INCREASE IN LEVY ONE MILL

Lower City Valuation Will Mean $7,310 Less In Revenue This Year. Wayne city council met Tuesday evening to set the annual tax levy for the fiscal year ending May 1, 1933.

The ordinance, as adopted provides for unchanged levy for all purposes except interest on intersection paving bonds and creating a sinking fund for their payment, which was raised from 9 to 10 mills.

Hardest Kind of Work. We can wash windows, mow lawns and clean cupboards with assurance of success.

Chinese on the Square. J. H. Kemp who journeyed back from California last week, confirms an opinion that had been conveyed to us many years ago in regard to the Chinese, Japanese and Filipinos.

Mental Unrestraint. Probably the fellow who is crazy comes nearer telling all the truth than the fellow who is rated as sane.

If All Were Flat. If the depression were to continue many years longer people would be uniformly hard-up.

Imperishable Acquisition. We are encouraged by the report coming from Wafford College, Spartansburg, S. C., where a man has just been granted a diploma of graduation at the age of 94.

Was Assailed Reason. We have had a chairman and a secretary in the board of directors.

Movieletes This week three distinct types of pictures are coming to the Gay theatre in Wayne. The first is the immortal story of F. Marion Crawford, "The White Sister." Then follows Joe E. Brown in a rollicking baseball story, "Elmer the Great," and then Irene Dunn in an absorbing story of a young couple's rise to riches from poverty and the resulting marital difficulties. GAY THEATRE Thurs.-Fri.-Sat. "The White Sister." The story of the daughter of an Italian prince who falls in love with a lieutenant in the Italian army and refuses to go on with her marriage to a picked, wealthy suitor is a story that needs but little retelling. The lieutenant goes to war in the aviation division and is reported killed. The girl, Angela, heartbroken, takes the vows in a convent and then Giovanni returns. But it is too late. The vows of the church triumph over the call of the heart. Of course it is the story that has found its way into the hearts of millions. Years ago, Lillian Gish played Angela in the silent pictures and movie goers swamped the box offices to see it. Now it comes on the talking screen and all the pathos, heartache and drama of the silent version is strengthened by the voices of the players. Helen Hayes plays Angela, and opposite her Clark Gable, as Giovanni. Gable forms a perfect foil for Miss Hayes who will be remembered particularly for her award as the best actress in the movies for 1932 and her part in "A Farewell to Arms." Lewis Stone, Louis Clusser Hale, May Robson, Edward Arnold and Alan Edwards complete the cast. The picture was directed by Victor Fleming who held the megaphone on "Red Dust." Sun.-Mon.-Tues. "Elmer the Great" Perhaps the biggest thing in this picture is Joe E. Brown as Elmer, the great ball player who gets himself a berth in the big leagues and becomes the butt of all the team members' practical jokes. His three big loves are eating, sleeping and Patricia Ellis and that's a combination that spells complications. Well, Joe happens to be the greatest hitter in baseball, full of conceit and he runs the gamut of all the jokes, another girl, a poker game, a night in jail and finally the big world's series game. And what he does in this deciding game is—well, you'll have to see it. It's essentially a comedy, touched up with a little pathos to change the pace and speaking of comedy, High Hips Hoely makes a good comedy team, mate for Elmer. If you like Joe E. Brown you'll like this one: It's billed as one of the best pictures he has made. Joe E. is right at home on the diamond. He played professional ball for eighteen years, part of these with the Boston Red Sox. Anyway, with Patricia Ellis waiting for him to make good he had to play ball. Wed.-Thurs., August 2-3. "No Other Woman." From the title you'd think this was the story of a man who could only find time for one woman. It isn't. Irene Dunn and Chas. Beckford live in the squalor and yellow haze of a steel town, where he is a padder. Then fortune brings them riches and Beckford attacks business with the same punch that he made steel with and on one business trip meets Gvili (pronounced Jee Lee) Andre. Beckford promptly loses all sense of direction, and for which we can't blame him, considering Gvili as the third apex in the triangle. Miss Dunne has been seen at the Gay recently in a number of different roles, but this is still another type. You'll like her better than ever. Beckford, Miss Andre and Eric Linden of "Life Begins" fame are the other principals. The story is good and you'll like the way it ends, too. Northwest Wakefield (Mrs. W. C. Ring) Threshing has begun in the various "runs." Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Erickson spent Friday at Carl Sundell's. Miss Nina Anderson spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Louie Haberman. Mr. and Mrs. Levi Dahlgren and daughters spent Sunday evening at Arthur Feit's. Miss Edna Lindberg spent Saturday with Mrs. Ernest Anderson cooking for threshers. Mrs. Charlie Levene was among the guests entertained by Mrs. M. F. Ekerorth on Wednesday after-

