

Retrenchment

To Reduce Taxes Considered At Meeting Here—Farm Prices Vital To Future—The Clair Plan—Other Observations

All persons at and not at the taxpayers' meeting in Wayne Saturday night were... they want agriculture more adequately rewarded...

As to taxes, there is a tendency to attack the source in which one is least interested. Often prospect for a trivial saving at the sacrifice of efficiency engages more attention...

The problem of where to cut expenses in order to lower taxes is one that must be carefully handled to preserve the proper functioning of necessary institutions...

Public meetings to discuss the question and figure out means to an end are most desirable, and the attendance at Saturday's session and the interest manifested are encouraging and promising.

As to means to bring back living prices for agriculture, many suggestions have been offered and some have been tried...

What appears thus far to be the simplest and quickest way to restore farm prices and thus general prosperity is called the Clair plan.

Home Buying. Great Britain has inaugurated a home-buying campaign, and a similar movement is proposed in the United States.

Sale Brings Crowd. It seemed almost like a circus crowd at the live stock pavilion sale in Wayne Saturday...

Load Contracts. One farmer suggests that contracts for road work ought to be awarded in smaller lots...

Herald's Bulletins. The Herald has installed a bulletin service in its large window.

Suffers a Stroke. H. W. Theobald suffered a stroke of apoplexy Wednesday last week and has been very ill since.

PIONEER GROCER DIES THURSDAY

Funeral Services Are Held Saturday Morning At Wayne Home.

Funeral services for P. L. Miller, pioneer grocer of Wayne who died Thursday afternoon, January 5, after a short illness, were held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the home with Rev. F. A. Davies, Presbyterian minister, in charge.

Phares. Lorenzo Miller was born in Ontario, Ontario, Canada, on February 8, 1847, and was thus aged 85 years, 10 months, 28 days. When he was about 10 years old the family moved to Hamilton, Ontario.

In March, 1884, Mr. Miller brought his family to Wayne where he engaged in business. He established the Star Grocery which he ran for many years.

Mr. Miller is survived by one son, James G. and one grandson, Donald Phares.

National Issues Explained Here

H. E. Siman Addresses Club Group Monday Concerning Needs Of Day.

"There are more major problems facing this new Congress than any other Congress in the history of this country," said H. E. Siman in his address before members of Business and Professional Women's club Monday evening at Stratton hotel.

"Never did any group of legislators face greater problems, but I have faith in the ability of this country to pull out of its difficulties. The continuation of a peaceful nation is at stake.

"Farmers made a bare living up to a few years ago, but now we know that unless the farmer gets something for his products over cost of production, he can't survive."

COMMISSION MEN LEND SPIRIT TO THE HOG MARKET

WILLIAM Walters is convinced that direct selling of hogs to packers and thus cutting out commission men help keep down the market.

Means Considered Of Aiding Needy

On invitation of Judge J. M. Cherry, the 12 Wayne county women who have been receiving, or who were applying for mothers' pensions, met last Thursday at the court house. The juvenile committee, appointed by the district court, the Red Cross and Tax Payers League representatives were also invited. The past year nine mothers have received $230 a month and three others had applied for help. The fund is depleted and the question of what to do was under consideration.

A half mill levy raises $3,100 and the amount paid out the past year was $2,100. Some have not been able to pay taxes and the fund had $180 this month and the amount was distributed to the mothers in equal proportion. Where next month's help will come from is the problem.

The Red Cross and others will clothe the families, Judge Cherry explains, but they need small amounts to buy necessary food. Each case has been examined carefully and is found worthy. Judge Cherry and the others are trying to work out ways of keeping the families together and providing them with bare essentials in food. No definite steps were possible at Thursday's meeting.

