

To Be Featured in School Sponsored by Wayne Herald February 11, 12 and 13—Other Observations Noted in Passing.

The Herald has contracted with a Kansas City company to hold a cooking school in Wayne February 11, 12 and 13, and while what we do not know about cooking schools would make a huge volume, reports from points where they have been held, say they are very popular and successful.

A finely worded missive of sympathy, deploring the untimely death of the writer, was received during the past week from a house dealing in memorial goods and suggesting purchase of such things as would seem likely to preserve his memory and give him a suitable send-off.

Checked Up. One of our farmer friends calls us down for saying that before the days of automobiles and tractors hogs could be bought for as low as $40 or $50. The item referred to did not say how long before the advent of horseless vehicles.

Notes Exception. Bert Hoyt says we worked in a little intangible hot air when we said his experience reached back to a period when one couldn't see anything at any price for real money.

Figure These Out. A year's subscription to the Herald to the first one who brings in a correct list of names of local men described in the following paragraphs: No. 1. Rather rotund figure, never perturbed, philosophical, always avoids snap judgment, little slow in making up his mind, but seldom falls into error, and he steps right along in mounting the grade.

At Least Exaggerated. A finely worded missive of sympathy, deploring the untimely death of the writer, was received during the past week from a house dealing in memorial goods and suggesting purchase of such things as would seem likely to preserve his memory and give him a suitable send-off.

WINDS CONSPIRE TO UNDO WORK OF SNOW SHOVELERS

The winds operated to the disadvantage of highway workers this week. A north wind piled snow into impassable drifts. These were laboriously removed. No sooner had workmen completed the task and exchanged congratulations than a south wind, instigated by Mars or the devil, picked up the snow piled high along the sides and pitched it back into the roadways.

Winter Activities Intrigue All Ages At Wayne Public School

Semester work is being completed at the public school, and achievement tests were given in all the grades Wednesday. These tests are designed for comparison with tests given earlier in the season, and will show the quality of the work completed during the first semester.

Natural gas was installed at the high school Tuesday. The new fuel will be used in heating water and in firing the stoves used in the laboratory. A connection for possible stove hook-up is also being made in anticipation of need for a stove in the activity room.

The musical planned by high school glee club members will not be presented until March 8, it has been announced. The program was scheduled originally for a much earlier date. The glee theater will be the locale of the presentation.

Sophomores Go Sleighing
Sophomores went for a sleigh ride Friday evening. Miss Arline Urban and Gayle Childs were chaperones. Luncheon was served at Hotel Stratton following the party. Harold Schested of Norfolk is a new student in the eleventh grade. He was admitted to school Monday, January 4. Margaret Randall, eighth grade, and Jane Randall, eighth grade, have left for their new home in Norfolk.

Tuesday morning's convocation will be devoted to a musical program by members of the glee club, announces Miss Ann Getzler.

Make Winter Decorations

Diesel Engine Is Shipped Here

Generator Arrives in City Some Time Ago — Plant Is In Readiness.

An expert engineer and several local men will be employed in installing the new Diesel engine and generator which will soon grace the municipal light and power plant. The chief unit of the Diesel arrived on the track the middle of last week and workers began Saturday to prepare to move the giant to its new home. Modeled especially to suit the needs of the local plant, the great unit was almost entirely fitted together in the plant at Auburn, New York.

The greatest task in installing the engine is to remove it from the flat car on which it was shipped, get it on blocks and skids, and move it into the plant. Preparations began two weeks ago and the building is ready for the new unit. A pit has been prepared, and walls have been straightened, and even the roof has been changed in order to make accommodations for this new piece of equipment.

How Big It Is.
Size as well as efficiency may be mentioned in connection with the Diesel engine. This one weighs a modest 116,000 pounds, and the unit itself is 23 feet long, a little over 12 feet high and about four feet wide. The generator to be used in connection with the Diesel was received some time ago, and will be placed as soon as the unit itself is in the plant.

About 30 days is usually required for the installation of a Diesel of this type. Although City Engineer Hempel does not believe it will require so much time to get this one into place. Most of the preparatory work has been finished, local labor having been employed to do the project study of the Civil War in eighth grade history. Fifth grade girls who have been absent this week because of illness are Elva Mae Jones, Maxine Conger and Rogard Roland. Snow scene posters have been made in the fifth grade the last week. The grade spelling contest ended for the second month last week when the "Wildcats" defeated the "Tigers" by an average of 89 to 92.

Enjoy Debate Trip
Public school debate students went to Blair and Fremont last Friday for state question debates. At Blair, the Wayne negative side lost, but the affirmative side won, and at Fremont, no decisions were given. The Norfolk debate scheduled for Tuesday of this week, was postponed until next Tuesday. The argument will be held here, announces W. A. Behl, in charge of debate activities. On January 27, the team will go to Sioux City to engage in a debate with the Central City high school team.