Union Stock Yards Co. of Omaha, Ltd. Farm Mortgages BY LAND BANK COMMISSIONER FARM CREDIT ADMINISTRATION Last week's advertisement in this paper outlined the purposes of these loans and the eligibility of the borrower. The main function of the Commissioner's Agent is to make a second mortgage on land whereby a farmer's small unsecured debts are consolidated into obligation in order to save him embarrassment from his creditors. Existing second mortgages may be included in the above. It is presumed that a great many farmers need money for taxes, delinquent interest, store bills, etc. Loans are limited to a maximum of $5,000 to any one farmer. These loans plus all prior mortgages on other evidences of indebtedness secured by the farm property may not exceed 75 per cent of the appraisal value thereof. Expresses Confidence. PRESIDENT Roosevelt's speech Monday evening expressed confidence in plans to extend employment and increase buying power.

Certainly it is not the intention of the government to increase the overhead of a small-town business beyond what it can stand.

Child Labor. THE fact that the government is engaged in a righteous determination to rid industry of sweat shops in which child labor is sacrificed to Mammon, does not mean that children should not be encouraged to strengthen their lives with a reasonable proportion of work.

Will Durant who lectured in Wayne recently, describing how the operation of communism paralyzes liberty, expressed himself in favor of recognizing Russia in order to rescue helpless millions from their unhappy predicament.

The editor of the Sioux City Live Stock Record agrees that the thing now in order to worry about is an early frost.

Requests coming to the Wayne college for teachers for the coming year, offer from $30 to $40 per month.

The Omaha Journal-Stockman stresses the importance of patience among farmers as an essential to largest returns.

A New York writer quotes a westerner as suggesting that as a relief measure the government take over failed banks whose tied-up deposits aggregate around $10,000,000,000, and guarantee to pay 100 cents on the dollar.

Whether one's judgment altogether agrees with all the recovery plans of the administration or not, the surest way to help improvement at this time is to cooperate as far as possible.

coordination of different interests that make up the total of economic activities to give strength and bring desired results.

Twenty-five representatives of ten mid-western states met in Chicago and decided on a big program to curtail pork production.

Boasting Pork Prices. Omaha Journal-Stockman: Pork has always been the poor man's meat but if present plans of the department of agriculture are carried out, poor people will have to pay a good deal more for their meat than they have been accustomed to pay.

Average Bank Balance. (American Banker) The average size of the deposit account in banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System is $700, it was disclosed in this month's issue of the Federal Reserve "Bulletin."

According to statistics compiled by the Comptroller of the Currency and by the Federal Reserve Board there were, on May 13, 1933, 5,500 licensed member banks, and these banks had deposits of $23,542,307,000, and 30,556,105 deposit accounts.

Of the total number of accounts, 96.5 per cent were $2,500 or less, and 3.5 per cent amounted to $2,500 or over.

Deposit balances of $50,000 or more numbered less than 50,000 and amounted to a fraction of 1 per cent of the total number of accounts.

The Recovery Plan. Lincoln Journal: The country generally will pray for the success of the administration's re-employment drive.

The one product of the drive that seems certain is higher prices. To balance this the president pleads for more employment and higher wages that the purchasing power of consumers may be increased.

The president says that "a rounded leadership" by the federal government long ago became necessary. He is striving to supply that need, and to that end congress gave the president power to lead.

The president's fear, openly expressed, is that the employer who does not conform may be able to undersell his conforming competitor.

