Kiwanis Plans Founders' Day

Committees Arrange For Dinner Program When Guests Will Come.

Local Men Speak

Kiwanians Tell Experiences at Eastern Meetings During Past Weeks Time.

Kiwanians are anticipating an interesting evening Friday, January 23, when a Founders' day dinner and program will be had for members and guests at Hotel Stratton. The dinner program is being arranged under the direction of Homer Seace, who is also chairman of the house committee. Other committees are: T. S. Hook, chairman of the program; Fred Blum, chairman; A. T. Cavanaugh, reception committee. A nationally known speaker who will be in the section next week will give the address of the evening on an unannounced subject.

Monday's luncheon meeting at Hotel Stratton will be followed by a presentation of selections from the high school opera, "The Count and the Countess," scheduled for Tuesday evening at the Gay. The selections will be given under the direction of Miss Arline Urban of the high school staff, as Miss Urban has coached the entire performance.

Prof. U. S. Conn of Wayne State Teachers college will speak on "Economic Conditions as I Have Observed Them." He plans to make a comparison of conditions as they have been throughout the last year in the midwest. The talk will be of an informal nature, and is designed to bring out the opinions of a trained observer on a subject which has been of increasing common interest during the past twelve months.

Educators Give Talks.

At last Monday's town meeting of the club, Dr. J. W. Lewis, recently returned from Cleveland, where he attended a meeting of the American Political Science Association, gave an address on the modern type of professor and instructor to be seen at these gatherings. It was heartening to observe, he stated, that the teachers' colleges, formerly given rather a low rating at these national meetings, are rapidly climbing in the scale of recognition.

Political science instructors, and students of economics and finance, are rapidly usurping the place held by lawyers in the political world. Formerly he observed, recruits to political life were from the bar. Today they come from the ranks of the trained students of political and economic affairs, keen, aggressive types, well-fitted to go into office.

New Educational Trend.

A new trend in the field of education was emphasized in E. J. Hunter's address concerning the national association of vocational instructors, which he attended in Milwaukee. A very real advance along the line of vocational education is to be observed on a large scale, he stated.

He described quite minutely the technical training in the high school in Milwaukee, under the leadership of Prof. Cooley. He made the point that vocational education is being recognized more rapidly in the west than it is in the midwest.

Pupils who graduate from the vocational training high schools of the east, Mr. Hunter showed, are ready to go into practical work, in the event that they are unable to attend school any longer. Middle-western high schools prepare their graduates to go on to school, but they fit them for no success in vocational life, a bad situation for the numbers who are unable to enjoy the benefits of higher education.

Since the eastern schools are advancing so rapidly toward this new goal, Mr. Hunter believes that schools in this section will be forced soon to adopt the vocational idea, which is in accord with modern ideas of progressive and successful education.

Kiwanis club directors met for a business session Monday evening, and to make plans for the affairs of the next few weeks.

Ankle Is Broken By Auto In City

Frank Davy of Sioux City, father of Mrs. F. S. Berry of Wayne, sustained a broken ankle and bruised Sunday evening about 6 o'clock when he was struck by a car which was backing out of parking at Fourth and Pearl Streets in Sioux City. Mr. Davy, who is 79, was going from his office to a store when the accident happened. He was taken to a hospital where the ankle was placed in a cast. Mrs. Berry went to the city Sunday to see her father and found him resting comfortably. She returned Monday.

PLENTY OF MONEY IN COUNTRY, BUT POVERTY STALKS

More money in the country than ever and a larger surplus for food in some parts than usual, and still poverty stalks and extremities of want reared Red Cross and federal aid in many sections. The terrors of drought have been added to market and industrial slumps. But a late report says 100 of the largest banks in the United States had a total increase of deposits of more than $300,000,000 during 1930. Since 1924 these same banks have gained deposits of $7,000,000,000. At the same time the Red Cross is asking for a fund of $10,000,000 to carry on relief work in drought-stricken areas, and the federal government is stirring itself in trying to prop up tottering conditions in least fortunate parts of the country. Lack of coordination of efforts among official and other groups doubtless delay readjustments, hinder market and industrial revival and prolong widespread unemployment. Another disturbing and obstructing influence is undoubtedly due to self-appointed agitators who seek to disparage and destroy rather than heal and construct. Lack of equality in commodity and farm values is still apparent, but the leveling process is going on and the sooner equality is reached, the sooner will recovery develop on a fair and just basis. Times will grow better, but they may be hastened by putting shoulders to the wheel, accepting inevitable declines and renewing activities along all lines.

Suffers Injury In Feed Yards

James Grier, Jr., Sustains Bruises Monday When Attacked by Animal.

James Grier, Jr., sustained severe bruises and possibly internal injuries Monday afternoon when he was trampled by a steer in the yards at his father's place north of Wayne. He is being cared for at the Wayne hospital.

Mr. Grier was walking through the livestock yard Monday afternoon about 3 o'clock when one of two animals in the lot attacked him. The young man was thrown to the ground and trampled. He was unconscious for a time and when he regained consciousness he was lying on the ground outside the yard. He was unable to recall whether he was thrown out by the animal or whether he was able to open the gate and get away.

Though his injuries are painful, hospital attendants think Mr. Grier will improve satisfactorily soon.

Rites Are Conducted at Altona for Herman Koehlmoo's Who Died Monday Last Week.

Funeral services were held last Thursday at the home north of Platte and afterward at Altona, Trinity Lutheran church for Herman Koehlmoo who died in a Norfolk hospital Monday last week from heart trouble, aged 57 years, 8 months and 2 days. Council Seeks Expert Opinion

Committee Makes Trip to Lincoln to Interview Municipal Lawyer.

Study On Franchise

Company Representatives Will Confer With Groups Here Early Next Week.

Councilmen Wright, Strahaa and Ellis, Mayor Orr and City Attorney Brittain went to Lincoln Wednesday to spend the day consulting with authorities on natural gas. Chief among consultants was to be George R. Mann, counsel for the Nebraska League of Municipalities. Members also planned to see officials of the gas company and to interview users of the new fuel if possible. In this way, it is believed, Wayne men can derive a more authoritative point of view on the situation.

Council members have been working this week on material which has to do with the franchise to be granted to the natural gas company in accord with the wishes of the people as expressed in December's special election. Company representatives will come to Wayne January 27 to attend council meeting, and to complete framing of the franchise, making such additions and changes as they and the council agree to be necessary.

Sample franchises granted in other Nebraska towns are being studied, with a view toward making to the proposed franchise such additions as may be considered most suitable for Wayne. Councilmen are studying the matter with a view toward Tuesday's discussion.

Interest in Gas.

National interest in natural gas is steadily increasing, according to reports found in papers from various quarters. From McComb, Mississippi, Enterprise last week comes the following editorial note: "Wednesday morning 10 o'clock went to work on the gas pipe lines. Forty others were put to work on another project.

"These jobs should bring some relief to the unemployed. Others will soon be working on the gas distribution system in McComb."

"This much everyone should know," said the leaders of McComb, "are striving in every conceivable way to assist the unemployed in solving their problems."

"A couple of hundred more men are expected to be put to work on the gas distribution system. Everything possible is being done to speed up this work."

A dispatch to the World-Herald last week tells of the attitude toward the commodity in Chicago. Chicago, Ill., Jan. 17. Natural gas from Texas will be available to Chicago consumers before the end of 1931, the quarterly report of the People's Gas, Light and Coke company said.

Local Calf Club Continues Campaign

Calf club members met Friday evening at the city hall with their sponsor, Dr. William Hawley, to discuss plans for the year's work and to make further arrangements for the membership drive. The drive, which was to have ended with Friday's meeting, was continued through this week, with Ernest Splittgerber and Frank Claycomb as captains of the teams.

New officers took their places, and reports on the calves were heard Friday. Last year's club of 33 members will be exceeded this year, states Dr. Hawkins.

Opossum Walks Into Trap Fixed To Catch Rabbits

A bright-eyed opossum, with the sharp pointed nose and peaked ears that are characteristic of the breed, was caught Friday morning by Glen Thill on the E. A. Surber farm near Wayne. The animal, which unwittingly ventured into a trap designed to catch rabbits, was unharmed, and Mr. Thill put it into an improvised cage and brought it to Wayne Saturday afternoon. The animal was on display for a few hours in the window of the Herald office, and attracted much attention among persons who had seen opossums.

Mr. Thill, on being informed that a "possum" served southern style with sweet potatoes, made excellent eating, said that he would like to try the dish, so the bright-eyed "possum's" possible end was quite evident.

The animals appear occasionally in this part of the country but are rare enough to attract attention. Several farmers have caught the animals and kept them for pets around the farm for a short time. Unshelled corn, apples and carrots seem to satisfy the opossum's desire for a balanced ration.