Pre-contest declamation work has been started under the direction of Miss Vera Mae O'Neill. As a preliminary to the work, members of the class have been asked to cut down modern short stories making them into suitable reading material. French students have received answers to letters written each student on the subject. Booklets are being made as a special project in French class.

In the expression, original poems are being written. A collection of the best poems may be made. English class has this week completed the study of American literature. The sophomores have just finished booklets which deal with eight modernized codes derived from Tennyson's "Idylls of the King."

tasks, and all that remains is to place the units and set them going. A test cannot be expected until some time in February, it is believed.

THE KNOT-HOLE

No. 35 Wayne, Nebraska, Thursday, January 15, 1932. Vol. 6

If you're interested in intelligence tests, you might be asking your friends to name the other seventeen amendments.

And it might do your friends a good turn to ask them if they have ever tried Sahara coal.

From the newspapers we learn that Senator Borah has unqualifiedly endorsed Secretary Simpson's recent drastic note to Japan. Now we wonder what could have been wrong with that darned note!

There's nothing wrong with our Economy coal. The price is low, $8.00, but the quality is in line with coals generally sold at higher prices.

The Knot Hole editor has received an anonymous letter which reads: "Dear Knot Hole: Some of your jokes I have seen before. The others I have not seen yet." Say, Anonymous, what's the matter with you anyway. Are you like the fellow that Vice President Curtis explained the tariff to?

You'll see the point in our coal advertising if you'll call 147 and tell us what kind of coal you prefer. We have it.

If this snow keeps up it won't be long before the farmers will have to turn the cows upside down to milk them.

Tune in on KSCJ Monday evenings around 6:30 and hear the SAHARA singers. The singing is good. So's the coal.

Another hay rack and a feed bunk last week. Next.

Who said an old maid was a yes girl who never had a chance to talk?

There's nothing like zero weather to put a stop to street corner loafing.

Outlook Not Unfavorable

Apparently the year 1932 holds more of promise for the stock grower and stock farmer than either 1930 or 1931 for the very obvious reason that the deflation has already carried live stock prices down to the lowest levels that have prevailed for a generation and any further serious shrinkage in values is hardly to be looked for.

Speculation is not bad when it is not carried too far, but for the present, at least, speculation in live stock has been practically eliminated. The plungers are flat. They have neither the money nor the credit on which to operate, despite the fact that opportunities were never more plentiful. Live stock values may not yet be down to bed rock, but the water and air have been squeezed out of them so completely that they now represent the deliberate appraisal of a public that has also been completely deflated.

A survey of the situation presents facts that cannot be construed as unfavorable to stock growers. Even if prices should suffer further declines the losses could not be very serious. On the other hand, with values so low, business conditions so bad and supplies by no means excessive, the chances are that any marked change would be in the direction of higher prices. Nineteen-thirty-two is, at least, and it is a good time to take stock and look the situation over.

Wayne Is Praised For Relief Work

Dr. C. J. Johnson Is Named Wayne County Head At Legion Meeting.

In spite of snow blocked highways more than 200 American Legion men and Auxiliary women gathered at West Point last Thursday for the annual convention of the Third district. The group represented seven counties. Wayne Legion was represented by Paul Hines, J. M. Brisben and Frank Heine, and the Auxiliary by Mrs. Fontanelle Smith and Mrs. W. H. Phillips.

Dr. J. C. Johnson of Wayne, was named Wayne county commander for the coming year. Only county heads were selected at this time. Wakefield was chosen as place of meeting next January.

State Commander Robert D. Flory, one of the speakers, said that one of the greatest needs of America today is need for preparation against communistic menace and unemployment problems.

The Legion is backing a movement for industrial plants to hire 10 percent more men between now and the first of February to relieve unemployment. A telegram from Harry Stevens, national commander, stated that the Legion is pushing this project throughout the country. Commander Flory also urged help to drought-stricken areas and enforcement of traffic regulations.

H. H. Dudley of Omaha, department adjutant, spoke on organization and membership. He presented a certificate of distinction to South Sioux City for exceeding the membership quota in a specified time.

Community service awards were made to Wayne and West Point posts which promoted relief work for drought areas. Wayne gathered money, food and clothing and had a picture show feature for this purpose.

Sam Reynolds, national committee man, urged Legion members to serve their communities in state and civic affairs.

H. G. Kautz of West Point, presided at the Legion meeting.

Mrs. Mary O'Connor of Lyons, presided at the Auxiliary meeting. Mrs. Lottie Roscreans of Plattsmouth, state commander, gave an address. The chapters subscribed 100 percent for the poppy sale.

Wakefield band was to play at the convention but was unable to get through the drifted roads. A few made the trip from Wakefield by way of Wayne for the evening session.

Mrs. Harry McMillan was to have part on the Auxiliary program but was unable to attend.

