

Does
Honesty Pay — Private Enterprise Urged to Steam Up — Farmers Using Their Own Products — Babe Ruth's Wage Cut.

Let the young man who asks whether honesty or dishonesty pays the larger dividends, dig beneath the surface and he will find right thinking and square dealing the only answer. Honesty does not do best on parade. It just needs to be felt and quietly and consistently reflected in practice. Honesty works like a sound heart or strong lungs, and needs no explanation or advertising.

Perhaps the youth's father whom he takes as an honest but unsuccessful merchant, and whose experience has suggested the suspicion that dishonesty is necessary, has depended too much on reputation of honesty to the exclusion of other requirements. Perhaps he has not put enough momentum back of his business, allowing honesty to become an obsession and offering it as the main reason for patronage. Lack of other essentials might easily negate the advantage guaranteed by honesty. And undoubtedly this father, like any honest father, has had rewards above any that dollars and cents could impart. Freedom from shady tricks means a satisfied conscience for which no material gain can supply an adequate substitute.

An acquisitive person, alert to opportunities and willing to apply himself to his accepted task, can make money honestly. He cannot long make it dishonestly, because, as his methods are revealed, confidence vanishes and support disappears. He may have gained enough dishonestly to live the balance of his days in comfort. A fellow can get by as a trickster for a time, but when he is found out, the stigma of distrust is indelibly stamped on him, and he must either move to a new field or retire and be content with a small circle of indifferent friends.

Many rich persons are honest, gaining fortunes through ways that would stand the closest scrutiny. They invested wisely, and as a result acquired rapidly and largely. Whether one is smart or just lucky, he may engage in something that wheels and wins popular demand. In becoming wealthy, he may be unjustly suspected or accused of dark methods.

We once knew a merchant who was often crabbied and uncouth. He said things that hurt people's feelings. He seemed to go out of his way to dispute a customer's judgment or offend his taste. Despite his frequent exhibitions of tactlessness, he was a business success. He was one hundred per cent honest. Experience over the years had taught people that his word could be absolutely depended on. When he said a thing was so, it was so. When he explained qualities and comparative costs, no one needed verification to be convinced. He has passed on, but he is remembered as one who could not be taken in misrepresentation or into taking undue advantage. Kindly qualities of soul often broke through an easily ruffled exterior, and always rugged honesty, refusing to compromise with strongest temptation, made an army of trusting friends as long as he lived.

Does honesty pay? It is the only thing that does pay in the long run. Without ostentation — without showing off — it is the best essential to lasting gain. Dishonesty that stays in the saddle long enough to win a sizable stake, enjoys ill-gotten possessions only if conscience is seared and unable to sense other and more enduring compensations.

To Inspire Private Capital.

Roger W. Babson, cheerful business scout, regards government spending for relief purposes as a sort of blood transfusion, giving immediate aid, but that private funds must get into action to make recovery substantial and permanent. Babson urges resumption of private building operations. Home building dropped off amazingly during the slump, and if those who need and can afford improvements, would make them, they would put many millions into circulation for material and labor. Besides falling down on building, people have retrenched in everything—sometimes forced, sometimes influenced by fear of what might happen. If those who have means would buy, others without means would soon be able to follow their lead, and then gradually the labor employed by government projects would be absorbed, and costly paternalism would be unnecessary. Through more private improvements everywhere, people would have more and better things to wear and eat, and surpluses would vanish and prices would go up. Private enterprise would speed healthy adjustments and relieve the government from piling up additional mountains of debt. This must eventually come. Why not now?

Babe Ruth's Salary.

It is our suspicion that Babe Ruth will be able to live on his reduced salary—now only $35,000 for the year. It is less than half what it was formerly.

The Farmer's Cellar.

Time was some years ago when many farmers did not fill their cellars with their own products. Often they bought substitutes for butter and followed the townman's habit.

