HANDICAP SPURS YOUNG MAN HERE TO MOUNT GRADE

The story of the success of Howard James, cripple since he was 7 years old, is the story of many individuals who have had to overcome severe handicaps in making one goal after another. Young James did not have the advantage of a silver spoon. He did not look for an easy berth.

Wayne Speakers Place In Contests

Several Will Enter Sioux City Match For Best In U. S. High Schools.

Additions to speak the words "tripping on the tongue" have evidently been taken seriously by Wayne high school declaimants who have been winning quite consistently in recent contests. The last competition of the season will be held at Sioux City May 16, when the national forensics league meet is scheduled.

Saturday, high school folk went to Omaha to try for speech honors. Charlene Brown won second with her reading "Twin Miniatures," and Stanley Davis took second with an original oration. In extempore, William Studley placed third.

CITY COUNCILMEN TAKE UP REPORTS ON OLD BUSINESS

Loss From Fires Last Year Indicates Hazard Was Not Very Large.

REORGANIZE NEXT WEEK

Closing up old business of the year, members of the city council sat in regular session at the city hall Tuesday evening. At the next meeting, Tuesday evening, May 3, Mayor W. M. Orr, office holder for a dozen years, will officially give over the gavel to Martin L. Ringer, newly elected to the mayorship.

Fire loss did not seem frequent last year, but there were 22 alarms which created a total fire loss of $9,688 for the city of Wayne. Three of last year's fires were on farms in the vicinity.

Although the loss was fairly small, the amount of property endangered by fire was large enough to implant the idea that fire prevention activities cannot be too thorough. Buildings touched by fire were valued at $47,000, and their contents at $32,700.

FARM OPERATIONS ARE STIMULATED FOLLOWING RAINS

MORE than an inch of moisture soaked into the ground during the past week, and now followed by warm sunshine, corn planting will be satisfactory and promising. Rain fell generally over the area devastated by drought last year. Driest parts of Wayne county have been watered and mellowed to a great depth, and there is every assurance at this time of normal if not extraordinary crops.

DISTRICT JUDGE TELLS OF COURT HISTORY IN U. S.

Clinton Chase Describes Federal Court Reforms To Kiwanis Club.

PHYSICIAN TO BE SPEAKER

How courts and law were developed and what types of courts are now in use were discussed in some detail Monday noon by Judge Clinton Chase who consented to address the Kiwanis club as members lunched together at Hotel Stratton. Judge Chase's address included a consideration of the various types of federal court in which the troubles of American citizens may be adjusted.

Federal district courts, and the supreme court, Judge Chase pointed out, are familiar to most Americans. What most people do not realize is that the United States has several rather obscure and little heard-of courts in the federal chain. Among these are the customs claims court and others, necessary to the handling of justice, but seldom mentioned.

Tells of Differences. Judge Chase mentioned the fact that the United States has three separate and distinct sets of courts, unrelated to each other, and not overlapping in their jurisdiction. They are the federal courts, the state courts, and the municipal courts.

According to the law, no one can be tried twice in the same court for the same offense, but there is nothing to prevent the trial of a citizen in three kinds of courts if the offense will warrant it. This fault in our legal system makes the trial of cases very inconvenient at times, the judge showed.

Senator Norris is even now presenting before Congress a bill which he hopes will pass and eliminate the carrying before federal courts of cases between the citizens of the different states. This change would help, Senator Norris believes, to simplify the trial of many cases.

Dr. Bentback To Talk. Dr. Walter Bentback will speak at next Monday's Kiwanis club luncheon. The topic assigned to him is "Civilization and Medicine."

Offer No Cure RIVAL candidates for the democratic presidential nomination find fault with conditions, but they do not explain how things could be improved by changing leaders or by adopting a new set of policies. They point out market and trade weaknesses, the need of favorable consideration for every group and condition, but they don't offer any reasonable panaceas excepting their own personal ambitions.

Everybody knows conditions are tough and knows something ought to be done, but so far no administration opponent has proposed anything curative or constructive. They know no leader or party possesses the magic to cure a world-wide disease brought on by the war and aggravated by the crazy aftermath, but they find ground for complaint, deal in glittering generalities and hope to discredit the man at the helm and upset the party which elected him, and they may succeed unless conditions undergo very material change for the better.

When Governor Roosevelt shouted that purchasing power must be restored, his rival, Al. Smith, shouted back to learn how it could be done. Truth is, neither one knows, and no one can restore purchasing power to any one group without readjustments that will restore purchasing power to all groups. This knitting together of the economic fabric is a slow and delicate process, and it cannot be done by frantic gestures or by a lot of vocal hot air.

School Costs THE Omaha Journal-Stockman thinks school taxes may be materially trimmed by cutting out branches and curtailing activities that are not essential. Says the Journal-Stockman in part:

"Our public school system has become top heavy with unessential courses of instruction, fads and frills that were introduced into the system not at the behest of school officials or patrons but at the instigation of those interested in teaching these particular branches or by the insistence of firms with text books or school equipment to sell."

"School taxes in town and country have become unbearable by reason of these unnecessary courses and the taxpayers must have relief. Farms and homes are being lost because of excessive taxation and the country demands economy in school matters. Cutting out the expensive frills and fads and concentrating more on the essential branches will both improve the schools and lighten the burden of taxation."

"The question is not as to the desirability of these extra courses of study. It is simply of paring the cost of our schools to the ability of patrons to pay. Every one must economize and if our splendid public school system is to survive it must be divested of a lot of useless and expensive fads that have been foisted upon it by interested parties."

Editor's Defense THE editor of the Ottawa, Kas., Herald upholds the policy of community newspapers as contrasted with that of metropolitan journals in this way:

"Occasionally some well meaning reader drops in to take the responsible editor of this rag of freedom to task for filling the paper with items about Joe Dokes giving his barn a new coat of red paint, or the bridge parties that Mrs. Oscar Smith gives with a complete list of her guests. 'You shouldn't,' say such critics, 'do that.' The New York Times, they assure us, doesn't. 'It's small town stuff,' they said. And so it is. But as Speaker Garner or Reconstructionist Dawes would say, what the hell. This is a small town newspaper, and far from being ashamed of it, we're proud of it. It there's an unrecorded coat of barn paint, it's not because it's too trivial and undignified to mention, but because somehow the enterprising reporters haven't found out about it."