Christian Science programs are radio-cast each Monday and Thursday at 12:30 p. m. over radio station KFAB.
The subject of the lesson-Scripture, for Sunday, January 15, is "Life."
The Golden Text is from Psalms 50:1, 2: "The Mighty God, even the Lord, hath spoken, and called the earth from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof. Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God hath shined."
A passage from the Bible used in the lesson-sermon is from Psalms 27:1: "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life: of whom shall I be afraid?"
A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy reads: "Life is divine Principle, Mind, Soul, Spirit. Life is without beginning and without end. Eternity, not time, expresses the thought of Life, and time is no part of eternity. One ceases in proportion as the other is recognized." (page 468)

Wayne County Sends Steady Stream Of Cattle Into The Mid-Western Markets
It must have been in '69 that the first bovine inhabitants of Wayne county trekked their slow, patient way across the prairie as part of pioneer wagon trains which bore our first 15 families. As the years passed these hard-working, adventurous folks added to their little band of livestock, and each homestead boasted a small herd of cattle grazing on the treeless prairie roudabout. In the morning the stock was turned to roam at will, but mid-day in summer would find the stocky, lumbering cattle heading home-ward with tongues dry, seeking the water hole or stream, where they waded in knee-deep and stood in the comforting coolness, fighting big green flies and broiling under the pitiless sun.
As the herds grew, herders came to gather up the settlers' cattle and keep them out on the prairie for the five summer months, returning them in the fall. In the pre-fence days, the stock roamed at will, but with roads, towns, railroads and other evidences of "civilization," fenced-in pastures took the uncertainty out of cattle-raising, and the live stock industry came to be an important one in rural Wayne county.

Pioneers in Stock-Raising.
Among the early cattle-raisers might be mentioned Thomas Mayberry, John McGuire, George Buskirk, James Mack, John Boeckner, Harry Thomas Avery, D. E. Driskell and George Childs. These men were feeding consistently about 50 years ago. A. T. Chapin, an early-comer, homesteaded three miles north of Winside on the present John Brugger farm, and planted trees along the original section line, as fences were still an unknown quality.
Today Wayne county ranks as an important cattle feeding country, with its good pasturage, roughage and corn crops, and temperate climate. Most farmers feed consistently, rather than on a large scale, and the result is a steady stream of well-rounded-off cattle pouring into the Omaha, Sioux City and other Chicago markets. Western Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming stock is brought in during the fall for long feed through the winter or bought in the spring and carried through the summer on pasturage. Our Wayne farmer raises all his own alfalfa hay, corn and oats, and over a period of years has found cattle fattening the most profitable way of marketing his grains and corn.

Feeders of Today.
Among the consistent and successful feeders is Ted Nyahall who lives west of Wayne. He usually buys from one carload to 70 head on pasture, and finishes these in the fall and winter. The Lang-Frank Longe home, the two Hoffman brothers who center around Hoskins and the two Hoffman brothers near Winside, are steady feeders also.
Coming nearer to Wayne proper, Ed Perry has fed and shipped for many a year, and this last week topped the Sioux City market with mates to homemade candy on Friday for his birthday.

World Events
Democratic congressional leaders at a conference tonight with President-elect Roosevelt determined upon a program to balance the budget at this session of congress by increasing income taxes and continuing the federal gasoline levy with a view to avoiding a special session of the new congress. In addition, the conference went on record for enactment of the beer bill at this session, which it was estimated would return 125 million dollars. The gasoline tax was estimated to return 137 million dollars and the increase in income taxes and the lowering of exemptions were estimated to return from 130 million to 150 million dollars. The program also called for a reduction of 100 million dollars in appropriations for the coming fiscal year. These items are expected by the democratic chiefs to meet an estimated 492 million dollar deficit anticipated by the present administration in the fiscal 1934 exclusive of the sinking fund for the retirement of the public debt.

USE OF NEWSPAPERS.
(Custer County Chief)
A strong argument for newspaper advertising and its results recently was sent by the advertising department of the J. C. Penny company, operators of a national chain of retail stores, to its store managers. The message follows:
"(1) Do you want to be certain of reader interest? Then use the newspapers. Many a circular receives only a glance, while the local newspaper, with hundreds of general news items is read thoroughly from first to last page.
"(2) Do you want representation in the same shopping window" as the other merchants of your town use? Then use the local newspaper. Women, the purchasing agents of the home, read newspaper advertising constantly, whereas many a circular is tossed into the waste basket without a glance.
"(3) Do you want fast action? Then use the newspaper. The ad that you run, if it contains real merchandise news, will bring immediate results. You can receive and sell out a consignment of merchandise with newspaper advertising in less time than it takes to prepare a circular.
"(4) Do you want to be recognized as a factor of importance in your community—a real home-town store? If you do, use the newspaper—it undoubtedly is a strong factor in the building of good will and acceptance by the whole town as a good place to trade."
Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Preston, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Peterson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Kilborn and Phyllis.

