

HOARDED MONEY MUST GO BACK INTO CIRCULATION

It's SAFE To Come Out NOW!

It took no less a power than Uncle Sam to break the vicious circle that was threatening America with serious harm. BUT THAT VICIOUS CIRCLE IS BROKEN AT LAST—IT'S SMASHED! And the whole country is drawing a deep, thankful breath.

When times grew tight we all got frightened—just plain scared! Trade was poor, jobs insecure. And so lots of us just tucked our savings away in an old sock and held on! It was the worst thing we could possibly have done. For buying fell off—banks grew more skittish about credit—jobs became even scarcer. But we kept on tramping around the circle like a blind horse—just tiring ourselves out.

Many fine local efforts were started to put things right. "Buy Now" movements—"Spend Normally" drives. Remember them? Of course they did little good. We thought the ship was sinking. We were going to play safe. We all agreed that the way to end depression was for EVERYONE to release hoarded cash at once. But who was to take the lead? That was another story.

So Uncle Sam finally had to take a hand. He agreed first to back the banks. And credit is easier already—for all of us. Best of all, he set a time for that long-awaited simultaneous country-wide spending and investing of hoarded money. THAT TIME IS HERE—IT IS TODAY! From Maine to California, folks are beginning to "loosen up." Common sense tells us, as the sensitive stock market barometer tells us, that the storm has passed. It's safe for your dollars to come out into the sunshine again. IT'S SAFE FOR YOU TO JOIN THE PARADE OF SENSIBLE SPENDERS WHO ARE AT LAST BUYING THE MANY, MANY THINGS THEY'VE BEEN NEEDING SO LONG.

Theory Of Buying To End Depression Proves Correct
That there is truth in the theory of buying to end the depression was evidenced by the result of a cooperative movement between Gamble Stores and their manufacturers during the last few weeks.

and Middle West. Gamble Stores placed orders for merchandise during a time which was conceded to be one of the most slack seasons of the year in the manufacturing industry. With the hearty cooperation of these manufacturers, Gamble Stores placed orders during this slack season for 55 carloads of merchandise.

Coats That Are New This Season: Stress The Practical In Apparel

GARMENTS WITH MILITARY THEME ARE FOUND AMONG SMARTEST FAVORED DETACHABLE COLLAR IS MUCH IN VOGUE.

INTS of spring are here, there, and everywhere. In spring coats the spirit of this gay season, is captured and expressed in new exciting lines, fabrics and colors.

The trend for broad shoulders is a natural outcome of the winter's fashion for bulk-above-the-waist. Padded shoulders and epaulettes add a youthful note of interest.

Waist Lines Are Higher. Waist lines have been creeping up on us and have now adapted themselves to the simple natural lines of the new mode.

The skirts of coats are cut straight from the waist line with a wide wrap-around to give the necessary width when in motion.

Fullness at some point is still a feature of sleeve interest but in a modified form. Width is usually concentrated between the elbow and the wrist.

Buttons are big and business like. They play a very important part in the fashion picture but their first duty is to fasten the coat to stay in place.

Detachable and adjustable, trimming is good news. While the general silhouette is fairly uniform we can express our individuality by means of changeable scarfs of fur or fabric.

Coat fabrics this spring have an eye to sudden showers. We will all be thankful for rough surfaced woollens which are so easy to care for, and do not spot as readily as the fabrics of smoother finish.

Military Made in Sport Coats. The sport coat is the most adaptable medium for the military

Promoted To Major In Military Service

Captain R. G. Hunter of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hunter of Wayne, has received his promotion to major in the regular army dating from January 1, 1932.

About 20 years ago, before the Mexican border trouble, J. M. Pile formed a home militia and it was at that time that Mr. Hunter, then only 16 years of age, became interested in a military career.

Mr. Hunter, who is 36 now, is interested in the militia and has advanced steadily in his years of service.

Right Hip Broken In Fall On Stairs

Miss Myra Joseph who makes her home here with her niece, Mrs. R. E. Smith, fell Thursday evening and sustained a broken right hip.

Frank D. Joseph of Chicago, arrived Saturday to see his sister, Miss Joseph, and to visit Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

We'd be glad to get behind our constructive thinkers in this crisis, as a highbrow magazine suggests, if we were sure we could either control our feet or else be certain to come up before a sympathetic judge.