Coxey's Plan IN a pinch society can always depend on fellows like "General" Coxey to come to the front with a plan to get rid of economic disorder. The "general" was the main attraction at the convention of a third party in Omaha this week. It will be remembered that Coxey led an army of unemployed to Washington during the unpleasantness in 1894, and did not pass out of sight until the free silver campaign ended in the election of President McKinley in 1896. Coxey wants the government to quit paying interest and issue enough billions in currency to wipe out obligations and set every idle man to work on public improvements. How credit would justify wholesale distribution of currency is more than anyone besides the "general" could figure out. The same line of reasoning would make everybody a recipient and no one responsible; everything coming in, and nothing going out.

The annual report of Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, shows that while advertising revenues of American newspapers have fallen off, circulations have been fully maintained. Mention is made of the fact that newspapers are needed more by people during periods of depression than during times of prosperity. "To dig themselves out of depression," says the report, "people must think, and they cannot think unless they are reliably informed." The fact that people are sticking to their newspapers and are turning to advantage both news and advertising columns, gives proof of the sound and determined judgment of our society.

Inventive genius which has produced labor-saving machines and which shares in responsibility for the struggle incident to readjustment is given credit by the Omaha-Journal Stockman for the spread of information by way of the telephone, telegraph, radio and newspapers, and by thus facilitating understanding, keeping down fear and preventing violence. "If these mechanical devices prove to have conquered doubt and fear in the minds of people to the extent of preventing malicious destruction of life and property during periods such as the present," says the Journal-Stockman, "they will have served a great purpose and will have helped much in solving public problems."

Metropolitan centers are reported worse off than rural communities, and thus city families are looking more and more to the country for support. More of them are leaving skyscraper districts in the hope of opportunity in less congested fields. The cost of living is greater in the big city, and when earnings shrink or flatten entirely, the procession of rent collectors and other sources of exaltitude and distress continues relentlessly. Then the wisdom of journeying into the more open country where one can usually live even if he cannot always prosper, often prompts action.

A fellow engaged in one line of business says if he were in another line his course of action would be different, and the fellow in the other line doesn't do as the first one suggests for a reason not understood by the former and not satisfactorily explained by the latter, each disagreeing with the other and each sufficient for himself. Each one sees defects in another's methods, but each must rise or fall on his own judgment.

National Music Week which starts May 1, is one of the bright and encouraging spots in our social life. Good music is stimulating. It is an antidote to bad feeling, buoying the spirit and putting courage into faltering footsteps. Music has been employed in quieting and steeling nerves in great emergencies, and its influence at any and all times is strengthening and helpful.

The racketeering spirit seems to have reached Omaha. Proprietors of two cleaning establishments have been threatened because they refuse to agree to a rise in prices. One of the proprietors is sticking to his post with an automatic pistol strapped to his belt, and it is hoped he will not be caught napping in case of attack.

We notice the Mikado is to be given by State Teachers College talent in the near future. The Mikado is the first comic opera in our experience—presented by the Andrews Opera Company, Mr. Andrews as Koko—and its catchy music and rich burlesque fascinated us beyond anything of the kind we have since heard.

The positiveness with which politicians assert themselves is intended to make people think they know what they are talking about, but usually they don't.

Al Capone's Offer.

Sioux City Journal: Renewal by Al Capone, the arch gangster of Chicago who is lying in jail in Cook county, Ill., under sentence to a federal penitentiary, of his offer to find and return to its parents the kidnaped Lindbergh baby will give rise to much speculation regarding this infamous crime. There will be persons all over the country who will suspect that Capone, after all, was the man behind the whole plot to kidnap this child and that he could make his promise good if given his freedom.

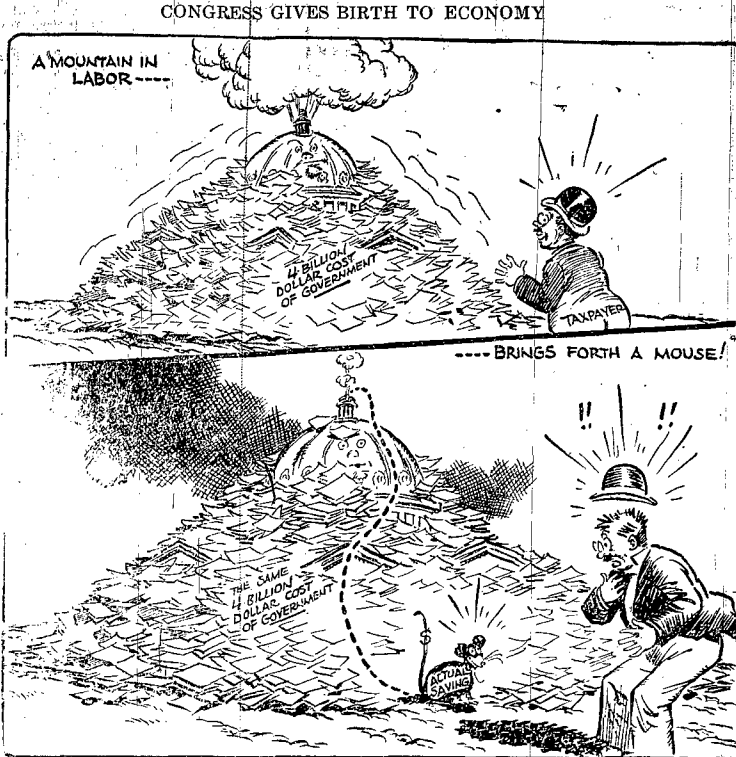

As to the possibility of Capone having directed the kidnapping of the child, anyone must admit it could have been done. Surely no one would suggest that a crime of that character would be beyond a man of Al Capone's type. He is desperate as he has been since last fall when convicted in federal court in Chicago and sentenced to serve 11 years. The man has wealth. He loves freedom. He has tried every device known to legal practice to regain his liberty. That he would hesitate to kidnap the child of celebrated parents in the hope that he might thus ingratiate himself and win leniency is not reasonable.

