FIFTY-THIRD YEAR

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1933.

NUMBER THIRTYSEVEN

During the time a layer of ice covered streets and roads last week, many automobile collisions took place, and altogether considerable damage was done. The automobile which is insured against damaging the other fellow's car, was out of luck if the other fellow were at fault and without insurance. In an accident, the damage is sometimes too small to try to force an unwilling offender to pay, or perhaps he cannot pay. The way to make reparation certain in every case, regardless of responsibility is to require every automobile license to be accompanied by adequate automobile insurance. When the legislature meets again, this important protection to property should be provided.

Speeding Natal Day.
When one lands on a birthday in the course of a year, he pauses to wonder how many more natal mile stones he will be permitted to pass. He stops to take a backward view—to recount some of the foolish things he did, and some of the wise things he didn't do. He drags himself before the mirror and scrutinizes his face to see how many tell-tale lines betray actual years—so to see if he looks as young as he sometimes feels or as old as he sometimes acts. Birthdays seem to come with increasing frequency and there is no way to call a halt.

Feet In Air.
Last Friday when a sheet of ice was evenly spread over this part of the world, sliding was restricted to municipal or other skating ponds. With icy going, one's feet are as much out of harmony as the different factions of the democratic party. When one foot elects to go one way and the other decides to take an opposite course, several complicated geometric figures are likely to be described in the air with the rest of the anatomy disarranged and bumped. No bones were broken, though numerous bruises contributed to the day's uncertain pedestrianism.

Children's Orchestra.
Many children with but a few months' practice were in the college training school's orchestra that furnished music for the Herald's broadcast Saturday morning. The way Prof. John R. Keith develops juvenile talent in a brief time is a marvel to those unfamiliar with the technique which he employs. Of more than fifty in the orchestra, not one varied the rule of exemplary behavior and faithful application to duty. To see and hear such a group of youngsters, each responding in all earnestness to leadership, impart a thrill that strengthens confidence in the quality of future citizenship.

Better Feeling Indicated.
In regard to the times, people are said to be feeling better, confident that conditions are improving. The state of mind has an important influence. As confidence develops, the tendency is to spend more than those who have more to spend. Saturday's trade activities in Wayne would seem to justify growing optimism.

War and Recovery.
Some one suggests that the cost of recovering from a war may reasonably be as great as the cost of the war. If we could be assured of no more war with the ghastly sacrifices of both treasure and life, the cost of getting over the last one might be made more bearable. On a peace basis for a hundred years, we might be able to lift the burden of war and recovery debts, though many precious lives surrendered to the conflagration will never be returned.

Valuable Organization.
The Young Men's Business club is a valuable organization for the community as witness the way pre-Christmas activities have been handled. Members of the group are young and ambitious and alive to the needs of a growing and progressive community. The club is one that will mean much to future activities and improvement.

Values Publicity.
The government believes in advertising, and accordingly furnishes newspapers and broadcasting stations an abundance of material to be spread before the world without charge. The speed with which the housestop is reached to shout the granting of a home loan or some other loan will doubtless slow down as transactions of that sort become more frequent and less novel.

Important Enemies.
In making a speech recently a Florida editor said one important contributor to success is a "good" wideawake, persistent, tireless enemy, and as an editor he ought to know. The observation will serve as a stimulant to editors and others who have been unable to avoid enemies in the task of meeting public responsibilities. If one does or says nothing to arouse differences of opinion, he accomplishes nothing.

COUNTY KEEPING WORKERS ON JOB

Wayne county now has about 150 men employed on CWA projects, according to report of L. C. Gildersleeve. There are working in two shifts.

A group of 43 men was started this week on a CWA project on highway No. 113 four miles west of Wayne. They were working in shifts of 21 and 22 and are moving dirt by shovel. The project was outlined so as to provide work for those who had been working on this and the Carroll spur. Grader No. 1 had to stop Monday on No. 113 three miles west of Wayne because of frost in the ground. It will resume when weather permits. Funds ran out on the Carroll spur and an application for more has not been approved so men were transferred.

Wayne has 43 men at work on city projects now. They are widening the street north of the college, working at the cemetery and trimming park trees. The shift has completed a week's work and will resume Friday. Carroll, Winside, Sholes and Hoskins have men at work on town projects.

