ALTONA LADY IS BURIED MONDAY

Mrs. Anna Eckmann Dies At Home Of Her Daughter Friday Morning.

Mrs. Anna Eckmann, a resident of this country for seven years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert Greenwald of Altona, on Friday, June 30. Funeral rites were held at the home two miles east of Altona on Monday afternoon, July 3, followed by services at Trinity Lutheran church of Altona in charge of Rev. E. J. Moede. Burial was in the church cemetery five miles northwest of Hoskins, beside the body of her husband. Deceased was 64 years, five months and three days of age, and death came as the result of bronchial pneumonia.

Mrs. Eckmann was born at Northport, Germany, on January 27, 1869, the former Anna Corinth. She was married to John Eckmann at Northport on April 11, 1889, and eight children were born to this union. Mr. Eckmann died on January 1, 1921, and his widow came to this country to make her home with her children just seven years ago. For the last four years she has resided on the Greenwald farm.

Seven children survive Mrs. Eckmann, three sons and four daughters: Arthur Eckmann, of Germany, Hollis Eckmann of Taunton, Minn., Alfred Eckmann of Minneapolis, Minn., Mrs. F. S. Nelson of Sibley, Iowa, Mrs. John G. Nelson of Winside, Mrs. Soren Dyrhaug of Huron, S. D., and Mrs. Greenwald. One daughter died in infancy. Among those from out-of-town at the funeral rites were Mr. and Mrs. Chris Eckman and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Eckmann of Huron, S. D. Armand Hiseox was in charge of funeral arrangements.

Students Present One Act Plays

The beginning and advanced dramatic classes, under the supervision of Miss Florence M. Drake, presented four one-act plays for an evening of entertainment Tuesday, July 11, at the college auditorium. The first presentation is "The Minute's" dramatic fantasy written by Ernest Dowson, the famous English poet. It is an excellent play with the front of a heroic temple for setting. Pierrot who has never known love, exchanges all hope of future happiness for an hour of love with a moon maiden. The play is delicately conceived and beautifully written.

"Home Sweet Home" which is the next presentation is written by Pauline Phelps. It was the winning play of those presented by the Women's clubs here this spring and it was given by the Hooper ladies at the Methodist church. This is a comedy drama in which four inmates of an old ladies' home quarrel violently while listening to the radio. The entrance of Aggie, the pathetic servant girl, arouses sympathy from the old ladies, but only contempt from the fourth. Not until the belligerent one receives a letter from her former employers granting a pension and she realizes she is to leave the home, does a change of heart occur. She turns the pension over to Aggie to marry on, makes up with her enemies and the four old ladies settle peacefully to listen to "Home Sweet Home" joining in on the chorus.

"As the Tumblers Pass," by Ethel Vander Veer and Franklin Bigelow which follows, is a contemporary play of the French revolution. The setting of this play is in a dreary little apartment in the Rue de la Harpe, a narrow winding street, overlooking the corner where the tumblers pass on the way to the Place de la Revolution with their prisoners. The peasants are hiding the viscountess and their own danger is increased as a half crazed, starved waif enters calling "Aristo," in the presence of the ferrets who are searching every house. Gervaise, who has lost faith in her lover's promise to protect them all, finds that he does so.

"Thank You, Doctor," an exciting, popular farce by Gilbert Emery, ends the evening's entertainment. The curtain rises on a scientist's office. A lady consults the doctor concerning her brother, supposedly mentally unbalanced, who in the course of the play proves to be from a jewelry store, with a valuable necklace she has cracked. The situation is further complicated by an insane patient.

Given Mail Contract.
Darrell Trumbauer has received the contract for hauling mail between the post office and the depot, which will run until the post office department calls for new bids. Mr. Trumbauer was low bidder and takes over the duties formerly performed by Henry Soules. Mr. Trumbauer has been hauling mail since the first of the month.

DEPRESSION AIDS RESTRICTIONS ON PERIL OF POWDER

The depression helped the enforcement of ordinances against firecrackers and fireworks this year, and so, on and around the Fourth, fewer explosives annoyed and endangered the populace. People have less money to waste than usual, realizing that a dollar can be invested to better advantage in almost anything else than in powder that only flashes, makes a noise and leaves a smell. The peril in an explosive makes it worse than waste. People are coming more and more to be convinced that popping firecrackers around defenseless heads and legs is not necessary to show love of country. We look for the time when both custom and legal restraints will banish the explosive as an expression of patriotic joy or as a means of youthful sport.

SHOWERS HELP IN DRY SPELL

Rainfall Average For Ten Years Shows This One Lightest Of All.

Though scattering and light in most of this vicinity, showers the past week have been of benefit in refreshing corn after the intense heat of last week. Rain Friday night amounted to about an inch and a half in Wisner and Pilger vicinities, almost half an inch in Altona vicinity and lighter north amounting only to a sprinkle in Wayne vicinity. Hail did some damage at Wisner and Pilger. Saturday night's shower brought a quarter inch of moisture to Wayne and 1/8 of an inch to Wakefield. Concord received a quarter of an inch Saturday night and the moisture came without wind or hail. Some small hailstones fell at Wayne but did no damage. The Saturday rain extended about two miles west of Wayne, only sprinkles being received at Carroll, Sholes and Winside.

The weather moderated after Saturday's rain and cooler temperatures prevailed this week. A report compiled by the State National bank of Wayne, shows a varying rainfall for May and June the past ten years. May had 5.43 and June 4.61 in 1923 and same months had 1.43 and 1.08 respectively this year.

CITY OBSERVES QUIET FOURTH

Fire At Hamburger Castle Is Sole Casualty Of Wayne Observance.

Wayne folks were observing the Fourth in a markedly calm and placid manner when the fire siren shattered the air Tuesday noon, and from practically deserted Main street a crowd quickly gathered around the Hamburger Castle. It is thought a carelessly thrown firecracker had lodged on the front awning and ignited it. Flames spread quickly and seared off the paint and scorched the front wall, but quick response on part of the local volunteer firemen prevented the flames from spreading. Both fire trucks answered the call. The building is the property of James G. Miller and is insured. Hubert Tschauer is proprietor.

With the exception of the noon blaze, Wayne took its Fourth in a singularly quiet way, with the family and group picnics in Bressler park being nearest approach to large-scale celebration. Many folks went to Crystal lake for picnics and swimming, and a few were vacationing at Okoboji and Spirit lakes, while others went to Wisner for the fishing and swimming. Family picnics were the rule in Wayne city, with huge ice cream freezers and platters of fried chicken a conspicuous part of the festivities.