Al Capone might have done this thing. If the idea had occurred to him and he had seen a way to direct the kidnaping and regain his freedom he probably would have acted upon it. In his offer now made he seems to be very sure he can deliver the child. There may be nothing in the suggestion that Capone was responsible, but there is sufficient evidence to indicate that he may have been.

Jafsie.

Omaha World-Herald: While the Lindbergh kidnaping case continues to be a cruel and disheartening record of failure in the efforts of the grieving parents to recover their child, the human drama unfolds never and richer material in the players. Of those who have come into prominence with the case, none is at present more interesting than Dr. John F. Condon, the hapless intermediary in the $50,000 dollar swindle.

It may be unfair to Dr. Condon, but he suggests no one quite so much as Don Quixote. His motives, his intentions, his HEAVEN.

Heaven is a condition, not a circumscribed place. Hunger and thirst, avarice, envy and hate are but recollections that fade into the dust of the past as one rises in the eternal cosmos, and the less one has been absorbed by material considerations—the less one has been bound down to burning quest for worldly gain—the sooner will he be free to unfold the wonders of the soul and enlarge understanding and appreciation of spiritual values. Dwarving influences of sin—complete surrender to bad thinking and bad acting and to utter disregard of another's rights or another's welfare—lowers the surviving entity to a plane from which long time is required to break unwholesome fetters and ascend to sublime heights. Heaven does not mean idleness, but activity and evolution liberated from the ills of the flesh. It means relief from things that have to do with material support and earthly rivalries—things that choke expression of truth and hamper spiritual growth. Heaven is infinitude in time, space and possibilities for good. It may begin any time anywhere, and it may never end, its limitations depending on the individual's inherent and acquired power to free himself from things that are sordid. (This conception of heaven may be worse than some; better than others.)

purposes, are of the noblest. He entered the case on his own initiative, offering himself as a safe intermediary for the kidnapers in collecting their ransom. That, he invented the amusing codification of his initials, "Jafsie"—and he gave the headline writers a word, and won for himself a nickname that he will always hereafter bear.

Seventy-two years old, nearing the end of his career as a teacher and lecturer, Jafsie, beyond question had balanced a safe and dull routine of life by interest in fictional romance. This desire to engage in high adventure in the flesh, instead of by the vicarious reading of a book, has brought full participation to the good doctor. To indulge in code exchanges through the press with men who are revealed as shrewd and merciless criminals, to talk in whispers with a strange emissary who keeps his face averted but betrays a foreign accent, to carry 50 thousand dollars in bills to a graveyard rendezvous and toss the money over a fence—surely these are parts of a wild dream, yet a dream come true.

Grievous must be the disappointment of Jafsie at the failure of his high emprise. Yet he somehow enjoys the glare of a belated publicity. One finds him now always accompanied by a bodyguard, a husky ex-pugilist. He umpires at ball games and talks into microphones, he has a crowd of reporters and photographers around him, he takes lonely rowboat excursions about Long Island sound, and has a cold plunge into the waters and a narrow escape from drowning. From a stale and mundane existence he has suddenly emerged into a colorful, dangerous, vigorous pursuit of gangsters. His life is not safe, his privacy is invaded; but he is happy.

Back To The Country?

Lincoln Journal: In a recent magazine article Harper Leech discussed the "Paradox of Plenty," pointing out the almost prohibitive cost of living in the cities and the comparative cheapness of living in the less highly concentrated population districts. To make living conditions in the cities approximate in cost those in rural districts vast outlays for power and transportation are necessary. These factors, he feels, are forerunners of a decentralization that

A Taxless Utopia?

Norfolk Daily News: Another organization to abolish taxes is promising to offer its Utopian program to the voters of Nebraska this fall. It is called the Public Ownership league and it is going to free Nebraskans of the burden of their taxes by installing a state banking system and state filling stations.

If the advocates of the league had stopped with the promise some voters might have been impressed. But when they begin to figure out how they are going to do it, they get into hot water. For instance, Harry Lux, spokesman for the league, is quoted as saying that the banks make a profit of $72,000,000 a year on public funds which they loan out. He would save this profit and turn it into the public treasuries to be used in lieu of taxes.

If Mr. Lux is right and if there is a profit of 4 percent in handling loans, then there must be an average annual balance of some $1,800,000,000 of public funds available for loans. This is more than one-fourth of the total wealth of the state, estimated in the boom year of 1929. Even if we assume that this state could make a profit of 8 percent, we still would have the stupendous sum of $900,000,000 of public money available for loans. Of course, there is no such amount levied and what is levied is used almost as rapidly as it is paid in, for public services, and only a small percentage of it available for loans.

Mr. Lux's promises as to gasoline profits are as wild. He figures that if the state station sold only 4 percent of the gasoline used on a basis of 3 cents handling charge, the profit would be between $60,000,000 and $70,000,000. This is nearly ten times as much as a gasoline tax of 4 cents a gallon brings in. At 3 cents a gallon it would take two billion gallons to yield $60,000,000. This would be 4,180 gallons for every motor vehicle in the state. At twelve miles to the gallon it would drive every motor vehicle in Nebraska 57,720 miles a year. Who would stay at home to earn the money to pay for the gasoline, if we had to drive that many miles to make this De Lux plan for a taxless state work out? And this is only 4 percent of the assumed state consumption.

We just don't believe that Mr. Lux has the formula for a taxless Utopia.

will form new habitation habits for the future.

In many ways the small cities and the country adjacent to small and large cities offer as much luxury and convenience as do congested centers. Highways have made rapid transit possible in the country. Lack of skyscrapers and congested populations make it possible for people in the country to use daylight. City freight transportation costs more for a few miles than transcontinental shipments cost. Power for light and elevators runs into enormous sums in the cities and is added to living costs.

It is held that economic tides are running so strongly against the city that its advantages are offset. Transportation facilities in the country areas, electric energy and duplication of urban attractions, have started a back movement. Power used in the country is productive of marketable commodities; used in the city it is productive of balanced living conditions, and the cost is added.

The argument that great cities will grow less and the country populations increase may be fallacious. The lure of the crowds, the theory that the market is where the people are found, may still keep people in centers of great population. Industry, however, is less moved by such lodestones. The cost of production and distribution is a deciding factor. These will determine whether factories desert the large cities and whether industrial decentralization is to be a marked development of the next few decades.