FRANK DECATUR WHITE

The Science of Cooking Explained By Nationally Known Expert

FRANK DECATUR WHITE

Everybody knows the housewives of this community can cook. Every meal is a demonstration of that fact. But, we wonder when the busy women of this section would have time to experiment with their cookery. Frank Decatur White, the home economics expert who is to conduct the Wayne Herald's Cooking School, spends much of his time in experimenting in his model kitchen. He will tell you new shortcuts in the kitchen, new step-saving ideas, as well as new ways to prepare old favorite dishes. He is a home-making expert as well as a home economics expert.

Because of the importance of this phase of the modern housewife's duty, the Wayne Herald is bringing to Wayne a Cooking School, to be conducted by an expert in home economics, in balancing diets, in preparing menus for meals.

Then, there is the social aspect of the culinary art. When you entertain, you rack your mind to think of something to serve. Frank Decatur White can give you many ideas for party menus. He can give you new salad recipes, new desserts, new ways of serving.

Men, these days, work hard. The strain of the modern world in which we live is wearing on health. The housewife has a great deal to do with the success of her husband, because she can guard his health with diet, which is the most important item toward preservation of human life.

You should not miss a single session of the Wayne Herald's Cooking School. Every day, Mr. White will give you something new, something worthwhile. Plan to attend this FREE Cooking School and reap the benefits of expert advice. It will add new zest to your kitchen activities.

Christian Science Society, 410 Main St. January 17. Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. Services at 11 a. m. "Life" is the subject of the lesson sermon in all churches of Christ, Scientist, for Sunday, January 17.

The Golden Text is: "This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in His Son." (1 John 5:11). Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Enter ye in at the straight gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: Because straight is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth to life, and few there be that find it." (Matthew 7:13, 14).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "When being is understood, life will be recognized as neither material nor finite, but as infinite, as God, universal good; and the belief that life, or mind, was ever in a finite form, or good in evil, will be destroyed." (page 76).

Presbyterian Church. (Rev. P. A. Davies, pastor) A happy and blessed day was last Sunday, as we celebrated together the 50th anniversary of the founding of our church. The messages by Dr. Ernst and Dr. Pressly were both timely and helpful. We rejoiced in having with us these two leaders of our work in the state. The music prepared by the morning choir and the male chorus was far above the ordinary, and greatly appreciated as was the beautiful violin number by Prof.

Considerable Money Available For Roads

Lincoln, Jan. 11.—A financial summary prepared today by State Treasurer T. W. Bass showed a total of $17,027,634 was available for good roads in Nebraska, from three different sources of income during the calendar year of 1931.

This did not include any money raised from taxation by counties, townships, or municipalities, but represents only what the state itself collected.

Gasoline tax yielded considerably more than half of the total. The amount realized from that source was $8,788,899. Of that amount $593,502 was a cash balance left over from the preceding year. Collections of gas tax in 1931 came to $9,278,725, but $82,327 was refunded to dealers on liquid fuel which they resold in other states after paying the tax here.

From its 30 percent share of motor vehicle license fees collected and remitted by county treasurers, the state received $1,299,218 last year. There was a previous balance of $225,186 on hand, making a total of $1,424,704.

The federal government contributed $5,692,830 for highway construction in Nebraska in 1931. With a balance of $110,188 from the 1930 season added in, the total of federal funds was $5,803,019. Of the $9,278,000 gas tax collection for the year just ended, one-fourth of the net proceeds, after deducting refunds and costs of administration or $2,299,915 was distributed among the ninety-three counties.

Treasurer Bass reported a net gain of $183,073 in gasoline tax revenue for 1931, as compared with the year before.

When arrested each man carried a 38 calibre revolver. They are believed to be the same men who robbed a local filling station of eight gallons of gasoline. They will be brought to Cuming county for trial.

For the men were first seen by Marshal Hittner of Humphrey, they had broken a gas tank lock and had about a quart of gasoline. They tried to escape and Hittner hailing the car of Theodore Loske of Lindsay gave chase. He shot repeatedly at the tires of the fugitives and overtook them in about a mile. They were turned over to Sheriff Kavanaugh of Columbus.

Land At Wisner Brings Good Price Wisner, Neb., Jan. 12.—Miss Mabel Mansfield became the owner of eighty acres of unimproved bottom farm land, four miles northwest of Wisner at $180 per acre. It is a portion of 120 acres that has been in the possession of Mrs. Ethel Hansfield Davis and was originally a part of the J. R. Mansfield estate. Several years ago negotiations were on foot for the purchase of the same piece of property by the late William R. Mansfield, at $200 per acre. But upon the accidental death of the latter, the sale was never consummated.

Identify Two Men In Wisner Holdup

Wisner, Neb., Jan. 12.—Henry Keegan, 27, and a second man, whose name was given here as S. O. Wall, but who is said at Columbus to be Otto S. Mills, 25, were identified yesterday at Columbus as the two men who engaged in a pistol battle with City Marshal Herman Nuttleman here early Saturday morning. Marshal Nuttleman, it is believed had prevented the men from robbing the Lee Harvey hardware store when he found them in the alley back of the store. One of the men tried to force Marshal Nuttleman into their car, but the marshal, with the bandit's revolver pressed against his body, backed across the street and dodged behind a tree. He exchanged shots with the men as they fled in their car, and followed them in his own car with his wife as chauffeur, as far as Beemer, where he lost the trail.

