Peggy Strahan headed the refreshment committee; Dorothy Hook was refreshment chairman; Mary Margaret McGarragh was in charge of decorations, and W. A. Behl served as sponsor. Other faculty members present were Supt. H. R. Best and Kermit Stewart.

Third graders were hosts to about 40 visitors, mostly mothers, at their Friday afternoon program. Shirley Powers made the announcements, and the children planned and staged the entertainment themselves. Health inspectors for the month of November will wear white paper collars and cuffs in Pilgrim style. Donald Steinmetz and Myia June Thomas are serving this week.

Another War. Suspicion of another war in Europe leads the Sioux City Journal to inquire: "Has humanity completely lost its reason? Has the whole world come to the jumping off place?" The Journal thinks no lesson was learned from the last war, and that destruction of civilization is impending, and that if foreign countries again precipitate a clash of arms, this nation will let them clash without interference.

Firemen Working On Skating Pond

Firemen have begun work on the skating pond which they are building on city lots on east Fifth street. The bank to hold water is about complete and the pond will soon be finished.

GETTING RETURNS CONTRASTS WITH OLD-TIME MEANS

FARLY in the life of the nation, it was often weeks before the results of a presidential election were definitely known. Slow means of transportation and communication and lack of facilities for handling returns kept the populace in ignorance of results for a long time after the balloting had ceased. Now by use of machines in many centers results are quickly determined and by means of radio they are instantly communicated to all parts of the country. In the old days in this state voting was completed before counting started. Now two boards are employed, one to receive the ballots and the other to do the counting. Thus, before morning, as evidenced in the late election, results are known and broadcast everywhere.

ROOSEVELT IS NAMED NATION'S NEXT PRESIDENT

Big Electoral And Popular Majorities Give Lead To Governor.

SENATE AND CONGRESS

Gaining a large popular and electoral plurality in the nation's election Tuesday, Governor Franklin Roosevelt of New York, democrat, was elected to the United States presidency, defeating President Herbert Hoover, republican, who led the country in a sweeping victory four years ago. Shortly after midnight Tuesday President Hoover wired the following message to Governor Roosevelt: "I congratulate you on the opportunity that has come to you to be of service to the country." And the newly elected executive gave out the following statement: "While I am grateful with all my heart for this expression of the confidence of my fellow Americans, I realize keenly the responsibility I shall assume and I mean to serve with my utmost capacity the interest of the nation."

Incomplete returns late Wednesday give Roosevelt 472 electoral votes and Hoover 59. Hoover led in Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and Vermont. In 72,000 out of the country's 119,000 precincts, Roosevelt's vote was 14,600,000 out of 25,000,000.

Incomplete returns show 14 democrats elected to the United States senate, 31 democrats re-elected, a total of 45. One republican senator was elected and 30 re-elected, a total of 31. One farmer-laborer senator was re-elected, and 19 were still doubtful yesterday. Necessary majority in the senate is 49.

Other incomplete returns on 43 seats in congress show 140 democrats elected. There are 218 in present congress. Republicans elected number 34, and the present congress has 209 of this party. Of the number, 261 are still doubtful. Necessary number for majority is 218. Indications point to democratic control of congress.

PLAN OF RELIEF IN WAYNE TOLD

Red Cross And Local Agency In Charge Of Providing For The Needy.

Relief agencies, their organization and plan of operation were subjects of addresses Monday when Supt. H. R. Best and Rev. H. C. Caspey spoke to Kiwanians following noonday luncheon at Hotel Stratton.

"The Red Cross has always functioned in a worthwhile manner," asserted Supt. Best in telling of plans for the annual membership roll call which starts Armistice day and continues until Thanksgiving. "This year is going to be a tough one in caring for needy people," continued Supt. Best, "and though the public is being solicited for numerous things financially, the call of the Red Cross is necessary. This is the only Red Cross call that will be made to help charity, and the chapter funds will provide for a large share of the relief work in the county," Supt. Best further stated. "Each should heed the call and help."

The relief organization recently organized and now functioning in Wayne was the topic of the address by Rev. Caspey, chairman of this association. "The central committee and relief organization were formed to coordinate activities and make a clearing house for relief work," Rev. Caspey stated. "The organization is not to take the place of other relief agencies and it does not tell individuals not to give aid. The agency is a clearing house to enable more efficient and just distribution."

In further explaining the work of the organization Rev. Caspey stated that Paul Mines has charge of general applications for relief. Walter Bressler takes care of needs of transients; Frank Erkieben, of all county matters; and Mrs. G. W. Crossland, of women's and children's needs. Walter Bressler is executive secretary who keeps a record of persons helped and contributions made. Mrs. W. C. Fox has charge of distributing clothing and food. The relief organization has a financing committee whose chairman is Mrs. Rollie W. Ley, county Red Cross chairman. "The agency functions in cases of emergency," Rev. Caspey explained, "and if the public responds to the Red Cross call it will not be necessary to make a drive for the central committee." The speaker also explained that the committee has $50 which was given by business men.

STATE SWINGS TO ROOSEVELT AND HIS PARTY

Democrats Gain All State Offices And Control Legislature.

SOCIALISTIC VOTE GAINS

Franklin D. Roosevelt invaded the republican stronghold, Nebraska, and swept it into line, polling almost twice as many votes as President Herbert Hoover, according to late counts of Tuesday's election. Democrats extended their landslide into this state, obtaining a clean sweep of state offices for the first time since 1916, and gaining four and possibly five congressional seats, and a democratic legislature.

The incomplete presidential poll shows Mr. Roosevelt and his running mate, John N. Garner, with 281,737 votes, and the president and Charles Curtis totaling 157,400, indicating a plurality much greater than Mr. Hoover's 147,000 Nebraska edge last election.

The socialistic candidate, Norman Thomas, increased his 1928 vote, but totalling barely 5,000 votes, when three-fourths of the ballots had been tabulated. The socialistic vote fell short of the number needed to retain its right on the next Nebraska ballot.

Charles Bryan, present governor, led Dwight Griswold, republican, by slightly more than 33,000, when 1,481 of the 2,038 precincts were tabulated. Lieutenant Governor Theodore Metcalf of Omaha polled less than 30,000 votes behind Walter Jurgensen, successful democratic candidate for second office of the state.

Harry Swanson was successful in the race for secretary of state's office; W. B. Price defeated the republican nominee for auditor of public accounts; George Hall was named state treasurer; Floyd Bolten was named railway commissioner; and Harry Conklin won in the competition for land commissioner. C. A. Sorensen, present attorney general, fell a victim of the democratic landslide, trailing Paul F. Good, Lincoln lawyer, by over 33,000 votes at the three-quarters mark. Mr. Sorensen's measure to establish a state police system was snuffed under by 33,000 votes, with one-third of the ballots yet to be heard from.

Four democratic nominees for congress were elected by safe margins. Congressman John Morsehead of Falls City won in First district; Congressman Edgar Howard rolled up record lead in third district; Congressman A. C. Shallenberger of Alma, led ex-congressman Fred Johnson of Hastings; and Edward R. Burke, unseated congressman, Malcolm Badrige, Omaha republican, in Fifth district. Terry Carpenter, 27-year-old Scottsbluff candidate, took a generous lead over republican Robert G. Simmons, but the race is still in doubt.

Charles A. Goss, chief justice, held a lead of about 8,000 votes over Harry Palmer in the race for chief justice of supreme court, and final figures have not yet been received.