silver backing, a dollar to be worth one dollar simply because we have faith in our government's stability. This sum would be about four times the world's gold supply, and would be loaned to farmers for a period of 40 years at low rate of interest, in a way that the loan would be automatically paid off at end of the 40 years.
"We have glaring examples of obsolete laws in our national legal structure, such as the Sherman Anti-Trust law, passed to prevent railroad companies from merging. But now railroad companies and trucking lines as well are going under. The Sherman bill has served its purpose of keeping large interests from exploiting the public but now it is a double-edged weapon preventing merging, but also preventing large interests from combining for economy. This bill will probably be repealed this coming session.
"One of the biggest problems facing this Congress is that of war debts. European countries have flooded us with propaganda, first to get us into the war, then to secure loans from us, third, to make us think it was our war, and lastly, to make us pay for it. England is the only country which has seriously considered paying her debt. What if we insist upon payment? Should we be paid in gold? There is less than 12 billions in gold coin in the entire world, and we have four billions of this amount, so there wouldn't be enough gold in existence to pay the debts. We don't want their goods for it would

THRIFT WEEK JANUARY 17th to 23rd. A SPECIAL period set aside for the inculcation of Thrift practices and repeated each year at this time in the hope that its messages may provide momentum for the continuance of such practices throughout the year. Self-preservation is instinctive in all living things. The smallest animals and insects provide their stores against periods of scarcity. In humans it takes on higher impulses and purposes... ambition, prosperity, independence for future years. Upon these Thrift is based. While Thrift implies savings it in no way infers hoarding. It signifies providing the means and the modes of better living, better homes, better environment, education, culture, self-improvement, self-respect and safeguarding the future comfort of our families... to which ends are the practices of Thrift. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, the disciple of Thrift, was born on January 17th, 1706; hence Thrift Week, which has been a national movement for several years, is fittingly promoted in the month of Franklin's birth, partly in commemoration of this great American and partly because of the inspiration which his precepts establish as a foundation for its observance. Next Sunday is the third Sunday of the New Year. Those who have not made any resolutions about going to church have yet time to make such a resolution and make a good start. The Christian who is a member of the church but indifferent to his own spiritual needs will be very dissatisfied with his own experience of religion. If we put nothing into our religious life we will get nothing out of it.

Health Of Flock
Vital To Poultry

Lincoln, Neb.—Nebraska poultry producers were told at Organized Agriculture here Thursday that health is the most important factor in the success of the poultry flock.

J. R. Redditt, of the Nebraska agricultural college, said there was no reason for keeping other than healthy pullets. He said equipment that insures sanitation, prevents waste and saves labor is both convenient and economical and is a big factor in poultry health.

A. D. Weber, of the Kansas State Agricultural college, said farmers who produce grain and roughage should feed them to live stock. His topic was Crop Merchandising.

No farmer can raise scrub stock and feed it at a profit under present conditions, Weber said. Some money is made feeding scrub stock, but the stock must be purchased at a figure below the real cost of production. Pure bred stock now is low in price and this seems like a good time to improve quality of breeding herds, the Kansan asserted.

Choctaw Indians out in Oklahoma have organized a school in which to learn how to farm like white men, which seems to portend additional need of farm relief. Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

RECIPES

Unusual Dishes For Party Serving And Day-by-Day Meals At Home.

Cheese Shells.
1-2 pound American cheese
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 small onion, chopped
1 pimento, chopped
1-4 cupful catsup
1-2 teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne pepper
5 slices bread (slice the loaf lengthwise).

