FIFTY-SECOND YEAR

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1932

NUMBER TWENTYONE

HERALD PICNIC IS ATTENDED BY LARGE NUMBERS

Children Are In Parade Which Is Feature For Morning. CHO-CHO PERFORMANCE A children's parade and entertainment at Bressler park featured the picnic which the Wayne Herald sponsored last Friday for young folks of Wayne county and vicinity.

ATTENDANCE BIG INTEREST LIVELY AT COUNTY FAIRS

THE county fair season is on, and in northeast Nebraska, contributions from agriculture are better than those of a year ago, and up to the standard of the best in any year.

PAGEANTS ARE IN PREPARATION FOR FALL FAIR

Washington Bicentennial Is Arranged on Second Night Program. INDIANS WILL PERFORM Our heritage from Washington is the title of the pageant which Mrs. S. A. Lutgen has written for the second night of Wayne county's fall fair for which are September 16, 16 and 17.

V. A. SENTER

BUSINESS MAN IN WAYNE LONG TIME IS DEAD

Victor A. Senter Passed On Tuesday At Hospital In Lincoln. RITES ARE HELD TODAY Victor A. Senter, prominent in Wayne business life for quarter of a century, passed on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in a Lincoln hospital, aged almost 59.

SHOOTING TAKES LIFE OF LOWERY AT PIERCE FARM

Wayne College Graduate Is Killed When Shot From Ambush. WAS HELPING OFFICER D. Paul Lowery, O'Neill, graduate of Wayne Teachers College and athletic coach at Long Pine was shot and killed and Sheriff Ed. Schwartz of Pierce, was wounded about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning when Lowery was accompanying the sheriff in pursuit of a gang of alleged liquor-runners.

BOYS AND GIRLS IN SERVICE FOR WORTHY PURPOSE

EARLY in their lives boys and girls usually become imbued with the wholesome spirit of reciprocity—giving as well as receiving. This idea is emphasized at Christmas time when gifts are exchanged and when the fellow who is able to bestow a gift feels better than the fellow who receives it.

ATKINS RITES ARE CONDUCTED ON WEDNESDAY

Early Settler Dies Here Monday At The Home Of Mrs. R. S. Jeffrey. WAS ILL DURING YEAR Funeral services for Josiah H. Atkins who died here Monday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. R. S. Jeffrey, after a year's illness with heart trouble, were held at the Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Dogs In Parade

People did not know there were many dogs of different kinds until they saw the parade, and with very few exceptions, the animals behaved well, quietly submitting to the direction of the children who led them.

The Bressler Park

The Bressler park where the picnic was held, and over which R. F. Whorlow presides as caretaker, is a model of cleanliness. Its fine trees give ample shade, and its grassy sward is kept neatly cropped and entirely free from unsightly rubbish.

Space Trespassers

We are glad to note the aggressive position taken by the president of the Nebraska Press association against attempts by big industrial institutions to work free advertising into the newspapers of the country.

Patriotic Motives

At the state convention of the American Legion in Norfolk last week it is noted that the body went on record by a large majority against pressing bonus demands at this time.

Crop Marching Onward

The intermittent rainfall of Saturday, scattering a half-inch over north Nebraska, mellowed the ground and refreshed vegetation. While corn was not suffering, it will be helped, and having successfully run the gamut of everything likely to happen, a big, well-matured crop may now be considered assured.

Keeping Up Morale

Americans had been accustomed to high standards of living with little restraint on ways and means to gratify desire for luxury. When the depression set in, and turned profits to losses, we had to be held back on hedging until the downward process became painful.

URGE STUDENTS TO PLAN WORK

Wayne High School Pupils Register Friday And Saturday. Students who plan to attend the Wayne high school this fall should arrange to register at the school building on Friday and Saturday, September 2 and 3, according to Supt. H. R. Best.

Parade To Park

After marching through Main street the parade led the crowd to Bressler park where the band played before adjourning. Family picnic dinners occupied the noon hour, and the Herald presented an ice cream treat for those who were present.

T. A. Leadley Speaks

Thomas A. Leadley, editor of the Nebraska Farmer at Lincoln, who came to Wayne for the day with H. L. Carpenter, field executive for the Omaha Union Stock Yards, spoke briefly. Mr. Leadley praised the high type of citizenship, the fine homes and well-improved farms of the vicinity, and expressed his pleasure to see such wonderful crops and such good conditions in this section of the state.

Cho-Cho Performs

DISCUSS LOWER RATES IN CITY

Propose Fifteen Percent Cut To Water Users Here Soon. Discussion of the proposed lowering the city water rates took up most of the evening at the regular meeting of the city council Tuesday. A general lowering of the rate 15 percent was suggested, with a minimum charge of $1 per quarter instead of 50c. Complaints have been received that the present rate is too high for industrial purposes, and members expressed the opinion that local firms who use large quantities of water should not be forced to put down their own wells because of a top-high rate.

Officers Disperse Picketers Nearby

Without Resisting, Thirty Clear Road Saturday At Wakefield.

An attempt of about 30 men to picket the highway south of Wakefield Saturday evening, allowing no protest to be taken to market over that road, was stopped in short order by Sheriff A. W. Stephens, Marshal A. W. Stewart and others who went to the scene. The men, Sheriff Stephens said, were commanding farmers to stop their cars for search of produce and a pole was placed across the highway to force their wishes. When officers ordered the picketers to leave, they complied and dispersed without resisting.

Marry Wednesday At Hoogner Home

Young Couple Will Live On Wakefield Farm After Trip.

At a quiet wedding at the home of the bride's parents Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, Miss Edwige Hoogner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Hoogner of Laurel, and Mr. Delmar Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Carlson of Concord, were married, Rev. George Almond performing the ceremony in the presence of immediate relatives of the couple.

Miss Fern Carlson, sister of the bridegroom, and Harold Hoogner, brother of the bride, were attendants. Mrs. Stanley Hoogner sang "I Love You Truly" before the bridal procession, and Mrs. Harold Hoogner played Lohengrin's march as the parties descended the stairs and took places at the improvised altar.

A two-course breakfast was served during the ceremony, the bride's colors of blue and white decorating the home and tables. Mrs. Carlson wore a light green Spanish lace gown of ample length. Mr. Carlson wore a brown tailored suit.