UPWARD SWING IN ECONOMIC STATE PLAINLY EVIDENT

IN its November bulletin the National City Bank of New York notes that employment has steadily increased and that money has been coming out of hiding. No lack of currency is indicated. On the contrary, there is an abundance of money which shows up, as more wheels of industry begin to turn and greater confidence flanks investment. Decline in the domestic hoarding of currency and the return of gold from abroad have proved encouraging. October reported 65 bank failures. Numbers of bank failures for previous months of the year follow: January, 342; February, 121; March, 47; April, 74; May, 82; June, 151; July, 132; August, 85; September, 65. Bank failures for ten months totalled 1,164, and banks reopening totaled 245. A fair parity of prices is stressed as essential to hasten and stabilize recovery. "The drop in prices for what the farmers and raw material producers sell again warns of the necessity of reducing prices of what they buy if the present improvement is to be turned into lasting recovery," the report states. Equality of prices stimulates industry, increases employment, develops consumption and enlarges buying power. Equality of prices starts the circle of buying and selling and gradually lifts all values. Signs of economic recovery are distinctly evident in industrial centers, and they should not be long in making their appearance in agricultural sections.

WAYNE COUNTY ABANDONS THE G. O. P. RANKS

Democratic Candidates Are Given Preference By Voters Tuesday.

POLICE PLAN IS REJECTED

Changing long-established precedent, Wayne county in Tuesday's election broke away from the republican fold and contributed to the nation-wide democratic landslide by favoring nine democratic nominees against four republicans, and giving a generous majority to the successful presidential and vice-presidential candidates, Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner. The democratic team received 2,593 votes against 1,438 for President Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis. Norman Thomas and his running-mate, James H. Maurer, polled a total of 87 votes in the county.

Representative Frank Kloppping, Judge J. M. Cherry and Commissioner Henry Rethwisch were re-elected.

The local election was handled by Miss Bertina Berres, county clerk, with marked efficiency. Winside precinct reported first at 8:02 p. m., just two minutes after the polls were officially closed, and Wayne Third ward, brought up the rear, checking in at 1:01 a. m. Miss Berres' official report was issued four minutes later. A total of 4,118 persons came to the polls in this county to express their political preferences.

Although there was a tendency among voters to favor straight democratic ticket, four republican nominees led over their opponents on the state and county tickets. Theodore W. Metcalf led his democratic opponent, Walter H. Jurgensen, by a narrow margin of 38 votes, while the socialistic candidate, C. H. Wilson, polled only 85 votes.

Dan Swanson, candidate for commissioner of public lands and buildings, led over Harry P. Conklin, democrat, and C. A. Sorensen, republican candidate for re-election as attorney-general, had a small lead over his democratic opponent, Paul F. Good. On the county ticket, Henry Rethwisch retained office of county commissioner in the second district, defeating J. Stanton, democrat, by a small margin. His vote, and taking a small lead over Mark I. Swihart, nominated by petition.

In the gubernatorial race, Griswold, republican, nee'd out the democratic candidate, Governor Charles W. Bryan, by 22 votes in Wayne county. The socialist, John M. Paul, annexed only 54 votes.

Wayne county voters favored the following democratic nominees: Harry R. Swanson, candidate for secretary of the state; William B. Price, candidate for auditor of public accounts; George E. Hall, candidate for state treasurer; Floyd L. Bolten, candidate for railway commissioner, and a former Wayne lawyer; Edgar Howard, candidate for congressman, third district; Watson L. Purdy, candidate for state senator, 11th district; Frank J. Kloppping, candidate for state representative, 45th district.

On the county ticket, Henry Rethwisch was re-elected county commissioner, and Judge J. M. Cherry was renamed county judge, polling a large lead over H. A. Luckey.

Gordon Ebersole Makes Taxidermal Specimens in After-College Hours

Gordon Ebersole.

Gordon Ebersole, Wayne State Teachers College junior, is demonstrating that what is originally a fascinating hobby, may be turned to profitable advantage when one is education-bent and finds that, after all, there is a depression. Having studied at an Omaha school of taxidermy, he is putting his knowledge to good advantage by mounting Wayne county birds and animals for the college science department.

A group of three pheasants which Mr. Ebersole bagged during the recent open season, has just been completed and the birds are mounted together in natural positions, cock strutting and one hen pecking at an ear of corn. The pheasant family was fashioned over manikins of excelsior wrapped in twine, and the skin generously treated with arsenic to prevent spoiling and keep away insects. Mr. Ebersole spent about four hours on each bird. A large porcupine was recently completed and turned over to the college collection.

The walls of Mr. Ebersole's room in the Frank Koff home are lined with furry skins on felt bases and a large tanned snakeskin. Since taking up this work, he has mounted hawks, fish, ducks and an owl, in addition to the pheasants and porcupine. Of all local birds, he says the duck is hardest to work with because the body is oily and feathers must be cleaned in strong liquids to remove this.

When mounting fish, it is necessary to work quickly in order to retain natural colors of the scales, Mr. Ebersole points out. A plaster cast is made and the skin stretched over it, then a coat of shellac applied to prevent fading.

The biggest job in taxidermy is making the stuffed bird or animal look natural, he explains. Older museums are filled with specimens mounted in unnatural positions, without thought to the natural stride and posture. Nowadays, taxidermists are attempting to reproduce habits and to show specimens in family groups, eating, strutting, roosting and nesting.

The student taxidermist entered teachers college this fall as a junior, after spending two years at Iowa State college, where he played football and was affiliated with Beta Theta Pi. This fall, Mr. Ebersole has been playing a good game as end on the teachers eleven, in addition to his taxidermal work.

A grouping of Mr. Ebersole's work is now on exhibit in the Herald window, including his pheasant family, porcupine and mounted skins.

Astronomical Fireworks Display Will Be Visible To Nebraskans

Above is a map of the eastern sky, prepared by O. C. Collins, of the University of Nebraska observatory, showing the relative positions of the constellations at the time when the expected "meteor shower" begins. According to the computations, the meteors should originate in the Lion constellation.

Lincoln, Neb.—A real astronomical fireworks display is in prospect for Nebraska amateur star-gazers beginning about Nov. 11, according to O. C. Collins, in charge of the University of Nebraska astronomical observatory. At that time the eastern skies will be illumined with showers of "Leonids," which are meteors emanating from the constellation Leo, commonly known as "the Lion." Leo occupies the same position in the heavens as the sun. Although the phenomenon should become evident by the evening of Nov. 11, the attraction will begin "in earnest" about Nov. 14, according to the astronomer's computations. Persons accustomed to early retiring will miss out on the show, as the hundreds of meteors will not become visible until about midnight or about 1 a. m. Collins is especially interested in having as many parties as possible observe the paths of the meteors and to report them to the university-observatory. He suggests that the "meteors" paths be marked on a map and sent to the university observatory in Lincoln. Collins explains the phenomenon as being caused by an orbit of meteors coming within "striking" distance of the earth's atmosphere. The paths of the earth's orbit and the orbit of the meteors being retrograde, causes the meteors to be speeded up on their trip toward the earth and therefore a greater brilliance results. This causes a total speed of about 44 miles per second. The light from the meteors is not caused by the reflection of the sun, but rather by the friction of the atmosphere as the meteors zip their way earthward. This exceptional exhibition of meteors occurs every 33 years or thereabouts, according to Mr. Collins. The last one occurred in 1899, and therefore astronomers should be able to feast their eyes on this phenomenon in this year of 1932. It is possible that the "show" may be divided up as between 1932 and 1933, but according to present computations, the exhibition should take place this year. In tracing the history of the Leonids, Collins says that the first time that an "air circus" of this type was recorded was in 902, A. D., and although the record has not been kept complete, the occurrences have come about every 33 years. In 1833 the exhibition was particularly brilliant, the falling of 10,000 meteors per hour having been recorded by some astronomers. In 1866, the exhibition was nearly as brilliant, although in 1899, not quite as many meteors were observed. The problem of the astronomer in connection with the study of the Leonids is to determine the point of origin, and in this Collins says that the amateur may be of great aid, not even a telescope being required. There are three points of scientific interest on which Collins wishes to collect all available information. They are: number of meteors falling every quarter-hour; record of exact time and path of each brilliant meteor, noting beginning and ending points; and paths of all meteors in order to establish their points of origin.