Grading south of Wakefield is continuing with 43 on this project.

Mrs. A. C. Thompson received word yesterday that application for work for women had been accepted. The county quota is 11 and further details will be received by Mrs. Thompson soon.

Christmas Seal Sale Progresses

The annual Christmas seal sale is being conducted in Wayne county schools, according to report of County Supt. Pearl E. Sewell. This sale, which always follows the Red Cross roll call, is voluntary purchase of seals, some proceeds of which remain in the county for health work. Reports are to reach Miss Sewell by December 23.

Those in charge of the sale say that need is greater than ever this year, due to the fact that children have been deprived of healthy living conditions and nourishing foods.

This year's Christmas seal shows in silhouette two figures drawing a yule log while a third blows a bugle to announce opening of the holiday festivities. An innovation this year is the use of the margin at the bottom of each sheet of 100 seals for an education message, "Tuberculosis is preventable. Buy Christmas seals." Thus the public is reminded of the purpose for which the seals have been sold for the past 27 years.

USE MORE BUTTER TO BOOST MARKET RETURN ON CREAM

DROP in the market price of cream the past week has caused a disquieting note in recovery efforts. It has happened at an especially unfortunate time when Christmas shopping is at its height. A surplus of butter is believed to be the cause—a surplus due to under-consumption. The mild weather has doubtless stimulated production somewhat, and the cows can't help doing their best under favorable conditions. A cow is short on knowledge of economics—the laws of supply and demand—but she knows how to bring home a healthy calf at regular intervals and to produce rich milk if given half a chance, and she can't regulate her production according to popular practices or the dictum of official boards. The way to increase cream prices is to increase butter consumption. If every family in the United States would use an extra pound of butter, the surplus would be gone over-night. Let farmers and townspeople alike consume more butter. Butter is healthful and appetizing, and nothing can take its place. Spread butter thicker, use more of it in cooking and dish it out more liberally to diners. Butter devoted to more varied and numerous uses will change excess to scarcity, and then the price will go up where it belongs.

Festivities Are Drawing Crowds

Oliver Twist Is Scheduled This Friday, Also Santa And Free Lunch.

Wayne's pre-Christmas festivities are attracting many visitors each week.

"Black Beauty" was shown in a picture at the Gay theatre last Thursday to children, the theatre being packed at both showings. The Wayne municipal band furnished a concert, and Santa Claus greeted little visitors all day at his house on Main street, giving treats of candy.

This Friday Charles Dickens' story, "Oliver Twist," starring Dickie More, will be shown at the Gay theatre for children. Those from rural districts are asked to attend the 2 o'clock show, and town children, the 4:15 performance. Santa Claus will be at his house Friday and Saturday with treats. Free lunch will be served Saturday afternoon beginning at 2:30 at the city hall.

CHRISTMAS IS CHAPEL THEME

College Dismissed At Noon Friday For A Ten-Day Vacation Period.

For chapel period at Wayne State Teachers college Wednesday morning, the Y. W. C. A. cabinet and Prof. John R. Keith and his a cappella choir arranged special numbers relative to the Christmas program. The young women opened the program with devotional led by Janice Mae Teed of Wayne, standing by a table lighted by two tall tapers. Carols were sung by a trio, Ethel Barr of Stanton, Eleanor Carlson of Wausa, and Mary Renner of Crofton. A violin trio composed of Louise Heyne of Lyons, Caroline Spangler and Helen Kern of Stanton, played carols, and Jessie McDonald of Wisner, sang a solo accompanied by Vernie Rhodes gave "Christmas Eve in the Mining Camp" as a reading. All those participating were dressed in white, and a Christmas tree decorated the stage.

The a cappella choir, directed by Prof. Keith, sang "The Hallelujah Chorus" and "The Glory of the Lord" from Handel's "Messiah." High school students from college training school were invited to the program.

About 250 students attended the annual Christmas dance held in college gymnasium Saturday evening. Modernistic Christmas decorations made the building very attractive and festive, and lighted trees gave it a holiday effect. Robert Gulliver of Wayne, headed the decoration committee. Ormsby's New Yorkers played for the dancing.

College classes end at noon Friday and begin again at Tuesday noon. Formerly college dismissed of an evening and re-opened for morning classes but this new arrangement will accommodate both students and faculty in leaving for and returning from their homes.