Folks who planned on a good late sleep on the holiday were rudely disillusioned, for Waynites were awakened early and sharply by the crack and pop and roar of red-devil crackers, shot off by small folks who were up long before their accustomed waking hour, eager to put in as full a day as possible.

Main street was rather quiet during the day, populated mainly by men folks who were restless under the inactivity of a holiday, and who found it difficult to occupy themselves while their wives were preparing the picnic dinners. Flags were in place up and down the business district, giving a festive and martial air to the day, and grocery stores remained open until about 10 o'clock to accommodate their patrons.

Fourth of July, 1933, was comparatively free from accidents, no serious happenings being reported. Perhaps it was the depression which made a marked reduction in the sale of fireworks or maybe it was the curbing of fireworks sales until Monday and the prohibition of firing these until the holiday itself, which gave to Wayne an unusually safe and sane Fourth of July.

Winside Man Found Guilty Of Desertion

In the case of Martin Huebner of Winside, charged by his wife, Alta Huebner, with refusing and neglecting to provide proper food, clothing and shelter for her and three children, the defendant pleaded guilty before Judge J. M. Cherry in county court June 24. According to the judge sentenced him to serve 60 days in the county jail, or to give bonds in the sum of $200 with sureties to be approved by the court, conditioned that he provide his wife and children with proper home, food and clothing in which case the sentence would be suspended. The couple was married in Wayne on March 19, 1929.

Scouts Of Wayne Plan On Camping

National Worker Is Here To Visit Wayne Girls And Leaders.

All Wayne girl scouts who plan to attend the camp which opens here July 17 are asked to meet with Mrs. Willard Wittse at Bressler park Friday at 3 to register. The cabin will likely be three periods at the cabin again this summer.

Miss Clara Perley of Colorado Springs, Colo., who has been helping conduct girl scout training camps in this region and who was in Sioux City last week, came here Sunday to assist the Wayne leaders. She was a guest of Mrs. P. A. Theobald over the Fourth. Miss Perley came in place of Miss Elizabeth Beeler who was called to Iowa. Miss Perley has recently come from New York where she attended a leaders' course and also spent two months at the national camp. She went from here to Wichita and Kansas City.

Miss Perley went to the camp Monday with Mrs. Wittse and Miss Phye Beckenhauer to help with plans for the scout camping.

L. W. McNatt gave paint and R. C. Hahlbeck put it on the cabin porch last week. T. S. Hook, Dr. R. W. Casper, Willard Wittse and L. W. Ellis went to the camp Sunday afternoon to do some preparatory work before camping starts. About 15 were in a group remaining there for a picnic.

Scores Close Up In Kittenball

Championship Series Plans For County Fair Seem Assured Tryout.

Wayne's Kittenball leagues survived the heat of last week but did not change their relative positions in the percentage columns. New faces appeared in some of the lineups as managers sought to bolster up weak spots in their teams, but leaders stuck to their winning habits and the tail-end teams clung to their cellar positions.

Two things become more apparent as the season goes on, that Wayne is enjoying the introduction of kittenball as a recreation for both players and spectators, judging from the good-natured rivalry of players and the crowds turning out to watch a change in the positions of teams in the league standings may be imminent.

Although some teams are unable to shake their losing streaks an analysis of game scores reveals that the top-sided scores of the first of the season are disappearing and weaker teams are rapidly rounding into formidable aggregations that may menace the supremacy of the league leaders.

Tentative plans to play a championship series between the two league winners was given impetus last week when it was learned that the county fair board would endorse the plan as acceptable. It was suggested that kittenball teams now organized over the entire county might be invited in to play.

South Dakotan Hurt After Visit In Wayne

While returning from a motor vacation trip to Wayne and other Nebraska points, the B. G. Bastian car overturned on a highway five miles east of Howard, S. D., and Mr. Bastian was thrown through the window, receiving severe cuts on the left arm. He was taken to a hospital by a passing motorist. His wife and daughter, Marjorie, escaped without injuries. The Bastians were enroute home to Hampton, where Mr. Bastian is connected with the National Bank. The family had been visiting in Wayne at the Mrs. Elizabeth Bastian, Albert Bastian, Martin Bastian and Abram Gildersleeve homes, and left June 27 for Huron. B. G. Bastian is an uncle of Albert and Martin Bastian.

The wedding of Miss Pearl Schnyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schnyder of Winside, and Mr. Norman Carr, son of Mrs. Nina Carr of that city, took place on the morning of July Fourth in South Wayne city. Judge McKinley performed the ceremony. The couple will live on the Carr farm five miles northwest of Wayne.

PIONEER WOMAN BURIED MONDAY

Mrs. Louisa Korth Dies On Family Homestead Near Wakefield, Age 96.

Wayne county lost a true pioneer when death came to Mrs. Louisa Korth last Saturday, thus ending a life span of over 96 years. Busy, well-filled years these must have been, for Mrs. Korth with her husband and eight children, left their fatherland in the middle '60s and came to the midwestern prairie country, traveling by covered wagon, and homesteading in lonely Wayne county in a dugout. In tribute to this pioneer woman, a funeral cortege over a mile long followed her body to the grave, and 72 relatives were gathered here for funeral rites Monday afternoon.

Louisa Asmus was born in Buche, Germany, on October 28, 1836, and was married to William Frederick Korth here in 1860. Eight children were born to this union, two of whom died on shipboard when cholera and measles swept the ship which was bringing the Korths to America. This was in the year 1866, and the water journey lasted nine weeks. The family settled first at Monroe, Wis., then came to Iowa by covered wagon, trekked on to West Point, and then purchased homestead rights in Wayne county. The first home here was a prairie dugout. After death of Mr. Korth in 1888, his widow continued to live on the home place with her son, Henry and family.

Mrs. Korth was baptized on November 12, 1836, at Buche, and continued this affiliation with Evangelical church until the end. In the early days at West Point, services were held in the Korth home.

Death came as the result of old age, for Mrs. Korth had been steadily growing weaker for several years. She was unable to walk the past four years. When death came Saturday, July 1, she was 96 years, eight months and three days old.