The Incentive Of Poverty.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: Everybody seems to be praying for the return of prosperity and yet the evidence is incontrovertible that we can't stand continued prosperity. It requires an occasional setback to make us really appreciate good times.

A famous singer, Alma Gluck, put the matter very forcibly and clearly the other day: "My children," she said, "haven't had the great privilege my husband and I had—poverty. It is the great dynamo of all living."

Most of us are more familiar with the many inconveniences of poverty and do not realize its valuable lessons and splendid training until we have been placed in more favorable circumstances.

Ketchup—Handle With Care. (Christian Science Monitor)

Peace has come at last to the ketchup industry. And now one may with a little sigh of relief look back on those turbulent days when the bottle faction and the ketchup faction took pen in hand to annihilate, with neatly wrought phrase and aptly chosen word, each other's claims.

This was the issue: "Pourability"—is it ketchup or bottle? Take thought! Laughter were unseemly at this question so moot. But moot no more. Into his laboratory went one Mr. P. R. Nelson, devised and ingenious mechanism, made numerous tests, then announced to an expectant ketchup world: "Which is the determining factor in the rate of flow from bottle—bottle or ketchup? Both."

Thus, simply, came peace to the industry. Only to the consumer comes peace not. Now may ketchup tomatoes rest on their arms and men once opposed fraternize, chuckling—albeit somewhat shamefacedly—over reminiscences of the con-

Come prepared to reddens your hand with pounding, and as likely as not you are of a sudden confronted with an overabundant flood. Anticipate good "pourability," and you are compelled to pound. In ketchup pouring, only uncertainty is certain, and high wariness is the first requisite.

It is submitted that, having resolved their own great controversies, the ketchup manufacturers are morally obligated to bend their energies to the task of bringing peace to ketchup users.

Ex Post Facto.

Omaha World-Herald: Under the quota act of 1929 immigration into the United States has been effectively dammed. The flood of aliens entering this country which, at its crest, was more than a million in a single year, has been reduced to a mere trickle. During the year 1930-31 there were but 97,139 arrivals, nearly balanced by more than 61,000 departures and 18,000 deportations. This year more aliens are leaving the country than are arriving.

This condition would seem to be sufficient to satisfy the most thorough-going hundred per center. But apparently it isn't. The Daughters of American Revolution have adopted a resolution recommending that the president be empowered to deport all unemployed aliens.

As a solution for the problems to the depression this is as shallow as suggestions that employed married women be dismissed from their jobs or that steam shovels be replaced by pick and shovel men. Even as a palliative of unemployment it would do no more than make a faint scratch upon the surface. The practical effect would hardly be compensation for the insufferable hardship that might be visited upon a few persons innocent of any fault save the temporary loss of a job.

It would of course satisfy somewhat the hankering that still persists to kick the aliens out. But that seems so unnecessary now that the alien increment to our population has been so definitely checked.

The foreign population from past immigration is of course still large. The census of 1930 showed 14,204,000 foreign-born as a part of our population and more than 26 million of foreign or mixed parentage. For the present there remains the problem of social, economic and political adjustment of this foreign element to the standards of the new world. In a generation absorption will have been almost complete and the problem will no longer remain. In two generations it will be so far in the background that the new immigration will amount to nothing but an interesting fringe on an almost complete native population.

There is no need to be so impatient about it as to graft an ex post facto provision on our immigration exclusion laws.

ENCOURAGING.

The Christian Science Monitor calls attention to some encouraging business records during 1930 and 1931, and attributes results in large measure to increased advertising expenditures. Mention is made of one radio manufacturer who increased sales 100 per cent during 1930. A national floor-covering manufacturer increased profits nearly 600 per cent in 1931. While the hotel business generally was lagging, one hotel in New York City in 1931 pushed profits over sixteen per cent ahead of any previous volume. One automobile manufacturer sold 20,000 more cars in 1931 than were sold in 1930. It is noted that in every case of increased volume, advertising appropriations were enlarged rather than reduced. "These bright spots in the industrial and commercial world," observes the Monitor, "should encourage business to look ahead with faith and hope to the future, and not only to look ahead, but to plan for increased business without waiting for hopeful prognostications from those who assume to say when and how recovery will come. It is still true that the problem of maintaining and finding markets for products and services is simplified by making one's own business and keeping his eyes off the apparent failures round about. It appears there are many thoughtful business people who refuse to be dragged into the morass of fear and pessimism."

Yielding Stewly. Omaha Journal-Stockman: Inch by inch—perhaps it would come nearer the truth to say half-inch by half-inch—our legislators at Washington are giving ground in their stubborn resistance to reducing the expense of government. Apparently they still feel that they can satisfy the public clamor against high taxes by subterfuges, by providing for reductions that are more obvious than real, by resorting to makeshifts in the form of temporary economies or delayed payments. It is something, no doubt, that even this much recognition is given to the demands of the taxpayers, but it is not enough. So far not a Washington job has been jeopardized, by even so much as a proposal. The tax-spenders depression and gangs not new. Omaha Journal-Stockman: Archaeologists now tell us that for thousands of years the human race has been going through the same

have gone no farther than to suggest, somewhat timidly, that the days per week might be cut down, temporarily, or the pay might be lopped off a little, temporarily. Government seems woefully lacking in courageous leadership. What practically every business concern in the country has had to do, long since, government has no intention of doing—if it can be avoided. Yet it is of the utmost importance that the federal budget be balanced, and to a politician, that it can't be balanced by increasing taxes. We set up our bureaus, boards and commissions, put them on pedestals, crown them with halos, and cast our shekels at their feet in a never-ending stream. Created to serve, they have usurped the power of a monarch and rule with an iron hand. Witness a cowed congress. There is no question about it, congress needs help. Congress is yet to be convinced that the country means business in its mounting demand for economy. It is not possible to stress the importance of this too much. Confidence simply must be restored, and the first step can be no other than a balanced federal budget, and a lightening of the burden of taxes on business of all kinds.