This country has gone a long way since the panic of 1893. Not long ago a national magazine made the statement editorially that if some of the measures now proposed to combat depression had been argued from a soap box in Chicago forty years ago the speaker would have been hustled off to jail.

If the new plan succeeds the country will be benefited generally also some luckless industries may be seriously hurt.

MERRIT'S REWARD. A story that comes out of California shows how friendly public service is sometimes rewarded. A farmer had served faithfully for many years as the community's weather prophet.

Couple Married
Last Saturday
The wedding of Miss Doris Kirby and Mr. John Leo McMurphy took place last Saturday at 2 at the First Baptist church in Pittsfield, Mass. Rev. Paul Sturges performing the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father, George W. Kirby.
The bride's gown was of white satin with a train. Her tulle veil, trimmed with lace, was fastened with a lace cap and pearls. Her bouquet was of white roses and babybreath. The maid of honor, Miss Ruth Kirby, wore peach gown and an egg-shell silk turban. Miss Marion Oldham and Miss Mabel Palmer were bridesmaids and wore blue. The three attendants carried Joanna Hill roses and delphinium. Gladioli and delphinium decorated the church.
A reception followed at the home of the bride. The young folks left afterward for a trip to Yellowstone park and Fort Wayne.
Mr. McMurphy, who is engineer in the General Electric plant at Pittsfield, is a graduate of Wayne and Ames colleges. He is a member of the American Commons club and Phi Lambda Upsilon fraternity. Mrs. McMurphy is a graduate of Adams teachers college and has been teaching. The young folks will live in Pittsfield.

Discuss Wheat Acreage Plan

Agricultural College Men
Explain Proposals Made
For Agriculture.

Representatives of 13 counties in northeastern Nebraska met at Wayne last Friday to discuss the Triple A wheat adjustment plan and decide whether or not to form committees to go ahead with the temporary county organization preliminary work. Since wheat is not an important crop over much of the territory represented, the cost per bushel for local administration of the plan may be too high to be practical.

The men went home from the Friday meeting feeling that the Triple A wheat plan might appeal to the comparatively few farmers who have raised some wheat over the last four-year period. As explained by R. E. Holland and Harold Hodges of the agricultural college at Lincoln, the plan might guarantee a cash benefit payment of about $15 per acre on twenty-bushel wheat land this coming year, provided the land was taken out of wheat and not planted to corn or other grain crops.

Wayne, Cedar and Stanton counties will be combined in one district, Holland said. If the local men at the meeting Friday want to go ahead with the program during the next two months to find out how the wheat growers stand on the proposition, the federal government will station an emergency agricultural agent in the district to act as secretary to the county organization committees. This man would be paid entirely out of funds set aside in the agricultural adjustment act, and only be here for about two months until the contracts are closed.

According to the five-year average production figures, Cedar, Wayne and Stanton counties produce about 65,000 bushels of wheat per year. Cedar and Stanton grow about 60,000 of these much. It is recognized, however, that most of the wheat is grown for home use for flour and feed, and in small fields that fit into the crop rotation system; the men from Lincoln pointed out.

Should the local county organization committees decide to go ahead with the plan, they will meet at the emergency agricultural agent as soon as he is on the job and decide where and when to hold local meetings in school houses and other meeting places. At these local meetings, the entire plan will be explained as it was to the county delegations last Friday at Wayne. Each individual farmer can decide for himself whether he can afford to sign up under the plan to reduce his wheat production in return for cash benefit payments.

A county wheat production control association will be set up by the farmers who sign the contracts. They will govern their own county association independently of any other county, and deal directly with Uncle Sam through a regional office located probably at Kansas City. The expense of inspecion; etc., would come out of the benefit payments allotted to the county. It is estimated that these local expenses will amount to two cents per bushel in average counties. Since the acreages are small in this territory, the cost might run higher than two cents per bushel in Cedar, Wayne and Stanton counties, although the county committees would have the power to keep the costs down to the minimum.

Markets Continue Uneven For Wheat

Live stock markets continued uneven during the week, but there was a generally good tone in trade, outlets were broad, liberal supplies of live stock were absorbed, and there were far more advances than declines.