Funeral rites Monday afternoon were held at the Presbyterian church of Wakefield, in charge of Rev. O. W. Matzke of West Point Evangelical church, assisted by Rev. Rollie Poe of Wakefield Methodist church. Miss Opal Boeckenhauer and Miss Dorothy Boeckenhauer sang at the services, and Rev. and Mrs. Poe sang a duet number. Burial followed in Wakefield cemetery, in charge of T. C. Hype.

Oakland Upsets Wayne Ball Club

Errors Big Factor As Burt County Nine Defeats Local Team, 11 to 3.

C. L. Pratt's Wayne Independents trekked over to Oakland to play a baseball game last Sunday and trekked back holding the short end of a 11 to 3 score. Wayne hitters kept even with the Oakland sluggers but errors in the field piled up scores for the Burt county nine.

Hampton started on the mound for the Wayne team, but gave up the hurling duties in the sixth inning to Morgan. The score was 7 to 2. Morgan finished the game but four more runs came in for Oakland.

Marriage Licenses Are On Increase

Marriage licenses issued at county court house during the month of June, 1933, were more than double the number applied for in the corresponding month of last year, Judge J. M. Cherry issued twelve the month just past, and five during June, 1932. Correspondingly, licenses issued the first half of this year from January 1 to July 1, totaled 41, and for the same period of last year, 35.

ECONOMY EXPERT URGES PATIENCE ON PART OF HELP

ROGER W. Babson, economy expert, is always optimistic and encouraging, though he now issues warning against indiscretions that might hinder the swing back to prosperity. He cautions employees not to hasten demand for increased wages while their employers have been losing money for a number of years, and while many others are still idle. He expresses sympathy with the move to wipe out sweat-shop conditions in some industries, but he is not in favor of sudden wage boosts that are out of accord with earning power or in conflict with general price levels. He adds that in due time wages will be higher than have ever before been seen in this country. In the meantime, he urges patience. Babson advises employers to increase advertising appropriations and re-employ sales forces. He says business as estimated by his chart, stands twenty per cent above a year ago.

DAMAGE ACTION FILED IN COURT

Jesse Horrell Seeks Sum For Alleged Injuries Of Last Year.

Action seeking $10,000 damages was filed June 28 in Wayne county district court by Jesse Horrell, through his father, Frank Horrell, against Mrs. Anna R. Sturges.

The petition alleges that on August 11, 1932, Jesse Horrell, a minor, was starting across Main street in Wayne, south of the railroad tracks. It further alleges that plaintiff looked carefully both directions before crossing and that when he reached the center of the street he stopped still to allow a car coquing from the north and driven by defendant to pass. Plaintiff charges that defendant negligently struck him so that he was rendered unconscious, his skull fractured and one leg cut and bruised. Further the petition claims that plaintiff has been permanently disfigured and that he has been subject to headaches since the accident.

F. S. Berry and H. E. Siman are attorneys for the plaintiff.

A summer frolic will be held in the college gymnasium on this Saturday, July 8, with Bill Franklin and his orchestra providing the music.

DR. VAIL DIES HERE OF STROKE

Death Comes Suddenly Last Wednesday Morning To Wayne Optometrist.

Dr. William B. Vail, a Wayne resident for the past 28 years, died suddenly at his home at 313 Pearl street, Wednesday morning, at 6:30 o'clock, following an illness of four weeks. His condition became worse Tuesday afternoon and visitors were excluded from his room. Death came as result of an apoplectic stroke, brought on by high blood pressure. Dr. Vail was 74 years, eight months and two days old. He had been in the optical business here since coming to Wayne, and previous to that, operated a jewelry and optical business in Norfolk.

Deceased was born at Lone Tree, Iowa, on October 3, 1858, and was married to Miss Lenora Overacker just 46 years ago last Christmas day. Dr. Vail was a lover of fine horses and at one time owned racing horses.

Farmhouse Burns Near Wakefield

Flames Consume Dwelling On Henry Jensen Farm Before Aid Arrives.

Fire originating from an oil stove spread quickly over the newly-waxed floors of the Henry Jensen home six miles northeast of Wakefield last Saturday afternoon, and burned the house to the ground before the Wakefield fire department could arrive. The wash house adjoining the house burned also, but other buildings were saved by prompt work of the fire-fighters.

Mrs. Jensen and daughter, Hilda, were alone on the place, and so quickly did the flames spread along the fresh-waxed floors, that it was impossible to get to the phone. By the time help was summoned from a farmhouse one-half mile away, it was too late to save the house.

The two-story frame house was partly covered by insurance, and will be rebuilt soon. The Jensens are now living in temporary quarters on the farm.

Lands Guest Pianist.

After an interview with Miss Marjorie Kalayjian following her appearance here last Thursday as accompanist on the college lecture course program, Prof. C. C. Carlson pronounced her the most interesting and brilliant pianist appearing here in recent years. She has studied with Isidor Philipp in Paris for three years, and with Josef Sennelike in New York, for five years. These are considered two of the finest pianist-teachers of the present day, and their fees are about $25 per lesson.

Strologer Regrets Unscientific Attitude Of Wayne's Inhabitants

There is at least one man in the world who believes that the people of Wayne are not interested in astrology. At least they are not interested in astrology as it is used as the basis for the determination of opinion. And that man is C. C. Pfuhl, "International Astrologer," author of "Astro-Psychology" and "The Creation and Character of the Reincarnations," as handbills proclaim.

The professor lives in Omaha and travels through this section of country in five-year cycles. He has been coming to Wayne at these intervals for the past twenty years, during which time he has watched everything within the city change except his desire on the part of the people to have their futures outlined to them as destined by the stars of their horoscope. This is exactly what he said: "Yes, Wayne is a nice, beautiful, nice homes, nice streets, nice people but they are not interested in scientific things. They aren't interested in astrology. There's a tinge of regret, a sense of disappointment, a little sadness in the professor's voice as he walks away waving his arms in a hand gesture, repeating his conviction that Wayne isn't interested in astrology.

is being read, places in these deductions, that is if one is measuring what may happen against the sum of money he spent to find out. Whether the horoscope turns out as deduced is only determined by the passing of time.

Professor Pfuhl bases his readings on the relation of the skull to the stars. He says that he can tell what profession or vocation a person should take up, what state he should live in for success and health, what type of person he should marry and what type he should not, and about anything else that affects "mundane affairs."