Fire Does Damage In Building Here

Fire of undetermined origin Saturday at midnight burned a hole about six feet wide in the second story floor of the J. P. Gaertner building, occupied by the Peter Petersen billiard parlor, and damaged some tables and supplies belonging to Mr. Petersen. The blaze was discovered by a passer-by after the parlor had closed for the evening. The loss, estimated at $100 on the contents and $100 on the building, is partially covered by insurance.

To Give Sacred Concert Saturday

Westervelts To Present A Musical Program On Main Street.

The Westervelt family, consisting of Dr. and Mrs. T. R. Westervelt and 12 sons of American missionaries in foreign lands, will give a sacred concert on Main street Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. A raised platform will be provided for the entertainment, and everyone is invited to attend. Sacred music, band numbers, instrumental solos, and songs from other lands in native language will be given by the young men. The group is being brought here under the auspices of the Union Bible class, and travels in its own bus. Following the concert a meeting will be held at the Baptist church Saturday night, at which the men will tell of life in Africa, Australia and Austria, where they have lived in the missions, and will show curios from these countries.

Sunday afternoon a union meeting of all churches in Wayne will be held at the Presbyterian church, and the Westervelts will have charge of the program. It will open at 3 o'clock. Dr. Westervelt first became interested in the mission work when he went to Africa to hunt big game. He met his wife there and they spent some time in missionary work before returning to this country to establish a home for training and education of white children from Africa. Mrs. Westervelt has written several books on Africa, under the name of Josephine Westervelt. Their home is in Columbia, S. C.

Marshall Swanson, son of Victor Swanson who was in Wayne, last week, will remain with the Westervelts when his parents return to the mission fields of Morocco.

Farmers' Products IN the old days farmers depended almost entirely on local markets. There were no creameries, no cream stations, no sure and easy outlet for milk and cream.

Since advent of creameries and cream stations there is certainly a market even though prices are often too low. Prices are controlled by widespread demand, uninfluenced by the local dealers' sales or supplies.

Likewise the demand for manufactured products rests on the prosperity of farmers who are industry's best customers. Agriculture must come back to restore normal employment in industrial centers.

To Insist On Order FARMERS hereabouts are to be commended for their stand against coercion and violence in the movement for higher price levels.

People are in hearty sympathy with any peaceful, organized effort to withhold products from sale and to promote orderly marketing, but they are also in sympathy with those farmers who, in order to live and meet obligations, must sell produce and make live stock shipments.

We have heard of an effort to force one farmer whose cattle were ready for market, with feed exhausted and no money of credit to buy more, to withhold shipment. After much trouble, we understand he finally succeeded in getting his stock to market.

In Making First Base THE Omaha Journal-Stockman stresses the essential of individualism in our national progress. We have encouraged too much paternalism, too much government interference and aid.

And even if we had a Utopian state," says the Journal-Stockman, "the responsibility of the individual could not be done away with entirely. After all, the individual must make the start. He must be responsible to at least that extent. He is being taught under our paternalistic system to depend on the government and on the social organization for a great many things that he would be better off to take care of himself. This tends to weaken the fabric of the nation and any scheme that minimizes the necessity of individual initiative is sure eventually to fail.

Leisure WITH resumption of schools and colleges and with armies of students increasing, emphasis is given to the importance of devoting idle time to study and self-improvement. Touching this subject, Chancellor E. A. Burnett of the University of Nebraska, is quoted as saying:

"I recall the advice given by Chancellor Canfield of this university in the panic times of the 90's. 'If you can not earn, you can at least learn,' the chancellor declared, and what good advice it was. We all know that conditions did improve and that those boys and girls who went ahead and prepared for a life work were the successful men and women ten years later.

The annual Methodist conference will soon be held, and we hope all the Methodist pastors here and at neighboring points are to be returned as they deserve to be. When one gets acquainted with a minister and learns to appreciate his good points, it is an unpleasant shock to sensibilities to have him picked up and moved. Most of us don't like changes, especially when spirits are lower and more sensitive than usual.

The brutal slaying from ambush of D. Paul Lowery, athletic coach in the Long Pine school, and graduate of the Wayne State Teachers College, shows a revolting indifference to murder by those engaged in lives of crime. The one who sent the fatal bullet into the body of young Lowery did so to escape detection as a peddler of bootleg liquor. The guilty would rather kill than face a liquor charge.

Persons who have come to Wayne lately from Illinois and Pennsylvania and other eastern states agree in the report that conditions are far better and more encouraging here than elsewhere. With all our troubles incident to short crops in the past and low prices at present, they are not nearly so severe as those in eastern industrial centers where armies of unemployed are engaged in a titanic struggle to exist.

The one on wages and sure of his job is now having his innings, and reviewing his experience a few years ago when values were skyrocketing, he is entitled to them.

Legion Proves Its Patriotism

Omaha World Herald; The Nebraska department of the American Legion has taken a stand that is both wise and patriotic in opposing immediate payment of the remainder of the soldiers' bonus and in declaring against "impositions, injustices and unfair burdens upon the federal treasury."

It was a legionnaire, one high in the councils of the organization, Sam Reynolds of Omaha, who pointed out to the veterans at Norfolk the need of such action as the department has taken.

The nation is becoming aroused at the raids upon the treasury, made in the name of patriotism, but that are, in fact, as veterans themselves have asserted, racketeering. The cause of the needy and deserving soldier, who has been disabled by his war service, has been menaced by the growing cost of hospital care and medical treatment and generous compensation to men whose only true claim for assistance is that they need it, and see a means of getting it.

If the American Legion throughout the nation will follow the example of the Nebraska department, it will continue to justify the confidence of the public in its basic honor and patriotism, and the high hopes of the men, who, in those Paris days just after the war, sought to bind in peace time service to America the men who had fought so gloriously together in the war.

When Agriculture Stalls, All Start

Omaha Journal-Stockman; More and more, industry is coming to a full realization of the fact that until agriculture leads the way there can be no permanent or substantial recovery from the depression that has hung over the country like a pall for the past three years.

Leaders in business are taking their weary eyes from the ticker and anxiously scanning the western horizon for indications that the farmer is receiving more for his products and is consequently in a position to resume buying of manufactured goods.

The eyes of the world are trained on the American farmer because we have learned from our experiences with other depressions that it was through the return of prosperity to agriculture that national prosperity was re-established," says the association bulletin in summarizing the situation.

It is well that the world looks to agriculture for leadership, particularly if it looks close enough, because in that industry, alone, will it find business going on as usual. There are no silent factories on the farm; no unemployment; no idle labor; no bread lines. Everyone is employed on a full-time basis, tilling the normal number of acres, producing the normal volume of crops, milking the normal number of cows and raising the normal number of hogs.

