Automobile WE never expected to own an automobile, never expected to learn to drive one. But the necessities of business finally persuaded us to trade for a second-hand car. It was not the first car made, but it had about all the crudities of the original. It was quite as far from modern automobile achievement as the lightning bug from an electric glow. In driving, as in everything else, we had been told to look well ahead. Once we failed to observe this instruction and as a consequence drove into a garage without first opening the door. This car, often sounding like a tornado tearing off a tin roof, became so familiar to the countryside that farm women usually had hot water on hand to warm its carburetor and encourage it to start which it frequently was disposed not to do. This car had been in repair shops so often that it would turn in when it saw one, nestle down among the instruments of automobile surgery and throw off its hood for an examination. That primitive car, with panting lungs—its uncertain carburetor—traveling at a maximum speed of twenty miles an hour—was so much easier and quicker than walking that we felt a great stride had been made in means of saving time. But what has happened since? It is no longer necessary to wear out an arm turning a crank or carry a hot water bottle to heat the principal organ of circulation. Car manufacture has developed amazing convenience and luxury and power, and the wealth of cars on busy streets everywhere testifies to the great change that has taken place in means of travel in the last twenty years. The day that used to be required to come to town and trade and get back home is now often reduced to an hour. Could we go back to old ways of travel—be satisfied with former means of going and coming? While use of the automobile has often been abused, it has undoubtedly come to stay and will never be displaced. As a facility—as a comfort—it has been permanently woven into life's work and recreation.

The Immortal GEORGE WASHINGTON, leader of the colonial armies, and first president of the United States, was born at Bridges Creek, Westmoreland, Virginia, 201 years ago. After helping rescue the American colonies from British entanglements, he advised in his farewell address, September 17, 1796, against entangling alliances with foreign states, though it is not likely he had in mind the extremity to which we would go in entangling ourselves 121 years later.

Washington was a stalwart, resolute figure in colonial history, and his influence was prominently identified with shaping the government of a new nation. The first president had an abundance of wealth, but he had few of the temptations offered today to spend it. In his period, slow means of travel over poor roads lengthened distances and killed time. In contrast, we have hard-surfaced highways for automobiles and air lines for airplanes. Washington knew nothing of telephones or talking machines or radios or of a thousand other conveniences that have contributed to ease and speed. But we guess he would think we got rather too speedy after the war, and that our rampant way of living brought us into line for a most thoroughly and universally organized spell of tough luck whose proportions were never equalled. He would find that in no previous depression were people—lifted high by rising and insatiable appetites—in a position to fall farther or hit harder.

But we believe Washington's spirit still lives—lives not only in memories, but in the supernal realm from which is poured his anxious and helpful influence over a country for whose independence he led the colonial armies, and for whose future footsteps he breathed many words of admonition and offered many fervent prayers. And in these troubled days we may well find strength in the spirit of Washington whose life was the embodiment of patience, courage and self-control.

The Way Of Cowardice HOW cowardly are we? How often we fail to do the thing we ought to do if it chances to be unpopular, or if we think it will become unpopular. How often we feel around to sense the doubtful attitude of others, especially the opinions of those who bestow patronage, and who are moved by selfish motives, before we take a definite stand. How often we become suddenly brave in espousing a cause if we think everybody is for it. How often we keep silent and soft-pedal the square deal through fear—perhaps a remote fear—that we will lose something. Always to be fair is not easy, but to think clearly with the ends of justice courteously sought is usually a winner.

One wayfarer who made good money shearing sheep a few years ago, and who, like many others, put his earnings into circulation as fast as they came in, told yesterday that he never saw a job done so completely as the fashioning of the depression. He had seen the manufacture of many wonderful machines, and which contemplated the perfection with which the planets were created and arranged, but he had never seen nor heard of anything being worked out with such unerring regard for details as the economic paralysis. In his travels he finds people hopeful, but with about all the high-flying ambition squeezed out of them. All faces are not long and sorrowful, however. He mentioned meeting recently a doctor who expressed assurance of better days, his countenance beaming with confidence. This traveler had often accumulated a comfortable cash surplus, but, like many of us, he spent it for things he didn't need, and so when the economic blowup happened, he found himself out of financial fuel.

The way to help credit is not to repudiate obligations. A little candid reasoning with compromise through mutually agreeable understanding is better for a future position than a lot of threats. The Omaha Journal-Stockman makes this hopeful observation: "Men who should be in a position to know what they are talking about tell us that less than 50 per cent of the farms of the United States carry a mortgage and more than half of these are being paid off in the normal way. Not over 10 per cent of our farmers are in acute distress so that the problem of affording their relief is not as great as it might appear. Intelligent and sympathetic cooperation between lenders and borrowers will accomplish more in this emergency than all the farm marches that could be organized or all the laws that could be enacted."

This week a Wayne fellow explained that he was so rushed with work that he would have to delay a job just ordered. This was altogether out of harmony with the functioning of the depression. It sounded like old times and was good to hear. With that kind of report the depression will soon lose its grip and pass into history.

We can have but one president at a time. Franklin D. Roosevelt will soon be the man. Let us get behind him and share as far as possible the responsibilities of government. We have duties as citizens that we must not shirk and the least we can do is to uphold the hands and flank the courage of our leaders.

Reflections.

Dorothy: Uncle Gene, you seem partial to farmers?
Dad: In farm communities we are farmers in spirit if not in actual practice. If one lacks that spirit he just does not belong in a farm community. It is not because I live in a farm community that I am partial to the farmer, but because I am partial to the farmer that I live in a farm community.

Dorothy: Why do you prefer the farm environment?
Dad: Because as a rule the farmer doesn't have two sets of thoughts—one that he believes and another that he expresses.

Dorothy: But you believe in the exercise of tact?
Dad: Most certainly. I would not pick flaws just for amusement. But if I thought a thing were right or wrong, especially involving justice or threatening injustice, I would say so—of course without any unnecessary acrimony—without trying to hurt the one who disagreed with me. It is this candor—this freedom from covering motives that makes the average farmer appeal to me.

Dorothy: What of the metropolitan city, Uncle Gene?

