

Day Existence—To Collect Foreign Debts — In Meeting Congressional Responsibility — In the Direction of Socialism — Civil Works Administration — Corn Meal.

The story of the Omans' early-day experiences as published in today's Herald is the story of existence generally in primitive settlements. Pioneers moved in small circles, habitations were far apart and travel was hampered by slow conveyances over poor roads. Proximity to school or church was important because every extra mile counted in the days of mud and horse or ox-drawn vehicles. But friendships were cordial and neighbors were unselfish and helpful in the old days. The material quality to which the world has been drifting the last few years, was pronounced among first settlements. One did not have much more in the way of physical comforts than another, but in the circumscribed environment, early settlers seemed to be contented—seemed to extract a good deal of enjoyment out of spelling matches, husking bees and other diversions of the day. The restricted spheres of pioneer groups were due largely to deficient means of communication and transportation, and while they did not grieve over what they did not know or could not expect, we doubt if any, now used to modern conveniences and modern ways, would if they could return to primitive methods and customs.

Making Europe Pay. Congress shows a disposition to act in the direction of collecting past due obligations from defaulting European nations. The United States contributed a huge sum as its share in the World war into which it was foolish enough to be drawn. The money asked to be paid was loaned in good faith. A debt between nations should be considered as inviolable as a debt between individuals. Treating obligations indifferently by nations leads to similar practice by individuals, and a nation or an individual will feel more friendly if requirements to pay are strictly enforced.

Measuring Up to Task. After members of congress have shown a disposition to be polite and acquiescent, they should settle down to a study of public questions and do some thinking and concluding on their own hooks. A man who feels competent to run for congress, should feel inclined after he arrives, to analyze every question affecting the welfare of the country and especially of his constituents, and occasionally develop and express definite opinions. Often a school board, a city council or even a state legislature gets into the habit of looking to one man for wisdom — sometimes feligned — and members feebly defer to such leadership because it is the easiest way to do. But a congressman is charged with many big and little responsibilities, and is paid a liberal salary to attend to them. His constituents trust him to learn the ropes if he does not know them, and assemble a line of facts and logic as a basis for action. If he does not know what is going on, he should find out. The country pays for statesmen—not for salesmen or satellites, the latter of whom would be considered greatly overpaid under any branch of the NRA.

Riding Capital to Death. If capital is to be taxed to death or is to be confiscated in some other way, manifestly in time there would be no capital to tax, and then the financing and managing would have to be done by the government. And that would be socialism on a big scale. Then genius would have no incentive and would lie dormant. The one who had worked and saved would be no better off than the one who had schemed to profit without effort. The leveling process would strike down the ambition of the man endowed with extraordinary talent or the one gifted with superior managerial capacity. The genius to create or build would be starved by the rule of the equality of the cogs in a big machine. Socialism would be death to individual initiative.

Happy In Work. First week's functioning of the emergency act for the employment of women under the Civil Works Administration proved a wonderfully effective builder of good feeling. Interest taken by the women employed in this new service is stimulating. Each bends to the duty assigned to her with the earnestness and resolution inherent in the average woman. Turns all who have registered and are qualified are afforded opportunities. Whether engaged in clerical or stenographic work or in sewing, results are reported eminently satisfactory. There are no lagging spirits, none with ambition limited just to getting by. Enthusiasm marks the course of the women who, engaged in different lines of useful service, are an inspiration in the struggle out of the economic bog.

Nutritious and Appetizing. As between cooked or raw onions and corn meal mush—or corn meal rigged up in any other way—we do not hesitate to express an opinion in favor of corn meal. This we do without wishing to offend the onion, though it has offended us whenever it found a chance to do (Continued on Page Four)

COUNTY QUOTA IS FILLED OUT

Full Number Of Men Back To Work Though Money May Be Used.

State C. W. A. headquarters have informed L. C. Gildersleeve this week that all projects started in Wayne county are to be continued with original quotas until February 15 even though some of the funds may be depleted. This means that Wayne county will have 242 men at work until that date, about 50 more than the number at work the past week.