The men, both of whom live at Wypot, were arrested at Humphrey. Their car is said to have contained the identical articles which Marshal Nuttleman had seen when he investigated it at 3 a. m. Saturday.

When arrested each man carried a 38 calibre revolver. They are believed to be the same men who robbed a local filling station of eight gallons of gasoline. They will be brought to Cuming county for trial.

For the men were first seen by Marshal Hittner of Humphrey, they had broken a gas tank lock and had about a quart of gasoline. FIFTY-FIRST YEAR

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 14, 1932.

NUMBER FORTY

Former Resident Was Club Leader

Mrs. J. T. House of Virginia, Dies in New York City While Visiting.

The Montgomery, W. Va., News, Jan. 11, Florida Smith House, daughter of Jesse and Harriet Ogg Smith and wife of Mr. J. T. House, died suddenly of hemorrhage of the brain while visiting her daughter, Miss Mary Ryskind and her husband and baby granddaughter in New York City, Monday evening, Mrs. House had not been feeling well for some days and the family was somewhat worried but the end came unexpectedly.

Mr. and Mrs. House had gone to New York to be present at the opening performance of "Of Thee I Sing," a musical comedy, of which Mr. Ryskind and Paul Kaufman are the authors. Mrs. House attended the opening and greatly enjoyed it last Saturday night.

Mrs. House was born in Connelville, Pa., where the family had lived for many generations. They were of mixed German and Irish stock, prosperous farmers, industrious and honored wherever known. Mrs. House took the happy pride in mentioning that she was related to Henry Clay Frick.

On her mother's side she was related to the Galley family, the numerous relatives of which yearly hold a reunion at Connelville, last year the widow of Henry Clay Frick being among the number.

Mrs. House in her early girlhood showed a talent for music and being of a courageous disposition, attended Cincinnati College of Music where she studied for several years, after she had completed her college course at Waynesboro. She then went to Nebraska to teach piano in Franklin Academy where she met Mr. House. At the close of a very successful career as a teacher in the academy she went to the Nebraska Conservatory of Music in Lincoln, where Mr. House was an instructor in the university and they were married. Mrs. House continued her studies. A year or two later they went to Oklahoma where they jointly founded Kingfisher college, a pioneer institution. While there Mrs. House continued her work in piano and was matron in the boarding hall, took part in community service and always made herself felt as a force for good.

While in Oklahoma Mr. and Mrs. House lost two children in infancy and later Mary (Mrs. Ryskind) was born. During this time the business of the college occasionally called Mr. House east, his wife going with him. Under those conditions she was able to secure further training in piano at the Chicago College of Music and in the New England conservatory. At the close of the work in Oklahoma, while Mr. House was doing graduate work at the University of Chicago, Mrs. House continued as teacher and student of music.

For fifteen years the pair taught in the Teachers college at Wayne, Nebraska, moving to Montgomery in the fall of 1923. Immediately Mr. House besides gathering a class in piano, took active part in the work of the Woman's club, of which she was president at her death. The one who writes this feels that Mrs. House would like to have it known that she has had a very happy time in this community. Her joy in the club and in the friendships she has made and the little ones and the older ones she has taught has been constant and unfeigned. It seemed as if the return east was like a return home, and she understood and loved the people of Montgomery.

Mrs. House never ceased to grow mentally and in character. She had the joy of an unsplendid child in every thing that pleased her, and the seriousness and persistence of a gifted woman in the pursuit of knowledge of anything that interested her. And she had untiring industry in promotion of good causes. She took her work and her office in the club very seriously. Of late she has been much absorbed in the study of international conditions and the promotion of world peace, her interest having been much stimulated by a trip to Europe last summer. At the time of her death she had a paper on this subject in course of preparation. While she had much pleasure in her voyage and in visiting the various countries, she used to stop with a far away look in her eyes and ask: "Why should these simple minded people be compelled every so often to kill one another?" She felt in particular that women should be able to contribute to the cause of international peace and understanding, and that perhaps the next step was to be the education of women in this matter.

One of the last things she talked of just before leaving Montgomery for her trip to New York was the establishing of a play ground for Montgomery. One evening not long ago she went down near the river and pointed out the spot that she thought should be used for this purpose.

At the funeral held in the Woman's club house Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Burks spoke fittingly and very beautifully of music was rendered. The gift of flowers was numerous and beautiful and there was a considerable outpouring of people to the service. Besides Mr. House and Mrs. Ryskind there were present of the family Miss Katherine Smith, a sister, Mrs. Sarah Luce, a sister, and her husband and daughter, Jane Luce, all of Belle Vernon, Pa. Mrs. House's parents died some years ago. Another sister Mrs. Ella Brinker lives in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Wayne Team Wins University Game

College Basketball Players Take Contest In Lincoln Friday Evening.