Astrology is founded on the configuration, or structural arrangement of the heavens at any given moment and depends on the seven planets, Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Sun, Venus, Mercury and Moon, their aspects or the angles between them and so on. The layman becomes confused by the long, scientific words that explain astrology and perhaps in the very quiddance of the art lies its appeal to the human response to the mysterious. Whatever the appeal lies in, one is always impressed with the sincerity of the astrologer in the correctness of his science of arranging lives to fit the horoscope. One is impressed with Prof. Pfuhl's sincerity.

Until 1845 astrology found cohorts of believers and numbers of exponents who gave their lives to its study. They drew their figures of the heavens, called casting horoscopes, on the nativity or birth of the person subjected to the reading. But astronomers discovered two new planets, Uranus and Neptune, and astrologers faced a grave decision. They either had to deny the influence of these newly discovered planets on their intricate systems of deduction or else proclaim that they had found new influences to fit their systems. They did the latter and astrology immediately tolled a death bell. New planets may be discovered anytime and they would serve to confuse the "distribution of the mansions" originally set up by the astrologer. This shakes confidence. When it comes to predicting just what life holds for a man or woman and what he or she should do to bring life to its fullest climax, the world at large must be convinced that such predictions are based on truth and fact and must not change despite whatever science unearths in the future. So astrology is not accorded the serious place that it was a century ago and Prof. Pfuhl will find Wayne as indifferent to his science in 1938 as it is in 1913.

He'll go on his way and he'll continue to study his heavens and his clients for their relationships and believe that in his system he has found the metronome by which men may time their actions. He apparently has spent years in research and study now. He has written books that have never been published because he wanted the sole right to knowledge they contain, as a modern world of science and industry make life increasingly easier and as medical science eliminates some of the diseases and pestilences of the world and increases chances to live over the allotted three-score-ten, people are going to be increasingly hard to "sell" on the idea of astrology. One can't help but admire the persistence of a man like Prof. Pfuhl, who wages an uneven battle with heavy odds against him. After all, 20 years is a long time to come to one town in five-year intervals and always find the same attitude. Not many salaried men work with an account 20 years without opening their eyes. No wonder Prof. Pfuhl is disappointed with Wayne insofar as his astrology readings are concerned.

The pastor and five of our young people spent a very pleasant and profitable week at the Bellevue conference. The conference is not just a good time, but the young people in attendance give a goodly portion of their time to study. From year to year there are those who come and think only of a good time. These lower the tone and spirit of the conference. This year this class seemed to be absent. We think it is safe to say that this was the best conference that has been held for a number of years. On account of the present conditions we did not expect as large number as last year and were surprised to have a larger delegation. This work is growing in the state.

In the absence of the pastor last Sunday morning, Prof. Harold D. Griffin delivered a patriotic sermon, and Mrs. Leslie Ellis sang a vocal solo. Both the message and song were highly appreciated.

Wind Does Damage South Of Albion.
Albion, Neb., July 5—A storm, accompanied by a terrific wind which struck with sudden intensity early Friday evening, did considerable damage to farm buildings about seven miles south of Albion.

A brooder house belonging to Mrs. Leo Southworth was overturned and 100 little chickens were killed. On the Marvin Streeter farm hay stacks were blown down. Windmill towers were twisted on several places. The eaves on the Plum Center schoolhouse were blown away. At the Cunningham farm west of Plum Center a grainary containing oats was moved several feet off the foundation. A garage and cattle shed on the Fluxus farm were badly damaged.

Hail followed in the wake of this would-be tornado and damaged the corn seriously for a wide strip about two and one-half miles long. Rain varying from a light sprinkle to an inch fell.

A dust storm of unusual proportions swept this vicinity Saturday evening. The thermometer dropped thirty degrees but no rain nor hail fell.

Message To School People Of Nation

William John Cooper, U. S. Commissioner of Education, through School Life, official journal of the Federal Office of Education, conveys a message of commendation to America's school teachers and school administrators. "As we come to the end of another school year, I commend the school people of the United States for their service and sacrifice in helping to keep open our institutions of learning, and in helping to maintain our nation's high standards of education reached only by hard work over long periods of time. Each school year will call for continued sacrifice, but I know that our teachers and school administrators will carry on courageously, as they have in the past."

Doctor Cooper retires tomorrow as United States Commissioner of Education so that this is his farewell message to school people. He has accepted a position as professor of education at George Washington University, Washington, D. C. His successor as Federal Commissioner of Education will be Dr. George F. Zook, formerly President of the University of Akron.

"I wish that all those who clamor for tax reduction could have opportunity to see what the nations of Europe went through during the last four years of war," continued Commissioner Cooper, "and how well they stood for taxation for schools. I would that they might look back to our own previous depressions and see what communities have stood rather than let their children go without current schooling. I know at those times the average standard of living was not so high. People were not accustomed to certain comforts and luxuries which they now enjoy. Therefore, today it seems harder to make sacrifices for schools."

"But let me call to your attention the fact that as a civilization increases in complexity, schooling is more necessary than ever before. For people who lived in an agricultural stage when roads were poor and towns were small and far apart, less schooling was necessary. Literacy was the main requirement. People were born practically under the same conditions and in the same conditions in which their parents were born, and would like most of their lives in those conditions."

"Today we live in a complex civilization which it is necessary to understand in order to be adjusted to it. Schools are the means by which we accomplish this period of adjustment."

Trade Advantages Of City Recounted In Herald Program
The social, educational and recreational advantages of Wayne are well known, as are also its business advantages," said Mrs. Allis Pollard, who was guest speaker at the Wayne community broadcast from the Herald studio this morning.

"However in this community broadcast, sponsored by business and professional men of Wayne, it seems fitting to emphasize the assets of Wayne as a trade center."

"Wayne is large enough so that it is possible for the merchants to maintain excellent and complete stocks, yet it is not so large that the dealers do not have a real interest in and acquaintance with the people they serve."

"The Wayne territory is the home of a high type of American citizen who asks for nothing more than a square deal. This farming community realizes too well that it is an economic impossibility to sell its products for less than the cost of production. The people are intelligent and discriminating but eminently fair. They demand real, honest values, worthwhile merchandise, and a newspaper of wide interests on which they can rely."

"Wayne business men maintain the lowest possible prices on merchandise or service, without sacrifice of the most valuable asset a business man can have,—the confidence and good will of his customers."

"Wayne business men have not stocked their shelves with inferior merchandise as a means of meeting depression problems. Neither have they resorted to misleading claims and lurid adjectives in advertising."