Debt Propaganda. Lincoln Journal: The propaganda for cancellation of the war debts owing this country is extending its scope. Over the air and thru the magazines and newspapers it is being carried on. Latterly it has taken the form of warning the people that unless and until they do this they cannot hope for revival of foreign trade. It is pointed out that also foreign trade is only a tenth as great as domestic trade, when it is translated into dollars it means four or five billion a year and that the great decrease in it is responsible for the idleness of several million men in this country. If it were true that the depression in this country is due in large part to the failure of Europe to buy our goods as usual because of the tariff wall we have erected against them, and that the way to rebuild that trade is to permit greater freedom of entry of European goods, that would be an excellent argument for lowering the tariff, but it lacks force as an argument for cancellation. On the contrary if we buy more liberally from abroad than is now true, then our foreign debtors would be in a better position to pay since payment in goods is one of the recognized methods of clearing trade balances. The arguments, if they are carefully analyzed, fall to fit in with the known facts. Babson says business is 35 percent less than normal in this country. This means that if foreign trade has been cut in two, 30 percent of the decrease is in domestic trade. If we admit foreign-made goods in greater volume we would rebuild our foreign trade, but it certainly would have a bad effect upon domestic trade, our chief reliance. The plain fact is that Europe, and South America are not buying as much of our goods as they did over a period of years for exactly the same reason that our own people are buying less of the same goods—they don't have the money to pay for them or have curtailed their buying out of a fear for the immediate future. If we cancel their debts to us they may use some of the money buying our goods, but that is paying a heavy price for a trade that represents but a tenth of the whole.

Depression and Gangs Not New. Omaha Journal-Stockman: Archaeologists now tell us that for thousands of years the human race has been going through the same difficulty in which the republic has been engaged. Only the civil war, itself, presented as difficult and serious a situation as confronts the country henceforth. Intelligent thought in America is bound to realize that the man demanded for the next administration is the strongest, the ablest, the most courageous of the political affords. Regardless of political party, that man ought to be found. If he be a republican, he should be elected. If he be democrat, he should be chosen. But no mistake should be made. The people ought to make certain of the man they select and elect. Herbert Hoover may not be the man demanded. The Journal does not say he is, but it does not hesitate to say that if the sober thought, the best thought, of the country—and that, after all, is the dependence in this crisis—says Mr. Hoover is not the man, someone else ought to be given the responsibility in the White House. There are two national conventions to be held in Chicago in June. In that city the next president will be designated by one party or the other. Either a democrat or a republican will be president from March 4 next. There is thus presented before the leaders of the parties a problem of selection that imposes upon them one of the most solemn responsibilities faced in the history of the republic. For while the people will choose between the two men offered, the great responsibility is that of the conventions and the delegates in attendance rather than of the people who must vote for one of two.

It would be ridiculous for the American people to admit that nowhere could an able man be found, one who could shoulder the responsibilities and meet the issues as they come. Clamor is not dependable. Bandwagons should not be given an open road in times like these. Let leaders ponder the questions and let them make no mistakes in selecting candidates. The country demands a man fit and ready for the biggest job in administration in all Christendom and at a time when only such a man should be given the reins of government.

The Man Demanded. Sioux City Journal: The American people next November will elect a president. The man who enters the White House March 4 next for a four-year administration will face one of the most difficult tasks that ever fell to the lot of a chief executive of this country. Conflict caused the names of great war presidents to become immortal, yet the problems to be solved now in this country are of greater importance than those which obtained during any international

The Revenue Bill.

Lincoln Journal: Congressional leaders are employing whatever influence they retain after recent infirmities to restrict the activities of the present session to the bills of real importance so that an adjournment may be had before the national conventions and before the presidential campaign begins.

The average man reading what is going on at Washington usually concludes that politics is given such paramount consideration that the best interests of the country are lost sight of, but the fact is that as long as responsibility is lodged in leadership final action is most often the result of combining the best politics with the best interests.

Two schools of political thought are at war over the provisions of the tax bill. One conceives that its provisions may be so drawn as to secure that redistribution of wealth that has so long been the goal of social reformers.

We should have confidence in the intelligence of the leadership of senate and house that they will be able to get their followers to see that the best politics is to do the things that every informed person knows will restore confidence and start wheels going.

The Race For Wealth. Sioux City Journal: Bishop Titus Lowe, of Portland, Ore., preaching in the First Methodist church in Omaha declared that "the chief sin of our luxury loving people has been the covetous race for wealth."

It is easy to agree with Bishop Lowe while defending the American people for having followed perfectly natural tendencies as they explored and developed and exploited the rich resources of their country.

There have been classes of society since civilization began. There would be classes, or at least there would be colonies, or cliques, in any circumstances. Even if all men were put on an equal economic basis and forced to remain there, social differences and distinctions would develop and survive.

It probably is impossible to develop a better rule for economic placement of the individual than to say he should derive from his efforts rewards commensurate with his various talents.

Petitioner prays for a determination of the time of the death of said Margaret E. Laughlin; for the determination of the heirs of said deceased, the degree of kinship, and the right of descent of the above real estate, and for an order barring claims and debts against said estate, and for such other relief as may be just and equitable.

general acceptance of this principle in economics has made it possible for various virile people to show remarkable economic progress. No finer example than is found in America can be offered in support of this fact.

Fault may be found in justice, however, with some parts of the so called capitalistic plan of economic life. This, while permitting by common consent continuance of its existence. For, as Bishop Lowe has said, the race for wealth has become a chief sin of the American people.

To employ Bishop Lowe's thought, one might supplement it by saying that the chief sin of our luxury loving people, who, after all, taking them as they come and go, represent the greater degree of ability in economic life, has been the extremes to which they have gone in their race for wealth.

And there is a way to avoid all this. Men still could have rewards commensurate with their talents without this suffering by a large part of humanity. Let us first of all determine before beginning the race for wealth that no innocent members of the human family shall find life ugly and sordid and hard.

Students To Give An English Play "So the past, the present and the future are all one to me." That sentiment expressed by the hero of John Balderston's "Berkeley Square" is the key to the theme of the romantic comedy to be presented as the 1932 commencement play in the college auditorium Tuesday, May 24, at 8:15.

The play is based on Henry James' unfinished novel, "Since of the Past." It deals with London life of the Queen Anne period. The action centers around a young American who inherits a London home. He finds a diary of his ancestors who lived in 1784, and changes place with him, the action of the play alternating to suit the moods between 1784 and 1928.