When M. L. Ringer and Frank Erkleben of Wayne, Fred Miller, Walter Gaebler and H. E. Siman of Winside, were in Lincoln Saturday, they secured permission to put on the extra men. The state sanctioned placing 30 men at work on a spur from Winside north to No. 113 and 30 on the spur which has been started from Carroll south to No. 113. The group began work at Carroll Monday and at Winside Tuesday. The state authorizes placing 10 more men in Wayne. With these additions and with reduction of the number of men on No. 113 from 60 to the original 43, the increase employed is about 50.

Men on road No. 113 are now straightening the road and changing course of the creek at the Herman Freese corner six miles west of Wayne. Many trees have been cut in that section.

The road project south of Wakefield is continuing with its original 43 men.

Seventeen men went to work on Monday on highway No. 35. They are cutting down the Hollman hill two miles north and one east of Wayne.

In Wayne 51 men are at work most of them on the sewer ditch project on south Main street. Carroll has eight, Winside and Hoskins each six and Sholes two men at work.

CONDITIONS GROW BETTER, REPORTS LOCAL BUSINESS

BUSINESS men report conditions considerably improved over what they were a year ago, and they reflect better feeling among the farmers. A good deal of the crepe that has been hanging around the last few years has been taken down and stored away for use in future depressions. Farming is nothing to brag about as yet, neither is merchandising nor running a newspaper. But comparison with the past makes a favorable and hopeful impression, and even a little improvement is considered so much better than none that human feelings have been stronger and more confident. This buying has become more liberal, many of the things needed have been purchased, and as the circle of buying and selling widens and quickens, demands will increase, more money will move into circulation, and then the depression will be on the run. It is gratifying to note the many who have discovered the silvery lining, and who are now looking ahead with new assurance.

About Eighty Register At Wayne For Clerical And Sewing Work.

With a new group of women assigned to the sewing room and to clerical duties, CWS projects for women here in Wayne county entered the second week. By Wednesday afternoon, 80 women were registered with L. C. Gildersleeve, regional agent, and this includes applicants from Wayne city. Wendell Carroll and Hoskins. Both Carroll and Hoskins were represented in the groups which started to work Tuesday morning, and plans are under way for a sewing project to be held in Winside next week.

Pep Club Leads Program Tuesday

Wooden Barriers Will Be Placed On Streets To Protect Children.

Pep club arranged a program at Wayne high school Tuesday preceding the game with Laurel that evening. Miss Mildred Clark spoke on student enthusiasm, Coach Robert Gibb introduced his squad and named Wayne Bornhoft as game captain for that evening, and Franklin Simonin and Katharine Young, both from junior high school, gave a song and dance skit. Ruby Rhodes led group cheering. The club also plans a program for today preceding the Pierce game, with talks by members of the Pep group and numbers by Miss Hazel Reeve's rhythm orchestra.

Report cards will be issued on Monday, January 22, following closing of the first semester's work on January 17. Supt. H. R. Best states that parents may expect the cards on the day stated, and are to keep these reports.

In advanced typewriting class, David Likes led last week with 66 words per minute in a 15-minute test. Paul Bertson had 64, as did Helen Vath. In beginning class, Peggy Strahan averaged 39 words, Neva Jones, 38, and Marjorie Turner, 38.

Kermit Stewart has chosen an advanced orchestra of 26 players from among high school and junior high school contestants, and the orchestra meets each Monday after school for practice. Helen Vath has been named the librarian.

