

Enjoy Perusing Books New and Old as Found on Library Shelves.

The old formula of a book to read when one is bored is still a good one...

New books, glisteningly fresh from the printers, attract some readers. Older classics in more sumptuous dress, attract others.

Reference works are being rearranged and moved, clearing the magazine area in such a way that all three sides may be filled with periodicals.

On the shelves at present are 6,470 volumes, which have been read this year by 1,894 readers.

Expenses for maintaining the library this year were $2,351.53, which left a balance April 30 of this year of $7328.

Established in 1909, the library has grown steadily to take in members of the reading public.

Material from the Washington Bicentennial Commission as "Washington D. C." is being received at intervals, much of it already having been placed on the shelves at the library.

Another interesting set of works that has been given new prominence in the rearrangement of books on the library shelves is the group of volumes which deal with genealogy.

Only TRUTHFUL TIRE ADVERTISING WINS!

When we advertised the fact that Firestone was furnishing us complete lines of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires that not only beat the price but beat the quality and construction of every grade of special brand tires sold by mail order houses and others, the mail order houses made vigorous protests to Better Business Bureaus and made demands upon newspapers not to accept Firestone or our advertising.

We cannot blame them for they did not want car owners to know that they could get, at no more cost, a better tire made by a leading manufacturer, bearing his name and guarantee plus our guarantee and our service.

When car owners awakened to this fact, they came to us, compared the sections we had cut from Firestone Tires and special brand mail order tires, and were astounded at the Extra Values we were giving.

As a result, our business and that of other Firestone Dealers throughout the country, increased so fast that it has been necessary for Firestone to run their factories twenty-four hours a day and Firestone sold more tires in April, May and June than in any like period in the history of the company.

In our advertising we do not make comparisons involving laboratory tests which you cannot verify except in a laboratory - neither do we make comparisons of construction or price based on misleading classifications such as first line tire, second line tire or third line tire - we do not make comparisons to confuse and mislead you as to actual values and service - we only make statements and comparisons that you can verify for yourself in our store before you purchase the tire.

Come in today and get the greater safety, extra quality and extra values found only in Firestone Tires.

No. 45 Wayne, Neb., Thursday, August 20, 1931. Vol. 4

If you've planned to do anything in August, better hurry up and do it. Only eleven days and twelve hours left!

Scores of customers are taking advantage of our 18c cedar post. It's a big value for the money.

Speaking of posts, we have a special seven foot northern white cedar post, nice, clean, bright, straight stock that we are pricing at 15c when they last.

A colored man was driving an old liver down in Florida, and instead of a license plate on the rear, he had a shingle bearing these words: "Lost it."

In these times of short feed many are wondering how they can best provide cheap winter feed for their stock. We have been reading in the experiment station bulletins and farm journals about temporary silos that will solve this problem. We are prepared to give valuable information on this subject gathered from unquestioned authority. The cost of these silos will run from $17 to $85 per silo, depending on the capacity. We believe every man who is short of feed will give this consideration.

Doctors and surgeons are always cutting things out, but did you ever hear of one of them putting anything back?

The best way we know to get yourself "kidded" is to carry a couple of empty turpentine bottles along main street in the day time.

In order to keep step with changing conditions in business, and to conduct our business more economically, we are adopting a definite policy of selling coal for cash only. This may seem a bit radical, but it's good business. It makes it possible to reduce prices from 50c to $1.50 per ton and that saving is in effect RIGHT NOW.

Last night we saw it - a roadster driving through town with one person in the front seat, and four in the rumble seat.

"Better Lumber For Less"

When the National Better Business Bureau realized that their Bulletin No. 634 was being taken advantage of by some advertisers they issued a Bulletin dated July 10th as follows:

"In our Bulletin No. 634 entitled 'Definitions of Terms Used in the Tire Industry' we published definitions of First Line - Second Line - Third Line - Heavy Duty and Super Heavy Duty Tires.

"Our definitions pointed out, 'Although each manufacturer's or distributor's first line tire may represent a high standard size 4 or 6 ply tire, there is not necessarily any equality of competitive first line tires as to materials, workmanship or price.' This interpretation also applies to all lines of tires.