Prof. Kenneth N. Parke visited Sholes and Randolph schools' last week.

Hold Conference On Corn-Hog Plan

Agent G. H. Liggett Receives Information About Work And Rulings.

G. H. Liggett, emergency agricultural assistant, is spending this week in Lincoln at a conference and school regarding the corn-hog reduction plan of the federal government. The conference, originally set for last week was postponed a week to make certain that important rulings and interpretations would be available from the corn-hog section at Washington.

Mr. Liggett expects to return with most of the essential information about the corn-hog plan and to start immediately to explain it to farmers of this county. Just what the procedure will be, Mr. Liggett did not know when he left for Lincoln. He expected to talk over his tentative plans with other agents in the state meeting and follow general directions of W. H. Brokaw, state director of the agricultural extension service and state corn-hog administrator.

Information to be given out at the Lincoln conference will all be official, direct from Secretary Wallace and his assistants in Washington. It will undoubtedly answer a lot of questions which farmers are asking. As soon as possible after this week, Mr. Liggett expects to hold a series of neighborhood meetings at which he can talk the plan over and answer questions of farmers.

Like the wheat plan, the corn-hog program will be offered to every grower of corn and hogs in the county. Each man can decide for himself whether or not he will sign up the contract. It will pay him at the rate of $15 per head for the hogs he agrees not to produce, and at the rate of 80 cents per bushel yield on the particular land; he takes out of corn, plus the use of the land for soil building purposes and some other uses. Whole-hearted cooperation on the part of the farmers of the corn-belt, Mr. Liggett says, will adjust the supply of corn and hogs more nearly to the present demand and may be expected to raise prices.

Damage Action Is In District Court

Second Suit Is Filed As Outgrowth Of Accident In November.

Damage action and counter claim growing out of an automobile accident of November 28, filed by Geo. Reuter against Armin Bierman, was appealed to district court this week. The county court had ruled last week that neither party could collect from the other.

This week Dora Reuter has filed damage action in county court against Armin Bierman, seeking $500 for physical injuries which she alleges she suffered as a result of the accident. Mrs. Reuter claims that the impact threw her about in the car and caused her to suffer two cracked ribs, torn ligaments in one shoulder, severe head bruises and permanent damage to vital organs. Defendant will answer the summons January 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuter were in one car and Mr. Bierman in another when the two collided southeast of Wayne.

Will Deliver Mail Saturday Afternoon

Postmaster J. M. Strahan announces that a complete mail delivery to residences will be made Saturday afternoon, in order to handle the heavy Christmas business, and the windows will be open until 8 o'clock Saturday evening. There will be no mail distributed in boxes or by carrier on Sunday or Christmas day but mail will be dispatched as usual. Beginning January 1, in compliance with the government economic program, the postoffice lobby will open at 7:30 a. m. and the windows will be open at 8 a. m.

Neighborhoods Held Party

Neighborhood residents held their annual Christmas party Wednesday evening, assembling on third floor and marching down the two stairways, bearing lighted tapers and singing carols, according to their custom. The parlors were cheerily decorated with a Christmas tree, candles, wreaths, and a red "Merry Christmas" across the arch. Here the girls had exchange of gifts and light refreshments were served. Afterwards all went to the dance.

BROADCAST FROM WAYNE NOW THREE DAYS EACH WEEK

THE Herald has been broadcasting by remote control over WJAG, Norfolk Daily News station, every day, excepting Sunday, for ten months, and while a recent survey shows no lack of listeners—on the contrary, lively interest and appreciation on the part of the general public—the advertising revenue has not been sufficient to take care of the cost. Therefore, beginning next week, the broadcasts will be given three days—Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. Under the new plan, broadcasts will start at 9 o'clock instead of 8:30, and run from 9 to 9:30. The time is a compromise between those satisfied with 8:30 and those who preferred a later hour. The broadcast is acknowledgedly a valuable asset for Wayne and Wayne county, and the survey shows a listening army that warrants more liberal use of the service for advertising purposes. It is hoped results will warrant continuance of an enterprise which listeners testify is an important auxiliary to the Herald. As soon as sufficiently increased business develops, daily broadcasts will be resumed. Listeners may cooperate by employing the Herald's advertisements in the newspaper or over the air as buying guides. Remember to tune in on WJAG every Thursday, Friday and Saturday for Wayne programs. No program the first three days of the week.