Good team work enabled the Wayne Teachers College basketball team to win from the University of Nebraska B team at Lincoln Friday evening by a score of 47 to 37. The game was close at first but Floyd Alexander made several baskets which brought the local players lead to 22-20. Wayne led the half by 25 to 22.

Alexander scored 11 field goals and 3 free throws; Andrews made 3 field goals; Sexton made three field goals and 2 free throws; Sund made 2 field goals and Lindamood and K. Paul each made one field goal.

The Wayne team included the following players: Andrews, Alexander and Evans, forwards; Sexton, Baker, Sund and Lindamood, center; and Smith, K. Paul, G. Paul and Berry, guards.

Compare Cottonseed And Alfalfa Seed

Lincoln, Neb. - If a cattle feeder must buy either alfalfa hay or cottonseed cake to supplement corn, he can afford to pay about $25 a ton for hay compared with $8 a ton for cake. When cake is fed with corn and prairie hay, the cattle will do better if they get a little ground limestone, about a tenth of a pound a head daily.

This statement is based upon experimental work done at the Kansas experiment station. Similar tests are being conducted at the Nebraska experiment station.

Wherever feeders can buy Nebraska alfalfa hay, they will be helping local farmers by feeding hay instead of cake which is shipped in. Numerous tests at the Nebraska station have led those in charge to believe shelled corn and alfalfa hay is as good a fattening ration as any available to Nebraska farmers.

Find Sweet Clover Not Best Finisher

Sweet clover fed either as pasture or hay retards the finishing of cattle, in the opinion of Ed. Chase of Stanton. Mr. Chase recalls that 20 years ago sweet clover was introduced over the protest of some farmers who regarded it a weed. At that time Mr. Chase tested its feeding qualities giving one group of cattle corn and sweet clover pasture and another group corn and alfalfa hay. Gains were much the same but the cattle fed on corn and hay brought a better price on the market. Mr. Chase continues to raise sweet clover for fertilizer and plows it under in the fall after cutting the crop for hay. Mr. Chase fed some sweet clover last year as his other hay crops were short. He received $8 for his cattle when he shipped this month.

Tests Scheduled In Wayne County

Regular teachers' examinations will be given at the court house by Miss Pearl Sewell next Saturday. Eighth-grade examinations will be given for the first time in Wayne county in April.

Try Film Suit

Madison, Neb. - A suit brought in federal court by W. N. Youngclaus, owner of the Capitol theatre, Madison, against motion picture producers, is attracting much attention because of its far reaching consequences.

Youngclaus charges producers with conspiracy to control distribution of films in Iowa and Nebraska, that exhibitors in smaller towns are unable to obtain pictures, especially features, before they are shown in larger towns.

The suit is the outgrowth of protection and zoning in 1930 of areas where pictures are shown. Because of this protection, Youngclaus states he could not show films he had contracted for until they had exhibited in Norfolk, 13 miles from Madison.

The Allied Theatre Owners of Iowa and Nebraska, of which Youngclaus is a member, is raising funds for a "war chest" in prosecution of the suit.

That man who said we would never have another panic! It is possible that he was misunderstood. Maybe he said "picnic" Industrial Relations.

Dr. Julius Temple House Tells Of Experiences On Late European Trip

"Jottings" in the October number of Present-Day American Literature reveal some of the reactions of Dr. Julius Temple House, formerly of the State Teachers College here, to a European tour which he enjoyed recently. The "Jottings" begin, September 13, 1931: "At home with bundles of notes in great confusion. Let me say first that the trip was all that I dreamed and more. My most important advice is not to go 'tourist.' School ma'ams out for a wild time are a bit disgusting. . . . Then beware the guides. They are all ignorant and all liars, except one small boy who showed me through the English cemetery at Rome. I rang the bell and he appeared at the gate. Had he been an American boy, I should have judged him about seven years' old. He may have been ten. 'Shelley,' I said. Without a word he led me to the Shelley monument. Now I thought, he will fail me. But he did not. 'Keats,' I demanded. At once he conducted me through the little opening into the annex where I read the epitaph. 'Here lies one whose name was writ in water.' . . . (I wonder how many know that this line is the entire writing except for the statement that it was chosen by the poet himself as the result of conscientious criticism, and that the name of Keats is not on the monument.) I gathered some leaves of laurel from the grave, looked at the monument of Severn by the side of that of his friend, and motioned my guide to lead me back. He did. He spoke not one word nor held out his hand for a tip. The best guide of all.

A Guide in Paris.

"Our guide in Paris wearied us with discussion of the Arch de Triumphi, with its carvings of the names of Napoleon's 144 victories and 195 favorite generals (perhaps the figures were reversed), and at last I asked if he would tell us where Francois Villon lived. He knew not."