Here's a sure-fire recipe to please the lady of the house... when you are out of town call her by long distance... and the same principle holds when wives are away and husbands stay at home... and another idea... have extension telephones in your home so that you can take these calls right where you are... no running up or down stairs or through several rooms to telephone.

Long distance costs little... only 60 cents between 4:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m., to talk three minutes over a distance of 100 miles, when you will talk with anyone available at the telephone called... and an extension telephone costs only a few cents a day.

Spring Luncheon Attracts Guests

Yellow and Green Colors In Scheme For Meal Before Bridge.

Easter is coming, and all good hostesses will enjoy planning an Easter luncheon to close the last season. The affair should be made as springlike as possible, with yellow tulips on the tables, and rabbit for favors, and lime green and lemon yellow mints to chuck during the card games.

Begin the meal with the avocado cocktail and cheese straws. Directions for preparing them occur in this week's column.

Serve developed chicken in individual casseroles, hot buttered rolls, and a large plate of assorted relishes. Include spring radishes, celery hearts, olives of several kinds, green, light, pimento stuffed, and the kind that are filled with tiny pearl onions or with almonds. The chicken should be fixed with a rich cream sauce, choice pieces of chicken and a garnish of pea peas, drained and added to the mixture before baking. Make your asseroles large enough to make a real meal, and serve enough relishes to take the place of a salad.

Sprinkle Desserts.

When it is time to serve dessert, bring in the yellow parfait mentioned on this page, and serve with it either a rich gold cake, wafers, or the yellow cookies, for which you will find the recipe in his Herald.

Top the parfait with whipped cream and chopped green cherries. Place the glass on a lace paper doily on the small dessert plate, and lay the cake or wafers on the doily.

Serve coffee with the meal or afterwards, as you and your guests prefer. Find your glyest yellow and green linens, your most springlike china, and serve your meal in leisurely fashion. Cards should follow, with appropriate prizes for the spring season.

Vegetable Casserole.

4 tablespoons lemon juice
4 tablespoons dry bread crumbs
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 egg, well-beaten

Soak the raisins in warm water for an hour. Drain and grind, mixing the rest of the ingredients in the order named. Make pie crust, and roll out thin. Cut in three inch squares. Place one teaspoon of the mixture on half of a square of pie crust, folding the other half of the square over and pressing the edges together with a fork. Bake slowly until a light brown. Dates may be ground in with the raisins if desired, and a few nutmeats are a delectable addition.

Fried Sandwiches with Ground Ham.

Moisten ground ham with sweet cream and spread between buttered slices of bread, making sandwichwiches. Make a mixture of beaten eggs and half a cup of milk, dipping the sandwichwiches into the mixture and frying them as you would prepare French toast. Brown the sandwichwiches on both sides in butter and serve hot.

Early Days In Wayne County

(Taken from the Herald files for March 11, 1915)

Rather pre-war is this account from the Wayne Herald of 1915: "Miss Marjorie Selleck who is conducting the work in German during the absence of Miss Kingsbury, gave at chapel Tuesday morning a very interesting account of the experience at Stockholm on the day that war was declared. Her entire party, of which her father, Hon. W. A. Selleck of Lincoln, was a member, were ignorant of the state of international relations, and saw the mobilization of Swedish troops and their review by the king and royal family before they learned of the upheaval in Europe. For three weeks thereafter they were in Sweden, waiting for an opportunity to return to America."

Fattened Many Fish This Year In State

Lincoln, Neb., Nebraska is catching hundreds of thousands of fish this spring. Last year fall too easy victims to the angler when the season opens.

The state game and fish commission had 175,000 bullheads transported in February by railway car and motor truck from the western and central state lakes.

They will be fed 30 days on bread and beef to become fat and wily. In years past, transplanted fish have developed such healthy appetites during transfers, that they would bite almost at a bare hook. Several thousand bullheads dumped at one time in a lake here were gone after a few days of fishing.

Will Buy Fire Siren.