Despite the low prices of his products and the heavy burden of his taxes and interest, the farmer is carrying on his business with full faith and confidence in the future.

His is the leadership that is truly American in all of its aspects, and one that is greatly needed in crucial times such as these when business and industry halt, and regard the future with fear and trembling.

But his faith and confidence must not go unrewarded and it shall not. Already, there is an upward trend in the price of some of his products. Industry's prices have sagged somewhat and the disparity is not so great as it recently was. His dollars, though fewer in number, are greater in purchasing power than usual. His faith and his industry are reaping their rewards in a measured degree.

If his leadership is accepted by trade and industry and they, too, demonstrate the same faith in the future, payrolls soon will increase purchasing power will be re-established, farm prices will advance, tax and interest burdens will be eased and a lasting prosperity will be re-established throughout the land.

Let us all pledge our faith and confidence in the future, just as has the farmer. Let us adjust our own affairs to a more normal basis. Let us, as was said before, not forget that "Normally Begrets Normalcy as Surely as Like Begets Like."

Rupture Of Aorta Is Cause Of Death

Hosmer Henton Passes Away Suddenly Thursday At Fort Snelling.

Rupture of the aorta, a most unusual condition, resulted in the death of Hosmer Henton, 19, son of Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Henton of Wakefield, last Thursday morning at Fort Snelling in Minnesota where the youth was spending the month of August at the Citizens Military Training camp. Hosmer, who was examined and found perfectly well before entering the camp, had had a cold and was not feeling well a couple days last week. He and Orville Wendell were cleaning their barracks last Thursday morning about 9 o'clock when Hosmer was suddenly seized and died in the arms of his "pal." An autopsy showed that the aorta had ruptured.

Funeral services for the youth were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 from the Wakefield Presbyterian church and the edifice could not begin to hold the friends who gathered to pay tribute to the young man. Rev. F. M. Orr of Lexington, formerly of Wakefield, had charge of rites in the absence of the pastor, Dr. J. W. Turner. Austin Vickery of Omaha, sang. Floral tributes were gorgeous. Interment was made in Wakefield cemetery.

Hosmer, only son of Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Henton, was born at Wakefield June 20, 1913, and had always lived here. He was graduated from the local high school in 1930. He excelled in scholarship and was interested in athletics and other activities. He had been a member of Presbyterian church since he was 12 years old and had been faithful in its activities. The youth last year attended Wayne Teachers college and held the highest scholarship average, 88, of any on record in the institution.

Deceased leaves his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Henton, and one sister, Miss Blossom Henton of Iowa Falls, Iowa. He also leaves his grandmother, Mrs. Martha Cofer of Lincoln, besides other relatives and many friends.

Dr. and Mrs. Henton and Mr. and Mrs. V. H. R. Hanson went to Fort Snelling Thursday on receipt of word of Hosmer's death and they returned Friday, the body arriving Saturday. Orville Wendell, John Haskell and Arthur Larson who were in camp with Hosmer, came for the rites also. Besides these, the following came from out of town for the funeral: Miss Blossom Henton of Iowa City, Mrs. Martha Cofer of Mr. and Mrs. George Cofer and family of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Vickery and family, Dr. H. J. McArthur and Dr. and Mrs. C. G. Tomlinson and daughters, Margaret and Elizabeth, all of Omaha, James Orr of Lexington, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Vickery, Mrs. W. S. Ebersole, Gordon and Miss Alice Ebersole and Mrs. Elmer Jones of Sioux City, Paul Witt of Lincoln, Miss Eva Franey of Hickman, Miss Gertrude Anderson of Sioux Falls, S. D., Melvin Baker of Iowa City, Mrs. Merriman and Mrs. Green and family of Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Olson and daughter of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith and Mr. and Mrs. L. Wirt of Boone, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Holland of Logan, Iowa, Mrs. Pierce of Sioux City.

Active pallbearers were Orville Wendell, Arthur Larson, John Haskell, Howard Nuernberger, George Larson and Marvin Nuernberger. Honorary pallbearers, members of the high school football squad, were Marv and Bernard Busby, Louis Henschke, Clyde Gray, Maurice Hyde and Joe Lyman.

Flower girls were Muriel Hanson, Gladys Buhrman, Adeline Sar, Janet Mathewson, Dorothy Coe, Evangeline Carlson and Margaret Tomlinson, the last of Omaha.

Happiness Of Children Inspires Happiness in Elders—Sharp Contrast Between Conditions in Country and City—Other Observations.

FIFTY-SECOND YEAR

"When children are happy, everyone is happy," was the remark made by one of the women who watched the young folks play at the park during last Friday's picnic. Children can help their elders by being contented and happy with the comforts and pleasures which their parents are able to provide.

Lincoln men visiting in Wayne last Friday and seeing the happy picnic crowd said surely there is no depression here. They were making comparison with worried city men out of work and out of food. People in small towns and rural districts always have something to eat.

To its owner every dog is the finest on earth. Such affection can only be appreciated by one who has or has had a dog.

Men who take stunts for right in face of overwhelming majority of opposition, show true statesmanship. One who is first to take such a stand in a crisis shows more force of character than those who adopt the same principles afterward.

Conditions are making men and women better managers in their business and in their households. Such teamwork will prove a beneficial habit when times are better.

Another advantage of the present times, a magazine editor writes, is that "we are all learning the blessing of real work."

"One crop that is certain to be a bumper" this year, reports a current magazine, is the crop of new schemes for making money. A more promising way is the real "bumper" crops which are maturing in this section this year.

Cholera Menace Grows Alarming

General Agent Carpenter Urges Vaccination For Prevention.

"The rapidly increasing spread of hog cholera is threatening every farmer in the state," says H. L. Carpenter, general agent of the Union Stock Yards Company of Omaha, who was in Wayne Friday. His company and all allied interests are seriously alarmed over the cholera outbreak within the state, knowing that unless it is checked at once, the loss will reach enormous totals.

"Due to the low price for hogs, many farmers have discontinued vaccination," he states, "but with the hog market rising, it is to their interests to vaccinate thoroughly. If a cool, wet spell should come now, the situation would be serious for the vitality of hogs is at a lower point, under such conditions and they are far more susceptible. Vaccine is the only sure preventive, and is at the lowest price in five years."