League Views War Scene

Getting a real grandstand view of the late war scene, the special League of Nations committee, visiting Shanghai to investigate the Sino-Jap trouble, is shown seated at left. From the grandstand of the Kiangwan race track, they are studying maps and following closely the Japanese military representative (will arm outstretched) in his description of actual battle scenes in support of Japanese contentions. Progress With Knowledge.

On our present difficulties are working to save people from untold physical forces not formerly understood has often led mankind into periods of turbulent times. Equally plainly is demonstrated that violence may result before an adequate system of distribution of the benefits of new machines can be set up. Hardly can it be denied, however, the ultimate results from replacing hand labor with machinery have been good in the end.

The present period of depression is no exception to the rule. We are suffering from unwise production of things by means of machine slaves without a suitable division of the wealth brought into being. So great have been innovations of this sort that doubts assail us on every hand. Every one wonders if he will ever again see a time when he can feel secure in the belief that sufficient of the world's goods will fall to his lot to supply his needs. Violence so far has not marked the present period of depression to any great extent. Perhaps some of the very machines which brought

Bring Out Facts On Feeding Calves

Lincoln, Neb.—For the third consecutive year corn silage beat either ground corn fodder or shelled corn for wintering beef calves at the Nebraska experiment station at Lincoln, Prof. H. J. Gramlich and Ray R. Thalman of the animal husbandry department reported to stockmen at the 20th annual Feeders' day.

Results were figured on the acre basis rather than the ton or bushel basis. The test over the three-year period has been designed to help the Nebraska farmer-stockman who wants to market his grain and roughage from the corn field through beef cattle.

Cottoneed Cake Beneficial

Cottoneed cake when fed instead of the alfalfa with the silage or fodder produced even larger gains on the acre of corn basis. A pound of cake a head daily and silage made 672 pounds of growth and the same feed of cake and ground fodder put on 576 pounds of beef an acre.

Fodder Fed Calves Do Well

Calves fed on full feed of shelled corn and alfalfa gained over two pounds a head daily, while those wintered on silage and alfalfa grew a pound and a half a head daily. Use of cottoneed cake instead of hay with the silage increased the gain a day to about a pound and three-fourths.

Observe Arbor Day With Tree Planting

Evergreen And White Birch Arc Placed On Library Lawn Friday.

Wayne Woman's club and D. A. R. observed Arbor day by planting trees at the city library lawn. The Woman's club planted a white birch and the D. A. R. an evergreen. Each was placed in a bottle containing the organization's yearbook and pages from Wayne papers telling about the tree planting exercises.

My digestion is better. I have not been to see a doctor in a year. I can eat anything I want to.

I am getting real, honest-to-goodness food. Three years ago we had flit mignon once a week, now we have round steak with flour gravy. Then we had roast breast of guinea hen, now we are glad to get snow-bird with the buttons on it.

Europe is knocking the American dollar, and hitting it isn't so good.

The old saw that one never values something he gets for nothing scores one more point.—Detroit Free Press.

Congress strains and perspires terribly, trying to frame a tax law that will balance the budget.

One shudders to think of the agony it would go through if it had to get out and earn the money, like any other business concern.—Kansas City Star.

My wife belonged to all the clubs in town. She even joined the Young Mothers' club.

We don't have any children, but she was studying and between playing bridge and going to clubs, she was never at home.

I haven't been out on a party in 18 months. I have lost my book of telephone numbers.

My wife has dropped all the clubs. I believe we are falling in love all over again. I am pretty well satisfied with my wife. I think I shall keep her, a least until she is 40, and then if I feel like I do now, I may trade her for two twenties.

I am feeling better since the depression. I take more exercise.

I walk to town, and a lot of folks who used to drive Cadillacs are walking with me. I like the depression.

On account of threatening weather the girl scout tree planting at the cabin southeast of town on Arbor day was postponed.

The tree was planted Monday and the ceremonies will be conducted by the girls when they hold their annual picnic and merit day with parents as guests the last of May.

Nowadays as many News-Globe employees as are invited, make those trips, and we stay as long as we want to.

The whole outfit could leave the office now and it wouldn't make any difference. I like the depression. I have time to visit my friends, to make new ones. Two years ago when I went to a neighboring town I always stayed at the hotel. Now I go home with my friends, stay all night and enjoy home cooking.

I have even spent the week-end with some of the boys who have been kind enough to invite me.

It's great to drop into a store and feel that you can spend an hour or two or three or a half day just visiting and not feel that you are wasting valuable time. I like the depression.

I am getting acquainted with my neighbors. In the last six months I have become acquainted with folks who have been living next door to me for three years. I am following the biblical admonition, "Love your neighbors." One of my neighbors has one of the best-looking wives I have ever seen! She is a dandy. I am getting acquainted with my neighbors and learning to love them.

Three years ago I ordered my clothes from a merchant tailor—two and three suits at a time. All my clothes were good ones. I was always dressed up! But now I haven't bought a suit in two years. I am mighty proud of my Sunday-

Find Indicates Old Civilization

O'Neill, Neb., April 21—Two men, apparently well schooled in archaeology, have completed a brief survey of the upper Eagle creek in northern Holt county.

The purpose of this survey is not known here, but one of the investigators stated a wealth of material was examined.

On the William Gruetsch farm, an oblong hill, situated high and among others, but yet on a small plain, showed plainly it had been constructed by the hand of man and at some remote period.

One end of this hill appears to be incomplete, as if burials had been made and earth added until some disease or enemy tribe had halted operations forever.

This hill was pointed out as a typical burial place like those found in Wisconsin and Ohio and made by the mound builders, who are named in a maze of mystery.

They are supposed to have lived here long before the advent of the Indian and are credited with having farmed, built dams, planted trees and to have fostered high cultural attainments. They are thought to have perished about 2,000 years ago. About twelve miles north of Spoux City, a meeting and burial place recently was unearthed and this previously was thought to be the most western point inhabited by them.

On the surface of this mound was found a block of obsidian, or volcanic glass, hundreds of small pieces of petrified bone and flashy rock. After the shape, situation and condition and other evidence has been considered, it appears certain this mound contains the remains of some lost tribe who must have been very anxious they be remembered to those they left behind. The mound is about 50 feet long, 15 feet high and 30 wide.

