mount issue. Branding the war guilt on Germany is a wrong that could not give world peace. The right to demand revision of the treaty is founded in the treaty itself. Germany desired nothing but the findings of logical, critical reasoning.

Hitler gives these viewpoints which dominated the last viewpoint revolution: "Prevention of threatening communistic upheaval and construction of a people's state which is founded on the conception of property as the basis of culture; putting an army of millions of pitiful unemployed into production of useful work; and reestablishing stable authority and state leadership which, borne by confidence and the will of the nation, makes this great people capable of concluding treaties with the world."

Then the chancellor insisted upon disarmament "because it is a demand recognized in the peace treaties themselves." Hitler adds that "Germany would be ready to dissolve its whole military establishment and destroy the scanty remnant of its army, if neighboring nations would do the same. Germany must insist on its claim to equality."

Mr. Hitler agrees with Mussolini on the Italian plan "to secure a working relationship between the four European major powers, England, France, Italy and Germany, through a special pact." And the German government is indebted to President Roosevelt for his proposal "to put the economic condition of the world first in order before the disarmament question is settled."

The German government offers a constructive economic program for restoration of Germany, according to Dr. Hans Luthner, whom Rev. Teckhaus quoted. Essential means of national and international cooperation, Dr. Luthner states, are: Mutual understanding, mental attitude of interdependence, study of foreign and political economics.

The cornerstone principle of the Reich is "general interest above private interest," and the fact that May 1 was celebrated in Germany as a national holiday with all classes cheering the new chancellor shows a new union. In the future every young student, workman, official will have to learn to work with shovels and plow. The creation of extensive rural settlements is a program of job creation. A new agrarian statute allows the farmer to enjoy special protection against foreclosures. Almost one-third of the German workmen are women and new ways and means for the economic activity of women are sought. The married woman whose husband has work shall vacate her position for a man without work. The government has offered $300 to any woman who will voluntarily withdraw from her position and set up a home. This will stimulate industry through orders for household articles and the like and also open positions. Another aim of the government is lowering rates of interest and limitation of working time of groups. Large sums have been appropriated for public works as street constructions and house repairs to give employment. Every third German workman is out of work and many have been out for five years.

The German government asserts, Rev. Teckhaus stated in regard to the Jewish problem, that "no good and loyal law-abiding Jewish citizen was molested." Dr. P. J. Goebels, German minister of propaganda, says "no one in Germany combats the Jew because he is a Jew." Germany defends herself exclusively against the bolshevik element and in this defense we cannot discriminate whether a bolshevik is a German or a Jew.

"In Germany the Jewish situation appears to be quite different from that in other countries for the German Jews have not become assimilated as they have in other nations. Germany is the transition station from eastern western Judaism and Germany consequently received eastern Judaism which is not ready to become absorbed in the nation that has afforded it hospitality."

"Of the whole German population one percent is of Jewish extraction and these people hold a large percentage of prominent positions. All Jews who have been loyal citizens were not molested at all and are still filling their positions."

Motor in East.
Miss Maude Curley and Miss Mary Lewis left Sunday for an extended motor trip through the West. They will visit the Chicago fair, Niagara falls, and will be guests of Miss Lewis' sister, Mrs. E. L. Frye and husband, in Indianapolis, Ind. Mrs. Frye was formerly Miss Phyllis Lewis of Wayne.

Picnic At Lake.
Mrs. B. P. McNulty and daughter, Virginia, of Omaha, who have been here visiting since Sunday last week in the Dr. C. A. McMaster home, and Mr. and Mrs. McMaster and son, Wayne Allen, Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Gormley and Ruth of Winston, and Miss LeVerna Larson spent Sunday at Crystal Lake. The McNultys plan to be here the rest of this week.

Pioneer Woman Has Dwelled In The Same House Here For Past 47 Years

For an unbroken 47 years, Mrs. J. S. Lewis has been living in the same city, on the same street, in the same house, and has rounded out a busy career as wife, mother and homemaker. Few indeed are there who can attest to such a record, who have called one Wayne residence home since pioneering days. Probably Mrs. Mary Brittain is the only one to better this record, having come here a few months earlier from LaPorte.