To Start Buying

TO start the circle of buying and selling is the thing needed to create demand and strengthen markets as pointed out by the Omaha Journal-Stockman which says:

"Economists tell us that all our troubles are due to the vicious cycle in which we are operating. Farmers cannot purchase the manufactured goods they need because they have no money. They have no money because the unemployed are unable to buy farm products. Business is not going to improve until buying starts. Then the factories will start up, the idle will be put to work and farmers will be able to buy because they are getting profitable prices for their products.

"The situation is well illustrated by the old story about the doctor. It seems the doctor was rather hard pressed, but a patient who owed him $5 for services paid the bill, and the doctor paid the grocer, and the grocer paid his rent, and the landlord paid the carpenter, and the carpenter bought shoes, and the shoe merchant paid the doctor a bill of long standing. All with five dollars. That shows how deep 'ent one member of society is on other members of society, and how a little money goes a long way in our economic life. When somebody starts the $5 on its rounds the solution will have been found."

Democratic Landslide

THE tidal wave of disapproval that engulfed the Hoover administration in Tuesday's election evidently answers a popular demand for a change—a change that should be accepted philosophically and hopefully by the minority. We doubt the wisdom of the change, but we have confidence that the new executive and his advisers—sobered by responsibility—will not seriously upset constructive policies already undertaken. We think history will vindicate President Hoover. We think the new forces will find the president's program of recovery sufficiently sound to follow in considerable measure.

No matter how free from fault an administration may be, distressing times bring demand for a change. In 1896 the democratic administration of President Cleveland was swept aside in the midst of a depression. In the campaign just closed democratic leaders included in their attack on unfavorable markets an attack on the eighteenth amendment.

In defeating the administration and ordering a change, voters of the majority think they were supporting improvement, and if they will keep on thinking so and acting accordingly, they will help the very results universally desired.

With election out of the way, the Lincoln Journal advises people to get into their respective harnesses and quit devoting major attention to politics. Says the Journal: "Now that election is past, the country will best be served by accepting the verdict of the voters, by devoting attention to our individual affairs and by promoting our individual interests. That does not mean, of course, that no attention be paid to public business. Alertness of the citizen is necessary for the protection of the government and for his own good. But the people should get away from the experience of the past few weeks when so much attention has been paid to the interests of candidates, if not to the government."

The sudden death of H. S. Ringland who had been associated with the First National Bank of Wayne for many years, is profoundly regretted. Mr. Ringland had long been identified with the development of Wayne, and he proved reliable and helpful in his business relationships. He was high-minded and sympathetic, a wide reader and thorough student of affairs. He will be greatly missed by both business and social circles in which he ranked prominently and influentially.

The fact that the great Madison Square Garden in New York City was crowded at a recent communist rally rather supports the fear that a considerable element is actively engaged in trying to saddle the Russian quality of government on this country. Steady and conscientious direction of affairs—more statesmanship and less selfish politics—will be an important safeguard against the menace of communism.

President Hoover's pre-election speeches revealing tasks involved in his administration the last few years, were masterpieces in statecraft that will go into history in connection with this nation's struggles and achievements in overcoming the forces of economic disorder. These speeches were rich in information, and they were couched in clear-cut, understandable English.

The season's first real touch of winter came yesterday when a light fall of snow appeared and was driven by a brisk wind. It interrupted outdoor activities somewhat, and enabled people to give more time to talking over election returns.

It has been suggested that women ought to be appointed to serve on each election board. A few women shared in handling election returns this year. Women voters have said they would feel more like going to the polls if they had representation on boards. And there is no reason why men should monopolize the work.

Stores in large centers are already displaying their Christmas goods, and it would seem advisable for rural communities to start the holiday business early and make a vigorous drive for their share.

Important as the primary system was as a reform when it was adopted, it is generally agreed that it is now in need of considerable reforming. The next legislature may find time to tackle the problem.

The suggestion that Bryan would pull Roosevelt through in Nebraska might well have been reversed, as the returns suggest. It would appear that Roosevelt furnished the steam that did the pulling.

The magazine, Time, accepts as evidence of its fairness and lack of bias the fact that each political or religious group figures that it doesn't get a fair deal.

Now that election is over, newspapers of all parties may be depended on to cut out party narrowness and present a united front in behalf of better times.

The Literary Digest's poll was confirmed on election day, as it was, in an opposite fashion, four years ago.

Cheap Corn Means Heavy Hogs.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: Middle western farmers are going to use as much as possible of this year's cheap, plentiful supply of corn by feeding it to hogs. That fact already has become evident in the increases which hog weights showed in October as compared with the same month a year ago.

Back at this time in 1931, short corn crops were reported in the states along the western and northern fringe of the Corn Belt. Feed costs were expected to be high and farmers began to save corn wherever possible.

Their success in this endeavor has been proved recently by the heavy movement of old cribbed corn. Prices were the lowest in years, but the grain had to be sold to make room for even a part of the bumper new crop.

This drop in the corn market has given farmers a new incentive to feed grain to hogs this year, despite the fact that the prices at which porkers sell are not much higher now than they were for several months last winter. So, plenty of heavy hogs are to be expected all winter.

Probably it isn't the economical thing to do, when consumers prefer light pork, and putting gains on hogs weighing over 250 pounds requires a good deal more corn than it did before they reached that weight. But as long as the farmers literally have corn to burn, a few bushels one way or the other make very little difference. Consumers can take what they get, at least until the market puts enough of a premium on light hogs to make it attractive for the growers to market them at the wanted weights. That is the attitude farmers are bound to take, and under the circumstances, who can say they are wrong?

How Crime Strikes.

St. Louis City Journal: In recent years the American people have had ghastly illustrations of how the underworld strikes at society in seeking to protect itself. For in the larger cities where crime is well organized force of a kind most difficult to resist and combat has been employed, to defeat justice. A case in point was the slaughter by gunmen in Newark, N. J., of a man who was the chief witness in a murder case involving eight defendants.

This has been done in other cities, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit and many more. Prosecutors have been slain, witnesses have been taken for "a ride," judges have been threatened, jurors have been intimidated or killed. The underworld, fighting with weapons which society cannot and will not use, thus is given a distinct advantage through the employment of a sinister force.

The Newark killing only emphasizes anew the lengths to which criminals will go in protecting themselves. It would seem that this murder was direct evidence of the guilt of the men under indictment. Assuredly it would be if a way could be found to connect the slayers with the defendants. Morally, society is certain of the connection, but the unfortunate feature of it is that court practice requires legal proof before a case may be made. There again the underworld takes an advantage. Its moves are made in secrecy; the law operates in the open.