IN MAKING PLANS FOR BETTERMENTS DELAY IS COSTLY

It is a fact that many thousands of dollars could have been saved on Wayne's paving if the work had been done a few years before the war and thus the consequent price inflation. But the improvement was regarded fearfully, or apathetically at the time when a great saving could have been effected. Later when values ascended and when they had reached the peak, the demand for paving grew and brought favorable action. The delay had been too long to serve economy, and it expected a large penalty. At this time prices are down, but they are not going to remain down. This is the time to buy a farm, or to make any contemplated improvement. If one has in mind any building or any refurnishing or reequipping, he will be many dollars ahead by acting now. When times revive, material is likely to go up and labor become scarce. If one has the surplus to put into any farm, business or home improvement, postponement would seem unnecessary as well as costly.

French Teacher Has Review On Algebra Thesis

Miss Amy Chateaufauf, instructor at Wayne State Teachers College, was honored recently when a review of special work done by her appeared in the Mathematics Teacher magazine for January.

The review, by Dr. Lao G. Simons of Hunter College, New York City, praises Miss Chateaufauf's exhaustive thesis, "Changes in Content of Elementary Algebra Since the Beginning of the High School Movement as Revealed by Textbooks of the Period." The thesis was written as a part of the author's work at the University of Pennsylvania, and represents the study of the subject matter, which Miss Chateaufauf, an instructor in French, considers her hobby.

Since the review appeared, Miss Chateaufauf has received various requests from New York, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Indiana for copies of her thesis, which is in the usual paper-bound printed volume. Miss Chateaufauf avers that algebra, like all hobbies, yields her a great deal of pleasure.

Salaries In County Are No Higher Now

Members of the county board who have, in the past week, met with statements that the salaries of county officials have been raised, have corrected this erroneous impression by pointing out that the report stated only the usual provisions for extra help in the offices. Salaries of county officials are fixed by law, and are not subject to change by a board. Extra help can be hired, although such expense does not add to the salaries of officials.

One line in the heading over the report of the county commissioners' annual estimate of expenses in last week's Herald was accepted by those who did not read the article as meaning that officers' salaries had been raised. Making the usual provision for necessary help in the different offices prompted the misunderstood heading. The law fixes salaries, and they cannot be changed by the county board. Extra assistance in doing the public work is provided by the board, according to needs. Contrary to assumption, the commissioners' report that they have decreased the estimate, notably in the treasurer's office, where provision for the auxiliary was reduced from $2,000 to $1,500.

Funeral Rites This Thursday

Services For F. H. Jones Are To Be Held Today At Wayne Church.

Passes On Sunday

Deceased Had Book Store in Wayne and Was Active in Church Many Years.

Following a few days' illness with throat trouble, F. H. Jones, Nebraska pioneer and early resident of Wayne, passed away Sunday day afternoon about 3:30, aged 68 years, 8 months and 13 days. Funeral services will be conducted this Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Presbyterian church, preceded by short rites at the home. Rev. P. A. Davies will be in charge and interment will be made in Greenwood cemetery.

Mr. Jones had been actively engaged in business in Wayne the past 34 years, having owned and operated the Jones Book-Music store here during that period. He was also an untiring worker in the Presbyterian church during his residence here. He was an elder in the church at the time of his death and had served in this capacity for many years, being clerk of the session in recent years. He was Sunday-school superintendent also for many years and devoted much time and effort to building up this branch of the church. The past couple years Mr. Jones had sponsored the music class in the Sunday school. Mr. Jones' devotion to interests of the church and Sunday school made him one of the leading Presbyterian workers and won for him great respect and many friendships. Besides his faithful attention to church and daily business duties, Mr. Jones was sincerely devoted to his wife, who has not been well for a complete year, and to others of his family.

Frank Hurlburt Jones was born at Coventry, New York, May 5, 1862. After finishing grammar and high school he entered Hamilton college in New York. Later he attended the Northwestern School of Pharmacy at Chicago, Ill., finishing as a registered pharmacist. At the age of 19 years, or about 50 years ago, Mr. Jones made his first trip west, locating at Creighton, Neb. He may rightfully be classed as one of Nebraska's pioneers. After leaving Creighton, Mr. Jones engaged in banking at Springfield, Neb., and later conducted a drug business at that point. In the fall of 1897 Mr. Jones moved to Bloomfield. He came to Wayne in the spring of 1898 and bought the book-music store which he owned and operated since.

Mr. Jones married Miss Isabella (Continued on Page Three.)

Miss Bertha Bergerson of Concord has discovered that eggs which originate in Nebraska reach the country sometimes travel much farther than the owners of the farms on which they originate. Her answer came from Maspeth, Long Island, and gave Miss Bergerson a real thrill.

Girls' Glee Club Gives Musicale

Evening's Entertainment Is Presented in Three Short Groups of Numbers.

One of the outstanding home talent musical events of the year was the program sponsored by the Girls' Glee Club at Wayne State Teachers College Tuesday evening. Miss Gladys Sulerud directed the numbers, and Miss Doris Blackmer acted as accompanist. The offering was divided into six parts, the last being an Indian cycle in three scenes.

"Snow," by Elgar, sung by the Glee Club with an orchestral accompaniment, was the first number, followed by Speaks' "Morning."

Miss Mina Inhelder next offered "A Split Flower" by Campbell Tipton, as a vocal solo, and Miss Virginia Stoltenberg presented a solo dance.

"A Dance" by Pissard, was given as a flute solo by Marion Jo Theobald, and the string trio, Floss Hankins, Miss Dorothy Gulliver and Miss Albert G. Carlson, played Cadman's "At Dawning."

An Indian Cycle.

In the first scene of the Indian cycle, Miss Mina Inhelder sang Troyer's "Sunrise Call." A quartet including the Misses Bernice McCall, Frances Hill, Gretchen Theobald and Ruth Schweig, sang "The White Dawn is Stealing," by Cadman. Other numbers in the first group included sunrise ceremony "From an Indian Lodge" by MacDowell, "Indian Dawn," by Zamecznik, presented by Miss Inhelder, and Cadman's "From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water," sung by the quartet. The group was completed with "Love Song" by Lieurance, rendered by Kathryn Bolshaw; "Far Off I Hear a Lover's Flute," Cadman, sung by the quartet, "The Weaver," by Lieurance, sung by Miss Mildred Moses; "Indian Mountain Song" by Cadman, sung by the Glee club; "A-oo-ah," by Lieurance, sung by Miss Bolshaw.

The second scene began with "My Silver Throated Swan" by Lieurance, sung by Miss Bolshaw; "O' my Maiden's Prayer," Lieurance, sung by Miss Moses, wedding ceremony, "Pa-pup-oh" by Lieurance, sung by Miss Bolshaw; Lieurance's "By the Waters of Minnetonka," sung by the club ensemble, with a flute obligato by Miss Theobald.

"W-um," rhythmic song by Lieurance, ended the last scene, with Miss Moses singing. Troyer's "Invocation to the Sun God" was next sung by Miss Theobald, and followed with Logan's "Pale Moon" sung by the club. Miss Technaus sang "Her Blanket," by Lieurance, and Cadman's "The Moon Drops Low," closed the evening's program.

Taken To Omaha To See Specialist

Lowell Heine, who will be 4 years old in February, was taken to an Omaha specialist Monday for examination for an illness which is thought to be caused by a tumor or blood clot on the brain. The little boy has not been feeling in his usual good health for about a month. When the malady began last week to cause a numbness in his limbs his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heine, on advice of a local doctor, took him to Sioux City. Doctors there advised them to go to a specialist in Omaha. The Heines are staying with their son while examinations are being made. He may undergo an operation. The three other Heine children are with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Lerner.

Saturday's Snow To Benefit Crops

Although the snow of Saturday night and Sunday does not compare with the heavy snows of last January, crop experts believe that soil conditions generally are good in this state. The week-end snow was heavier in the eastern portions than in the western half of the state and totaled almost four inches, as recorded at Omaha. It was the first heavy snow of the year.

According to A. E. Anderson, state and federal crop statistician, the snow would not benefit greatly the winter wheat because it represents such a small amount of precipitation. However dry the eastern part of the state is, he states, it is not at all in danger.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express sincere thanks for the kindnesses of our neighbors and other friends during the illness and at the death of our son and grandson, Mr. and Mrs. John Frink, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Frink and Mr. and Mrs. John Schreener.

The American scientist who went to Africa to look for the form of human life might have taken a look at the New York policemen and lawyers who have been "framing" innocent women on vice charges for many a year could make out of it.

THE KNOT-HOLE

No. 45 Wayne, Neb., Thursday, January 22, 1931. Vol. 4

Another thing we've never been able to understand is why capable men are refused a chance to work because they've done nothing worse than to become fifty or sixty years old.