BUSINESS EXPERT ADVISES AGAINST WILD INFLATION

SOME one says that only twenty persons in the United States understand the money question, and we wonder who the other nineteen are. Perhaps Roger W. Babson, business expert, is one. [He discusses currency problems often and at considerable length, and in his latest contribution he warns against the evils of greenback inflation. He warns against starting the printing presses and turning out paper bills with no real value back of them. Printing-press money would furnish an easy way to pay debts until the country's credit had blown up. The fact that Babson is against this kind of inflation speaks well for his judgment, even leading to the suspicion that he might be one of the twenty understanding the money question. Babson calls attention to the president's task in holding up the value of the American dollar against the crazy cry for wild inflation. Babson points out that the people of this country want sound money and that any other course would be disastrous. If the president can persuade a majority in congress not to turn loose the printing presses, the future of the American dollar will be secure, and as members are reported with him on other less vital questions, they should be with him on this one.]

ESTIMATE MADE FOR NEW YEAR

Road Work Wage Scales Are Left Same For Year By County Board.

Wayne county board, at its meeting Tuesday, placed estimate of expenses for 1934 at $109,000, an increase of $11,000 over last year's estimate. The amounts are as follows: General fund, $50,000; bridge fund, $25,000; road fund, $25,000; mothers' pension, $4,000; soldiers' relief, $2,500; and Wayne county fair association, $2,500. The general fund was raised $10,000, and the soldiers' relief and fair funds, $500 each. Property is to be reassessed this year and the estimate was raised so that the levy might be kept down. The soldiers' fund was raised as the state tax commissioner advised the board that federal relief funds would likely not be available after July.

Frank Erkleben, chairman, and Miss Bertha Berres, clerk, were re-elected at the meeting Tuesday.

Wage scales for the county were left the same this year. For dragging the board allows 50c an hour for 8-foot drag, 60c an hour for 10-foot drag and 70c an hour for 12-foot drag. For road work the rate is 35c an hour for man and team, 50c an hour for man and two teams, and 20c an hour for single man.

These were the same as last year. L. E. Panabaker was named court house janitor at the same salary, $60 a month.

Frank Krause of Winside, was appointed a member of the soldiers' relief commission, taking the place of Frank Wilson who moved to Lincoln.

Former Student Is Making Aerial Map

An aerial jig-saw map of a section of the Nebraska badlands is being pieced together by Veri Carlin McKim, graduate of Wayne college in 1925, as part of his work towards a doctor's degree at University of Nebraska. Mr. McKim got the pieces to the puzzle by flying over the territory, "shooting" plans with a camera as fast as he could while the plane traveled 80 miles per hour. In little more than an hour he recorded on his plates the details of 220 square miles. Mr. McKim is writing a complete description of the country west of the sandhills and north of the Niobrara river, and found parts of this territory inaccessible by land.

The completed studies will show relationship of farmers' occupations to the type of soil they farm, the influence of geology on surface features, and influence of surface features on industries, agriculture, manufacturing and transportation routes in that part of the state. It will also show the wild beauties of the badlands.

Mr. McKim came to college from Opportunity, Neb., and his wife is also a former Wayne student. Both taught in the Philippine islands after leaving here.

Urged To Wake Up Through William R. Hearst confesses that he is a democrat, he urges the republican party to wake up and follow with critical eyes the activities of the opposition as preventive of costly blunders—as a safeguard to future security and to the popular welfare.

Undoubtedly two strong political parties are necessary, one to check the other, each giving opposition that fixes responsibility and modifies power. Money-mad ogres, imagined as headquartered in Wall street,—creatures of ill-gotten gains without thought of the popular welfare—were unknown to the rank and file—unknown to most of the leaders—of the republican party.

Republicans generally have been more anxious for economic recovery than for party power, and they have held aloof in the hope that new leadership—unhindered—would furnish the dynamic force needed to swing the country out of the economic dumps.

Science And Religion SCIENTISTS are growing more tolerant. They are disposed to reconcile science and religion, not trying to discredit belief in immortality in which many have an abiding faith.

Suffers Fracture Of Hip Tuesday Mrs. Sarah Ahern fractured her left hip Tuesday morning when she fell at the home of her son, John F. Ahern. She was going to the basement and was on the last step when she fell. She is being cared for at Good Samaritan hospital.