And those were pioneering days when Mrs. Lewis accompanied her husband to the prairie town. One can well imagine that the young wife spent many a lonesome moment, accustomed herself to life in a crude, gangling town, separated from her family and the life she had known by miles of bleak, treeless prairie... but whatever misgivings she may have felt were evidently conquered, for she "stuck it out" with true pioneering fortitude, and watched her family of eight children grow to manhood and womanhood along with a growing and prosperous Wayne.

Quite a different Wayne greeted the Lewises back on October 1, 1884, when they first beheld Main street. Their first home stood on site of the Gem cafe, and for diversion of an evening, they would take a "long" walk way up to where the Mrs. A. R. Davis house now stands, this being where the sidewalk ended. When they moved to the house which has been in possession of the family almost half a century, only a few scattered houses broke the sickening vacuity of that section, and the church house block was innocent of any building whatever. Only a few small trees here and there, mostly boxelders which had been planted by the early settlers because they were supposed to grow fast.

"How we used to long for a tree big enough to sit in its shade," remarks Mrs. Lewis. Only shades of spindly trees which promised shade in one's old age, and for one's children, but had little to offer the first-comers.

"There have been many changes in Wayne since 1884," says Mrs. Lewis, "but they have been so gradual that one accepts them naturally." And for a good part of those 47 years she was so occupied with her family that this constituted her entire life. Eight children all living, call the white cottage on Lincoln street home. The first three daughters to marry, Mrs. L. L. Raymond of Scottsbluff, Mrs. M. A. Taylor of Columbus, and Mrs. A. A. Miller of West Point, all added like initials to their names, so a family custom was broken when Phyllis Lewis became Mrs. E. M. Frye of Indianapolis. The other children are Miss Alice Lewis, teacher at Goring, Miss Mary Lewis who teaches at Plainview, A. H. Lewis, farmer near Newman Grove, and John Lewis of Minneapolis.

Do Jewelry Modes Change? Yes, Say Two Local Dealers
Jewelry is threatening to go back on a (yellow) gold standard... modern brides are choosing their flatware in sets of eight, instead of six (credit it to the bridge table)... clocks are becoming electrical-minded, and motivated men are forsaking the watch-and-chain for watch-on-strap. Such is the conglomerate opinion of Wayne jewelers. And these men who dwell upon Main street six working days a week, are well qualified to diagnose the present trend in jewelry and related lines.

"There's a definite trend towards the better, more permanent jewelry," says L. A. Fanske. "Silver patterns are appearing in plainer patterns—the elaborate patterns seem to be out of favor. And flatware, as well as dishes, come in sets of eight because this number fills out a dinner table and will care for two tables of bridge players." Mr. Fanske remarks a growing interest in yellow gold for mountings and solid pieces, but states that white gold is more preferable with diamond settings.

The trend towards white gold started in about 1920, says Paul Mines, and white gold metal has been much improved since that time till now it is very satisfactory. He notes that practically all demand for men's watches is in the strap watch line—very few pocket watches are sold, and the old-time "hunting case" type with lid is passe. Perhaps this does not reflect the men folks' preferences for practically all are bought as gifts for husbands, brothers and sweethearts. Tambour clocks are replacing the once-popular square types, and the electrically-operated clock has had a most revolutionary effect on the clock field. Naturally the electric clock has not proven usable in country districts about Wayne, Mr. Mines notes, because of lack of wiring, but it has enjoyed a marked popularity with Wayneites.

Student Is Married.
Miss Essie Bacon of Randolph, graduate of Wayne Teachers college, and Mr. Roscoe Friberg of Beresford, S. D., were married at noon July 10 at the C. C. Bacon home, Rev. A. R. Hyatt of Hartington performing the ceremony. The couple went to Chicago and will make their home in Beresford, where Mr. Friberg practices law. Mrs. Friberg has been teaching since completing her schooling. Miss Mildred Bacon of New York City, and Rinaldo Bacon of Lincoln, were among those present from out of town.