"We therefore recommend that advertising to the consumer shall avoid the use of these terms for the purpose of comparing competitive products."

*A "Special Brand" Tire is made by a manufacturer for distributors such as Mail Order houses, oil companies and others, under a name that does not identify the tire manufacturer to the public, usually because he builds his "best quality" tires under his own name. Firestone puts his name on every tire he makes.

Double Guarantee - Every tire manufactured by Firestone bears the name Firestone and carries Firestone's unlimited guarantee and ours. You are doubly protected.

Tenders Banquet To District Head

J. H. Kemp Is Honored And T. S. Hook Is Named His Successor.

J. H. Kemp who leaves Saturday for Stockton, Calif., to accept general agency for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company in north central California and western Nevada, was guest of honor Monday evening at a banquet given by Franklin Mann of Omaha, Nebraska, general agent, at Hotel Stratton in Wayne for the company's agents of north east Nebraska and a few friends, 20 in all. Mr. Mann on this occasion also announced appointment of T. S. Hook of Wayne as district agent to take Mr. Kemp's place.

Following the dinner at the hotel, Mr. Mann presided as toastmaster and speaker. He pointed out that the Northwest Nebraska district has held the distinction of being the largest in volume of production for the company west of the Mississippi and it is also the best organized of any in the state credit for which he gave largely to Mr. Kemp. Through Mr. Kemp's leadership and high ideals Mr. Mann pointed out that high degree of confidence in the company had been developed. Mr. Mann presented Mr. Kemp with a picture frame desk clock as an expression of appreciation of his services. Agents of the district gave Mr. Kemp a brief case embossed with the name and commitments of the district.

Mr. Kemp responded appropriately, and short talks were also given by Charles Young of Norfolk, Edwin Gould of Omaha, field superintendent, H. S. Ringland, A. J. Kemp of LaSalle, Ill., T. S. Hook, H. B. Ware of Wakefield, and Charles Gallagher of Culteridge. The group at the hotel included Mr. Mann and Mr. Gould of Omaha, Mr. Collins of Cleveland, Charles Young and his brother of Norfolk, A. J. Alaska Charms Wayne Woman

(Continued from Page One) crossing is often rough. But to hardy spirits, this day or two of real ocean travel is an interesting change. Soon again stops are being made at coast towns and large fish canneries. The towns so far north are smaller and rougher, more truly Alaskan. Of these, Seward is very typical. At any rate, small and isolated as it is, there are interesting things to be said of it.

Seward is beautifully situated at the head of Resurrection Bay, ten miles opposite the narrow entrance. The bay and town are surrounded by towering mountains, even now topped with snow. From my windows I can see the entire bay with its water like wrinkled silk. I can watch steamers, freighters, coast guard cutters, our own survey ships from the time they appear at the entrance until they tie up at the dock; about a block away. On a clear day the mountains stand out vividly against the bluest of dazzling skies; at sunset the white tops are often turned to shadowy rose. Seagulls wheel and dip occasionally uttering a shrill cry. At night my window wide to the fresh breeze of the sea, I fall asleep to the steady pulsing 'swish' of breaking waves. It is indeed hard to write without becoming rhapsodical, so moving is this vast beauty. During the month of June, we enjoyed almost constant daylight. The sun was shining eighteen hours each day and the only approach to darkness was a sort of dusk from 11 to 1 o'clock at night. At 2 in the morning it was broad daylight and the sun rose about 3 o'clock. Now however, in early August, it is dark by 10 o'clock at night but daylight still comes exceedingly early. During this season of much sunshine and daylight everything grows at an amazing rate. Gardens flourish and flowers bloom in such profusion as to be almost unbelievable. One has not been led to expect such excellence of vegetables and fruits and such abundance of flowers in Alaska. All here and Alaskan berries grow well here and Alaskan berries are famous far and wide. The strawberries are just now coming to the market in quantities. They are of good size, excellent flavor and of a pale red color. Almost every kind of the harder flowers is cultivated in private, sheltered gardens and the success of such flowerers is a source of great pride to their owners. But it is the wild flowers that thrill one from the "outside." Their abundance is such that it is next to impossible not to step on them when walking in any open space; their size is such that one is almost in telling of them. Wild sweetpeas and violets appeared first late in June. Then the iris, larger than those carefully cultivated in the States and of a more glowing color. Having seen them, one can never forget the acres of lupines, deeply blue, growing in splendid, sturdy spikes 18 inches long. Every roadside and the woods were vivid with them. A little later, vacant lots, country fields, every fence-corner, flamed with fireweed. Like the lupine, it grows on soil stinks or spikes, but fireweed is so riotous, sending to deep roots here, we picked great armfuls for bouquets in our houses. It is regarded by them, as nearly as I can discover, somewhat as we regard the sunflower in Nebraska. There are other flowers whose names I do not know. Ferns grow in great variety so that at this season, a gorgeous bouquet may be had for a little effort. Of course, handlions thrive, being even larger than the middle-west variety.