Whoever these people were, they must have lived in extremely exciting times. Mr. Gruetsch exhibited three bison horns he had picked out of crumbling banks of clay. One set was altogether when found. The spread of this set is close to forty-two inches, and at its base, one measured fourteen inches in circumference, about twice as large as those found on bison that greeted the eyes of Columbus and his followers.

Near Honey, Eagle, Steele and other creeks, near here, enough petrified bone may be gathered in an hour's walk to stall a horse. Many of them appear to be of giant prehistoric animals.

In Newfoundland the Premier led a mob, but only by a couple of steps.—Fort Myers News-Press.

Home Fried Recipes

Sunshine Cake.
(University of Nebraska tested recipe)
10 egg whites
1-2 cups very fine granulated sugar
4 egg yolks
1 teaspoon lemon extract
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon cream of tartar

Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff and dry, then add the sugar gradually and continue beating. Add the yolks and the egg whites which have been beaten until thick and lemon colored, then put in the extract. Cut and fold in flour, mixed and sifted with cream of tartar. Bake 50 minutes in a moderate oven, using an angel food cake pan.

Boiling Salad.
1 to 1-2 cups mayonnaise
3 cups cooked potatoes, cubed
3 sliced hard-boiled eggs
1 tablespoon minced pimento
1-2 tablespoons minced green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped ripe olives
2 tablespoons chopped green olives
1-2 cup celery cubes
1-2 cup cucumber cubes
1 chopped onion
Bunch of radishes

Seasonings.
Mix all ingredients, except the radishes, with the mayonnaise. Season well with salt, pepper, paprika and tabasco sauce. Cut the radishes into fancy shapes and garnish the salad. This should serve six to eight persons.

Wilted Lettuce.
Wilted lettuce is a dish which seems to belong with the spring season. You can use leaf lettuce from your own garden, if you wish, but before that, try using shredded head lettuce.

1 head of lettuce, shredded
1 onion, chopped fine
1-2 cup mayonnaise
1-2 cup vinegar
1 tablespoon salt, fried out of
1-2 pound sliced and chopped bacon

Shred the lettuce into inch strips. Mix with the chopped onion in a hot serving dish, sprinkle with salt, and add the crisp bits of bacon.

Then add the fat which was drained off the bacon as it fried. The fat should be diluted with the hot vinegar. Garnish the dish with quartered hard-boiled eggs and some hot.

Frozen Tomato Salad.
2 cups canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
1-2 cup cold water
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 cup celery leaves, chopped
6 cloves
6 peppercorns
1 chopped onion
2 egg whites stiffly beaten
1 cup cream whipped
1-2 teaspoon paprika

Additional seasonings may be used and a few drops of tabasco sauce. Soak the gelatin in cold water. Put the tomatoes, celery leaves, chopped onion and other seasonings to cook for about 15 minutes. Strain, add to the softened gelatin, beat vigorously and add egg whites. When the mixture begins to thicken, fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and mold. Leave in refrigerator three or four hours, serving on lettuce with dressing when frozen. This recipe will serve six to eight persons.

Mixed Vegetable Salad.
2 tablespoons granulated gelatin
1-2 cup vegetable juice
1-2 cup weak vinegar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1-2 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon grated onion
2 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1-2 cups canned or cooked mixed vegetables
Mayonnaise
Lettuce

Soften the gelatin in the cold juice of the vegetables. Add the boiling water, seasonings, vinegar and lemon juice. When cool, put in the mixed vegetables and the grated onion. Put into individual molds and when firm serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing. Peas, lima beans, diced carrots and diced beets are a good combination of vegetables to use.

Algebra students this week completed a study of radicals and will next take up the solution of quadratic equations. In freshman algebra, a test was given last week over work of the fortnight. Adeline Prince and Frank Weible had the only 100 percent marks given.

Plane geometry group is studying drawing to scale, projection and measurement of similar figures. A test over ratio and proportion was given Thursday when Edna Surman received the only 100 percent mark.

Study Action of Forces.
Forces, acting together and in different directions, have been studied this week in the physics class. Balance scales have been used in laboratory studies which have been supplementing the class work. The general science class is considering weather and climate, barometers, wind belts, and the use of the almanac.

Receiving clerk's duties, checking of orders and other contacts with shipping clerk routine are being considered this week in junior business class. Bills of lading which were made out earlier in the course must go through this department.

Have Good Attendance.
Last week marked two consecutive weeks of perfect attendance in the seventh and eighth grade room. Miss Frances Nielsen was a visitor Friday afternoon.

Seventh and eighth grade folk have been making advertising posters for drawing work. Other exercises have included the making of conventional designs.

Soil maps of the state were made in the seventh grade last week. In both grades, maps of Wayne county were finished.

Eighth grade history class debated Friday on the topic: "Resolved: That the blockade did more to defeat the south than did the military attacks by the union." The affirmative side of the question got a one point victory.

Celebrates Birthday.
Raymond Graef, first grade, celebrated the occasion of his sixth birthday Thursday when he treated his classmates with candy bars. The children sang the birthday song for him.

Sixth grade people had a quarter holiday Friday as a reward for six weeks of perfect attendance. Both the fifth and the sixth grades had perfect attendance all last week.

four quaint old hand-loomed coverlets.

Mrs. H. E. Siman displayed the oldest quilt of the show, a "charm quilt" made by Mr. Siman's mother when she was Ann Smart, a girl in Wisconsin. The quilt was completed during the early years of her marriage. Its uniqueness lies in the fact that every piece of material in the quilt is different from every other piece, although it was difficult to obtain such variety in those days. The materials are woollens, pieced together in a pattern and neatly quilted down.

A beautiful flower garden quilt shown by Mrs. Perry Brodd had the distinction of having received 15 spoils of thread in the making. The flower garden is a very intricate quilt pattern, which requires a large number of small pieces.

Mrs. Herbert Moss' blue and white counterpane, made in 1848, attracted a good deal of attention. The piece was woven by Mrs. Moss' grandmother in the early days, and has been kept in a remarkably good state of preservation.

Members of the Methodist society served light refreshments to their guests during the afternoon. Mrs. A. H. Schmale was in charge.