He caught him a mouse in the house. This starting the first "harum scarem."

"You brag so much about that ashless coal," said another new customer the other day. "Yes, and he'll brag us in another week about that same coal."

Our customers look at our place and say, "There's where we get service."

When a man sings his own praises it is likely to be a solo, but we are free to say that a host of satisfied customers are singing the praises of 4-Square lumber.

The office loafer says, "I kick town where the ladies still leave the table when the men begin to tell stories."

Don't leave. We want to tell you about a new low price of Eastern Kentucky Block coal — $13.00 the ton.

We sold that loading chute Carl made two weeks ago. Top bad. Now he'll have to go to work on another.

Gladden your furnace with a real feed of Eastern Kentucky Block coal at $13.00. Less than a half-bushel of ash to the ton of coal.

A little poetry, we think, adds "tone" to the Knot Hole space. How do you like this one? A sultan, at odds with his harem, that lay a week way he could scare 'em. He caught him a mouse in the house. This starting the first "harum scarem."

"You brag so much about that ashless coal," said another new customer the other day. "Yes, and he'll brag us in another week about that same coal."

"Why, what's the matter? You look like a man to wear blue. Something must have happened."

"Yes, the drug store closed."

It's all right for a man to wear blue the year around, if he doesn't go around bragging about it.

Boost your home town all the year. When we can't do that we're going to move out.

Monkeying around the damned old fur-nace trying to poke several bushels of cinkers out of the fire pot isn't a nice job. Why not switch to Eastern Kentucky Block coal and eliminate the trouble right now?

A wife is somebody who waits until all you're comfortably settled in bed to ask you if you're sure you turned the cellar light out.

When Wayne distillers begin to whittle softly, you can gamble they're approaching a nerve center. Ever notice?

We wish collections were not necessary, but they are very, very necessary. Just a little reminder, in case some of our readers may have overlooked the fact that the old account is past due.

Roche once said, "It is a great mistake to suppose that all men are rogues if there were not many more rogues in the world, who would buy stocks?"

Whether the results of government are more vitally interested. In this land of ours every one should be kept alive to matters of government, national, state and local. Ignorance and indifference are a pathy on the part of the masses will inevitably lead to disaster.

"Bill has the position of a mule. Then you better not talk about him to his back."

One of the ingratitude of government ownership of utilities is the tendency to serve the class patrons at less the cost of production and distribution and at the same time make the deficiency excessive charge on others or taxation or both. The post office department is a striking example. There are others.

It's a lot easier to start on a hole than it is to finish it. We call it finished at this time.

"EVERYTHING TO BUILD ANYTHING WITH"

Liberty Bell May Ring Out Again

Toll of Famous Bell Will Probably Be Broadcast From Radio Stations.

The famous old Liberty bell, which so joyously rang to announce the Declaration of Independence and which tolled so sadly when George Washington died at Mount Vernon, may again ring forth from Independence Hall, in Philadelphia, on Washington's next birthday, February 22, 1931.

Efforts are being made by officials of the George Washington Bicentennial commission to arrange for a nation-wide radio hookup on this date and have President Hoover press an electric button in Washington which will start the nation's most historic bell ringing again after a silence of almost one hundred years. It is proposed to have the bell strike thirteen times, once for each of the thirteen original states.

According to noted Philadelphia historians, the last ringing of the bell was on July 8, 1835, in honor of the funeral services of John Marshall, Chief Justice of the United States, who died in Philadelphia on July 6, 1835. While the bell was being solemnly tolled it suddenly cracked. An attempt was made to repair it in 1846 for the celebration of Washington's birthday ceremonies, but this attempt failed. It is believed, however, that while the cracked bell will not give forth its once famous clarion notes, it will nevertheless ring sufficiently loud to be heard by all radio listeners. If it is tapped thirteen times on the anniversary of Washington's birth next month, before it cracked, the Liberty Bell had lived a life of eighty-two useful years and had become one of the most famous bells in the world. All through the Revolutionary war the Liberty bell was used for the purpose of calling together the inhabitants of the city to learn news from the battlefields. At one time during the war, however, it became necessary to remove the bell hastily from its fastenings and take it out of the city. This exciting event took place on September 18, 1777, when the news came that the British army was about to occupy Philadelphia. The bell was carefully loaded on a wagon and conveyed along with the heavy baggage of the American army in a supply train of seven hundred wagons, guarded by two hundred North Carolina and Virginia cavalry, to Allentown, Pennsylvania, where it was hidden in Zion's church until June 27, 1778, when it was taken back to Philadelphia and again placed in Independence Hall.

Never from that time until 1835 did anything of importance happen that was not announced by the ringing of this historic bell. It was joyously rung when the news came of the surrender of Cornwallis to General Washington, which ended the Revolution.

The old bell is reverently preserved. It stands on the ground floor of Independence hall, where it is viewed daily by thousands of visitors from all sections of this country.

The Liberty bell has been a great traveler in its day. In fact, it has seen more of the United States than a vast majority of the people. In addition to its wartime trip to Allentown, it has made the following peacetime journeys:

July 23, 1835: To New Orleans for the world's industrial and cotton exposition.

July 25, 1893: To the World's Columbian exposition at Chicago.

Oct. 21, 1895: To the cotton states and Atlantic exposition, Atlanta, Georgia.

Jan. 6, 1902: Interstate and West India exposition, Charleston, South Carolina.

June 15, 1903: Bunker Hill celebration, Boston, Massachusetts.

1904: Louisiana purchase exposition at St. Louis, Missouri.

Oct. 23, 1913: Historical street parade, founders' week celebration, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

July 4, 1915: To the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco, California.

George Washington very often heard the ringing of the Liberty bell, due to the fact that he spent more time in Philadelphia than any other place, except his home State of Virginia. He first went there as a member of the Continental congress. His next official visit was as the presiding officer of the convention which framed our constitution. His longest stay in the city of brotherly love was as president of the United States from 1790 to 1797.

The history of the Liberty bell, even before the American revolution is an interesting one. In the year 1751 the assembly of the province of Pennsylvania decided that the state house at Philadelphia (Independence hall) needed a new bell. A resolution was passed, instructing the superintendents of the building to secure one. The superintendents, Isaac Norris, Thomas Leech and Edward Warner wrote the following quaint letter to Robert Charles, the colonial agent at London:

"Respected Friend, Robert Charles:

"The assembly having ordered us to procure a bell from England to be purchased for their use, we take the liberty to apply ourselves to thee to get us a good bell, of about two thousand pounds weight, the cost of which we assume may amount to one hundred pounds, sterling, or perhaps with the charges something more.

"We hope and rely on thy care and assistance in this affair, and that thou wilt procure and forward it by the first good opportunity, as our workmen inform us it will be much less trouble to hang the bell before the scaffolds are struck from the building where we intend to place it, which will not be done till the end of next summer (or beginning of the fall).

"Let the bell be cast by the best workmen and examined carefully before it is shipped, with the following words well shapen in large letters around it, viz:

"By order of the Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania for the State House in the City of Philadelphia, 1752."

"And underneath: 'Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof.—Leviticus XXV, 10.

"As we have experienced thy readiness to serve this province on all occasions, we desire it may be our excuse for this additional trouble, from thy assured friends, Isaac Norris, Thomas Leech, Edward Warner."

"Let the package for transportation be examined with particular care and the full value insured thereon."

The careful directions by the superintendents were duly carried out by the colonial agent at London. The bell was cast by Thomas Lister, of Whitechapel, London, and reached Philadelphia in August 1752. It, however, was not a success. When placed on trusses in the state house yard for a trial ringing it was soon cracked.

An American firm was now given a chance to see what it could do in the way of producing a satisfactory bell. The name of this firm was Pass & Stow, "two ingenious workmen" of Philadelphia. These two young men took up the English-made bell, melted the material, added an ounce and a half of American copper to each pound of the old metal to make it less brittle, and re-cast it, with all the original inscriptions on it, with the exception of the substitution of their own names for that of the London manufacturer and the date and place of manufacture. Certain defects made a second casting necessary. The bell as it now stands is the result of this second casting.

The bell is considerably larger than most people imagine, it being twelve feet in circumference and with a clapper three feet, two inches long.

The early official ringers of this famous bell were Edward Kelly, from 1753 to 1755; David Edward, from 1755 to 1758, and Andrew McNair from 1758 to 1778. It was McNair who had the honor of ringing the bell announcing the Declaration of Independence.

Would Use Gas Tax For Paving

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 20.—A five-year highway paving program to be financed by receipts from an additional one-cent tax on gasoline is proposed in a bill introduced today by Senator Arthur Bowing of Merrimac. Senator Bowing led the movement two years ago to increase the gasoline tax to four cents.

