By fixing severe penalties and by leaving nothing undone to capture the guilty, kidnaping promises to become a less popular sport. Gangsters, head-quartered in large centers, have been routed and often imprisoned. The pub-lic has been deeply incensed by numerous outrages prepetrated by organized out-laws, and the determination to free society from these menaces is in response to an insistent, popular demand.

NOT STRANGE. The fact that 5, Eng land high school seniors who were asked to identify "thirty leaders of the current times," where heard of Ramsey mald or Joseph Stalla and prtyfive per cent could y Charles Evans Hughes had no identify Charles Evans Hughes, but that all knew about Ål Ca-pone, is not so strange when one considers the further fact that the bad is always given greater emphasis than the good. Sen-sational lives or happenings re-celve more attention than great, ceive more attention than great orderly minds engaged in im-portant achievements. Probab-ly the high school student knows more about the tragedy that closed the life of Lincoin that about the early environment. closed the life of Lincoin than about the early environment of the great emancipator—about the sustaining sympathy of his foster mother. Probably morie of the facts surrounding the as-sassination of Garfleid are known than those touching the experience of the canal boy who became president. The 'cracked brain responsible for the mar-tyrdom of McKinley may be more clearly remembered than the president's devotion to his aged mother and invalid wife. Memory of an evil sticks, while note lives and useful deeds are often lightly passed over and noble lives and useful deeds are often lightly passed over and quickly forgotten. In high and low places evils are revealed with all the harrowing details. Much good is carelessly over-looked and many worthy acts are overshadowed by the excep-tional giants of satan. More and more the young should be led to understand and appreci-ate the rule of high purpose. Criminals get into the limelight because they are unusual.

WORRY.

WORRY. Did you ever look into a mir-ror and wonder how many wor-ries are buried in your face? Exploring beneath the surface, you find some major worries, some minor ones. What seem-ed to have been a major worry in early life is classified by the measurement of later judgment as a minor worry. Temporary shearnce of the mother from her measurement of later judgment as a minor worry. Temporary absence of the mother from her accustomed place, in later child-hood an abruptly severed neighborhood companionship, failure to learn a lesson in school, painful awkwardness in society and the nagging fears and burning hopes that accomand burning hopes that accom-pany first steps in life's stern business were giant worries when they happened. As they now lie buried in the face, they seem thivial, and one cannot un-derstand why they should have appeared so grievous and insur mountable. As maturity advan ces, as years gather, as exper iences thicken and extend, cau ses for worry seem to incre in frequency and weight. Th now seem like major worrie frequency and weight w seem like major w rhaps more properly contacts with new an and great as contacts with new and great-er responsibilities. Human tri-als begin early, and they con-tinue until the end of life. Thus, young persons, sensitive and easily oppressed, need the sup-porting counsel of elders. Through life the weak and faiigh life the Through life the weak and fai-tering need the breath of cour-age from the strong. It is no wonder that declining years find the face furrower by wor-ries-responsibilities — that lie-burted under it. But these wor-ries are magnified — mostly groundless fears, doing a lot or injury that should be avoided

Speaker At Kuranis Riwanians heard adventures of the open road from one who has followed the gypsy pain these just 22 years, at their huncheon meet-ing Monday, Franklin Lee Styven-son, "Vagabond poet." told of the events which had inspired his poems, and gave several of these. Swimming in an alligator-infest-ed lake in the south, caught alone in a blizzard a-top a mountain, rubbing elbows with professional men and professional tramps in lumbering box-ears were a few ex-periences told by the wanderer. President J. C. Johnson was in the chair, and Prof. John R. Keith led group singing. Dr. J. G. W. Lewis had Rev. W. E. Braisted as his guest, and Perry Theobald brought W. E. To my friends and neighbors in second ward: I am not a candidate forlehonm-ination to the eity council this spring. I make the announcement early so that you may have a fair chance to think about a successor. My decision is entirely and ab-solutely my own; it is diclated to me by no ene. My main and con-trolling reasons are the following: First, I need more time to do some work connected with my profession. for the period ending July 1, 1935. All funds appropriated under this emergency measure would be allo-cated to the states on the basis of need as disclosed by recent sur-veys; and would be controlled by a special board, with the U. S. com-missioner of education as chair-man.

First, I need more time even man. Some work connected with may missioner of education as the man. Second, I believe the mayor-city council type of city government in the most educement of the nation's schools of a short term. The most economical, I am for the man gager type with an unper deviating of programs of a decade of automatic heating occupied in the lowest budgets and most gates. "Y OU'RE a tightwad!" says Mrs. Richard Roe, and the battle is on. Being a woman, the missus will probably win. But that doesn't mean she's right!

As a matter of fact her sterner half gives her an allowance big enough to run a household half again as large. The trouble is-Mrs. Roe hasn't learned how to call her shots when she spends.

You'll know the answer if you shop by reading the Herald ads. Even a 60 cent dollar will stretch to cover a lot more purchases when you sit down and plan your shopping in advance and can check value against value and price against price every week in the advertising pages of the Wayne Herald.

The FORD

V-EIGHT

ENGINE

YOUR GASOLINE

HENRY FORD has spent millions in developing this V-8 engine. It is the same type of engine as used in the big expensive cars. It is the only V-8 cvilinder engine in big expensive cars. It is the only V-8 cylinder engine in any car selling for less than $2500.

Vet this Ford V-8 motor, be-cause of Ford engineering, is more efficient and economi-cal than any six-cylinder or "straight eight.";

It gets more work out of your gasoline. It has a dual carburetor and dual intake manifoid which feed vapor-ized gasoline evenly to all eight cylinders. It has water-line thermostats which keep the motor at correct operat-ing temperature, winter and summer. It uses a imlaimum of oil. It has a new, lighter, more efficient crankshaft.

In the New Ford V-8 you get a car which has this power-ful, economical motor, is handsome and luxurious and has the strength and safety assured by an all-steel body.

SEE this great car the Briggs Motor Co. Showroom. Drive it yourself. Many fine body types are available, priced from