NUMBER FORTYTWO

CITY POPULATION IS IMPORTANT IN CWA EMPLOYMENT

IT SEEMS that twentyfour instead of fifteen hours per week will be allowed under the new arrangement of CWA working schedules in towns of 2,500 or over, and Mayor M. L. Ringer is anxious for a census that will give Wayne the bigger proportion. The work of finding out the size of the town will probably be put up to some public-spirited group. It is believed the last census is not an accurate report of the town's present population. Outside of school students whose homes are elsewhere and who therefore cannot be counted as residents, there are some attending the college with no other homes but Wayne. It is believed these may properly be enumerated as a part of Wayne's population. Persons entrusted with the census will be urged to be just as accurate in missing no one as in avoiding duplications. It is not fair to enumerate tombstones or count both legs, but it is equally unfair to let qualified residents escape. With everybody counted, it is believed Wayne will be able to make the required showing of 2,500.

CORN-HOG PLAN IS EXPLAINED

Meetings Are Arranged In Wayne County Next Week For Farmers.

Agricultural Agent G. H. Liggett is next week holding a series of meetings in Wayne county, explaining the corn-hog program. He speaks to farmers from Logan and Hunter precincts at 1 and to men from Strahan precinct at the same place at 7 that evening. Hoskins and Garfield precinct meeting is to be held in Hoskins hall Tuesday afternoon at 1, and Chapin and Hancock precincts at Winside theatre Tuesday evening at 7. The meeting for Wilbur and Deer Creek precincts is at Carroll hall Wednesday afternoon at 1, and for Plum Creek and Leslie precincts at Altona school that evening at 7. Brenna precinct meeting is at Altona school Thursday, February 1 at 7 p. m., and the meeting for Sherman precinct is at Sholes hall Friday evening, February 1, at 7.

Corn-hog growers in Nebraska will be signing a corn-hog adjustment contract during the month of February, according to a tentative schedule drawn up and approved by the state corn-hog committee. In submitting this schedule to each county, the state committee asks that the county temporary committee and the agricultural agent begin to hold contract signing days as soon in February as the local schedule permits.

Experience with the wheat contracts indicates that it is best to fill out every contract accurately and according to directions from the Washington office. In order to do this, the state corn-hog committee believes it advisable for each county to organize the work systematically and to train a few men very thoroughly in the details of the corn-hog reduction plan. These men will then help farmers make out their blanks correctly at the contract signing days. Doing each step of the corn-hog program thoroughly and accurately will speed up the date when the benefit payment checks will arrive in this county, Mr. Liggett says.

Selection of men to form the board of directors in the county corn-hog production control association will follow immediately after the sign-up days in this county. As soon as the permanent organization is complete they will arrange for appraisal of the land taken out of corn. This work and the summary of the figures on the contracts must be done before the contracts can be sent to Washington to be approved there for the benefit payments.

It is to be expected that several farmers will not be ready to sign the contracts until after the first of March and that individual men in the county will want to fill out their blanks at the county office after the schedule of sign-up days. No closing date for contract signing has been announced yet either at Washington or at the office of the state corn-hog administrator.

Mother Of Wayne Doctor Is Buried

Mrs. Sarah G. Lutgen Passes At Auburn After Being Ill With Pneumonia.

Mrs. Sarah C. Lutgen, mother of Dr. S. A. Lutgen of Wayne, died at Auburn, Neb., hospital Thursday morning after 10 days' illness with pneumonia, aged almost 91 years. Short funeral services were conducted in Auburn and the body was taken to Gem, Kan., for rites Saturday at the Baptist church and burial in the Calby, Kan., where her husband and a daughter are buried.

Mrs. Lutgen whose maiden name was Miss Sarah Asa, was born April 24, 1843, at Stockport, Ohio, and she was the last of her family. She was married to Athenius Lutgen at Stockport January 24, 1868, after the latter had served as corporal in the Union army.