"An honest dealer does not try to 'gild the lily' but writes simple and accurate descriptions of the merchandise he offers for sale. He stands solidly behind all his claims. He knows that it is not only good ethics but good business, good psychology and good salesmanship to write advertising copy which will serve as a reliable guide to the purchaser."

Casualties Fewer This Fourth of July

America paid a greater price in loss of lives in its annual celebration of its independence than it did in the initial skirmishes of the Revolutionary war. It was revealed by a survey which showed, however, a sharp decrease in fireworks fatalities.

A total of at least 185 men, women and children perished during the holiday, compared with the total loss of seven men at Lexington and ninety-three at Concord back in April of 1775, when the forces of the original colonies clashed with those of King George III.

Hundreds Are Hurt
In addition there were hundreds of cases of injured. New York City alone reported 677 treated at hospitals for fireworks injuries, but only a few of the victims were seriously hurt. Twenty-one were injured in Minneapolis.

Fireworks fatalities, however, totaled but seven compared with ten in 1932. Motor car mishaps contributed heavily to the total, as usual, with eighty-two. Fifty-eight perished by drowning. Thirty-eight others lost their lives in other accidents. Airplane accidents, shooting and fights helped to swell the total. A parachute jumper fell to his death at Chicago's Century of Progress exposition.

Total 58 Under 1932
Not only were the fireworks deaths less than last year but the total fatalities from all causes were fifty-eight under the 1932 figures and 288 under those of 1931, when the largest number died, in recent years. The 1932 figures, however, were naturally large because of a three-day holiday.

Lean Meat An Ideal Reducing Diet.
Omaha Journal-Stockman: Probably 90 percent of the folks who go on a diet do so for the purpose of reducing weight. This is particularly true of women. No woman wants to be called fat and she will go to almost any length to get rid of excess flesh. Many foolish nostrums are taken and many silly diets tried but Miss Anna E. Boller, dietitian of Rush Medical college, says weight reducing is a comparatively simple matter requiring will power and intelligence.

"A weight reducing diet should be a normal diet," declares Miss Boller, "with the energy requirements limited. It should contain protein of good quality and in adequate amounts; minerals, vitamins, a reduced amount of carbohydrates and fat, and foods which provide bulk. Serious results have followed severe limitations of protein, the element which is especially needed to build and repair tissues and keep the body in proper balance."

Late research has shown the high value of lean meats in weight reduction diets, insisted Miss Boller, or who cited 25 reducing cases now under her observation in which the meat intake is nearly one-half pound daily per person. In addition, the diet includes fruit, vegetables, milk, eggs, bread and butter.

These patients on the above diet have lost nearly two pounds weekly as an average for fourteen weeks. The maximum weight loss of 3 1/4 pounds per week is credited to a woman 45 years of age whose diet contains the maximum amount of meat.

"All of these women have suffered no ill effects from this reducing diet," said Miss Boller, "they have kept in excellent health and have found the diet satisfying."

And that is undoubtedly good news to a lot of estimable women who have a normal appetite for good meat. Balance the ration properly but be sure to include in it plenty of good, fresh beef, pork and mutton at all times. That should make reduction easy.

Philosophy Misapplied.
Lincoln Journal: A woman, commenting on the recent suicide of a brilliant young man, a student of philosophy, expressed surprise. To her way of thinking, anyone who had become so thoroughly immersed in the study as to have been awarded particular honors in the subject should be immune to the idea of self destruction. "Presumably," she said, "he had surveyed the accumulation of the best thought of the ages. Yet he didn't have enough philosophy of his own to help him stand up against whatever it was that drove him to take his own life. Or else he had a particular futile philosophy. All the wealth of facts and book lore he had absorbed had no apparent relation to the everyday business of living. It makes one wonder just what philosophy is, and how one learns it. If a philosopher knows anything, he knows that whatever may happen to him has happened to millions before him, often in worse form, and that most of them have borne it and carried on. The mortification of taking his own life is more futile than the existence from which it frees him."

Her last statement, of course, begs the question. As to the effect the intensive study of any vital subject may have on any one person, that is practically incalculable. If it were calculable, education might take on a different aspect.

A survey of the ages and a study of what the philosophers of successive periods believed concerning human existence does not have the same effect on everybody. For one person it might bring a sense of solidarity and companionship in human suffering that would tend to minimize his own personal

Wayne Merchants Stress Low Prices

Probably at no time in the memory of this generation have people been faced with conditions similar to those now confronting them. In spite of the fact that no new crop has been marketed in the middle west, with inflationary measures sending prices soaring, Wayne merchants are offering attractive values each week in the columns of the Wayne Herald on the basis of pre-inflation levels. All of the merchandise offered is something that is in general need and can be bought in large quantities for future use. Shop through the Wayne Herald ads. Pick the articles you want and come into Wayne and supply your needs at prices that are real money savers: The thrifty will invest to the full capacity of their needs and ability to buy.

Young Man Drowns.
Ewing, Neb., July 3—Frank Savage was drowned in a gravel pit on the farm of S. R. Killham about twelve miles southwest of Ewing at 6 o'clock Saturday evening. He was a truck driver for the Carson-Tonsen Sand company of Columbus.

He and a companion, Ed Carter, went into the water to swim after an extremely hot day. It is thought that he was chilled and died of heart trouble. A call for help was sent to Ewing, but the body was not recovered until 12:30 that night.

Mr. Savage was about 27 years of age and leaves a widow and baby about 20 months old.

The body was taken to the Snider undertaking parlors at Clearwater and was later taken to the home at Columbus.

The water was about fourteen feet deep and very cold. A cold creek fed by springs flowed into the gravel pit.

The men had been employed to haul gravel to highway No. 13.

In the Wayne community broadcast last Thursday morning, Frederick Berry speaking on "Civic Life and the College," began by saying that "We are well agreed among ourselves that as a small town Wayne is outstanding. Aside from having more than its quota of fine homes for a place of moderate size, Wayne offers unusual educational and spiritual advantages. This educational and spiritual background is potent in the organization of the town.

"The material advantages that result for a town from having a college within its limits need no elaboration. One could speak at length of the musical talent that the college has brought to Wayne. Not many towns the size of Wayne can boast of having heard upon their own lecture platforms men of the intellectual calibre of Lewis Browne and Will Durant. To one who has occasion to use many books, the value of a library such as the college possesses is most obvious. These are what make Wayne not the usual small town.

"Wayne can take a just pride in its college and can well feel grateful for the advantages that it has made possible.