Meat markets were reported among the best of the year, with distribution broad and consumptive buying increased. Prices moved upward from the week's opening, and were well sustained on later rounds. Such items as hides and wool and a number of cheap products continued to give live stock markets good support.

The disturbing element was the collapse in grain and stock share prices, that began Wednesday and assumed panic aspects the following two days. These collapses pulled down cured hog products prices, to show a sharp break for the week. Consumptive demand for hogs products were reported active early in the week, and there were reports of materially improved distribution of cash lard. The reactions in grain markets and sharply lower markets for cured hog products later in the week led to a reactionary hog market late in the week, following advances of earlier rounds. On this basis the earlier advances were lost, and closing hog prices were practically back even with those of a week earlier.

Lamb and cattle prices worked upward practically the entire week. Lamb values reacted sharply, and regained the $1.00 per hundred weight loss registered last week. This worked prices late this week back to a par with the best of the year. Supplies of lambs in all sections of the country ran relatively light, while consumptive demands were materially improved.

The fat cattle market was most active and most promising in many weeks. Prices are fully 25c higher for the week, and in some instances at greater advances. All classes of cattle, including low grade kinds and grassers shared the gains. The quotable top for steers and yearlings passed the $7.00 line, and the bulk of fat cattle sold between $5.25 and $6.50. Stockers are strong to 25c higher as country demands continued to expand.

Past and Future
Seen By Fortune
Teller In Wayne

There are those who commune with the stars and find them talkative. There are those who read in the golden pattern of the night sky, the entire pattern of human lives. There are those who scan the palm of the hand and in the pudge ridges and curved wrinkles, find etched the hopes and ambitions of its owner. There are those who piece together one's past and interpret the future in all fanciness, while one sits helpless, shaken, wondering which of the numerous and petty mistakes which dot the past, will come forth to confront their doer. Of such is Dr. Vyron Rossiter, "Christian psychologist, astrologist and teacher of the occult sciences" who spent last week in Wayne.

"Holly wood folks, are especially interested in astrology," says the doctor, "the majority of stage people are superstitious anyway. Marie Dressler's come-back in films was very accurately predicted by her astrologist. Many business men also follow astrology in regard to important deals, for we all know that the moon controls the tides and sea, so naturally the planets control us. One's birthdate is of special importance in determining one's future and opportunities for greatest happiness. All astrological readings are based on the birth date. For instance, there are the four elements, fire, earth, air and water, and if one is born under the water symbol, then it would not be wise to make an important business change when under the element of water."

"Astrology dates back to 3,000 B. C., in fact farther still, back to cavemen days when the cave dwellers, carved symbols of the heavens on their stone tablets."

Dr. Rossiter believes that our lives are laid out first in lines of the hand, the head, heart, travel, fortune and character lines each having a clearly-written message for the one versed in palmistry. Lines in the left hand never change, but the right hand reflects changes which come into one's life. Coming from a family of "readers," the visitor studied under Hindu teachers in Minneapolis where he became versed in mind reading and healthful living, and has degrees from LeSage institute in Paris, France, from the Great White Brotherhood and White Institute of Sciences in Los Angeles. He surrounds himself with an Oriental atmosphere, with heavy incense, crystals and good luck charms ornamenting his table, but in appearance he has not the look of the mystic, unless one considers the unusual penetration of his eyes.

Enterprising College Graduates
Have Unique Trip To Exposition

The summer of 1933 being what it is, (really the convalescence stage after a long, hard world-illness) planned vacations are few and less pretentious. Vacation time in more prosperous years, meant weeks of preparation, assembling the correct sports outfits, consulting time tables and buying yard-long pink railroad tickets, and new tires all around, arranging for the mail and boarding out the dog. But 1933 is an off-year for vacations. That's why young America has taken to the road, and has covered thousands upon thousands of miles via the thumb-and-hop-in method.