Dad: You see I am not city broke. From my none too close observation, I have found the big city population divided into classes—distinctions based on large industrial operations, or on intellectual endeavors in specialized work. Members of a vast army are struggling from hand to mouth, and putting on as much style as possible without missing the mouth entirely. Members of this large group feel that they must make a favorable showing, often they don't know their next door neighbors, but, anyway, they want to make a good impression even if they don't know who they are impressing, hoping in that way to score advantage. The fact that they seldom score does seem to have a deterring influence on their highly wrought anxieties. Then every sizable city, has its terribly impoverished sections—many unfortunates huddled into hovels along railroad tracks or on water fronts—often pinched faces—haggard eyes that look with mingled suspicion and entreaty from immediate misery to inquiring and bestowing charity. This shadow in the metropolitan center is the consciousness that wrings the soul of the man from the country and makes him feel glad that he lives where extremes are less pronounced.

Dorothy: But in the country, Uncle Gene, we are oppressed by low prices.
Dad: I know we are rolled out so flat that we may soon have to change the fashioning of our garments. But we still have the courage of our original pioneer stock. Unlike the metropolitan center where driving eagerness chills familiar and helpful fellowship, we still have friends who ring true and who share liberally in the joys and sorrows of one another.

Dorothy: What do you mean?
Dad: Witness the farmers who quickly respond to the needs of a sick neighbor. See how they get together to plow or plant or cultivate or harvest or perform some other service that will keep a distressed fellow-farmer from getting behind in his work. See how they mingle socially, engaging in that cordial relationship that makes friendship genuine—that bares the soul and whips satisfying confidence into life's hopes.

Dorothy: But, Uncle Gene, we are still hard up?
Dad: I'll say we are. But it will not always be so. We have been this way before, and if we put on any more wars we will likely be this way again. We feel that we have been kicked from Dan to Beersheba, and that probably we are now on the way back. At any rate, we have laid a fairly large and I would think fully completed foundation in sacrifice and suffering for the early return of a better day. Then the farmer with a strong heart and firm foothold, will be restored to rightfully deserved prosperity, which also means so much to dependent city dwellers.

ENVY.
When we feel like envying persons who hold positions of exceptional distinction or who have more than their share of the world's wealth, we should consider the cost, and we should be willing to take the bad with the good, the hardships with the advantages. The presidency has become such a nerve-wracking, life-sapping task that not so many boys are now being encouraged as candidates for the place. Formerly a fond mother, watching her infant son in the cradle as he tried to get both hands and both feet into his little mouth, thrilled under the dream that she beheld a future president. Fewer mothers feel that way now. The bigger, the job, the greater the responsibility, the greater the personal sacrifice. The man who has accumulated unusual material wealth, forfeits many of the joys found in the simple life, and the only way he can compensate himself is by imitating the simple life, and by using his financial strength to advance the social welfare. How the man whose digestion has been wrecked by the trials of a big estate or by the galling exactions of high position, would like to trade his enfeebled stomach for the corn-shredding organ possessed by an editor or by a toiler in some other vineyard! If we would have the honors or estates that have befallen to others, we should be willing to accept their burdens and discharge their responsibilities.

current events. She does not just sit and watch the ceiling. While she is not so rugged as she was fifty years ago, she is on the alert, her mind is clear and her spirit is buoyant. How long she will live beyond the century mark we could not guess. But we hope she establishes a record in happy longevity, and we believe she will.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to express sincere appreciation to friends who called on me and sent flowers while I was ill. Anton Olson.

Remains About Same.

James Rennick who is ill following a stroke, remains about the same according to word today.

Improves In City.

Rev. H. C. Caspey who is in an Omaha hospital, is reported to be improving steadily.

Plan Ladies' Night.

The Young Men's Business club plans ladies' night dinner and program for March 8.

To Speak at School.

Miss Margaret Schemel will speak to Wayne high school students next Tuesday at their 2:15 assembly period. Miss Schemel will tell of her last summer's trip to Washington.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank all who were so kind to us during our bereavement. We especially thank the minister, Legion and Auxiliary, and all who sent flowers. Mr. and Mrs. George Reibold and family.

Be sure and read the Herald want-ads.

PREACHERS.

We are naturally and rightfully uneasy over farm prices because they form the basis for all other lines of activity, but we often quite overlook other branches of service which tie into and become an essential part of life. I want to make brief reference to ministers of the gospel and to the good work which they are doing. People are eager for money and for the things money will buy. To the degree essential to comfort, this interest is necessary—unavoidable. But material comforts—though indispensable—are of trifling importance as contrasted with the imperishable values to which the minister of the gospel devotes attention from day to day and week to week. While his labors are above the material, his earthly needs must be supported by the material. What kind of a civilization would we have if we were not admonished and led by stories of the gentle Nazarene, stories repeated and emphasized by members of the clergy? What kind of a world would this be if preachers were not here to breathe words of courage? Take away our lands and chattels, and sooner or later opportunities open to win them back. Take away assurance of an unfolding immortality—the most precious beacon light to hope—and we are finally bereft of everything of permanent worth—everything that does not perish. So in our tolls we should not forget to cooperate with the preacher and flank his service with the material support which he must have to carry forward his work—to keep the dynamo of Christianity—the dynamo of human hope—generating properly.

Public Is Invited To Hear Educator

Miss Daisy Simons, Lincoln, Will Explain Knighthood, Plan This Afternoon.

Miss Daisy Simons of the state department of public instruction will address a group meeting of training school faculty members, Wayne and rural school teachers, and parents of school-age children at the training school this afternoon. The meeting opens at 4:15 o'clock and is open to everybody. Miss Simons will explain the Knighthood of Youth plan of character education sponsored by her department.

Training school supervisors have completed their study of the 10th yearbook on character education. Dean H. H. Hann announces that the placement bureau has received a few more notices of vacancies that were expected, and that teachers are being recommended for positions daily.

In the local declamatory contest eliminations held at the school house last Tuesday afternoon, the following candidates were given first places: Humorous, Irene Bastian, reading "China Blue Eyes," dramatic, Fern Van Allen, reading "The Valiant"; oratorical, Algeo Cutler, giving "Spartacus to the Gladiators"; and extemporaneous, Llewellyn Whitmore who was the lone entrant in this division. Judges were Mrs. R. R. Smith, Miss Florence Drake and Miss Lenore Ramsey.