As a young couple the Lutgens came to Nemaha county, Neb., in 1884, traveling by covered wagon. A year later the Lutgens went to a homestead in Thomas county, Kan., and put up a sod house on the barren prairie. In 1888 Mr. Lutgen was killed by lightning and Mrs. Lutgen was left with five little children. Bravely she faced privations of the frontier, doing much of the work on the homestead. Grasshoppers, drouth and other hardships came but Mrs. Lutgen cheerfully met them. When the family was grown Mrs. Lutgen left the homestead and divided her time with the children, spending about four months each year in Wayne.

Following a family reunion at Gem, Kan., this Christmas, Mrs. Lutgen went to Auburn with her son, Dr. C. C. Lutgen and she was to come to Wayne this spring.

Mrs. Lutgen was a faithful member of the Christian church for many years. She was also active in the W. C. T. U. and Women's Relief Corps. She was never idle and did a great deal of reading and fancy work.

Deceased is survived by two sons, Dr. Clifford C. Lutgen of Auburn, and Dr. S. Anson Lutgen of Wayne, and two daughters, Mrs. P. S. Houston and Mrs. H. A. Smith of Gem, Kan. There are 16 grandchildren and 9 great grandchildren. Dr. and Mrs. Lutgen went to Auburn Wednesday last week and returned until Sunday.

HOURS ARE CUT IN RELIEF WORK

Longer Periods Will Likely Be Restored When More Money Available.

Government order this week made it necessary to cut CWA workers' hours from 30 to 15. L. C. Gildersleeve reports. Funds were being used faster than was anticipated and this was necessary, the word explained to spread the money out to middle of February. Mr. Gildersleeve anticipates that longer hours will probably be restored. The same ruling applies in all parts of the country.

Wayne county has the same quota of men, 239, working this week. Straightening of highway No. 113 seven miles west of Wayne, construction of spurs from Carroll south and from Winside north, cutting down a hill on highway No. 35 three miles northwest of Wayne and grading south of Wakefield are projects still moving forward. Wayne men are working on the new sewer on south Main street, and each of the other towns has men at work making improvements.

The new project of making record of delinquent taxes and mortgages was started the last of the week.

Women At Work

This last week, sewing groups were formed at Winside and Carroll as well as in Wayne, and 14 women were employed in sewing. Carroll group completed 21 garments, with eight articles of infants' wear, three girls' dresses, three women's dresses, six boys' shirts and a baby quilt. Winside completed seven women's dresses, two pairs pajamas, two night-gowns, 13 children's dresses, 11 pairs pants, making 35 in all. Wayne women completed 94 garments in all. This included four women's dresses, one girl's dress, one infant's sheet, seven infants' pillow slips, six large slips, two women's slips, two boys' shirts, nine flannel slips, one jacket, three babies' kimonos, five infants' slips, nine infants' bands, 12 diapers, one apron and one blazer jacket. In addition, six garments were repaired. For the week, 150 garments were completed and turned over to Mrs. Hattie McNutt for distribution among the needy of Wayne county. Additional contributions of material and money were received from several groups during the past week. A. A. U. W. donated $2. Pleasant Valley club voted $2. P. E. O. bought new material. The Ophelia Aid society contributed new material, as did the Salem Aid society. Apron club brought a large number of garments for remodeling.

NEW PORT TO PUT CITY ON THE MAP IN AIR BUSINESS

AN EASY way to establish an air port in Wayne is revealed by a proposition to cooperate with the government. It is said the federal treasury would help finance the enterprise. Growing importance to location of more air ports, and as Wayne is a progressive community with great expectancy, as a life insurance agent would say, it seems fitting to put this point in shape to share in the air business. Local groups are considering the plan, and they will initiate action if results are promising. Though automobiles and trains have become faster and more luxurious, they will not be able to compete in speed with air conveyances, and so anyone who wants to get somewhere quicker than in any other way will go into the air, especially if he has the nerve to make risk of his neck correspondingly great. Under construction now is an air craft that will travel 500 miles an hour. Thus, in the future one may journey out to the Wayne air port at 8 in the morning, board an air ship and reach San Francisco or Los Angeles in time for the noon-day meal.

