RADIO PROGRAMS AND PERSONALITIES

GRACE ELLIS, who directs the morning program of the General Electric Company's Circle, which is believed to be the largest women's club of the air, is a composite of American womanhood. Not only in her own life and cultural interests, but even in appearance she is the typical American woman.

LANNY ROSS is that rare specimen, a star who became a star without benefit of publicity. Three years ago he was a student in the law at Yale—now he is so popular his sponsors have increased his CBS broadcasts to three a week.

Once was better known for his speed than his singing. In Yale he was the main-stay of the track team; held several scholastic championships and for two years was national 300-yard dash champion. His prized possession is a wrist-watch.

After an absence of almost a year, Norman Brokenshire is again heard over WABC. During the past year, "Broke" has been making a series of movie shorts. He is now heard six nights a week as Master-of-Norman Brokenshire Ceremonies on one of the Columbia Broadcasting programs, and is the playboy of "Society's Playboy Hour," heard Wednesday nights.

Democrats Sanguine CONFLICT between Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Governor Alfred E. Smith in the national political arena is sharpened by reason of the feeling of assurance on the part of democrats that they will win the presidency this year.

In every period of depression the party in power has been unseated. Even though an administration is in no way responsible for conditions that have developed and does its utmost for readjustment and recovery, people, buffeted by ill winds, turn to any proposed change for relief.

Considering the tariff, the republicans yielded to one extreme, and if democratic leaders were to follow old-time weakness, they would yield to the other.

If the democrats win and if then the world is able to shape its course more serenely and prosperously, they might be permitted to stick to the saddle, and, without fundamental reason, they might be able to inspire more confidence in their leadership than they have been able to inspire since before the Civil war.

Severe Lesson PEOPLE don't like clouds, but they must have them to have rain. And how wonderfully refreshing is the sunshine when the clouds have disappeared, leaving moist and mellow ground!

We were traveling at a dangerous pace. Money came and went easily. The rule of the least effort for the most pay weakened the human fiber and put the dollar above the soul.

No one thought he needed the discipline of the late period. Anyone would have prevented it if it had been in his power to do so.

Working IDLE and working dollars are much discussed these days, and the Omaha Journal-Stockman explains the difference in this way:

"A dollar in a savings fund is the most simple form of investment and is a typical dollar work. Any dollar that earns something for its owner is a working dollar. And every dollar that earns for its owner is creating capital, credit, business or employment for others."

invested during the period of inflation are worth a hundred cents on the dollar today and are still working and earning. And many dollars hoarded during a period of deflation will be lost to the hoarders forever through fire and theft."

Blasted Hopes THE agony of the search for the Lindbergh baby continues, and every reported contact with the kidnapers has turned out to be a blasted hope. New contacts have been reported in prospect, but no sooner does the light of promise flash than it goes out.

Prof. O. R. Martin, chairman of the department of business organization and management in the college of business administration, University of Nebraska, referring to problems in modern merchandising, points to wise buying, an understanding of customer demands, rapid stock turnover, prompt collections and persistent advertising as imperative in meeting decreased volume and decreased prices.

Friday is Arbor day, and it marks the sixtieth anniversary of the state's adoption of the holiday, conceived in the mind of a Nebraska pioneer, J. Sterling Morton. Many other states have followed Nebraska's lead in setting apart a day for tree planting.

William Ritchie, jr., congratulates his successful rival, Governor Bryan, but does not say he will support him in the coming election. Acknowledging the congratulations, Mr. Bryan, though noting lack of effusiveness—lack of assurance of support—expressed confidence that his pre-primary opponent would swing into line for him, and help restore him to the executive throne.

The primary is all right in theory, but it is full of faults in practice. Through the system it is possible to gain an intelligent expression on questions submitted under the referendum law, but it is impossible to vote intelligently on all candidates.

All local business men seem to agree that cooperation is important in the furtherance of public activities, but there are so many different opinions that they would have to have a clearing house of ideas to decide what to do first and how to proceed.

Rain this week was not heavy enough to write home about, but it made a good start, and if it comes in weekly installments until September 1, we will raise crops that will solve all feed problems hereabouts.