Wilbur Porterfield gave an illustrated lecture on poster designing before the high school student body Wednesday morning. This is in preparation for the peace poster contest, sponsored by women's clubs of the third district, in which college high school students will take part.

The four classes in college high school are taking part in a pep contest in which each class works for points. These are given for highest percent of attendance at high school basketball games, for giving the best group yell, for best talks given before high school student body by members of class, and for best individual talk given during the contest. The closing date is March 4, and judges' decision will be given March 8.

Defeat Belden Friday.
The college high basketball team won an easy victory from Belden quintet Friday on the college court, the final tally being 34 to nine for the home squad. Three games will be played Friday evening at the college gymnasium. At 6:30 o'clock, a game will be called between eighth graders of college training school and eighth graders of Wayne high school; at 7:15, college high school alumni will meet college "B" team; at 8 o'clock, college high school plays Hubbard in final game of the season, except for the tournament.

District basketball tournament will be held at the college Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 2, 3 and 4, with arrangements in charge of Prof. A. F. Gulliver, director. Coach W. Ray Hickman, Supt. Rufus Casaway of Concord, and Supt. E. A. Austin of Winside. The following twelve teams are eligible to compete: Beemer, Belden, Carroll, Coleridge, Concord, Dakota City, Emerson, Holy Trinity school of Hartington, Newcastle, Waterbury, college training school and Winside. The committee meets tonight at the training school to draw pairings for the first round.

Business Firm Change Is Made

C. H. Fisher Sells Interest To Carl E. Wright Who Is Sole Owner.

Carl E. Wright this week bought the interest of his partner, C. H. Fisher, in the Fisher & Wright lumber yard in Wayne and took possession at once. Mr. Wright is now sole owner and will continue the firm's policies as in the past.
The Fisher name has been associated with the firm for about 50 years. C. O. Fisher, father of C. H. Fisher, and Mr. Slater established the yard. Later C. O. Fisher had it alone. The firm name was afterwards Fisher & Dickerson, C. O. Fisher & Son were in business together later, and then C. H. Fisher alone. Mr. Wright joined the firm three and a half years ago.
The lumber firm was established in Wayne soon after the town was started.

Wakefield Wins County Tourney. Seven Teams Participate in Basketball Meet Last Week-End. Wakefield emerged victorious in the Dixon county basketball tournament held in high school gymnasium last Friday and Saturday under sponsorship of the county schoolmen's association in the finals Saturday evening. Wakefield basketballists defeated the Allenites by a score of 36 to 24, and captured the tournament honors, having scored 110 points out of the total 350. Art Larson of Wakefield, was high point man in the tournament, accounting for 42. Louis Henschke was second with 35, and Bernard Busby ranked third with 24 points.

The all-county team picked by coaches whose teams took part in the tournament, was made up of the following: Art Larson of Wakefield, unanimous choice; Louis Henschke of Wakefield, c.; Williani Driskell of Wakefield, alternate; Walter Surber of Emerson, f.; Ellis of Allen, g.; Enver Larson of Emerson, g.; Bernard Busby and Joe Lyman of Wakefield, placed on second team; so entire Wakefield squad was honored.

In first round Friday evening, Allen drew a bye; Waterbury defeated Newcastle by a 21 to 8 tally; Emerson and Concord played in a 24 to 24 tie, then Concord added 4 points in the extra period and won 28 to 24; Wakefield won from Ponca by a 25 to eight score.

Second round was played Saturday afternoon, with Wakefield winning from Concord 47 to 18; Allen carried off the large end of a 36 to 17 score in tilt with Waterbury. Consolation finals were played off the same session, with the first round losers, Emerson and Ponca, playing to a 15 to 17 score in favor of Ponca, and the second round losers, Concord and Waterbury, tallied 14 to 15 in Waterbury's favor.

The gymnasium was packed for Saturday night finals, and the crowd was enthusiastic as Wakefield pushed forward to an easy victory. Score at half stood 22 to 11 in favor of the home squad, and final tally was 36 to 24. Larson was high point man, being responsible for 14 points.

Friday evening the Wakefield team goes to Hartington.

Married Today At Scott Home. Miss Crystal Scott Becomes Bride of Laurence Carlson At Wakefield.

In a ceremony particularly charming because of its simplicity, Miss Crystal Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Scott of Wakefield, became the bride of Mr. Laurence Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Carlson of Wakefield, this Thursday noon, February 23, when Rev. Rollie Poe, Methodist pastor, performed the double ring ceremony at the bride's home three miles north of here. A three-course wedding breakfast was served to about 65 relatives and friends who witnessed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Carlson will make their home on a farm southwest of Wakefield.

Miss Scott was attired in a gown of hyacinth blue crepe with accessories in cream. Her bouquet of flowers was of sweetpeas, yellow daffodils and roses. Miss Elvera Hinds of Ponca, her cousin, was bridesmaid. She wore pastel pink taffeta. Mr. Carlson was attended by his brother, Vern Carlson, and both wore dark suits.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Elja Hearsh of Wakefield, sang "I Love You Truly." The bridal procession entered the room as Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Miss Margaret Rodgers and they took places at an improvised altar. Miss Opal Boeckenhauer sang "At Dawning" following the vows.

The bride's chosen colors of orchid and yellow were used throughout the entire occasion. Waitresses were Miss Fern Nimrod, Miss Leone and Miss Verna Anderson, Miss Faith Kimbell, Miss Doris Poelitz, Miss Iva Stanley, Miss Amelia Hansen and Miss Margaret Rodgers.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Carlson were members of the 1930 graduating class of Wakefield high school. The bride attended Wayne Teachers college for one year and taught near Allen. Mr. Carlson was a student at the agricultural college in Lincoln.

Pilger Doctor, 81, Honored by Friends

Pilger, Neb.—Dr. W. D. Guttery celebrated his eighty-first birthday anniversary Saturday when in the evening his neighbors and friends went to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Paul Schneider, with whom he is making his home this winter and surprised him. The evening was spent socially and luncheon was served.

Dr. Guttery came to Pilger thirty years ago and practiced medicine here a number of years. He then moved to Norfolk where he was superintendent of the state hospital, later going to San Antonio, Tex., where he had charge of a hospital. While in San Antonio his wife died.