The cholera has broken out all over the state in small lots, according to Mr. Carpenter, and the packing houses at Omaha reported much more cholera found in carcasses this past week than for any week in several years. It has been increasing alarmingly each report. In 1925 the economic loss of hogs in Iowa ran into millions of dollars and swept the whole state. Once it starts in a community, it travels rapidly and Nebraska stock men are warned against a similar epidemic in this state. Should the outbreak be sudden, available supplies of vaccine would not meet the demands, until too late. Farmers are earnestly advised to vaccinate at once.

Demands have been simplified, in many cases by necessity, and this simplicity in living may be the means of saving present civilization from a tumble similar to the one Rome experienced.

Suppose the town of Wayne had to move each day and put on two show performances besides! That is about what it means in operating a big circus. The system is more wonderful even than the skill of the performers and the unusual exhibits.

Thousands of children are anxiously waiting their first day of school next week, many more thousands are eagerly returning to study and even more thousands are wishing they might experience again the days they were in school.

Explosions Interior.

Mr. Swanson went into the Berber country with a native guide, traveling on foot or riding a mule when such was available. This is a vast, barren region completely dried up during the summer months, for no rain falls between May and October. The people live under crude black tents and move about the country seeking pasture land. In the mountains, the natives build clay-brick houses, mixing the clay soil with water and pounding it into forms until it dries. In this manner they erect the entire walls and roof, and the adobe house lasts many years. The walls are three feet thick, and no windows are used; the smoke from the open fireplace fills the air and blackens the walls, escaping through the open door if possible.

Often the Berbers build their houses in groups of four, thus making a square which can be defended from invaders by little towers at each corner. Blood feuds are very common and taking a life means nothing to the natives. They carry army rifles which have been discarded by European armies and sent to Morocco to sell. The French are trying to establish order in their zone, and have outlawed blood feuds, forbidding the use of rifles. In other matters, they have legalized the old Berber customs.

Needs Are Simple.

All that is necessary to set up house-keeping in Berber style is a sleeping mat, a family cover, one dish and a spoon. Everyone squats round the dish and eats with his hands. In between meals the vessel can be used for the family washing or to feed the dogs.

The national dish of these tribes is called "akusk" (phoenic spelling) and is made of wheat grains rolled in flour and steamed in a big steamer twice. The kernels are then poured into a dish and anointed with rancid butter. A gravy is poured over all, and it's ready for brown, hungry hands. At first Mr. Swanson was pretty badly sickened by this "service," but he grew to like the dish as it was prepared in his own home.

The Berbers were hostile to Mr. Swanson because he was a foreign-

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1932.

NUMBER TWENTYONE

Former York County Man Tells of Life in Morocco

Thirty-one years in the interior of Morocco, broken by only one furlough, is the unique record of Victor Swanson, missionary, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Young of Wayne. Mr. Swanson is a former York county man, although he was born in Sweden. He entered the mission field in '90 and did not come back to Western civilization until 23 years had passed. New York amazed him then—automobiles had come, and honked up and down the narrow streets, making walking hazardous. The radio had just appeared, and telephones were in general usage. Truly it was disconcerting to a man who had known only the donkey trails of Moroccan wildernesses!

Mr. Swanson believes that conditions have become worse in every way in this country since his last visit. He believes the religious life is on the down grade—that morally as well as commercially we have degenerated.

Morocco has a population of between eight and twelve millions—no census has ever been attempted because much of the country is unexplored. Moroccans are practically all Mohammedans, and belong to three races—the Berbers, Arabs and Moors. The Berbers inhabit the mountain regions and are brown-skinned like our American Indians. The Arabs prefer life on the plains, and in African cities. They, too, are brown-skinned. But the Moors, most intelligent of Moroccans, is a city-dweller with dark hair and eyes. The Moorish men are fine-looking—tall, straight and proud. They are the merchants and ruling group.

Morocco is divided into three zones—the French control the largest, the Spanish own a generous slice, and the international zone around Tangiers is independently governed.

The Arabs and Moors speak the Arabic language, but the Berbers have their own speech which had never been put into writing until Mr. Swanson went into the interior to study the language and translate it into Arabic. He jotted down words as he heard them used in the native villages and compiled a dictionary and grammar of the Berber language, in addition to translating several portions of the Bible. The Arabic language is very complex, because there is scarcely a letter but has one or two dots either over or under it, and the dots change the meaning entirely. For instance, the verse "We know that we will pass from death into life because we love the brethren," may be made to read "because we love the fish" by the omission of dots. When Mr. Swanson was reading proof on his works, he employed natives to read it through and paid them for the number of dots they found out of place or missing.

Housework is done entirely by the women; they milk cows, sheep, goats and even donkeys, and gather the wood. A little wheat and barley are grown. The women grind the grains, starting in at 3:30 in the morning, and accompanying the motion with a wailing, mournful song, usually lamenting a dead son—never a daughter. Not a cheerful sound to be awakened by at this early hour! If a woman does not have a son to mourn, she sings some other sad song, repeating one sentence over and over. Mr. Swanson heard one song which translated: "Oh you, there are many crazy people in the world."

Dresses Are Simple.

Dress-making in Berber land is a relatively simple process—the woman bargains for 10 yards of muslin, and drapes it about her body with a few knots and a stitch or two. Once on the house dress—afternoon frock—evening gown—and pajama problem is solved for a long time to come, for she doesn't take it off until she acquires a new dress!

The Berbers bargain for their wives, and pay from $10 to $500, depending on their age and beauty. Mr. Swanson knew one native who paid $1,200 for his mate. Divorce is very simple—sometimes the man just takes his wife back and gets his money refunded; often he has to wait until she is sold to another husband before he can collect. A second-hand wife is not so valuable, so he often must take a reduction. The only restraint on the number of wives is his pocket book.

Fruits Are Grown.

Lemons, oranges, figs, grapes and pomegranates grow around the cities where irrigation is possible. Fez, a typical city of about 160,000 inhabitants, is entirely walled in for defense against the mountain people, and its streets are mostly five feet wide, so that only men and donkeys can traverse them.

Mr. Swanson brought his wife and two children back to this country in order to put the children in schools here. They were taught English by their mother, and then entered the French schools where they have had thorough French schooling. In addition, they speak Arabic like natives. Mr. and Mrs. Swanson expect to return to Morocco this winter or in the early spring, to continue missionary work at Khemisset. Mr. Swanson is sent by a missionary society in Kansas City, the same one which has sent Gerald Dahlquist of Concord to the French Sudan.