Move to Beemer.
Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Dinges and the former's nephew, Marvin Cooper, moved to Beemer Sunday morning to make their home. Mr. Dinges will be employed in the rendering works there. The family lived on West First street here.

To Grandmother's Rites.
Miss Maude Curley and Miss Mary Lewis were in Herman Friday attending funeral services for the former's grandmother, Mrs. Emily Lewis, who died in Lincoln the preceding Wednesday at age of 81. Miss Curley is principal of junior high school in Wayne public school.

Wants Textbooks To Be Standard

"Today as never before in history," says Gerald D. Hicks, one of Wayne county's rural teachers, "expenses are being cut to the limit. Naturally taxes must be reduced under present economic conditions. Even education will take its toll along with other things. However, Mr. Hicks continues, "we must be careful in doing this and try not to let an institution degenerate as a result of spending less money. Why not go down the waste which will automatically cut down expenses?"

"One of the greatest wastes," the writer continues, "in our present school system is in the matter of textbooks. We have no standard textbooks in Nebraska. With many publishing companies and new texts being printed all the time, how do we know which books are best and which to buy?"

"A teacher in a rural school a year or more possibly doesn't like some of the texts used so new ones are ordered. The same thing will happen a short time later. School boards, thinking a teacher should know what is needed, takes things as a matter of fact and seldom pays any attention to kinds of books ordered. This situation exists and I have seen as many as six sets of texts on the same subject in one school while there may be none of something else that is needed."

"Much money is invested in books. What is the sense?" Mr. Hicks asks, "of buying a $50 to $100 set of books to be put in the school and never used? Someone may say, 'Well, why doesn't the teacher use them?' This can be easily answered by saying, 'It is not practical.' Material used in rural schools must be very carefully selected because the teachers are crowded for time. Many things can be made to look good for

Club Worker Tells of Trip For 4-H Week
Last fall when Walford Carlson, leader of the pig club, told me I was in line for a free trip to the 4-H club week program in Lincoln, I did not get too much interested for so often the other fellow gets the break," writes Arvid Davis of Wayne, winner of the trip, "but this time the luck was mine."

"I received a letter from L. I. Frisbie, who is in charge of the extension department, with a round-trip ticket to Lincoln, identification badge and list of necessary articles, a sheet, quilt, clothing for a week's needs, outfit for recreation periods and any other clothes we cared to take."

Arvid arrived at Lincoln on a Friday afternoon and met Mr. Frisbie and some of the boys. The group was taken for a sight seeing trip about the city to New Pioneer park, the state prison, reformatory, state hospital, state capitol and other places. In the evening they attended services at Grace Methodist church.

"When we returned to our quarters at the agricultural college," Arvid continues, "we were provided with cots for sleeping. It seemed as though that was the hardest bed I ever slept in but after that I was so sleepy each night that it felt like the softest of feather beds."

After registering Monday morning the club workers were shown pictures of how cheese is made, and another on batteries. Lunch was served at the college cafeteria, where most of the week's meals were served, and Arvid reports the food excellent. "They told us if we didn't get all we wanted the first time, to get a second helping, but as I have a good appetite I never risked having to go back." After lunch Dr. Gibbons talked on "How Would You Like to Live in India?" Ralph Coonhaver had charge of games afterward. Chancellor Bennett welcomed the 4-H members in the evening.

Classes started Tuesday morning, the Wayne youth writes. After a talk on poultry possibilities, Dana Billie spoke on football. Mr. Deters conducted a music class. C. A. Palmer, director of vocational education, talked on "Is Your Value All Cents?" The group had pictures taken at the fair grounds and then went to the state capitol in nine buses. They visited the rooms of the capitol and then went to the tower to view the city. They then went to First Plymouth church, some stands in which are from the home in which Martin Luther was born, and some wonderful bells, weighing from 50 to 5,000 pounds, were heard. There are 48 bells and four perfect scales. They also heard pieces played on the organ which has 4,600 pipes. The group then went to Antelope park to see rock gardens and animals. "As this was Decoration day and my nineteenth birthday, we had a busy day and I was about tired out so I didn't tell any of the fellows that night that it was my birthday for I didn't know what so many might do to me."