Junior Class Gives Comedy Play Twice.
Winside juniors presented their play, "Safety First," Tuesday evening and again Friday evening of last week. Bad weather made the Tuesday evening attendance; rather small, so the second showing was held. Receipts totaled $52, which juniors will use for the junior-senior banquet which is to be an event of May 7.

Between the acts, music was presented by Miss Adelyne Most, Miss Alma Lautenbaugh and the Rev. W. F. Most. Raymond Graef, senior, who assisted with the play, gave comic readings during the intermissions.

Members of the "Safety First" cast were the following: Norris Weible, Kathryn Lewis, Evelyn Moeiding, Margaret Christensen, Henry Nielsen, Monte Davenport, Raymond Graef, Clarence Witt, Virginia Troutman and Lyda Jensen.

L. C. Gildersleeve—All kinds of Insurance—Agent for the—Travelers of Hartford Multiple Lines first

Mrs. David Render at the church Sunday afternoon. Obituary will be found in another part of this newspaper.

"You may be right," said a man to us one day. "You may be right," we replied. He said "This isn't my line, you know." And we said, "This isn't my line, either." This is a wholesome attitude to take toward most people and subjects. Often a little more information, a wiser judgment, a generous spirit is the best for one's life, as well as that of others. Putting one's self in the other fellow's place will often change one's attitude and judgment. Wise Solomon said, "A soft answer turneth away wrath; but a grievous word stirreth up anger." Prov. 15:1. Admitting we are ignorant, giving in to the right, generously to the other fellow often proves to be the height of wisdom, the finest Christianity, and the winsome thing in the long run.

Mrs. H. E. Siman gave a piano solo at the morning service.

Put the Sunday services into your program of life, for your sake, your children's sake, and the good that you may do.

Her husband, David Render, survives, as do the following children: Walter Render, Harry Render of Sioux City, Mrs. Ferne Molgaard and Mrs. Irene Warnemunde of Winside, and Mrs. Cora Miller of Omaha. Two infant sons preceded their mother in death. Brothers and a sister who remain are: Fred Prince of Weston, Minn., George Prince of Washington, Andrew Prince of Pickettsville, N. Mrs. Render was a member of the Royal Neighbor lodge and of Winside chapter of Eastern Star. She was also affiliated with the Methodist church.

Came from England.
Mary Elizabeth Prince was born in Ludlow, England, August 21, 1871, and came to this country when she was three years old. Forty years ago she was married at Birmingham, Ohio, to David Render. With him she came to Winside in 1904. The Renders have lived here since that time, and had become a close part of the community life, in which Mrs. Render will be missed.

Citizens Suggest Making Over Government Operation Plan

Even a hundred years ago, when roads worthy of the name were a curiosity, government in all its branches differed vastly from the government of today. Now, however, a consideration of conditions leads many to believe that modern government requires still more changes to bring it up to date with the age of skyscrapers, depressions and ocean voyages to nowhere.

Time was when road conditions made rapid travel impossible. One started out for even a nearby point several days before the time set for arrival. It was in times like those that provisions for our government were made.

Townships, counties, states and a national government were established. Each unit in the organization had its own set of officials, its own set of rules, its own government regulations. Practically all of these officials, rules and regulations have survived. What has disappeared is the difficulty of getting from place to place.

Urges County Changes.
The county organization of earlier years was formulated in accordance with the old conditions. County seats, although not far apart in miles, once were far away in point of time. Today they are close together. But we still have a county organization in, each county seat, although one county seat could do the duty of several.

Attorney C. A. Berry, talking over the situation informally, stated that he believed that we have passed through a national transition period which has removed the necessity for having so many county offices.

"We must reduce taxes," observed Mr. Berry, "and a reduction in the number of county seats and county officials is a good place to begin."

Suggest Further Changes.
Carrying the point even further, Mr. Berry noted that the entire system of government in this country is cumbered with too many offices, too many officials. There are, for example, too many legislators, too many members of congress. If there were fewer offices to be filled and fewer officials' salaries to be paid, he said, taxes could be lower, and conditions in general would be improved.

As things are arranged now over a million persons in the United States are federal office holders or employees. This army of workers, it is said, costs the country $1,315,000,000 every 365 days. If government were simplified, as it should be in these days of super-efficiency, there could be an effective saving.

Funeral Services Held On Thursday

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Haglund of Wakefield, the latter a daughter of Mrs. Englert, were also here for the rites.

BERTHA BERRES, Clerk

"County consolidation would certainly cut down expenses," said County Attorney H. D. Addison in discussing the question, "and would produce greater efficiency in county government in general."

Although Mr. Addison is in favor of consolidation and believes it would be a good thing, he pointed out what he thinks would be considered a great objection to it. With the government put into the hands of fewer officials, he showed, there would be a diminution of the people's direct power. In the minds of voters this feature might seem objectionable, although it seems evident to Mr. Addison that the increase in government efficiency would more than offset this disadvantage.

Citing the example of a group of Tennessee counties which consolidated successfully, Attorney D. P. Miller stated himself to be highly in favor of such a move. The counties Mr. Miller mentioned found the consolidation so efficient and so economical that they were able to pave miles of roads and, at the same time, reduce the tax burden. Any group of counties could consolidate to effect economies in taxes, Mr. Miller pointed out, or could use the money saved to add to the public buildings and improvements in the greater county. Tax savings effected through the efficient combination of several counties would be particularly valuable, he noted, in a year like this one, and would become more important as time went on.

The Old Order Changeth.
Changes in the conditions of modern life have been so numerous that we will have to expect some rather surprising changes in modern government, predicts L. W. Ellis, another Wayne attorney who approves of county consolidation. He, too, commented on the fact that good roads connect most county points already, and that the time is not far distant when larger towns (of county seat size) will be connected by hard surfaced roads which will facilitate transportation even further.

"Since so much county business can be transacted by mail," said Mr. Ellis, "the distances between county seat and residents would not be so important anyway."

Because efficiency has invaded every realm, believes Mr. Ellis, it would be comparatively simple to take care of the business of three or four counties in one office, the number of helpers being somewhat larger than for a single county office. Thus the vast expense of maintaining four county seats could be reduced, if not to the cost of one, at least to much less than the expense of four.
