Many Flocking To California

Warm Climate Is Drawing People From All Parts Visitor Reports

People are flocking into California from all directions to spend the winter months, reports Mrs. Alice D. Ley of Encinitas, Calif., who arrived last Thursday to visit until early November here with her son, Rollie W. Ley, and other relatives and friends. The warm California climate makes it possible to live without buying fuel and without purchasing heavy clothing. Fruits and vegetables produced in California are cheap and persons are generous. Mrs. Ley adds, so a living through the winter is less there than in northern states.

The caravan to the southwest is moving by every conceivable means. Some drive cars and others horses. Many walk and even small children are in the walking group.

The depression is felt greatly in retail business and in real estate in the west. Many homes and other buildings have had to be taken over by financing companies as owners could not meet payments. The problem of liquidating these is a difficult one. Mrs. Ley heard three women conversing in California a few days ago. Two said they had had to move from their homes and the third said she was to move but the financing company said she and her family might as well stay in the home even if they could not meet payments as the financiers already had more houses on their hands than they could sell or rent. This condition makes real estate values very low.

Cities in the west, especially San Diego and Long Beach, are making great effort to cut taxes. Officials have promised cuts and they are making them. In one city parks are being closed and animals are taken away to reduce expenses. Recently school children from the city and nearby points were invited to the parks to see the animals and other sights before the places were closed. City bands and choirs are also being dispensed with to reduce expenses.

Though Californians may not need as much money for living as do people of this section, says Mrs. Ley, stores and others having things to sell experience the depression. There is a feeling that conditions are improving though and that the times will soon be much better.

Mrs. Ley finds many changes in Wayne since she left eight years ago, and, she adds, the changes are all for the better for Wayne is becoming a finer looking city all the time.

Mrs. Ley and Mrs. H. J. Miner, who had been in the west visiting, drove through with a friend of the Ellis Miners, an Iowa man who went to Wilmington for work but who returned to Iowa after three weeks of search. The travelers came through New Mexico which in California is said to be a wonderfully prosperous state, but which Mrs. Ley describes as most desolate. They drove through Arizona and Colorado and found the latter state quite cold. Roads are wonderful through the southwest, much of the distance being paved and the rest oil or gravel. Highways in western Nebraska are not in good condition as work is being done on them.

Mrs. Ley found two ways of making the journey easy. Each time the car stopped for gas she walked about and exercised so as to keep from being physically tired. She carried a road map and followed the extra distance on this, thus having something to do while riding. She stood the trip wonderfully well, enjoyed every mile of it and was not in the least tired.

The LeRoy Leys are nicely located at Encinitas, Mrs. Ley reports. The E. L. Colemans are in Pomona, Miss Laura Lyons, who is in Long Beach, is doing some writing. The Ellis Miners, W. O. Hanssens and other former Wayne folks in the west all enjoy California and are well.

The big idea of the Hindenburg-Schleicher - Papen Government seems to be to keep the citizenry trotting to the polls until they're too tired to start anything. - Mason Telegraph.

In Guard Of Honor Serving President

Serving as a member of the guard of honor for President Herbert Hoover at his recent Des Moines address was the honor conferred on Harold Boyce of Mason City, Ia., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Boyce of Wayne. Mr. Boyce is commander of the Mason City Legion post.

"As a member of the guard of honor," Mr. Boyce says, "we stood in line while the president passed through the lines and then we marched a column of two on each side of the street beside the cars that carried him and his party. In the coliseum where he spoke were 10,000 and thousands outside. It was evident that the president was heavily guarded but there was no disturbance of any sort."

"The president made a wonderful speech and I am sure it made a great impression. Everything he said was instructive."

Twenty-five thousand fascists in Rome cheered Premier Benito Mussolini as he called upon them to be steadfast to the principles of the "bloodiest modern revolution." The Nebraska National bank of Grand Island was held up by six men at 10:45 last Thursday morning and $46,000 was taken. About 20 people were in the bank at the time. The robbery was so well planned that the work was done before anyone knew what was going on. Most of the money and bonds was taken from a small safe used for current business. The men escaped in a car, forcing young women to stand on the running boards until they reached the city limits as a guard. The bandits were traced to Kansas.

8-Day Sale of Stokely's Canned Vegetables (Friday, Oct. 21 to Saturday, Oct. 29, Inc.)