Thirston, Neb. The Thurston fire department, at its regular monthly meeting, voted in favor of purchasing a siren to be used as a fire alarm in place of the old bell alarm, which has been in use for years. The siren also will be used as a curfew.

heaviest in years, one of the worst floods in the history of this section is predicted by rivermen when the spring thaw comes. The 14-inch snowfall of last week on top of the heaviest precipitation ever recorded in February (since 1889) will produce such a large volume of water that the rivers and small streams cannot carry it away, rivermen say. The Floyd river now is carrying a large amount of surplus water, while the stage of the Missouri is higher than it has been for some time.

Plighting Winside.

The March 18, 1886 Wayne Herald-Tribune stated that the plighting of the new town of Winside, and the sale of lots had been postponed. The site had not been located definitely at that time.

From the Ponca Journal, March 29, 1883: "Several bloody fights took place in town Saturday night, in which revolvers, brass knuckles and sandaloes were displayed and flourished. These latter accommodations were not, however, much used. If they had been, funerals instead of fights would now have to be recorded. Such disgraceful proceedings are not exactly the thing to have in a town. Ponca needs a good town marshal, who will see that law and order are maintained."

Talking for a Living.

How to make talking pay seems to be demonstrated in the following paragraph from the Winside notes in the Wayne Herald for March 11, 1915: "J. A. McDonald, an old newspaper man, reached Winside Wednesday afternoon. He tells us he is talking his way around the world, but is followed by Douglas Robson, an elocutionist and singer, who is walking his way around the world for a purse of $10,000, subscribed by the business men of Vancouver, under the condition that Mr. Robson should walk and should live entirely by his art, and should be back in Vancouver by Christmas day, 1916." He started with the intention of getting west by traveling east, but on account of the war, was given permission to route back through the United States to San Francisco, then to Australia, New Zealand, India, South Africa, British Isles and Canada. He had already covered 3,900 miles and tonight will tell us of his travels."

Avocado Cocktail.

Cut an avocado in half lengthwise, removing the seed and peeling the halves. Arrange pieces of avocado, grapefruit and orange in sherbet glasses, and sprinkle with a few drops of lemon juice. Serve cold with salted wafers or the cheese straws suggested in this week's recipe column.

Cheese Straws.

Make your favorite pie crust and roll out, not too thin. Sprinkle half of the crust with grated cheese. Fold the other half of the crust over the cheese, repeating the process several times. Roll out and cut into strips. Bake slowly until brown.

Pineapple Ice Box Dessert.

1 can crushed pineapple
1-2 pound vanilla wafers
4 teaspoons butter
1-2 cup sugar
1-2 cup nutmeats

Melt butter, add sugar, drained pineapple and chopped nutmeats. Crush the cookies, and place a layer of them in the bottom of a mold. Cover with the pineapple mixture and crumbs in alternate layers, and chill in the ice box until set. Garnish with whipped cream and serve.

Depression Is Cause of Much of Ill Feeling

(By Vivienne L. Becker)

Our country during the past two years has been in one of the severest economic distresses that the world has ever known, and the sooner this is fully realized and every line of business and the necessary adjustments made to meet present day conditions, just that much quicker we will get back to normal times. Each man or woman who dwells in our midst has a definite fixed duty to perform, not only for himself or herself, but to humanity as a whole. Let us find out just what is expected of us and perform that duty. We can at least make the attempt to liquidate this debt to society by a conscientious effort.

Landscapes Can Be Made Where You Will Plant

Spring is a good time to begin landscaping your lawn if you own the lot and are capable with the spade and hoe. Plantings around the base of the house will soften the outlines of a new house, and conceal the imperfections of an older building. In any case, a few bushes will add beauty to house and lawn.

"Around the foundation of the house should go some 'bridal wreath' the most common member of the spirea family. The white flowers which appear on these bushes about Decoration Day make a charming addition to the spring lawn scene. The Anthony Water spirea, another member of the same flower family, has little clusters of crimson flowers which appear between seasons. These bushes should intersperse the white spirea, creating contrast. For early flowering in the foundation beds, Forsythia is recommended.

In front of the taller shrubs, and where lower bushes are desired, plant 'hills of snow,' the hydrangea arborescens of the technical gardener. Hardy, prolific with flowers, the hills of snow should be watered well, pruned occasionally, and enjoyed greatly.

And Some Blue Spruce.

On each side of the walk, well to the center of the square of lawn which you should have, set a healthy little Colorado blue spruce. Expensive though they are, blue spruce trees are permanently gorgeous additions to your lawn scenery.