The bids will be kept in file until a postal inspector comes within 30 days, and he will probably select the site.

The bids follow: Clyde Oman, northeast corner of Third and Pearl streets, $6,500 reserving buildings, or $7,000 with buildings included; Elizabeth Griffith and Mabel Savidge, northeast corner of Second and Pearl streets, $6,000; Mrs. Alvina Korman, southwest corner of Third and Pearl streets, $9,000; W. CHILDREN PLAN FOR PROGRAMS

Parents Will Be Entertained By Small Folks Of The Training School.

See folks in the first three grades at college training school have been busily engaged in planning programs for the closing day of school, Friday, and parents are invited to attend. Fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades are having more informal form of programs, designed for enjoyment of the children and teachers.

The first graders have invited parents and friends to come to the schoolroom Friday morning, 9 o'clock, to see their pretty Christmas tree, to listen to their group singing, and to enjoy the Christmas stories with them and their teachers. Music will be directed by Miss Esther Mae Ingham and Miss Dorothy McNabb, and stories will be told by the latter and by Miss Bertha Hunter. The most thrilling part of the program, to the little folks, will be lighting of the candles on the tree, watching them breathe, flicker and grow bright and beautiful, and then taking surprises from the tree to the parents. These are gifts the children have made. The teachers will have surprises for the children also. Those taking part in the program are Joan Ahern, Earl Echtenkamp, Rhea Kai, Margaret Costerian, Eunice Hopmann, Jack Kohlmeier, Marilyn Milder, James Korfz, Arlene Smith, Joanne Gifford, Cecil Marabe, Edmund Chinn, Jean Jacobson, Elizabeth Renard, June Dawson and Harold Beckner.

Second graders have been busy making gifts for their mothers, getting work books ready to take home, writing their own plays, stories and poems for Christmas. Program for this year centers around Christmas celebrations in many lands, and Miss Esther Mae Ingham will direct the music. Parents have been invited for 9:20 o'clock Friday morning.

Robert, Jean, Jack Paulsen, Lawrence Smith and Richard Chinn have made free illustrations for a big book about Christmas in Russia, and Bonnie Jo Adams will be Baboushka for the program. Sally Welch will be Santa Claus' helper in the Italian act, taking role of Befana, and Jean Paulsen will be the little Italian girl, Fiore. Miss Frances Stecker assisted in writing of the play, "Christmas Eve." Billy Milder will be St. Nicholas, James Strahan will be the white horse, Frank Perkins will be Kees, Pearl Mattingly will be Hilda, Jane will be the Dutch mother, John Francis will take part of the father, and Franklin Bressler will be the black man. Christmas in England will be shown through free illustration movie scenes. Miniature stage scenes will show Christmas in Germany, China, Spain, Pearl Mattingly and Donald Steele taking part. The elves and the shoemaker will be presented as a playlet by Jean Anna Sharer, Frank Perkins, Leo Gamble, Charles Victor and Lawrence Smith. Richard Chinn will be radio announcer.

Third grade program will be given at 10:40 Friday morning and will include: Songs, "Joy to the World" and "Hark! Damage Action Is In District Court

Second Suit Is Filed As Outgrowth Of Accident In November.

Damage action and counter claim growing out of an automobile accident of November 28, filed by Geo. Reuter against Armin Bierman, was appealed to district court this week. The county court had ruled last week that neither party could collect from the other.

This week Dora Reuter has filed damage action in county court against Armin Bierman, seeking $500 for physical injuries which she alleges she suffered as a result of the accident. Mrs. Reuter claims that the impact threw her about in the car and caused her to suffer two cracked ribs, torn ligaments in one shoulder, severe head bruises and permanent damage to vital organs. Defendant will answer the summons January 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuter were in one car and Mr. Bierman in another when the two collided southeast of Wayne.

Christmas RECURRENCE of Christmas softens the most calloused worldling. Generous deeds of the kindly Nazarene are recalled with influential bearing on today's thought and action.

The exemplar Carpenter of Nazareth left an impress for good will that survives as a beacon light to the footsteps of Christian peoples everywhere. Time does not dim the luster of his character, nor diminish the force of the precepts which he lived and taught.