During the past few years the doctor gave up his practice of medicine and has made his home with his three children, Mrs. Paul Schneider of Pilger, Mrs. Addie Newsum of North Bend, and Dr. John Guttery of Lynch.

He enjoys visiting with his friends and is a regular attendant at the Baptist Sunday school.

Concord News

Sixty-four per cent of motorists included in "Who's Who in America" are church members.

A recent survey of "Who's Who in America" is something like a blow to the atheists. Only seventeen out of a total of nearly 30,000 whose names appear in the 1930-31 roll of fame claim they are infidels, atheist, free thinkers or agnostics. "The pillars of society," says a writer, "are also pillars of the church."

"Nothing is as old," said a news writer, "as a daily paper of yesterday." We have before us a copy of the Wayne Herald of January 26, 1928. It came our way as a wrapper around a piece of merchandise which demonstrates that a newspaper may serve more than one useful purpose. Although this copy is five years old, it is full of interest by the way of comparison. Five years ago Calvin Coolidge was still president of the United States. Herbert Hoover had not even been nominated as candidate for the presidency. Prosperity was the order of the day and the depression was still in the future. The women folks—according to a display ad—wore their dresses touching the knees. Of course they are longer now. The Concord department had nearly a column and a half of news items.

Groups Of School In Vesper Service

Wayne High School Singers To Appear In Program Next Sunday.

Wayne high school glee clubs, directed by Kermit Stewart, will present a vesper concert at 4:30 Sunday afternoon at the Presbyterian church. The boys' quartet, the girls' sextet, and the junior high girls' glee club will each sing a group of songs. Mavis Baker, winner in the dramatic division of the local declamatory contest, will read a selection.

The program includes numbers that will be used in the district contest held in Wayne early in April. The junior high girls' glee club opens the program with "Song of Home," by Towner, "Lullaby," by Brahms, and "Sanctus," by Schubert.

The boys' quartet presents "Folksman's Chorus," by Sullivan-Porter, "Song of Volga Boatman," by Mouffat, and "The Sleigh," by Komatz Balwin. Frank Gamble, Donald Wright, Marion Jones and James Davies comprise the quartet.

Mavis Baker gives her reading. The girls' glee club follows with "Dark Eyes," arranged by Trahanse, "Lullaby," by Mendelssohn, and "Recho Song," by Harris.

The girls' sextet, including Lucille Wright, Verona McNatt, Helen Perry, Gwendolyn Mulvey, Helen Jones and Jeanne Wright, sings a selected group.

The program closes with the high school chorus singing "Come to the Fair," by Martin, "Glory of God in Nature," by Beethoven, and "Author of Life Divine," by Thuman.

ferent and semi-dishonest and those times must come again. Only when equity, justice and fairness are observed will an organization survive or be of service. This matter of honor must extend beyond business detail. Faith and confidence in worthy institutions must be maintained. With honor in all our transactions with our fellowmen will come fairness, justice and understanding with which prosperity surely must come again.

Mrs. John Volk of Williston, N. D., who is here visiting at William Beckenbauer's, sang Tuesday. N. S. Hook, C. L. Pickett, F. E. Gamble, F. L. Blair, L. W. Ellis and J. G. W. Lewis, accompanied by Mrs. Carrie Welch, also furnished numbers.

Washington Ideals.

Rev. P. A. Davies, Presbyterian minister, gave the radio talk on Wednesday. "These are days in which we should be thinking largely in terms of characteristics of two of our great American leaders, Lincoln and Washington. It seems fitting that in this time of discouragement, pessimism, and darkness we should turn for encouragement to consider the integrity, the courage and the faith of two men who lived in the two darkest periods of American history. May their glory go on through the years, adding new lustre from time to time in lives that have been encouraged and helped. In speaking of Washington, we find he was as true as steel. He was courageous. He had faith and religion. His life is ever a shining light that shineth more and more towards the perfect day."

Prof. Keith Has Music.

Prof. John F. Keith had charge of music Wednesday morning. Mrs. Keith played the piano accompaniment. The string ensemble included Kenneth Beckman, Fern Crawford, Alvin Giese, Helen Kern, Leonard Leise, Augustus Marek, Esther Pennington, Caroline Spangler, Donald Turk, Goldie Wendt, Dwight Davis, Irving Steber, Emil Conklyn, Norman Harvey, Fern Baker, Harry Luckey. In a clarinet quartet were Ben Clark, Stanley Davis, Robert Gulliver and Magdelaine Reznicek. Orville Smith played one of Prof. Keith's own compositions as a French horn solo, and Mr. Smith and Charles Ingham gave a flute and horn duet. Miss Caroline Spangler played a violin solo. Claire Jensen who was to have a clarinet solo and Irving Steber who was to play a viola solo, were unable to on account of shortage of time. They will appear soon.

For Rest of Week.

Time To Test Seed Corn.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: "If the subject of testing seed corn was mentioned a few years ago, a farmer was likely to sigh and remark, 'I know I should give my seed an individual ear test, but it is a lot of work and I'll never get around to do it.' More recently, corn specialists are fairly well agreed that an individual ear test is unnecessary for practical purposes, but they still maintain that a general germination test run during the winter is valuable.

At this season the corn grower is more likely to have time to work over his seed than later. More than the usual amount of danger lies in the tendency to postpone this work during a year like the present when cribs already are bursting with a crop which no one highly values. Benefits to be gained from the testing of seed corn, however, probably will built as large as ever when the 1933 crop is harvested.

In taking sample kernels from various ears for testing, early in the year, farmers sometimes have been struck with the advisability of sorting their seed before planting, and because time was available have done a worth while job. Seed which is carefully selected toward a particular type undoubtedly yields higher than the average run.

Experiments run by the Nebraska College of Agriculture indicate that corn of the smoothly indented type outyields rough strains an average of 10 to 15 per cent. No danger from running out seems to lie in the practice of selection toward a smooth type of kernel for it has been practiced by the investigators on some strains for 20 years without harmful effects.

RURAL SCHOOL NEWS OF WEEK

Patriotism Programs Feature Happenings In Districts Of Wayne County.

District 57. Elsie Mae Wert, Teacher. School was dismissed the last four days of last week on account of the cold weather.

Pupils enjoyed Valentine party Tuesday afternoon. Valentines were exchanged and pupils were treated to candy bars.

