Lincoln's birthday to hear stories concerning the life of the president. Describes Raft Trip.

One of the favorite Lincoln stories is the one Mrs. Hilder tells of Lincoln's departure for Orleans on a raft. Mrs. Hilder also tells the story of Lincoln's stepmother's farewell to him as he left to take office as president of the United States. Lincoln's stepmother is said to have bled over him as he knelt at her side, kissed him and remarked, "Abraham, you will be killed."

Wayne Herd Has February Record

W. E. Von Seggern's Cow Leads in Production for Tri-County Association.

Butterfat production for the 272 cows on test in the Cuming-Wayne-Dixon Dairy Herd Improvement Association during February was nine-tenths of a pound less than the month of January. Fourteen and four-tenths percent of the cows on test were dry. The average butterfat production was 24.8 pounds per cow. The average milk production was 724 pounds with a 3.44 percent fat for an average test.

There was only one cow which produced more than 60 pounds of fat for the month, four which produced 50-60 and 23 from 40-50 pounds of fat. In other words 29 cows made more than forty pounds of fat for the month. A new milking cows of this caliber would be getting about 50c an hour for his labor.

The high cow for the month was owned by Wm. Von Seggern of Wayne. She is a grade Holstein cow on twice a day milking. She produced 1756 pounds of milk containing 61.5 pounds of fat, with a test of 3.5 percent.

The herds producing over 30 pounds of fat per cow for the month are: Arthur Pagels, West Point; Chas. E. Barth, Pilger; Wm. Von Seggern, Wayne; McGuire & Reis, Wisner and Elmer A. Ackerman, West Point.

Mrs. Sellers Has Accident On Sunday

Mrs. Mary Sellers, mother of Mrs. Delilah Tyrell, is recovering nicely from burns suffered Sunday morning. Mrs. Sellers, who was alone at home Sunday morning, was burned when a dust cloth she had been using caught fire from the flaming stub of a match which she had used to light the kerosene stove. The dust cloth had been laid on top of a coal scuttle, where she threw the match end, and the skirt of her dress brushed against the cloth as Mrs. Sellers stopped to light the stove. Before she was aware of the fire, the flames had leaped from the hem of her skirt to the shoulder of her dress. Mrs. Sellers wrapped a rug around herself, rolled on the floor, and hastened to unfasten her garments. She succeeded in putting out the fire and removing the burning garments before her burns became serious, although they have been rather painful this week. Mrs. Sellers, who is able to be up and to receive callers, says she's thankful to be alive, after the experience which she underwent Sunday morning. A physician was summoned when the family returned from morning service.

Winside Defeats Norfolk Reserves

Norfolk Daily News, March 4.—The Winside high school basketball team scored a decisive victory over the Norfolk Reserves in a game played on the Norfolk rink at 4:15 Tuesday afternoon, the score being 51 to 17.

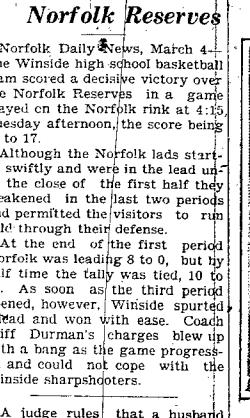

Although the Norfolk lads started swiftly and were in the lead until the close of the first half they weakened in the last two periods and permitted the visitors to run wild through their defense.

At the end of the first period Norfolk was leading 8 to 0, but by half time the tally was tied, 10 to 10. As soon as the third period opened, however, Winside surged ahead and won with ease. Production Depends On Care In Winter

Omaha Journal-Stockman: Successful hog production depends to a large extent upon the feed and care the sows receive during the winter months. If a sow is given a deficient ration during gestation she is incapable of properly nourishing her young, either before or after they are farrowed, and if the pigs are weak and lacking in vigor at birth, high mortality often results. Both the number of pigs raised per sow and the thriftiness of the ones that are raised are important items in determining the profitability of hog production.

Corn is a satisfactory grain for brood sows. If it is properly supplemented, oats may also be fed to advantage at the rate of 1 to 1.5 pounds daily, or in the ratio of 1 pound to every 2 or 3 pounds of corn.

High-Protein Feed. In addition to the grains, the sows should be given a high-protein feed and some material, such as a leguminous hay, that is rich in minerals and vitamins. Fish meal, tankage, skimmed milk, or one of these combined with linseed or cottonseed meal makes an effective protein supplement. With corn, oats, and hay, sufficient supplement to supply a quarter to a third of a pound of protein daily per head should be used.

