ATTORNEY TELLS OF PROCEDURES IN OUR COURTS

J. E. Brittain Traces New Methods From Earliest Days in England.

PRaises COUNCIL PLAN

Tracing the development of Nebraska court procedure from its antecedents in English common law and equity jurisprudence, Attorney James E. Brittain talked before the Kiwanis club Monday noon.

Traces Court Origin.

In beginning his address, Mr. Brittain mentioned the fact that a political science teacher seemed to be right in making the statement that, although American courts originated in England centuries ago, the English have revised their laws, and American frequently have not.

In early England, there was the common law which had half a dozen forms of action which resulted in specific money damages or specific property return forms of recovery.

Development of Code. Code law has been developed in this country since about 1848, when Dudley Davis filed promulgated a code of civil procedure which was at once accepted by several of the states.

Under the old common law, Mr. Brittain cited as an example, errors were considered prejudicial. Now an error is not ground for the reversal of a case unless distinct prejudice can be proved.

System Succeeds Here. In a rural state like this one, Mr. Brittain observed, there has been little pressure on the work and dockets have not been particularly congested.

Mr. Brittain suggested that the adoption of a judicial council in this state would add the needed touch of improvement. The council could be established by the passage of a law providing for the creation of a group the duty of which would be to study facts concerning the judicial machinery.

CROP EXPERT IS LOUD IN PRAISE OF THIS SECTION

A. E. ANDERSON, state and federal crop statistician, has described northeast Nebraska as the garden spot of the state at this time. His report followed an inspection trip of more than 1,500 miles.

GILLILAN GIVES SCHOOL LECTURE THIS WEDNESDAY

Washington Columnist and Humorist Is Pleased With This Section.

SEES THE SILVER LINING

Strickland Gillilan of Washington, here to speak at the Teachers' College last evening, was asked today by a Herald representative to divulge some of his impressions of (a) here and (b) now—to say something especially special because of his appearance "in person."

"Why certainly, madam—I mean Miss. It is all right and regular for a married man away from home to miss his Madam, but it is insultingly bad taste ever to madam a Miss."

"This is the first time in ten years that I have been in this particular corner of the middle west. And while my personal emotions are not only nobody's business but about as valuable as the proverbial tinker's dam, I am indeed glad to be here."

"Before heading this way from Washington, I told my radio audiences where I was going. I told them that while the listeners to propaganda-laden congressional speeches, and the readers of the writings of poorly informed literary propagandists, would expect to see the people west of Pittsburgh dressed in slender G-strings eating insects, sleeping in trees and drinking out of the creek, I was pretty positive I should see people living in good homes, dressed in good clothes, eating three or more meals per day and driving good cars."

"And I have seen all these things—especially in this immediate vicinity. Of course not all neighborhoods are so fortunate as this one; and of course even here there is the reverse and sadder side of the picture. But there always has been. Times aren't as good as they used to be and they never were! Congratulations on your grasshopperlessness!"

"All through this agricultural section crops are averaging better, at least in their landscape effects, than I had ever seen them before, even at this most beautiful time of year. And in spite of the fact that, commercially, the farm is 'in bad,' nobody can make me believe it is a misfortune to have plenty of grain and fine livestock around. I still believe it would be infinitely worse than it is, if a crop failure were to come."

"I am not pollyanna, enough to say everything is all right; I am not fool enough to think things are in an ideal condition; I am not liar enough to deny the defects of today. But I am intelligent enough to know that these unfavorable conditions differ only in degree from former times; and courageous enough to say that no political maneuvers within the past four years would have made things any better than they are. Now this, of course, is only my individual opinion. To cuss Hoover for the conditions is on very much the same principle as to refer to Noah snarlingly as 'that old such and such who conducted that nasty flood.'"

"Anyhow, I can truthfully say I have found the Midwest looking physically joyful and am glad I came. Furthermore, never before was this section so hospitable to the passing stranger. Those who used to whine and say they'd like to see us 'able t' git a good meal's vittles' for a quarter, ain't, have their wish fulfilled. You can do that very little thing in a lot of places in large and small towns out here these days. The silver lining!"

Explorer To Give Lectures In Wayne

Rev. L. L. Legters Conducts Meetings This Week For Local Group.

The thrill of finding new tribes among the impassable jungles of South America, hair breadth escapes and the pangs of hunger are among the experiences of L. L. Legters, explorer, traveler and preacher, who will conduct a short summer conference in Wayne June 10, 11 and 12.

Parlor meetings will be held Friday and Saturday afternoons at 3 and evenings at 8 in the E. E. Young home. On Sunday afternoon at 3 Rev. Legters will speak at the college auditorium, and that evening at the Presbyterian church.

Married Monday At Wayne Home

Miss Dorothy Gulliver Is Bride Of Ross B. Hanks Here This Week.

Miss Dorothy McQueen Gulliver, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. A. F. Gulliver of Wayne, and Mr. Ross B. Hanks, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hanks of Wausa, were married Monday morning, June 6, at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 19 relatives and intimate friends being present for the double ring ceremony which was performed by Rev. P. A. Davies of the Presbyterian church.

Blue and yellow, Miss Gulliver's chosen colors, were carried out in the wedding. One corner of the parlor at the Prof. Gulliver home was banked with blue, yellow and white flowers. On either side of the background of flowers was a large white basket of flowers in these colors, and back and above the flowers stood five old ivory tapers.

The tapers were lighted by Miss Jean Davies at 8 o'clock, just before Joyce Kuhler of Sioux City, sang "I Love You Truly." Miss Jeanette Lewis then played Mendelssohn's wedding march as members of the bridal party marched to the improvised altar, where Rev. Davies met them.

Miss Gulliver's gown was of white silk dotted net, fashioned with long, full skirt and fitted bodice. Many tiny ruffles of the same material, small rosettes around the yoke and a blue bow on the white silk slip were the only trimmings. Miss Gulliver carried a shorter bouquet of Tallman roses, forget-me-nots and ferns.

Miss Mary Ellen Gulliver was bridesmaid for her sister. She wore blue silk fashioned with fitted waist and full skirt. A white lace yoke trimmed her gown, and she carried a bouquet of yellow carnations and forget-me-nots.

Ross B. Hanks was attended by his brother, Dale Hanks, and both wore dark suits. Following the ceremony and congratulations, Mrs. Gulliver, assisted by Mrs. R. H. Jacques and Mrs. J. J. Miner, served a three-course breakfast. The bridal party were among ten seated at the dining table and other guests were at small tables. Flowers and other table appointments were in blue and yellow.

Mrs. Hanks is a graduate of the Wayne college high school. She completed the two-year course at Wayne State Teachers College and had taken advanced work. The past year she taught the fifth and sixth grades at Emerson. Mrs. Hanks has been active in the Presbyterian church and especially in the Christian Endeavor, having served as district president of this organization.

Mr. Hanks received the A. B. degree at the college here a year ago and he instructed the past year in music at Edna, Kan., to which place he returns in the fall. He and Mrs. Hanks may attend school at Boulder, Colo., the last term this summer.

Out of town relatives here for the wedding Monday were Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hanks, and son, Dale, of Wausa, Joyce Kuhler of Sioux City, and Mrs. Henry Gulliver and daughter of Ames, Iowa.

Reunion Is Held For Preston Family

All members of the H. A. Preston family were together Sunday when the group held a reunion at the Russell Preston home near Belden. In the group were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Preston and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Preston and family of Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. George Lightner and family of St. Edward, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bull and family, Harold and Kenneth Preston, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Preston, Miss Bernice August and the Russell Preston family of Belden vicinity.

Rev. W. C. Heidenreich's sedan, which was taken from parking in front of his residence Tuesday evening last week, was found parked in town at Emerson Thursday. No damage was done to the machine.

SCHOOL BOARD APPROVES NEW DISTRICT HERE

Group Follows Wishes Of Voters In Making New School District.

FINISH LONG DISCUSSION

Members of the Wayne board of education meeting Monday evening approved the creation of a new school district south of town, and agreed to instruct the county superintendent to establish such a district. Their action corroborates the wishes expressed by the voters when they approved this move in the spring election.