W. J. Burns. Des Moines Register: William J. Burns, founder of one of the world's most widely known organizations for detection of crime, survived his chief American rival, Allan Pinkerton, only a little more than a year.

Crime detection as a business is by no means an American development. Scotland Yard, and the secret services in continental Europe, are often romanticized in fiction, but their actual operations are usually far from spectacular.

The brilliant genius who seizes unerringly upon the single clue that unravels the mystery makes a good story, but it is the relentless hounding of organizations whose representatives are everywhere that is the dread of professional crooks.

Human Nature Dr. A. L. Bixby: "Does Human Nature Change?" was the question discussed at the last meeting of the Laymen's club, Charles Q. DeFrance giving the paper, and leaning rather strongly to the idea that it does, and also that it doesn't.

Campaign For Orphanage Is Started Omaha, Neb., April 18—To provide funds for the housing, feeding and clothing of 176 orphan children and nameless infants, who comprise the present population of St. James Orphanage of the Omaha diocese, a general campaign will be sponsored in the 140 Catholic parishes and missions of the 23 counties of northeastern Nebraska, comprising the Omaha diocese, during the week of April 24th to May 1st, designated as Catholic Orphans' Week.

The campaign, which replaces the annual parish solicitation by the director of the Orphanage personally, will be under the direction of the Bishop's Committee of the Laity, organized two years ago in every parish of the diocese. In each parish the pastor and officers of the parish Committee of the Laity will direct plans for the general solicitation, which is to provide for the care of the children, ranging in age from tiny babes to children of primary school age.

Bishop Joseph F. Rummel has issued a pastoral letter, which has gone into every Catholic home in the diocese, urging men and women of all ages to contribute to the present campaign. "We are greatly concerned about the necessity of finding a more reliable method of raising the funds necessary to support St. James Orphanage, which is about to enter a new era in its history," Bishop Rummel said in his letter.

St. James Orphanage is a huge family, a home, a school, an infirmary, a veritable city set apart. You must picture it as a family of 176 children of varying ages, racial and national backgrounds, temperaments and constitutions. From all over the diocese come children, who have been deprived by death of the kindly ministrations of father and mother. All must be housed, clothed, fed, protected against disease and, when sick, nursed back to health. Their moral and spiritual formation must be studiously fostered. No family requires greater care; indeed children in larger groups are more susceptible to disorder and disease than in the average family. Likewise is the expense greater, because most of the service must be hired.

This immense family and home are ours to care for, water over and support. It is part of our religion, as borne out by Holy Scripture, to be solicitous about the widow and orphan. Jesus taught us to love little children by his example on earth. It is the will and love of the Father and of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, manifested in the Gospels, that has inspired the sense of responsibility, generosity and personal sacrifice, which our devoted Catholic people have at all times affectionately bestowed upon motherless, fatherless and homeless children. St. James Orphanage has sprung up, grown and developed out of this inspiration. To the glory of the Omaha diocese, its clergy, religious and laity, for sixty years have sponsored progressively this ministry of mercy and charity.

Hamstringing the Farm Board. Nebraska Farmer: However farmers may feel about the Agricultural Marketing Act (the Farm Board), they are prompt to resent the numerous efforts that are being made to hamstring the Board before the law has had a chance. # Student Government Is Studied By Public School Pupils' Council Here

How to govern themselves is being learned by Wayne public school people who have a Student Council organization. The body met Tuesday afternoon to deliberate on names of men to whom the basketball letter should be awarded. The awards were made to the following players: Melvin Brown, Robert Cunningham, James Davies, Kenneth Dowling, William Mellor, Robert Ross, Dean Hughes and Franklin Victor. Plans were made for further student participation in their own government, and its principles were outlined.

The music department is trying a contest method of learning syllabic reading. Captains have been chosen for each grade in the contest as follows: Sixth grade, Betty Blair, Fred Gildersleeve; fifth, Margaret Stadley and Richard Gildersleeve; fourth, Mary Catherine Cavanaugh and Lytle Seymour; third, Wilma Heidenreich and Fred Advers; second, Leah Jean Chauwee, and Paul Peterson.

Friday's art exhibit and tea with a talk by Mrs. Maybelle Thompson-Mason of Norfolk met with a great deal of praise from people of the community as well as school folk who were in attendance. The show was well attended, with about 85 paid admissions counted.