Leases Market Here This Week Ed. Bridges, who has been in the meat business for a number of years, has leased the Denbeck meat market and took charge Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Denbeck, Miss Joyce and Donald plan to leave in a few days for a trip through the south.

Marriage Revealed By College Student Miss Bernice Sherer of Orchard, senior college student living in Pile hall, announced her marriage of a year ago November to Mr. Robert Witmer of Akron, Ohio, and withdrew from college during the Christmas holidays. Future plans of the couple are indefinite.

County Champions Will Be Chosen Wayne county spelling champions will be chosen this spring, according to plans being made by Miss Pearl Sewell. The county has been invited to enter the inter-state contest in Shenandoah, the Sioux City contest, Omaha contest and state fair contest. Wayne Kiwanians are also offering prizes for best spellers. More details of the plans will be announced later.

Will Enumerate County Business Enumeration of the 2,400,000 wholesale and retail businesses of the United States is to be made in an effort to compare present conditions with those of 1929, to determine the effects of depression on these and also the effects of present business methods. One enumerator is named for Wayne county and John A. Weible has charge of this. He and others received instruction at Norfolk Tuesday and began the work which is to be completed in February. Mr. Weible will report the kind convinces himself that he will do so—convinces himself that continuity is the only sensible sequence to earthly and unfinished development, and nature must be sensible to have been the author of so many marvelous things plainly evident to the dumbest human oyster. At a meeting of 3,000 scientists in Boston recently, Prof. Wm. M. Davis made this among other observations touching science and immortality: "Reverent science accepts, without asking to know, whatever fate is in store for us after death, be it immortality or annihilation, in the complete trust that it is a fate fitting the part we have to play in the unfathomable mystery of existence."

In Fifth District E. R. PURCELL, editor and publisher of the Custer County Chief at Broken Bow, has filed for the democratic nomination for congress in the Fifth Nebraska district. Besides making a success of an outstanding rural newspaper Mr. Purcell has for forty years occupied different positions of public responsibility. He served as state senator and state representative, member of the state game, forestation and parks commission for five years, member of the Nebraska state board of agriculture for twenty years, and president of the Nebraska state fair for two years. He is now vice president of the Nebraska Hall of Agricultural Achievement. Thus, no one will question Mr. Purcell's fitness for a seat in congress. By his public service and his lively and helpful interest in the popular welfare, he has entrenched himself in the confidence of western Nebraska people who will have an opportunity to express appreciation at the polls next November.

Danger In Coasting A BOY was killed in Omaha the past week by an automobile while coasting on a street, and the accident prompted authorities to prohibit children from sliding on any Omaha street. Dangers involved in coasting on Wayne streets have caused the chief of police to issue warning in today's Herald. Certain streets have been set apart for use by youngsters with sleds, but the privilege has been abused by use of most streets. Motorists are warned to look out for segregated streets, and coasters are warned to keep to such streets. As a matter of fact, closest observance of rules does not guarantee freedom from accidents, and careless disregard only increases the hazard. Unless both motorists and coasters are more careful, local authorities are likely to follow the example of Omaha in keeping sleds off of all streets.

The Minnesota moratorium law has been upheld by 4 to 5 decision of the United States supreme court. The law was taken to the high tribunal to test its constitutionality. The majority opinion said that "while emergency does not create power, emergency may furnish the occasion for the exercise of power." The decision is accepted as a defense of the administration's policy in exercising authority that seems to trespass on the constitution, doing so on the ground of an emergency.

The fellow who is just getting by, battling from day to day to meet obligations ahead of sharp-toothed pressure, is erroneously rated as occupying an easy berth. On the contrary, he may have to work like a Trojan and figure like a Philadelphia lawyer to make ends meet, keep out of the red and preserve credit.