After rising at 6 the next morning, "when it seemed the middle of the night," boys were given physical examination for swimming. Coach Brown and L. C. Oberlies, Lincoln city commissioner, gave talks, and later the group was shown through the plant of the Nebraska Farmer. They were treated to ice cream and had pictures taken. "We went swimming in the university pool," As Karl Stefan would say, "We went swimming in the raw and had a heap of fun." Morrill hall with its mounted ed animals and the university stadium were visited, also a city fire department where a demonstration was given, showing how to rescue people from upper stories of a burning building. A banquet at the Chamber of Commerce followed and Samuel McKelvie was toastmaster. Frank Throop, vice president, gave the welcome and Norman Weitekamp, 4-H member, responded. Demonstrations of radio stars, vibration under human control and home-made musical instruments were interesting.

Chemistry, dairy and engineering buildings were visited Thursday, also the tractor mechanics and blacksmith shops. A banquet was given at the agricultural college that evening. The dean spoke and a minstrel show was given.

Friday was an especially big day. Arvid writes, as the boys went to Omaha by special train. They visited the Cudahy packing plant and saw butchering of sheep and cattle which was interesting. "The sheep are led in by a goat and in some manner they are drawn over a wheel and each man stands ready for his particular work. Before it seems possible the animal is killed, skinned and cut into pieces. After dinner at the exchange we went to the Missouri river to see work of preparing the river channel for navigation." The group visited a creamery to see the making of butter, ice cream and cheese.

"I was doubtful when I saw some of the cream as it was starting on its journey whether it would make very good butter, but following it through the different steps I know that it was very good for they let us taste it." Another interesting place visited was a large bakery where bread and pastries were in the making. The group visited Joselyn memorial. The building is worth $4,000,000 without the pictures which are valued at many thousands. The exterior is pink Georgia marble. To finish the day, the group was entertained at a banquet by the Omaha Chamber of Commerce. The president spoke and pictures on aviation were shown. The happy group returned to Lincoln in the evening.

"Saturday I got up at 4:30, bade good-bye to the fellows and left for home. I had had a wonderful time and it is a week that I shall always remember. We had lots of fun among ourselves besides enjoying all the entertainment planned for us. I am grateful to Walford Carlson and the Sioux City Stock Yards company for making it possible for me to have this trip."

Present Recital In Voice Class

Voico pupils of Miss Ardath Conn appeared in a recital in the college Y. W. C. A. parlors last Thursday afternoon, about 20 pupils being present. During the recital each student made written comments on the singing of others in the group. These comments were discussed later. The program follows:

An Old Adobe, Swertinger, LaVern Purtzer; My Lover Is a Fisherman, Strickland, Tillie Eckert; Pale Moon, Logan, Phyllis Auker; Calm as the Night, Bohm, Fauneil Beckenhauer; How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings, Liddle, Ralph Gray; Trees, Rasbach, Anne Beal; O I Heard You Singing, Cretie, Lois McDougal; For You Alone, Gheol, Phillip Ring; There Are Fairies at the Bottom of Our Garden, Lehman, Edna Boldt; I Look Into Your Garden, Wood, Arlington Prince; Titania from Mignon, Thomas and Elf Man, Samuels, Mildred Moses; Slumber Boat, Gaynor, Ruby Schuler; Travelin, Eaders, Jeanne Smith; The Joyful Flower, Campbell-Tipton, Joyce Kuhlert. Travelin is a new number and was given to Miss Conn by the composer in New York recently.

During the second half of this summer term, Miss Conn will offer a radio class. This will meet once weekly, and problems connected with good singing over the air will be discussed. From this group opportunities will be given members of this class, to sing over the Wayne Herald station. The Atwater Kent contest, which takes place this fall, will be open to all young singers between the ages of 18 and 25.

Girls Go To Camp.
Eight Wayne girl scouts have gone to Camp of the Hills, the scout headquarters in Sioux City, to spend 10 days' outing. The group went Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lundberg took their daughter, Ruth. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Liedtke took their daughter, Dorothy, and Betty Strahan. Mr. and Mrs. Willis Noakes took Evelyn to the camp, and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Whitmore took Laryella, Dorothy and Marjorie Hook were accompanied by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Hook, and Leone Coryell by Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Coryell. Several of the parents visited camp on Sunday when the girls presented a program.