Mrs. Thompson-Mason gave an interesting discussion of pictures, concentrating on some of the modern prints, and showing how color and its vibrant use are more important to this type of picture than is form. "Impression," Mrs. Thompson-Mason said, "is everything to some of the modern artists."

Following her formal discussion of prints which were hung in the kindergarten and first grade rooms, the speaker mingled with the guests and answered their questions about different pictures. Tea was served by members of the grade school teaching staff at the close of the afternoon.

Attendance is better. Good attendance in the grades marks the close of the middle six weeks of the last semester. Miss Maude Curley gave out the following lists of pupils who have been neither absent nor tardy during the period: Seventh grade, Eva Livingstonhouse, Dolores McNatt, Robert Merchant, Frances Sydow, Marie Thies, John Thompson, Gerald Wright, Hazel Capshaw, Devene Rabe; sixth, Roberta Baker, Betty Helen Ellis, Russell Fox, Fred Gildersleeve, Orville Graham, Dorothy Liedtke, Franklin Simonin, Donald Sundt, Lloyd Surber, Frances Baker, Harold Barnett, Maxine Barrett, Marjorie Ellis, Elwayne Fleetwood, Ida Gildersleeve, Marjorie Lerner and Carroll Peterson.

In the first grade, Jacqueline Haas, Delbert Jensen and Robert Ebbing were pupils whose attendance was perfect last six weeks. Billy Blaine, former first grade pupil, left the first of the week for his new home at Chadron. The first grade enjoyed a birthday party last week when Dorothy Jean Casper celebrated her seventh birthday. She treated members of the class to candy bars.

Kindergarten folk had a birthday party Monday for Carolynn McClure, who was five years old, on Saturday. She served cake, candy and Dixies to mark the occasion. Marcella Brugger has been absent from the kindergarten the

Business Men Talk Over Conditions Leading To Local Improvement

(By William Holmes)
Wanted: Ideas on business production.
The fact that business is a little bit off color isn't a matter of conjecture or sporadic discussion any more. It's an accepted truth. The solution for the problem of how to stimulate sluggish business is one that still lies buried. But this solution may come as the consequence of some specific act or it may be the result of an evolutionary process that advances in slow stages. In any case, after it is all over and we look back, the solution will seem to have been the natural, logical thing to have done.

It will be like the experience of the young Arkansas mountaineer who had been raised in overalls. He had formed the habit of folding his hands under the bib of his denims when he was not doing something with them. The minute his hands were empty they unconsciously slipped in under the bib of his overalls and were out of the way. But he was drafted into the army one day and an itchy, tight-fitting uniform replaced his overalls. It was almost ludicrous to see him try to manage his hands. They embarrassed him. He couldn't figure out what to do with them. Finally, after a week's distraction, he did the natural thing and put his hands in his pockets. His problem was solved.

The cure for business ills won't be as simple as the procedure followed by the Arkansas boys but Wayne business men are thinking seriously about it and many of them have some good ideas that will all help to alleviate the distress of trying times.

Special Wayne merchants' days were advocated by Russell Larson in a brief talk Wednesday morning. This merchant believes that general Wayne days held at not too frequent intervals would in a large measure familiarize people of the outlying territory with the excellent facilities to be found here. These special days, similar to those planned by merchants in larger places, would require careful planning, Mr. Larson admitted, but would, he thinks, bring pleasing dividends in good will and extra business.

Elmer Gailey advanced a most unique idea. Years ago when he was in the produce business in Elgin it used to be the custom every spring to hold a "Rooster Day." This day follows or comes shortly after the breeding season. The plan has been tried out at Norfolk, according to Mr. Gailey, and has proved a business stimulator that was beneficial to both merchants and farmers. "It culls out the roosters from the flocks and makes the eggs better," pointed out Mr. Gailey. The plan is to set a day on which every one who (Continued on Page 6 Section 2)

Art Exhibition And Tea; Gardening Activities Mark Springtime In This City.

FIFTY-SECOND YEAR

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, APRIL 21, 1932.

NUMBER TWO

left you. They are probably buried in the clouds you crushed under your feet, or vanished with the evening wind.

Wayne has had another art exhibit, conducted this time along lines which made picture-seeing more comfortable than it is usually.