The amount of corn or grain fed should be governed by the condition of the sows. They should be kept in good condition but not allowed to become too fat. An overweight sow is clumsy and careless with her pigs, and she is usually a poor milk producer. From 1 to 1.25 pounds of grain, daily, for each 100 pounds of live weight are ordinarily sufficient.

Hay Palatable. Only leafy hay of good quality is palatable to hogs. Both hay and oats are beneficial in supplying bulk to the ration and have a desirable laxative effect.

Exercise is regarded as essential for the production of thrifty pigs. It may be induced by feeding and watering the sows at some distance from their sleeping quarters, and by feeding whole hay in a rack or on the frozen ground.

Pioneer Tales Thrill With Accounts of Indians, Big Fires and Bold Bad Men

Early Settler Describes Days Of Beginnings for Wayne County Development.

Visit Of Cavalrymen Mrs. Brittain Tells What To Do When Hungry Soldiers Demand To Be Given Breakfast.

Because whooping redskins had struck down a white man as he ploughed peacefully in his own field, early settlers in La Porte community had in their hearts a real fear of the Indians.

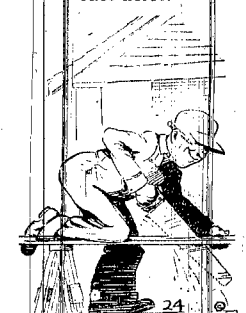

Quite like the hero in any story, her husband, James Brittain, came dashing up just at the proper moment and put an end to the distress.

Cavalrymen Visit.

Food played an important part in life on the early prairies. One day a pair of fine-looking cavalrymen stopped at the Brittain home.

STATE MAY LOSE NOVELTY OF BEING WITHOUT A MINE

PUBLIC speakers, attempting to clinch the fact that Nebraska is exclusively an agricultural state, have cited the fact that the state does not have a mine.

The mine is on the farm belonging to the estate of Rosa Durner, whose heirs will receive a royalty of 50 cents a ton for all coal mined.

Many old timers of that locality recall the mine at DuBois and others in that locality. J. M. Miller, a Civil war veteran of Pawnee City, recalls well hauling coal from the Four Mile mines which was the old name of the mines that are now being rehabilitated.

They watched at the windows. Soon the first patter of insect bodies began to be heard against the thin walls, and "teacher" had to close the windows tightly.

Seed Industry Is Growing In State

Some modest little towns of Nebraska have giant industries. Dealer has the country's biggest broom factory. Clay Center furnishes a large share of the country with incubators.

A few years ago, the Robinson Seed company of Waterloo shipped nine solid carloads of cucumber seed to a single concern in Detroit—enough to plant a half million acres.

The coming of a great prairie fire was a thought that never died in the watchful mind of the pioneer. Smaller fires burned every day in the dry patches, but it was the coming of a great wall of flame that would circle about and would not be escaped was the danger that the settlers dreaded.

Such a fire threatened La Porte once. Two women were reported to be dying of burns in a farm house at the edge of the frontier. Desperate men and women were fighting back the creeping edge of flame, defeating its progress with wide ploughed furrows, heaving it out with wet gunny sacks, praying.

La Porte could see the fire coming. Mrs. Brittain, who was alone at home, while Mr. Brittain and John Bressler went to Norfolk on business, gathered up everything, money, and child and fled to the last outpost of safety. She describes vividly the fears of the night.

The coming of new settlers, the establishment of new farms, the breaking of the prairie sod began the establishment of civilization. Prairie fires do not threaten and winds do not seem so long, so cold, to the children of pioneers, riding in heated automobiles, to and from heated houses. The days of the pioneers ended with the last breaking of the soil, but the marks of their building, as any old settler can show you by the example of his own life, are laid deeply as foundations for modern progress.

Good Government Requires Eternal Vigilance Of All

To the Editor: We were interested in your statement of last week that Wayne county is comparatively law abiding.

It is a number of years ago that I was not only an efficient public officer, but also to a high class of citizenry which has demanded certain standards.

But the good record of the county should not lead us into complacency. Within the past year a number of robberies and burglaries have been reported.

Crime has always been a problem and its seriousness at any particular time is only a matter of degree. It is something which concerns all men and women at all times.

Our fellow townsman in his presidential address to the State Bar association in 1928, very properly suggested that the administration of justice was a function of the public as well as of the courts.

We must continually inform ourselves and be on the alert. We think of nothing which better expresses the idea than an inscription in our state capital, which runs as follows: The Price of Good Government is the Eternal Vigilance of its Citizens.

Sincerely yours, James E. Brittain.

Business

Sioux City Journal: In spite of the irregularity in trade, leading bankers, industrialists and economists continue to insist that an improvement in business is now under way.