BISHOP SPEAKS TO KIWANIANS

Old-Time Traits Must Be Revived To Restore World Prosperity.

Confidence that the United States would pull through this world crisis safely, and continue its leadership among nations of the world, was expressed by Bishop Frederick Lecte who was Kiwanis club speaker Monday noon. Bishop Lecte came to fill the Methodist pulpit last Sunday, and also addressed valedictorians in chapel Monday morning.

Bishop Lecte chose "Nationalism, Internationalism and Personalism" as his luncheon subject. Ever since the World war, he stated, he had been ashamed that this country had not had the courage and audacity to take some less fortunate country under its protection. Given choice of protection from any world power, not a country but would choose America first, and Britain second. Even in our depths of depression, our poorest people were not so bad off as the peasant classes in other lands. Our difficulties are not that we have too much of everything, because somebody needs everything we can raise or manufacture. The trouble lies not in productivity but in distribution, for never in the history of the world has there been a year when enough food was not produced to feed all the people on earth.

What this country needs is to restore the old-time traits of honesty, integrity which made its greatness. Just now we are on trial before God and the entire world. United States was never in such peril as today. Tides of life are constantly flowing more rapidly. What is thought in Russia today will be thought here tomorrow. What is done in Germany and in Italy today will be approved by certain groups in our country. The growing use of planes is uniting the world, but also laying it open to attack by air. No nation will be safe in future years unless contacts for permanent peace are formed with rest of the nations.

China, sleeping Oriental power will be deeply concerned with our future. This big country is made up of at least five separate units without any real unity. It is open to exploitation by government officials. The rise of generals to power is explained in this manner. A Chinese man goes out and robs a store, and has enough to hire a soldier to help rob another one. With this loot he hires several more soldiers, and soon has enough to command an army. Then he comes into power and becomes a war lord.

Of Russia it may be noted that she lacks only a warm-water port to dominate any single nation, and three average nations of the world. The bishop regrets the suspicions being cast upon Japan, for he has found, in his travels, that there is much marvelous character in this people. The year he visited Japan, the Christmas story was allowed to be sent over the national radio broadcasts, and this in a pagan nation! He calls the Japanese most like Americans of any other people—being inventive, keen, alert and ambitious. Nowhere is such loyalty to government found. The speaker looks forward to a strong alliance between United States, China and Japan, a great Pacific force which will insure world peace. In conclusion, the bishop stressed that we need sound nationalism, strong Christian internationalism, but the world can be no better or no worse than the individuals which inhabit it. The trouble is not in nations but in those who make up the nations. Capitalism is not weaker.

Prized Clergy

WE are too jealous of Wayne to regard indifferently the removal of an active, useful citizen to some other field. It is perhaps pardonable selfishness to want to hold individuals whose mission is to serve and help, even if we often forget needed evidences of approval and support.

And compelled to forfeit Rev. Braisted reminds us that the ministers of different denominations are valuable contributions to the thought and fortitude of a community. They do not need to be militant to be helpful. They only need to express sound convictions, pointing the way and safeguarding the good.

Future Politics

THE coming political campaign may see new party alignments. Setting aside the old-time bosses of both major parties, it is not unreasonable to look for a redistribution of party affiliations under new leaders. The trend to socialism has been too strong to be endorsed by all democrats, but it is the very thing that suits the predilections and present aspirations of many hitherto flying under the banner of the republican party.

town sites. It is now threatening to detour around the Yankton bridge, leaving no water under it, and making an investment of $1,250,000 fade into distressing nothingness. It is said that old rivermen had issued warning that the river would never be content to stay under the bridge—not that the structure was unsatisfactory to it, but because the surrounding area was too easily overpowered.

President Roosevelt's critical remarks touching law practice by national committeemen before government departments at Washington brought Nebraska's Arthur F. Mullen into the limelight. It was made plain that committeemen either should resign such influential posts or park their law business outside of Washington's official zone.