And that's why Judith Stepe, college student here this session, succumbed to lure of the open road, and with Loretha Burton of Laurel, hitch-hiked to the Windy City, mecca of all American this year of exposition. Five eventful weeks were spent en route and in the city, then Judith returned to center Wayne State Teachers college second summer session. During their "walking" vacation, their longest tramp was two miles, and their expenses to Chicago totalled $2.95 each, while Judith spent only $4.55 coming home. And here's how it's done:

Although thoroughly disapproving of the venture, Loretha's father gave them a lift the first three miles out of town, and then began the longest walk of the entire trip—two miles. Followed a series of rides which totalled 16 before nightfall, and included farmers headed for town or headed towards home, for the most part. After spending the night in Ames, Iowa, the hikers set out fresh and rested and began a series of long rides, one covering 230 miles and taking them as far as Dubuque, Iowa. The next ride ended in Chicago with their chauffeur seeing them aboard the raft street car before taking leave. The fair proved thrilling and Chicago was an exciting experience in itself, but the two Nebraskans had more serious plans—they were going to have a self-supporting vacation.

After a few days of sightseeing, they could be found scanning the want-ad columns of the daily paper, and tramping weary blocks only to find disappointment. Most of the ads turned out to be grafts in one form or another—selling souvenir booklets of the fair, selling certificates that showed one had attended the fair, selling ads for an Italian newspaper planning a big special edition celebrating the landing of General Italo Balbo, and selling hosiery from door to door. But the Nebraskans tried an employment agency and soon were placed in private homes, in varied and exhaustive capacities. Loretha's family proved difficult to live with as they kept quite upset over losses in horse racing, and developed something of a rough-house. Judith's first job was as cook for a Jewish family, and after wrestling with barely-warmed-through steaks and other difficult concoctions for three days, she gave it up. Her next job was to help with cleaning and cooking, but she soon found herself installed as chief cook and scrubber, for the woman burned so many kettles that it was easier to watch things than to scrape the blackened kettles. There was a definite maid problem in this house for the last four months had stayed one, four, two and one weeks and the amateur maid soon found why. She was taught to set the table in etiquette-book perfection, to crumb the table after each course, to prepare the soup and condical for each dinner, but the table manners of the family didn't go with this setting. The youngsters picked pieces of salad with their fingers, the older folks "dunked" with great enjoyment and threatened their eyesight by leaving the spoon in cup. This was a house of cleanliness, for the entire house was cleaned every two weeks, taking different rooms in rotation. And cleaning meant washing the windows inside and out, washing the bedsprings and vacuuming the mattresses! Judith wore a pert black uniform and crisp white headband, disguising her "schoolmarm" manner under conventional maids' attire. After three weeks she had her fill of housework and gave notice. Loretha, though well located, was ready to leave, too.

Their good luck held out coming home, for they averaged four rides both days, stopping off in Rock Island, Ill., to visit Mrs. Olaf Cervin, formerly Miss Dora Carlson, dean of women here at the college in 1927-28, and remaining overnight in Iowa City. Three short rides the second day, then from Boone to Blair with a man headed for California. The hikers stayed overnight with Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Langley at Tekamah, then Russell Langley brought them on to Laurel, and end of their journey.

It was heaps of fun, says Judith. The two wore dresses, scoping the usual khaki of hikers, carried small cases and didn't thumb their way. Every ride was offered. And for some reason or another, not one woman driver stopped to offer a lift to their sister travelers!

Judith was graduated from Wayne State Teachers college with the class of 1932, and taught near Laurel the past year. Loretha was graduated in 1930, and taught at Tekamah last year.

hotel keepers, service station attendants and motorists from all parts of the country as to business conditions and the replies received were, without exception, to the effect that business generally, in all lines and in places is gradually, but surely, showing improvement. Everyone radiates renewed hope and confidence. Everyone expresses the assurance that we are on the threshold of a new era and that we are, even now, living in the dawn of a new day. The universal loyalty to the author of "The New Deal" is inspiring and lends assurance to the oft made prediction that there are better times ahead for all who are willing to live and labor as all good citizens should be glad to do. Dealing justly, loving mercy and uprightly conduct must be the code of each individual seeking true happiness."

"The Wayne band presented another concert in Bressler park last Friday evening and what a concert it was," says J. C. Kyt, "a program of many new and difficult numbers beautifully executed. Congratulations to our able director, Prof. F. C. Reed, and to all the players."

