color appears when the grain begins to garden. In the roasting ear stage and the corn makes fine roasting ears—there is no trace of color. The corn is a cross between a well known brand of sweet corn and the old time blue squaw corn. It is rich in protein and sugar that makes it valuable as a stock food; it will mature in 100 days. The stalks are so attractive to stock they will desert alfalfa for them. Its tough stalks are wind and hail resisting. It will mature a crop when other varieties fall before dry weather. It has a potential output of 100 bushels to the acre, according to the developer.

The Hastings farmer conceived the idea of developing a strain of corn that would be suited to the area that is occasionally subjected to a shortage of rainfall. He has been developing the strain for six years and has had such good success with it himself his neighbors and many farmers in this and other states are using trial fields with great success. "It is just a man's good fortune if he happens to get good results in any sort of corn crossing experiment," remarked Mr. Watt. "Hundreds of experiments may revert back to a type where one can be carried on from year to year and remain true. I have gathered as many as seven ears from one stalk of corn. I had had two or three on the same stalk and one on what we always regard as suckers on other corn."

Motor Vehicles Lead Accidents

State Statistics Show Over Half of Casualties Are in Cars.

Accident statistics for Nebraska compiled by The Nebraska Press association and the rehabilitation division of the state department of vocational education show that motor vehicle wrecks were responsible for 55 percent of the 10,004 accident casualties in Nebraska in 1930.

Fiftyseven percent of all accidental injuries, 26 percent of all permanent disabilities from accidents and 42 percent of all accidental deaths in Nebraska in 1930 were caused by automobiles. More than 60 percent of all automobile accidents reported occurred on public highways outside of cities and villages.

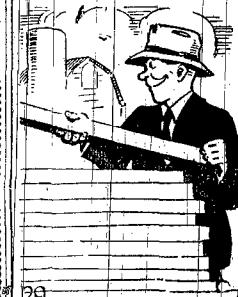

The 1930 accidents in our state killed, injured and disabled more Nebraska men, women and children than Nebraska soldiers of the World War who were killed, disabled or wounded in action in the whole 19-month period.

Combinations of disregard for speed laws, stop sign infractions, reckless blind driving and road hogging on the part of drivers together with sharp turns, narrow bridges, loose gravel, poor visibility over hillsides, and unmarked or unlighted road obstructions in the shape of parked cars, trucks, other vehicles, loose animals, gravel piles and road working equipment were implied in a large majority of the 5,500 motor vehicle accident reports studied during the year.

education of highway users (compulsory training of drivers in highway laws and safety rules) is urged by the national street and highway safety conference as an effective measure for the careless or thoughtless driver.

Properly organized systems of state highway patrols, adequately manned have been very effective in three states at least (New Jersey, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania) in finding and removing or guarding road hazards before they cause accidents and in making believers out of the willful law violators. The systems in these states has been not only effective but self-supporting.

Case Is Appealed To Supreme Court

Lincoln, Neb.—D. C. Dendinger's appeal from a $1,000 judgment entered in Cedar county for A. W. Burke, was argued and submitted to the supreme court. The case has been in the courts. Burke's son was employed as a farm hand by Dendinger. A lawsuit over wages followed. Burke subpoenaed Dendinger and a fist fight ensued.

Dendinger says Burke provoked the fight and Burke says Dendinger did, hitting him from behind when he was not looking.

Dendinger insists that a blackened eye was the main damage and that $1,000 is too much for it.

The judgment was paid under a threat of the sheriff to levy on his property. It was argued in supreme court by Burke's attorney that there was nothing to decide. The court held to the contrary.

New Kind Lumber Helps Home-Owner

Home-Modernizing Made Easy By "Four-Square" Lumber in Packages.

Wayne folks who plan to modernize their homes will have their tasks greatly simplified and made easy for them by a new kind of lumber which has made its appearance here.

This new lumber arrived recently in the yard of the Carhart Lumber Company. It goes by the name of "four-square" and differs from ordinary lumber in several important respects, according to Mr. Carhart, manager of that firm.

For one thing, it is a quality product re-manufactured after it has gone through all the ordinary processes of milling. This added machinery consists of re-butting each board so that it is exact in dimension and each of its ends is perfectly smooth and absolutely free from square. This, by the way, accounts for its name. The square ends make for convenience in use and require much less hand-trimming.

In addition, the lumber comes packaged with the species of wood and its grade plainly marked on the outside, not in the language of lumber experts, but in English that a child can read and understand. This serves as a guarantee of quality. Besides, says Mr. Carhart, packaging protects the faces of the finely finished boards during handling and delivery.

Buying lumber now is no different from buying groceries, hardware, plumbing or any other article for the household that is labeled and carries the name of the manufacturer, which, in this case, is the Weyerhaeuser affiliation of lumber mills, the largest producers of lumber in the world.