A worse influence than the killing itself thus is extended by the underworld deep into the consciousness of lawabiding elements of society. There is thus held over the heads of individuals involved in criminal trials, judges, prosecutors, jurors, witnesses and others, a forfeit. They are menaced by grave doubts. Fear is instilled into their hearts. It takes courage to resist an influence of that kind.

As The Journal has said before, the situation is one that may be compared to the early years of this country's exploration, settlement and development. There is required now, even in these days of advanced civilization, a return to the pioneer spirit in defense of law and morality. Pioneers forged ahead regardless of the predatory forces. There were foes of many kinds to resist them, but they went on to conquer for the reason that they were dauntless, indefatigable. Inevitably the American people must face the responsibility of waging a determined fight against the predatory element of society if, indeed, they are to conquer it in the end.

SURPRISES.

People hold many surprises which are unduly unacquainted develops. The person of modest mien who attends to his own business, and who sounds no trumpets as an accompaniment to gratuitous service, reveals surprising depth of understanding and breadth of human sympathy. He keeps out of the limelight, and he does not shout for attention when he contributes to some one's comfort or happiness. Another, of pretentious strut and haughty air who at first is believed to rank above the average in many qualities, may sink to a pitifully low level of littleness when his true character is uncovered and his true worth is tested. Thus, judgment should not be hastily or carelessly formed. The individual of greatest value to society may make no noise, may quietly pursue his course without thought of applause or reward. The person who is overly satisfied with himself and who is uneasy lest others will not appreciate his greatness, may drop to zero when close appraisal separates the dross from the gold.

Recital On Monday Is Well Received

Prof. and Mrs. Albert G. Carlson presented a program of music Monday evening before an enthusiastic audience at Wayne Teachers College auditorium.

Mrs. Carlson opened the program with four numbers: "Gavotte in B Minor," Bech; "Sonata in E Minor," Beethoven; "Ballet from 'Iphigenia in Aulis,'" Gluck-Brahms; and "Eccossaises," Beethoven. These were rendered in an artistic manner with a fine balance of tone and a delicate consideration for musical values.

As her second offering Mrs. Carlson played "Concerto in D Minor," by Mendelssohn. This composition is a brilliant type and was played with characteristic dash and enthusiasm. Prof. Carlson gave a very creditable assistance at a second piano in the performance of the orchestral score transcribed for piano.

In her third group Mrs. Carlson played: "Minuet," Mozart; "Impromptu," Schubert; "Valse," Chopin; "Viennese Popular Song," Kreisler; and "Soiree de Vienne," Schubert-Liszt. These numbers were more of the modernistic, colorful type and were played with a fine sense of emotional value.

The next part of the program was a talk on music by Prof. Carlson. In his talk he stressed the classifications of various types of music. These classifications were designated as the physical, emotional or pictorial, intellectual and spiritual. Prof. Carlson said, "Each of us should take an inventory of our musical understanding. There is no harm in being on the lowest round of the musical ladder; the only harm is in remaining upon that round. Each and everyone of us may achieve a thorough understanding of all music by consistent listening to the better classes of music."

Mrs. Carlson closed the program with two modern compositions.

ARMISTICE DAY.

The armistice which ended the world war, was signed fourteen years ago, and since then the world has been recovering from its wounds—wounds cut deeper than any inflicted by any previous war. Inflation incident to the conflict caused an orgy of speculation and high living, and it continued as the country settled back on a peace basis. Production soon caught up with consumption, and deflation set in. War debts loomed as artificial values shrank, casting shadows before the path of prosperity. In time, as a consequence, overproduction and unemployment with shattered prices, paralyzed markets and trade. The severest experience in readjustment has taxed fortitude during the last few years, and this armistice anniversary finds the country laboriously knitting together its broken economic fabric and slowly restoring normal, peace-time conditions. Relief that spread over the world on receipt of word that hostilities had ceased has not been forgotten. Sacrifices made in patriotic service are remembered and honored. On this anniversary we reiterate the hope that there will be no more wars to suffer, no more costly aftermaths to overcome.

Makes Long Run In Pilger Tilt

College training high school gridsters went down to defeat at the hands of the Pilger eleven, in a battle of surprises on the Pilger field Friday afternoon. About 30 students, or half the student body, two supervisors and Prof. A. F. Gulliver accompanied the team.

Wayne kicked off to Pilger, and an opponent returned the ball to Wayne's 10-yard line in one play, Pilger lost the ball on downs on the visitor's five yard line, then Dale Hanks received the ball from Wayne's center on next play, and galloped down the field 105 yards for a touchdown. A well-placed kick made the tally 7 to 0. Pilger marked up a tally, but failed on the kick, and the score stood 7 to 6 at end of half.

The Pilgerites took swift revenge in second half scoring a touchdown each quarter, but failing on the kick. Final score was 18 to 7, favor of Pilger.

Training school gridsters met Newcast here at 3:15 this afternoon, the last game until Thanksgiving day tilt with Bancroft, which closes the eight-game schedule.

The subject of the lesson-sermon in all church of Christ, Scientist, for Sunday, November 13, is "Mortals and Immortals." The Golden Text is from I Cor. 15:48: "As is the earthly such are they also that are earthly; and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly."

A passage from the Bible used in the lesson-sermon is from I Cor. 15:50-53: "Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. For this corruptible must put off corruption, and this mortal must put on immortality."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, reads: "Human birth, growth, maturity and decay are as the grass springing from the soil with beautiful green blades, and afterwards withering and returning to native nothingness. This mortal is not immortal; it never merges into immortal being, but finally disappears, and immortal man, spiritual and eternal, is found to be the real man." (page 190).

November 11, 1918. Unholy glares of blinding light... monotonous rat-rat-tatting of machine guns... bullets singling out their khaki-clad targets... oozing trenches... coldness everywhere...

Now—14 years have passed. Much has been forgotten by these Legionnaires who served their flag abroad, but much can never be erased. Talk? No. What is there to tell? Very reticent indeed are our Wayne county Legion men when it comes to discussing war experiences.

Among those who saw heavy fighting was E. R. Love, who served in the battery which fired the first shell of any consequence by U. S. troops during the war, near Batholomew, October 23, 1917. Mr. Love was with the 6th field artillery, battery F, and was sent to the front nine times, the longest period without relief being from September 30 to November 11, 41 consecutive days!

Rev. H. C. Caspey was attached to the 88th division, infantry, as chaplain and was just south of Metz on November 11. Mrs. Paul Harrington, then Miss Ella Morrison, went over in Red Cross canteen work and helped operate "rolling soup houses" for the boys. At the time of the Armistice, she was stationed at Dijons, France.

Supt. H. R. Best was with Company A, 342 machine gun battalion, 89th division, and was at that crucial spot, Sedan, where the war of 1871 was decided, when hostilities ceased. American troops crossed the Meuse river into German territory the night before the war ended. Before and after the Meuse-Argonne, Mr. Best was on detached service on intelligence work.

W. F. Horrell saw service with the 352nd supply train, 80th division, and was in the bloody Argonne November 11. In the Ted Harrison home Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Harrison and Marilyn were Sunday dinner and supper guests in the Walter Carlison home.

James Milliken in the 355th, Argonne sector that memorable November day. The troops were driving ahead so fast that the division was 40 kilometers in front of supplies at that time. Although no civilians were there to celebrate, an army band struck up a tune of two, and discipline was relaxed. Mr. Swan remained with the army of occupation, going through Belgium and Luxembourg to Treves, Germany, where he remained until the next May.