Three high school boys decided that they wanted to go to Mexico—perhaps to take part in a revolution—but when they reached Norfolk, officers started them back home, doubtless glad to get back. If the boys can be convinced that they would be missed from home, that they are needed at home and that they are to be trusted to handle a lot of responsibilities in the future here, they could certainly be persuaded that their greatest usefulness and content lie in the home neighborhood rather than in the precarious environment of a foreign state.

The most salutary achievement under the NRA has been the explosion of child labor abuses in large factory centers. No doubt children were dwarfed by the practice permitted by human greed. No doubt children were denied privileges of education and recreation which belong to every child. But on the other hand, care should be taken to avoid making a rule that while curing abuses in some quarters, prevents children in other parts from developing a reasonable proportion of wholesome work and responsibility.

In his talk before the Kiwanis club Monday, Bishop Frederick Leeete made the small town dweller thankful that his lot was not cast amidst the restraints of metropolitan centers. The bishop also stimulated appraisal of American citizenship, now fraught with unusual hardships, but sustained in a land of highest ideals and greatest material resources.

South Sioux Game Slated For Friday

Smarting under a drubbing from the fast Fremont basketball team, Wayne high tossers have put in several hard practices this week in preparation for a heavy assignment with South Sioux City Friday evening. Wayne will see some excellent basket shooting at South Sioux City, according to Coach Robert Gibb. The coach has been experimenting this week and his best combination seems to be Don Wright and Sid Swanson as forwards, Robert Cunningham at center, and John Brugger and Melvin Brown as guards.

Slight Damage Done

Small amount of damage was done Tuesday afternoon to Win. Sharer's popcorn stand when a gasoline stove caught fire. Had Wayne been without fire call for 18 days longer a record of ten years would have been broken.

Want Information

Officials in Washington, investigating Wayne's application for loan for a community hall, has written for more information.

THE DEVIL

Divine services which appropriately precede and succeed the Herald's broadcast over WJAG, involved consideration of a personal devil one morning recently. Whether one prefers to think of a single, versatile devil of far-reaching power, or of many devils specializing in different branches of evil, it is a fact that sin got on its big rampage during and after the World War, and it is probable nothing but economic disaster could have brought us to our right senses. If we can imagine a personal devil, we can imagine how he smugly grinned as one nation after another got into the deadly conflict nearly twenty years ago.

(Continued from Page One) of living out of cans and boxes. Now in the farmer's cellar will be found his own products—butter, cream, eggs, fruits, vegetables and meats—and he and his family are living better even if they are not swelling their bank accounts.

Joins Scout Work

Raymond Bowers, college student, began his duties as assistant scoutmaster of troop 175, Wayne school, last Tuesday evening. He has considerable experience with scout work in South Dakota. Tuesday's meeting included talk by Mr. Bowers, two games based on points of the compass, short patrol meetings, then basketball game.

REDISTRIBUTION

If the redistribution of worldly possessions is to follow in the course of economic evolution, it is time for people to be looking around and deciding what they want. The chances are that a fellow desires the thing of which he has the least knowledge. It is important to look below the surface and inspect the inner workings. Little problems incident to any industrial or other operation are not solved on the house tops. Making plans mesh and work requires a lot of grinding effort that should be understood pending decision. We have changed so many times in our lives that we would have to make critical examination of the foundation on which the superstructure of any human endeavor is reared before drawing definite conclusions.

First Communion Given For Class

An impressive and edifying service took place at St. Mary's church in Wayne Sunday morning when 25 little children, 17 boys and 8 girls, made their first holy communion during 9 o'clock mass. To the strains of "Adante in G," played by Miss Marcella Huntmer, the little ones marched into the church filled to capacity with parishioners and friends. The altars and arch leading to the sanctuary were decorated with smilax and white carnations, simple but lovely and in keeping with the occasion.