In clumps between house and street, along the walk, set Japanese barberry and more hydrangeas. The approach to the house will be softened by the shrubbery, and the area of grass to be cut will be decreased somewhat.

How To Plant Them.

How to plant trees so they will grow is a matter which anyone can master, although the growing does depend a good deal on weather conditions over which the planter has no control. Broken or bruised branches should be cut away before the tree is planted, and the roots should be placed in water until the ground is ready to receive it.

Dig a large hole, breaking up the subsoil in order to give the roots plenty of room. The roots should be spread out well and covered with earth. When about two-thirds of the dirt has been placed over the roots, pack well, leaving the top soil loose. If any fertilizer is used, it should be placed on top of the ground. Some water may be used in settling earth around the roots.

Good trees for lawn planting include the green ash, so common to middle western real estate developments, mountain ash, notable for its shining orange berries in autumn, basswood, full of scented flowers in midsummer, and cut-leaved weeping birch. White birch is lovely and many people like the white blossoming catalpas, American and Chinese elms and hackberry trees, hard maples, soft maples, red-leaved maples, Russian mulberries, and the poplars are all well-known for their planting possibilities.

Depression Is Cause of Much of Ill Feeling

Every president, from General Washington, to Herbert Hoover, has been subjected to thoughtless, malicious, venomous, and deadly attacks. And in the past it has been deadly to the sorrow of the American people. The great Lincoln was murdered as a result of disgraceful and unwarranted attacks on his character and integrity. It was a sustained attack which inflamed the minds of poor unbalanced men and women who plotted to destroy President Lincoln to satisfy the yelping cry of the human wolves, and it made his life a nightmare of horror.

President Garfield was also a martyr to this brotherhood of the poison pen and venomous tongue which dog the lives of all great leaders.

President McKinley, one of the kindest souls ever on earth, was ruthlessly shot down by an assassin who represented the type of God-forsaken wretches who snipe and bite at the man or men who are earnestly and sincerely trying to help them.

Colonel Roosevelt fell with a bullet in his breast at the hands of a propaganda-maddened murderer who believed he was accomplishing a great deed for humanity—a condition of mind brought about by the merciless criticism of Colonel Roosevelt's political enemies.

And now comes President Hoover, to be blamed for the treasury deficiency, the farm bill, the tariff, foreign loans, money squandered on war preparations, for the over supply of agricultural commodities (as exists in every country of the world) and for everything that appears wrong except the drought and grasshopper plague, and maybe some of his political enemies hold him for these.

Is Carrying a Real Load.

The man in the White House is a human being. He eats, sleeps, visits with his family and plays with his grandchildren just like any other American citizen, but he is carrying a real load, working as his other recent president worked.

Surrounded by enemies, political jealousies, foreign sympathizers, an antagonistic Congress and the usual thankless following, Mr. Hoover, just as all other presidents, needs the moral support, good wishes and loyalty of the American citizenship.

President Hoover has, at all times, kept his eyes and ears upon the needs of the American people. In this connection I might say he has on different occasions called in and consulted with the very best brains of our country and, at all times, done all in his power to promote and restore normal conditions. One of the outstanding measures offered by President Hoover is the Hoover Reconstruction Finance Corporation which provides for an initial capital of $500,000,000 out of the federal treasury and the issuance of $1,500,000,000 bonds in addition guaranteed by the federal treasury making a total of $2,000,000,000.00.

Those eligible for loans from this vast sum are agricultural and livestock credit corporations, railroads, exporters, banks, savings banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, federal and joint stock land banks, and mortgage loan companies. Closed banks are also eligible if assets are adequate to permit the restoration of solvency. Direct loans to farmers by the department of agriculture are also made possible out of $50,000,000 appropriation added to the bill in a senate "rider." Loans are payable in three years with extension privileges. The bill to increase the capitalization of the federal land banks has been amended to make the total sum $125,000,000.00. This bill is for the purpose of helping agriculture and business and to bring about normal times.

Will Be Counted Great.

Former Vice President Dawes says the following about President Hoover: "He has made a record in presidential initiative and constructive accomplishment unparalleled in the economic history of this nation or any other and has done this without faltering and without discouragement. President Hoover's name will go down in history as one of the greatest statesmen that ever sat in the presidential chair."