AT Apex, where the snow piled itself into train-resisting drifts only a few weeks ago, the hillslopes are covered now with furry little lavender flowers which the children call crocuses.

There are no merit of honor marks for you if you didn't make an attempt to vote intelligently in the primaries last week.

How do you like the fancy "Your order, please" with which the switchboard operators in city hotels greet you when you want to telephone?

Devoites of golf there are in numbers. Persons who like to play bridge are legion. Every form of entertainment has its followers, but the simplest, most inexpensive and most beneficial form of exercise has few friends in this community.

Representatives of the Agricultural college will visit the fields sown with this seed and certify whatever seed is produced, providing it meets the standards of the Nebraska Crop Growers association.

Comparative Tests. Lincoln, Neb. Farmers in 25 counties in Nebraska will co-operate with their county farm bureaus and the Agricultural college in running comparative variety tests of spring grains this year.

Ten different kinds of barley, nine varieties of oats and four of spring wheat are included in the 27 tests in the 25 counties.

The retired capitalist who is advising industry to "dig in" seems to have overlooked the fact that the hole it's in now is plenty big enough.

Observer Shows How To Improve

Changes Must Be Brought About Gradually Thinks Experienced Ones.

"Hard work, economy, and paying up debts," says C. A. Chace, "will do more than anything else in clearing up present conditions."

Recalls Other Years. When Mr. Chace was a very young man in Missouri the famous depression of 1873 came along.

There had been a war, he explained, "Following the war, prices went down." And, explaining that statement, Mr. Chace added that the same thing has happened at this time.

Optimistic was the note on which Mr. Chace closed his discussion. He noted that, when times seem the blackest, the people in this territory still have the vast resources of land, farm stock and other agricultural assets.

Of conditions in the nineties, Mr. Chace said much the same things. There were serious mistakes made by manufacturers and agriculturalists of that day as of this one, and the same mistakes will be made again.

YOUNG MUSICIANS ENTERTAIN GUESTS

Delightfully assembled were the solo and ensemble numbers which were presented by piano pupils of Mrs. Albert G. Carlson who gave a recital at the college music room Friday afternoon.

On the program were the following numbers: Solos by Buster Ellis, "Box of Tin Soldiers," "In Gay Colors," "Indian War Dance," "The Horns of Eiland," "The Cabin Dance," "On the River" and "On to Victory."

Arthur Gulliver played these solos: "The Cotton Pickers," "Uncle Zeb with His Fiddle," "The Broomstick Parade," "The Fire Drill," "The Court Ball," "Jolly Dandies," and "Hickory Sticks."

Arthur and Buster played several duets to complete the presentation. Their duet numbers were "March of the Animals," "The Lion," and "Bicycle Galop."

To Present Pupils In Concert Friday

Mrs. Albert G. Carlson will present four of her pupils in a recital Friday afternoon, April 22, at 4:15 in the college music room on the third floor of the administration building.

While the enrollment reported to this office is slightly less than 30 per cent of the goal, we feel sure county extension agents have enough more members not yet reported to boost the total above 9,500, or half the 1932 goal of 19 thousand projects in the state, he added.

Evergreen Trees Popular In County

Growing of evergreens is especially popular on farms south of Wakefield. Farmers find the trees are a wonderful shelter and they are also most beautiful.

Hanson has a grove of 65 evergreens which he planted some years ago when the trees were two and three feet tall. They are now tall grown and are attractive.

Club Enrollment Is Good In State

Omaha World Herald: Nebraska's 4-H club enrollment has passed the half-way mark, L. I. Frisbie, state club leader, believes, he said, at the state offices of the extension service, agricultural college, Lincoln.

The total so far reported to Frisbie's office is 8,639 members in the boys and girls projects. He estimates the present figure to be close to that of a year ago. The first check of enrollment was made last year on May 22. Thirteen thousand projects had been reported at that time. Applications are coming in now at the rate of a thousand a week, Frisbie said.

Winter Clubs Increase

The first accurate check of enrollment will be made June 30, when all county agents and leaders are asked to turn in records. At that time enrollments can be compared with previous years.