No time of the year gives greater emphasis to the Christ example than Christmas, and no year has brought larger appreciation of qualities of humility—stressed by the founder of Christianity—than the present when people have learned that material possessions are quickly perishable—that real, lasting values cannot be measured by the yardstick of the counting-house.

Hard experience leads the world that has never to contemplate the life that, starting at Bethlehem and ending at Calvary, has been an inspiration to anguished hearts through the centuries. The cry from the garden of Gethsemane falls on fewer deaf ears than ever. The spirit of Christianity—the spirit of Christmas—takes deeper root in more people than ever, and is reflected in more cordial fellowship and more generous giving.

More helpfulness with less means help makes more real the life that first into an everlasting glow over 1,900 years ago. More than ever thought turns to bestowing kindnesses on others, relieving the burdens of others, bringing joy to children, making unfortunates share in the world's bounty.

As society pauses amidst unusual struggles and anxieties, looking with accentuated earnestness to the star in the east for new courage, the world is slowly making progress out of what history will call a "major depression," and it is profoundly hoped the return of another Christmas will find life's journey easier and more prosperous for everybody.

If the doctrine of peace and good will, as set forth by the Nazarene, had been followed, we would not now be paying dearly for the folly of war, and if it is accepted as the directing influence in the future, civilization will push onward and upward, with fellowship growing and Christianity unfolding consistently.

Discusses THE editorial page of the current edition of the Nebraska Farmer discusses government plans and expenses. The Farmer approves of the distribution of food at government cost among persons who are unable to find work, and approves of projects to create jobs for persons forced into idleness, but it frowns on the establishment of scales of wages out of harmony with the times and above those that farmers can afford to pay for help.

Touching some inconsistencies, the Farmer comments: "We know it is not in the public interest to create power projects where there is not enough demand for the power to pay for the cost of producing it. We know it is not in the public interest to create irrigation projects and bring vast acreages of land into production at the very moment when untold millions are being raised and spent to reduce the number of acres that are now in production. We know it is not in the public interest when the government through these enterprises goes into business, in competition with private business, thus taking away the taxable value that now exists in private property and substituting for it public ownership that pays no taxes. These are simple facts that the least schooled can see if the mind is not too warped by a preference for state socialism and all that it implies."

buying power and improve credit. This relief may be permanent if something happens to strengthen and maintain a rising tide of buying and selling. As to the greatly increased burden of indebtedness, we will have to cross that bridge when we get to it.

Discarding machines with return to man power makes a showy gesture, but it is a doubtful economy. It is doubtful if people generally could be persuaded to do things in the old, slow way, and it is a question if abandonment of modern conveniences would employ more or less men, figuring all who contribute to their manufacture, distribution and upkeep.

The report that holiday trade is considerably ahead of that of a year ago encourages the belief that money is more plentiful or that more of it has crawled out of hiding and into circulation.

Little more than another week will bring an end to 1933, and then we will make a new start, everybody hoping for easier going and larger returns.

The less a parent is compelled to turn his offspring over to the public to regulate or support, the higher he rises as an independent and useful citizen.

And That Reminds Us—Taxes. Omaha Journal-Stockman: One of the really remarkable features of the financial, industrial, commercial and agricultural situation at this time is the comparative silence in regard to our burdensome taxes.

A year ago there was more complaint about confiscatory taxation than anything else. Today the matter of present and prospective taxes is hardly mentioned, in spite of the fact that this burden is now heavier than it has been and our statesmen are eagerly seeking new methods and sources of taxing the country.

Perhaps the pressing nature of other national problems has at least temporarily diverted public attention to other matters. In the East the pumping of billions of dollars into the banks has been necessary while the nation has provided other billions to aid the industrial situation and reduce unemployment. In the South the cotton growers and tobacco growers have been given extremely liberal advances on their products and further advances provided for. The government has not been so lavish with the wheat, corn and hog growers but the flow of federal funds to the middle west is now being felt and a material easing of the general situation may be looked for.

"The real benefit the farmer has obtained from the seven months of operation of the agricultural adjustment act," declares the Nebraska State Journal, "has been from the $115,032,938 cash dole or payment made to him for crop acreage reduction. This money has not only given the farmer a little cash with which to purchase necessities, pay taxes and the like, but it has eased business in rural communities to some extent and put some funds in school and county treasuries. From the farmer this money has passed through ordinary channels of business much to the relief of merchant, banker and public official.