"Lovers of good music, if you have not yet attended these concerts, you missed something. They are in force next Friday evening. You will appreciate it and so will the band."

Wayne Boys Like
Western Camping

Wayne boys who are in reformation work at Cascadia, Ore., wrote the Herald July 14 as follows:

"We are getting along fine since we have become acclimated. We do not have to worry about being too cold during daytime as it is getting warmer every day. We are now in what the woodsmen call the fire season. Rangers are busy posting signs along the trails to remind travelers to put out camp fires and cigarettes. All C. C. Q. boys have been instructed not to smoke while in the woods or while traveling to and from work. They can smoke in camp any time but must get permission from officers to smoke in the woods. When permission is given to smoke in the woods four precautions must be observed: Make a spot down to mother earth, stay in that spot, break matches in two, and put the cigarette butt out.

"The fire season has just started and three small fires have been reported. We have not had to fight any yet. Woodsmen say that very seldom do these little fires result in large forest fires. The last large fire here was about 25 or 30 years ago.

"All the boys but 50 are working on trails. These 50 are building the bath house, mess hall and tent floors. The mess hall and bath house will probably be done in a month or two weeks. We have 10 tent floors finished and expect to have the rest done in a week.

"The western country is really beautiful. Some spots on the mountains are flat like the prairie. Two such spots, Tombstone and Lost Prairie, are located just above our camp site. Above these prairies are a number of lakes, the most beautiful being Clear lake, which is three miles long and half a mile wide. The lake was formed by dropping of the mountain side and the cavity filling with water from springs and mountain streams. The lake contains petrified trees and many mountain trout.

"All who go to the lake to fish seem to bring back the limit. Officers caught 30 trout Sunday. Water is clear and as cold as ice. One can read numbers on a watch when it is 30 feet below the surface. The water tends to magnify all objects."

Former Resident Gives Interview

J. H. Kemp Tells Herald
Radio Listeners About
Trip From West.

J. H. Kemp and son, John, arrived Wednesday last week by car from Stockton, Calif., and the former spoke as follows on the Wayne Herald radio program Friday in an interview:

"The 1800-mile Lincoln highway motor trip from Stockton to Wayne gave us abundant opportunity to observe the relative merits of scenic, road and crop conditions of the different sections of the country. For scenic beauty the Sierras of California with their rippling streams and placid lakes have no equal along this transcontinental highway. The highway is in exceptionally good condition throughout the entire distance we traveled; it is being improved constantly and is, even now, about as nearly perfect as the most critical motorist could wish.

"As a loyal Californian, I would frankly state that the crop conditions in the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys are nowhere surpassed, but after a thousand miles of desert and sagebrush the rich green central and northeast Nebraska corn and alfalfa were indeed a refreshing and inspiring sight. Nowhere do crops look better; nowhere do farms and crops show better care; nowhere do people seem more hopefully happy. Wayne county, most assuredly, still appeals to us as among agriculture's best.

"Yes; the landslide or economic upheaval of last November was gratifying to us, but it did not take us by surprise, as it had been definitely forecast by intelligent observers for some time prior to its occurrence. The earthquake of last March 10 which did such extensive damage to both life and property in southern California, was not felt in Stockton, the latter city being about 400 miles north of Long Beach. The accepted best authorities on earthquakes assure us that it is highly improbable that serious earthquake damage will ever occur in the long wide valleys of the San Joaquin and Sacramento.

"We made it a point to inquire of

ONE of the strange facts about the tire business is—the PRICE of all tires is about alike. That being so, you might as well pick the best—in quality, in safety, in mileage.

What's the best in quality? The public says: Goodyear—this tire is preferred by more people than any THREE other makes of tires.

What's the best in safety? Accurate tests on wet concrete show Goodyears will stop a car quicker than any other tire. The next best tire skidded 10% more—other tires skidded up to 77% more under exactly the same conditions. And if you want safety from blowouts—remember that Goodyears give safety in every ply, because every ply is built with Supertwist cord and every ply runs from bead to bead.

What's the best in mileage? Bus fleet records show Goodyear tires give 97% more mileage than they gave five years ago.