Farmers dwelling in the region south of town petitioned to have the question of new district formation included in the vote. This was done, and voters, seeing the justice of such action, approved it when they went to the polls. The action of the school board is the final official step.

No action has been taken as yet toward the creation of the new district. Several formalities will have to be observed, and the new organization will have to be perfected under the direction of the county superintendent of schools. By severing the area south of town from the city school district, farm residents will be freed of a heavy burden in the support of the school in town, an advantage which they have long been seeking.

The school budget was adopted at this meeting, the figure for district 17 being set for $36,800 for the coming year. Of this amount, $32,000 will be raised by taxes. The rest comes from tuition, from state aid, and from money paid for tobacco vending licenses and fees. This year's budget is lower than last year's by $2,000. The economies have been effected by curtailing certain improvements for the time being.

Attends Congress Soon In Ireland

Rev. William Kearns Sails Next Sunday For Trip On Continent.

Rev. William Kearns left Monday afternoon for Dublin, Ireland, to attend the thirty-third Eucharistic congress which is in session June 22 to 26. He has leave from the bishop to be absent from St. Mary's parish in Wayne until August, and he hopes to visit the pope and to go to several countries for sight-seeing.

Some months ago when Rev. Kearns had completed 25 years in the church, his friends here honored him and gave him a gift of money for a trip to Ireland. Since the Eucharistic congress is meeting this year in Dublin, Rev. Kearns felt it a good time to make the trip.

Rev. Kearns went to Chicago Monday and from there went to Washington, D. C. to get his passport. He sails on the S. S. Dresden next Sunday night and will arrive in Ireland in time for the congress. The Dresden and other ships will anchor in Dublin harbor and the priests will be allowed to use their state rooms on the ships for lodging quarters during the meeting.

Hearing In Court Postponed Here

Bonding Company Suit And Divorce Filed With District Clerk.

Cases which were to have been tried in district court this week, have been laid over temporarily. Divorce petition was filed in district court June 1 by Earl Roundsburg against Daisy Roundsburg. The Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance company, a corporation, in an action filed in district court this week, seeks to collect $4,479.22 from J. J. Steele by levying on a residence which is in the name of Mrs. Caroline Steele and an automobile which belongs to Miss Grace Steele. The judgment, was rendered by a district court jury a couple weeks ago. The amount is the sum in excess of bond in the closed Citizens National bank of Wayne.

NEBRASKA RANKS HIGH IN AFFAIRS OF ITS SCHOOLS

NEBRASKA is practicing both efficiency and economy in its educational work according to a Washington survey. It ranks near the top in its labors, but thirtieth among states in salaries paid to its teachers. Nebraska stood eleventh among states in the score of literacy in 1930, and thirteenth in power to keep students between 14 and 17 school. The state soars above the average in value of school property—$232 per child enrolled as compared to $242 for the country at large. Nebraska ranks nineteenth in per capita value of school property. Thus, while the state does not stand at the top in things pertaining to education, it is not far from that high and meritorious point. It is not advisable to boast after the California fashion, but it is desirable to take cognizance of the facts and let them be known.

LUTHER LEAGUES COME HERE TO HEAR SPEAKERS

Supt. H. R. Best Speaks Concerning Church In Life Of Present.

PLAINVIEW MAN TALKS

To borrow from those wiser than we, to originate if we can, and to stagnate if we will do neither is our fate in life, stated Rev. Lechner of Plainview in an address given Friday afternoon before Luther League members convening at the Evangelical Lutheran church. The convention began Thursday and continued through Friday. It was the fifth annual convention of the organization in this section, and attracted about 150 persons.

Rev. Lechner issued his warning to his young listeners as a part of a general urging toward progress. Progress was the keynote of convention addresses.

Minister Urges Action.

"How to prevent the human mind from becoming petrified or into too much of a rut," said Rev. Lechner, "was my Friday afternoon topic. I wished to show the young people how to keep from fighting progress."

"Man has a great future," he continued. "I believe the day of the Superman will come, a time when man's mind will overcome all things material, and life will become more of an intellectual pursuit than it now is."

Biologically, Rev. Lechner showed, man has changed very little in the past several thousand years. His needs remain the same now as they were in the beginning. He must have protection, recreation, social life, moral standards and some kind of an education. Most of all, however, he needs progress, the speaker added.

How To Achieve Progress.

Progress, he went on to say, is brought about by the action of new powers of nature and by contact with other cultures, and through war, trade and migration. Progress is difficult to reach, changes, said Rev. Lechner, but if they can be considered gradually and naturally, and made only when the old things have outlived their usefulness, changes will not be so hard to deal with. Because there is so great a danger of getting into a rut, however, the individual must learn to fight for changes, and to make them when they become necessary. It was on this note that Rev. Lechner closed his Friday afternoon address.

Many from Distance.

The Luther Leagues gathered at the church Friday morning for devotionals which were led by Rev. Penebacker of Hooper, the president of the organization, Leonard Mangold of Bennington, had charge of the formal opening, following which roll call was taken and the secretary and the treasurer made their reports.

Problems of the conduct of the social hour, part of the Luther League programs, were discussed in a paper read by Miss Mary Luschen of Bennington.

All Leagues Reported.

Various leagues reported, and papers were read from Bennington, Bloomfield, Columbus, Cedar Creek, Hooper (town and country churches, Wayne, Winnsie, Scribner, and Westboro, Missouri). Following luncheon served in the

MRS. F. H. JONES DIES SUDDENLY IN SIOUX CITY

Resident Of Wayne Many Years Is Found Dead Tuesday Morning.

FUNERAL THIS THURSDAY

Funeral services will be conducted this Thursday afternoon at 2:30 at the Presbyterian church for Mrs. Isabella Jones, Wayne resident for 34 years, who died suddenly Tuesday morning in Sioux City at the home of her son, Francis C. Jones. Rev. P. A. Davies has charge of rites and interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Mrs. Jones, who had been an invalid the past few years since suffering amputation of one limb, had been in the city with her son the past year. She had been failing recently but was up and about. She felt in her usual health Monday morning when she retired. Tuesday morning she was found lifeless in bed, having suffered a sudden attack which was fatal.

William Beckenhauer went to Sioux City Tuesday morning and brought the body to Wayne for funeral services.

Mrs. Jones' maiden name was Miss Isabella Loreuse. She was born in Independence, Iowa, February 2, 1864, and was thus aged 68 years, 4 months and 5 days. When a small child she came with her parents to Creighton, Neb., where she grew to womanhood. Deceased was married to Frank H. Jones at Independence, Iowa, August 2, 1889. The family lived at Creighton for a time and then moved to Springfield where Mr. Jones engaged in banking. They moved to Bloomfield in the fall of 1897 and the following year came to Wayne where Mr. Jones bought the book-music store which he owned and managed until his death January 18, 1931.

Mrs. Jones leaves one son, Francis C. Jones, of Sioux City, her daughter-in-law and three grandchildren, Frank, Lois and Mary Frances Jones, all of Sioux City. One sister, Mrs. Dunn, survives and lives in Illinois.

Good Samaritans Organize Staff

Miss Lydia Streng Heads Hospital Nursing Staff Here In Wayne.

Miss Lydia Streng, graduate nurse, came from Aberdeen, S. D., this week to be superintendent of the Good Samaritan hospital, the former Wayne hospital which the Good Samaritan society recently bought from Dr. S. A. Lutgen. Miss Streng had charge of an 80-bed hospital in Aberdeen before coming to Wayne.

Miss Mattie Henrichs of Diller, another graduate nurse, came on Wednesday to join the staff of the Good Samaritan society, and others will be added gradually. Miss Lisle Clayton, former hospital superintendent, is in Chicago making arrangements for the student nurses who have been here, to enter a hospital in the city to finish training.

Charles F. Ford of Laurel, came to the old people's department of the institution this week. Lula Morrison of Coleridge, came last week. When the number reaches eight or ten the group will be housed in a home separate from the hospital.