RECOVERY. J. E. Lawrence writes a column for the Lincoln Journal on the advisability of spending money to get over effects of the war quite as liberally as it was spent in prosecuting the war. He says no one kicked because of the sacrifices involved in the world struggle and no one tried to blame anyone for getting us into the war. Once in it, we were willing to spend every thing to win, and we made large headway in that direction. If it were important to win the war, it is equally important to reconstruct the broken economic fabric shattered by the war. Even if we won nothing, it is necessary to preserve what we have left. This is Lawrence's idea, and it is doubtless also the administration's idea. The deduction is very logical. The way to get the most from recovery expenditures, with the least delay and with least burden on taxpayers, causes differences of opinion following different experiments. Experiments that fail will prove costly waste. Those that help may be preserved as permanently useful. Anyway, hardships due to the war, as well as those suffered in the war, should prove a lesson that we will not soon forget. Experience of going through and recovering from the world conflict should give increased force to arguments for peaceful settlements between nations and within nations.

Miss Esther Mae Ingham played two piano solos, "Nocturne in F Flat Major" and "Ballad in A Flat," by Chopin. Miss Lois McDougal sang "The Lullaby," by Jocelyn, and "Snowflakes," by Coen, and Miss Ingham played for her. Mrs. Conn gave an interesting review of this year's Pulitzer prize play, "Both of Your Houses," by Maxwell Anderson. It attempts to satirize corruption in federal government and repeats in earnest the note of warning given in just in last year's Pulitzer play, "Of These I Sing." The club voted a cash donation for the C. W. S. sewing for relief. Mrs. Dale served two-course luncheon. Mrs. J. G. W. Lewis entertains at 1 o'clock luncheon in two weeks.

Business Women Meet.

Dr. H. D. Griffin was speaker at the dinner of Wayne Business and Professional Women's club held at Hotel Stratton Monday evening, in charge of the legislative chairman, Miss Mildred Clark. About 30 were present, including Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Robert Kirkman. The high school boys' quartet, made up of Everett Dennis, Robert Cunningham, Donald Wright and Frank Gable, sang "Cornfield Melodies" and "The Old Gray Robe," accompanied by Kermit Stewart. Mrs. Evelyn Wamberg led group singing with Miss Hazel Reeve at the piano. Dr. Griffin chose "Changing social attitudes toward women" as his topic, and brought out that while women are now accorded certain political, legal and economic rights, their emancipation is by no means complete. At this time we find women are being forced out of positions to make room for men because men are supposed to be better fitted for the work, and to need it more. In some European countries, women are losing the rights they have worked so hard to acquire. In fact, German women have been thrown back three centuries by the new Hitler government. They have been forced out of teaching fields, out of all professions, and have been told that their only place is in the home, producing soldiers for the next war. In European countries the present ruling classes acquired too much freedom with too little education for it, and consequently the leaders followed the usual procedure and took all possible power and positions for themselves, attempting to push down those not in power. So we can regard this set-back to women's rights as only temporary, an outgrowth of the revolutionary upheaval. It is evident that we have only made a start in emancipation of women—that complete equality will come only when women retain their own names after marriage, and rank with men in the professions. It's a long way down the ages to such equality. At the business meeting following the program, $5 was voted to buy materials for the CWS sewing project, which is sponsored by the club. On January 22, Miss Bertha Berres, Miss Leona Bahde, Mrs. J. E. Brittain, Miss Pearl Sewell and Miss Arlyn Nelson entertain the group with an evening party.

The Clyde Omans Have Most Interesting Forty Years Here

Hidden among the family photographs at Clyde Oman's is one which should have been on display and very prominently so, at the reception last week in celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Omans' fortieth wedding anniversary.

A young man and woman stand side by side, a bit stiffly, a bit self-seriously... more than a little serious she is, wears a dove grey frock of a few years ago would have been called "just too quaint," but which very closely resembles the frocks of the past season. Full-skirted, narrow at waist, softened at neck and elbow with a few folds of maline... sleeves puffed at the shoulder and narrowed down at cuffs... tight, fitted bodice with a gold watch chain imparting an elegant air to it... the hair drawn back with high, curled pompadour... a garnet ring, gift of the bridegroom, and plain band of gold her only ornaments. The young man on her right wears a black frock-coat, a full white necktie, hand-crocheted by his bride, and has closely-cropped light hair. The date is January 3, 1894, and it is the Omans' wedding day!