Just a year ago we introduced Stokely's Finest Canned Vegetables to Wayne food buyers. Judging from the immediate and widespread acceptance of Stokely vegetables we are sure that many folks recognize that they rate with the best packed.

Although the general trend of food prices is upward, these prices are based upon today's costs and if you will check them you will find they represent substantial savings.

As the quantity increases the price per unit becomes smaller. Nearly everyone can and will use a number of cans of corn and peas and other staple vegetable items—and the saving is greater when you buy a larger quantity at one time.

Dramatize Scenes From Shakespeare

Plans Are Under Way For Play To Be Presented At Holidays.

The junior and senior English literature classes are planning on dramatizing the scenes from Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," which portrays the tricking of Malvolio. They will play these parts of the great comedy for next week's assembly.

Miss Ruby Fredrickson spent the week-end in her parental home. Jola Stone was a week-end guest of Mildred Johnson of Laurel. Eric Nelson was a dinner guest Thursday in the Gust Kraemer home.

Plays are being made for a three-act comedy play to be given before the holidays. Many high school students have joined the dramatics and declamation students. Miss Carlson is in charge of the department. We had a very enjoyable school assembly last week. Miss Bessie led us in a song fest. Mr. Caauwe reminded us of the importance of fire prevention week. The Concord school has worked out a very efficient fire drill, which was practiced three times during fire prevention week. A good schedule for the winter's basketball games is being prepared these days. There will be more games this year, it seems.

Roads and War
IN trying to solve tax problems, it looks as though we were straining at gnats and swallowing camels.

The state tax commissioner recently reported that since the beginning of the road program in Nebraska about ten years ago, the federal government has contributed $42,000,000 to the road fund of the state.

Nebraska pays in the neighborhood of one per cent. of the national expense. Therefore it would appear that the United States has spent slightly less than $15,000,000,000 on its road program in the last decade.

Lippmann Changes
IT is interesting to note that Walter Lippmann's conflicting estimates of Governor Roosevelt, published in the New York Herald Tribune during the past six months.

Why turn to a man who has no initiative, no ideas, no force—one whose thinking and acting must be controlled and directed by unknown politicians?

Advantages of the radio in political campaigns grow with experience—become more evident with every recurring presidential election.

Mark Sullivan wonders what faction of the democratic party Governor Roosevelt will favor if he is elected. If he manages everything as vaguely as he does his campaign pronouncements, he will do his utmost to avoid saying or doing anything that could be construed as an offense to either faction.

Arthur Brisbane is paid well for his daily contributions to the world of thought, but sometimes he presumes too much on popular stupidity.

A contributor to the Sioux City Journal calls attention to the depression that started in 1837 following eight years of wild speculations.

Secretary Stimson said in a speech in New York that Governor Roosevelt's failure to take a position on the bonus causes uncertainty that injures national credit.

Cooler elements following a light rain Tuesday night stimulated thoughts of winter and prompted renewed energy in the task of gathering the big corn crop.

The Mexican Cattle Menace.
Omaha Daily Journal-Stockman: Regardless of political affiliations western cattlemen are practically a unit in favor of a stiff protective duty on imported cattle.

The tariff wall is all that is holding back the flood; all that is keeping the American ranchman in the game at all.

Cattle arriving from Mexico are uninviting sights in their sadly shrunken condition. The duty mounts according to the weight.

Speaker Urges Women To Vote

The republican party opposes the cancellation of war debts, favors restricted immigration, stands for revised transportation regulations, advocates regulation of interstate power, advocates cutting down of governmental expenses, demands a balanced budget, advocates remaining on the gold standard, opposes child labor, and demands regulation of women in industry, the speaker said.

"President Hoover was born during the panic of 1870, was orphan at 10, and worked his way through school, always knowing hardship and privation. That he is a man of quick action and fully capable of grasping big questions and finding their solution, has been demonstrated these past four years," Mrs. Conroy affirmed.

"We've been a mighty sick nation and are now on the road to recovery—this is no time to change physicians for this would mean delayed recovery. We can be proud that this, greatest of nations, has remained on the gold standard and kept faith with our people during the world-wide panic."