Guides in general seemed to irritate Dr. House on what he himself was pleased to call a "sentimental journey." He continues on the subject: ". . . the guide in Athens is an accomplished liar and he knows that I know it. . . . But the grove of olive trees was infinitely beautiful and the particular tree very old and I do hope that I have walked where this poetic philosopher (Plato) who denied the efficacy of poetry and refused place to the poet in his ideal state, actually taught the youth of Athens.

"As for guides in general avoid them, if you know what you wish to see and linger over. The taxi driver can take you to the spot. Still I do think that this liar should give me the remnants of the Long Walls where Socrates talked with Xenophon and others."

To Tell of Travel.

Dr. House expresses in the November number of Present-Day American Literature his sentiments concerning the difficulty of describing reactions to travel experiences. He says: "When we passed the Cathedral of Milan, I thought of the remark made many years ago by my boyhood friend concerning books of travel. It was that the writers seemed more anxious to assure the readers that they had seen certain sights than to give information about the sights. Thus, we saw the Cathedral of Milan. There were so many windows we could not count them. With that vivid warning as to how not to do it, I am attempting to relate my experiences in Greece and Italy and the waters thereof.

"I see it all as a part of human history, and I try to tell what each scene means to me in the great social progress that we have always with us. To the Italy means Rome as empire, the roads, the armies, the defeat of Carthage, the spread of her power and order over Gaul and England, the fall. . . . It means the rise of the Italian cities, with their great oligarchies, the all inclusive power of the Catholic church; the religious wars that sunk southern Europe into barbarism, worse than any pagan barbarism that ever was.

Italy also means Horace and of abandoning Nebraska's 1932 state fair was under the scrutiny of the state board of fair managers in session here today.

The board now faces a financial deficit of nearly $90,000 as the result of poor attendance and diminished receipts last fall. Efforts to underwrite the loss thus far have been futile.

Board members said they were considering three specific problems: whether the deficit can be financed; whether financial aid can be extended to meet expenses under another fair; and if prices of attractions can be reduced to meet circumstances.

Approximately $15,000 of the deficit has been met temporarily by the issuance of notes to farm bureaus for premiums.

Farmers Add To Yearly Averages

Profitable production and real gains are shown in many branches of farm industry despite the depression, a Washington, D. C. report reveals. Livestock prices are of course, much below par. Overproduction has taken down the price of cotton, but the production of corn, oats, barley and grain sorghums during the year just over was 14 per cent greater than it was in 1930. Winter wheat averaged 42 per cent greater, and a new tobacco production record was set, with the 1931 crop 22 per cent above the five year average.

There was more fruit produced in the United States during 1931, the crop averaging 10 per cent above the five year average and 17 per cent above the 1930 average.

And 24 per cent more milk cows were found on United States farms in 1931 than in 1930. Altogether, it would appear, farmers have been forging ahead and trying to make a stride in new activities, although conditions have not been of the most encouraging.

When They Go To School. A Nebraska boy, this spring competing a course at the state university, first showed a flair for figures when he was cultivating corn in his father's fields. He tells now of the long strings of figures which he used to make himself add mentally as he traversed the field, row by row, and of the complicated tricks he made figures play in his brain as he worked under the blazing prairie sun. His instructors comment on him now as a particularly excellent student, and remark (Continued From Page Six).

Dairymen Must Do General Farming

Lincoln, Neb.—The successful dairyman must be as good a crop producer as the dairyman, W. J. Besant, of the University of Illinois told the Nebraska State Dairyman's association.

It does a man no good to have good cows and know the proper feeds to give them unless he has an economical source of supply of these feeds, the Illinois man declared.

To many farmers, Fraser believes, get into the dairy business and then continue to grow about the same crops on their farms as the neighbors who grain farm. As much of the dairy cows' ration should be produced right on the place where she is owned as possible, is his theory.

Ben Hur Is New Spectacular Film

Made more vivid by sound synchronizations; with many of its spectacular scenes enhanced by color and accompanied by a beautiful musical score, "Ben-Hur," the most sensational picture in cinema history, makes a triumphant return at the Gay theatre where it will be shown Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, January 17, 18 and 19.

As a novel, General Lew Wallace's story had a circulation as large as that of the Bible; as a play, it ran for twenty-two seasons and is annually being revived in various parts of the world. The picturization cost $4,000,000, three years' time and the labors of 150,000 persons in Italy and California.

The insertion of sound gives the spectacular scenes even greater power and vividness. The shouts of the multitudes, noise of the racing chariots, clash of arms in the battle scenes and other sound effects add a breathtaking naturalness.

Home Tried Recipes

Making Of Tea Interests Cook

Long winter afternoons should be full of opportunities for the clever hostess to show hospitality to her friends. It is not necessary to make pretentious efforts to entertain, but the simple serving of light refreshments to the casual caller, or of a quickly prepared tea to a group of guests will mark the hostess for her graciousness and courtesy.

