If he talks much as he moves in the cur-rents of human activites, he is likely to be misquoted or his words misinterpreted. If he says nothing, he will be charged with being dumb. There is no honorable es-cape from buffeting winds, and the way to do is to meet vicissitudes with courage and accept a satisfied conscience as ade-quate reward.

Dr. A. L. Bixby, poet-philosopher, Lin-coln Journal, closes his Sunday sermon by saying: "The problem of life is the con-trol of our behavior." If behavior in getting along with the other fellow were symphthetic and helpful—not just looking out for selfish gain—the route to economic recovery would be shorter and easier. Keeping behavior humanized and sensible in all relationships would make hardships incident to disturbed conditions easier to manage. nanak

The president is reported to have had some feelings of dissatisfaction when he signed the newspaper code. He is said to have disliked the idea of employing boys under 16 years to deliver papers out-side of school hours, and he characterized the freedom of the press clause as pure surplusage. He decided to let the in-ritating clauses stand, but asked for a re-port in give days on operation of the child surplusage. It stand, but asked for a re-port in sixty days on operation of the child carrier systems.

Governor Bryan has decided to trans-fer headquarters from Lincoln to Washing-ton, having filed as a democratic candidate for the United States senate to succeed Senator Thompson who was appointed by the governor and who has graciously step-ped aside. As democrats figure a nomin-ation is equivalent to an election, they are filing intentions in largely increased num-bers. bers.

Emphasis on the spirit of Washington and Lincoln whose birthdays passed with February, should strengthen courage to overcome present difficulties and uphold fundamental ideals. With examples of Washington and Lincoln followed, there is no danger of slipping far away from the democracy which the one founded and the other preserved.

Senator Norris has launched his cam-paign for a unicameral legislature in Ne-braska, and so far the power trust has not been mentioned as a reason for doing it. In time voters will doubtless be offer-ed an opportunity to say whether the ed an opportunity to say whether they want to change to a legislature with one branch, or continue the present doublebarreled variety.

We are pleased to note that the Wayne Business and Professional Women's club has adopted the "hostess" idea—borrowed from California—as a way to welcome newcomers to the community. The club is on the alert to be of practical service to the town, and it is certain to show large and satisfactory results.

Mayor Martin L. Ringer has received from Congressman Howard a letter, say-ing the proposed Wayne community house is still under consideration in Washington, and that if additional information or sup-port is needed the fact will be communi-cated to those leading the movement here.

March 1 is moving day, and farewell gatherings have been numerous in farm neighborhoods during the past week. The date does not guarantee the best weath-er for moving, but it is the convenient time to get settled and in readiness for spring work.

A law is proposed in Washington to penalize employment of unearned titles such as "general," "colonel," etc. This action would seem hard on the south where every white fellow is called "colonel."

Unusual Problems

usual problems connected with the corn hog plan are being urged this week by the county temporary committee to get their figures down on a corn hog contract. The filling out of the contract does not make it a binding agreement with the secretary, the committeemen point out. It does make it easier to submit the case to the state and national corn hog administration headquarters for consideration. The sooner the difficult special cases are down in black and white and submitted to the state head-quarters at Lincoln, the more chance local people with these cases will have to get their problems solved favorably. The proper way to submit such a case for consid-ration at Lincoln or Washington is to put down all figures on the agricultural agent.