Nebraska Editor Well Impressed

Thomas A. Leadley, Lincoln, Thinks Wayne County Is Fine Section.

"Northeast Nebraska, and Wayne county in particular, equal any agricultural section in the country," in the opinion of Thomas A. Leadley, managing editor of the Nebraska Farmer, who was in Wayne Friday to attend the Herald picnic. "It is difficult to find any agricultural community with higher standard of rural life, as shown by farm homes and farm equipment, than in this northeast district. I am not surprised that the Wayne county farmers are opposed to farm strike agitation, and quite agree with your editor's position—that of sympathy with the objective but opposition to the methods being used to achieve it.

"There is no place in the farming industry for the strike idea to be applied," he said. "The farmers will make far greater headway and command more respect through organization and collective bargaining than by using strike methods. An example of the success of collective bargaining without force is found in the recent advances in prices paid to producers of whole milk by distributors both in Lincoln and in Omaha. There is no denying that farm prices are distressingly low and must advance before we can have general prosperity. But the farmers will do well not to employ the strike weapon of the labor organizations. I am positive that agriculture will stage a come-back just as it always has after every depression, and will play a more important part in the economic life of the country than ever before, because never before in history has there been such a general appreciation of the importance of the farming industry to the nation's welfare."

Corn Crop Here Is Now Assured

Most of the corn has improved during the last 30 days, and the eastern third of the state is practically assured of a good crop according to bankers in their mid-month report to the State and Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics. Moisture conditions are very good in the eastern third of the state, but many areas in the remainder of the state still need additional rainfall. Yields of oats are generally very good. Spring wheat and barley yields are fair. The corn crop in eastern Nebraska has made excellent recovery from the threatened drought injury of last month and a good crop is practically assured in most of this area. The condition of the crop in the remainder of the state is quite spotted ranging from excellent to extremely poor. The lowest condition is reported in the southwestern section of the state. The Panhandle and the south central counties, due to insufficient moisture, are below normal. The western and southwestern section of the state has not received a good general rain during the past two months. However, local showers have been quite common so that parts of these districts are expected to produce a fair to good crop of corn. The central portion of the state is also somewhat spotted but most of this area will produce good corn.

The yields of oats are satisfactory over most of the state and this crop is equaling the expectations of a month ago. Spring wheat yields are below normal. Yields of these crops are likewise spotted in account of local drought sections and will show considerable variation between districts. About three-fourths of the oats and winter wheat had been threshed by the middle of August according to bankers.

The prices of winter wheat, chickens, butterfat, and eggs have shown substantial improvement over a month ago, but are still far below those of a year ago, according to the preliminary estimate of mid-month farm prices. The price of corn shows no change from last month: Prices of hogs and beef cattle are slightly below the prices of a month ago. Other small grain crops and hay crops show a slight general decline.

Nearly a Half Century

THE First National Bank of Wayne which was evolved from the pioneer Logan Valley Bank on August 25, 1885, scores another birthday, and it looks back over forty-seven years of progressive and successful banking with the high satisfaction that rewards conscientious service through many years.

In pausing to reflect, the First National Bank finds itself resting on a foundation shaped and fortified by the product of soundest judgment. It has weathered the storms of minor and major economic disturbances in the nearly half century of its existence. It has stood behind many private and public enterprises, and it has smoothed the way for many individuals and institutions.

The First National Bank has developed with the community. It has been in harmony with every desirable forward movement. Its faith in Wayne county has been amply justified and adequately rewarded. The First National's past as a source of financial strength, is a guarantee of its future helpfulness. The world's present stress finds it going forward on a steady, even keel, and in the future as in the past, it will be found a bulwark to wise progress—a stalwart and active agency behind community welfare and improvement.

The First National accepts the place it has attained in popular confidence as proof of the banking policy it has followed through the years. It appreciates this confidence, and looks to the future with renewed assurance. A large harvest following a lean year, gives promise of a period of greater plenty, and this bank hopes and believes that larger rewards for industry and investment are looming not far ahead. It will be found on the alert to flank any worthy advance movement.

The First National thoroughly appreciates present and invites new banking connections. No account is too small to receive the most courteous attention. Friendly, helpful service within the bounds of safety, is its guarantee.

It is well to remind the public that the First National has all the functions of a metropolitan bank. A savings department is an important auxiliary and is turned to advantage by a steadily increasing number of patrons. It affords a way for systematic saving, and has become justly popular.

The First National Bank

Home Tried Recipes

Green-Tomato Minicement.
 4 quarts of sliced green tomatoes
 2 quarts of pared and sliced tart apples
 1-2 pound of seeded raisins
 1-2 pound of currants
 4 tablespoonfuls of minced citron
 4 teaspoonfuls of cinnamon
 1-2 teaspoonful of allspice
 1-2 teaspoonful of cloves
 5 cupfuls of brown sugar
 2 cupfuls of vinegar.
 2 cupfuls water or more vinegar if the latter is very acid.
 Chop the tomatoes and the apples fine. Add the other ingredients and beat the mixture slowly until the tomatoes are tender and the minicement is thick and not watery. Stir it occasionally to prevent burning.
 If desired this may be sealed in several jars for later use. The quantities given in this recipe should make about three quarts of minicement.

Salad Dressings.
Country Gentleman
 2-4 teaspoonful of mustard
 2 teaspoonful of salt
 1 teaspoonful of sugar
 1 egg
 3 tablespoonfuls of vinegar

1-2 cupfuls of salad oil
 1-2 teaspoonful of paprika
 Mix dry ingredients. Add egg and beat until well mixed. Add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and beat well. Add oil, one tablespoonful at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. After the mixture has thickened, add the remaining vinegar and oil in larger quantities, beating thoroughly after each amount is added. Keep cold.

French Dressing.
 1 cupful of salad oil
 1-3 cupful of vinegar
 3-4 teaspoonful of dry mustard
 1-1-2 teaspoonful of salt
 1-1-2 teaspoonfuls of paprika
 1 tablespoonful of sugar
 1 tablespoonful of minced onion
 Mix ingredients thoroughly by beating with a Dover beater or shaking in a closed jar. One tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce may be added if desired. The mustard and onion may be omitted if the dressing is to be used on a fruit salad. This dressing should always be mixed thoroughly just before using.

Sour Cream Dressing.
 1 teaspoonful of salt
 1 teaspoonful of mustard
 2 teaspoonfuls of flour

1-4 cupful of sugar
 2 eggs
 1-1-2 cupfuls of sour cream
 1-3 cupful of melted butter
 1-2 cupful of vinegar
 Mix ingredients in the order given, adding vinegar very slowly. Cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until the mixture coats the spoon. Cool. This may be mixed with whipped cream for serving.