President Hoover has, at all times, kept his eyes and ears upon the needs of the American people. In this connection I might say he has on different occasions called in and consulted with the very best brains of our country and, at all times, done all in his power to promote and restore normal conditions. One of the outstanding measures offered by President Hoover is the Hoover Reconstruction Finance Corporation which provides for an initial capital of $500,000,000 out of the federal treasury and the issuance of $1,500,000,000 bonds in addition guaranteed by the federal treasury making a total of $2,000,000,000.00.

Those eligible for loans from this vast sum are agricultural and livestock credit corporations, railroads, exporters, banks, savings banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, federal and joint stock land banks, and mortgage loan companies. Closed banks are also eligible if assets are adequate to permit the restoration of solvency. Direct loans to farmers by the department of agriculture are also made possible out of $50,000,000 appropriation added to the bill in a senate "rider." Loans are payable in three years with extension privileges. The bill to increase the capitalization of the federal land banks has been amended to make the total sum $125,000,000.00. This bill is for the purpose of helping agriculture and business and to bring about normal times.

Will Be Counted Great.

Former Vice President Dawes says the following about President Hoover: "He has made a record in presidential initiative and constructive accomplishment unparalleled in the economic history of this nation or any other and has done this without faltering and without discouragement. President Hoover's name will go down in history as one of the greatest statesmen that ever sat in the presidential chair."

Depression Is Cause of Much of Ill Feeling

Our country during the past two years has been in one of the severest economic distresses that the world has ever known, and the sooner this is fully realized and every line of business and the necessary adjustments made to meet present day conditions, just that much quicker we will get back to normal times. Each man or woman who dwells in our midst has a definite fixed duty to perform, not only for himself or herself, but to humanity as a whole. Let us find out just what is expected of us and perform that duty. We can at least make the attempt to liquidate this debt to society by a conscientious effort.

Every president, from General Washington, to Herbert Hoover, has been subjected to thoughtless, malicious, venomous, and deadly attacks. And in the past it has been deadly to the sorrow of the American people. The great Lincoln was murdered as a result of disgraceful and unwarranted attacks on his character and integrity. It was a sustained attack which inflamed the minds of poor unbalanced men and women who plotted to destroy President Lincoln to satisfy the yelping cry of the human wolves, and it made his life a nightmare of horror.

President Garfield was also a martyr to this brotherhood of the poison pen and venomous tongue which dog the lives of all great leaders.

President McKinley, one of the kindest souls ever on earth, was ruthlessly shot down by an assassin who represented the type of God-forsaken wretches who snipe and bite at the man or men who are earnestly and sincerely trying to help them.

Colonel Roosevelt fell with a bullet in his breast at the hands of a propaganda-maddened murderer who believed he was accomplishing a great deed for humanity—a condition of mind brought about by the merciless criticism of Colonel Roosevelt's political enemies.

And now comes President Hoover, to be blamed for the treasury deficiency, the farm bill, the tariff, foreign loans, money squandered on war preparations, for the over supply of agricultural commodities (as exists in every country of the world) and for everything that appears wrong except the drought and grasshopper plague, and maybe some of his political enemies hold him for these.

The man in the White House is a human being. He eats, sleeps, visits with his family and plays with his grandchildren just like any other American citizen, but he is carrying a real load, working as his other recent president worked.

Surrounded by enemies, political jealousies, foreign sympathizers, an antagonistic Congress and the usual thankless following, Mr. Hoover, just as all other presidents, needs the moral support, good wishes and loyalty of the American citizenship.

PRAYER. Rev. W. A. Mansur, pastor of the Methodist church in Winside, delivered the following prayer at Sunday morning service. It is a prayer for the recovery of the Lindbergh son, kidnaped from the home of his parents at Hopewell, N. J., Tuesday night of last week.

"Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, we pray at this time for Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh in their great sorrow because of the kidnaping of their infant son. We pray for them especially not because they are superior or more privileged than any other parents. We pray for them especially because this family has become somewhat of a symbol of the American home. Also because we have learned to think of them as representatives of that finer type of love and marriage. We implore Thee, Our Heavenly Father, for these troubled parents because they represent in our minds and hearts toward every American family feels toward its children and their welfare.