There is little to do for amusement in a small town like Seward where the population is a mixture of native Indians, foreign fishermen and lumbermen and white Americans. Yet time does not hang heavily on our hands. The white people in business here are friendly and enterprising. More often than one might expect, they and their families are people of culture and wide interests.

Spent Time Outdoors. We naturally spend much time out of doors. With a sandwich in a pocket, we climb the mountains until tired and enjoy the view with our lunch; or we follow the glacier river up toward its source. It tumbles over a rocky bed and the water is icy and clear. This water runs unfiltered into the taps in our very kitchens. It is quite satisfactory except on very windy days when we find bits of moss and tiny twigs mixed with our drinking water. Our electric light plant draws its power also from these mountain streams.

Foods Are Costly. Due to the fact that most food and supplies must be shipped in from Seattle, prices are very high. Seward has a small dairy and we pay 27c a quart for excellent milk. Perishable goods such as fresh vegetables and fruit are especially expensive. These articles come in only once a week and that is our chief extravagance—buying fresh green things.

On the other hand, fish is extremely cheap and most delicious. Like most Alaskan coast towns, Seward is somewhat of a fishing center. Halibut boats work out of here and come in with their tons of fish every week. There is a packing plant where halibut is laid down for shipment. Also there is a salmon cannery here. One of the most delightful fish in Alaska is black cod. It has a black skin but the meat is tender and white and falls into large flakes when cooked.

During the month of August, preliminary to the opening of school, all school children's teeth will be cleaned at half price.

ed. One should not fail to mention halibut cheeks, a delicacy comparable to crab at its best, which is a superlative compliment. Inland a few miles, there is splendid fresh-water fishing, where trout and salmon are easily caught. Trout fishermen's life is what is called a fisherman's, as well as a hunter's, paradise. On our rides here—there is one road, eighteen miles long, running to Lake Kani—we have seen moose and bears. On the mountains across the bay mountain goats are visible from time to time. Once, picking flowers, we encountered a porcupine. He, I am thankful to say, seemed even more alarmed than we.

Tourists Are Many. Boats arrive from Seattle each week with mail and passengers. Soon that will be reduced to once each week or less. Seward is a terminus of Alaska's longest railroad, running 470 miles to Fairbanks. The round trip is made once every week, so every Thursday evening this town is enlivened by the arrival of a train. The cost of travel by rail is almost prohibitive, the fare being 10c per mile. One must live longer than several months in a new land to understand it well. Yet this summer of living here, reading much of Alaska's history and becoming acquainted with some of her people has deeply impressed my mind. I realize that Alaska is not only a vast country of great riches of fish, furs, oil, lumber and gold; it is also a territory deserving of and ambitious for equality of rights with the States. Its possibilities are tremendous with its fine harbors, its bracing climate and its enthusiastic, forward-looking people. Alaska needs many things—roads, transportation facilities of all kinds—but mostly is needed a wide-spread interest in her present problems and her future development. To anyone interested in an appreciation of Alaska's glories and problems and needs, presented with heartfelt sincerity, I suggest Mary Lee Davis' "Uncle Sam's Altitic."