Frightened Man Forgets His Name

Were you ever so frightened you couldn't think of your own name? This was the case with an English scenic artist who was with Walter Savidge Amusement company one season during the World war. The company was showing at Gregory, S. D. Actors were so scarce that Mr. Savidge used the scenic artist for parts in some plays. The man was walking into the country learning his part, making gestures with his hands and writing notes in a book. Officers were suspicious of his actions and three arrested him, charging that he was a spy. With a gun pointed at each side the actor was so bewildered when officers demanded to know his name and what he was doing that he could not think of his name nor explain that he was working for Mr. Savidge. Finally the actor was able to gesture enough to get the officers to take him to Mr. Savidge who explained the situation to their satisfaction.

The banks are full, and loans are obtainable on good collateral. Before the last congress convened, President Hoover outlined a seven-point program to put the country back on its feet. Mrs. Conroy pointed out, and this plan called for the creation of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, not to benefit the big fellow but to help the masses of American people. Approximately 3,000 banks have borrowed from the corporation, and only 5 per cent of these were in big cities. The president urged additional funds for the federal reserve, money for public improvements which would provide employment, a balanced budget and emergency funds for federal aid.

Taking up the farm problem, Mrs. Conroy, who operates a farm in Illinois, stressed the need of protective tariff on farm and dairy products. "In 1916 corn grown in the Argentine on cheap land by cheap labor, came in duty free, working great hardship on American producers."

"If our farmers had to compete with Mexican cattle, Argentine corn and Chinese eggs, where would we be?" she queried. "Vice-President Curtis has fought this Chinese egg situation for so long that they call him 'Egg Charlie' raised in Washington. In 1931 he raised seven billion pounds of wool and beef in this country, consuming 99.6 per cent of this. Without tariff meat would have poured in from Mexico and Canada, and the market would have been shattered."

In the speaker's opinion, the first problem is to raise the price of farm products in order that the

Name Candidates For Scholarship

Wayne And Wakefield Men Are To Try For Honor In December.

Among Nebraska's candidates for Rhodes scholarship are Kermit Stewart, Eagle, graduate student in fine arts last year at Nebraska Wesleyan and this year instructor of music in Wayne high school, and Robert Nuernberger, Wakefield, graduate student this year in social sciences at the state university.

The state committee will meet December 10 to select two men to enter the district competition against representatives from Minnesota, South Dakota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska colleges and universities.

A candidate must be a male citizen of the United States, unmarried, and between 19 and 25 years of age at start of the year for which he is elected.

A Closeup of President Hoover and Governor Roosevelt

(Harlan, Ia., Republican) Mrs. Laura Newhouse, formerly of Kirkman, now of Glendale, Cal., sends us some very interesting clippings of Manchester Boddy's column, "Views of the News," taken from a Los Angeles paper.

"I believe," Mr. Broddy continues, "you will see in them a degree of sincerity not often in evidence in political propaganda." The comments follow:

"I feel compelled to tell you have asked me for my opinion on the political situation. I believe that if the election were held today, Roosevelt would be elected, but I hope and pray that before November public sentiment will change. I cannot give you all my reasons, but I am going to give you some of them.

"I am not a hidebound republican. I voted for good democrats when I thought they were the best men for the office. I voted for Al Smith for governor of New York because he had distinctive genius in administering the affairs of the state. He had been a close student of state affairs. He is honest and fearless. I did not vote for him for president because he had not had the training or the experience to fit him for the broad duties of the president of the United States.

"It would have taken him two years or more to get into the harness. He would have been lost in dealing with international affairs. The business of running the United States as president is a tremendous job. We do not select the good fellow and the good mixer to perform a critical operation upon our wife or children. They very things that make a man magnetic and attractive unfit him for long, hard patient administrative work.

"I do not like Hoover personally. I would not want to go fishing with him or to play golf with him. I would not select him as a companion for any purpose. Neither would you, and I could have more fun with you in a week than either of us could with Hoover in a year, but Hoover possesses unusual ability. He is a thorough planner. He is able to see ahead. In other words, as you know, he is a great engineer. He has had the biggest problems to contend with of any president since the days of Lincoln. There have been no precedents for this economic depression.

"No one can truthfully say whether he has made mistakes or not. It is a fact that he has consulted from time to time the biggest men in this country—both democrats and republicans. Hoover is not a strong partisan but he is a great patriot. He is not looking to help any particular group. Pro bono publico is what is in his mind every day and night. I know this from men whom he has consulted about matters concerning which he needed information.