Winter club enrollment this year gained 12 per cent over a year ago, the state leader says. He explained that the clubs starting after state fair and ending any time before the first part of April are called winter clubs. These projects include hot lunch, clothing, cooking, girls' room, keep well, and rope clubs for the most part, although a few other projects may be undertaken.

Swine Clubs Popular

Swine clubs, which include both the sow and litter and the pig club undertakings, seem to be more popular than might be supposed after the drop in hog prices last fall. Enrollment stood at 1,090 on April 11, compared with 2,128 for all last year. The boys can get into

Room Burns When Cookstove Explodes

An early fire alarm Monday morning called the volunteers to the O. J. Olsen house on west First street, where a gasoline stove had exploded, L. R. Hurlbert, who lives in the house, escaped through the second story window of the room in which the stove spread flames. Firemen extinguished the blaze, which damaged the room considerably. Insurance covers the loss.

Time for Dairying

Omaha Journal-Stockman: Nebraska 4-H dairy clubbers are soon to receive a shipment of calves from a neighboring state. That such animals need be obtained from a distance indicates that Nebraska is not as strong a dairy state as it might be or such calves would be available at home.

Burned In Fire

St. Edward, Neb., April 14—Bernard McNurlin, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leigh McNurlin, Boone, was burned in a gasoline explosion Wednesday evening. He had entered a frame garage with a can of gasoline, then struck a match. The garage was destroyed.

The World's Easiest-Running Cream Separator

The McCORMICK-DEERING Ball-Bearing Cream Separator

Every high speed point has high-grade ball bearings. ONLY the McCormick-Deering is so equipped. It takes much of the work out of the morning-and-evening separating. No wonder it makes a hit with every man and woman who sees and turns it. And that's only the start. The McCormick-Deering has many other points of improvement. It is setting new records in clean skimming. It is easy to wash, and it is self-oiling. Come in and see something really modern in separators. We are demonstrating every day. Six sizes — hand, belted, and electric — for one cow or a hundred.

It's the combination of high-grade ball bearings and positive, automatic lubrication, that makes the McCormick-Deering so easy to turn. A gleaming, japanned finish and a special disk-removing rod makes it easy to keep the McCormick-Deering clean and fresh. To appreciate these features, you must see them!

Suffers a Stroke.

Newcastle, Neb.—Thomas J. Ryan, about 80 years of age, suffered a stroke on the streets of Newcastle. He was taken into the bank and a physician was summoned. He later was removed to his farm home, five miles north of Newcastle near the Missouri river, by the physician and friends.

Mr. Ryan had driven his car to town, unaccompanied.

Fear Leads to More Fear.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: Our present period of depression began in fear and this fear has steadily increased until it seems to permeate our entire national life. The dread of the many so that the country may be said to be suffering from a psychology of fear. The remedy? Perhaps it is suggested in the ancient fable:

"Once there was a man who was chased by a dog. He ran, and ran, and so did the dog. Finally, too tired to go farther, he stopped. To his surprise, the dog stopped also. They looked at each other for a moment, a great light gradually dawning in the man's mind. He took a step toward the dog. The dog retreated. Another step. Another retreat. After a brief rest, that man took after that dog and chased him all the way back to where they had started from the dog, covering the whole distance, his tail between his legs."

Depressions and men are a good deal like that dog and that man. Fear in the first place may have been entirely justified but it has grown and grown until it now is out of all proportion to the original cause. Not until this is fully realized and the folly of keeping it up is appreciated will the prevailing popular cowardice give place to courage and confidence.

Appreciation.

We are sincerely grateful for your expression of sympathy and your acts of kindness. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Parry and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Williams and family, Mrs. Elizabeth Williams and family, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Davis and family, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn G. Williams and family.

Business Men Talk Over Conditions Leading To Local Improvement

brings a roster in to any store is allowed a dollar in trade. Each customer of course, is permitted to bring in any number of roosters. Then the chickens are all turned over to some produce man who sells them. In this way, special discounts are gained by consumers and each merchant gets a fairly good return from the sale of the roosters. The psychological effect of such a special day is a good stimulus to business. Mr. Galley thinks and will bring to town great numbers of people who will get acquainted with the particular advantages that Wayne has in serving its trading territory. The value is thus apportioned to both merchants and farmers.