Surprises Numerous. I find in Alaska many surprising things. I did not expect a refrigerator in my kitchen and I did not expect earthquakes. I find both. Several times in the three months I have lived here, my dishes have rattled on the shelves and my pictures have been shaken askew on the walls. No one notices the earthquakes. They are as much a part of this country as the mountains. In the window of a local general store is an array of beautiful furs, silver fox and red fox. They come from a fox ranch near here. The farming of fur-bearing animals is one of Alaska's most successful industries. There are many other things too beautiful to be thought of one can afford them. Exquisite Alut baskets, of an amazing fineness and artistry made by the Aleut Indians; carved fossil ivory and jewelry of native stones and small gold nuggets. No, there is nothing drab or ordinary about this small remote town, where the nearest town is Anchorage, 114 miles away by rail, and where a glorious experience is a trip to the "outside."

Soon they say the rains will set in and the weather become more and more uncertain until in October it will not be possible for our ships to continue their work of coast surveying. Then we shall return to Seward. I shall be sorry to have the summer gone, yet deeply thankful for a fine experience. And overcoming my distaste for the facile verse of Robert Service, I think he deserves to be quoted for the simplicity and aptness of his appreciation of this country: "It's the beauty that thrills me with wonder. It's the stillness, that fills me with peace."

Hollow. Visiting places which one has visualized from childhood brings one into closer touch with characters and scenes of long ago. The Palisades of the Hudson, a scenic spot of much grandeur, opposite Peekskill, N. Y., on the Storm King Trail afforded some of the finest scenery anywhere seen in the east. The highway is short but of the best construction in the world. In speaking of the Hudson river, Mr. Best compared the beauty with that of the Rhine in Germany. The old world romance of tall castles and fortresses lacking. Scenes along the Rhine give one the impression of antiquity, of many epochs of history; wars fought while America was yet undiscovered. The Hudson is the scene of much of America's early history; yet is still in its infancy as compared to the Rhine. See Play of Year.

Mr. and Mrs. Best were privileged to see "Green Pastures" now in its second year in New York City. The performance which they attended was the five hundred-eighthieth. The play caste was entirely Negro, the singing between each of the eighteen scenes in a darkened theatre, magnificent.

Mrs. Best also heard a recital of Paul Lawrence Dunbar's poems by Richard Harrison, colored, at the Columbia University theatre, Mr. Harrison taking the part of the "Lawd" in "Green Pastures."

Intantile Paralysis Epidemic. The city of New York was swept by an epidemic of intantile paralysis while the Bests were there. The siege was expected to last for the usual period of four months but cooperation of parents with officials in keeping children out of public places, delayed the epidemic, which had almost run its course when the Bests left the city. Brooklyn had more cases than any part of the city, Manhattan, where the Bests lived, being comparatively free from the scourge.

Trips Made Rapidly. Because of the shortness of time after leaving Wayne in July the Bests made the trip by as direct a route as possible and thus missed many scenic points which they had planned to see. By taking a highway from Pittsburgh to Harrisburg, Pa., most of the Alleghenies were avoided. On the return trip, a route was planned touching Canada with a short stop at Niagara Falls.

Iowa crops have not suffered from drought, pastures and fields presenting a rich green appearance. New York state claimed this to be the hottest summer experienced in many years with a maximum temperature during the Bests' stay of 96 degrees, and that for only one day. Humidity made one more susceptible to heat but Mr. and Mrs. Best found the climate very agreeable as a whole. Little Richard Best, on his arrival in Wayne, made the statement that he was glad to get home "cause Wayne was so much bigger'n New York—lots more room." Richard evidently disliked being limited for playground.

She is going shopping . . . WILL SHE VISIT YOUR STORE?

MRS. HOUSEWIFE has many interests competing for her attention. She can devote only a small part of her day to shopping. Obviously she cannot visit ALL the stores in an effort to shop to her best advantage.

Therefore she selects those stores which have given her advance information through the advertising columns of her newspaper. She has learned that it is always more efficient, and usually more economical, to do the greater part of her shopping right at home with her Wayne Herald.

It is not enough for you to give better values or service in your store. You must let Mrs. Housewife know about them. It is not enough to employ good salesmen. You must do your preliminary selling in Mrs. Housewife's own living room. The wise, modern shopper reads the Wayne Herald for guidance. Is your message there?