Those were hardy folks who gathered to see Mabel Prescott and Clyde Oman married because this was mid-winter—not the comparatively mild winters of today, but of pioneering time—and the relatives and neighbors had to drive many miles in open wagons over the open prairie. Only a few families, the Robinson Perrins and the P. W. Omans, had carriages, the rest traveled by farm wagon. However, about 50 persons were there to bear the marriage lines read by the Rev. H. H. Millard, the Methodist pastor from town. The Oman family was there also. Trice Prescott who later married Edith Tidrick, the Harry Prescotts, Harry Tidricks, James Barretts, Albert Tidricks, S. L. Tidricks, O. W. Millkens, James Rennicks, James Bairds, William Pattersons, and even the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pingrey, who drove all the way out from Wayne in spite of the bitter coldness. Mrs. Oman's cousin from Sioux City, Mrs. John Berry, was in the group.

The wedding took place at home of Mrs. E. T. Rennick, mother of the bride, at the farm 1 1/2 miles southwest of town. Having donned her numerous starched petticoats and dove grey dress in a freezing north room, the bride was properly chilled to begin with, and was, by her own statement, "black and blue and purple" when she stood up to take the vows at 10 o'clock that morning.

Then everybody sat down to long tables at the noon hour and paroled of roast turkey with dressing and all the trimmings, scalloped oysters, ice cream and mince pie and a three-tiered cake which the bride cut. Everybody ate heartily, everybody had a good time, and then they trooped out to the cold barn and played singing and dancing games, such as "Old Dan Tucker,"—remember it?—and "Skip to My Lou," while Harry Tidrick played on his mouth-harp.

The Omans received a set of dishes, a willow rocker, willow sewing baskets and gifts of money among their wedding gifts. They were better fixed than most young couples of that day for they owned a few pigs, some cows and horses of their own. After a year they acquired a piano and many happy hours resulted when the Omans gathered around it of an evening to play and sing. Throughout the forty years the couple, as well as their children, have had much pleasure together with their music, and today, the Omans are much enjoyed when they sing at gatherings or over the radio.

As was the custom in the early '90's, Mrs. Oman had worked long and devotedly before her marriage to sew yards and yards of carpet rags and these had been taken to a woman in the county who wove them into rugs on a hand loom. So the trousseau contained a generous supply of rag rugs and a long rag stair carpet. Besides, the Omans had most extravagantly purchased a ready-made rug for their parlor!

The bridal couple set up house-keeping in a new little home which the P. W. Omans had built on their home place, and remained there for four years. If any of you readers were through those lean, long years between 1894 and 1899, you'll know that the Omans picked up poor time to start off, born wet down to 5c a bushel but Mr. Oman took his to the railroad yards and shoveled it into the cars to realize 8c a bushel. There was always enough to eat, plenty of meat and eggs and cream raised on the farm, but no money for luxuries. Then the family moved to 4 1/2 miles southwest of Wayne on a farm which later came into their possession, and came into Wayne in 1910 to occupy the Pingrey home for a year. In 1911 they went into the large square house on Pearl street which has been their home since.

Of Pioneer Street. Both of the Omans were early arrivals in Wayne vicinity. Mrs. Rennick brought her family here in 1885 from Wilton, Iowa, leaving the train and Pilger and driving across-country to the village of Wayne. Only a small settlement greeted them—the German store was at far end of Main street—it almost seemed end of the world in those days. Corn grew on site of the court house. Main street was lined by one-story wooden buildings, many of which later burned down. There were shade trees down one side and up the other—so much a part of Main street did these become that folks truly wept when they were cut down.