Apple and Tomato Chutney.
 4 pounds sour apples, 4 pounds ripe tomatoes, 2 pounds onion, 1-2 teaspoon cayenne pepper, and enough vinegar to cover. Boil 5 hours.

Bordeaux Sauce.
 2 quarts ground cabbage, 2 quarts ground green tomatoes, 6 large ground onions, 3 small red peppers or a small amount of cayenne, 2 ounces white mustard seed, 1-2 ounce celery seed, 1-2 ounce turmeric powder, 2 1-2 pounds white sugar, 1 gill water, 2 quarts vinegar. Mix all together and boil 30 minutes.

Stuffed Green Peppers.
 Cut stem ends from 6 peppers and remove insides with a sharp knife. Scald for 5 minutes and drain. Mix thoroughly 1 cup bread crumbs, 3 tablespoonfuls melted butter, 1 cup cooked meat or fish salt and enough milk or stock to moisten slightly. Fill peppers, place in buttered pan with 1-2 cup water and bake slowly half an hour. Serve with cream sauce poured around and garnish with triangles of buttered toast.

Water Melon Pickles.
 Select fine ripe melons. Cut off red and green parts. Cut in squares, place in kettle with 2 teaspoon of salt to each gallon of rins. Cover with water and boil until tender. Drain in a colander and add to this boiled syrup: 3 pints sugar to 1 quart cider vinegar, cloves and cinnamon. Boil with pickles for a few minutes and seal in tight jars.

Only Triplets In County Visit Wayne
 Wayne county's only triplets, Robert, Ruth and Alvin Johnson, were in Wayne Friday to spend the day, accompanying Mrs. A. W. Dolph of near Wakefield. The children's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John N. Congratulations

T O H. B. Graham over the completion of his new produce building which is entirely modern and which is the last word in neatness and convenience. We were pleased over our experience in painting and decorating the building.

Now is a most favorable season for both outside painting and interior decorating, and we have plenty of satisfied customers who will testify to the quality of our work.

We have the famous Benjamin Moore paints and varnishes.

Work on Highways Planned in State
Lincoln, Neb.—The opening of highway bids at the capitol was attended by hundreds of contractors and materials dealers. Contracts were to be let for $798,000, of which the federal government is to pay $645,000.
Bids are higher than before. State Engineer Roy Cochran says due to requirements of an act of congress requiring a 30-hour week for labor. State requirements include a preference for home material, local labor and hand and team work.
The bid of the Omaha Steel works of $162,300 on the Loup river bridge near Columbus, was lowest. Moran of Omaha was the lowest bidder of the Columbus paving.
Platte, Polk, and Butler counties are co-operating on the bridge-paving project by furnishing $50,000 from their roads for it. The bridge will carry two federal highways, Nos. 30 and 81, the latter from Winnipeg to the gulf, and an association in Mexico has organized to extend it to the Panama canal.

Interesting Sandwiches For Formal As Well As Family Affairs.

Probably the most prolific family in the realm of food is sandwiches. One shudders to think of some atrocities which are committed in this name, such as the half-inch-thick, butterless wedges handed out at careless lunch counters, but no daintier delicacies can be created, with just a little thought and effort. Here are a few interesting new sandwiches, suitable for teas, luncheons, and Sunday night suppers:

Ham and Chicken—Mix equal parts finely chopped chicken and ham. Season with chopped olives, chopped onion, salt and pepper. Spread on buttered white bread.

Brown bread and Cheese—Cut brown bread very thin. Spread with a cheese and butter mixture, and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

Cucumber and Pimento—Chop cucumbers, add little chopped pimento, and moisten with mayonnaise. Spread on buttered white bread.

Orange Cheese—Mix equal parts of orange marmalade and cream cheese. Add a little cream to make a smooth paste—spread on buttered whole wheat bread.

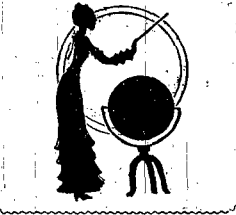

Open Sandwiches—Cut bread in thin hearts and diamonds. Mash a cream cheese to paste with little cream and season with salt, paprika, and dash of cayenne. Spread on bread and toast quickly in hot oven.

Mosaic Sandwiches—Use white bread and any filling. Cut small piece out of top slice of sandwich in fancy shape. Fill with piece of brown bread the exact size, or a nut, chopped olives, or piece of pimento. For brown bread sandwiches, inlay white pieces.

Broiled Sandwich—Cover slice of bread with tomato, add thin slice of cheese and top with strips of bacon. Add bit paprika and a little chili sauce. Broil under flame.

Toasted Mushroom Sandwiches—Requires medium sized can mushrooms, can pimentos, small slice onion, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 3-4 teaspoon salt, cayenne pepper. Chop mushrooms (Continued on Page Four)

Every Skin Requires Individual Treatment

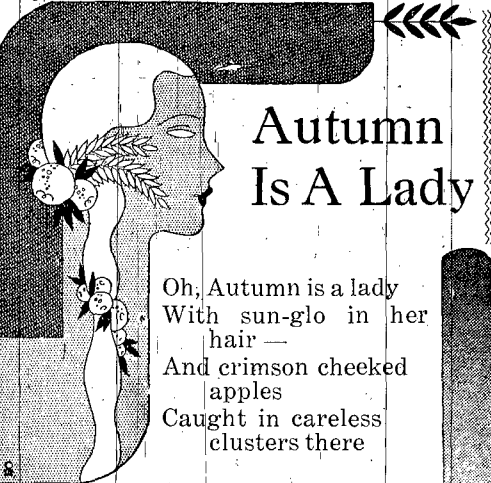

Are you getting the most out of your face? Nowadays women are expected to be entirely natural and healthy looking. The doll-face make-up and the stark-white-face-with-vivid-lips type have given way to wholesomeness, so it behooves every woman to look to her complexion.

The first rule for a good clear skin is careful cleansing. There are four methods recommended: With soap and water, cleansing cream, cold cream, or a greaseless liquid cleanser. Experts agree that soap and water should be used at least once a day, no matter how tender the skin. The soap should be chosen to suit the skin texture—varying from a mild baby soap to a strong body soap. Make a rich lather and rinse carefully. Blondes usually have thinner and more delicate skins than brunettes, and it is doubly important their skin be kept well cleansed with mild soap and water.