Rev. E. Bagley of Williston, N. D., was here this week assisting A. Amundson in raising the $10,000 which the society expects this community to give in helping the hospital. They report gifts coming in quite well.

COLLEGE OPENS SUMMER TERM FIRST OF WEEK

Enrollment In School Is Equal To Last Year For The Period.

WORK STARTS TUESDAY

Summer session at Wayne State Teachers College opened this week with an attendance totaling about 1,000 in the college proper and the training school. This number is practically the same as last year's attendance.

Majority of the students enrolled this summer registered for advanced work, either studying toward the bachelor degree or taking work beyond the degree in their special lines. And the percentage who have attended here before is larger than the new enrollments.

The summer session provides 12 weeks of college work, the last six to be done in five weeks. The training school, which includes the lower eight grades, is in session four weeks.

Registration was taken care of Saturday and Monday, and regular class work began Tuesday. At the chapel Wednesday directions were given to aid in class work.

Geography of South America taught by Prof. A. F. Gulliver was so large that it had to be sectioned and Prof. G. W. Costerisan takes one of the classes. Some English and history classes are also very large but they will remain as they are and instructors will be provided with readers.

All halls at the college are reserved to capacity. Neihardt, the largest, houses 180 girls this summer. Many students are staying down town also.

Plan Exercises Here On Friday

Annual School Meetings Are To Be Held In Rural Districts Monday.

Miss Pearl E. Sewell conducts promotion exercises for 153 Wayne county eighth graders this Friday afternoon at 2:30 in the Gay theatre when Prof. A. V. Teed will give the address. The students meet at 1:45 at the court house.

School Meetings.
The annual school meeting will be held in all rural districts Monday, June 13. Each of the three members of the board should, Miss Sewell explains, have his books ready for the immediate transaction of business at that time. The moderator in each district will act as chairman of the meeting and the director will act as secretary. When a moderator is absent from a district meeting, one should be appointed. The director is clerk and should not preside in the absence of the moderator. Newly elected members of the board take office the first Monday in July following election. Only citizens of the United States are entitled to vote in school elections and to hold school offices. A person transferred from one district to another for school purposes cannot legally hold office on the school board of the district to which he has been transferred.

Applications for transfer from one district to another should reach Miss Sewell not later than the second Monday in June. To be transferred one must live more than one and a half miles from the school house in his own district and at least one half mile nearer to the school in the adjoining district to which he wishes to be transferred.

Within ten days before the annual meeting the census should be taken. Directors should, Miss Sewell advises, get names of all persons of school age because part of the state apportionment is divided according to the census. This amounts to about $1 for each pupil twice a year. Names of children who will have reached the age of 5 years on or before September 1 of the current year may be included. All the necessary reports should come to Miss Sewell's office within ten days after the annual meeting.

So far as schools are concerned the statutes of Nebraska make no provision for legal holidays for schools or teachers. Schools should be careful, Miss Sewell says, not to lose too many days of school as there is danger of the school's losing its share of the state apportionment on that account. A teacher may make up lost time by teaching on Saturdays only by permission of the board.

Application for free high school tuition must be made with Miss Sewell before the first day of July each year.

The school board is the proper group to fix wages of teachers. A contract made before the annual meeting must, in order to be legal, be signed by two members whose terms of office do not expire with the school year in which such contract is made.

Other School News.
Orville Peters, 8, and Clifford Humphrey, 9, of district 26, had perfect attendance during the past school year.

Marjorie Wagner, 12, and Ruth Ronder, 10, of district 28, south, were perfect in attendance for the whole year. Ruth has had a perfect record for three years.

Elsie and Herbert Temme of district 28, north, were neither absent nor tardy during the school year.

Esther Koch, an eighth grade pupil of district 29, was neither absent nor tardy for the past year.

Duane Riggert, Wallace Miller and Harold Appel of district 41, received prizes from their teacher for perfect attendance the past year.

Harvey Gernhart, 9, of district 57, had a perfect attendance record for the year.

Jackie Fenske, 6, was the only one of 32 pupils in district 60 to have perfect attendance record for the year.

Joseph Dumka, a seventh grader in district 61, did not miss a day of school the past year.

Six of ten pupils in district 68 were perfect in attendance the past year. They are Bonnie Bruggeman, Arlene Smith and Dorothy Lyons, each 6 years old, Frances Smith, 8, Warden Lyons, 9, and Ivan Smith, 10.

Daniel Baier, Marie Post, 7, and Richard Baier, 8, are district 20 pupils who had perfect attendance records the past year.

Donald and Bonnell Grier of district 15, had perfect attendance records this year.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Verna Anderson, whose dress was pink chiffon organdie, also made ankle length. She also wore white slippers and accessories. Both Mrs. Behmer and her attendant carried bouquets of pink tea roses and baby's breath.

After the church ceremony the wedding party enjoyed a candle light dinner served in three courses at the home of the bride's parents. ### Girl Scout Group Plans Activities

Lutheran Convention Held In Milwaukee In Next Ten Days Period.

Girl scout community council, troop committee women, captains and scoutmasters and their families are all in all met at the scout cabin southeast of Wayne Tuesday evening for picnic dinner followed by a business session. Plans were made for camp activities this summer and for a picture show which the group is sponsoring for scout benefit next week.

"Symphony of Six Millions," by Fannie Hurst, is the picture to be shown at the Gay theatre Friday and Saturday, June 17 and 18, and P. L. March has given the scouts a percentage of ticket sales which are made other than at the theatre window. Mr. March selected the picture as an especially high type film and recommends it for children as well as adults. The scout leaders will sell tickets and M. L. Ringer, finance chairman, will have his office open this Saturday evening so that those who wish may buy at that time.

The scout council has paid a debt which remained on the cabin this year and they plan to use the picture show funds for camping work this summer.

To save expenses the council plans to have a local camp director this year and local assistants. The cabin will open about July 11 and it is hoped to give each of Wayne's girl scouts at least six days of camping. The plan is to have two women for each group of eight girls at the cabin, so there will be from two to four women in charge during the few weeks that the girls are camping.

The scout community council is a group of eight members registered at national scout headquarters. None receive any pay. Their work is to promote scouting for all girls of the community. Mrs. F. S. Morgan is chairman. Miss Henrietta Hurst is secretary. T. H. Koenig is chairman of the camp committee, M. L. Ringer is finance chairman, and L. W. Ellis has charge of the cabin and grounds. Mrs. C. E. Wilson is chairman of the troop committee women. Mrs. H. J. Best has charge of the committee on awards, and Mrs. Willis Noakes is in charge of the education committee which passes on merit badges.

This council, assisted by troop committee women, captains and scoutmasters, is sponsoring the show and camping this summer. The city has been planned for the ticket sale.

A picnic for girl scouts and their families is planned the last of this month at the cabin and merit badges earned the past year will be awarded at that time.

Masonic Meeting Held In Omaha
Wayne Men Attend Session And Dedication Of Old Memorial Site.

Full of memories of early Masonic days was the dedication of the Masonic monument at Bellevue Wednesday, J. G. Mines, J. C. Carhart and G. W. Fortner were Wayne members of the lodge who went to Omaha Monday evening to attend Grand Lodge sessions until Thursday. One of these sessions was the monument dedication commemorating the spot at Bellevue where Nebraska Lodge No. 1 was founded.

Nebraska Lodge No. 1 commenced its proceedings April 3, 1855. The first sessions were held in the log trading post building owned by Peter Sarpy. The site has since been claimed by the Missouri river and logs from the old cabin were saved and gavelts were made from them. The Wayne lodge is in possession of one of these historic gavelts.

Establish Monument There.
William S. Heller is the donor of the granite monument which stands in Bellevue. John R. Tapsier of North Bend, grand master of the lodge in Nebraska, accepted the memorial for the lodge.

Excerpts from the history read at Bellevue Wednesday follow. The history was prepared by J. A. Frye, of Nebraska Lodge No. 1.