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

If A Miracle Is Wrought

Sioux City Journal: If, with the help of other agencies and organizations, the Hoover administration can work a miracle that will improve the economic situation this winter, the chances of the republican party to be maintained in power will be enhanced. If the magic of sympathy and organization and justice does not work the other extreme is inescapable.

Mr. Hoover is no more responsible for the depression than he is to blame for the drought of last year or the present infestation of South Dakota cornfields by grasshoppers. He suffers a loss of prestige every time anything untoward develops and affects the people in an economic sense. That has always been the rule, and it probably never will be changed.

The hope of the republican party for victory next year lies in the possibility that something can be done to start business recovery on the upgrade. It might not be necessary for a good deal to be achieved as to results to produce the effect desired. But let a start be made in the right direction, let the people get the impression that recovery is on the way, and public opinion will go through a process of revision.

Professional Men Choose Expressions Expressing Their Philosophies

Thirty years ago, a group of Wayne people got together and a little pamphlet which contained the favorite quotations of their friends...

Offering Counsel. Many of the lines were as thoughtfully chosen, as if they were selections which had been found helpful as counsel...

Remembered by many Wayne friends, chose this line of Tennyson's: "It is better to do the most trifling thing in the world for half an hour, than to consider half an hour a trifling thing."

Walter Scott Goldie, in the newspaper business in Wayne for some years, took the words of Sir Walter Scott: "I cannot tell how the truth may be."

To Young Women. Three decades ago, when women were just being given an opportunity to go to school, young women were counseled to learn all they could, and to get over smallness and pettiness...

Girls' knowledge is now no more a fountain sealed. Drink until the habits of the slave. The sun of emptiness, gossip and spite...

Sam Davies chose a short quotation: "Selfishness is the magnifying glass through which we see nearly all our troubles."

Charlotte M. White, likewise, took a short line for hers: "What you put into the first of life you put into the whole of life."

Mrs. U. S. Cain chose the couplet: "There are gains for all our losses; there are battles for all our pains."

Although so many years have passed, and he has achieved success through them, the lines chosen by John H. Bessier were: "The world is a bubble and the life of man less than a span."

The quotation was from Bacon. The Professional Man. Wayne's professional men of the day had an opportunity to reveal a sense of humor in the lines they chose to put into the booklet...

Dr. E. S. Blair took the following lines from Sir William Temple: "Look here, upon this picture, And on this."

Dr. W. A. Ivory, dentist, very professionally chose these lines, also from Shakespeare: "There was never yet a philosopher what could endure the toothache patiently."

Corn Promises Fair Returns

Farmers Believe Autumn Will See Reward in County Harvest

Small Grain Good

Summer Drought Impoverishes Subsoil of Moisture as Season Advances

FARM conditions around Wayne present a good appearance this year, according to a number of farmers, although dry weather and hot winds have done their share of damage here as elsewhere.

On the Ed Grier farm north of town, oats went 40 bushels to the acre by measure, and 45 bushels by weight, an average which scarcely betrays the dry weather of the early summer season.

Mr. Grier had 14 acres of oats on rolling ground. Mr. Grier has 30 acres of corn, which he listed in planting. This corn shows scarcely any signs of stunting, although the ears are not forming as well as they do some years.

Mr. Grier expects to feed some stock this winter, and is pleased with the appearance of the feeder lambs, which he thinks may be a good "buy" this season.

Barley is good. Barley was a fair crop in this section, although barley is not favored so much as corn and oats.

Frank Griffith had 28 acres of barley, which brought a yield of better than 25 bushels to the acre. Mr. Griffith also planted 123 acres of oats, which had a yield of 38 bushels, which is considered good this summer.

Condition of the 190 acres of corn on the Griffith place is stated as "spotted" some of the ears forming and filling in normal order, others being short and scrubby and showing no inclination to fill out normally.

Some of the Griffith corn land lies on the bottom stretches, and some of it is on hill land. One of the strange things about this year's crop, Mr. Griffith points out, is that some of the bottom corn is poorer than the hill corn.

Mr. Griffith, who checked and drilled his corn, says the yield will probably be around 20 bushels, and that he will cut some of the crop for fodder. He plans to feed again this year, as he did last.