Following the mass Mrs. F. S. Berry and Mrs. E. J. Huntmer, assisting catechism teachers, served a two-course breakfast at the former's home to Rev. Kelleher, the first communion class and the three altar servers, Jean Huntmer, James Sharer and Frank Strahan. A long table was arranged in the form of a cross and small crystal baskets of sweets and ribbons of smilax were used to decorate it.

Would Seek Help From Government

Rep. Frank Kloppe writes the following regarding C. C. C. projects for Wayne county: The federal government has seen fit to employ a vast army of our youth in certain types of conservation work during the past year all to the promotion of lasting good to the nation as a whole, and our state has perhaps had a demonstration of the value of the work. But the thought has come to the writer that perhaps we as a state have not grasped the opportunities that suggest themselves in this work.

Prominent Wakefield Firm Enters Twentyfifth Year

Char. A. Sar.

M. F. Ekeroth.

When Charles A. Sar and Martin F. Ekeroth came to Wakefield in 1909 and drew up papers of partnership, little did they think that this alliance would endure for 25 years, and that the little business they were fostering would grow into one of the most outstanding firms in this part of the country. Coming here as strangers, both men have made themselves a part of the town, entering whole-heartedly into community affairs. This week they observe the silver anniversary of their business union, and have arranged special sales events for this occasion.

Mr. Ekeroth came here from Omaha where he had been connected with a lumber firm, and Mr. Sar arrived from Essex, Iowa, bringing a background of experience gained in a lumber yard. January, 1909, marks the beginning of the Ekeroth-Sar partnership, for that year the men bought out A. J. Colson Lumber Co., formerly the H. P. Shumway Lumber yard, and laid the foundation for their present business. Only lumber and building materials were handled at this time, and all was housed in a frame office building on site of the post office. The present post office structure was built in 1912 and used as lumber office and to house a small stock of Builders' hardware.

In the fall of 1912, the firm purchased the George Childs hardware stock in the building now occupied by Wakefield Variety store, and business was conducted in this building until 1914 when the firm moved to the present post office building. The post office building was carried on in west half of the present Ekeroth & Sar store buildings. In 1917 the post office and firm changed buildings and in 1928, the present modern building was erected, giving Wakefield one of the most up-to-date and complete hardware stores in this part of the state.

As radios, electrical appliances and washing machines came onto the market, these were added to the hardware stock, and now Ekeroth & Sar carry an impressive line of electrical needs, radios, ranges and stoves, kitchen equipment and gift items in addition to their stocks of lumber, coal, hardware and building materials.

Both Mr. Ekeroth and Mr. Sar have played an active part in Wakefield affairs from beginning of their residence here. For 15 years, Mr. Ekeroth has served on the Wakefield public school board, and he has been active in the Salem Lutheran church, serving on the church board, and has served as secretary of the Community club.

Mr. Sar has twice served as Wakefield's mayor, has been a member of the board of Salem Lutheran church, is vice president of the Wakefield National bank, and last year headed the Community club.

The G. G. Hallers Came in Time For The Great Blizzard of 1888

The malevolent blizzard of 1888, which was the G. G. Hallers' introduction to Wayne county weather, and a cool reception they must have considered it. However, many years which followed must have been more pleasant, more kind, for the couple have remained here practically all of the 47 intervening years.

The Haller marriage took place back in Port Byron, Ill., a village on the beautiful Mississippi, just across from LeClaire, Iowa. This is one, if not the most beautiful spot along the great river, according to Mr. Haller. Mr. Haller had come from the state of Wisconsin in the southern part of the year when he was just ten years old. His bride also was of German birth, leaving her native Bremen during her first year.

December, 1887, found the Hallers heading for Nebraska, traveling by train and dividing their time between the box car which held all their possessions, and the half-heated caboose. They located on the farm between Winside and Wayne which still remains in their possession. The new home was a one-room 16x22-foot building, unplastered, without chimney, the whole perched on pegs so that the cold air could swirl in from the top, bottom and all four sides. When the great blizzard came on 12th day of the next month, the little house was sorry protection against the cold, for snow sifted in all afternoon, melting only in the