A Gold Star. Irvin Sears, brother of Mrs. Walter Bressler, and the first Wayne man to die on the battle field of France, served in the 168th, Rainbow division, and was killed while crossing the Ourcq river on July 27, 1918. The Wayne post of American Legion was named to honor him.

Walter Lerner, 355th, 89th division, was also in the Argonne on November 11. Carroll Orr, 338th field artillery, 88th division, was stationed in a rest camp at Bordenay, waiting to go into action when he ended.

Rev. H. C. Caspey was attached to the 88th division, infantry, as chaplain and was just south of Metz on November 11. Mrs. Paul Harrington, then Miss Ella Morrison, went over in Red Cross canteen work and helped operate "rolling soup houses" for the boys. At the time of the Armistice, she was stationed at Dijons, France.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Nimrod and children were afternoon visitors and luncheon guests in the A. E. Nimrod home Sunday. Mrs. Almond Anderson visited Mrs. Otto Fredericksen in the Walter Fredericksen home Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Fred Harrison and Norma Jean and Miss Evangeline Carlson accompanied Mrs. W. J. Harrison and sons and Miss Dorothy Roberts to Wayne on Saturday. The latter remained there while Miss Katherine returned home with them.

Mr. and Mrs. George Eickhoff and Elaine took their dinner and went to the Clarence Longe home Sunday for a family dinner honoring Mrs. Johanna Eickhoff, whose birthday occurred that day. Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Johnson entertained at Sunday dinner and supper Mr. and Mrs. John Sundell transport corps, was in the Meuse-Argonne sector that memorable November day. The troops were driving ahead so fast that the division was 40 kilometers in front of supplies at that time. Although no civilians were there to celebrate, an army band struck up a tune of two, and discipline was relaxed. Mr. Swan remained with the army of occupation, going through Belgium and Luxembourg to Treves, Germany, where he remained until the next May.

Carroll Well Represented. Carroll well represented. Carroll's sent her share of Legionnaires across with the flag. There was John Laurie, U. S. N., who was at Chateau-Thierry on leave that November day, after having completed 16 trips across the submarine-infested Atlantic on convoy, transporting American troops. His ships were the "South Dakota" and the "Northern Pacific."

Wakefield Post, American Legion perpetuated the name of the first local man to die in action, Anton Bokemper, by giving his name to the post. Albert Borg enlisted at Crofton, and shared in three battles before being wounded at Saint-Mihiel on September 14. He was sent back to Ellis Island in Iowa, Fort Sheridan, Ill., and San Francisco, Calif., hospitals before being discharged January 8.

Luther Hypse and Harry Borg had just reached France with the 34th division when the peace was declared. They arrived back in this country in February and were mustered out in Des Moines. R. G. Hanson also had just landed at time of the Armistice. Hoskins Men in Action. Victor Ruhlow, 109th engineers, was stationed at Bolcey, France, ready to go into the trenches, when news of peace came. Herman Lefler and other men of from school the past week because of illness. School Notes—District 1. Norma Jean Harrison and Phyllis Kinney had perfect attendance during October. Misses Dorothy Davis and Goldie Leonard visited school Tuesday afternoon. School Notes—District 42. School was closed on Wednesday for the funeral of the late Henry Dorman. Miss Marilyn Harrison was absent from school on Tuesday. School Notes—District 13. Lillian Backstrom was absent his machine gun company were hammering away at Spina, France, the morning of November 11 and captured the city just before the Armistice. His company was stationed there for a month afterwards. Walter Fenske, 88th division, 338th field artillery, was in a training camp near Bordeaux in November, and remained there until the day before Christmas when he sailed homeward. Ed Brunel was stationed at a hospital center, Nevers, France, in the medical department, and remained there through the Armistice until January, before sailing for home. Winside's First Casualty. Roy Reed, 155th division, Company 1, was wounded during the Argonne drive, November 7, and died in an army hospital just before Christmas time. In tribute, Winside Legionnaires gave his name to their post. Jean Boyd, commander of Roy Reed post, was stationed on a small island near Porto Corsini, Italy, about 30 miles south of Venice. This usually gay summer resort had been turned into a naval air station, the only active air center in Italy during the war. It was just 30 minutes' flight from Pola, Austria, and planes were sent over repeatedly to bombard that city. Pola was an important army air station and army supply center, and the Austrian-Hungarian fleet was stationed in its harbor. When news of the Armistice came, the American troops in this far-off Adriatic post didn't take it seriously, as several false reports had already been sent. However, at nightfall, the long-darkened Italian city, on the mainland suddenly blazed into light, and the Americans knew that the days of danger were past. Fred Brune was in the thick of the Argonne struggle, fighting with the third division, when the big guns became silent. The troops with which Herman Brockman was serving were sent to Archangel, Russia, after the Russian revolution, and welcomed the Armistice from this isolated spot. Julius Schmode, 89th division, saw service in Chateau-Thierry and Belleau Wood. Chris Nelson, jr., was just back of the American line when hostilities ceased. Jesse White, 109th engineers, 34th division, was helping to build an army hospital when peace came. Magnus Peterson, 88th division, was at the front when he heard the big guns cease, heralding peace. Louis Remus, 2nd field battery, signal corps, was in the Sedan sector and near Argonne Woods on the firing line, at cessation of war. These are just a few, many a Wayne countian, brought back a splendid war record, many remained in the quiet, orderly graveyards near the battlefields. Those who returned can bear witness to the horror, the futility of war—those who remained behind give mute testimony to its tragedy. Those who knew war at its worst are acutely in sympathy with Fourth of July orators who glorify the battlefield—they know, and they want to forget.

RECIPES

Linzertorte.

1 cup shortening 1 cup sugar 2 egg yolks 1-2 pound grated unblanched almonds Grated rind 1 lemon 2 cups flour 1 tablespoon cinnamon 1-2 teaspoon cloves 1 cup raspberry jam Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add beaten egg yolks, grated almonds and lemon rind. Then add flour, which has been sifted with cinnamon and cloves. Roll out to 1-2 inch thickness. Cut a circle to fit a 9-inch round cake tin. Place this in the pan and on the remaining dough cut strips about 1-2 inch wide. Lay enough strips around the outer edge to make a rim. Fill center with raspberry jam. Decorate top in lattice design with rest of the strips. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for 30 to 40 minutes. Cut as needed.

Fruit Soup (Swedish)

1 pound prunes Water 1-2 lemon, thinly sliced 1-2 cup seedless raisins 1-2 cup sugar 3 inches stick cinnamon 1 tablespoon quick cooking tapioca 1 tablespoon cornstarch Cream Cook prunes with plenty of water and the lemon until fruit is tender. Strain and set aside prunes. Measure liquid in which prunes were cooked (there should be four cupsful). Cook this very gently for fifteen minutes with raisins, cinnamon, tapioca and sugar, then thicken with corn-starch moistened with a little cold water. Add stoned prunes, allowing four to each portion, and serve with cream as first course. Serves four.

Baked Oranges (Swedish)

6 oranges 3 cups sugar Water 2 tablespoons melted butter Simmer oranges gently in water to cover until tender—two to three hours. Cut crosswise into halves and arrange in baking dish, then pour over them a sirup made by boiling together for five minutes the sugar with a cupful of the water in which the oranges were cooked. Put a teaspoon of the butter on each, cover and bake until clear, basting occasionally with sirup in the dish. Serves six.