Better times in all walks of life are freely predicted by leaders who have unusual opportunities to obtain information on the economic situation.

The Journal confesses it is impressed by what has taken place in Wall Street. Traders are not accustomed to indulge wild notions in times like these.

Once more it may be suggested that the whole plan to stimulate business activity through the expenditure of federal, state and municipal funds on public works and other improvements is moving too slowly to be of much benefit.

Wayne and Yankton high school basketball teams met Friday evening at Yankton and Wayne lost by 18 to 45. The baskets for Wayne were made as follows: Hendrickson, four; Dowling and Sund, each two; and Mellor, one.

Many Wayne people drove to Yankton to witness the game which was the last before the local team enters the regional tournament here this Thursday.

Team Is Winner In Closing Games

Registrar Gives List of Grades. Fifty-three College Students Hold Scholarships from Home High Schools. Honor scholarships are held by 53 students at Wayne State College, scholarships which were granted to the students at the time of their graduation from high school. Grades earned by these students in college subjects range from a 73 percent average to 96 percent, with the majority of the grades falling between 85 and 95 percent. There are only four of these averages below 85, and only one average in the group is above 95 percent. This record gives a median for the group of 90 percent, as compared with the school median of 86 percent. A median grade of 89 percent was discovered for a total of 56 seniors carrying 12 hours of solid work, as revealed in the first semester analysis. This average gives an student a grade below 75, seven percent of the class between 75 and 81 percent, forty percent in the 82 to 88 grade group, 53 percent with averages between 89 and 95 percent, and none in the 96 percent average group. According to Gates & Watson normal grade distribution chart, three percent of the grades would be below 75, three percent in the 96 and above, 22 percent each in the 75 to 81 and the 89 to 95 group, and the bulk of the grades—fifty percent—in the 82 to 88 percent grade group. Of 34 juniors considered, 20 percent had grades between 75 and 81 percent, 47 percent were in the 82-88 percent group, and the remaining 35 percent had grades between 89 and 95 percent. One hundred forty-five sophomores were considered, with 15 percent in the below 75 grade group. The same number had grades above 96 percent, thirteen percent were in the 75-81 percent group, and 48 percent had 82 to 88 percent averages. In the 89 to 95 percent classification were 36 percent of the class. Three percent of the freshmen class, where grades of 294 students were examined, came in the group below 75 percent. One percent topped the score with grades above 96. One fourth of the class was in the 75 to 81 percent average group, and 23 percent stood between 89 and 95 percent for the semester. Forty-eight percent were in the 82 to 88 average class, which is a close to the ideal score of fifty percent. Median grades for the classes were: Seniors, 89; juniors, 87; sophomores, 87; freshmen, 85. "War Doesn't Pay," says Luedendorf.—Head-line. ### Singing By Radio In Country School

Rural school children throughout Nebraska will be singing together by radio every Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 4:15. Pledges for the next eleven weeks. This first attempt to teach country children by radio was approved by the county superintendents' association at its state convention last month. The singing hour is being sponsored by the University of Nebraska in co-operation with the state department of public instruction.

Those rural school children who learn the songs taught over radio will appear in spring concerts at each county seat in the state. At the Nebraska state fair in Lincoln next fall, pupils who were in the county choirs will be invited to sing the same songs in a huge Nebraska chorus.

The phonograph will be used along with the radio to teach the songs in the rural district schools. At 4 o'clock on Wednesday afternoons, starting March 4, country school pupils with their teacher were expected to listen in on the program broadcast from the University of Nebraska through KFAB, Lincoln, either at their school or at a nearby farm home equipped with a radio.

During the days between radio broadcasts, the teacher who is supplied with records of all songs used in the course, will play the pieces over on the school phonograph, if one is available, to keep the numbers fresh in the pupils' minds. The county choir concerts in the spring will terminate this first singing school of the air.

A similar arrangement is being carried on in Iowa except that instruction there is by phonograph

Clever Comedy Coming to Gay

Donald Ogden Stewart's novel "Mr. and Mrs. Haddock Abroad" has been adapted by Sam Mintz to a talker which is fine screen entertainment that should please the whole family, old and young. The clever and well placed dialogues done by Joseph L. Mankiewicz in Iowa, believe Iowa children as well as Nebraska youngsters will listen in.

The directors, Taurag and McLeod, have handled the film in expert fashion and as a result have made the most of many funny situations. The cast, which includes Leon Errol, Mitzi Green, Zaza Pitts, Jackie Searl, Regis Toomey and Lilyan Tashman, are all deserving of much praise. They give fine performances.