"Gracious God, we petition Thee for the protection and safe return of the Lindbergh child to his father and mother. If it be Thy will, we beseech Thee to put it into the hearts of the kidnapers that they may be kind to the child and return it safe to his home. Thou art all-wise and knowest all things, we pray that if it be in accordance with Thy wisdom that Thou wilt return this child to his parents.

"We join our prayers with our fellow countrymen, Protestant, Catholic and Jew, Mohammedan, Hindu and all others that Thou wilt hear us today. We would send our sympathy, our love, and help to the troubled parents. We feel with those who are so troubled at this time, we would put ourselves in their place and realize the pangs of anxiety, of heartache, and hope for the welfare of our child. May this experience lead us to appreciate the blessings of home and children. May it bind us as Americans people one to another. May it move us to think more of our homes, our neighbors, and our country.

"May Thy holy angels protect the Lindbergh child, and bring him home to his parents. May 'Thy will be done.' In Thy Holy name, we pray. Amen."

Attorney Harry E. Siman gave his address on George Washington at the Sunday morning service. In our humble judgment, Attorney Siman's address is the best we have heard or read on Washington in such an address. In naming the epochal events in Washington's life the speaker so held the attention of the listeners that they forgot the passing of time. Our layman speaker has a pleasing personality, an enthusiastic delivery, a convincing method, and a way of taking his audience along with him. He aroused our pride in Washington's character, showed how his influence has been part of our country's progress, and challenged us to perpetuate our nation by emulation of the noble character of Washington; his integrity, justice, truth, patriotism, and statesmanship.

Tariff Not Retaliation. Omaha Journal-Stockman: A favorite complaint of those who do not approve of protective tariffs is that foreign nations have raised their duties on imports in retaliation against America. These tariffs are also blamed for the falling off in this country's exports as well as imports. It seems, however, that other nations insist that there is no retaliation in their tariffs but that economic conditions throughout the world have been responsible for the imposition of higher duties.

Undoubtedly our tariffs have never been popular in Europe or in other countries with exportable surplus products but retaliation can hardly be seen the motivating principle in recent radical revisions of foreign duty schedules in fact, as the Nebraska State Journal points out, Great Britain did not, until recently, adopt the tariff system, and our trade with her fell off in the same proportion as it did with other countries.

The main factor was the economic depression world-wide in character. Which means that our export business fell off for the same reason that our sales at home decreased, a lack of money to keep on buying as had been true during prosperous times. Our foreign trade was stimulated over a period of years by the heavy loans made by our international bankers to the business men of the various nations as well as to the nations themselves. When we quit loaning money freely the foreigner had to quit buying freely.

Conditions that have prevailed especially in matters of government finance in other countries required that tariffs be revised upward. When we consider the need for increasing government revenues and thus protecting governmental solvency and the need for maintaining currency standards, it is quite clear that the correction of adverse trade balances, the one easy way in which to make progress, was to raise tariff barriers.

It is very easy to say that our tariff has been the cause of all our economic troubles but the fact that other nations have been and still are experiencing the same depressed conditions would tend to disprove this as would also the fact that in imposing higher duties in other countries there has been no evidence of a disposition to discriminate particularly against the United States.

The tariff problem is no longer a party problem: it is an economic question that is coming more and more to be considered entirely apart from party politics and the sooner it is entirely divorced from partisan consideration the better it will be for the country.

John Claycomb Has Right Eye Burned. When John Claycomb, while working in laboratory at the college Friday, combined solutions which vaporized and escaped from a test tube, his right eye and the right side of his face were burned. It is thought the sight will not be injured, though it is impossible to determine this definitely as yet. First aid was administered at school and the youth was taken to a doctor. Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Claycomb took their son to Omaha that day and he is being cared for in a hospital there. Mr. Claycomb came home Saturday and Mrs. Claycomb returned Sunday.

Needle Work And Flowers Delight

Flowers, pieced quilts and pretty pillows are things that especially interest L. Leindecker of Wayne, and one of the chief reasons he likes them is that his late wife loved them so much. During Mrs. Leindecker's invalid years, when Mr. Leindecker so tenderly cared for her every want, he also pieced quilts and raised plants which delighted her. Mr. Leindecker is lonesome without his companion but he finds some comfort in continuing to do the things that pleased her. Mrs. C. T. Ingham once advised Mr. Leindecker "not to sit still and grow stiff," and he feels that keeping busy does make him feel better. Mr. Leindecker has two quilts which he recently pieced and quilted and many women would be delighted if they could do as fine work. He has just finished putting new silk on a pillow for which Mrs. C. F. Whitney gave Mrs. Leindecker crocheting years ago.