Put the cheese through a food chopper. Add the melted butter and cream them together. Add the other ingredients and mix well. Remove the crusts from the bread and spread thinly with cheese mixture, then roll. Allow to stand for several hours. Cut in slices about 1-2 inch thick and toast on one side just before serving.

Cabana.
For a 2-quart shaker, mash 4 bananas to pulp. Add 4 cupfuls of canned pineapple juice, the juice of 4 fresh limes, and 2 cupfuls of cream. Fill the shaker with shaved ice. Serve in tall, slender glasses with a beverage spoon and glass straw. Pass crisp, unsweetened crackers.

Tuna Salad Filling.
(For 12 Sandwiches)
1 cup tuna
1 hard cooked egg
4 tablespoons chopped pickles
1-2 cup chopped celery
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon paprika
1-3 cup salad dressing
Pour boiling water over tuna. Let stand 10 minutes. Drain and chill. The tuna will then greatly resemble chicken in flavor. Mince tuna with fork. Add rest of ingredients. Spread on buttered slices of white bread. Add bits of shredded lettuce. Cover with other buttered bread slices. Press firmly and remove crusts.

Crabfluke Filling.
(For 12 Sandwiches)
2-3 cup crabflakes
1-3 cup finely chopped celery.
1-4 teaspoon salt.
3 tablespoons chopped sweet pickles.
1-3 teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
Mix ingredients and spread on buttered slices of white bread. Cover with other buttered slices and press firmly.

Pear Salad.
Drain canned pears and place half of one on each salad plate on a leaf of two of lettuce. In the core cavity place a few nut meats or raisins or canned cherries. Then add a teaspoon of mayonnaise.

Fruit Salad.
1 cup diced pineapple
1 cup diced peaches
1 cup diced bananas
1-4 cup broken nuts
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1-3 cup French dressing
Chill ingredients. Combine and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Peanut Relish Filling.
(For 12 Sandwiches)
2-3 cup chopped roasted peanuts
1-2 cup chopped celery
1-2 cup chopped olives
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
1-8 teaspoon paprika
1-8 teaspoon salt
Pour water and juice over pineapple mixture and stir until it has dissolved. Cool. Add rest of ingredients and pour into glass mold which has been rinsed out with cold water. Set in cold place to stiffen. Cut in squares and serve on crisp cabbage leaves. Top with salad dressing or mayonnaise.

Baked Indian Pudding.
1 quart milk
1 teaspoon salt
1-3 cup yellow cornmeal
1-2 cup molasses
1-2 to 1 teaspoon ginger
Cook the milk, cornmeal, and salt in a double boiler for 20 minutes. Add the molasses and ginger, pour into a greased baking dish, and bake in a very moderate oven (about 300° F.) for 2 hours. Serve hot.

Peanut Butter Cup Cakes.
1-2 cup butter or other fat
1-2 cup peanut butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
3 cups sifted soft-wheat flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Cream together the fat, peanut butter, and sugar, add the beaten eggs, and the sifted dry ingredients alternately with the milk. Add the vanilla. Bake in greased muffin tins in a moderate oven (350° F.) for about 20 minutes.

A woman, perusing a newspaper looked up to ask her husband:
"Woman? John, it refers here to some gunmen taking a man for a ride. What kind of a ride?"
Husband (calmly): "A lay ride, my dear."

Wayne Woman's Mother Shared In Colonization of Venezuela

LaGayra must have been a pretty sight when Captain Alexander McDonald and his little group of 200 British colonists sailed into its harbor that day back in 1831. The russet and green mountains sloped up from blue-green waters, and were dotted with flat-roofed houses in the clear blues, pinks and salmons favored by Latin Americans, and the whole was framed in vivid tropical vegetation. La Gayra is the chief seaport of Caracas, queen city of Venezuela to whose shores had been sent the British captain and his adventurous ship-mates to see if white men could live and prosper so near the equator. And here were spent two delightful years from which the captain's children brought many interesting recollections, one of whom passed them on to her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Hunter of Wayne.