The additional tax would not become effective until January of next year. The additional funds, it is estimated would make possible the paving of approximately 1,500 miles of pavement during the five-year period.

The greatly increased federal aid allotment which Nebraska will receive this year without being compelled to meet the federal appropriation with state funds makes an increase in the gasoline tax unnecessary this year," Senator Bowing explained.

"However, if Nebraska intends to continue building improved highways after the present year additional funds must be provided."

The extra cent of tax provided for by the bill would be used exclusively for paving purposes.

This is no time to hoard money and stave off buying the things you need. You can buy cheaper now than later, and have the difference to add to the total sum left to descendants.

A light spell of cold and snow hit this neighborhood the first of the week, but did not interrupt travel or cause other inconvenience. If the elements do not deal out anything worse, we will be exceptionally fortunate.

Observing the regrettable destruction of North Dakota's Capitol and records, the Geneva Signal says "the state's disastrous financial and business experience probably account for the fact that the state did not feel able to provide modern vaults in which to preserve state records."

A crazy person will say things that are not true, thought it is not presumed that all liars are crazy. The difference between the one who has a diseased mind and the one who does not know where the truth begins or leaves off is rather in favor of the former, because he is not expected to tell the truth and is not depended on to do it.

Our experience with Nebraska weather prompts us to look forward with some suspicion until we are safely through the next three months. It is possible for mild elements to continue without cessation, no doubt, but it is highly improbable in view of the known capacity of February and even March to press down the mercury and build forbidding snow barriers.

Eastern railroad mergers are regarded as a stimulating influence for stock markets and improved times generally. Among newspapers hailing the consolidation as a movement toward business recovery, the Chicago Post is quoted by the Literary Digest as follows: "In past depressions, some powerful and able factors forced the turning of the business and industrial trend. In 1920, for example, it was the holding shortage which brought a record construction boom of nine years' duration. In 1931 it may well prove that the agreement, well known to the public, was the lever which started economic confidence in the right direction."

The immortal phrase, "Lafayette, we are here," uttered at the grave of the illustrious Frenchman on the arrival of American troops, was attributed to General Pershing, though now in his memoirs, just being published, he says the words were spoken by Col. C. E. Stanton, a member of his staff. While General Pershing wishes he had been author of the expression, the truth prompts him to correct the error and set the public right.

Self-destruction by Dave Davidson, president of Davidson Brothers, among leading Sioux City merchants, reflected a state of mind not so courageous and buoyant as that which impelled his independent struggle as a salesman of goods from a pack on his back in the early days he traveled from place to place supplying the wants of pioneer customers. Of course hardships were endured, but they only spurred effort and fortified determination. From a small, inconspicuous beginning the Davidsons climbed in the mercantile business to a position of large and prominent service. Dave Davidson was an active and generous influence in the development of Sioux City. His unhappy departure leads to the suggestion that the quest is more satisfying than the realization.

Madison is wrestling with the problem of granting a natural gas franchise. Indications are that its people want natural gas, but that some members of the city council are moving in that direction reluctantly. It cites like Des Moines welcome natural gas, conceding and feel certain that adequate supply at reasonable prices, we can see no good reason why smaller centers like Madison should hesitate. We have heard voiced the suspicion that the supply would be unequal to the demand, but that lower rates could be secured through delay. Why cease about the rate if the supply is insufficient? But if the supply is short why are millions of capital put into building the system without obligation to points connected? Is not the gas company the one to worry and suspect if there is any ground to do so?

The death of F. H. Jones, for many years in business in Wayne, marks the passing of a fine character—a citizen of exemplary Christian principles. He was strong and unflinching in his church relationship, and he allowed nothing to stand between him and what he believed was his religious duty. It is doubtful if he would be a more consistent Christian. He permitted no obstacle to break down his courage, or cloud his good nature. He had confidence in the world and faith in the hereafter, and he remained at his post of duty as long as strength would permit. His devotion to home, town and country never weakened, and he was a good neighbor, worthy citizen and reliable friend. He will be greatly missed from circles in which he moved actively and which had known him through a long series of years.

While we cannot qualify as a critic of English, we are disturbed by the loosely constructed sentences that often appear in news stories in both city and rural newspapers. The frequent circumlocution in reaching a point is no doubt due to haste and carelessness. It is easier to employ a long string of words to say something, but it is more difficult to get by. If press associations would devote a share of attention to the needs of concise and expressive writing, the result would do more to build business than a discussion of rates for job work. We would like to see Herald reporters and all Herald contributors think harder when they pound out facts and round out sentences. We will try to improve with them. This suggestion, directed at the Herald, may be adopted by others with advantage.

Water Resources. Lincoln Journal: Dr. Corda of the state university has urged that attention should be given to the conservation of the water resources of the state. He has shown concern over the possible diminishment of our underground supply. The water that falls on the Nebraska watersheds should be conserved so that the underground supply may be maintained. In recent years a great deal of water has been taken out of the ground along the Republican and Platte valleys for well irrigation. More will be taken in the future. It has been found that under some conditions this kind of irrigation can be made to yield profitable returns to the valley farmers. It has even been tried with some success on upland farms where water must be raised from a considerable depth. The underground water supply can be greatly enlarged by preventing the waste of flood waters. A system of reservoirs along the principal rivers of the state could be made to hold back much of the runoff that goes to swell the lower Mississippi. In the flood time this water could be placed on Nebraska fields when water is needed to save the growing crops. Placed INCONSISTENCY. Brocator Henderson of the notorious Shreveport station, has turned his attacks from the chain stores to bus and truck lines. A year ago he invited cash contributions to his coffers to support his campaign against large retail corporations. Now he is championing the cause of the railroads and lambasting the interference of buses and trucks.

The railroads are owned by big corporations and Henderson's record of attacks on capitalist organizations a year ago, makes his attitude at this time shout with inconsistency. Buses and trucks which are now made the objects of his wrath are usually not the creatures of great wealth. On the contrary, they are often in possession of individuals who are struggling to make the financial grade. While it is true that some legislation is needed to regulate buses and trucks and put their operation and responsibility on an equality with that of the railroads, Henderson's espousal of the latter seems like a complete reversal of position.

But next year Henderson should take up the cudgel in behalf of equality of rights between broadcasting stations and newspapers. The broadcasting station may say things that are not permissible in a newspaper. Lottery contests are conducted over the radio, whereas the government does not allow newspapers to suggest anything in that direction. We would advise Henderson next to fly to the aid of newspapers, and to use his artillery to break down the comparative liberties exercised by broadcasting stations—his own included.

back on the land in the dry season much of it will eventually reach the underground storage.

Little attention has been paid to the underground water volume. It was thought to be inexhaustible. Experiences of recent years have shown that the ground can be drained by continuous use of the water. Lincoln is now looking for a city supply. It has nearly drained its underground reservoir. It may be necessary to tap the underflow of the Platte. Ten million gallons daily taken from that source for use in Lincoln would never get back into that reservoir. It would add in some degree to runoff carried by the Sarat valley, but it would be ruined. Tests have shown that heavy pumping in the Platte valley even with its miles of width in its underground gravel bed, does lower the water level in the vicinity of the wells. That the water level under ground should be conserved is a necessity for crop production over a large area. Its maintenance may be made possible through the salvage of flood waters that are now wasted.

Government in Business. Omaha Journal Stockman: Indicating the growing sentiment throughout the country that there is too much government in business and too little business in government, Governor Ritchie of New Jersey, inaugurated for the fourth time in that commonwealth, took occasion to stringently condemn this evil tendency.

"People everywhere are coming to see that our government has undertaken entirely too much and is interfering seriously with the normal activities of life as well as the vital processes of society and of business," declared the governor in his address which was broadcast over the Columbia system. "Government itself has helped create our present crisis with too many experiments, too many advisory commissions and too many noble experiments."

"Surely business must realize now that the kinship between prosperity and political parties is not nearly so intimate as the politicians would have us believe and as business for too long was wont to assume. It must realize the need of putting its own house in order and not waiting until government is forced to step in and do it. It has duties and responsibilities not only to the red and black of its balance sheets, but to the people at large and to the social order in general. "If, as I strongly believe, business should be kept as free as possible from governmental interference, it can deserve and achieve this freedom only by developing a higher order of self-government, and by tackling those problems which are of its own making instead of passing them on to government. It certainly must know by this time that the intervention of government in its affairs is largely apolitical intervention, which, with the best of intentions, is more likely to do harm than good, and that government can in no event be any wiser than the fallible men who happen to constitute it.