Cleansing cream melts into a film immediately upon touching the skin, and cold cream must be smoothed over before it melts. Such a cream should precede the nightly soap-and-water clean-up. For skins which don't take kindly to creams, the greaseless liquid cleansers are advised—they're good for quick clean-ups when traveling or at the office, too.

Greasy foods and over-many sweets are responsible for blackheads and coarse pores. Plenty of liquids taken every day will eliminate the poisons and help to clear the skin. If the skin is too oily, careful soap-and-water cleansing should be followed by witch hazel in place of cream.

Autumn Is A Lady

Oh, Autumn is a lady
With sun-glo in her hair—
And crimson cheeked apples
Caught in careless clusters there

She plucks the coppery wheat spikes
To deck her corn silk tresses—
From myriad mottled leaves, she
Has fashioned rustling dresses.

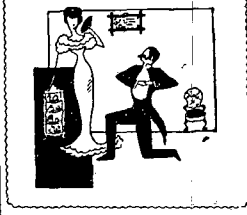

Oh, Autumn is a lady
With truly feminine moods—
Her warming smile she flashes,
Then glowers... chills....
broods.

Willow Ware Scene Tells Quaint Legend

Have you a treasured willow ware plate from great-aunt Martha's set, which has somehow survived the years, and lends its mellowed charm to your china cabinet? Or perhaps you possess a modern dinner set which takes its pattern from this quaint ware? There's an interesting legend pictured in the scene:

Koong-Shee, a beautiful Chinese maiden, fell in love with her father's secretary, Chang, and was determined to marry him. Her father was equally determined that she marry a rich old man, and imprisoned her in a little house at the end of his garden, next to a graceful willow tree. All day long Koong-Shee sat watching the willow tree. Chang wrote letter and set them in cocoanut shells with tiny sails, to sail across the lake to his love. He asked her to fly with him and she agreed if he would come for her. Chang went boldly to the little house and took her away, but her father overtook them half-way across the bridge. On the plate you see them—Koong-Shee with her distaff, Chang next with her jewel box, the irate father carrying his whip. However they escaped to the little house on the left and lived very happily for a time. But the rich suitor was so angry he set fire to the house, and both were killed. They're pictured at the top, transformed into doves, and together once more.

Corn-on-the-Cob Is A Legacy From Indians

When European visitors look askance at you hungrily gnawing at an ear of corn, the butter oozing down your chin, look nonchalant and say, "Oh, it's just an Early American custom." For it's a hand-me-down from our red predecessors whose harvest dances were the great event of the year, and who regarded the golden maize as a gift from the Great Spirit.

Nor has the corn dance died out among our Indians, for on the Onondaga reservation in New York state the "green corn dance" is celebrated with all its old color and fervor, and the Ponca, Otoe and Pawnee Indians of Oklahoma also observe the harvest dance. These celebrations end with a huge feast, in which the eating of the "boiled young corn" is a sacred ceremonial. The white man has learned from the redskin to "take it on the chin" with happy, if not decorative, results.

SUGGESTIONS FOR A "TOPSY-TURVEY" BRIDGE SCORING

If you want to introduce a little fun into your next party, but have several confirmed bridge friends in your crowd who can't be prised away from the card table, perhaps these bridge "variations" would prove interesting. Start the play as usual, place a small white envelope on each table and ask the scorer to open it when the four hands are finished. These will give directions for counting the score, such as:

1. Each player toss a coin—heads, double their actual score; tails, take half actual score.
2. Disregard score—each player draw card and multiply it by 10. All face cards and aces count 10, others their face values.
3. All four players cut and two highest advance to next table, counting actual scores.
4. Exchange score just made with opponents.
5. Count nothing but four aces in one hand.
6. Each player gets actual score plus last two digits of telephone number.
7. Reverse digits in score.
8. Add 300 to actual score if total number of letters in last name is even number; subtract 25 if odd.
9. Have four slips in envelope and let each player draw one. These might read as follows: Double score if you were in bed by 11 o'clock last night; if not, subtract 10. Use actual score plus approximate distance to capital city of state. Add to score 50 times the number of spoonfuls of sugar you use in your morning cup of coffee. Multiply by the size of shoe you wear.

Name Outstanding Magazine Articles

The following magazine articles were selected by the national council of librarians as the most important for the month just finished, and are recommended to readers who are interested in keeping informed on current subjects: "The Wets Give Me a Pain in the Neck," by Berton Braley, in the September Christian Herald. "Are We Going to Have a Revolution?" by G. Soule, in Harper's for August. "Veterans Versus the Country," by E. Angell, Harper's for August. "People Against Pork," by C. W. Gilbert, Atlantic Monthly for August. "Middletown in the Midi," by E. Bagger, in Harper's for August. "Ivar Kreuger, His Life and Work," by T. G. Barman in Atlantic Monthly for August. "Cites Reap the Whirlwind," by W. W. Liggett, Scribner's for August.

Why the Wedding Ring?

The wide golden band on mother's left hand, and the narrow white gold or platinum circle of today's bride have a very beautiful meaning of unity to the wearer, and to the one who slipped it on her finger. This symbolism comes down to us from a not-so-beautiful habit of putting a chain on one's wife, back in the days when she was personal property and bought by her husband.

MANY CHILDHOOD LEGENDS FOUNDED ON TRUE FACTS

Many of our most delightful nursery tales were not purely products of the writer's imagination, but had their origin in fact—and blood characters, who lived in houses still to be seen. The original of "The House That Jack Built" stands at West Midlands in England. Cherrington Manor was built about 1685 and has the black-and-white-timber exterior so popular in that district. The old moat surrounded it until very recently—this moat was the home of the rat that ate the malt. The malt-house remained intact when the moat was drained. Locally, Cherrington Manor was noted for its breed of cats which were much in demand as rat-catchers by the farmers round-about. Perhaps their ancestor was the feline guardian of the malt-house! Near Watton, England, are two houses made famous by the "Babes in the Wood"—Merton Hall where the babes lived, and Griston Hall, home of their wicked uncle. Nearby is the wood where the babes were left to die. Local superstition has named the wood "Wailing Wood" and the country folks maintain they can hear in the dark the cries of those ill-fated babes! Until recent times a stuffed redbreast used to be presented by the host to each visitor at Merton Hall in remembrance of the legend. A local poet wrote the original ballad. Remember "Little Jack Horner?" His "corner" can be located in an ancient house at Melis, England, the property of Sir Richard Horner, a descendant. "Old Mother Hubbard" was the housekeeper of a Mr. Bastard, member of Parliament, who lived at Yealmlpton in South Devon. She was a most original character, this Mrs. Hubbard, and after her death a woman who knew her well wrote the verses we all know.