It all came about this way: Captain McDonald was rounding out 30 years of service in her majesty's army, and was retired. He was informed that if he'd colonize the Spanish-speaking Venezuela, he would be awarded with a land grant. So, with his wife and five children, the captain set sail for La Guayra and settled his little band of 200 Britons in sun-baked Caracas in the Andes.

Caracas, capital of Venezuela, is approached by a winding road through beautiful mountain lands which rival the Grand Canyon in colorings. Ancient Spanish houses, narrow and crowded streets, fine marble statuary and elaborate parks are little changed with the passage of 100 years. In the heart of the city is the old flower market with tropical blooms, heavy-scented, exotic. Huge bouquets of waxen Easter lilies, pale calla lilies, delicately fragrant orchids and nameless blooms in huge baskets, ready to be purchased for a few centimos! Social life centers around the bullfight, ring then as now, although in late years the cinemas have shared honors with toros and matadors.

The excitable, lazy natives of Venezuela are 70 percent mestizos, a mixture of Spaniards and Indians, with 10 percent whites and the remainder negroes and tribal Indians. At times they work, but more often they are content to sit in the public square and argue. However scornful a Northerner may be of their easy ways, before long in that climate he finds himself moving in the same slow tempo, and becoming addicted to the "manana" habit of putting off everything until the morrow. Activity ceases around the noon hour and all is quiet and deserted until heat of the day is passed, workers and loafers alike indulging in stesita.

Into this sun-warmed southern city came Mrs. Hunter's mother as a girl of 15 years, and many were the tales she told of Venezuelan life. Once she accompanied her father on an inland trip on pack mules, and along the path the captain stopped and led her to a tree, telling her to look closely. At first she could see nothing out of the ordinary, but closer inspection showed that the trunk was encircled by a huge boa, wound round and round, and its color blending into that of the bark, so that it seemed a part of the tree at any distance. The snake's head was thrust through a crotch at top of tree, and from its mouth protruded two deer's horns. The child was amazed at this but her father explained that the boa swallowed its prey whole, then waited for the animal to decompose sufficiently to digest it. In such a state the boa was harmless and could be approached without fear.

Another time, when the girl and her father were traveling a back-mountain trail by burro, a native rushed out of the brush and swung his machete at her, to be felled just in time by the English captain. After two years the colonization project was abandoned as the British found the climate too warm. Captain McDonald was given a land grant of 800 acres in Canada just above Niagara Falls, and brought his family here to settle. This pine woods is now known as McDonald Gore. Mrs. Hunter's mother continued the military tradition by marrying George Scott, who served four years in the Canadian rebellion. And now Mrs. Hunter's youngest living son is following a military career, serving as a major in the U. S. Reserve of fliers' training corps with headquarters in Chicago.

ferable to a relative. The original purpose of having a godparent was to add to the child's stock of relatives so that if it should be left alone in the world, its godparents became its protectors.

7. Next to the parents and grandparents, the nearest relative a child can have.

8. Yes, a silver mug, porringer, or a knife, fork and spoon set are originally sent before or brought to the christening. Usually the baby's name and that of the donor are engraved on the gift.

9. This differs in various churches. In early days the baby was baptized on first, or at least the second Sunday after its birth. In Catholic churches today the christening still takes place when the baby is very young, and always in the church or baptistry. Protestant churches usually delay baptism until the mother is able to attend. The average age is from two to six months.

10. This sometimes takes place at close of regular Sunday services and sometimes during the week. Palms and flowering plants are proper for decorations around the font. Baby's coat and cap are removed and godmother carries baby to place in front of the clergyman, with other godparents beside her, and relatives and friends nearby. Name of babe should be written on slip of paper and handed to clergyman in advance, for name given at christening must be used by the child, and often mistakes are made by the clergyman.

11. The room in which christening takes place should be decorated with vases of flowers in soft pastels. The font, usually of silver, is placed on a small table which has been covered with a fine white cloth or piece of old brocade, and a few blossoms are laid beside the bowl.

12. Often the christening dress has been in the family for generations. It should be soft and sheer, trimmed in fine lace and delicate embroidery, and of course be all-white. In fact, all of its clothing should be white, and entirely head-made. If the baby is very small, it may be carried on a lace trimmed pillow.