Now that all prices are headed UP—it's more important than ever to get the most for your money. Better look over your tires and buy new Goodyears now while prices are still low.

With about $66,000,000 already definitely allocated to federal construction out of the $93,000,000 public work fund, the cabinet board in charge of the program turned Thursday to consideration of more than $500,000,000 for army construction and river and harbor improvements.

Five western railroads are opposing the nine-foot channel development of the Missouri river. At tacking the proposed project on the grounds of its "excessive cost," the fallacy of a reservoir at Fort Peck, Mont., and the general inability of the program to accomplish its stated aims, the railroads deplore the "uninformed and selfish demands."

The public works administration told how it intended to distribute $115,513,610 as the first step in a program to create a million new jobs by October 1. The $115,513,610, Secretary Ickes announced, will be partitioned out this way: $64,561,542 for federal public works; $50,000,000 for roads in parks, forests, Indian reservations and public lands; $952,068 for municipal water and sewer plants. These brought to $753,513,6610 the total allocated from the $3,300,000,000 fund made available less than a month ago. Already, President Roosevelt had approved the expenditure of $238,000,000 on railway construction and $400,000,000 on highways. Additional rivers and harbors program awaits the presidential O. K.

A Flourishing Brick Factory Was Important Early-Day Industry Here

Before the days when thousands of miles of railroad track honey-combed the country, before gravelled highways connected the obscure village with the metropolitan center by a few hours' drive, before commercial and passenger planes made their contribution to speedy transportation and quickened the tempo of modern living, men owned, even took pride in, a certain independence. Living isolated in prairie settlements as they did, far from the comforts of the east, they were forced to rely upon their own ingenuity and effort for the most elementary needs. No ordering of raw products and fresh edibles and new wearables from Sioux City or Omaha on a few hours' notice—no three-day connection with either coast—such was undreamed of.

In the year 1881 the town of Wayne took root and grew where formerly only prairie grass and wild flowers had thrived. A wee village sprang up and a trading center was established. To Wayne came J. F. Sherbahn the next year, traveling afoot the last 29 miles from Emerson, there being no other means of transportation. And at once he knew that he had a definite mission in Wayne—to make brick! For how else could an embryonic city build permanent buildings and a presentable Main street? And the quality of John Sherbahn's bricks, as testified to by the many public and business buildings which owe their longevity and firmness to the inner support of bricks from the old Sherbahn kiln. And Mr. Sherbahn was "to the trade born," having learned it from his father back in Maytown, Penn., and his father, seemingly brought his knowledge of brick-making from the old country.

The infant industry was started just south of town, where the greenhouse now stands, and at first the bricks were made by hand. Clay dug from the factory yard was basic ingredient of the bricks, and resulted in a deep excavation which remains today.

Bernita Jane Otto visited several days last week with Mary Hicks and Marjorie Thomsen, returning home Friday.

The clay was moistened to a plastic stage, called tempering, and "pugged" by means of horse-powered, a horse traveling round and round the grinder. The mixture was pressed into brick moulds carefully dusted with sand to prevent sticking, and packed in firmly and the top scraped to give a smooth surface. Then the wet brick was turned out on smooth hard ground and left to dry in the sun, this being before the era of dryers. They called it "cob-hacking" when they piled the bricks up in "criss-cross fashion to dry thoroughly. Next came burning of the bricks in a blazing hot kiln, and the result—Sherbahn bricks!

Into the old German store on site of the new filling station went the first bricks from Sherbahn factory. The original college building and the first trading school, now art building, were fashioned of Sherbahn brick, common brick for the court house, the high school, the Methodist church, State National Bank building, Gem cafe, the McNatt hardware building, Larson store building—all came from the Wayne Kiln which dates from a half-century past.

Mr. Sherbahn operated the steadily-growing factory until about 1916, his early force of ten men increasing to about 30 as the home market grew, and resulting in an investment of $45,000. In 1918 the factory was taken over by Nebraska Clay Products company. The Sherbahn family remained in Wayne, although Mr. Sherbahn is at present making an extended visit in McCook.