Mable Gamble received a prize for having 100 in spelling all month.

Burdette Granquist and Harvey Gernhart have tied in the reading contest of the fifth and sixth grades, each having forty merits.

Pupils have had perfect attendance last week.

District 20. Louise O'Donnell, Teacher. Pupils had perfect attendance this week.

Winners in the arithmetic contest are Merlin Meyer, John Finn and Betty Baier.

Marie Post last week earned 100 per cent.

Pupils with 90 and above in spelling are Dennis Finn, John Edward Post, Daniel Baier, John Finn and Betty Baier.

On Valentine's day pupils had a little party. Valentines were exchanged, and it being Marie Post's birthday, she treated the pupils and teacher.

District 33. Beatrice Cobb, Teacher. Pupils, large and small, are enjoying the new library books.

Among them are twelve little books that even the youngest take great pleasure in reading.

Pupils of the upper grades are making library charts to keep a record of the books they have read and their authors. Reading for pleasure has been greatly stimulated.

Merlin Frevert and Frances Baker each had a birthday this month and they brought treats for their schoolmates in honor of the occasions.

Last month 19 of the 22 schools received perfect attendance certificates. Attendance has been good so far this month, considering the weather. On the worst day only four of the 22 were absent.

Erwin Baker was ill and missed three days. This is the first time that Erwin has been absent or tardy this year.

Walter Meier was absent February 15, because of the funeral of his grandfather.

Seventh and eighth grade geography class has been giving reports on imaginary trips to western Nebraska. Some went by car and some by train. Important places along the way were visited and observations about the country and crops were given.

In honor of Lincoln's birthday a radio program was broadcast from an imaginary broadcasting station, which was named FUN.

The program included the flag salute, songs, poetry and prose suitable to the occasion, and biographies of Lincoln which were written in the English classes. Everyone took part. The next day letters were written to the station telling which program numbers were enjoyed the most.

In art period all the grades drew pictures to illustrate something in the life of Lincoln. Lower grades drew the log cabin. Most interesting among the upper grade pictures were pencil drawings of Lincoln himself, made by Lois Meyer and Leona Test.

On Valentine day the children again broadcasted a short program over station FUN. Afterwards a Valentine game was played and Valentines from a box, packed full, were distributed. Many of them were made by the children themselves and it was interesting to see what really artistic work some of them achieved.

The children have learned a "Good-bye" song which they sing as they march out at 4 o'clock. They enjoy the song and dismissal is more quiet and orderly than formerly.

District 22. Neva M. Barnes, Teacher. Mary Lou Kirwan has returned to school after an absence of ten days.

Darlene Baier visited school February 14.

Pupils had a Valentine box on Tuesday, February 14. Some very nice Valentines were received by each of us.

District 42. Izzetta Fae Buetow, Teacher. On Tuesday afternoon the losing side in the spelling contest treated the winners to a Valentine party. Games and stunts furnished entertainment and a lunch consisting of graham crackers and marshmallows was served. Valentines were distributed from a large Valentine box.

A discussion during opening exercises on the morning of February 14, revealed several interesting stories and customs concerning the date.

The stories of recent tragic fires in Omaha have been used in fire prevention and character study lessons.

Pupils are glad to have Junior Noakes with them again after a two weeks' absence.

Members of group II geography class in their study of weather are each keeping a weather record which includes wind direction, moisture, clouds and temperature readings for morning and evening.

February 17 was the first day of perfect attendance at our school in the last seven weeks. Illness and bad weather caused many absences.

District 81. Irene Morris, Teacher. On February 14, the pupils exchanged Valentines. They made the Valentines that they gave. There was a postmaster and a mail carrier from each row.

The program put on February 17 by the older people in the community was well attended and $16.30 was taken in.

The first grade has finished the primer and has started on the first grade readers.

Evelyn Baird is leading in the second grade reading contest.

The third and fourth grades are studying hygiene in language class.

The fifth and sixth grades have finished studying the Mediterranean countries in geography.

The seventh and eighth grades have started on reading in the place of geography of Nebraska.

Officers were changed February 22 in the good citizenship club.

District 66. Marie Finn, Teacher. In the spelling tour the Fords have gone 640 miles and the Chevrolees have gone 670 miles.

Pupils have $5 worth of library books. Two books of special interest are the life stories of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

Last week was the first week since the first month of school that all had perfect attendance.

Marjorie Miller and Elvina Schroeder are the only ones who have not been absent or tardy this year.

The community of district 66 is giving a program Friday evening, February 24, at eight o'clock. The grown people of the community take part.

District 84. Marjorie Roe, Teacher. All pupils had perfect attendance last week.

Each pupil earned 100 percent in spelling last week so the school had a spell-down Friday.

Valentines were exchanged on Tuesday last week and the children enjoyed an hour of games after which the teacher treated them to heart-shaped cakes and cookies.

District 40. Eulalie Brugger, Teacher. In spite of the intense cold recently only three of the 17 pupils were absent because of the weather or illness.

The spelling contest between the Kings and the Queens ended Friday with the Queen winners. Individual honors were won by Rosalie Hoemann and Helen Gerlemann.

Friday being the end of the sixth month of school, health score winners were Lucille Wittler, Betty Milliken and Helen Gerlemann.

Room decorations the past month have carried out the Valentine spirit and appropriate designs, booklets and posters featured Lincoln and Washington, Tuesday, February 14. The pupils invited the neighboring school, district 28, north and teacher, Miss Tillie Eckert, to a hard-time party. All guests were to costume in accordance with the times or forfeit a fine. As a result an unusual array of toggerly was presented. Prizes for the most original were awarded to Allan Christensen of district 28 and Rosalie Hoemann of district 40. Following games and contests the Valentine postoffice was opened with Wayne Straight as postmaster. At the close of the afternoon luncheon prepared by pupils of district 40 was served. The menu included sandwiches, pickles, ice cream and candy. Funds for the party were obtained by sale of candy at a previous program.

Librarian for the ensuing two weeks is Loretta Hoemann. This officer keeps an accurate account of all library and text books taken home. Thus the school has a check at all times on books. Monitors for the week are Wayne and Verna Mae Straight.