Hopeful for Crop. Albert Watson, in the same neighborhood, planted 55 acres of his land to oats. Ten acres were cut green for hay, as alfalfa seed had been planted with it for this purpose.

On the remaining piece of land, the oats crop amounted to an average of 34 bushels to the acre. One load only was weighed, the amount being between 56 and 57 bushels on that one load, which was considered representative.

The Watsons have planted 126 acres of their land to corn, and report little firing, except the usual amount at the edges of the fields. There are no grasshoppers in the corn, and only a few of the corn worms, which seem to spoil the tips of the ears.

The ears seem to be smaller than usual this year, although they are considered perfect in shape, and fairly well filled. Mr. Watson plans to feed some stock this winter, and so he will cut some of his corn for feeding.

"I am cutting the corn because I am short on hay for feeding," Mr. Watson explains, "and not because the corn is too poor to allow it to mature."

Explain Conditions. Farmers north of Wayne seem to agree that corn should not be planted too thickly, especially in dry years. When the plants stand too close together in the rows, they absorb so much of the ground moisture that no plant gets its full share.

If the plants are fairly well spaced, however, the long and thirsty underground roots of the corn will reach out and get all the available water.

Mr. Watson planted about half of his corn by the loose ground listing method. The other half was checked. Between the two there is little difference to be seen now, although the listed piece has not done quite so well as the checked, because it was laid by first, and a heavy rain which fell just after the last cultivation crusted over the soil.

Mr. Watson thinks there would be no appreciable difference between the two methods if this had not been the case. All over the county, farmers are finding the corn typically resistant to the dry weather, although the subsoil moisture is rapidly disappearing. Heavy snows and fall and spring rains during the next year will be needed to recondition the subsurfaces of Wayne county land, it is generally admitted.

Motor Accidents Score High Record

Ninetythree Collisions Cause 130 Casualties—Ten By Hit-and-Run Drivers

Accident statistics as compiled by the Nebraska Press Association and the rehabilitation division of the state department of vocational education for two-week period ending August 11, 1931:

Table with columns: Motor vehicle accidents, Other public accidents, Agriculture-employment, Industry-employment, Home accidents, Total. Rows show counts for various categories.

Motor vehicle accidents shot up to a record total for any two week period since this accident study was commenced more than two years ago with 438 total casualties of which 6 persons were totally disabled and 21 people were killed.

Motor vehicle report for period ending August 11, 1931.

Table with columns: Skids, Tire blowouts, Mechanical defect, Losses control, Speed, Passing car struck car passed, Passing car struck oncoming car, Collision, Struck obstruction, Struck pedestrian, Driver intoxicated, Driver asleep, Highway signals and lights, Blinding lights, Reckless driving, Railroad crossing, Miscellaneous. Rows show counts for various accident types.

Total 319 21 417. Ninetythree collisions caused 130 casualties; 15 intersection accidents happened as a result of poor visibility due to high corn and weeds.

This is a favorite summer time alibi of the reckless driver who comes onto highway intersections and looks afterward. Nine cars either hit highway maintainers clouded by dust or were crowded into ditches or other cars by them.

Ten accidents were caused by hit-and-run drivers. Six people fell from cars and 14 were hurt while cranking cars and 5 were run over while starting cars.

Mechanical defects and blowouts caused 38 injuries and 4 deaths. The depression is apparently causing people to neglect repairs and tires at the expense of injury and human life.

Fortythree accidents in which trucks were involved injured 51 people, disabled 3 others and killed 1. Considering the relative number of trucks and other cars in Nebraska, this may not seem a large proportion of truck casualties but it is interesting to note the causes of accidents in which trucks took part.

Trucks participated in 23 percent of all accidents due to cars being struck or ditched in meeting or passing; in 28 percent of all collision accidents; in 17 percent of all struck pedestrian accidents and in 19 percent of all reckless driving accidents.

Accident casualties since January 1, 1931.

Table with columns: Motor vehicle accidents, Other public accidents, Agriculture-employment, Industry-employment, Home accidents, Total. Rows show counts for various categories.