"Nebraska Masonry had its inception in 1855 at Bellevue. The American Fur company maintained a trading post there, commanding the Indian trade of that vicinity. This was managed by Peter A. Sarpy, who was a very colorful character at that time, and became the first initiate into Masonry in Nebraska. What is now Nebraska Lodge No. 1 was established by the hardy pioneer Masons and chartered by the Grand Lodge of Illinois." Another lodge was organized at Nebraska City the following year, and a third at Omaha city. These three united in forming the Nebraska Grand Lodge, which was organized in 1857, and will observe the seventy-fifth anniversary of its founding during the convocation Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week."

Sessions of the convocation closed Thursday. Many of Nebraska's 42,000 Masons were in attendance from various sections.

Clerk Announces Better Sales Of Licenses On Dogs
Have you bought a license tag for your family watchdog? Every Bowser, Fido and Shep should have a license tag, for police authorities have been instructed to do away with dogs which are allowed to run without licenses.

At the city hall, where the tags are granted, there has been a big increase in the dog license business during the past week. Wednesday morning, 47 licenses were reported as sold. During all of last year, including the late autumn drive for license tag sale, only 70 were sold.

Luther Leagues Meet Here

church basement, an afternoon program was held in the auditorium.
Rev. H. Rohde of Hooper conducted the devotional services, and Supt. H. R. Best of the Wayne public schools gave an address on the question, "Is the Youth of Today Still Interested in the Church?"
Supt. Best asked first the question: "Is the church losing influence with the young people?" He answered his own question by explaining that, in former times, young people were compelled to attend church services, and therefore came to dislike them. Now, he said, young people are not forced to go to church, and they attend, if at all, sincerely, and because they want to do so.
Churches, stated the speaker, have progressed with everything else, and modern Christianity has taken on practical aspects which fit it into daily affairs.
Society Bears Burden.
If, he continued, anything is wrong with modern youth, society itself is responsible. Homes must provide a good background, and instill in youth a desire for religious expression which will bring about a religious revival.
The breakdown of moral fiber is a sign that has perturbed the thinkers of every age, remarked Mr. Best. Even Cotton Mather presented a tirade against the moral laxities of his day, mentioning particularly the improper dress of women, who even displayed their ankles! Moral fiber can be strengthened, the speaker showed, by the betterment of home environment, and the increase of interest in church affairs. When a desire for spiritual revival comes from within, the young people will bring about their own revival, he added.
A serious danger, asserted Mr. Best, lies in the pitching of religion on a minor key. The depressed note, not characteristic of Christianity, succeeds in driving away more young people than it attracts. The challenges which he left with his young listeners was: Make good your world, guard against the break down of your moral fiber, and make yourself a useful part of society.

Following Mr. Best's address, Miss Helen Vath played two selections, "Asa's Death," by Grieg, and "To the Spring," also by Grieg.
Rev. H. A. Teckhaus, pastor of the church in which the meetings were held, was pleased with the interest which the young Lutherans of this section displayed in the convention and matters discussed there.
Herbert Fisher of Omaha, national president of Luther League, gave an interesting address Thursday evening. His subject was "Looking Ahead." He compared the past and present and invited all to the 1933 national convention at Detroit. The world exhibition at Chicago will be visited at that

Strickland Gillilan, Columnist Tells of Capitol Misgivings

Passing the war and navy building yesterday and looking at its roocco outside, all little gables and dikes of various assorted sorts, I dugged inwardly again remembering Reed Smoot's tirade against the "spizzierinkuntms" that formed its interior, which is just as bizarre as the outside. Then memory of recent history went further and dug up the fact that, strange as it seems and believe it or not, that jigsaw edifice contains a structural interior practically a duplicate from an architect's standpoint, of that which constitutes the dignified structure known as the treasury building. One an eyesore, the other a comfort, the "chassis" of one is practically a replica of the other.

Further reflection was that only three years ago—nay, only two—the revamping of the war and navy building so as to make it conform in appearance to the beautiful treasury building, was confidently put to be "merely two millions of dollars—poof, poof; business of snapping fingers. So light as last fall the renovating and modernizing of the inside was seriously advocated by Reed Smoot and he got all hot and bothered when he was kidded about his "gimcracks and spizzierinkuntms" and told they would have to stand in status quo.
Well, it would be almost as much as a legislator's life is worth to bring up any such repair and rebuilding schemes now. This is a "broke" nation. And we don't talk in terms of "only" two millions any more. We have dispensed with our "onlies" and our "meres" when speaking of public money. Had those two words and their little sister "paltry" been discarded twenty years ago, we would now have some money in the United States Treasury.

Idly reflecting on the ways of all congresses, in the light of what the present one recently did, one remembers that they always do one thing for things. They polioxy and pile file for months, then get in a grand rush and do hastily the work that should have had the most profound and untrifled attention. They talk about making the singing of the Star Spangled Banner compulsory, and other things as intelligent as that. Then, when they are worn to a frazzle by letting themselves be lobbied to death, they pitch in acting and feeling like raving maniacs, and do hastily, in a thumb-nailed, lick-and-a-promise way, the really essential things they should have attended to while they were fresh and vigorous. In other words, they insist on being smarter than the Almighty. They try to do in a hurry things that nature has to take her time to.
A little boy in Sunday school was listening to his teacher who was expanding and enlarging on the omnipotence of Jehovah. The little lad had a judicial, investigating mind. He didn't swallow anything, hook, line and sinker.

time. Each League represented took part in a program which followed. The Wayne members served ice cream and wafers.
Winslow double quartet furnished several vocal selections which were well received Friday.
T. S. Hook who was to appear on the program, was unable to do so on account of being in Omaha on business.
Officers of the district were elected for the coming year as follows: Herman Meyer, Hooper, president; Leonard Ort, Bennington, vice president; Helen Peper, Bloomfield, recording secretary; Olga Hibery, Hooper, corresponding secretary; Irma Fedde, Bennington, treasurer. Next year's convention will be held in Hooper.
Wayne Luther League sponsored a program Friday evening. This was a dramatization of well known hymns and the parable of the ten virgins. A candle light service was held in connection.
Women of the church served dinner and luncheon which pleased the visitors, and the guests also enjoyed hospitality of the church members.

The convention was most successful from the standpoint of attendance and interest.
Miss Sophie Damme, president of the local Luther League, gave the address of welcome Thursday evening. To this Leonard Mangold of Bennington, district president, responded.

"I'll bet," he said boldly, "I can name something he can't do."
"Why, George? How can you say such a wicked, irreverent thing? Indeed you can't name anything he can't do. Suppose you try naming such a thing!"
"Well," said the geologist, "He can't make a two-year-old colic in a minute."
On this same principle, Congress tries to do a well-thought-out job of legislation that is to affect the whole country most vitally, in a mad, delirious, slap-dash, hysterical scramble. It just can't be done.
But they always let it go too long. This time it became their wild-eyed watchword "Balance and seram!"

And while we are on the subject of the mental fearlessness of children, here is one I was told recently for truth, right here in your Potomac which dashes along with all the fury of frozen molasses.
Little Millie had always been under fine discipline. She had been taught the harmlessness of the dark and the safety of being alone at night. She was normal and "bidable" and satisfactory.
One night some two months ago she refused to go to bed in the dark and stay alone till she went to sleep. The usual things were told her, but without effect. Insistence was resorted to, but all to no effect. She had set her little will like reinforced adamant against going to sleep alone in that room with the lights turned out. They put her to bed, turned out the light and left, but she put up a most fervent and sincere yell and would not be quieted.
Finally her mother—already an hour late for the contract bridge party—sat down on the edge of Mildred's bed. She was going to get to the bottom of this mystery. "Why won't you stay alone, as you always did before?"
"Because," said Mildred calmly, "I am afraid to stay in the room alone."
"But haven't I told you many and many a time," said her mother, "that you were not alone in the room ever—that God was here with you?"
"Yes, mamma, and I used to believe in that. But He wasn't in the room with little Charles Lindbergh."