Tea may be prepared quickly, and most women enjoy a cup of it during the afternoon. With it you should be prepared to serve loaf and granulated sugar, lemon slices and crystallized ginger. If you wish to add variety to your service, purchase fruit drops (lemon drops and other flavors) and supply them to your guests. They add a delightful variety. Cream, of course, must make its appearance on the tea tray, too.

Cookies and cakes, thin sandwiches, candies and salted nuts are appropriate additions to the tea service. Nothing else is needed to make your light refreshments entirely delightful, for the tea is intended merely to mark a sociable between-meal occasion, and does not take the place of a regular meal.

Make Some Cookies.

You might try some of the recipes for cookies printed in this week's recipe column, stacking your larger with your favorites which would thus be on hand when guests arrive. The nut bread, for example, could be sliced very thinly and made into buttered sandwiches, the cookies and cakes arranged on a handsome platter, and tea would be ready to serve.

Fondant. Colored, flavored and decorated in a variety of ways, would be a welcome addition to the little meal, as would thinly-sliced fruit cake, which is still in season.

The preparation of tea, it seems, should be undertaken very carefully if the best sort of brew is to be produced. An authoritative set of directions recommends the use of one half to one teaspoon of tea to each pint of water, the amount of tea governing the strength of the infusion.

Say the directions: "Have ready two warm, dry earthenware pots, and place the tea leaves in one of them. Directly the water boils, pour it over the leaves, allow it to stand thereon from three to five minutes, and then decant the clear infusion into the second teapot." Complicated though this method sounds to the fastidious tea-maker, it is recommended as the best one to use if the tea is to be clear, flavorful, but not bitter.

Before You Buy It.

Tea has been prized by man for centuries. Even in early literature, there is mention of tea brought home by voyagers from their travels in far places.

As almost everyone knows, tea is made from the leaves of a shrub which grows chiefly in China, Japan, India and Ceylon. The plant thrives best in a tropical or subtropical latitude, for it requires a rainfall varying from 80 to 200 inches.

Seeds are planted and from them sprout the small tea shrubs which spend the first year or two of their lives in nursery hotbeds. When the plants have attained sufficient size, they are transplanted into the fields, where they begin to yield salable tea leaves at about the age of three years. Tea shrubs continue to bear profitably for a period of about half a century, the yield being stimulated by pruning.

Kinds of Tea.

The delicate young leaves of the tea shrub are most valued, and leaves larger than two and one half inches in length are almost never used. The grades of tea are determined partly by the size picked.

Pekoe, for instance, is the tea which is derived from the top bud and the two young leaves next below it on the twig. Flowery pekoe comes from the youngest leaf on the twig, and orange pekoe from the next, completing the pekoe classification. The souchow and congou teas come from the coarser leaves farther away from the tip of the tea twig.

The hyson teas are green teas, which means that they do not go through the fermentation process to which black teas are subjected. The several sittings produce, in order, the following teas: Young Hyson, Hyson number 2, gunpowder and dust teas.

Preparing the Leaves.

After the tea has been removed from the shrub on which it grows, the leaf material is subjected to a withering process which takes from 12 to 40 hours, depending upon the temperature and humidity of the atmosphere. When the leaves seem to be withered sufficiently, they are rolled and crushed. It is at this point that the making of green or black tea is determined. If the tea is to be black, it is subjected to a process of fermentation, at the end of which it is fired. If the tea is to be "green" it goes directly from the crushing to the firing.

Thoroughly dry and very brittle from the firing process, the tea is sifted and graded, before being packed and prepared for shipment. It is important to keep tea in tightly sealed containers in order to preserve the aromatic quality which seems to be a part of its flavor. Some of the fancy brands are prepared with jasmine flowers or other blossoms to give them a particularly delicate aroma. Such teas should be prepared with exquisite care and drunk without sugar, cream or other flavoring in order that the full flavor may be savored.

However you prefer to prepare your tea, however, make a hospitable adventure of drinking it. Invite your next-door neighbor in to share your cakes and tea, or serve tea to callers. There is something more to be gained by the act than the mere pouring of the beverage and passing of the dainties. The by-product is friendliness and good will, which is probably a great deal more important than the hospitality itself.

Franconia Pears To Grace Dinner

For Sunday dinner, you might try the following combination of lamb with Franconia pears and potatoes. It should intrigue the interest of even the most bored diner.

Roast lamb as usual in a very hot oven, searing for the first half hour and allowing 15 minutes to each pound thereafter, and an extra 15 to 20 minutes to insure that the roast will be cooked thoroughly. About 45 minutes before the roast should be done, put in the potatoes.

Prepare them by parboiling for 10 minutes, drain and place in the pan with the meat, allowing them to brown. Baste them occasionally to give them a glaze.

About 15 minutes before the roast is done, drain a can of pears, and place the fruit around the roast. Fill the core hole in the pear with currant jelly and allow the fruit to brown, basting as the potatoes are basted.