New single seats recently installed have proved satisfactory. With newly papered walls and re-enamelled woodwork the school is a pleasant, happy and busy place.

District 31. Evelyn Nielsen, Teacher. Arlene Rehms, Myrna Rehms and Christine Lueker are on the honor roll, having all A's except one, on their report cards for last month.

Fifth and sixth grades are making a movie of the life of Lincoln for a language project. Third and fourth grades are preparing one on the life of Washington. This week they gave a puppet show presenting the story, "Oeyvind and Marit."

Frederick Janke won the arithmetic contest for last month in the sixth grade. Jack Krueger won in the third grade. Arlene Rehms is still leading in the geography race.

Fifth and sixth grades made booklets in physiology of the various systems studied. They also made autobiography booklets of their lives, including a copy of the autobiographies of their classmates as well as of their own.

District 69. Dorothy Gildersleeve, Teacher. The Willis Knight and Nash won the spelling race completing a tour of 5,450 miles.

Library books have been ordered with the $5 allowed by the district, and the pupils will soon be able to enjoy them.

Many pupils were absent last week on account of the cold weather.

Pupils in district 69 enjoyed a Valentine party Tuesday afternoon. Ice cream and wafers were served at the close of the party. Prizes were won by Leona Graquist, Donald Quinn and Alice Grono.

Working On Play To Be Given Soon

Darkness, moaning and sobbing, silence, a shriek, and a smothered groan. What happened in the thirteenth chair? "A dead man learns no tales." Thirteen well-bred people behind locked doors. The truth at last!

"The Thirteenth Chair," an extremely well written mystery play by Bayard Veiller, with a cast of 17, will be presented by the dramatic classes of Wayne State Teachers College Tuesday evening, February 28, under direction of Miss Florence M. Drake.

The scenery is being redecorated by Wilma Israelson, Kathryn

Markeson, Ralph Higbee and Allan Andersen. Otto Ingwerson, the college carpenter, is constructing a ceiling which is expected to improve acoustics of the stage. Other stage work will be done by Arthur McCauley, Joseph Barber and Harry Luckey. Mr. McCauley is also electrician.

Costumes are being selected by Mildred Kehl and Helen Marie Davis. Properties are in charge of Max Hendrickson, Ralph Jacques and Bea Anderson. Genevieve Winkler is press agent. Publicity is in charge of Charlene Brown and the house manager is Dorothy Petersen.

World Events

An armed bandit entered the Pathfinder hotel at Fremont Friday and took $286 from the desk clerk.

After an hour's deliberation a jury declared that the cause of the Millard hotel fire at Omaha was undetermined.

Measures are being provided to protect President-elect and Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt during the inauguration ceremonies of March 4.

John Drew, Milwaukee city treasurer from 1916 to 1932, and J. J. Rosenberg, former bank president at Milwaukee, are facing charge of embezzlement of $500,000 of city funds.

Five thousand farmers of Nebraska went to Lincoln last Thursday to investigate the processes of government. They were very orderly and just made the trip as an appeal for farm aid.

President Hoover Saturday signed the $48,000,000 interior department appropriation bill—the second of the big supply measures to be enacted with the close of the session rapidly nearing.

The United States senate at Washington the last of the week voted by 63 to 23 to repeal the Eighteenth amendment. The bill was sent to the house for consideration. The measure provides for submission to state conventions for ratification instead of to the legislatures. It would protect dry states from liquor importations.

The Nebraska house of representatives last Friday passed the Cane bill to make four-year mortgage moratoriums possible while protecting interests of both borrower and lender. Some favor the bill as one that will insure orderly government and equity through the courts. Others oppose it saying it will destroy Nebraska's credit and it will not give immediate relief.

Search of ruins of the Millard hotel, destroyed by fire in Omaha, failed to reveal any more bodies besides those of firemen who lost their lives in the blaze.

Concerted action to bring to justice Giuseppe Zangara, curly haired assassin, was pressed by the state of Florida while Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago, one of five victims of bullets intended for President-elect Roosevelt, sent word from Miami to friends "I'm going to pull through for Chicago." Zangara, who is charged with attempt to assassinate the president-elect, shot into the presidential group last week Wednesday evening just after Roosevelt had spoken in Miami.

In August, 1931, drastic cuts were made effective in commission charges by all selling agencies at the Sioux City market.

No other market in our competitive territory shows such low service charges as does Sioux City.

Lower Commission Charges

Where a carload of cattle was charged $21 under the old schedule, we now find a charge of $15.

A carload of hogs now shows a $12 charge as compared with $14 under the old rule.

A double deck of sheep now carries a charge of $18 as compared with $20 formerly.

Under the old rule 10 cattle by truck were charged 80c per head for a total of $8, now the charge is at the rate of 70c per head for a total of $7.

Hogs by truck pay a charge of 25c per head when the count per owner is from two and up to 52 head and when weighed in not more than 3 Drafts.

When more than one head and up to 65 head of sheep are trucked in, the charge is 20c per head. 66 head and up to 125 are sold at the maximum per owner charge of $13, or the same commission as charged for only 65 head.

Hot Breads

Quick Breads Dress Up The Everyday Dinner And Add Needed Variety.

Every homemaker has her favorite hot bread which can be mixed together in an emergency, or which is the piece de resistance of the breakfast table or Sunday night supper.

The dark grain of flour, such as whole wheat, bran, whole ground corn meal or oatmeal contain very valuable food substances which are usually taken away in the process of milling.

Quick bread, that is, those leavened with baking powder or with sour milk and soda, are especially useful for adding variety to meals.

Baking powder biscuits are always popular with the family, especially on cold mornings; these may be served piping hot with gravy or with creamed meat or vegetable in the main course, or with syrup, jelly, jam or marmalade at end of meal.

For orange biscuits, a little orange rind may be grated and added to biscuit dough, then a little grated rind spread on each biscuit top. Cheese biscuit and peanut butter biscuits may be made by adding grated cheese or peanut butter in place of some of the shortening in biscuit dough.

Pinwheel biscuits with cinnamon and sugar, or with brown sugar and raisins are another variation, and good served with tea or milk at supper time.

Muffins offer many opportunities for variation. These may be plain wheat, whole wheat, bran, rice of corn, with or without raisins, or perhaps with cranberries or nuts. These are nice toasted for afternoon tea or Sunday night supper.