"They all say that he is cold and calm, but asks very searching and pertinent questions, takes notes and makes figures, and thanks them. When they have left him, they know nothing of what his plans are. He is in perfect physical condition. He has lost 30 pounds, puts in 12 hours a day and sometimes more; is really a horse for work.

"Now, as to Franklin Roosevelt—he is a gentleman. He has been well bred, carefully educated at one of the most aristocratic fitting schools in New England and at Harvard college. I have known him for 35 years. I do not know of a single enterprise or effort he has ever made in a business way to make money. I doubt if he has ever been in a courtroom—certainly not to try a case. He is living today, and has for years, off the fortune made by his father as a banker in Wall Street. He is a fifth cousin of Theodore Roosevelt.

"I suppose there are thousands of people in the country today who think he has many of the attributes of the famous Theodore, but I can tell you that he is no more like Theodore Roosevelt than a horse chestnut is like a chestnut horse. He is a charming, affable, grinning, fair weather friend. He is all things to all people. The last man who talks with him leaves him with an idea that Roosevelt agrees with him. The very next man who comes along with an opposite plan, Roosevelt will agree with him.

"This is absolutely fair criticism based upon the knowledge of democrats and republicans who have known him from childhood.

"It is too long a story to tell you why he was elected governor of New York the first time or the second time, but we people here in New York know the reasons. We also know the reasons why Al Smith went into this campaign to keep Roosevelt from getting the nomination. It was because Al Smith knows how weak Franklin Roosevelt is. He is personally friendly with him and appreciates all Roosevelt has done for him, but his patriotism is so great that he shudders to think of Roosevelt being elected president.

"While Roosevelt has been governor, he has been surrounded by some very able men who have advised him at every turn. They steered him and helped him prepare his speeches. The men who know do not think that this plan can be carried on in managing the affairs of the nation.

"It would take any man of ability, even Mr. Baker, who was the best man in the democratic party for the job, to get a firm grasp on our national affairs and to understand what has been done and what necessarily must be done, to say nothing of our international affairs.

"Now, if you can get out of this any consolation or help, I shall be very glad.

"You ought to know that Garner is in no way fitted to be either vice president or president. I am glad that Texas has been recognized, but Texas needs no recognition. She has many able men than Garner. Garner is not temperamentally fitted as he has shown in the last month or two since his name was first mentioned for vice president."

Open Season On Pheasants Brings Eager Response From Sportsmen

"Open season on pheasants!" Thrilling words, these, to hunting enthusiasts who have been painstakingly oiling their shotguns and sorting out roughing togs the past week in eager anticipation. Omifous words to housewives, to whom pheasant season brings birds to be picked and cleaned, big family dinners to prepare, and temporary widowhood. Words of warning to that brilliantly-plumed aristocrat and his drably-feathered mate, warning that security lies only in flight, and that the friendly cornfields and stubbles are fraught dangers. For the state game, forestation and parks commission has decreed it legal to hunt ringneck pheasants in this county for a ten-day period, beginning at 7 a. m. October 22 and ending at 6 p. m. October 31. No hunting is permissible between sunset and one-half hour before sunrise each day. The daily bag limit has been set at five male birds, or four male and one female bird, and this means the hunter must be on guard not to shoot those with his share of hens. Local enthusiasts say they prefer to bag cocks, as these are much bigger and better eating.

Hunting licenses are being issued at the county court house and at local hardware stores. The price is $1.00. Script books costing $2.50 may be obtained from the county clerk, and hunters shooting pheasants on ants leave their roosts and hie themselves to the cornfields, which are now veritable labyrinths in which it is difficult to sight the birds. P. E. Fleetwood believes he has better luck at night. As long as the hunter is walking the birds stay on the ground, often cleverly circling around to rear of their enemy, but as soon as the hunter stops, they make a long, swift run and take to the air in airplane fashion, their wings making a clattering sound. A direct shot is necessary to bring them down, and even when wounded, they will run as long as an ounce of strength remains, and are difficult to find. No good sportsman leaves a wounded bird to die nor shoots a bird on the ground. The first day of open season, pheasants are without fear and are easily bagged, but the sound of guns soon makes them wary and they go into hiding.