Almond Cookies (Swedish)

Sift two cupfuls of rice flour with one and one-half cupfuls of powdered sugar and mix well with one-half cupful of finely chopped almonds. Work in three-quarters of a cupful of vegetable oil, and two slightly beaten eggs. Roll less than one-half inch thick, cut into one and one-half inch rounds, put a blanched almond on the top, and bake in a moderate oven—400 degrees F. for about twenty minutes.

Cottage Julian Potatoes With Bacon (Italian)

3 potatoes (medium size) 5 slices of bacon 1-4 cupful of butter 1 pinch of chopped parsley Slice the potatoes, lengthwise and cut into strings. Cut the bacon into strips, and fry for one minute—soft, not crisp—then add the potatoes, mixing them well with the bacon. Flatten out and fry ten minutes, then turn like a pancake and fry slowly for fifteen minutes more, keeping covered, but watching to see that it does not stick to the pan. Serve on a platter with the parsley and the browned butter sprinkled over the top, cutting into six sections, as a pie.

Tagliarini (Italian)

(Homemade noodles with butter and Cheese) 2 eggs 4 tablepoons of cold water 2-2 cupfuls of flour 1-2 cupful of butter 1-2 cupfuls of grated Parmesan cheese Mix the eggs, water and flour. Put aside three tablepoons of flour. Mix the rest of the flour with the water and eggs and knead for fifteen minutes. Divide into two pieces and roll to paperlike thinness; let stand for two minutes. Make a double roll by rolling from opposite edges to center. Beginning at one end, cut into quarter-inch sections. For this a French knife is most satisfactory. Stick the knife under to lift up and the noodles will separate. Drop into boiling salted water and cook for ten minutes. Strain and add the butter—melted—and the grated cheese, and serve very hot.

"How did you break your leg?" "I threw a match down a man-hole, and then stepped on it."

Proud Kentuckian: "I am descended from the Boones." From Missouri: "Which one, Bab?"

Doctor: "Your wife has just presented you with quadruplets." Humorist: "Four crying out loud!"

Plan of Relief In Wayne Told

ness men and only a little of this has been used. Clothing and supplies committee is headed by A. B. Carhart, and the work committee by Dr. W. M. Hawkins. The employment agency is operated by F. E. Gamble who has since October 1 secured work for 50 or 60 men. Finance, Rev. Caspey explained, are obtained from the county, county relief fund, American Legion, state relief fund, Red Cross, city funds, local charities and churches, benefit shows and entertainments and individual subscriptions. At the present time, Rev. Caspey explained, there are 60 cases receiving relief from different organizations. Transients now average about four a day. One may work an hour at the wood pile which is provided by the general relief committee and in return receives a ticket worth 15c from Paul Mines. This ticket is then taken by the transient to a merchant who in return gives him food. These tickets are kept by merchants and are gathered up at the end of each month by the committee, merchants being refunded for the amount of their tickets. Excess wood cut by transients is given to worthy needy. "The major part of relief must come through the Red Cross," Rev. Caspey concluded, "and the only way the organization can function most efficiently is to have a generous response to the roll call." Wilbur Portierfeld, accompanied by Miss Francis Limes at the piano, sang selections for the Kiwanis Monday. T. S. Hook, who received the state's highest salesmanship award from the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, spoke briefly after President E. J. Hunteter displayed the cup which had been awarded. P. L. March, new member of Kiwanis, was introduced.

Periods Of Great Crisis Undermine Human Life And Accomplishments

Great crises often bring sacrifice of long periods of desolation. The World War, which is recalled by Armistice day, November 11, meant a sacrifice of manhood that had required long years of patient endeavor to cultivate. With the business crisis of the past few years have come the crumbling of institutions which represented much human energy. It is a dear price to pay for what good may result.

Recurrence of Armistice day inspires reverence, a deep regard for the men who served "over there" as well as for the men and women who "carried on" at home.

The unknown soldier is not unknown. He is known to the sun-white majesties who stand at the clouds of dawn. He is known to the glad-borne company whose souls but late have gone. Like winding flung stars through lattice bars they throng to greet their own, with voice of flame they sound his name who died to us unknown.

Dr. H. T. Hill of Kansas State college, in addressing a group of teachers advised them to "cut yourself a piece of cake and refuse to take life too seriously." Life is serious, Dr. Hill continued, and teachers and pupils should realize the importance of joy and recreation. Dr. Hill advises that work be done seriously but he would add pleasure to it just as each meal has its dessert.

That a father will make any sacrifice to provide for his little ones was demonstrated recently in Madison, Wis., when a man without work and without provisions for his four little daughters offered his children as security to get for them some food. The relief agency demands there that property must be relinquished as security to get help for his family he man offered his children. The department is caring for them until the laborer gets work and then they will be returned to their father.

Now that election is over, Armistice day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's will march along in close succession.

Problems Of Farm To Be Discussed

Lincoln, Neb.—Solutions for some of the farmer's problems through adjustments of the monetary system will be discussed at a conference called by the University of Nebraska, in Lincoln. The date has been set for Thursday, November 17. The open meeting will be attended by bankers, economists, farmers, and business men from all parts of Nebraska, and is under the direction of the college of business administration.

An imposing list of speakers has been arranged for the meeting, which includes both widely known economists and leading Nebraska bankers. A recent addition to the program is L. S. Clarke, Omaha, president of the Nebraska Mortgage Bankers' association. Another speaker well versed on the Nebraska farm situation is D. P. Hogan, Omaha, president of the Federal Land Bank since its organization in 1917. Another guest speaker is to be Dr. C. A. Phillips, dean of the college of commerce, University of Iowa, internationally known as both a teacher and writer on economics and banking practice.

Included among the Lincoln speakers are Prof. H. C. Filley, chairman of his department of rural economics, University of Nebraska; G. W. Woods, state banking commissioner; Prof. K. M. Arndt, assistant professor of economics, University of Nebraska.

Topics assigned for discussion include production and price factors influencing prices, to be taken up by Professor Filley; banking and prices to be discussed by Dr. Phillips and possible benefits of inflation for the farmer to be analyzed by Prof. Arndt. In the afternoon session, Mr. Woods will give an address on commercial bank management and price level changes. Mr. Hogan will outline the farm mortgage problem, Mr. Clarke's topic will be "the way out of depression" and Dr. Phillips will have as his lecture subject, "Teachings of the Turbulent Twenties."

An advisory committee has been appointed by sponsors of the conference. It consists of L. S. Clarke, Omaha, president of the Nebraska Mortgage Bankers' association; G. W. Woods, Lincoln, president of the First National bank; D. P. Hogan, Omaha, president of the Federal Land Bank; T. B. Strain, Lincoln, vice president of the Continental National Bank; M. Well, Lincoln, president of the National Bank of Commerce of Lincoln; A. C. Lau, president of the Lincoln chamber of commerce.

FIFTY-SECOND YEAR

WESTERN UNION MEETS DEFEAT

Teachers Run Away With Friday Game Piling Up 26 To 0 Lead.

Wayne leather huggers piled up an impressive victory over Western Union Telegraphers of LeMars, Iowa, in their fourth home game Friday evening. Local football officials were anticipating a stiffer game, as the visitors defeated Nebraska (Central college) 26 to 0, and lost to Yankton by a slim 8 to 6. However, only 22 men reported for football this year.

In spite of the one-sided score, it was hardly a walk-away game, for the visitors put up a good defense, and were within Wayne's danger zone at close of first half. Victory came to the home squad as a result of passes, and a spectacular 80-yard dash for a touchdown made by Grubb in second quarter.