Errol, in the role of Finn, has a part especially in keeping with his abilities. Mitzi and young Searl have plenty of opportunity put over comedy that gets laughs.

The story deals with Finn and Hattie, played by Errol and Mitzi Pitts, taking the kids to Europe and the difficulties they encounter.

Why we spend $2,000,000 to put CAMEL cigarettes in the new HUMIDOR PACK

WE have been in the tobacco business a long time down here at Winston-Salem and we take a lot of pride in the quality of the cigarettes we make.

While we have spent a good many million dollars advertising Camels, we've always held to the old fashioned idea that the thing that really counts is what we put into our cigarette and not what we say about it.

If we know anything about tobacco, and we think we do, Camels contain the choicest Turkish and the mellowest, ripest domestic leaves that money can buy.

In fact we have every reason to be proud of the quality of Camels as they come from the factory, but the remark of an old friend of ours from Denver some time ago emphasized a point that has been the problem of the cigarette industry for years.

As he inhaled the smoke from a Camel we gave him in our offices one morning, he sighed with very evident enjoyment and then asked jokingly, "What is this, a special blend reserved for Camel executives?"

"Certainly not," we told him. "This package of Camels was bought at the corner store this morning."

"Well," he said, "I've been a dyed in the wool Camel smoker for a good many years, but upon my soul I never got a cigarette as good as this in Denver. If you would give the rest of the world the kind of Camels you sell here in Winston-Salem, you ought to have all the cigarette business there is."

THAT statement simply emphasized again the cigarette industry's most important problem. The more we thought about it, the surer we were that he was dead right, and that somehow, something must be done.

Denver wasn't getting a fair break. Neither in fact was any other town. The only people who really knew how good Camels could be, were the folks right here in Winston-Salem.

That was due to a factor no cigarette manufacturer had ever been able to control.

Naturally there is no difference whatever in the quality of the tobacco in Camels, whether you buy them in Winston-Salem, Denver or Timbuctoo. But up to now there has been a very real difference in the condition of the cigarettes by the time they reached the smoker.

The flavor and mildness of fine tobacco depend upon the retention of its natural, not added, moisture content which is prime at about ten per cent.

In spite of our great pains always to make sure Camels left the factory with just the right amount of natural moisture, no cigarette package had ever yet been designed that could prevent that precious moisture from drying out.

THERE are three things about a cigarette that can sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat.

(1) Cheap tobaccos.

(2) Particles of peppery dust left in the tobacco because of inefficient cleaning methods.

(3) A parched dry condition of the tobacco due to loss of natural moisture by overheating or evaporation.

Always certain of the quality of our tobaccos we had already made Camel a "dustless" cigarette by the use of a specially designed vacuum cleaning apparatus exclusive with our factory.

Now, if we could perfect a package that would actually act as a humidifier and retain the natural moisture content, then Yuma, Arizona, could enjoy Camels as much as we do here at Winston-Salem.

We knew what we wanted. We tried many things. We asked the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory to help us.

After many experiments and humidity tests covering all methods of packing cigarettes came the detailed report of which this is the net:

(A) No existing cigarette package, including those wrapped in glassine paper or ordinary cellophane, gives anything like adequate protection against evaporation.

(B) All cigarettes so packed tend to dry out rapidly from the day they are released from the factory.

(C) Only a waterproof material with a specially devised air-tight seal could give the desired protection.

(D) This measure, while costly, could be relied on to keep Camels in prime condition for at least three months in any climate.

If you have a technical bent, the graph made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory will show you the exact results of their exhaustive study.

Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory Report W150473 (Jan. 25, 1931)

Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graph shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack keeps cigarettes to you in prime condition!

YOU may be sure we gave this report a most careful study. We checked it and re-checked it and then we went ahead. We tried this day and that. At last we met success. The air-wrapping involved the designing of special processes, special machines.

That costs a lot of money, more than $2,000,000 the first year, but after you have seen Camels packed this modern new way you are sure you will agree it is a fine investment.

For some time now every Camel that has left our factory has gone out in this new Humidor Pack.

We have said nothing about it until now to make sure your dealer would be able to supply you when the good news came out.

Camel smokers of course have already discovered that their favorite cigarette is better and milder now than ever before.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, try them just to see what a difference there really is between harsh, dried out tobacco and a properly conditioned cigarette.

You can feel the difference, you can hear the difference and you certainly can taste the difference.

Of course we're prejudiced. We always have believed that Camel is the world's best cigarette.

Now we know it.

Just treat yourself to Camels in the new Humidor Pack and see if you don't agree.