"The only disagreeable feature of the situation is that we haven't gotten very far after the payments were made. Prices are still uncomfortably low and the public debt uncomfortably high."

It may be good policy to forget for a time the burden of taxes and concentrate our efforts and energies on reconstruction and expansion but it is a matter of experience that taxes have a disagreeable way of intruding themselves and eventually forcing recognition. It will not do to ignore the taxation problem altogether in working our way out of the depression.

"The Debts Are Dead." Omaha World-Herald: Commenting on the failure of France for the third time to pay her war debt installment to the United States, the Paris Soir says, "Americans don't realize it, but the debts are dead." There probably are more Americans than Le Soir imagines who have considered the war debts dead since the day we lent the money. There are other dead, too. Ten million men, including thousands of Americans, are dead. There are dead hopes. Hopes that died with the first angry belch of the first big gun. Hopes run through with bayonets, smothered by caving dugouts, suffocated by poison gas.

Dead ambitions and dead vast possibilities. This world is strewn with the grotesque wreckage of the dead of war. Dead genius, cut down at the flower. Brains that might have remade and redeemed humanity, smeared across the pock-marked terrain, soaked in martyr blood. What else is war but death? What does it ever leave in its ghastly wake but death? It blights and murders whatever comes in contact with it—life, money, talent, faith—it makes no difference. War kills them all.

Lets's not blame France any more than the others, any more than ourselves. The last war came, we all got into it and that was that. But will the lesson of the dead make itself felt now as foolish men talk casually of the "next war?"

The war debts may be dead. They would be a cheap price to pay if the world could hope that war, too, is dead and forever in its grave.

GOLD STANDARD

Professor Moley has informed the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences that "a return to the gold standard would be the most tragic shock this country ever had." A. Smith and others say abandonment of the gold standard is tragic. So, we are threatened with tragic consequences from either side, though as a matter of fact the most of us who have had but superficial knowledge of the money question and have had but little practical experience in handling gold, will watch the conflict and hope for the best. "We have no hope, however, that dire predictions as to what will happen if certain public policies are or are not followed have never come to pass. We have observed that when disagreeing threats have disappeared and are viewed in the retrospect, all are found to have been grievously exaggerated and none ring exactly true to the facts. Faulty judgment is corrected—the cost of mistakes is counted and reluctantly paid—and civilization moves on, sometimes a little disfigured, but ever moving onward and upward. Though the standard of value be temporarily shifted from gold to baloney (as A. I. Smith warns, everything will in time be righted and the future will be guarded by the ever dependable soundness of the American judgment.

INTERDEPENDENCE.

Not only are we our brothers' keepers, and not only are our sins passed on to descendants, but we suffer directly or indirectly for the delinquencies of others regardless of our feelings of independence and aloofness. We can't confine our carelessness or foolish mistakes to ourselves. For a few years the world has been patching the torn economic fabric—torn by the towering sweep of indiscretions following the war—the mania for speculation, the mad chase for more dollars to spend on more high living. Those who did not engage in this era of reckless ventures and dizzy high rolling, are helping pay for those who did—those who were guilty of less circumspection. Social units are more or less interdependent. When Wall Street blew up following a crazy orgy of gambling, the entire country shared the consequences. When any person or group takes a long chance and fails, others suffer. When anyone rides to a high altitude of extravagance and then, wings broken, falls to the nethermost rocks, everybody is adversely affected, and if not prostrated by similar ill fortune must go to the rescue. What hurts one person, hurts many, and what lifts one from a helpless extremity, helps all members of society, directly or indirectly.

Kidnite Follies Coming to Wayne

Hollywood does not have enough Broadway years for its new talent! Talent that can sing, dance and entertain; and to develop and bring out this talent, Mr. Tracy and the Gay theatre are staging Friday and Saturday, December 29 and 30 a lavish production with an entire local cast.

In order that the young people of Wayne and surrounding community between the ages of 3 and 18 years might have an opportunity to demonstrate their talents, Mr. March has engaged the services of Norfolk and Mr. Tracy, himself, will personally supervise the Wayne production. It is the aim of this organization to present entertainment, not the usual thing that you think of first when you think of shows with boys and girls, but real entertainment.