Radio in the Kitchen?

Yes, why not? It comes in a tall, enameled cabinet, with space for telephone, cook books, recipe files, linen and china and has just been introduced.

A Merry, Merry Kettle!

Consider the newest of new teakettles—it comes already equipped with a musical whistle, and serenades you while it does its work.

Exit Split Vanilla!

Someone got tired of thin, tipping vanilla bottles and invented a more squat, non-tippable container of amber glass, which color protects the extract from the weakening effect of ultra-violet rays.

News for Cake Experts.

There's a wire cake cooler on the market which prevents freshly-baked cakes from "sweating" and a handled cake "breaker" which is kind to angel foods—cuts with nary a bit of mashing.

of drying. Considerable variation in the temperatures employed in drying is permissible, but do not heat the material above 150 degrees F at the outset.

Beating String Beans.

Select white or green stringless beans and remove the tip from each end. Wash the beans well and place them in a 10 per cent or 40 per cent brine. Add salt each day until the reading does not change. When the brine is constant, store the beans in glass jars or earthenware containers, sealing closely with paraffin. After the jars are sealed do not move them, for the liquid will loosen the seal.

The beans can be freshened when needed for pickles or can be used for the table. The cold water method for freshening consists in placing the beans in cold water three times their volume, bringing to simmering point and keeping there for twenty minutes and then allowing to cool in the water. Place in fresh water for a few minutes; the salt is sufficiently extracted and the beans are ready for use.

Canning Tomatoes.

Select firm, ripe tomatoes of medium size and uniform shape. Do not use tomatoes which are over-ripe or which have spotted or decayed places. Put into trays or shallow layers in wire baskets and dip in boiling water for about a minute. According to ripeness, remove and plunge quickly into cold water for an instant. Drain at once and core and peel promptly. Pack into jars or cans as closely as possible. For home use, fill with a thick tomato sauce or with the juice of other tomatoes. Season with 1 teaspoon of salt per quart. Process quart and pint glass jars for 45 minutes in boiling water.

Canning Tomato Juice.

Select firm, ripe tomatoes. Wash well and drain. Cut into sections. Add a small quantity of water to start cooking and simmer until softened. Stir occasionally to prevent burning. Put through a sieve fine enough to remove seeds. Bring to boiling, put immediately in containers. Add 1 teaspoon salt to each quart of juice. Process quart and pint glass jars five minutes in boiling water.

Wax Beans, Lima Beans, or Mature String Beans for Drying should be gathered when full grown but before the pods have begun to dry.

Shell, blanch five minutes in boiling water with thorough agitation, dry, and spread on trays to a depth of not more than 1 inch. Stir frequently in the first hours

It's Time to Fill the Family Fruit Closet

It's canning and preserving time, and kitchens the country wide are given over to steaming kettles, pungent, spicy odors, and rows upon rows of neatly labeled jars. Family gardens, which have contributed to the family table throughout the summer, have provided generously for the coming winter. In addition, the stores are filled with fresh vegetables and fruits so low priced it seems wasteful not to make use of them. Corn and beans are easily and satisfactorily dried; also apples, pears, apricots and prunes. The easiest way to dry vegetables and fruits is to spread them out in the sun, on a table or board, and cover lightly to keep out insects and dust. If weather prevents outdoor drying, ventilated shelves over cookstove or small laundry stove will make an indoor dryer. String beans, onions, cauliflower, green peppers, cucumbers, green tomatoes and cabbage may be "put down" in brine. The beans and onions can be cooked for vegetable dishes, after soaking out the brine; peppers can be stuffed; cabbage makes sauerkraut; green tomatoes can be used for pie.

In brining vegetables a salt solution may be used, but some vegetables contain enough water to make their own brine when salt is added; and some contain enough sugar to cause fermentation, making an acid brine, as in cucumber pickles and sauerkraut. For pickled corn, cook fresh corn in boiling water ten minutes to set the milk, cut it off the cob and pack in layers with one-fourth its weight of fine salt. This is called "dry salting."

In making jellies, watch the following points: Kettle should be four times as large as needed to hold liquid, to allow for full boil without running over part; do not squeeze drain bag; cook jellies and jams quickly to retain their natural flavor and coloring; stir constantly; cook jams and conserves slowly with frequent stirring; melt paraffin over hot water and pour thin coating as soon as glass is filled, adding second layer later. A heavy tin can may be used for the paraffin, and placed over tiny flame when needed.

Plum Conserve.

5 pounds plums
5 pounds sugar
3 oranges
1 pound seeded raisins
2 cups walnut meats

Wash plums, cut in halves and remove seeds. Quarter oranges, remove seeds. Put plums, oranges and raisins through the food chopper. Combine fruit and sugar, cooking slowly 1-2 hour. Add nuts and continue to cook until it becomes jelly-like. Turn into clean, hot jars, fill to overflowing and seal.

Crab Apple Jelly.

Wash crabs, halve, remove stem and nearly cover with water. Cook slowly until fruit is soft. Turn into jelly bag and allow juice to drain. Do not squeeze. Measure juice—for each cup allow 2-3 cups sugar. Boil rapidly until it meets the jelly test (Take small amount by spoon and allow it to drop from side—when two partially congealed drops flow together and fall off in a sheet, it is done.) Add very thin slice lemon or rose geranium leaf to each glass; coat with paraffin.

Apple Mint Jelly.

Quarter tart apples; put into kettle and almost cover with water. Cook slowly until apples are mushy. Turn into jelly bag and drain. Measure juice—allow 2-3 cup sugar for each cup juice. Boil juice alone rapidly for 5 minutes; add sugar and continue to boil rapidly. Add few sprigs fresh mint while cooking, and color it a delicate green with vegetable coloring. When jelly is done (see test above) pour into hot jelly glasses and seal.

Watermelon Pickle.

4 pounds watermelon rind
Lime-water made with 2 quarts cold water and 2 tablespoons lime
2 quarts vinegar
1 pint water
4 1-2 pounds granulated sugar
2 tablespoons whole allspice
10 small pieces stick cinnamon

Strip rind from a firm, not over-ripe melon, and before weighing