Josephine Lucchese Is Heard Thursday

Josephine Lucchese, coloratura soprano, appeared in return program at the Wayne State Teachers college last Thursday evening. This time with a light, popular program well adapted to summer. Garbed in a long white frock with black ostrich feather accents, the singer made a particularly attractive picture, and her voice was very lovely in "Caro Nome from 'Rigoletto'."

Miriam Kalayjian, the accompanist, was well received in her group of piano solos, and played "Fireflies" by Philip as an encore. Her other numbers were "Waltz in B. Major," "Chopin," "Nocturne," "Scherzo" and "Capriccio in F. Minor," "Lohmann."

Kurtis Brownell, husband of the pianist, who is a tenor with the New York Opera Company, sang a group of songs which were most enthusiastically received and practically "stole" the program. He sang "M'Ami" from "Martha," "Flotow," "The Nine Penny Fiddle," "Irish Song," and "Border Ballad," "Scottish air," with "Sylvia" by Speaks and "O! Pain!" cowboy song as encores. He introduced his numbers with interesting comments on the songs, and proved most versatile in handling of dialects and the Italian.

Miss Laura Lyons Writes From West

Miss Laura E. Lyons of Long Beach, Calif., writes June 21 to Herald readers as follows: "Please accept congratulations on your new venture in radio land. Wish I could hear some of your excellent programs. I certainly enjoy the philosophical comments of Bill Holmes after interviewing the 'backbone' of our citizenry as he travels along the way in good old Wayne county.

"Sorry to read the devastating storms, then terrific heat in the middle west. We've had exceptionally cool summer.

"I have been nursing an old lady since April 7.

"Bert Brown is improving in health.

"Mrs. Alice D. Ley of Encinitas, has recovered from her injury when some ribs were broken.

"Miss Myrtle Leary of Winfield, is one of the thousand graduates from the University of Southern California in Los Angeles. She secures her master's degree in education. Miss Leary makes her home with Mrs. E. Cullen.

"I still have slight tremors but it is surprising how much reconstruction has been done since the earthquake of March 10. Many of the churches are in use. Several have to be entirely rebuilt. First Methodist church is having its homecoming Sunday as the interior is repaired. It is entirely surrounded by scaffolding and each stone has to be removed. Each big block is four inches thick and the building covers quarter of a block.

A Pasadena firm bought these and is taking the blocks there for building.

"Many stores, banks, apartment houses and homes are still under reconstruction. Central fire station was demolished and apparatus is under a tent, only two blocks from our home, June 2 when that terrific explosion occurred in Signal Hill oil field in the Richfield evaporating plant. I happened to be a block from the city hall, three miles from the explosion, but the blast shattered glass in a cafe and the glass scattered on my head. At the oil fields I could see flames leap instantly to the sky and such black smoke. Nine were killed and 40 injured. Several homes were ruined and over a million dollars in damage done. The blast was heard and felt for 35 miles.

"National American Legion Commander Louis A. Johnson of Clarksburg, W. Va., in speaking here, stressed these words: 'The American Leg is going right down the middle of the broad highway that is America, with two guideposts, those fixed by the preamble of the constitution of the Legion, God on the one hand and country on the other.' Then he went on to defy communism and pledged a fight against graft and extravagance in some places. Here hundreds have been turned out of soldiers' homes without visible means of support.

"The landmark of this city, Virginia hotel, was razed and the ground is being used for parking space. Work is soon to begin on removal of most of the old pier. A portion of the outer end will still be used as a landing as connection is to be made with Rainbow pier."

The world disarmament conference adjourned at Geneva, Switzerland, planning to resume October 10. Rudolph Naddöly of Germany, said the recess amounted to a first-class funeral for disarmament.

Thomas Rawlings Found A Thriving Prairie Town At Wakefield In 1883

Fifty years is a long span to remain in one locality, to participate in the social and business and religious life of one community, and to watch folks grow up from swaddling clothes, through the toddling and school-day ages, to responsible places in town affairs—but it was just 50 years ago, in that pioneering year of 1883, that a slim young Kentuckian landed in Wakefield and entered upon his half-century's residence. Thomas Rawlings had been herding cattle on the lone some Colorado plains for three years, and no doubt he welcomed this prairie city as embodying all the comforts of civilization, after "roughing it" so long.

With his brother, H. H. Rawlings, he purchased a hardware store in Wakefield, and remained in business for 27 years, selling out to Fred Jolinke who in turn sold to Utecht brothers. In 1884, the Rawlings brothers had built a new store building, the one now occupied by George Anderson's store, and the original floor has never been replaced despite 50 years' wear.

No doubt the Main street of 1883 would appear a mere upstart in comparison to the business section of today's Wakefield. The Commercial hotel stood on the ground now occupied by Patterson's and Harmon's barber shop. Boyd Leonard, father of Mrs. E. S. Keirjian, put out the weekly paper on the corner where Dr. L. J. Killian now has offices.

Fences were rare indeed, and a trip to Wayne meant cutting across country with little regard for sections or roadways. Near the W. A. K. Neely farm on the highway, was a prairie dog town and this was a favorite place for young folks to visit while "sparking" behind old Dobbin or Bessie.

A one-room school stood where the Presbyterian church was later built, and this later gave way to a building at corner just west of the high school. The large red brick building now in use for younger children, was built about 1889, and the handsome new high school was completed just two years ago.

The first church in town, Mr. Rawlings recalls, was the Methodist, then the Salem Lutheran came in 1883. Next year, the Christian church was organized and Mr. Rawlings was one of the charter members, the only one now living in Wakefield.

On Sundays back in those early days, Wayne folks used to dress up their horses and jog over to Wakefield to enjoy the lawns and flowers for her garden spots. Each year, the Commercial club gave prizes for the most attractive landscaping and competition ran high among the townspeople.

Just 27 years ago, Wakefield voted dry and has remained so since that time, at least legally. The effect of prohibition in a day when anti-saloon leagues were just beginning to be headed and open saloons were considered necessary to a town's business advancement, was just the opposite of what pessimistic folks predicted. For Wakefield boomed and stepped into a prominent place among northwestern Nebraska towns.

Commenting on the anticipated break-down of prohibition, Mr. Rawlings stated that people are acting like swarms of bees today—too likely to follow the leader without thinking. But with liquor back again, conditions will be worse than during the days of the open saloon, he believes.