Country Cannot Be Better Than Financial Responsibility, or Solvency, of the Business Establishment country cannot be better than the financial responsibility, or solvency, of the business establishment that employs him. We are living and working under a capitalist system. Students who consider such a system wholly wrong surely must recognize the fact that it cannot be changed overnight to solve a problem of unemployment, if a majority of the American people finally determines that the system is wrong and must be changed, the adjustment necessary will take decades. Mr. Thomas ought to know that.

The reconstruction legislation put through congress is meant to strengthen the corporations, the banks and other business enterprises, not merely in the interest of capital but in behalf of the great mass of workers. Common sense would permit anyone to realize that if business establishments all over the country were allowed to go to pieces, the whole economic plan would collapse, affecting everybody, the rich, the poor, the employed, the idle. Let Mr. Thomas call it class government and class legislation if he likes. He cannot logically contend that there was anything else that could have been done. The Hoover administration and congress simply have undertaken to meet an emergency, and they sensibly have recognized that it was imperative to deal with the situation as it is. We are still a long way from Utopia.

Class Rule.

Shoux City Journal: Norman Thomas, of New York, prominent socialist and director of the League of Industrial Democracy, has assailed the efforts of the Hoover administration and congress to solve present economic problems. He insists the legislation for relief and reconstruction is "classical proof of the class nature of our government, of economic interest so shortsighted that it even gives us bad economic unnecessarily from its own standpoint."

Mr. Thomas declared "Hoover's own measures won't work unless there is direct help to the workers." He also insisted that the government, "which wants to give oxygen to the banks and railroads, ought to give food to the unemployed by means of work, and, when necessary, by direct aid."

It is true that the reconstruction legislation has been directed toward business enterprises rather than toward individuals in the mass who either must work for a living or subsist upon aid from an outside source. Until the condition is carefully examined, it may appear that this is class legislation, class government, etc. But when the situation is understood, one recognizes the fact that, under the present economic system, the movement for relief has taken the right direction.

Former Student Speaks In City

Dr. Herman E. Siems of Chicago, graduate of the Wayne Teachers College, addressed the Sioux City Chamber of Commerce Thursday. Dr. Siems, who is with Swift and Co., urged creation of garden clubs as a means of preserving natural beauty.

A garden is not merely a thing of beauty, Dr. Siems stated, it influences thinking and feelings of children. Young folks develop a love for companionship of nature and they learn much about growing things when they have opportunity to grow up with flowers and other plants.

Dr. Siems gave several suggestions for growing a fine lawn. He said the lawn should be watered frequently. The lawn should be fed regularly with a good plant food. In order to maintain a thick turf and provide a good growth of roots, satisfactory top growth of grass also must be maintained.

"In grass cultivation, it is imperative that a goodly amount of potash be mixed with the seed. Do not cut the grass shorter than one and a half inches. The blades of grass absorb food substance from the air and too short a turf may result in the grass disappearing. Don't sprinkle your lawn. Soak it well so that the water reaches the roots."

Moisture Causes Collapse In Pit Ground this spring contains a fine supply of moisture. Simon Lessman, northeast of Wayne, believes, for this is the first time the opening to his clay pit has collapsed. On the Lessman farm is a funnel-shaped pit of clay which is radio-active. Tree roots and other life in this soil cannot live, and moisture crumbles the ground. Mr. Lessman had a shaft about 26 inches wide in the ground, this reaching one edge of the pit. He will be obliged to make another opening now that the moisture has caused the one to cave in. Mr. Lessman has found that clay from the pit has curative properties and many have used it for healing.

The slogan, "Keep Your Money at Home," seems to apply to just a few of us. Not long ago a farmer went to a nearby town taking some good produce to trade for groceries. He went to his usual trading place and was told that they had quit buying produce and he should take it elsewhere, but please come back here to trade. Do you think he'd come back? Another farmer took some good home-grown seed to a dealer to sell for him but was informed that he usually got his supply from a salesman or big seed house miles away. Why should not these farmers follow suit of the business man?