A 27-yard pass, Grubb to Gast, accounted for the initial marker, and Grubb made good on the kick. In second quarter, Grubb made his thrilling run and added a second touchdown, failing on the extra point. Gast carried the ball over in third quarter, following a 9-yard pass from Grubb. Grubb's kick went between the goal posts, making the score 20 to 0. Smith carried the ball 21 yards in two tries, placing it on the one-yard line, and Kunkle carried it over for fourth tally. Smith failed on the kick. Gast and Grubb starred for the Wildcats; Maxwell, agile quarterback, and Welch, end, played good football for the Telegraphers.

Statistics: First downs, Wayne 29; Western Union, 2. Passes, Wayne, 8 out of 24; Western Union, 3 out of 12. Yards gained, in scrimmage, Wayne 264; Western Union, 48.

Walter posted $3,000 bond for his appearance before district court, November 14. Macklin was shot in the leg and wounded last September and Walter was charged with shooting with intent to wound after Macklin and his wife made affidavits against Walter. At a hearing later the couple was not sure of identification and the grand jury was summoned.

Dr. Walter A. Maier To Give Address Here

Lutheran congregations of the Missouri synod of northeastern Nebraska are sponsoring a Luther day service to be conducted in the Wayne college auditorium, Sunday, November 13, at 2:30 p. m. Dr. Walter A. Maier from Concordia seminary, St. Louis, Mo., "The Lutheran Hour Speaker," will deliver the sermon.

Rev. E. J. Wille of Laurel, will offer the prayers and have charge of the scripture reading. A brass quartet from Schuyler, Neb., will accompany the singing of the assembly. Also a girls' chorus of Immanuel Lutheran congregation, Schuyler, Neb., will offer special numbers during the service.

The general public is cordially invited to hear Dr. Maier's address. The Wichita Eagle says of his sermons: "They are of great intrinsic merit—helpful as a book as the broadcasts were helpful as broadcasts." The Dallas Times Herald has this to say: "One does not need to be in harmony with the Lutheran viewpoint to enjoy Dr. Maier's clearest exposition of many problems that have been the subject of dispute in the Christian world." Truly, it is fortunate to have this man come to Wayne to deliver the sermon for Luther day service.

Using Corn for Fuel

Omaha Journal-Stockman: They are going to use a lot of corn for fuel this winter in all parts of the corn belt as it is cheaper and more convenient to use what is right at hand than to buy fuel that has to be shipped in. Why should a man who has thousands of bushels of good grain and no market for it suffer from cold because he lacks the price of coal?

A farmer from northeastern Nebraska announces that he is burning corn in place of coal this fall and finds it fairly satisfactory. "If this practice becomes general," he said, "there will be no burdensome surplus of corn in the country by the time we are ready to put in another crop. It seems to me that the farmer's big trouble is to dispose of the surplus and when it goes into the stove it has certainly gone out of circulation permanently."

Another point this man brought out. "Why," he asked, "should there be any serious objection to burning good grain? The distillers convert good grain into alcohol to be used for many purposes, among them for fuel. What difference is there, from a humanitarian point of view, between using corn for fuel and using the product of corn?"

Wisner Landmark Is Torn Down

Wisner, Neb., Nov. 1.—In the razing of the old mill in the eastern part of the city, there is disappearing one of the last and most interesting old landmarks in Wisner's history.

In the early 80's, when the old "Rumburg" mill at Pilger and the Lambrecht mill at Beemer, were found inadequate for the growing population of this section, a number of enterprising and foresighted Wisner business men decided that a flour mill here would be a paying proposition. The possibilities of such an enterprise were advertised in the leading papers of those days. It caught the eye of a young Iowan, Frank B. VanDorn, a miller in Arkansas. He figured that a town that believed in a business venture to the extent of giving it wide advertisement, must be wide awake and rich in opportunity. He came here to make a first hand investigation with the result that in 1886, Mr. Van Dorn erected the first flour mill run by steam in this section of the country. He also became the first president of what is now the Citizen's National bank of Wisner and was associated with such prominent men as William Stueffer, West Point, and J. H. Kinzel, and Sylvester and J. H. Emley of Wisner, as directors.

The mill proved a profitable venture from the start, supplying all the outlying towns within a radius of fifty or more miles. With the sudden death of Mr. Van Dorn, four years later, in 1890, before his dreams had scarcely materialized the business was carried on by the widow and brother-in-law, William McLeod, each owning a half interest. Subsequent owners were Chas. White and F. M. Snyder, the latter owning it jointly with H. A. Leisy, prominent in

Anniversary Is Day Of Baptism

Rev. and Mrs. William Fischer's thirtieth wedding anniversary and Rev. Fischer home were Mr. and Mrs. William Brune, other grandparents of the infant, and Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Fischer and family of Winside. All were supper guests of Rev. and Mrs. Fischer. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Claussen, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hageman and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Baier came to help Rev. and Mrs. Fischer celebrate the anniversaries.

Ballot Taken At School Tuesday

High School Girls Organize Athletic Association With 35 Members.

A presidential ballot was taken in seventh, eighth and high school grades election day, with an election board made up of members from each group functioning in the laboratory. The polls opened at 8:30 a. m. and students had six periods in which to cast their votes.

Girls' Athletic association was organized in Winside high school a week ago Monday, and meetings will be held regularly every Monday and Thursday, last period of the day. Any high school girl is eligible to membership, and 35 girls are already enrolled. Green gymnasium suits will be worn during practices. Officers are Gertrude Most, president; Dorothy Lewis, vice-president; Virginia Troutman, secretary-treasurer.

About 30 boys are reporting for basketball regularly, and Coach Gerald Cherry has divided the group into two squads, one practicing at 3 o'clock, the other at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Winside will meet Carroll December 2 for opening game.

Senior rings have arrived, and were very enthusiastically received by the class of '33. The rings have gold shield mounted on ruby-red stone, with a black band bearing the name of school, and letters "W" and "H. S." on the gold. The rings were distributed last Thursday.

Mrs. Charles Misfeldt was a visitor last Friday afternoon. The seventh and eighth grades have had five consecutive weeks of perfect attendance.

Fifth and sixth grade language classes have been studying educational questions, observing educational week, and wrote many good stories, plays and poems. Margaret Miller, Barbara Lautenbaugh and Donald Jugel were chosen by the room to arrange the class display on the post office bulletin board this week. Dean Granquist will captain the game committee for the week, assisted by Donald Jugel and Iris Prince.

For educational week, third and fourth graders fashioned red, white and blue badges, and put these on each morning, the good workers being allowed to wear theirs all morning and afternoon. An Indian reading table has been started, with stories and references listed, and each pupil is seeing how many stories he or she can read.

The pupils worked together on a group poster, showing how a man is tied down by poor education.

First and second graders have fashioned free-hand educational posters to be placed on the post office bulletin board this week. They are just beginning on their Indian project, and have fastened long sticks together as skeleton for a tepee, which will later be covered with sacking.

HE IS NOT UNKNOWN

NOBODY knows his name; yet simple heroism needs no other calling. Nobody knows his creed—or whether he had a creed—yet no more sublime lesson than self-sacrifice is learned within church walls.