Graves Come Early. Back in 1867 or 1868, the elder Graves came to Dixon county and took over thousands of acres of land, including that now covered by Wakefield. This was platted out, divided with the railroad, and Philo Graves, the son, presented the walnut park known as Graves park to the city, and built the town library.

And now let's skip down through the years to those lively nineties, about 1893, and delve into the business and community life of those days. The thriving little town stood on an elevation overlooking the famous Logan valley, one of the richest in the world. The famous Valley of the Nile cannot surpass the splendid cornfields of this locality, the hills of Judea never fed such fine herds of cattle nor any country surpasses it in the growth of swine." Thus did an enthusiastic writer of the day describe growing Wakefield.

Town Is Started. The town saw birth in 1881, and numbered about 1,000 inhabitants in the year 1893. The post office came the first year, and was named for the engineer who surveyed the road. C. E. Hunter was appointed postmaster in 1889 and served for several years. The school board was made up of names vitally concerned with the town's early history—H. H. Rawlings served as moderator, John T. Marriott was director, and J. S. Cramer served as treasurer. About 200 young folks leaned the three R's under pressure brought about by E. C. Grubbs, principal; Miss Millie Bowen, Miss A. Kate Collins and Miss Stella Rhodes. The postmaster headed the town board, serving with O. E. Martin, the clerk, O. J. Ellis, treasurer, and J. D. Haskell, A. M. Johnson, William Park and H. P. Shurway as directors. This was the year that Wakefield's new waterworks came into being, and a very pretentious system costing $7,000 was the pride of the city fathers. Even then, there were seven secret societies functioning and contributing to a rapidly stimulated social life. A. M. Johnson headed the Logan Valley fair which assembled annual exhibits of farm products and brought large crowds to Wakefield each fall.

You old-timers, can you remember Main street of that day? And can you recall those genial, friendly folks who engaged in business up and down its length; many of whom are now dead, or have long since left Nebraska?

In a day when the harness shop occupied that same important position of prominence now held by the garage and filling station, B. C. Whitaker operated the Pioneer Harness shop coming here from Wisconsin seven years before. His son, Harry, worked with him in the new shop on Main street, amid that pungent, nose-tickling odor of new leather, which distinguishes the harness shop the world over.

H. P. Shurway and Fremont Everett operated the lumber, coal and implement store, and did a lively business. Mr. Everett lived at Lyons, but the other member of the firm was firmly established in Wakefield, having come here in 1882 just after graduating from the University of Minnesota, and farming a modest farm of 1,000 acres near the town. He served as state senator in 1890, and won many state honors in addition. Mr. Shurway is dead.

J. T. Marriott Comes. John T. Marriott was known as a broker back in '93, although his business was concerned with buying and selling real estate, and handling property for absentee owners, insurance and grain-buying. O. E. Martin, now living in Sioux City, was lawyer and real estate operator, following the pioneer day custom of having more than one business interest. Two years he served as county judge of Dixon. Barter was evidently the rule then as in the past two years, for Mr. Martin solicited live stock in exchange for real estate!

E. D. Cook ran the livery stable one block south of the depot, featuring "six elegant turnouts and as fine teams as are to be found anywhere." 'Twas here the "young blades" came for rigs when they went a-courting.

J. O. Peterson was one of the few residents of today who was active in business about '93, taking over J. W. Duncan's harness shop in 1892. J. M. Tressler was both a veterinarian and merchant, operating the "Bargain Store" and answering calls for veterinary service besides. James Madsen dealt in thoroughbred horses, owning several fine pacing and running horses. The hotel and restaurant was operated by J. P. Slinger, and offered accommodations at $1 per day.

T. M. Belknap had hung out his shingle as lawyer. Dr. E. T. Harman, the father of O. W. Harman, had been attending to the ills of Wakefieldites for some five years. The Farmers and Traders bank was headed by John D. Haskell, with D. Mathewson as cashier.

C. W. Long Came Early. C. W. Long dealt out drugs, books, wall paper and paint at the Corner Drug store, having pat in three years as clerk and five as proprietor. D. G. Metcalf sold lumber and building materials, and R. T. Knoeb operated the Logan Valley Stock Farm which was just one mile out of town, and specialized in fast horses. "Jessie Gains" fast-nut park known as Graves park to the city, and built the town library.

Markets Flooded By Stock Shipped. The current week brought relatively uneven and uncertain livestock markets, with some suggestions of returning stability in trade following the extremely dull markets of the preceding week, but with trade continuing slow and weak. By far too much stock was poured into markets in all sections of the country, leading to heavy slaughter and continued heavy holdings of meats. There was a degree of improvement in the fresh meat trade as the week opened, with stocks slightly reduced from a week earlier. However, continued liberal slaughter the current week, and the return of extremely hot weather over the nation led to a weak and uncertain market in the division after mid-week. Cured hog products and lard were in relatively better position than fresh meats, gaining a degree of strength from the wildly fluctuating grain markets that reached the best levels of the year.

An unusually heavy proportion of stock marketed at Sioux City, and other western points was made up of thin, unfinished and grassy stock. This was noted in the hog as well as in the cattle division.

There were widespread reports that cattle and hogs were being marketed out of dry lots because of the advancing corn market, and that much stock on feed in pastures was forced to market because of hot and dry weather and dried but pastures and wells.

The hog market is quoted steady to but a shade lower than a week ago, with the better grades showing the declines. Sows came to market in increased numbers, and met good demands largely at unchanged prices. Under weights dropped out of favor and sold under low prices. The best fed cattle held steady, with the Sioux City lot a $6.40, but other grades, including butcher cows and heifers, and especially light yearlings, are July 25c lower, and lowest of the spring and summer seasons.

Demands for stock, cattle improved moderately after the collapse of last week, and prices in this department, while still relatively low, are quoted around 25c higher for the week. Country demands improved, due to bargain values, with most orders coming from eastern points.

Cut Interest Rate On Loans On Land

Farmers of this county will be interested in the statement received by E. Telander, secretary-treasurer of the Wakefield National Farm Loan Association from D. P. Hogan, president of the Federal Land Bank of Omaha, telling of the provisions of the new emergency farm mortgage act.

For a period of 5 years beginning July 12 the interest rate on Federal Land Bank borrowings on their loans will be reduced to 4-1/2 per cent. This reduction will be made automatically. The rate of interest on outstanding loans now varies from 5 to 6 per cent, the average being about 5-1/2 per cent.

Borrowers through national farm loan associations, during the next two years will be required to pay not to exceed 4-1/2 per cent interest. This rate will continue until July, 1938, and is considerably lower than that which prevails throughout this district.