The Omans came in February, 1882, from Malvern, Iowa. When they got as far as Emerson there was no train to Wayne so they counted noses, including traveling men, and found there were 12 who were Wayne-bound, so some body wired Sioux City and a freight train was sent out to bring the group into Wayne. It took just two hours to cover the 18 miles and the road was so rough—ties were laid on top of the ground—that the stove in the caboose was jolted loose and jumped all over the car to the consternation of the travelers. After spending the night at John Chance's, the Oman family made ready to settle in their new home—a small, unplastered house without a chimney and set up on blocks off the ground. Mostly raw prairie about, with blue stem grass reaching height of six and seven feet in the low lands. Very few trees except along the creeks.

Brenna precinct where the two families located was rather cut off from remainder of the country because travel was so slow and difficult. So the settlers grouped together for their social life and some jolly good times were had, according to the children—now grown up. About the first year Mrs. Oman was here, a Fourth of July celebration was held in Wayne and the Brenna folks came in several wagonful, driving fully 11 1/2 miles, but having a good, lively time enroute as the youngsters piled out of wagon and into another, and raced along besides the wagons. Picnic dinner was eaten in basement of the Ley store, and there was a parade down Main street which was very impressive to the visiting children.

The settlers of Brenna were in need of a church or a country hall in which to get together, and after much deliberation, decided in favor of a church building. So Grace Methodist church was built six and one-half miles southwest of Wayne, and Mrs. Rennick became the first organist, and Rev. William Gorst was the pastor. Here the Brenna folks met for worship, and also for socials, for a singing school led by Wm. Nettleton who came out from Wayne. The singing school was really a match-making agency, says Mrs. Oman, and led to much beauring around. The Will Gildersleeves, Chas. Gildersleeves, S. L. Tidricks, E. W. Bennetts, William Benshoofs, James Bairds, the Omans and Rennicks were prominent in the church work during these early days. Rev. H. C. Myers, Rev. B. Bruce Wynne, Rev. Thomas Bithell, Rev. T. J. Wright, Rev. E. E. Wilson and Rev. John Grant Chick served the church at various times, coming from Wayne or Winside for the afternoon of services. With the coming of autos and good roads, the church was no longer needed and

Worth While Resolutions.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: It is a rather hackneyed subject, New Year's resolutions, but the fact remains that it is a good plan for a man to occasionally stop and take account of himself in order to note where he is getting ahead and where he is slipping.
And in this connection a set of resolves, said to have been made more than a century ago by that sterling old philosopher and statesman, Benjamin Franklin, offers a splendid example of a wise course to be followed today. Here are the resolutions:
ORDER—Let all your things have their places; let each part of your business have its time; be not disturbed at trifles or at accidents, common or unavoidable; tolerate no uncleanness.
RESOLUTION—Resolve to perform what you ought; perform without fail what you resolve.
FRUGALITY—Make no expense but to do good to others and yourself; that is, waste nothing.
INDUSTRY—Lose not time, be always employed in something useful; cut off all unnecessary actions.
SINCERITY—Use no hurtful deceit; think innocently and justly; and if you speak, speak accordingly.
JUSTICE—Wrong none by doing injuries, or omitting the benefits that are your duty.
MODERATION—Avoid extremes; forbear resenting injuries, so much as you think they deserve.
MACHINES and Men.
Lincoln Journal: For a long time we have been trying to find hand-work for men to do. The big machines have been idle. The world's burden again is being moved more largely by manpower, as opposed to machine power. Suddenly this country found that it had more workmen than it had jobs. Ways and means of putting men to work were tried and most of them failed. Finally, in opposition to the theories of many, machines were largely discarded, men were put on made jobs, and some semblance of better times appeared on the immediate horizon, altho many believed and Demand Higher Tariff on Beef.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: No valid reason has been offered for the importation of beef in any form during the past four or five years but the fact remains that some beef has entered our ports on the hoof, frozen, dried and canned. With our present overabundance of cattle there can be no excuse for allowing foreign beef to enter the United States and cattle growers are pressing their demands that import duties be advanced to exclude it.
At present the tariff on canned beef is 5 cents a pound and not less than 25 per cent ad valorem. This can be increased to 50 per cent under the flexible provisions of the