President Hoover, while secretary of commerce, sought to have all manufacturers of lumber grade-mark and trade-mark their products in a manner understandable by the layman. In four-square lumber this ideal is carried out. The owner or architect can specify the exact species and grade desired with certainty of getting what is called for.

On a Merchandising Basis. Omaha Journal-Stockman: Those who have made a business of trying to keep track of the fluctuations in the live stock markets during the past year have been puzzled at times to account for the many sharp advances and declines that have taken place from day to day without any tangible reason. As a rule, this condition is attributed to the hand to mouth buying by the packers.

It is undoubtedly true that the meat packing industry is now largely on a merchandising basis instead of on a speculation basis. That is, the packer seeks to purchase his supplies of live stock from day to day as the demand for fresh meat develops. No longer does he pack away vast stocks of meat in the winter months in the expectation of selling these stocks at a profit six months or a year later. The present demand for meat tends to fix the price of live stock more than ever before.

For this reason it has been somewhat difficult to make anything like authoritative forecasts of the markets. It has also rendered it hard for meat packers to figure out just how their business stood as compared with former years. The change has certainly brought wider and more sudden fluctuations from day to day in the live stock markets, but it has also had a marked tendency to stabilize the meat packing business and place it on a better basis.

Throughout the year storage stocks have been less than half those of a year ago, when buying power was riding the crest of the wave," notes the National Provisioner in discussing this matter. "This situation points to an unusual consumptive demand for meat and to the fact that practically no curtailment has taken place in meat buying."

"As a matter of fact, there would appear to have been some increase in consumption, as the accumulations from month to month of this year have been considerably less than in many other more normal business years when live stock supplies were not large."

"The packer has conducted his business on practically a hand-to-mouth basis this year, and it has been more satisfactory than the speculative policy sometimes has proved to be. Where overhead is an important item decreased volume has worked some hardship, but otherwise the packer is one industrialist who has found 1930 as good or a better year than many he has experienced in the past, when general business conditions were more active."

Scouts are Asked To Help In Need

Girl scouts throughout the country are urged to cooperate with the existing agencies during 1931 as their contribution to unemployment relief in a New Year's message issued by Mrs. Frederic Edey, president of the girl scout to the 250,000 members of the organization.

While no definite plan was outlined Mrs. Edey pointed out that if each of the 6,000 organizations of girls undertook to carry on during 1931 a practical community service to aid in the present crisis, the organization "we have made a fitting and valuable contribution in the national emergency." Such a program, she said, would be in line with the request for cooperation made by Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, who is the woman representative on the president emergency committee for employment, as well as a member of the national board of directors of the girl scouts.

Mrs. Edey urged close cooperation with established agencies, emphasizing that individual effort should not be attempted. By going such agencies "all the help you can," said Mrs. Edey, "will not only be doing your own living every day, but you will be living your law that a girl scout is useful and helps others."

A Chronicle of Poor Richard

THE early history of our country has no more vivid commentary on its mode of life—its thought and ideals—than lie in the tattered brown pamphlets known as Poor Richard's Almanack. Each year they came into these frugal homes to form practically the only link between them and the outside world. They were read until, thumbed and ragged, they could scarcely hold together. Here were wise sayings, extracts from sermons, political squibs and most important to the farmer who studied them—weather predictions.

It is difficult in these days of daily papers, copious magazines and radios to realize the importance these Almanacks had two hundred years ago. The make-up of the Almanack consisted of a title page ornamented with some crude woodcut, followed by an "Address to the Courteous Reader". Then came the calendar, each one occupying a page including weather predictions such as "High Wind", "Raw and Chilly", "Northwest Wind" and "Snow Blast".

Almanack Published For Twenty-Five Years

Such was the Almanack published by Benjamin Franklin in 1732 and for twenty-five years thereafter. It was modeled on other Almanacks of the period but surpassed them in wit and wisdom.

Franklin was clever enough to engage in controversy with his fellow philomaths, arousing unusual interest in the lively discussions that followed his satirical accusations. He also advertised his publication more extensively than had been the custom with his rival publishers—a practice that resulted in unprecedented sales.

A third reason for the success of the Almanack was the richness of proverbial and wise sayings that Franklin used to fill in his paper.

Banking Situation Sound.
Omaha Journal-Stockman: There are two ways of looking at the banking situation. The pessimist becomes more down hearted every time he hears of a bank failure. On the other hand, the optimist is encouraged when he learns that a weak bank has gone under. He says, "that removes another dangerous factor, the remaining banks will be safer and sounder than ever."

Illustrating the latter view, the president of the American Bankers' association in his annual address last week insisted that many bad banks and bad banking habits had been discarded during the year 1930 and that the banks now in business were in every way better equipped and better managed than they were twelve months ago. Said he:

"The events of the last year have brought about a strong banking situation by eliminating some undeniable weaknesses, despite the prominence in the market of banking difficulties, only a small fraction of total banking figures are affected and even a small amount of deposits will actually be lost since most closed banks will pay in full or large part."
"The vast majority of bank sources are not involved at all. I feel that we can truthfully say we will have as a result of the unhappy but curative conditions the strongest banking situation we have ever enjoyed and one is worthy of the highest confidence of all our people. The bulk of bank assets are 100 per cent sound above all question."