Finger Is Injured In Accident Here

Just a Few Words.

F. O. Edgecombe in Geneva Signal. To multiply words in public speaking, or in writing for publication, is a mark of mental weakness or unwillingness to perform the labor of condensation. It is easier to say many words than to express the same thought more clearly, and therefore more efficiently, in much fewer words. The York Republican recalls a masterful editorial by Bruce Barton in which Mr. Barton used the famous story of Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun, who, when a reported complaint that he was being limited as to the amount of space he was allowed, referred the newsmen to the story of creation. Quoting the Republican: "You'll be surprised," he told the young man, "to learn that the whole story of creation is told in 800 words." "He recounts how Benjamin Franklin perfected his style by reading the words of masters of English and then setting them down in his own words. Thus he learned the power of simple, direct writing. "There are three great speeches which have reached panopies of perfection for the thoughts they contain and for the simple but beautiful mode of expression in which they are clothed. They are Jesus' Sermon on the Mount, Paul's address to the Athenians on Mars Hill, and Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg. Time will never dim these great utterances for they have revealed priceless thoughts with a matchless economy of well chosen words. "Many great prayers have been intoned by great divines on great occasions. Mr. Barton observes. But the prayer Jesus taught his followers has only sixty-eight words. Great themes have been nobly expressed in ponderous verse. But the finest poem ever written concerned the simple things of life and has only eighty-eight words. It is the Twenty-Third Psalm."

Wind Storm Does Much Damage

Section To Southeast Of Hoskins Devastated By Hail and Wind.

What is pronounced the worst storm which has struck Hoskins in many years, swooped down on the section to the southeast of town last week Tuesday, and laid waste to corn fields and battered down buildings on most every farm. The hail came in spots, ruining a field here by shredding the corn and flattening it to the ground, then tipping the next field completely. The Emil Marotz farm which is occupied by Arthur Marotz and family, probably fared the worst. Four horses which had just been brought in from the field, were routed under many tons of hay when the barn collapsed, and all perished. The hired man was in the barn when the wind struck and saw another barn fall, so he made dash for the house. Before he reached the door the wind had knocked him down twice. Three big buildings on the Alfording place to the southeast were totally wrecked, and windows were blown in. The John Asmus house in that locality was broken in and the kitchen rumbled in with such fury that

Livestock Market

Remains Uneven

Live stock markets continued uneven and uncertain during the current week, with trends and sentiments mixed. Demands appeared improved, leading to tendencies toward strength in prices. However, receipts continued heavy, giving buying agencies the advantage and leading to many instances of declines. Hog prices rounded out not greatly changed since a week earlier, cattle prices registered fair advances, and lamb prices suffered material declines. Demand for lambs appeared slowest of recent weeks. This condition, in the face of liberal receipts at leading centers, gave buying agencies the advantage and closing prices show a 25 to 50c break from those of a week ago. The hog market declined Thursday and Friday losing advances of earlier in the week, and finishing not greatly changed since a week ago. Demands were relatively good during the week, but with receipts liberal, shipping demands were narrow, and packers had a decided advantage to bear down. The fat cattle market is quoted strong to fully 25c higher for the week, although a reaction was suffered under the weight of heavy receipts Thursday. Liberal supplies of well finished cattle were handled in all sections of the country and there were further suggestions that dry weather and shortage of feed as well as advancing corn prices were responsible for many half fat cattle being shipped. Supplies of plain unfeed and grassy butcher types fell off, and there was a material shrinkage in supplies of stockers. Most cheap cattle as well as stock grades shared the week's upturn. Country demand for stock cattle continued to expand moderately as weather and flocx conditions improved, and Sioux City yards are well cleared of holdings. Products markets were in good condition, with by-products continuing to advance, and with meat markets reported best of recent weeks. Cured hog products and lard markets fluctuated with grains, with more strength than reverses noted in the uneven trade.