One of the recent cerebral clots in this city did us some more dirt. It was the annual conference (their titles always begin that way) of provincial health authorities of North America. One of the Harvard brass hats attending this debauch of cogitation sprung on us the fact that colds had nothing to do with drafts or temperatures or wet feet or getting sweaty and sitting on a cake of ice. When he had said this many things I was delighted and believed I was about to be benefited in a big way. But when he went further he got worse. Before he signed off I almost took

Balancing The Budget
 THE long struggle over balancing the national budget ended this week when a measure to provide $1,118,500,000 in revenues passed both houses and received executive approval. Adopting means to wipe out deficits puts the country on a sound working basis, and now the enforcement of economy along lines not inimical to progress, will tend to take the inertia out of markets and business and stimulate employment.

But balancing the budget is now followed by house action to approve the Garner building plan, proposing an expenditure of $2,300,000,000. This step is calculated to open avenues for employment, but objection is offered that beneficiaries will be small in number compared with the total army out of work, and that results would not justify the tax burden. Whether the huge sum proposed for building would, if finally adopted, operate far enough to the advantage of employment to cure economic ills, we do not know, but have large doubts. Neither does congress know, regardless of its presumptions based on hopes for votes. However, one item in the measure which provides for a federal building in Wayne, should excite our enthusiastic approval, because the improvement is long over-due. And doubtless every community to be helped from the gigantic pork barrel distribution, would give endorsement to its share, repudiating the balance as unnecessary and oppressive.

Frowns On Mob Action
 THE position of the executive committee of the Nebraska American Legion in opposing veterans who are gathering in Washington to demand bonus payments not due until 1945, will be endorsed by members of the organization generally. Besieging a government already harassed almost beyond endurance by deficits, by necessity for budget balancing and by demands for tax reductions is in violent conflict with the spirit that served and defended the stars and stripes. The Legion committee passed some very positive resolutions condemning the mass action, in part as follows:

"Adjusted compensations to veterans, payable as bonus certificates in 1945, represent no more than justice due the veterans, but any proposal that these be paid in 1932 when no one of the nation's hundred million people can be certain of today's job or tomorrow's food strikes at the financial stability and the very existence of the federal government."
 "The department of Nebraska calls upon the senators and congressmen from Nebraska, and all other members of congress, in consideration of the present demands for payment of the bonus, to recognize their obligation to all the people, and repudiate unjust demands of a 4-percent veteran minority and the demagoguery that fosters it."

Set-Back To Mammon
 IN periods of ascending prosperity, every individual and every institution strives for greater and greater achievement. Factories set higher marks to reach each year, and sales are pushed with increased energy. New equipment is added to speed up production, and enlarged sales groups are employed to build up bigger and bigger volume. If at the end of a year gross returns are not larger than the previous year something in the system of handling affairs is considered in need of repair. Nervous energy goes into every line of endeavor with mounting force. Industry travels at a rapid, dizzy pace until it is bucked off the track by an unexpected economic blowout, and then the circle of buying is broken, demand weakens and possibilities flatten. Markets grow sluggish and everything slows up. Then ensues not a wild industrial orgy to beat the record, but a battle to make ends meet, to keep together until the pendulum swings back and normal conditions are restored. Then will be established new standards to excel with each succeeding year. If it is good for the soul to be tortured out of a mania for money-grabbing and material supremacy, large headway has been made in that direction.

Democratic Politics
 AN enthusiastic Al Smith devotee in Connecticut says a strong fight will be made for the former New York governor for the democratic presidential nomination in the forthcoming convention. Smith is urged as the man generally approved by democrats over the country. As a matter of fact, however, probably Smith knows less about affairs outside of New York City than any man mentioned by either party for the presidency. Governor Roosevelt who has shown superior pre-convention strength, does not measure up to many of the essentials required in a national executive. We have heard of nothing to disabuse our mind of the suspicion that he is a "weak sister," as he is contemplated in connection with the presidency. The one big man in the democratic fold for the presidential nomination at this time is Newton Baker, and if democratic judgment is functioning properly at the time of the convention he will be nominated despite his protests.

 General Charles W. Dawes has resigned as president of the reconstruction finance corporation on the ground that the organization's work has been well advanced, that the nation's budget has been balanced and that "the turning point toward eventual prosperity in this country seems to have been reached." General Dawes has been in one branch of the public service after another for a long time, and he is anxious to get away from the limelight and back into looking after his private affairs. He mentions that bank failures have decreased to normal and that a healthier condition generally prevails. He is a man of such foresight and sound judgment that his confidence is stimulating.

Senator Brookhart met his Waterloo in the Iowa primary this week when Henry Field of Shenandoah, captured the nomination. It is not known that Brookhart ever did much aside from drawing his salary and loading the federal payroll with relatives, and it is likely the voting was prompted more by opposition to the present incumbent than by favor for the broadcasting station proprietor. Field announces himself as a "dry," whereas his democratic opponent, Louis Murphy, of Dubuque, announces himself as "wet," and thus the Iowa senatorial campaign will arouse prohibition as a sharply contested pre-election issue.

Leaning away from old-time requirements for due Sabbath observance should not lead one away from religion or retard one's spiritual development. Some things that used to be considered an infringement on the sanctity of the Sabbath are now popularly deemed harmless and in no way subversive of proper soul growth. The main thing is to get into closer accord with the divine, and allow nothing to drive one's thoughts or deeds downward on the Sabbath or on any other day.

It would be contrary to all rules followed in running the weather if a drought could now be introduced to spoil the crops. Nothing but a complete blowup of nature could now stop the satisfactory way in which rain and sunshine are taking turns, and these essentials will bring a harvest of giant proportions.

New additions to the Herald's subscription list from week to week show that people count a comprehensive newspaper as an economy—not only giving events of the day, but revealing trade opportunities as set forth by live dealers.

The smell of onions, now filling the air, is stronger than usual, showing increased strength of soil under the influence of normal moisture and sunshine.

Just Woke Up.
 Nebraska Farmer: We seem to have awakened to the importance of taxes after having slumbered over the subject for a third of a century—maybe longer. The farmer has exercised his usual resourcefulness in reducing operating costs, even to the extent of finding income and saving money that it would almost seem did not exist. Having done all this and desiring to do more, he bumped squarely into a fixed overhead cost that was beyond his control—taxes. Hard as it is to meet that situation, it is not an unmixed evil, for the study that accompanies any intelligent effort to reduce taxes unfolds to us where other money has been going. We find that Uncle Sam and all of his children have been called upon to do much that we should have been doing for ourselves. In the course of getting the job done that way we have added an army to the payroll and much of the money has been wasted. By and large the payrolls would not be so staggering were it not for the abuses that accompany bureaucratic activity.

There are very few things that the government can do as well as private industry, and none that it can do better, except to see that laws are enforced and equity is maintained among all of the people. But, more important than this, when it is placed in the hands of elective officials to determine the amount of the expenditures and where and how they shall be made, the pork barrel gets entirely out of control. Little wonder then that since 1900 Federal government costs have increased five-fold, state taxes have increased 700 percent and the costs of local governments have increased almost 400 percent. It is estimated that the total cost of government now is 15 billion dollars out of a total income of 60 billion dollars of all of the people of the country. In other words, we are paying out one-fourth of our income for the privilege of being governed. This was not so bad when income was easier and the purchasing power of the dollar was about twice what it is now. Under present circumstances, it is a tragedy and actually amounts in some cases to the confiscation of property.

If we ever have Socialism in this country it will be through taxing the value out of property. Some of our socialistically inclined representatives have not overlooked that fact. We shall be fortunate indeed, if out of the present government financing of utilities we do not find the government in ownership of a few railroads. There is a basis for real fear in this, for once the government begins operating a business its system of cost accounting gives the public little assurance that taxes and tax-eaters ever can be curbed.

Recovering.
 A French journalist, commenting on the industrial situation, says the United States is now in the "healing stage." We hope this means that there will be no more cuts.—Boston Herald.