E. W. McNatt believes that concerted publicity is one of the best ways to expand the trading territory of Wayne. "I believe more co-operation on advertising would pay," he said. This, in his estimation, would help everyone. His plan assumed more the aspects of a special day. At regular intervals merchants should go together and advertise special values on groups of items for the one day. This will act to bring large crowds to Wayne. Admittedly the drawing card will be the special values but Mr. McNatt thinks that not only will serve to bring a good many people to town but will create a more friendly feeling between Wayne and those living in the surrounding territory. His plan, like Mr. Galley's, he believes will also be of mutual benefit to both merchants and those who come in to trade.

H. B. Craven said, "If we could put on a stock sale like they put on in Norfolk it would help." This of course means the building of suitable facilities for the handling of the cattle that are shipped in for the sale and would also entail some very thorough planning but would be of considerable value to the city. The surrounding country is given over almost entirely to stock feeding and any plan that tends to help the basic industry merits some attention.

Working together toward some common end was named as an important influence in community life by C. W. Brown when he discussed possible improvements for Wayne. The object toward which Wayne people could work profitable he stated, is the building of a community hall which could house activities meant for the enjoyment of the entire public. Cooperation in the construction of an auditorium as useful and as attractive as the one at Holdrege, cited Mr. Brown, would draw the people together in the common bond of one interest. With such a spirit of helpfulness and such an excellent end toward which to work, the people of the town would feel an immense benefit, he thinks.

James Ahern repeated a sentiment expressed last week by Martin L. Ringer. "I do not believe in these special days," Mr. Ahern declared. "Everything just flares up and then dies down," he went on. "What we need is something that will operate all the time and not just on special days." In order to work out a definite plan of business promotion and then carry it through to completion requires the sole attention of someone qualified to handle such a thing and who is paid for his work, Mr. Ahern believes. The medium through which this can be best done is a well organized, permanent commercial club devoted entirely to the business interests of Wayne. The special advantage of such an idea is of course its permanence. Here is a concrete plan that will be functioning all the time. Spasmodic flare-ups will never do any really lasting good, Mr. Ahern thinks. It must be done by keeping continually at it and with the wholehearted cooperation of everyone in town.

W. A. Hiscok substantiated James Ahern's statement that the most beneficial promotion idea would be a commercial club operating under a paid secretary. "I don't know whether it would be possible to organize such a club now or not," he said, "but I believe that it would do more than anything else in the way of business promotion."

Don Cunningham was definite in his opinion that a stock sale system would be a wonderful help. "I think it is the best thing that could be done," he stated. "The reason is, that this is the biggest stock feeding area in Nebraska and although the number of cattle and hogs being fed this year will fall well below the normal average, yet stock feeding is the biggest industry around here." Here again, it may be pointed out that anything that will help the basic industry is automatically going to result beneficially to everyone. Farmers would be able to buy stock cheaper and this would mean increased profits to them.

With all the various plans advanced, some being concurred on and some meeting the approval of but one or two business men the question rises, "What good will it do to think on such things if no movement is able to get sufficient support behind it to carry it out? Thinking must precede constructive action. Plans to better a town will not flash through a city like a will-o'-the-wisp, alighting here and there. They come as the result of definite planning and united action. Business promotion while coming from within the business organizations of a city are not selfish in their inception or in their result. The business man wants to increase his activities in order that the service that he may give to his community will be more complete and more beneficial.

A town with modern, well stocked stores is more valuable to the people in it and the people around it than is an unprogressive community where only the slenderest of stocks are carried and at disadvantageous prices. Efficiency lies on the side of well patronized, completely stocked stores and of course the better the store the better the service. How much more beneficial to a potential consumer to know that he can go to Wayne and buy anything that he may want at a price that is fair and as economical as the one he would have to pay if he made a much longer trip to a much bigger town!

Business promotion is a double-barreled proposition. If it helps anyone, it will help everyone. With the multiplicity of ideas that are advanced there should be one that would work out to the advantage of Wayne and the people living in Wayne's trade area. Most attention seems to be centered either on a stock sale or on the formation of a club devoted primarily and solely to business interests. Perhaps the solution to the problem will lie along those lines.