Total 319 21 417. Ninetythree collisions caused 130 casualties; 15 intersection accidents happened as a result of poor visibility due to high corn and weeds.

This is a favorite summer time alibi of the reckless driver who comes onto highway intersections and looks afterward. Nine cars either hit highway maintainers clouded by dust or were crowded into ditches or other cars by them.

Ten accidents were caused by hit-and-run drivers. Six people fell from cars and 14 were hurt while cranking cars and 5 were run over while starting cars.

Mechanical defects and blowouts caused 38 injuries and 4 deaths. The depression is apparently causing people to neglect repairs and tires at the expense of injury and human life.

Fortythree accidents in which trucks were involved injured 51 people, disabled 3 others and killed 1. Considering the relative number of trucks and other cars in Nebraska, this may not seem a large proportion of truck casualties but it is interesting to note the causes of accidents in which trucks took part.

Trucks participated in 23 percent of all accidents due to cars being struck or ditched in meeting or passing; in 28 percent of all collision accidents; in 17 percent of all struck pedestrian accidents and in 19 percent of all reckless driving accidents.

Accident casualties since January 1, 1931.

Miss Pearl Sewell Goes to Hospital

County Superintendent Pearl E. Sewell, Who Has Been Ill Several Weeks, Went to a Sioux City Hospital Sunday for a Week's Rest

County Superintendent Pearl E. Sewell, who has been ill several weeks, went to a Sioux City hospital Sunday for a week's rest. She plans to be in her office August 24 to resume her work. Much has been said since the fight for the referendum on the truck bill started about the relative hazard of trucks or pleasure cars on our highways. Analysis shows that there is no particular hazard about either of these vehicles but either of them become terrific engines of destruction in the hands of a "Reckless Driver," a "Speed Maniac," a "Road Hog" or "A Plain Danin Fool."

Your Fall Trip. Don't abandon your fall trip because conditions are not very good. See Nebraska! A few dollars invested in gasoline, a few days spent on the road and a few nights in Nebraska's comfortable cabin camps will not cost much. And it may be the most delightful vacation you could plan.

See the beautiful Missouri river from Glose Hill near Nebraska City or the heights above old Bellevue. Drive through the apple orchards of southeastern Nebraska, where trees are now full of fruit. The Niobrara river will surprise you with its wild and lovely scenery, if you have never traveled along its beautiful valley. The hill country of northwestern Nebraska, where a section of mountains has straggled down to the plains, is a revelation in picturesque beauty to those who have never been abroad and think Nebraska is flat. The Wild Cat hills and the peculiar rock formations in the North Platte valley bring expressions of delight from world travelers. And then in between these sections are the rich farm lands, the level plains, and the sand hill section and the variety of contour and scenery that make Nebraska the great state it is.

Take this tip from one who has seen something of Nebraska and a little of the places of beauty and charm in adjacent states: Stay at home this fall and see Nebraska in the lovely autumn season when nature wears a brush of gorgeous hues, soft skies arch the landscape and fading summer presents a picture of peace and plenty and wondrous beauty.

Rain Covers All Growth Periods

Crops are better off than they were last year, says J. H. Kinner, of the weather bureau in Washington, D. C. He makes this statement, despite the fact that figures show a lower rainfall this season than last. However, moisture this year has been better distributed during the growing months, he finds, and has, thus, done more good.

Early Days in Wayne County

(Taken from the Herald files for August 21, 1913) The democratic county central committee met in Wayne and resumed its action of a fortnight before in regard to the naming of postmasters for Wayne and Winnsboro. It was expected that the question would be left to a primary in each town, with a lively contest.

From Older Papers

Very pungent are the following paragraphs from the Ponca Journal for August 26, 1880: "The Cedar County Nonpareil has been offered for sale. And, in addition to the Nonpareil, there is to be another paper started in Cedar county. That is a good county for one newspaper, but it will not support two, and the struggle and competition will kill both."

"Judge Barnes and Messrs. Orr and Higgins went hunting Monday with varied adventures and experiences. Their dog was bitten by a rattlesnake. The dog still lives, however, and so, at last accounts, does the snake. In their travels, they were also tickled although not bitten, but one Chamberlain, the hero of a certain hog trough battle which we described several weeks ago. But, in spite of the calamities and troubles which seemed to take pleasure in pursuing them, they bagged several chickens, snipe, quail and woodcock, and would have shot a deer or two, had opportunity occurred."