Corn breads vary from ashake, corn dodger, crackling corn bread and corn pone to corn sticks, corn muffins, soft corn bread and spoonbread.

For any of the quick breads, either sweet or sour milk can be used. If a recipe for biscuits or muffins calls for 1 cup sweet milk and 4 teaspoons baking powder, clabbered milk may be substituted for the sweet, along with scant 1-2 teaspoon soda and two teaspoons baking powder.

Here are a few rather unusual recipes:

Cheese Biscuits. 1 cupful of flour, 2 teaspoons tartaric or phosphate baking powder, or 1 teaspoonful of Phosphate S. A. S. baking powder, 1-2 teaspoonful of salt, 1-4 teaspoonful of soda, 1 tablespoonful of butter, 1-2 cupful thick sour milk, 1-2 cupful of grated cheese.

Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and soda together. Cut butter into dry ingredients with 2 knives. Add sour milk gradually, and finally the cheese. Cut with a small round cutter. Bake in groups of 3 in a muffin tin, in a moderate oven (350 to 375 degrees) until well browned on top.

Corn Muffins. Sift two cups corn-meal and add one cup flour sifted with three teaspoons baking powder and one teaspoon salt. Beat the yolks of three eggs with one-fourth cup sugar, add two and one-half cups milk, and beat into the dry ingredients. Beat the whites of the eggs stiff, but not dry, and stir into the mixture. Then beat very thoroughly. Bake in greased muffin pans in an oven at 375° F. for about twenty to twenty-five minutes. Serve hot with plenty of butter. If desired this may be baked in a sheet pan.

Gingerbread. One-third cup shortening heated with one cup molasses. Let it boil, then add one-half teaspoon soda. Stir in one-half teaspoon cinnamon and one-half teaspoon ginger. Take from the fire. Add one-half cup good sour milk and one well beaten egg. Sift one and one-half cups flour several times. Beat this into mixture. Beat all very thoroughly. Bake at a temperature of 400° F. in individual tins for twenty-five minutes. This is a most delicious gingerbread. Be sure the milk is really sour. And measure flour before sifting. Serve it very hot.

Crackling Bread. 1 quart corn meal, 1 fat cracklings, 3 teaspoons salt, 2 quarts water. Mix the corn meal and salt; pour over this mixture enough

Cranberry Muffins. 1 egg, 3-4 cup milk, 2 cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons melted butter or other fat, 1 cup cranberries.

Beat the egg slightly and add the milk. To the liquid mixture, add the sifted dry ingredients. Roll the berries in two more tablespoons of sugar, and fold into the batter with the melted fat. Do not stir the mixture any more than necessary. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake in a moderately hot oven, 400°, for about 30 minutes, or until brown. Serve hot.

Almond Finger Biscuits. 1-2 cups flour, 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1-8 teaspoon salt.

boiling water to moisten but not enough to make a mush. When the meal has cooled, work the cracklings into it with the fingers. Form the dough into cakes about 4 inches long, 2 inches wide, and 1 inch thick; bake for 30 minutes. Serve very hot.

Peanut Butter Biscuit. 4 tablespoons peanut butter, 2 tablespoons fat, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 cups flour.

Milk Saffron Bread (Scandinavian) 1 pint milk, 1-2 yeast cake, About 1-2 quarts flour, 2-3 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon saffron, 1 egg, 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup shortening.

Beaten egg and sugar, additional scalded almonds. Scald milk and cool until lukewarm. Dissolve yeast in it, then add enough of flour, sifted with salt, to form a soft sponge or batter. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, then put in saffron, which has been soaked in two tablespoons of milk, beaten egg, sugar and melted shortening, with remaining flour, using enough to make a dough. Knead thoroughly, cover and again set aside to rise until doubled in bulk. Divide into portions and form into wreaths, braids or any of desired fancy shapes. Place on baking pan, cover and let rise, then brush over with beaten egg and sprinkle with sugar and chopped almonds. Bake in hot oven—400 degrees F.—twenty to twenty-five minutes.

Cranberry Muffins. 1 egg, 3-4 cup milk, 2 cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons melted butter or other fat, 1 cup cranberries.

Beat the egg slightly and add the milk. To the liquid mixture, add the sifted dry ingredients. Roll the berries in two more tablespoons of sugar, and fold into the batter with the melted fat. Do not stir the mixture any more than necessary. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake in a moderately hot oven, 400°, for about 30 minutes, or until brown. Serve hot.

Suggestions For Removing Spots From Materials In Emergencies

Many a garment has been completely ruined from hasty and unwise washing or application of stain remover, and a clipping of proper treatments for stains and discolorations is a handy thing to have about the kitchen.

First, let's consider blood stains. Hot water will set the stain, and should never be applied until after cold water is used. Washable materials may be soaked and rubbed in water until most of the coloring disappears, then washed in warm water. Silk or wool material may be sponged with cold water. A stubborn stain may be soaked in solution of two tablespoons household ammonia to one gallon water. Sponging with hydrogen peroxide will remove the last traces of the stain. Raw starch mixed to paste with water may be applied to thick materials not easily washed, such as flannel and blankets, and brushed away when it dries.

Candy Stains. Candy stains are due to sugar syrup, coloring matter or chocolate and may either be removed by ordinary laundering if material is washable, or sponged with clear warm water.

Chewing Gum. Chewing gum on washable material may be removed by softening the gum stain with egg white and then washing it.

Chocolate and Cocoa. Chocolate and cocoa stains are composed of fats, coloring material, starch, sugar and even milk solids. If material is washable, use soap and water, or soak stained portion in wood alcohol with ammonia solution added.

For Coffee Stains. Brown stains from coffee are partly due to compounds formed in roasting process, which are soluble in water. Washable materials may be cleaned by ordinary laundering, and drying material in the sun will remove any discoloration which ingets in. A new stain may be taken out by pouring boiling water on it from height of two or three feet. Stains on wool or silk material may be removed by sponging with color or lukewarm water. Fairly good results are obtained in removing small coffee stains from light-colored silk material by placing stained spot between clean, damp cloth and pressing the whole with hot iron. Or again, the material may be sponged with very little clear water, then with hydrogen peroxide solution.