"Industry complains of government in business, and then powerfully insists on inflicting its tariff bills, flexible and inflexible, and thus put government into business in its most obnoxious forms. It puts its billions into public utilities, and then pits propaganda and the political art of applying to its affairs an enlightened business statesmanship to which the public would respond. Instead of looking upon our natural resources as a heritage of the people, here and to come, there is the tendency to exploit them for the greatest possible immediate profit."

No more intemperate utterance has come from a prominent public official in a long time and it should furnish the nation with much food for thought. The growing paternalism in our government is not entirely due to the over officiousness of those placed in authority; it is at least partly due to the mistaken notion of many people that the government is there as a sort of a charitable and philanthropic institution.

It is high time that both public officials and the people of this country were getting back to the belief of the fathers of the republic that "it is the duty of the people to support the government and not the function of the government to support the people."

The Small Farmer To Stay. Omaha Journal Stockman: A good many agricultural writers agree with Chairman Legge that under modern conditions the small farm and the small farmer will soon fade out of the picture and farming will be a strictly commercial enterprise. It is pointed out that the small farmer expends about $1.30 in the production of a bushel of wheat while the big farmer grows the same wheat for 50 cents a bushel. The logic of the situation appears to be conclusive and there appears to be ample ground for the prediction that the next decade will witness a steady change from small farms to larger farms and the individual farmer will gradually become a farm laborer, not a peasant (as is the case over in Europe, but a common farm hand working for wages the same as the workers in steel mills.

It is certainly not a pleasant picture and it is just possible that it may never come about for the very simple reason that it does not take into account the human element. The independent farmer may object so strongly to losing his individuality and independence that he will take action such as was taken by the American colonists back in '76. In any change in conditions the powerful human element must always be taken into consideration.

Another thing: There may be a serious flaw in the argument that because farming on a big scale may be profitable it will also prove profitable on a magnificent scale. The old cattle barons of the

MANY LOST TOWNS ARE SCATTERED OVER NEBRASKA

EVERY state 75 years old may witness such changes that towns, once important, have disappeared from view and leave only an inscription on the historical record. Nebraska has a number of these: Rock Bluffs on the Missouri river in Cass county has faded into the past. It was a thriving village fifty years ago. The lower part of the old brick seminary is now used for a school house.

Orapolis, founded in 1858, also had a brick seminary for the accommodation of 250 students. It was an ambitious town in Cass county. The town expired with the demise of the seminary.

St. Dorin stood on the Missouri river in Nemaha county and faced a flourishing future. It was laid out in 1854, named for Joseph Dorin, an Ojota Indian chief, had several good stores, a fine flouring mill and a first class flouring mill. It is now a memory. Richardson county had several towns that have vanished from the map. Archer, the first county seat, was founded in 1856. Its streets are now ridges between the corn rows on a farm. Some of its houses were moved to Falls City, Yancon and Winnebago, which stood near the river above Rulo, have long since ceased to exist. Arago, seven miles above Falls City, was a stopping place for boats. It had two churches, a parochial school, a Turner hall, a saw mill, shingle mill and a picking house. Cholera attacked the little town and took off many of the people. "The place thereof shall know it no more."

The town of Wyoming, two miles from the present town by that name, was laid out in 1855. In 1856 it had a weekly newspaper. It was the point of destination for Mormon emigrants bound from St. Louis to Salt Lake. Its name was later changed to Dresden.

These are a few of the old towns that have gone their way leaving only faint footprints in the sands of time. West found this out to their sorrow. Large cattle and sheep ranches were often more profitable than small ranches but expansion frequently rendered the very big ranches both unwieldy and unprofitable. It would probably turn out the same way with bonanza farming operations.

One difficulty in the present situation is that we hear of the hundreds of small farmers who are being forced out of business because they are unable or unwilling to keep up with the procession but we apparently ignore the thousands of independent farmers who are making a comfortable living for themselves and their families and who constitute the real foundation of our agriculture.

The coming years will bring many radical and far reaching changes to American agriculture but the genius of our people is such that the Russian communistic scheme can never succeed here nor is it remotely probable that the home farm will ever be entirely displaced by the corporation farm. If the Farm Board and the agricultural experts are working toward mass farming and the extinction of the small farmer they are on the wrong track.

Naturally, Senator Norris is opposed to joining a third party. He readily belongs to two—Toledo Blade.

And now the busybodies have dug up an old scandal about former President Coolidge. They find that he once sang in the choir—Minneapolis Journal.

Exchange Predicts Business Changes

Any increase in gross business of our leading industries will be rapidly reflected in a relatively larger gain in net profit, in the opinion of William Leary, member of the New York Stock exchange. "The world and this country in particular, has passed through a major portion of the oft repeated business cycle," says Mr. Leary. "The cycle, which first brought prosperity and then extravagance, and then suddenly gave way to panic. Decreased sales followed as a natural consequence and periods of recession and economy have come. Now we look onward to that phase of the cycle devoted to recovery, which will eventually be replaced by prosperity. Economy and recovery merge into one, as the weeks pass, by the simple process of economy outdistancing recession. It seems sound to believe that these economies will not be dispensed with as trade revives. During all economy periods, labor gets greater dollar value, raw materials are bought from hand to mouth and fall below production costs, while high grade securities can be purchased at less than real value.

"It has been generally overlooked that, relatively, consumers are buying more goods than a year ago, for the percentage of decline in unit sales is less than the percentage of declines in dollars. Analysis actually shows that retail trade is from 2 percent to 7 percent higher in goods purchased. We now have ideal credit conditions. Time funds have reached the lowest rate since 1897 and current credit conditions compare only with the records of 1885, 1888 and 1895. Indeed, it is hard to find a parallel in this country's history, when credit ease in times of so called "depression" have been comparable with the present. And continued ease in money is of great basic importance. Easy money strengthens the foundation of trade, at the same time it enhances and gives speed to the business recovery. We appear to be entering that recovery period and no less than ten industries point to comparatively rapid improvement in the early spring months. They are (1) automobile, (2) cotton goods (3) electrical equipment, (4) food products, (5) paper, (6) lumber, (7) machinery, (8) meat packing, (9) railroads and (10) retail trade."

The town of Wyoming, two miles from the present town by that name, was laid out in 1855. In 1856 it had a weekly newspaper. It was the point of destination for Mormon emigrants bound from St. Louis to Salt Lake. Its name was later changed to Dresden.

State Makes List Of School Moneys

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 20.—Five hundred and seventy school districts in Nebraska failed to participate in the semiannual appropriation of state school funds, State Superintendent C. W. Taylor said today. There are 7,200 school districts in the state, and a total of $496,408.39 was apportioned by the state superintendent. The following reasons were announced for ineligibility of certain school districts:

- Tax levy or length of school term insufficient to meet the law's requirements—509 districts.
- Pupils attending parochial schools—21 districts.
- No school maintained—22 districts.
- Contracted with another ineligible district for tuition of children—13 districts.
- Teacher not qualified—two districts.
- Secular instruction given—two districts.
- Incomplete report—one district.
- No children of school age—eight districts.

Consider Addition To State Publicity

A recommendation that the annual appropriation of 10 thousand dollars to the state publicity department, which is a part of the state department of agriculture, be increased to "not less than 25 thousand dollars" was made by the Omaha Chamber of Commerce committee Tuesday afternoon, following a report by the publicity bureau of the chamber. "A bill with similar provisions is expected to be introduced soon in the legislature. There is a bill before the Iowa legislature to increase its annual state appropriation for publicity purposes to 50 thousand dollars, it was stated.

Governor's Glad to See Them!

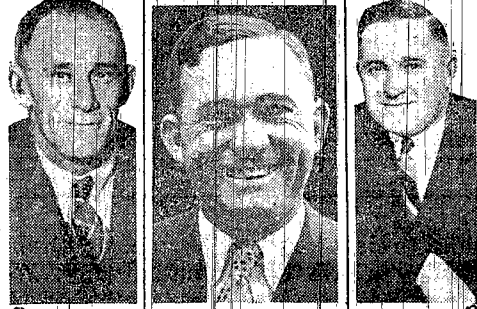

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York had lots of callers following inauguration ceremonies at Albany, but you can tell from his broad smile the two who pleased him most. They are, of course, his grandchildren, Anna and Curtis Dall, and are photographed with him here at the executive mansion.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

THERE'S MUCH WORK AHEAD FOR THESE THREE WISE MEN OF BASEBALL WHO TAKE NEW BERTHS ON MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS THIS YEAR

BY PHILIP MARTIN
THREE new faces will appear behind the steering wheels of major league baseball clubs this spring. They really aren't new, but they're rather ancient. It's the setting that's new.

The faces belong to Joe McCarthy, Rogers Hornsby and John (Shono) Collins. McCarthy will manage the Yankees and Collins the Red Sox in the American League. Hornsby will pilot Mr. Wrigley's Cubs in the senior loop.