EMPLOYMENT.
 In discussing unemployment and future labor problems, the Christian Science Monitor inclines to the belief that fewer hours per week without decreased pay would, with the aid of modern machines, do all the world's work and would enable more persons to have jobs without reducing buying power and thus without affecting adversely the earnings of industry. Not many years ago the average working day was ten hours—of ten more. It is possible to produce needed volume in less time, there would seem no sound reason why working hours should not be cut down. However, to justify a shorter working day, employees will have to rise to the need of more and better service. They cannot be clock-watchers and responsibility-shifters and expect increase in compensation. Right now with millions out of work, there is still a demand for experts, dynamic brains, forceful personalities, result producers. Long working weeks are often required to meet the delinquencies of those who are slow and indifferent. It is therefore up to employees, as well as employers, to show that a shorter working week will not overload overhead and sacrifice investment.

 Tearing Up Railroads.
 Towns along the Wynot branch of the M. & O. railroad are organizing to prevent the company from abandoning the line. Joining the Wynot branch is doubtless preliminary to disposing of other erstwhile feeder lines in the same way. Noting the struggle to keep the Wynot branch, Editor F. D. Stone of the Harrington Herald offers this powerfully suggestive observation: "People like to have a railroad even if they don't patronize it."

Good Old Days, Bah!
 (Blair Neb., Post Tribune)
 It would be a long trek back to the "good old days" of which a good old lady was telling me the other day. What a mess of things we would have to scrimp to get back to the old conditions! It would give a brain fog simply to enumerate them all. Where would you begin?

Well, tear down the corner filling station and replace the corner saloon. That would be a legitimate and chronologically correct first move in order to restore the old order. Then turn the garage back into a smelly, fly-breeding livery stable. Eliminate the movie hall by restoring the old town hall. South tear up the concrete highway then tear up Blair and make the trip to Omaha by "hoss and wagon" in three hours. Cut out all the 18 million phones in the U. S. and scrap every telegraph instrument and every radio.

Then sell the furnace for scrap iron and replace with a big, drafty fireplace or sheet iron heater. Re-install the good old kerosene lamps in place of electric lights, kick out the gas and electric stoves, and cook over the fireplace and in its huge side oven. Then pitch out the electric iron and do all the family ironing with the nice and heavy old "sad iron."

Sink every automobile vehicle in the Atlantic or Pacific or the Gulf, and let the horse-drawn family "carry-all" and "buggy" slow down and cool off our passion for going places and seeing things.

Give up the refrigerator, ice and electric, and hang the milk and butter and meat in the good old well. Cut out the refrigerator cars and do your own butchering. Substitute the weekly for the daily newspaper, and wait six weeks to learn who was elected president.

Banish the typewriter and fountain pen and go back to the dear old quill and ink horn. Fill up the sewers and let the drainage take care of itself—and give the doctors more to do. Scrap all farm machinery and do the plowing, mowing, raking, harvesting of grain and the churning by hand. Destroy

PAYMENT PLAN.
 If carefully calculated, the so called payment plan may be an easy way to acquire property, but if adopted without due foresight, it causes a great deal of worry and often loss. We think the too careless use of the plan has contributed a very appreciable share to late hardening of the economic arteries. A woman has the money to make complete payment for something she wants and needs. But she sees a thing largely improved for the purpose, ten or fifteen times more costly, and the cash in her possession will make the first payment. She adopts the payment plan, and she adds it to several other similar transactions. The result is that the income required to cover seen and unforeseen obligations, proves insufficient, and disappointment and forfeiture follow. Unthinking acceptance of procedure of payments is not restricted to women. Men do the same thing with equal fervor and indiscretion. Among lessons learned while industry has its wings folded is not to buy in excess of ability to pay—not to buy on prospects of doubtful fulfillment.

every shoe factory, cotton mill and woolen mill, and make your own shoes, cloth and stockings.
 As, yes, the "good old days," they never can come back, and we all know they were really the "bad old days" so far as comfort and convenience of living go. We have less back-breaking drudgery. We have wider horizons. The housewife, the office man, the farmer and the factory operative have more time for rest and self improvement and play.
 The days in which we are now living are the best, in living conditions, the best ever has shown up to the present. And as a wise one once sagely remarked, "We ain't seen nothin' yet."

Truck Regulation.
 Sioux City Journal: The United States supreme court has handed down a decision that a state has the right to regulate the size and weight of motor trucks on the highways and streets regardless of whether the vehicles are engaged in interstate or intrastate commerce. All points in dispute in a Texas case were covered and settled by the high court. Nothing was left in doubt, and of course, application of the decision is nationwide. It simply means that the commonwealth has full constitutional power of such truck regulation and control of motor truck operation as may appear reasonable and justified.
 In Texas a statute had been enacted limiting the length, breadth and height of motor trucks and the net weight of the load carried. The plaintiff contended that the state had no right to make such a law on the grounds that it violated the due process, commerce and contract clauses of the federal constitution, and also that such limitations were opposed to "sound engineering opinion." In the trial court it was held that the state had legal right to impose such regulation and control as were stipulated in the statute.

Chief Justice Hughes wrote the opinion of the supreme court. The decision held that "preservation of the highways and safety of the public were within the province of state to supervise." With reference to engineering opinion, the court held that the criterion of constitutional power was not "scientific precision." Moreover, the fact that the matter of public safety was within the police powers of the state had made it impossible for courts to set aside decisions reached by legislators when they had passed upon such debatable matters.

The decision of the supreme court means that scientific opinion of so called engineering opinion as might be claimed is not to be construed as transcending in importance the judgment of state legislatures. The weight and size of a motor truck in either interstate or intrastate commerce and its load would be matters for legislative authorities to decide even in opposition to engineering opinion. This permission of flexibility as allowed by the court's interpretation obviously is in the interest of public safety rather than in behalf of physical aspects of a question that might arise. The court disposed of the commerce and contract clauses by holding that a state had the right to regulate and promote safety on the highways and also to conserve their use through protecting them against overloading.

A Healthy Sign.
 Omaha World-Herald: A healthy sign is the return to popularity, as recorded by both book publisher and movie maker, of "the westerns."
 In books a "western" is a story of range riding, quick shooting cowboys. The movies put him in the films.
 The plot is unusually simple.

The World Looks Good.
 (Lincoln Journal)
 When the fifteen-year-old boy who had spent nine months in a steel respirator had recovered the use of a paralyzed lung muscle and was released from the hospital, he made this comment: "Everything looks better than I remember it." There is no doubt about it, everything probably looks better to him than ever before. The depression hasn't changed the looks of things. It hasn't robbed them of any of their essential values. When this lad was stricken it was late summer. Things were looking a bit dry and shabby.

Now that he is out again it is late spring. Nature is at her best. The parks are filled with flowers. Residence areas are alive with blooms. And the country is glorious.

There's a girl, a hero, and a villain. There are also a group of uncouth cowboys, quick on the verbal rebar as they are on the draw, but abashed and humbled in the presence of a lady. It's their native chivalry that makes them so. They always help the hero foil the villain, who is usually a cattle rustler or worse, and they celebrate the final wedding with high jinks.
 Now that kind of a story has only one significance. It must be that the primitive, fundamentally wholesome things of American life are again in favor. The night club life is losing favor. The ideal of a home that found expression in gold-plated bath rooms is gone. Affecting the Harvard accent is out. Americans want the fundamental thing that has made them what they are. They want the pioneer spirit.

That spirit does not scorn hard labor. It does not refuse simple food. It seeks no more social enjoyment than neighborhood. Its moral standard is one of absolute honesty. It believes in marriage and the home. It may fight in right, as opposed to might.
 Maybe the news of the day doesn't reflect a unanimous return to that spirit. But it is a step in the right direction, at least, if we want to read about it, and see it in the talkies. Maybe, by such vicarious pioneering, we'll find a way back to time-tested fundamentals.

What Chance Has the Graduate?
 York Republican: What chance has the 1932 graduate to get a job?
 We think it is a slim one unless he or she has some inherent or cultivated ability to make a useful and important contribution to the world.