Cooked Fruits and Berries. Sauce and pie stains may be removed from washable materials by stretching stain over bowl, holding it by string or elastic band, and pouring boiling water upon it from teakettle held at height of 3 or 4 feet, so that water strikes stain with force. The wet material may then be hung out to bleach in the sun.

Iodine Stains. A fresh stain on washable material may be removed with soap and water, or the material may be sponged with denatured or wood alcohol. A solution of ammonia will also remove the stain.

Mud Spots. Often a mud stain may be removed by brushing after it has dried. If this does not work, the soap and water method is advised for washable materials, and sponging of spot with wood or denatured alcohol for non-washables. For black silks of firm weave, brush thoroughly and rub spot with a cut raw potato. This leaves a thin line of starch on the surface which can be brushed off when dry. It should not be used on other than black fabrics.

Tea Stains. Tea stains are simple to remove from materials when fresh, but apt to be very stubborn when well set. Borax and boiling water in proportion of one teaspoon to one cup water, will remove new stains on cottons and linens, by sufficient soaking. A strong soap solution of one-half inch cube soap to cup of water, may be mixed and the stained material boiled in this. Or apply lemon juice to the stain and let it remain in sun for a day or two.

Water Spots. Some silks and woolsens are spotted by water, because the water dissolves a part of the weight-bearing substances and when the water evaporates, leaves this deposited irregularly or in rings. Best method to remove such spots is to dampen the entire material evenly and press it while still damp. This may be done by sponging the material carefully with clean water or shaking it in steam from a briskly boiling teakettle until thoroughly damp.

Etta Kett's Weekly Quiz

1. What distinguishes the ideal bridge partner?
2. How does the poor player judge you playing?
3. Is it ever correct to lay down one's hand and say, "The rest of the tricks are mine?"
4. Should one ever defend his poor playing when he has made a "boner"?
5. Should dummy ever leave the table?
6. What mannerisms should be avoided at the bridge table?
7. Should a poor player take part in a foursome of good players?
8. Under what conditions should a man refrain from smoking when in presence of women?
9. What qualifications distinguish the ideal business woman?
10. What is called woman's greatest shortcoming in the business field?
11. Should a man rise when a stenographer or other woman employe enters the room?
12. What attitude is important to the person who receives people in an office?

Answers To Etta Kett.

1. The ideal bridge partner never criticizes or seems to be aware of his partner's mistakes, but instead recognizes every good manoeuvre on his part, and gives him credit for it whether he makes or loses his bid.
2. By whether or not you make your bid, regardless of the bad "breaks" or his poor bidding which contribute to your failure.
3. Technically this is never correct, but if one is absolutely sure of the remaining tricks, having all the remaining trumps, it is bore-some to have to play it out.
4. No. When you've made a glaringly poor play, merely say, "I'm very sorry, partner," and don't explain.
5. No, his place is at the table, watching the game keenly for renegeing and leading from the wrong hand.
6. Snapping down cards when playing, bending the trick cards into a "U," trotting the trick up and down the table, drumming on table with one's fingers, clicking with the tongue, whistling, humming, or pulling out the card you think will be wanted next before the one who is leading has decided on what to play.
7. The inexperienced player will spoil an evening for good players, and should not take part in a foursome unless sincerely urged to do so by the other players, especially if there are not enough for the table otherwise.
8. When walking on a city street with a woman, when lifting his hat or bowing; when a lady enters a room, office or elevator he should take his cigar or cigarette out of his mouth. When greeting or speaking briefly to a lady, he should refrain from smoking.
9. She is accurate, orderly, quick and impersonal—her point of view is focused on the work to be done and not on her own reactions to it, or other people's reactions to herself.
10. Her inability to be impersonal—moods, temper, jealousy and personal dislikes and preferences insist upon entering into her relations with employers and employees. The successful business woman is the one who has overcome these drawbacks.
11. No, it would be silly to rise every time an employe came into the room. He should always rise to greet a woman visitor though.
12. Tact is absolutely necessary to the one who receives visitors, and a pleasant, cordial attitude will do much for the business you represent.

Decorated Cakes For Tea And Party

The little cakes which are served at afternoon tea or evening parties are twice as tempting if daintily decorated, and with very small expense and careful work, the hostess can work out decorations in her party color scheme.

Cup cakes should be made rather thin and without peaks on the top. They are then turned upside down and frosted on sides and bottom, in order to have a smooth top. Either a boiled frosting or seven-minute frosting may be used. There will be less difficulty with the cake "crumbling off" if round pieces of oiled paper have been fitted into bottom of the cake pans before pouring in the batter.

When these rounds are removed, they leave a crumb-free surface. If possible add decorations to the frosting while it is still soft, but if the frosting has hardened, brush it with raw white of egg with water-color brush, and apply decorations carefully, as these can't be re-adjusted without spoiling the effect. The frosting may be colored any desired tint with vegetable colorings.

Small round cinnamon candies with leaves of citron may be arranged in berry forms for winter parties. Wedding bells may be made out of small gumdrops flattened out and pinched into bell shapes, with wee white candies for clappers. Colored sugars for sprinkling atop cakes may be purchased in grocery stores, or may be made by squeezing a little vegetable coloring on a sheet of writing paper and working it into granulated sugar with the fingers until coloring is evenly distributed.

Pretty little baskets which the children will adore, can be made with the long, slender opera stick candy. Select sticks in the desired colors, place these flat on a pan and warm in oven until just soft enough to bend into handle shape. These must be watched carefully so that they don't melt.

Christie handles into cakes which are frosted in styles of soft, and add flowers of tiny candies, bits of candied red and green cherries or colored frostings to top of basket. Fluffy tulle or ribbon bows may be tied to the handles.

The large cake presents a different problem in decorating. For a fancy birthday cake, the cake might be placed on a board the same shape but a little wider, and the sides and top of cake as well as covered with white icing. Or else a dainty white dolly may be placed under the cake. Try working out your designs on a flat piece of paper the same size as the cake top, and then transfer them to top of cake. Nuts, candied fruits and peels, peppermint hearts, colored drops, chocolate shot, silver dragées, angelica and citron offer many possibilities. For a wedding anniversary, small silver candies may be arranged in clusters with leaves of candied mint or citron. A calico cake may