Let's take the Bull by the Horns!

In these times when others are calamity howling, our business is good—there is no depression, here—we've cut down our overhead—we've eliminated unnecessary expenses—and these savings we're passing on to you.

Some people believe this country is going to the dogs—we don't. It is true there are a great many people whose incomes have been reduced—it is true that almost everybody wants to make a dollar go as far as possible.

That's where we come in. While everybody else is talking about this depression, we're doing something about it.

Our fall line—now in our store—is the culmination of months of planning and careful selection. We've assembled the greatest array of Fur Coats, Cloth Coats, Dresses, Shoes and Millinery with one thought predominating—to lick Old Man Depression.

Let's take the Bull by the horns—let's rout gloom—let's spend our money and dress the part of a prosperous community.

It's wise to select your wardrobe today—it's ready for you.

Fifteen Speeches Given In One Day

Fifteen speeches in a day—and still going strong! That was the record Marie Dressler set when she returned to office in "Politics," her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring picture coming Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, August 23, 24 and 25 to the City theatre.

Miss Dressler made a long speech exhorting the women's vote to get out and clean up the town.

The new picture is a rollicking comedy drama of politics with Miss Dressler as a mayoralty candidate and Polly Moran as her campaign manager.

Drying Pastures Lower Production

Due largely to a drying up of pastures, a decline in the production of milk and butterfat by herds in the Cuming-Wayne-Dixon Dairy Herd Improvement Association is reported for July by Hugh Magee, tester.

The 267 cows on test in the association produced 89,347 pounds of milk and 6,665.1 pounds of butterfat, making an average of 675 pounds of milk and 24.9 pounds of butterfat. This is the lowest average for the association this year.

H. D. Hansen of Oakland, had the high herd for the month. His cows produced an average of 1,025 pounds of milk and 35.3 pounds of butterfat.

GIVE INDIANS LAND IN THURSTON COUNTY

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 15—Federal Judge J. W. Woodruff yesterday ordered 1,500 acres of Thurston county land restored to the Omaha Indian reservation there. Suta was made by the government against George Phillips of Macy, Nebraska.

Phillips for more than twenty-five years has been involved in litigation both in state and federal courts, contending that the changing course of the Missouri river years ago had made the land part of his property.

Judge Woodruff held that the river had not changed its course since allotments of land were made by the government to the Indians.

Learn what a difference six cylinders make in smoothness quietness flexibility handling ease riding comfort dependability economy long life

Step out of any other low-priced car into a Chevrolet, and learn the difference six cylinders make. "Idle" the engine—and the whole car remains steady. Open the throttle—the power flows evenly. Accelerate—throttle down—go fifteen or fifty—and this smoothness stays with you whatever you do. It's actually built into the motor—and objectionable vibration never even starts!

Yet smoothness is only one of many six-cylinder advantages. There's greater quietness, because noisy vibration is gone. There's greater comfort, because built-in smoothness doesn't tire you out. There's greater flexibility, because the power impulses of a six overlap. And a six is much easier to handle!

If you raise the hood of a Chevrolet and watch the engine running so smoothly, you'll realize that six cylinders also mean greater dependability.

And remember when you do—that no other car is so economical to operate as the Chevrolet Six.

Return From Trip To South And East

Miss J. S. Lewis, Miss Mary and Miss Alice Lewis and Miss Maude Curley arrived home Wednesday last week from an automobile trip through thirteen states. They left three weeks ago and went south through Kansas. In Lexington, Ken. they visited Miss Phyllis Lewis and found her nicely situated in hospital work there. The beauty of Kentucky appealed especially to Mrs. Lewis. The group went east from Lexington to Washington, D. C. and visited many places of historic interest nearby. They then came directly home. Aside from visiting Miss Phyllis Lewis, brothers of Mrs. Lewis at Malvern, Iowa, and Columbus, Kan., and a cousin at Nevada, Mo., they spent the time sightseeing.