Just now it seems the world is over-run with human beings. At least there are too many for the jobs there are for them. The possession of a diploma means nothing at all in the battle of life. One may wave it until his arms fall in helplessness but it will attract no attention.
 All that counts is that the possessor, better equipped by the discipline of his will and the enlargement of his talents, proceeds with all the ability he can muster to put those forces into action. He need not wait for a great opportunity to beckon him. Opportunity does not point a great beckoning finger at any one. One hitches the humble vehicle of his talents to the first likely equipage that passes and hopes with a great expectation he will come out in a big place.

We pity the graduate who thinks the world will give him a great chance. It never will. We pin our faith on the graduate who stows his sheepskin in a bureau drawer, rolls up his mental sleeves, and proceeds without delay to do the next thing that falls to his hand. He is he one that will be likely to arrive sometime in the enchanted land of great opportunity which is reached by sacrifice, toil and preparation.

Speaking of Shortcake.
 Omaha World-Herald: Somewhere in the Good Book we find ious. But that isn't the really significant thing. The matter of real importance to this boy is that he is out again, that the long months in the iron lung have ended. He is again free to see and feel and smell. He isn't strong yet. One arm is almost helpless. But he is out and under his own power. That is enough to make him happy.

 Most boys of fifteen are too busy to see and appreciate nature. They notice the trees and flowers but they do not really see them. They are too busy with their games, their Indian-hunting, their pirates playing and their swimming. But when a lad gets out of an iron lung after nine months in those cramped quarters with nothing to look at but the bare ceiling, he begins to see things. He notices, perhaps for the first time, the trees in intimate detail, the flowers, the birds, and all the other beauties of nature.
 It's good to see other people and watch them do things and smile and be happy. It's pleasant to watch airplanes fly and fire trucks roll down the street and ambulances swing around and corner. The world, depression or no depression, is a pretty swell place for a small boy who is able to get around and enjoy it, especially after an enforced stay in an artificial respirator makes him anxious to see and breathe in all the sights and adventure of this exciting world.

A Daughter Reflects.
 Omaha World-Herald: A decade or two ago, when the first international airplane flights were being made and the potentialities of radio were first being realized, the prediction was frequently made that an era of amity and international understanding was about to dawn.
 "National boundaries have been wiped out," said lookers-into-the-future. "Men can fly over them, can talk across them. Soon they will fly and talk across oceans. Then they will begin to realize, as they never have before, the essential brotherhood of mankind. Hatreds will die and war will become impossible."

A part of the prediction has been realized. Flies do cross the ocean and the human voice circles the world. People of Paris can, if they like, listen to tooth paste dialogues broadcast from New York. Farther east Manchuria can listen to the voice of Tokio. India, by transoceanic hookups, can hear Ramsay MacDonald.
 Yet there has been no perceptible diminution in international distrust. No one looking at Shanghai or Harbin or Paris or London or Washington could say with conviction the millennium was at hand. Shrinking the world, bringing the people closer together, has signally failed to promote neighborliness.

"Why? One answer is, probably, as good as another. Yet there is particular charm and wisdom in the answer given by Mrs. Morse Rummel, 80-year-old daughter of Samuel Morse, artist, inventor of the telegraph and prophet of the modern age of electric communication.
 "It is curious to recall," she said, "that my father believed it (his invention) would lead to a new era of peace and prosperity by increasing communication and comprehension between peoples. But somehow comprehension doesn't seem to have followed in the wake of development of the means of communication. My voice can be carried across the Atlantic between the two countries I love so much, France and America. But I wonder if comprehension was not really easier when everybody took more time to think. Perhaps father would have been wise if he had remained an artist."

Destroy Flies Early.
 Omaha Journal-Stockman: With the arrival of warm weather we are once more admonished to swat the fly. Science has taught us the extent of the fly menace in spreading disease and the reasons for a persistent warfare on this pestiferous insect are well understood.
 Swatting the fly is all right as far as it goes but a better plan is to put the fly out of business before he begins his career of crime. Much more effective than the swatter is a program of sanitation, of cleaning up breeding places. Prevention is better than any cure and the best way to get rid of the trash, litter and filth in which they delight and in which they increase and multiply.

Probably if people knew more about flies they would be aroused against them sufficiently to check their power for evil. Science has established that a single fly can carry 6,000,000 disease germs that 39 distinct diseases are traceable to the fly, that two flies can produce in one summer a family numbering 5,600,000,000,000, a new generation coming into existence every two weeks, that the total damage to human beings resulting from flies runs to scores of millions of dollars in this country every year.
 Flies originate in filth, grow in it, feed on it and carry it into homes where they deposit it together with disease germs on everything they touch. They touch principally food consumed by human beings. Among diseases carried by flies are typhoid, tuberculosis, diarrhea, cholera, summer complaint and infantile paralysis.
 Swat the fly. Yet, but let us go further and swat the insanitary surroundings in which the flies live, move and have their being. Killing one fly at a time is a hopeless summer's job. Killing millions of the vicious and disgusting insects by cleaning up the premises is a really worth while work.

A conservative estimate is that the mud slung during a political campaign gathered together makes a number of mountains out of mole hills.—Life.

and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him. Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

A correlative passage is from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, and reads: "The history of Christianity furnishes sublime proofs of the supporting influence and protecting power bestowed on man by his heavenly Father, omnipotent Mind who gives man faith and understanding whereby to defend himself, not only from temptation, but from bodily suffering." (page 387).

Next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock we are to be especially fervent when we are to hear Rev. L. L. Legters, a nationally known explorer and preacher. We are told that his message will bring us the story of Indian lore. He will also tell us much about our work among the Indians. This is of special interest this year as one of our mission studies will be on our Indian work. We shall be glad to have the Methodists with us in this service.

Saturday evening the young people of our Intermediate C. E. will serve ice cream and cake on the lawn at the manse. They are seeking to raise a part of the money necessary for delegates who will attend the Bellevue conference from June 27 to July 3. Both Mrs. Davies and the pastor have been asked to have classes in this conference.

The ladies of the Missionary society had a happy time in their study and breakfast last Wednesday morning.

There will be an important business meeting of the Ladies' Aid at the church Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Radio Sets and Vacations, Citizenship Tests and School Days Engage Our Attention.

A radio set was practically the only unharmed object on a farm wrecked in the twister near Piller a fortnight ago.

Youngsters but recently freed from the routine of school books and bells are reacting with a supreme laziness that should worry no one.

Students are coming back to the State Teachers College for another session of knowledge-gathering.

Questions put to persons who are candidates for naturalization might wrinkle the brows of individuals born and reared in this country and educated in the public schools.

The way things have been, one can expect to be mobbed or hissed at for making any comment on the times.

We may have dry summers, periods of excessive rain, and cyclonic winds here in northeast Nebraska.

Wayne's yards and gardens continue to blossom. Splendid collections of iris and peonies are making the usual attractive display.

One knows that summer has come when men who have been properly clad all winter shed coats, then vests, as offerings before the god of comfort.

"Missourians" said a Saturday headline. "Like soybeans." Well, maybe Nebraskans would like them, too.

A big order for the June graduate to fill was given at Iowa City Sunday when Dr. Robert E. Spier of New York told students at the commencement services that a new

Return From Trip To Former Homes

Prof. and Mrs. J. Q. Owen and two daughters arrived home Friday afternoon from a 2300-mile trip to the early homes of Prof. and Mrs. Owen in Kentucky and Illinois.

The Owens visited the monument erected at Louisville to the memory of Zachary Taylor, cousin of Mrs. Owen.

The large brick home which was Mrs. Owen's childhood residence has been taken down and replaced with a modern apartment house.

The family went from Kentucky to Illinois to visit Prof. Owen's home at Bloomington.

Annual Conference Of Farm Women

The tenth annual Interstate Conference of Farm Women will be held at Sioux City, Iowa, in the Y. W. C. A. parlors at Sixth and Nebraska streets, on June 14-15, 1932.

Nationally known speakers to appear are Miss Mary Drake, extension specialist of Brooks college.