Pheasants are usually found along the creeks, in corn fields and stubble fields. Where they are plentiful, prairie chickens are seldom seen as grouse don't get along with their more ornamental cousins. The female bird is neutral toned and difficult to detect in dead grass, but the male is easily spotted because of his bright plumage. The female raises two broods each summer, nesting in a hay meadow, oak or alfalfa field. In the spring the birds do considerable damage to corn fields by eating young corn sprouts, and during harvest season they feast on fallen ears of corn. Being unusually hardy birds, they roost in tangleweeds along fence rows and windbreaks during the cold months and live on weed seeds.

The approved costume for pheasant hunting, (for benefit of the uninitiated), calls for water-proof khaki cap of tan corduroy cap with fur lining, heavy breeches in tan or drab shade, high laced boots or leather puttees and khaki jacket with numerous and oddly placed pockets which mystify the novice. Scarlet hunting caps and stirring hunting horns are all very well for ye metric olde England, say local marksmen, but it takes good old drab and khaki outfits to fit a smart pheasant. When stalking a cornfield, a group of five to seven hunters well spread out over the field is more successful than a smaller group. As to guns, there's a wide diversity of opinion, for some hunters advocate 12 gauge and other 16 gauge repeaters, and some recommend a No. 6 shot, and others declare for a 7 1-2. A large shot is likely to glance off the pheasant's feathers, says Mr. Fleetwood.

Waynites who are likely to be missing from Main street off and on the next ten days include Dr. William Hawkins, Dr. J. C. Johnson, Guy Steyens, Dr. S. A. Lutgen, Lester Vath, A. T. Cavanaugh, Ross Jacobs, L. W. McNatt, A. B. Carhart, Carl Luders, H. G. Hostetter, Walter Bressler, L. W. Kratavil, E. E. Fleetwood, Curtis Foster, Albert Helleberg, Fred Dale, Dr. W. A. Emery, J. A. Wayne Is Winner In Friday Game

Safety In Last Minute Gives Local High School Lead In Scoring.

Hartington and Wayne high school met in football here Friday evening and Wayne won a close contest by 2 to 0, the local team making a safety shortly before the final whistle blew. At one time Hartington was within six inches of the goal line.

The lineup at opening of the game was as follows: Cunningham, center; Penhollow and Ahern, guards; Brown and McGuggan, tackles; Miller and Henkel, ends; Simmerman and Vernon Hughes, halfbacks; Studley, quarterback; and Dean Hughes, fullback. Davies went in for Penhollow and Bornhoff for Simmerman.

Dean Hughes, who sustained minor injuries in play, was all right Saturday morning. Wayne meets Bloomfield at Bloomfield this Friday. Wayne won two conference games, Randolph and Hartington. This season, and if the team takes this Friday's contest its leadership in the Northeast Nebraska conference will be certain.

Early Days In Wayne County

Wayne County, Nebraska, was first settled in 1854. The first settlers were pioneers who came from the east and west. They found a land of opportunity and a chance to build a better life for themselves and their families.

The early days in Wayne County were filled with hard work and sacrifice. The settlers had to clear the land, build their homes, and plant their crops. They had to endure the hardships of a new frontier, but they persevered and built a thriving community.

Wayne County has a rich history and a beautiful landscape. It is a land of opportunity and a place where hard work is rewarded. The people of Wayne County are proud of their heritage and their accomplishments.

HALLOWE'EN

Comes the night of evil, bringing the awesome parade of ghosts, fairies, goblins, witches and spirits with which unending ages of superstition have haunted the peace of mankind! Why was this night set aside for the roaming of homeless horrors?

The ancients gave a shower of fruits of the earth to departed beings who were supposed to walk abroad on All Hallows' eve, or the night preceding All Saints' day. The elements of nature—fire, water, sun, moon and stars—were introduced into the ceremonies in order that spirits might find means of making their presences known. But with passing years, only the two most outstanding occurrences of human existence survived, so we find Hallowe'en customs centering around the desires of young folks to look into future marriages, and around grim death stalkings, the darkest shadows. Spooks float about in grave-yards, moaning shades haunt unfriendly groves and vacant lots, hobgoblins run wild, and emaciated witches straddle their broomsticks. Truly a night of impending evil!