THE Cubs will have a real second baseman this season, comments Hornsby. The star keystone sacker will be none other than Rogers Hornsby himself, fully recovered from an ailing heel that broke in 1929 work and a broken ankle that shelved him in 1930.

Hornsby will add about 25 per cent more strength to the Cubs, providing he is recovered from those injuries. His powerful hitting and his steady influence on the infield will give them something they lacked a year ago when the Cardinals passed them on the home stretch. However, Hornsby must wrestle with a few Cub problems.

"The first base seems to be our most vital spot," the Rajah commented recently. "If Les Bell's arm is right, the problem is settled. If Bell is ailing as he was last year, our chances of winning will be lessened, for we have no other experienced third baseman."

As far as managing a group of stars like the Cubs is concerned, Hornsby has this to say:

"Fshaw, those guys don't make trouble. I've never had trouble with any of them. They ordered me their full support in McCarthy's presence when he resigned. Little difficulties may arise, sure, but I'll handle 'em. I've been a manager before."

to assure everybody concerned that Shono would be regular centerfielder in 1931. Last season Shawkey got the idea that Boston baseball's best lead-off man, couldn't hit left-handed pitching. Accordingly, he used Earl only against right-handers and, as a result, Combs and some of his mates chafed considerably. McCarthy ventures to say there will be no more irritation in that spot.

"I confess to being up in the air about Tony Lazzera," the new Yankee boss said. "So far I haven't been able to figure whether Tony will do us more good at second base than third, or vice versa. He's plenty good at either; however, so whichever way I decide I can't be far wrong. The catch lies in consistently filling the spot he doesn't take."

McCarthy needs pitchers to work with Piggars and Ruffing. He can count on but scant help from Pegg, Brock, Hoover, Sherrill, Wells, McEvoy and some others as expected.

ened and may strike a winning stride.

IT'S far easier to pass up the Red Sox problems and mention the fixtures. Shono Collins has a pitching staff, some good catchers and a lot of nerve.

Collins was a successful minor league manager; now some of the more unkind fans say he should be a success at Boston as the Red Sox are only a minor league club anyway. However, Owner Bob Quinn is tired of hiring and firing managers and knows Collins is the man.

"Collins believes my players, understands major league baseball and had success in the minors," said the Red Sox owner. "He's not contracted for any specified number of years, but may keep the job so long as he hustles and runs the club to my satisfaction."

That's how Mr. Quinn feels about the matter. Now all poor old Shono has to do is build a ball team around his pitchers and catchers.

Sees Situation In California

Attorney Berry Returns From Golden State Tuesday—Reports Fine Trip.

"On the surface, California is still enjoying her old prosperity," says Attorney F. S. Berry, who returned Tuesday evening from a business trip to California. "But," he adds, "California is in the midst of her share of depression, and the old days of ready money are not with her now."

The most one sees of conditions in California and elsewhere, in Mr. Berry's opinion, the more certain one is that the people who have invested wisely and carefully there, as here, are not suffering, and that persons who have made bad investments there, are suffering as much as they are here.

In California, as Mr. Berry sees it, there are several classes of people—among them, persons who have gone there with a small amount of money, built homes, established themselves, and found their incomes too small. Such persons are hard hit in the present depression, and many of them will be obliged to quit their comfortable homes on the coast, and to return to their old places in the middlewest, where they can earn fair livings on the land.

Make Insecure Fortunes.
Many insecure, if large fortunes, have been made on the coast. Investments in oil have turned out well for a few years, and given to investors an exaggerated idea of financial conditions. With many of these oil wells beginning to languish, there are many fortunes which will be discovered to be insecure during the present depression.

Large fortunes made in the motion picture field are sure to suffer, also. The moving picture business is of the luxury class, and luxury spending is most flourishing during periods of ready money. When money becomes scarce, luxury spending closes down, and fortunes founded upon it are sure to suffer.

Although California still wears the prosperous look of any resort territory, there are many people who must be hungry, Mr. Berry asserts. People begging money with which to buy meals are as numerous on the streets of Los Angeles as they are on the streets of Chicago or Omaha, he found. He saw no bread lines, however, and stated that many casual observers overstate the situation.

Present Values Decline.
There has been, without a doubt, a great decline in values on the coast, as in other parts of the country. There are many for rent signs on properties which real estate dealers were able to move easily during the "high" times. As a whole, though, Mr. Berry found the appearance of California about the same as on the occasion of his last visit, three years ago.

Thousands of over-expensive houses have been constructed on the coast during the past decade, many of them in the movie colonies in and around Hollywood. These great houses will be a drag on the market, as Mr. Berry sees them, for they are an expression of a fad. "And fads and hobbies," he explains, "live only so long as there is plenty of money to sustain them."

Although Mr. Berry's was a business trip, he found some time to visit former Wayne people who are on the coast. Mrs. Frank Berry, now living in Long Beach, he mentioned as being in good health and enjoying the more temperate climate along the sea. Her son, Fred Berry, is also on the coast. Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Chade and their daughter, Margaret, are in Long Beach this winter. Mr. Berry saw also Nathan Chace, who will be remembered here.

California weather he found pleasant, and the one day of rain which he encountered did not seem unpleasant to him, although it made Californians shiver with the unaccustomed chill, he said. Crops on the coast this year were good, in general, although prices have been so low that sales were not high enough to satisfy the expensive freight rates.

Frosts Disturb Some.
Some frosts disturbed orange growers, as national dispatches stated, although the true orange belt seems to have been untouched, Mr. Berry believes. Some groves get a touch of frost every year, and the touch would naturally be more noticeable in an extreme year.

Salt Lake City, Mr. Berry found was suffering the coldest winter in 50 years, according to reports. In comparison with such a report, Nebraska's unusually clement winter weather seemed quite pleasant to the traveler on his return this week.

No date has been set for the regional tournament for high school basketball, according to Supt. R. Best, who believes that the time will be about March 1. Decisions as to time and place for such meets are made by Walter Black of Lincoln, secretary of the state organization.

The sectional meet is still under discussion, as several towns are bidding for it. Final information will be out about the first of February, according to last reports.

Early Days in Wayne County

(Taken from the Herald files for Jan. 30, 1913.) Born January 23, 1913, to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bressler, a son, Wayne Masons attended the funeral in Wakefield of C. E. Hunter.

Carroll Cleveland, son of Dr. M. L. Cleveland, left for Kearney where he entered the military academy. Miss Charlotte M. White arrived home from Lincoln where she attended a meeting of the state historical society.

Wayne district dental society met at Wakefield Jan. 29, 1931, for a discussion of plans for programs and clinics to be held in the district during the year. Richard Simpson, about 75, died at the home of his son northwest of Wayne from an attack of heart failure. Burial was at Okland, Iowa, the family home.

Mr. S. J. Herfel and Miss Anna A. Novak were married at the Methodist parsonage in Wayne on January 19, 1931. They planned to live on a farm near Allen. W. V. Allen and about 100 others from Madison county signed a petition to be presented to the legislature protesting against the Bartling Sunday baseball bill.

A fire alarm was turned in due to a blaze discovered in the barn at the John Schuster residence. A bucket of water put out the fire and the services of the firemen were not needed. Miss Jude Deyo, Miss Hazel Kinsella, and Harry Duboff were scheduled to appear in concert in Wayne Feb. 21. The company came from the University School of Music, Lincoln.

Freeman G. Wadsworth died at Wayne Jan. 26, 1931, at the age of 70 years. Funeral services were held in Wayne, conducted by Rev. B. P. Richardson, assisted by the Rev. Alexander Corkey. A lodge of Knights of Pythias was organized in Wayne. Grand Chancellor H. E. Siman of Winside conducted the ceremonies, and 25 visiting knights were present from Lincoln, Sioux City, Norfolk and Winside.

Action was taken by several citizens to get better train and mail connections at Norfolk at noon with trains from Lincoln and Omaha. The complaint was filed with the railway commission in the hope of getting a change. Mrs. Henry J. Evans died at her home near Wayne, January 25, 1931, at the age of 49 years, and following a long illness. Funeral services were conducted at the home by the Rev. Wm. Gorst of the Methodist church, and burial was at Bloomfield.

C. J. Rundell proposes a law to insure uniformity in packing fruit. He would make it unlawful to face a barrel of small apples with large ones. He would make the law apply to plums, and all kinds of fruit. He would have the fruit on top no better than that underneath. He has framed a bill accordingly and sent it to Lincoln for consideration by the legislature.

Quoted from the Wilmington California Journal: E. A. McEachen, a wealthy land owner of northeast Nebraska, came over from Long Beach Wednesday night to the Journal publisher. Mr. McEachen will return east in a few weeks to attend to some business matters, and contemplates making his home in this section, probably making some investments in Wilmington.