Loans which are not made through national farm loan associations but directly by the bank will bear one-half of one per cent higher rate of interest. If and when such borrowers join an association when formed in their community and if their loans are in good standing, their rate will be reduced one-half of one per cent. All borrowers have to purchase stock either in an association or the bank in an amount equal to 5 per cent of their loans.

Borrowers whose loans are in good standing will not be required to make payments on the principal of their loans during the period ending July 12, 1938 if they are not in default in the payment of interest, insurance, taxes, irrigation, drainage and levee assessments.

During the next two years the banks may issue their bonds in an aggregate not exceeding $2,000,000.00. These bonds may bear an interest rate not to exceed 4 per cent and this interest is to be guaranteed by the United States. They may be sold to the investing public to secure funds to loan, or they may be exchanged for first farm mortgages.

Mortgages accepted in exchange for bonds must have been in existence prior to May 12, 1933. The amount of the bonds exchanged must not exceed in each individual case the unpaid principal of the mortgage on the date of purchase or exchange or 50 per cent of the appraised value of the land mortgaged and 20 per cent of the value of the permanent insured improvements thereon, whichever is the smaller. The mortgaged farms will be appraised in the same manner as farms upon which loans are made by the banks through national farm loan associations. The farmer's mortgage is then owned by the bank and he will be entitled to repay it over a long series of years.

Holders of first mortgages wishing to make such exchanges should apply to the bank. All loans acquired by the bank, either through exchange for bonds or by purchase, will carry the reduced amount of interest and the privilege of paying interest only for the 5-year period.

The close of the day is equally important. Animals that are fat, or disturbed after they normally would be down for the night, will change their owner a plenty for the day. We do not advocate the 12 or 14-hour day on the farm. It is our opinion that the farmer who works well and manages well for 8 or 10 hours, 6 days in the week and 52 weeks in the year, will get ahead. The exceptions are when sun-to-sun amounts to as much as 14 hours, but even then it is rarely necessary to put in such long hours.
The great question, as we see it, is not the number of hours a farmer works, but when he starts his day and how much he gets done during a normal day. If Harry Lauder were giving voice to his Scotch instincts, he would sing, "Oh, it's nice to lie abed in the mornin', but it's a darned sight more profitable to get up!"

The best fishing was found on Lake Marian, at Klein's resort, about eight miles from Perham. This deep spriged lake is quite centrally located.

Get Up in the Mornin'.
Nebraska Farmer: The inimitable Scotch poet, Harry Lauder, sang: "Oh, it's nice to get up in the mornin', but it's nicer to lie in bed." Evidently some farmers believe with him, for only recently a milk distributor told us of farmers who would not milk their cows early enough that he could get the milk out to the customers while it was fresh.
We are not going to discuss the merits of that controversy. We take it only as a reason for something that we want to say about the farm day.
The farmer does not decide when his day shall begin. Nature made that decision with the beginning of time. Every living thing that is the servant of man begins to bestir itself with the break of dawn, except in cold or inclement weather. That, then, is when the day begins on the farm. In the beginning, and to this day, successful farmers have recognized this fundamental fact. The old-time farmer was so conscious of it that he overdid it - got up in the middle of the night, and got himself talked about and laughed at. Some modern farmers have gone to the other extreme.
It works out about like this, as we see it:
The work day on the farm should be adjusted to nature's laws. It is an old maxim that "Early to bed and early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise." On the farm it is all of that, and more. The farm work day cannot be properly organized and carried to adequate fruition unless the farmer starts his day in harmony with the forces that exercise so dominant an influence upon his labors. We venture the opinion that no farmer who habitually lies a-bed after sunrise can succeed.
If the farmer were operating as the factory man does, with machinery and indoors, he could regulate the day about to suit himself, but these are not the conditions under which he does, or can, work. He must have animals - cattle, horses, hogs, sheep, poultry - some of these or all of them. A cow that is kept waiting for her breakfast until 8 a. m. will not perform right at the pail; a horse that is not fed until 8 a. m. will not do the best day's work; a hen that is not started on her hay until long after sun-up will be an unprofitable bidder.

The close of the day is equally important. Animals that are fat, or disturbed after they normally would be down for the night, will change their owner a plenty for the day. We do not advocate the 12 or 14-hour day on the farm. It is our opinion that the farmer who works well and manages well for 8 or 10 hours, 6 days in the week and 52 weeks in the year, will get ahead. The exceptions are when sun-to-sun amounts to as much as 14 hours, but even then it is rarely necessary to put in such long hours.
The great question, as we see it, is not the number of hours a farmer works, but when he starts his day and how much he gets done during a normal day. Since three-fourths of the farm income in Nebraska comes from the sale of livestock and livestock products, the general adjustment of the state may be wondering how the proposed wheat adjustment plan will affect the state's largest industry, and also how soon the corn, hog plan will be organized and under operation.

The men interested in wheat who had charge of the recent regional conference at Kansas City told the Nebraska agricultural college group that the department of agriculture had gone the farthest with the cotton and wheat plans because the administration of these plans was much more simple than the corn and hog adjustment.

M. L. Wilson, in charge of the wheat plan, spent two days in conference with the agricultural college men from the nine winter wheat growing states. The following day Secretary Wallace spoke briefly at Kansas City in the morning and at Salina, Kansas in the afternoon. At Kansas City, Wallace did not deal to any extent with the wheat plan. He was interested primarily in the corn-hog plan.

Before coming to Kansas City Wallace had spent a day in Iowa with the corn and hog farmers. At Kansas City he asked the live stock men to organize their forces and to give him the best ideas they can muster regarding the adjustment of corn and hog production. The sooner the live stock men of the middle west work out a plan which is practical, the sooner the adjustment of corn and hog production will go into effect.

The wheat adjustment program states definitely that the land taken out of wheat must not be fed to any of the common crops now having a surplus. This means an increase of summer fallow, of pasture, and of forage crops. Live stock men are concerned with the probable effect of this program on the cattle industry, both beef and dairy. Adjustment of dairy production is included in the farm act. The act also provides that whenever the secretary is convinced that adjustment programs pertaining to wheat, corn, hogs or any other basic commodities affects the beef, cattle, or poultry industry, for example, he may employ his powers to adjust the production of the affected industries. In other words, the beef, cattle and poultry industries may come under the provisions of the farm act, should that be necessary.