Somewhere about 1888, John Lewis, whose connection with Wayne business dated from 1884, started a second brick factory just north of the Sherbahn kiln, and employed up to 20 men as mixers, moulders and to operate the huge ovens. Mr. Lewis later operated a harness shop on site of the Golden Rule store. He died here several years ago but his widow remains in the family home on Lincoln street.

Standard Oil Co. To Sell New Gasoline. The Standard Oil Company has prepared and is now ready to market as its regular grade gasoline a new purple-colored motor fuel containing tetraethyl lead compound, known in the trade as "Q" brand anti-knock compound. Company officials state that the new product meets the specifications of many premium gasolines of the past. With its very high anti-knock rating added to its other qualities, it will equal any gasolines in its class, and far surpass many of them. No premium price is charged. The new gasoline has been manufactured for some time by the refiners and supplies are already going to the field for distribution. Motorists will be asked to try Standard's new purple-colored super motor fuel and make their own conclusions.

Henry Ford Dearborn, Mich.

IN ANSWER TO A LADY'S LETTER

A lady writes to say that she does not understand why an 8-cylinder car does not cost more to run than a car with fewer cylinders. She refers to my statement that our Ford V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gas than any car we have made.

The use of 8-cylinders does not mean the addition of two or four extra fuel consumers. It is not, for example, a 4-cylinder engine multiplied by two. Our 8-cylinder engine takes the fuel supply of an ordinary 4-cylinder engine and divides it eight ways. And why? By reducing four larger explosions into eight smaller ones, we get engine smoothness and quietness. Eight-cylinders indicate the way the gas is used, not the amount. It is just the difference between going upstairs in four long jumps or in eight ordinary steps.

Two things use up gas—bad engine design and useless car weight. Besides having an engine that gets a high percentage of power out of the fuel, the Ford V-8 has a light, strong body and chassis so that no power is wasted in moving excess weight.

The only extravagance about the new Ford V-8 engine is in the building of it. The extravagance is ours—the economy is yours.

The whole question of car economy needs clearing up. An economical car gives economy all round. Price, operation, upkeep, all play their part. If what you save on gas you lose elsewhere, that is not economy.

As to upkeep, our dealers say that in recent years the improved quality of Ford cars has cut down their repair business 50 per cent.

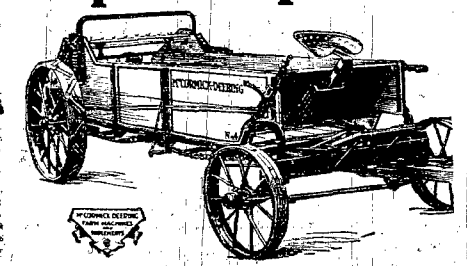

As to price with quality,—judge for yourself. As to economy, here is the record of a stock car three weeks out of shop in Oklahoma: On a run of 10,054 miles at the rate of 1,000 miles a day—the Ford V-8 gave 18.8 miles per gallon of gas. Not a drop of water was added to the radiator. The oil was changed once in 1,000 miles.

That should answer a lot of questions.

STEEL ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH!

neither strong enough, nor safe enough, nor quiet enough for the body of a quality car like CHEVROLET

There is only one type of body construction which Chevrolet will permit on the chassis of the cars it builds: That's the type which every test - and every experiment - and every experience has proved to be the safest, strongest, and best. Not steel alone, because steel alone is not enough. But a Fisher body of steel reinforced by hardwood! The same kind of construction used on practically all the highest-priced cars in America.

Chevrolet well knows that steel alone has one distinct advantage: it's cheaper. Steel also is strong - up to a certain point. BUT - beyond that point, steel alone will bend and crumple under severe stress or shock. It takes the strength and supporting solidity of a hardwood reinforcement to give you the full protection and full satisfaction you want in a motor car body today.

If you're thinking of buying a new low-priced car, better watch this matter of bodies, and watch it carefully. Insist on steel reinforced by hardwood! Fortunately, the only low-priced car with this preferred type of body is also the only car with a proven valve-in-head six; with Fisher Ventilation; Cushion-Balanced Power; a Starterator. That car is Chevrolet - America's most economical automobile.