Mr. Tracy's years of professional experience, enable him to make finished actors and actresses in a few weeks. He writes the words and music for the musical numbers when the occasion demands. Naturally, dancing has a great part in the show, and experienced dance teachers teach intricate routines that are professional from every point.

Saturday morning at 11:00 every boy and girl between the ages of 3 and 18 is asked to come to the Gay theatre and meet Mr. Tracy, so that he can cast the show, "Kid-Nite Follies." It makes no difference whether you have had training in singing or dancing or stage experience, for Mr. Tracy gives you that training, training that would cost hundreds of dollars to secure otherwise.

"Kid-Nite Follies," the production to be presented on the Gay theatre stage Friday and Saturday, December 29 and 30, will feature a cast of 60 local boys and girls, and will be a complete musical comedy production, with specialties, chorus numbers. In fact, everything that a real entertaining musical comedy should include.

Stock Raisers Meet In Omaha

To Discuss Feeding Business In View Of Conditions In Corn Belt.

Fast spreading sentiment in the corn belt against prevailing agricultural conditions is expected to reach a new peak at a mammoth meeting of farmers and live stock feeders to be held in the Ak-Sar-Ben coliseum in Omaha Friday, December 22. The meeting, called by the United States Live Stock association, at the request of a score of Nebraska and Iowa stockmen, is expected to draw between 10 and 15 thousand farmers from Nebraska, Iowa and surrounding states, according to A. D. Majors, president of the association.

Speakers at the meeting will include Lieutenant Governor N. G. Kraschel of Iowa; John B. Gage, attorney for the United States Live Stock association; Congressman Othie Wearin of Hastings, Ia.; Dan Hildebrand of Seward, president of the Nebraska Live Stock Feeders and Breeders association, and others.

Invitations to attend the meeting have been sent to Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Chester N. Davis, head of the corn-hog section of the AAA; Governor Clyde Herring of Iowa; Governor Chas. Bryan of Nebraska; the secretaries of agriculture for Nebraska and Iowa; and H. G. Keeney, President of the Farmers' Union in Nebraska.

Community clubs, banks and individuals throughout western Iowa and eastern Nebraska are being enlisted to organize caravans from their respective localities. Among the northeast Nebraska stockmen actively engaged in this work are: Dan Hildebrand, Seward; Anton Winther, Wisner; John Herold, Winthrop; Bancroft; Gus Albers, Wisner; Fred Heller, Howells; James Rhea, Arlington; Lewis Smithberger, Stanton; Pete Parkert, Hooper.

Live stock feeders, seeing ruin ahead if compelled to continue feeding 45 cent corn or better to cattle, hogs and sheep at prevailing low prices, are demanding government relief, inasmuch as federal loans on corn have practically pegged the price of that grain. Majors said. This, he declared, will be one of the most important problems to come up for discussion at the Omaha meeting, which has been called to give farmers an opportunity to consider their problems in the greatest mass meeting ever held in the middle west. Others will include the corn-hog plan itself, live stock marketing problems, and retail meat prices in relation to those paid the producer for live stock on the hoof.

Majors, in announcing the meeting, stressed the fact that it is not to be a militant gathering. On the other hand, he said, it is called in order that progressive farmers may talk over the agricultural problem in a sane, business-like way. Resolutions which they reach in Omaha, as well as demands made, will be transmitted directly to the secretary of agriculture, who has in the past expressed his sympathy with the sentiment of previous meetings of a similar nature.

At a similar meeting held in Shenandoah, Iowa, last week, hundreds of farmers were unable to gain admittance in spite of the fact that two halls were turned over to the gathering. Omaha was selected for the forthcoming meeting in order that every farmer may be sure of sitting in on the proceedings and voice his wishes in solving agricultural problems.

Congressman Wearin, who is himself a farmer created a sensation in a talk which he made at Shenandoah. Many of those who heard him at that time have expressed their intention of coming to Omaha. Wearin is one of the youngest men to ever sit in the hall of congress, but is considered one of the most sincere and aggressive leaders in the legislative battle to protect the farmers' interests.

Miss Eulalie and John Brugger were in Sioux City Saturday.