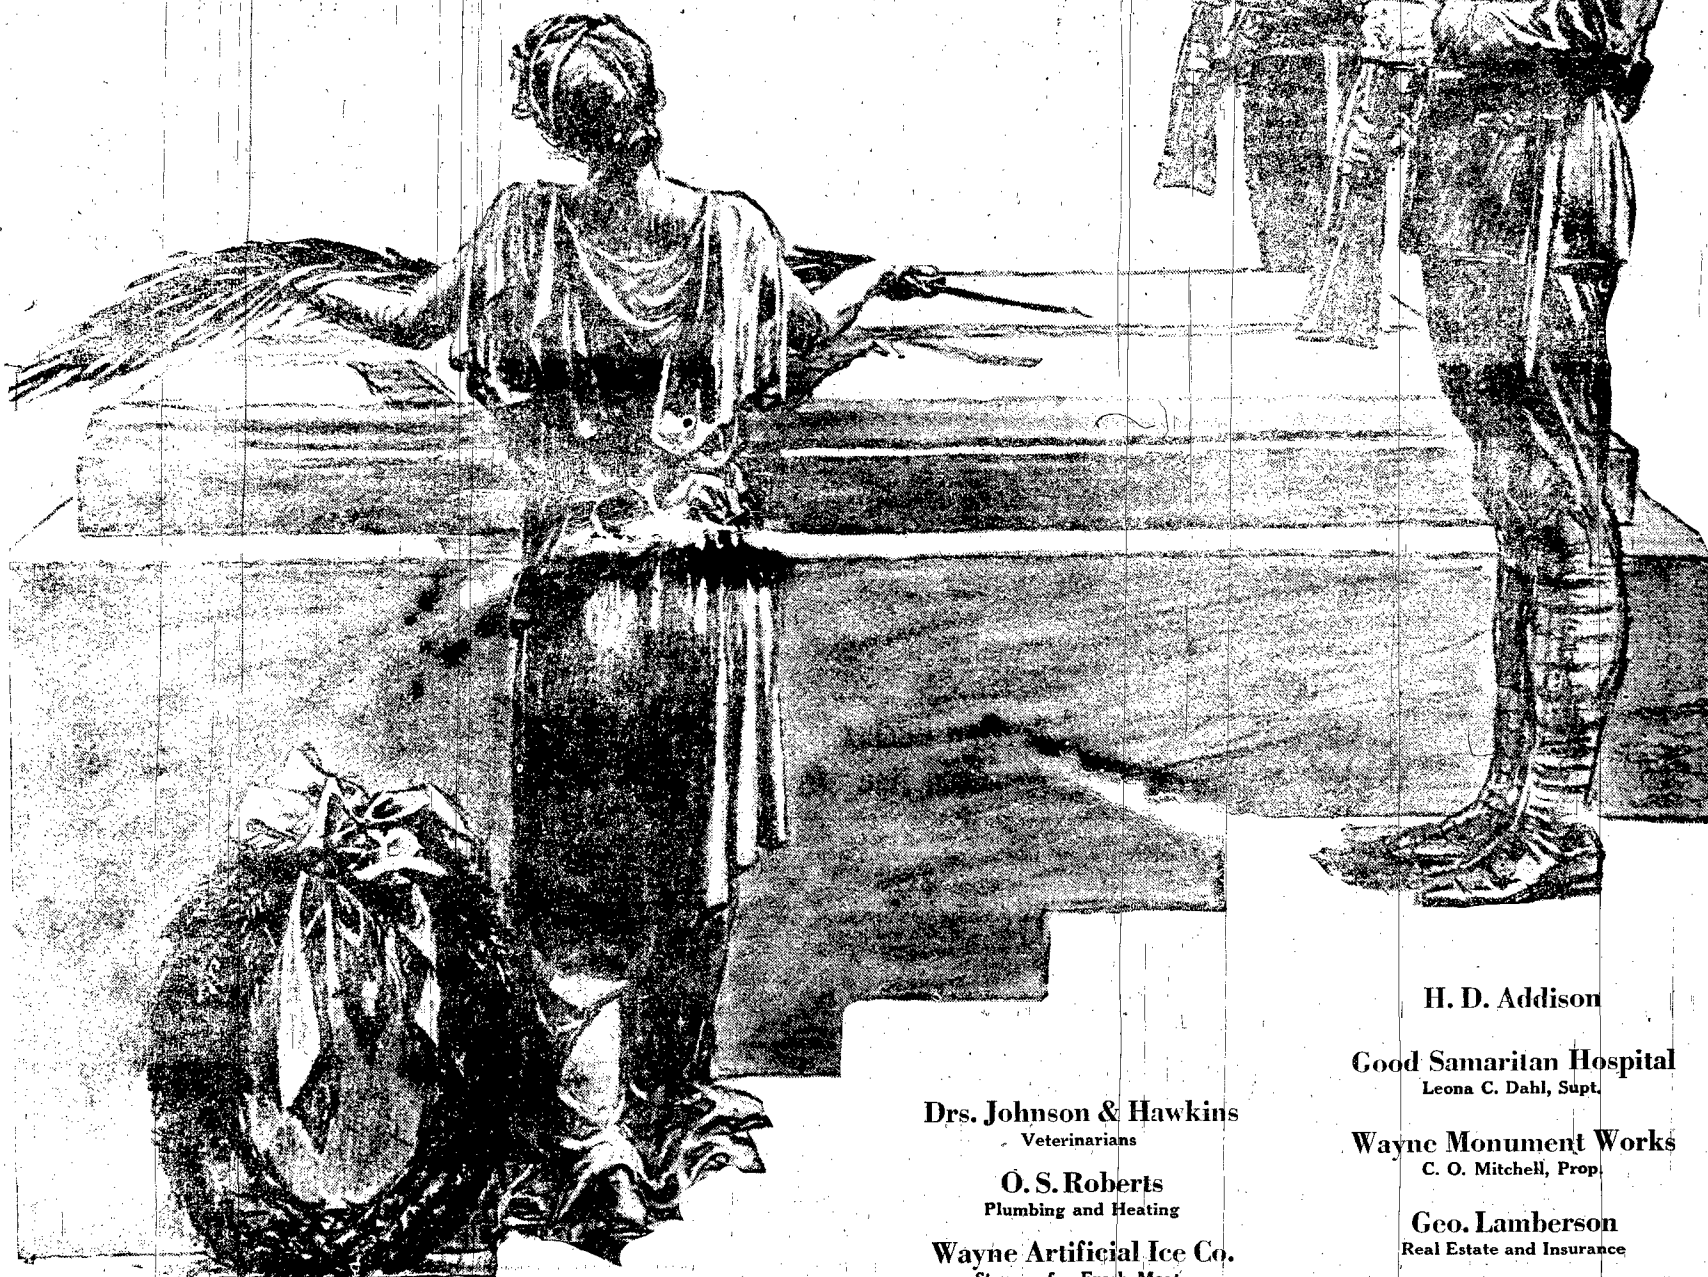

He may have been a toiling clerk whose scope encompasses only the task before him. Or his life may have been as far-flung as the mist-blue western hills toward which he pushed his plow.

Who he was or what he was matters little.

He was an American. The sun-warmed Virginia hillside where he sleeps is his soil for it is American. The ideals for which he died were the fruit of a tradition characteristically American; a tradition of freedom that has heard ax strokes in a clearing, pen scratches at Independence Hall and "Cuba Libre" at San Juan Hill.

Nobody knows what he did or where he fell. Yet in honoring him we cherish the remembrance of those who marched an unknown road far longer than the one to St. Michel or Vaux.

For the Unknown Soldier is not unknown. His name is known to those who called him buddy; he still marches with the Immortal Fifty Thousand. Though they have never returned, they are all the more glorious for the misty years that separate us from them.