Lloyd George's Appeal. Sioux City Journal: In a book just published, The Truth About Reparations and War Debts, David Lloyd George, war time prime minister of Great Britain, makes an appeal to the United States to cancel Europe's obligations and save the world. He asserts that world economic ruin only may be averted by immediate and complete cancellation of the war debts, a downward revision in tariff rates and enforced disarmament.

Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, recently appointed to the court of St. James by President Hoover, was all but drawn and quartered by Mr. Lloyd George. The little Welshman called him "hard and ruthless." He also described the debt settlement reached by Mr. Mellon and Prime Minister Baldwin some years ago as "a negotiation between a weasel and its quarry."

Mr. Lloyd George is certain that the present world slump is directly due to debts and reparations. He figures that the world depression is costing the United States every year three times the total of the debts and 80 times the annuities of one year. He declares the attitude of the United States toward the debt question is the chief stumbling block in the way of a solution of the problem confronting the world. The war time minister made this statement: "America holds the key to the gateway which leads to prosperity for herself as well as the world. Britain has already surrendered her keys. The Hoover moratorium was a forward step toward that gateway, but it stopped short of a final opening of the road. It delayed the threatened crash in central Europe but it has not averted it. No one knows what will happen when the moratorium lapses. The uncertainty paralyzes enterprise. Industry and finance are afraid of moving forward, lest they should be overwhelmed by the crazy edifice when its temporary props are withdrawn."

No doubt a good deal of what

Mr. Lloyd George says is the result of straight thinking. Everybody surely recognizes by this time the fact that the whole world is now suffering from the after effects of the great war. The debts and reparations are holding the world back. There cannot be the right kind of progress so long as these burdens hang as dead weights about the necks of millions. If the debts were canceled and reparations were wiped out once and for all time, there would be a brighter prospect ahead.

Mr. Lloyd George apparently does not sense what the general belief is in the United States with reference to the moratorium of last year and payment of the debts. There has been nothing to indicate that the situation has changed. An extension of the moratorium and a continuance of the process of wearing out the debts through non-payment are indicated. Meanwhile what about disarmament? Should not Europe act in good faith by expecting concessions in billions of American dollars?

Chemistry Is Aid. Omaha Journal-Stockman—During the present generation chemistry has rendered valuable assistance to every important industry and of late this science has been coming to the aid of agriculture in many remarkable ways. Only a few days ago a dispatch from New Orleans carried the news that the making of high grade gasoline instead of salad oil out of cottonseed is chemistry's latest addition to the list of potential motor fuel sources.

The process for converting cottonseed oil into anti-knock gasoline was described to the American Chemical Society recently by Dr. Gustav Egloff of Chicago. The present cost of 35 to 40 cents a gallon is too high to make cottonseed gasoline a competitor with established commercial products in this country.

In the first place the cottonseed oil is run through a metal coil at a temperature of 900 degrees Fahrenheit and a pressure of 150 pounds per square inch. This breaks down and rearranges the atoms forming oil, so that the oil yields a regular Pandor's box of unexpected products.

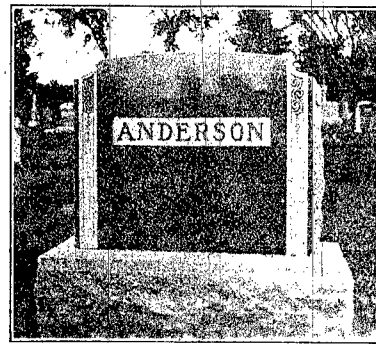

First comes a little more than 50 per cent of gasoline. Next emerges a heavy fuel for Diesel engines. After that is coke for the furnace. Then there are 13 different gases, some of them commercially valuable. Last of all comes water—which is all that is left of the original cottonseed oil. This water is the only waste product. Furthermore, Dr. Egloff said, a good alcohol can be obtained from certain of the cottonseed vapors. Likewise a widely sold variety of anti-freeze mixture for automobile radiators. And adding a little sodium produces a rubber-like substance.

The influence of this new discovery may be revolutionary in results. As a potential source for gasoline its possibilities are boundless while cotton growers see in it an opportunity to enhance the value of their, at present, much depressed product.

We attribute the wet preponderance of the Digest poll to the general feeling that whatever is oughtn't to be.—Weston (Ore.) Leader.