The disease known as grip and now largely prevalent, has been well named. It pounces on an individual when he least expects it, and gives him a course in seasickness and Pennsylvania fever and ague, prostrated nerves, prolonged nightmare and tuberculosis of the bones. The best thing about it is that it doesn't last long. That while it lasts it works with great power and terrible versatility.

Representatives of the Western Electric company came to the council meeting to discuss the question of changing and improving the power plant in 1931. The appointment of a civil engineer, says the Herald, "will no doubt develop facts on which to base definite conclusions." Reports on expense for operation of an oil burner, the use of which had been suggested, were recorded in the paper.

It is exceptional to the rule to run street sprinklers in Nebraska in January, but such was the experience in Wayne recently. One day last week when the dust was lifted and tossed about by a brisk breeze, W. H. Hoguewood, veteran head of the sprinkling department, got out his sprinkler and proceeded to lay the dust. The enterprise of Mr. Hoguewood in keeping the dust down in winter as well as in summer is appreciated by business men. In case warm, dry weather in winter becomes a regular habit in this country, it will be advisable to revise the sprinkling season.

Installation Buying. Lincoln Journal: A contributor to the Public Mind recently deplored installment buying and made an effort to trace many of the evils of the present day installment business. What he didn't do was to show how installment buying has benefited many and how it has contributed to a higher standard of living with profit to all concerned.

The installment plan used for the purpose of gratifying the joy in buying is bad and brings disaster. Employed for the purpose of securing for the wage earner a home, better living conditions and the enjoyment of luxuries for which he can pay, the results are quite the opposite. It is a prosperity agency.

There are in Lincoln and many other cities today home owners who would have been tenants yet but for the possibility of buying homes on payments. There are many others who are living in better homes and under better conditions than would have been possible had it been necessary to pay cash when they bought.

The homes are better furnished and extended on a higher plane because of the opportunity offered. Thru it all many of these buyers have maintained their credit, have even made it stronger thru having gone deeply in debt and having paid out as the contracts specified.

Many of the stronger business houses extend credit, look on their credit customers as important assets, while these houses continue growing in strength and commercial importance. There are legitimate reasons for credit, for buying on the payment plan. One of them is that money is thus kept in circulation that might be hoarded, and that hoarded it would earn nothing for owner or those who might well pay for its use. The payment plan furnishes the supply for the securities market. On that plan railroads are built, giant industries are conducted—and as important as anything else, homes are bought and furnished.

Installment selling and buying can be misused, but properly employed they are indispensable factors in business. Try a Wayne Herald Want Ad.

The Pioneer Urge.
York Republican: We have nothing in these times that compares to the urge that induced thousands of people to leave their homes in eastern states and settle in bleak and barren Nebraska in early days. With some it was the desire to get free land; the government was giving away. With others it was the lure of adventure. With others it was a desire to make a new start. Some were captured by Horace Greeley's advice, "Go West and grow up with the country." And some who had been soldiers in the Union army came home from the war with no home but the streets and a venturesome spirit consuming them. They could not settle down to the old life and simple ways and so they heard the call of the west with eager ears and prompt decision.
But whatever the motive, Nebraska was settled by a hardy people whose vision was not to be deterred by the uncertainties of the future. They were not to stick to meagre living habits from their near Indian

Building Poor Farm Has New Manager
West Point, Neb.—Seven applicants filed their bids for the custodianship of the Cumming county poor farm before the board of supervisors. Fred Kapp was chosen to succeed Fred Schneider who has been manager for several years. Schneider was fined the early part of December on a charge of liquor possession as a result of the disappearance of Henry Munkle who was missing for three days after making threats of suicide.
On Dec. 13, Munkle dismissed his charge against Schneider in regard to the sale of liquor. Schneider's record as manager at the farm is unquestioned, however the farm and buildings being kept in the best of shape.
The new manager will receive the same salary of $100 as Schneider has been getting and which is the same amount for which he put in his bid.

When the three came to Nebraska, they traveled by railroad as far as Wisner, whence they came in a covered wagon to Mr. Gabler's farm in Altona community. Their first home there was a two-room sod house, in which they lived for about a year.

At the end of the first year, Mr. Gabler built a frame house in which the family lived for six years. When the Gablers sold the farm, they moved to a location west of Winside, where they remained for three years.

In 1901, Mr. and Mrs. Gabler and family moved to Winside, where Mr. Gabler was employed by the following successive lumbermen: A. C. McCluskey and Needham, and by L. C. and G. A. Mittelstaid.

Business.

Sioux City Journal: In the various discussions of the economic situation the subject is approached from many angles, with the result that a variety of analyses is given. Business leaders are chiefly interested in immediate developments. This applies also to labor, to government, state and city officials and to the various agencies concerned with providing relief for the unemployed.

Some business leaders and economists find the deeper interest in a study of the situation as it will affect this country as the years pass. They are looking farther ahead in an effort to gain an impression as to what business conditions will be when a new permanency is achieved.

Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern railway, a recent visitor in Sioux City and a recognized authority on business conditions generally, has expressed his views in a copyright article appearing in various newspapers throughout the country. He prefers to look far into the future in summarizing the various evidences of complete business recovery.

Mr. Budd, sensing that American business has been somewhat overindustrialized, suggests that this country has become a victim of its own productive efficiency. In other words, the machinery of production and distribution was built far beyond the capacity of the people to consume the commodities and service produced. The

Lumber Mysteries To Layman Vanish

Species and Grades Made Plain by Packages, Explains C. E. Carhart.

Much of the mystery has been taken out of lumber and confidence has been put in its place, according to C. E. Carhart, manager of the Carhart Lumber Company of this city.

"Nineteen out of twenty folks who come to us for material for a home-modernizing job, for asking us to estimate the lumber required for a new home, don't know what they want, but ask us to tell them," Mr. Carhart said.

"They can't be criticized for this, because it is almost impossible for even the experts to tell some species of wood from others after they have been cut into boards, and because the things that make differences between the grades of lumber are technical points which the layman has no reason to learn.

"Yet species and grades are vitally important to every lumber user, since some woods are fine for strictly structural uses but deficient for outside use under continual exposure, while others produce beautiful finished effects but are too expensive to be used for the rougher hidden parts of construction.

"Any experienced lumber merchant and most competent contractors can advise the home-owner what material to use, but for the different uses, the trouble arises," Mr. Carhart points out, "when the owner wonders whether he is getting what he paid for or whether inferior lumber has been substituted.

"This question is entirely eliminated by the new packaged lumber which we have obtained from the Weyerhaeuser affiliation of mills in northern Minnesota, Idaho and the Pacific Northwest, and have introduced recently to the building trades here," said Mr. Carhart.

"Every package is labeled in plain English with the species and grade of its contents. This serves as a quality-guarantee. It means that the layman now can order lumber with confidence and know that he can check the package with his order to see if he has got what he's called for."

Besides being packaged and guaranteed, this new lumber is re-manufactured so that it is exact in dimension, with both ends of each piece smooth and absolutely four-square to eliminate much trimming by hand on the building lot. The Carhart Lumber Company has obtained a franchise as an "authorized four-square dealer" from the Weyerhaeuser organization. J221

Nebraskans Are Seeking Work

Lincoln, Neb.—Further release of workers from highway construction projects, municipal work and other outdoor activities added to the volume of unemployment in Nebraska, especially in the larger cities during December, a survey issued by the United States department of labor revealed.

The surplus of factory and clerical workers was reduced during the two weeks previous to Christmas by demands for additional help in the postal service, and in wholesale and in retail stores. A slight seasonal increase in employment in the meat packing industry was reported. A surplus of workers in the operating and maintenance departments of railroads was noted.

Major industries in Omaha are operating with average winter quotas employed by the winter cessation of building construction, highway work and other outdoor operations resulted in a surplus of skilled and unskilled workers. Cedar County Case In Supreme Court

Lincoln, Neb.—The case of public school district No. 6, of Cedar county, against State Superintendent C. W. Taylor, to force him to give the school its share of the state apportionment, is being heard on its merits before District Judge Broady.

When the case was filed to mandamus Taylor, the relators filed a demurrer to his answer and this demurrer was overruled.

School authorities of the district claim they are entitled to the apportionment money, while the state superintendent has refused to pay the money claiming the school is not a public but a parochial school.

The state claims that there is a sign above the entrance, "St. Boniface School," and that the teachers wear religious garb. It is claimed that up to the fourth grade, the school is a parochial school, and the upper grades, while ostensibly a public school, are under the supervision of a priest.