In other words, the whole banking system has been tried in fire. Much of the dross has been removed by this process and banks that have come through the ordeal are entirely worth our confidence and support. This sensible sentiment, both general and the banking situation will automatically show improvement.

Mystery Surrounds Finding Of Bones
Mystery surrounds the finding of skeletons of eight persons shallow grave near Center homes having been unearthed by the graving crew at work on Center-Verdige road. As has advanced the opinion the skeletons are those of persons sought to flee the smallpox epidemic of 1873 which took the lives of 284 Indians in the reservation. One theory was the bones were those of white who lost their lives in the wilderness when on their way to Black Hills in search of gold. Other theory says the remains of those of Sioux or Winnebago Indians who engaged in a cover up chokchekery grounds.

A barometer which R. H. Jacques has made is an interesting weather forecaster. In a jar Mr. Jacques has placed a solution of cotton seed oil, olive oil and water. Public School Adopts Revised Schedule With Beginning of Second Semester

Rehearsals Continue for Smart Cantata to be Presented at Gay Theater Soon.

With the opening of the second semester next Monday, Wayne public school will adopt a revised schedule which Supt. E. R. Best considers better suited to the needs of the students. School will take up at 8:45, rather than 8:30, which some found too early an hour for the short days of the winter season. Dismissal for the noon recess will be at 10 minutes to 12, and school will open again at 1 o'clock, to be dismissed for the day at 3:35. In this way, Mr. Best explains, the old 50 minute periods can be stretched to the full hour, one half of which will be devoted to the recitation and one half of which will be used for supervised study.

Commercial law will be offered. The instructor in other commercial subjects; and vocational guidance, with R. K. Holder. The senior English course will be changed to a journalism class, in which Miss Verna Mae O'Neill will give the principles of journalistic usage. Some practical work will be done as a part of the requirement.

Continued Physical Education. Physical education will be given three periods a week instead of only two, as was formerly the case. The course has met with such interest among students that the faculty feels this change is warranted. Games and drills will be used, and the Swedish setting-up exercises, with apparatus work and exercises minimized. This ruling is in accord with the modern theories of teaching the subject.

Mr. Holder and Miss Pease are taking charge of the work for the higher grades; individual teachers taking care of their own pupils in the intermediate and lower grades. Football men have received new sweaters, the royal blue ground with white emblem having been chosen.

Begin Declamatory Work. Declamatory work began with a preliminary meeting called for Thursday of last week by Miss O'Neill, who will be in charge. The work will lead to the contests, which take place during the spring months.

Expression class in the high school has been having individual recitals of work for review the past week. Each pupil has given a group of selections as a part of the recitation for each day.

To Present Cantata. "The Count and the Co-ed," cantata on which high school students have been working, will be presented at the Gay Tuesday evening, January 27, instead of January 26, as has been announced previously. The piece is of a light comedy nature, and includes large choruses with gay musical parts. The scene is laid in a mid-west college town, with the roles cast for collegiate types.

Twelve speaking parts are included as follows: Birdie Boggs, Lucille Wright; Amy Arnold, Elaine Yocum; Dolly McSpadden, Jean Wright; Miss Agatha Lockstep, Margaret Phipps; Dr. Cicero McSpadden, Melvin Seymour; Mrs. McSpadden, Ruby Surber; Mark Watson, James Davies; Hamilton Hunter, Charles Barry; "Sleepy" Carter, Robert Kingston; Marjorie Blackwood, Letha Porterfield; Dan Flanagan, Wilbur Porterfield; "Snooze" Andrews, John Kemp.

Several committees have been appointed to take charge of arrangements for the affair, and these will be announced later. The affair is under the direction of Miss Arline Urban, director of music in the public schools.

Fred Jarvis was here from Laurel Monday.

Popular Star Is Coming To Gay After nearly a year during which Janet Gaynor has been taking a vacation from the screen and Charles Farrell has been teamed with Rose Hobart and Maureen O'Sullivan, this greatest pair of screen sweethearts have been reunited in Raoul Walsh's Fox Movietone production of "The Man Who Came Back."

Ever since Miss Gaynor and Farrell were so successfully teamed in "7th Heaven" they have ranked as the screen's most popular couple. Their successes, in addition to "7th Heaven," include "Street Angel," "Lucky Star," "Sunny Side Up," "High Society Blues," and now the greatest of them all, "The Man Who Came Back." This is one of the most dramatic romances ever written, and gives the popular young stars the best roles of their careers.

The supporting cast includes William Holden, Kenneth MacKenna and Mary Forbes. The internationally known artist, Joseph Urban, supplied the unusual settings.

"The Man Who Came Back" will be seen and heard at the Gay theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, January 18, 19 and 20.