13. Blue is for girls and pink for boys.

14. A christening cake is customary. This is generally a white cake elaborately iced, and may have a garland of pink roses or baby's initials added in frosting.

OLD-FASHIONED
Once upon a time there weren't any vacuum cleaners, and there weren't any glass-enclosed candy counters, nor corner groceries nor well-stocked grocery stores. When one wanted candy, one went to the big, well-scrubbed kitchen, kindled up the fire in the range, and boiled up a "batch." When one wanted ink, a few herbs and drugs were put together and a goodly supply bottled up for future pennings. And rare the housewife who did not store a generous pile of white, clean-smelling soap bricks upon her shelf, the result of carefully hoarded grease drippings. For these were the days of complete independence and hard work, the era of heavy plush drapes, puffery sofa, pillows embroidered in

The Telephone Bell is his GO-TO-WORK signal

The more I need work the more I need a telephone, declares a telephone customer. "My work depends almost entirely upon the telephone calls I get." This man has kept busy fully three-fourths of the time while many others in the same line of work are idle.

A man and his two sons, laid off from work, ordered a telephone installed because men were called back only as needed and those with telephones got the calls. The three are now getting their full share of work.

Concord Man Tells of International Problems Now Facing German Republic

(Note: William Weierhaeuser recently finished two years of study at University of Marburg, Germany, and at request of the Herald, has written two articles dealing with the political and economic situation in that country at present. Next week's article will take up national problems.)

(By Wm. Weierhaeuser)
In the hub of European civilization through which the life blood of Europe throbs, lies Germany, one of the most progressive and modern nations of the occident. Her large cities are patterned for cleanliness; her beautiful and wondrously well-kept forests have been marveled at for centuries; her rivers are of a picturesque beauty unsurpassed; and her people are known the world over for their friendly disposition and quiet hospitality. These conditions enable the traveler to have modern comforts while enjoying the beauties and enchantments of the old world. Most tourists spend only a short time in Germany, and noting the clean appearance of the country and the well-dressed populace with high spirits, arrive at the conclusion that Germany is enjoying prosperous times. Only recently the following headline appeared in a leading newspaper: "Germany has passed through the economic crisis and is definitely on the way to improvement." The erroneous statements in the press and the favorable reports of tourists have led many to believe Germany has recovered since the war. Therefore to the casual observer it would seem incredible that this country has been struck the hardest by the present crisis.

However Germany's troubles are not confined within the economic scope. Were this only true! For on her political horizon heavy clouds of obstacles hang which are so closely connected with economic conditions that they must disappear before Germany regains complete economic recovery.

Germany's problems may therefore be roughly classed into two divisions, the economic and the political. The latter may be subdivided into inner political and foreign political difficulties. With the foreign political difficulties another phase is closely connected, namely, the moral issue in which the thesis is embodied that Germany is the sole cause of the war. This thesis has long since been exploded and opponents of this theory received a frightful jolt last spring when Lloyd George, England's representative at Versailles, made his first public statement on the war guilt question since his fall.

Upon this thesis the Treaty of Versailles was built and it is directly responsible for a great share of Germany's present plight. Upon ground of Wilson's 14 points Germany ceased hostilities. They never did become the basis for peace negotiations. For "to the victors belong the spoils" and peace conference records are filled with reports showing how the victors made swaps with one another. Germany was stripped of her colonies; her investments abroad were confiscated; her navy and merchant marine were gobbled up; everything which could be used as contraband of war was destroyed or taken away. Her boundaries were ripped open in the east and west. Huge sums of money which stagger the imagination were demanded of her.

According to Wilson's 14 points the sovereign rights of the people were to decide the political boundaries. At the same time France was awarded Alsace-Lorraine upon

Telephone Patrons Plan Mass Meeting

About 60 rural telephone line patrons met in council room at city hall Saturday afternoon to discuss means of bringing about lower switching fees. Hazen Atkins was named chairman of the group, and Frank Weber will serve as secretary. It was decided that the head of each rural line should call a meeting of patrons, and bring their recommendations to a second group meeting this coming Saturday in the court house.