School authorities claim that they are paying taxes in that district for school purposes and that the superintendent has no right to deny the money as the school is a public school, making reports to the county superintendent, and has been recognized by the county superintendent as a public school. It is claimed that the state superintendent has no right to refuse as the county superintendent has ruled it is a public school.

Director Paul P. Goede, of Fordyce, took the stand and records of the school were introduced, George Kast, Fordyce, moderator, also was a witness, as was Mike McCoy, county superintendent.

Nebraska Honored For Pioneer Work

Each year the Nebraska Hall of Agricultural Achievement honors Nebraskans who have made a distinctive contribution to their state. A memorial service is held during Organized Agriculture Week, when public recognition is made. Portraits are hung in Agricultural hall at the Nebraska college of agriculture. This year the honoree was Julius Sandoz.

Mr. Sandoz' achievement was demonstrating that fruit can be successfully grown in sandhills. In doing so he contributed immeasurably to the value of the land in that section. When he started his work there, land was worth only $3 to $4 an acre. Now it has increased in value through the establishment of commercial orchards until some of it is worth $500 an acre.

Before being able to demonstrate that fruit would grow in the sandhills, Mr. Sandoz encountered many difficulties. One was the opposition of cattlemen who did not want a cattle country changed. It was necessary to experiment with many varieties to develop those hardy enough to withstand the rigors of the climate in winter. He exchanged trees with Luther Burbank and horticulturists in all sections of the country. He imported trees from Russia. He was finally able to get what he wanted by combining native specimens with others grown in Dakota.

Mr. Sandoz, a native of Switzerland, came to America in 1881. He settled in the sandhills region and at once began his experiments with fruit. They covered a period of almost a half century and were successful in proving what a soil aided by intelligent human endeavor, can do in growing a crop that at first seemed foreign and unadapted.

The widow of Mr. Sandoz is now operating the orchards, the home place being sixty miles south of Torrington in Sherman county in the heart of the sandhills. Try a Wayne Herald Want Ad.

Cattle Feeding Is Increasing Again

(Lincoln Journal.) Nebraska has 12 percent more cattle on feed than a year ago and is the only state in the corn belt showing any increase over last year according to the state and federal division of agricultural statistics. Although a substantial increase is shown in Nebraska, the total for the corn belt is still 10 percent below that of last year.

Cattle feeders of Nebraska are in a favorable position this season. Production of feed crops which went above the average, and feed prices much below normal have enabled them to take advantage of the reduction in beef production throughout the United States which was evident before the close of

Under his management the West Point public schools have been rated amongst the best in the state, the high school being accredited to the North Central High School association.

He received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Nebraska in 1923, his master's degree in 1926, and began work on his doctorate at Columbia last summer.

He has been very much interested in farming and will give his immediate attention to his stock farm at Orleans, in southwest Nebraska.

Prof. Lewis Discusses Conditions In India At Meeting Of Club Women

Nationalists Threaten Peace of Peninsula in Effort to Make Changes.

"A spur on the highway of civilization is India," stated Dr. J. G. W. Lewis, addressing a U. S. W. members meeting last Wednesday evening with Mrs. G. W. Coster-san. He prefaced this remark with an explanation of the way in which India, segregated geographically from the rest of the world turned its face east when the rest of the world faced the west, and occidental civilization.

As a result, India, with her civilization, has not been able to adjust herself to the needs and remains, a vast country, lacking in resources, and undeveloped, side-tracked. The peninsula constitutes almost a continent in itself, populated with nearly three times as many people as the United States. Its resources are slender, however, and the dense population makes conditions particularly bad.

Backward as India is, subservient to the government of Britain, there are some leaders who are capable and intelligent, but who are held back by conditions as they exist. India once had a civilization of her own, in which there were developing stages of art, of literature, and of general learning. Today this civilization seems to have reached a dead level, "above which it seems to be unable to rise."

The Nationalist Movement.

Nationalistic activities in India. Dr. Lewis insisted, began perhaps forty or fifty years ago with a desire for home rule. England's treatment of the desires of India has been a matter of gradual response, a response, Dr. Lewis believes, that has been too slow. It has not kept pace, he thinks, with the nationalists' progress.

When India sent raw troops out to the western front during the World War, promises were half made which raised in India expectations of home government and freedom. These promises, never very definite, have aroused in India the hope of independence, and it is with this hope that India is beginning what may result in a very serious revolutionary movement.

England, Dr. Lewis reiterated, is faced with a very formidable resolution. She must decide on some course of action. Round table discussion is not the course which will suit the case, for India is not amenable to such treatment. India's leaders have been disappointed. They feel that promises made to them have not been kept, and they are, as a result, resentful.

Revolution Threatens.

Thus it is that India threatens revolution. Nationalists are making an attempt to revive the old traditions of the land, and to bring back to life the beliefs that their civilization is superior to that of the western world. With such ideas, leaders of the party are fostering a political and social revolution which must have a serious bearing on the welfare and the fate of the British Empire as a whole.

Dr. Lewis mentioned and discussed briefly Wednesday evening Katherine Mayo's much-read book, "Mother India." Sensational and biased as the volume most apparently is, the greater majority of its many readers have taken its gross statements to be generally true. Although the sensational instances mentioned are true, probably, in isolated instances, it is improbable that they should be true in general. Statements made in "Mother India" for a few cases have been taken for true in all India by unthinking readers.

"Mother India" has been a disturbing book, and has aroused comment from unexpected quarters. "Authorities on Indian affairs believe it to be a biased, prejudiced statement of conditions, much as our "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was such a statement of conditions in the United States during the Civil War period.

That India is in a state of uprising which may lead to revolution there can be no doubt, Dr. Lewis concluded. The outcome will be responsible for some vital change in the British Empire. Perhaps only the future can answer exactly what that change will be.

Other Civilizations. Other civilizations have at different times in the history of the country thrust themselves upon India. Mohammedanism, for instance, is one of the forces which has left its effect on the country. The great contact, however, is that of India with the civilizations of Europe and America, a contact which holds the secret of the great clash in which India finds herself today.

In the midst of a conflict between the ancient, static civilization of her own, and the modern industrial civilization of the western world, which has been forced upon her by the outside forces of the British Empire and the American people. Western control in India began with the coming of the English trading posts, and has been perpetuated by the coming of the English government. The English, taking hold of India, have assumed protectorates over the native princes until at last the whole peninsula has come to be under the control of the British Empire. On the whole, stated the speaker, the English occupation of India has been as beneficent as any that would be encountered under a system of imperialism. Railroads have been built, irrigation systems have been established, and an attempt has been made at starting some sort of a system of education. English occupation has been characterized, nevertheless, by military and economic considerations.

The JOHN DEERE General Purpose Tractor

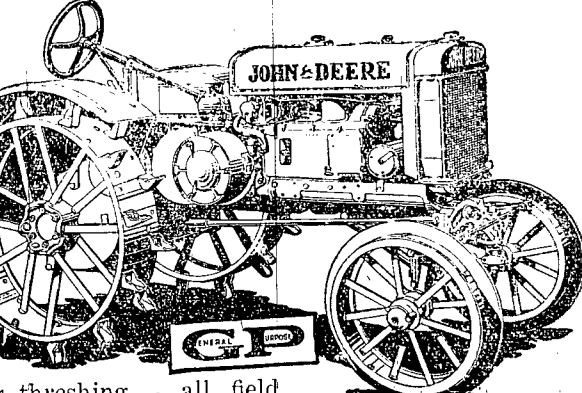

Saves You Money The Year Around

—You want a tractor that will be a cost-reducer in all of your farming operations — a tractor that will do all of your farm work — plowing, discing, planting, cultivating, mowing, raking, threshing — all field jobs besides the belt work. There is a tractor that saves you money the year 'round. You can start your cost-reducing program immediately with a John Deere General Purpose — It's the tractor that need never stand idle while there's farm work to be done. It is a dependable tractor that will do your work in less time, at lower cost, with less help and with less drudgery.

This tractor, of standard design, does all farm work within its power range. With four sources of power, it is fitted perfectly for every farm job — drawbar, belt power, power take-off, plus a power lift which raises and lowers machines designed especially for it.

Besides its ability to operate all standard John Deere tractor machines including the grain binder, drill, plow, manure spreader, etc., it can be equipped with planting and cultivating attachments, power mower, and power sweep rake.

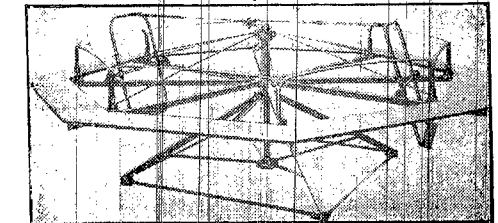

The same principles of design employed in the larger John Deere Model D are incorporated in the General Purpose — It is field-proved on thousands of farms.