About Hallowe'en have grown many amusing customs. In Scotland, nuts are named and placed in the fire, the first one to pop naming one's future partner. A young woman eating an apple before a mirror while combing her hair, will see her future husband in the glass over her shoulder. Or if she walks backward at midnight, holding a mirror in one hand and a candle in the other, her future husband will appear in the glass. An apple paring thrown over the left shoulder is sure to contain the initials of one's future mate. Another old-world custom is pouring molten lead through a wedding ring into a dish of water, and the hardening lead takes shapes which foretell one's future. The 17th century Scots said that if a piece of wood was placed in a glass of water on Hallowe'en, a girl would dream of falling from a bridge into a river and of being rescued by her future husband.

Now superstitions discounted except by the very young, Hallowe'en has become a night of pleasant madness, of daring escapades, of merry pranks and peepings into the future. A jolly time, indeed!

MUSIC PROGRAM IN CITY SCHOOL

Debate Groups Are Formed In Three Upper Classes Of Wayne School.

An all high-school assembly was held at Wayne school last Thursday afternoon, with program contributions by students and by Kermit Stewart, music instructor. A piano trio by Marian Seymour, Mary Alice Strahan and Margaret Jones opened the program, followed by a debate on the relative merits of the two presidential candidates, in which Richard Moses represented Roosevelt, and James Davies, Hoover. Marion Jones played a clarinet solo, accompanied by Margaret Blair, Helen and Ruby Rhoades gave readings, and Mr. Stewart played several piano numbers. Fern Crawford and Wanda Smolsky, graduates of 1932, returned for the program. Father William Kearns will speak at the next assembly period on Thursday, Oct. 20, concerning his recent trip to the Eucharistic Congress in Dublin, Ireland.

The high school library is being reorganized, and new reading tables and a magazine rack installed. A number of important magazines have been subscribed for, and these will be used in connection with English and social science classes. Students are now obtaining English and science events from the Literary Digest and other magazines through supervised study. This eliminates considerable expense on the part of students as hitherto they have been expected to subscribe to the Digest at a price below what wholesalers were paying.

With coming of fall weather, several trees will be added to the school grounds. The few Chinese elms and lindens which were planted last year made excellent growth for first year, and the old and short-lived varieties of trees which are dying, will be replaced with Chinese elms and other rapid-growing species.

Report cards were issued Tuesday noon covering the first six weeks' work and parents are urged to check cards carefully to get a definite idea of how pupils are progressing, and if personal cooperation with the school is needed.

Helen Jones holds the best record in typewriting this year, with 68 words per minute.

Inter-class debates on the question, "Resolved: That Roosevelt should be our next president," will be held during the coming two weeks. The winning member of the senior squad will meet the sophomore winner, the junior will meet the freshman, and the two victors will meet to decide the championship.

Lucille Wright, Jeanne Wright, James Davies, William Studley, Richard Moses, Robert Kingston and Elmer Kilborn make up the senior team; Raymond Sala, William Moore, Milton Auker, Don Davis and Kieth Gartwright will represent the junior class; and Tom Cavanaugh, Frank Strahan, Frank Gamble, Lindsey Kenney, Dorothy Hook, Alice Mae Young, Donald Wright, Robert McEachen and Peggy Strahan are sophomore participants. The freshman squad has not yet been selected.

W. A. Behl reports that several unusual history projects have been brought in, including a cut-out flag by Margaret Foltz and colored maps of Wayne county made by Leona Coryell and Glea Gifford.

Proceeding the night game with Hartington Friday, the junior class sponsored a pep meeting just before afternoon dismissal, Ruby and Ruth Rhoades, Mae Langnaack, Inez Perry and Letha Penhollow took part in a take-off on the police. "Does the moon affect the tide?"

Mary: "No, only the untied."

Judge: "Are you sure, he was drunk?"

Police: "Well, his wife said he brought home a manhole cover and tried to play it on the phonograph."

- 1-2 cup water

Cook until cranberries become mushy and then run through colander. Add 2 cups of sugar and place on stove long enough for sugar to dissolve. Mold.

Coffee.

Coffee must be carefully measured to assure success. Have water boiling. Then measure one heaping tablespoon of coffee to each half pint of boiling water. Make sure that each half pint of water is a half pint and not more or less. For percolated coffee 10 minutes' slow percolation is sufficient. French drip coffee is ready to serve when all the water is dropped through. In any case, coffee should be served at once after it is made.

In 1893, we note that registration was liberal, and that in addition, "Hal Gamble and James Ahern take German at 4 o'clock." This, says Mr. Ahern, was the right way to start a college career, not to overload!