Serve on a large hot platter, the meat in the center and the Franconia pears and potatoes arranged in alternate order around the edge of the dish. This dish is easy for the host to serve when you are having guests.

West Point Case In Supreme Court

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 9.—Argument was had before the supreme court Thursday on the appeal of the mayor and council of West Point from a court finding that they were not entitled to recover $1,287 attorney fees they claimed to have expended in successfully resisting an effort on the part of J. T. Baumann and Otto H. Zacek to stop them from buying equipment for the city fighting plant. Baumann and Zacek have a bond for $2,000 in the injunction suit they brought and recovery was sought on this surety, the court holding the injunction ought not to have been granted. The defendants say it was necessary to employ an outside attorney, as the city had an attorney under pay, and that the action was against them as officers and not individuals, so that they did not need to hire their own attorneys.

Relief Comes First.

Sioux City Journal: In Washington President Hoover is seen as a chief executive who puts economic relief legislation ahead of everything else, including his own political career. In a campaign year this is somewhat remarkable. Few members of congress ever rise to the occasion in this way. Their greatest trouble is that they go too far in the other direction.

Mr. Hoover has told his closest friends in Washington and republican leaders throughout the country to postpone all preparations looking to the capture of delegates to the convention as state presidential primaries are held. He also has let it be known that he considers everything secondary to the relief program that administration hopes to put through congress in an effort to strengthen the credit and financial structure of the country and thus revive business activity.

This, of course, is the proper attitude for any president to take. It is the proper attitude for any man in public office, for it means service to the people first and political activity in one's own behalf afterward. The interests of the American people are always paramount. Too often public officials do not so consider them.

Mr. Hoover has taken this stand in the face of what prominent leaders in Washington declare is the strongest anti-renomination talk heard since 1912 when President Taft sought a second term. Mr. Coolidge continues to be mentioned as a candidate who might be dated to make the race. There is also talk of Gen. Dawes, ambassador to Great Britain. The general is said to have exploded just one word when the news of this reached him in Paris, "bunk!" Then there is the Senator Johnson candidacy which the Californian is trying to keep alive as best he can. And on top of all this is a suggestion that Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, might be thrust into the race in some way.

The likelihood, however, of an anti-Hoover movement in the republican party gaining any noticeable momentum is doubted. The republican party might not win with the incumbent making the race, but it might not do a bit better with someone else, and it faces a danger in abandoning Mr. Hoover at such a time. It is not believed that anti-Hooverism throughout the country, which admittedly is strong, is a personal feeling so much as it is a turning against the party in power when things are not going right. It would be the same if the democrats had elected Al Smith in 1928.

The Farm Future.

Lincoln Journal: It was evident from discussions at the recent meetings of organized agriculture that crop limitation for the purpose of controlling prices is not popular. While much was heard along this line, much of the discussion led to economic relief thru better farming, producing crops at less expense, and finding more profits thru producing what the market most demands.

This, indeed, is a hopeful sign. It is true that wheat growing has been carried to a point where world consumption has been less than world production. Limitation of production thru market conditions or other edict, seems to be favored. In other words the farmer will be guided by market trends and not by orders from co-operatives or government suggestion.

The observations of years tend to confirm faith in such a course. The successful farmers have kept posted on crop conditions the world around, have made their own forecasts. They have builded their fortunes on careful management, the exercise of good judgment in what to grow and an understanding of market conditions which has guided them in placing on sale what they grow.

Nevertheless much good has come from agitation of the question of wheat acreage and markets. The wheat growers have been forced to consider the situation with care, to discover the cause of low prices and to disabuse the minds of the thoughtless who would place responsibility for fair prices on the political administration now in power.

The farmer who reasoned well has always held that his relief would come thru wiser management and better farming, rather than thru political machinations. He has listened to the silver tongued vote hunter; he has heard the pledges of the candidate for office who promised prosperity in a trade for votes, but for the most part he has considered such promises on the basis of their real worth. The successful farmer will continue to do so.

on his earnest approach to the work. There is something in his make-up that was acquired, however, in the cornfield, not the classroom!

A youngster employed on a construction gang working in Kansas during the heat of last summer was discovered to be a university junior carrying his pay to help himself through school. He took the experience as a valuable stroke in life. And he admits that he read almost entirely through a large collection of Shakespeare in his spare time, most of which came late at night.

Because she was interested in social service and investigation, and because she needed to earn even her summer's lodging and food, another university girl went to Chicago a few years ago and spent her summer living in rather poor quarters and trimming hats for a wholesale concern. She earned her living, and rejoiced in her opportunities for observing the conditions of city working girls. Later she found she was fitted for an excellent position in labor law investigation, a post which she continues to fill with greater understanding than most.

The hardships of getting an education, thus seem to add to the richness of the learning which is gained. And the pioneering spirit is not dead among Nebraska young persons!