There will be a luncheon on the second day at the Y. W. C. A. parlors.

Fair Dates Are Set In Nearby Counties

Fair dates in some northeast Nebraska counties have been announced.

A Little Too Much.

A news dispatch from Worcester, Mass., says that William Allen, the man who found the body of the Lindbergh baby, has been signed as a feature attraction by a circus.

He is to tell, as part of the circus entertainment to pay customers, the story of his finding of the baby.

Just the same, the Tribune suggests one course of action to people in the towns that this circus visits.

You might be puzzled as to how those Tammany boys get all their money, but if you follow the testimony carefully, you see at once it's just a gift.

Plan Exercises Here On Friday

Prof. A. V. Teed To Address Wayne County Eighth Grade Group.

Wayne county schools will graduate 153 eighth graders Friday, June 10, when exercises will be held at the Gay theatre at 2 o'clock.

The program opens with the march. Eight grade pupils will meet at the court house at 1:45 and go to the theatre together.

Miss Pearl Sewell, county superintendent, will speak briefly to announce honors and to present diplomas.

Fair Dates Are Set In Nearby Counties

Fair dates in some northeast Nebraska counties have been announced.

Many Years In Group.

Newcastle, Neb.—A four-generation group whose ages total more than 138 years, is headed by Mrs. Augusta Kahn, of Ponca, 71 years old.

When the key is hung outside a door in Sweden, says a travel writer, it is a sign the family is out.

Winter Said Poor.

Anderson said southwestern Nebraska is the driest section in the state, and that winter wheat there is a great disappointment.

Russell Bartels Is June Graduate

Russell W. Bartels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bartels graduated June 6 from the law college at the University of Nebraska.

This year he was selected as a candidate for the Rhodes scholarship.

Abandonment has been extremely heavy he found, from Central Clay county to Lincoln county.

Northeast Nebraska State's Garden Spot

Lincoln, Neb., June 3.—North-eastern and north central Nebraska agricultural regions comprising the drought area of last year, were described today by A. E. Anderson, state and federal crop statistician.

The federal expert returned yesterday from an inspection trip of more than 1,500 miles through the state.

These two sections, Anderson said, have been favored with an abundance of moisture in contrast to last year.

Along Ponca creek in Boyd county, the downpour turned the stream into a torrent, washing out many crops and requiring much replanting.

Gasoline Explodes As Starting Fire

W. D. Hall narrowly escaped serious injury while starting a bonfire at the nursery early last week when the gasoline he poured over the rubbish exploded as he ignited it.

Anderson found conditions quite favorable in the Panhandle section although only a small acreage remains of the winter wheat crop.

He expects Nebraska to have a marked increase in corn and barley acreages this year, with a fair increase in oats.

Marian Robinson Has Good Record

Marian June Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ruy Robinson of Martin, S. D., and formerly of Wayne, and granddaughter of Mrs. C. J. Lund of this place, was graduated from the assumption academy at Chadron, Neb., with "A" honors at the age of 15 years.

We're fed up on reading about so many national questions. What we want now is some of the answers.

Plumber Is Dead.

Stanton, Neb.—Funeral services were held here for Mrs. Conrad Schmidt, 75, who passed away at her home in Stanton.

If shoes and stockings have a few holes, that's poverty. If they are mostly holes, that's style.

Anyhow, the Democrats can't be accused of being sheep. It is hard to get two-thirds of them to follow anybody.

Cap. Battle Communists—head line. What can you expect when you wave a red flag at a bull.

Elevator Is Burned.

Ponca, Neb. The older building of the O. I. Newton grain elevator was destroyed by fire here Saturday afternoon.

Workmen who saw the accident said the explosion was so strong that it rolled Mr. Hall several feet.

Southwestern Nebraska suffered the greatest injury from dry weather, although that territory has ample moisture at the present time.

Anderson found more Hessian fly infestation in Phelps county, with farmers plowing up much of the remaining winter wheat there and in other counties.

He expects Nebraska to have a marked increase in corn and barley acreages this year, with a fair increase in oats.

Abandonment has been extremely heavy he found, from Central Clay county to Lincoln county.

The minimum charge is 50 cents as before, but there is no discount for prompt payment under the new rate. Instead, a penalty of 5 per cent is added for failure to pay before the 10th of the month. The old rate provided for 40 KWH at 5 3/4 cents, the next 40 KWH at 4 cents, and excess at 3 cents.

Senator Howell of this state has held, has contended on the floor of the senate, that the war debts have been forgiven and that all this country now asks under the settlement made and which should have been final, is repayment of a sum equal to the interest on the principal for a term of sixty-two years. He has produced the figures to prove that contention.

Efforts are being made to secure participation of this country in the conference. To that end it has been proposed that the conference consider other matters, such as tariff barriers to world trade. That subject included, it is held, there is no excuse for the United States holding aloof.

There is some sentiment in this country for cancellation of war debts on the theory that world business would be improved. There is argument for forgetting reparations on the theory that reparations out of the way Germany might repay debts incurred since the war. This country has loaned millions in the effort to aid Germany in restoration.

The outlook for final settlement of international financial disagreements thru the Lausanne conference is not bright.

President Hoover reports that there is still a lot of optimism in the country. But most of it is being felt by pessimists who believe their predictions are coming true.—San Diego Union.

War Debt Tangles.
(Lincoln Journal)

When the Hoover moratorium year ends no progress will have been made toward international debt settlements, altho the matter of reparations from Germany has cleared a bit thru German statements of inability to pay now and inability to make statements for the future regarding payments. The Lausanne conference, to convene soon to consider debts and reparations, faces a somewhat uncertain attention at the hands of those most interested in what may be done.

The United States stands alone in its contention that reparations can have no relation to the payment of war debts other countries owe this nation. The money was not loaned with the understanding that it was to be repaid thru reparations to be received from Germany. The money was loaned outright and this country holds the promises of nations who borrowed "Farmers often call us by telephone to find out whether we have parts for broken farm machinery. If we have, we deliver at once by truck, saving the customer time and trips to town," an implement and hardware dealer told us.

"If incorrect catalogue numbers or descriptions are given, we discover this when we check the order to verify it. Then we call the customer back. Often this saves the farmer additional time and sometimes money, too," this dealer said.

Telephone service links farmers to town—helps the community and helps every one.

The People Are Thinking.
Omaha Journal-Stockman: Within the last few months we have seen a good many demonstrations, or parades in favor of this, that and the other thing fizzle out completely without accomplishing anything in particular. Mayor Walker's big parade in New York in the interest of beer was something of a joke to the rest of the country and the march of the bonus brigade on Washington excited but little contempt.

Demonstrations may please the demonstrators and amuse the spectators but they do not get very far nowadays in influencing the public opinion. People realize that the demonstrators usually have an axe to grind. Any worth while cause does not need an army with banners to boost it. In fact the public is inclined to look with suspicion on any movement that has to be advertised in this way.

Here in the United States our citizens are usually more or less irritated by demonstrations, parades and marches and find themselves prejudiced against the cause supported, if for no other reason than that the demonstrators are trying to appeal to the emotions rather than the reasoning power of the people. They are trying to hold somebody responsible for the state of the nation.

Our elder statesmen down in Washington might well emulate the example of the people and make less noise while they do more thinking.

Seeking Damages.
Madison, Neb.—William N. Youngclaus, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Madison, and his wife, J. Murrill, through their attorneys, filed petitions in district court, Douglas county, asking a total of $73,700, of the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway company, for injuries sustained when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a street car on the streets of Omaha, February 17, 1929.

Of this sum Youngclaus is suing for $53,100, and his wife for $20,600.

The plaintiffs allege that a street car operated by the street railway company and driven at a high rate of speed, without headlights, signals, gongs or warnings of any kind, collided with their automobile. Youngclaus suffered the loss of one eye, bones of his left cheek were broken, and he received other wounds and bruises.

Mrs. Youngclaus' skull was fractured and she received several cuts and wounds.

We always get our early morning exercise from the radio. Somebody turns it on and we have to get up and turn it off.—Judge.