In 1894, Prof. U. S. Conn joined the faculty, and the Normal Budget, college paper, made its first appearance, in August of that year, the alumni organization took form, with Harvey Mason as president, Floyd Cunningham, vice president; Grace Nelhardt, recording secretary, and David Carral, treasurer.

And thus was the old Nebraska Normal launched on its eventful and successful career, to grow far beyond the expectations of its founder and early supporters.

Miss Charlotte White Recalls the Founding and First Eventful Years of Nebraska Normal College

It's a wide span from the Wayne of 1891, with one dusty business street and scattered houses, to the robust little city of today, with its beautiful college campus strategically overlooking the geometrically-patterned streets lined with generous foliage. Many a new business sign has appeared upon Main street, and many a familiar face has disappeared in the intervening years. You early settlers will remember that in the good year 1891, the German store was selling clothing and dry goods, that A. L. Tucker was president of the Citizen's bank and that Ed Perry and James Britton had just completed their new race course, and racing fever was at its height.

Looking retrospectively, Miss Charlotte White of Rosalie sees Miss Laura Pryor (Mrs. John Brugger) and herself jogging along over the rough wagon roads enroute to college—but to a very different college from what 1892 students know!

Miss White recalls the founding of the college in 1891. J. J. Gildersleeve was county superintendent and he secured M. Pile of the Fremont normal to conduct summer institute. A. Kanish who was here trading land, bought at the Boyd hotel with Fred Pile and became much impressed by his education and personality. He asked Mr. Gildersleeve why Wayne didn't start a normal college like they had done in Kansas, plotting "out land near the city and selling the lots to raise money for a building. The idea met with favor. Prof. Pile was appointed president of the new Nebraska normal college; a corporation was formed with an authorized capital of $30,000; land was purchased and excavation began on a site "3-4 mile north of the depot!" Miss Anna Byrne of Laramie, Wyo., and Prof. Albert Dawkins of Kansas City, came to teach. While the new building was being pushed to completion, Prof. Pile conducted classes in an old laundry building on the east side of Main between Third and Fourth streets. Mrs. Pile and the children came to join the professor, and Miss White recalls that James was a baby in long, long dresses, and that Helen, at five, could name all the presidents.

Says the Herald for Sept. 15, 1892: "Wayne's $26,000 Normal college building is the wonder and surprise of passengers traveling through our city" who are amazed at its "immense institute of learning."

Students had their choice of several courses of study, including common schools, teachers, scientific, classic, mathematical, short hand and typewriting, music, fine arts and elocution. Enrollment the first term totaled 43, and this was swelled to 77 the second term and to 79, the third.

Graduation time came and found the following lined up on the platform in all their dignity: Miss White, Miss Leona Hunter, Miss Cora Reynolds, now Mrs. Charles Beebe of Portland, Ore., Miss Dora Evans who died a year later, Miss Myrtle Feltcher, Harvey Mason, C. Hurley, now a Montana lawyer, Arthur Millen, now an Omaha lawyer prominently identified with the Roosevelt campaign, John Coyle and Monte Spahr. Each candidate had written an essay for the exercises, and Miss White had prepared an exhaustive study of "Famous Women," but when it came her turn to appear, the manuscript had disappeared! Undaunted, she stepped to the front and gave her thesis orally, telling the audience that if any of them wanted to read her original manuscript, it was all in the encyclopedia!

By 1893, the enrollment had grown and the faculty was increased to keep a pace. It included the following members: Prof. J. M. Pile, grammar, mathematics and didactics; Mrs. J. M. Pile, history and geography; R. W. Ball, sciences and elocution; Miss Anna Byrne, language and literature; Adelia M. Eason, penmanship, shorthand and letter writing; Miss C. M. White, county superintendent and lecturer on methods, school management and teacher common branches; Miss Marian Adams, kindergarten and primary methods; J. E. Paul, arithmetic and bookkeeping; E. M. C. Ezerman, musical director, pipe organ, piano, voice, harmony and theory; Maud Fetter Ezerman, piano and organ.

Trustees of the college this year were: William Miller, president; J. T. Bressler, capitalist, vice-president; J. J. Gildersleeve, ex-county superintendent, secretary; J. D. King, treasurer; A. L. Tucker, president Citizen's bank; H. F. Wilson, cashier First National bank; B. F.
