

Stage Play Day For Many Girls

Three Hundred Fifty Attend Rodeo at Wayne College This Saturday.

Annual play day staged by the department of physical education of Wayne State Teachers college, with Miss Esther Dewitz in charge, took the form of a spring rodeo on Saturday when about 350 girls from 13 high schools participated. The "stamped" began at 12:45 when the "cowhands" with their foremen checked their packs at the bank-house. They were branded and directed to the open range where they engaged in bronco tagging, lassoing, hog-tying and trick riding.

All took part in a grand entree at 1:30 and stock judging parade followed with ribbons for winners. At sound of a cow-bell various brands grouped themselves for a swim from 2:15 to 4:45. Wild horse racing, bronco bisting on the open range, dancing the prairie-dog gambol, the cowboy circle and the rattler's quadrille occupied attention.

Again the cow-bell rang at 4:45 and all hands were taken to the arena where each home ranch took a turn furnishing entertainment. Having worked up an appetite, the cowhands went to the chuck wagon for food.

For those who could stay pictures were shown and a tired, happy bunch disbanded at 7:15.

The play day was declared one of the most successful ever held.

Judges of posture were Mrs. Elmer Mortenson, Mrs. T. C. Cunningham and Miss Helen Kellogg.

Girls of the physical education department assisted Miss Dewitz with the events.

District Judge Comes, District Judge Clinton Chase of Stanton, comes here April 5 for regular equity session of court.

Movielites

Here's another week when you shouldn't miss a single attraction at the Gay theatre. Everyone is talking about the pictures which F. L. March has booked for the coming days and you'll want to see every one. "Search for Beauty" is this Thursday, "Mandalay" is Friday and Saturday and "Wonder Bar" is Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

"Search for Beauty." March 29. The pick of 176,000 gathered from all parts of the globe grace this eye-filling, magnificent entertainment. Yes the producers really cupped beauty contests all over the world and this picture brings to you the results of months of search for the most beautiful girls. And these young folks present a hilarious romance. It is brimming with beauty and good-natured fun.

"Mandalay." March 30 and 31. From the "House on 56th Street" to the other side of the world and the other side of life, Kay Francis is in her most glorious triumph in "Mandalay." With her are Ricardo Cortez and Lyle Talbot.

A tale of thrilling adventure with colorful romance is "Mandalay." It is set in the picturesque background of the orient. The theme concerns a beautiful Russian girl, an exile from her own country, who is sold into virtual slavery to a resort keeper by her own lover. Her escape on a boat to Mandalay and her pursuit entail some of the most thrilling action.

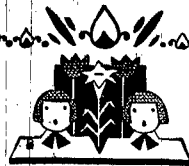

Kay Francis makes the greatest characterization of her screen career in "Mandalay."

"Wonder Bar." April 1, 2 and 3.

"42nd Street," "Gold Diggers," "Footlight Parade," and now the most spectacular attraction the show world has ever known, "Wonder Bar." Sensation of two continents on the stage, it comes to the screen in a blaze of unrivalled splendor to give you a gloriously new conception of musical screen spectacle. Ricardo Cortez, Dolores Del Rio, Al Johnson, Kay Francis and Dick Powell are stars. Guy Kibbee and Hugh Herbert furnish comedy.

"Wonder Bar" is acclaimed the mightiest amusement enterprise under the sun. It is a thundering pageant of drama, song, girls and spectacles. A show of 10,000 words! Filling their vision with a grand climax! You just can't miss it.

Reform Needs

TAMMANY'S raw and insatiable swinishness is being revealed and routed by the new municipal administration of New York City. Corrupt practices in connection with two public institutions—the penitentiary and the Home for the Aged, both located on Welfare Island, a misnomer and a mockery—have affronted the popular sense of public duty.

The old "spoils system" is still too largely observed. Persons placed in charge of public institutions on Welfare Island were not chosen for fitness, but were given jobs as rewards for political services. The same poor policy of intrusting responsibility is not restricted to Tammany, nor to New York. It is too generally prevalent in large centers everywhere to insure the best government.

Speaking of the shameful betrayal of public interest by Tammany in New York, and observing that that city has been slow to learn, the Christian Science Monitor says: "Unfortunately, other cities have the same lesson to learn; for wherever boss rule by corrupt political machines, of whatever party or label, is in control, abuses similar to those in New York inevitably creep in and eventually crop out. The latest disclosures on Welfare Island are new in their details, but they are part of the same old pattern of political parasitism still prevalent in too many American cities. It is the task of honest and alert citizens to drive the rascals out."

Reform movements following in the wake of an economic upheaval, due in large measure to abuses of power, must make headway against political corruption, organized racketeering and threats of communism, all equally inimical to the fundamental principles of an orderly democracy.

A Washington report states that funds are being sought from the civil works administration to stop the Missouri river from cutting into Nebraska across from Yankton where a bridge is threatened with being left without any water under it. Yankton people are uneasy over the prospect of the river abandoning the bridge, though as a matter of fact, if the channel comes this way, South Dakota would still have the bridge and Nebraska would have fewer farms. Washington authorities are investigating, and if the river is disposed to show proper respect for Washington authorities, it will suspend depositions until decision is reached and man power is assembled to present a fair and equal fight for supremacy.

Every panacea of which the human mind can conceive to promote economic health has probably been presented to the administration at Washington. But if any one can think of a new plan of treatment he should trot it out before recovery has overcome all remedies and has been firmly established. A few more or less remedies will not hurt if they do not help. So, if anyone has an idea that he thinks will solve existing problems, he ought to get it out ahead of surrender of the depression and the collapse of calamity.

An agreement has been reached to establish Philippine independence in 1945, and in the meantime the islanders are expected to put the finishing touches on knowledge of how to behave themselves and manage their government. If in the coming eleven years the jingoes succeed in getting us into trouble with Japan, we may wish we had released the islanders sooner and had fewer outlying possessions to protect.

Mussolini has just had an election with no one to vote for but himself and his satellites who will be retained or kicked out as expediency suggests. The Italian dictator will acknowledge with extended chest a popular approval that could not under the rules be anything else.

Mild weather and freedom from obstructing snow have led farmers to get into their fields and start spring work. But no one is betting on continuation of soft zephyrs until March moves out and on.

Some listen intently to learn and profit; others to distort and misinterpret. One constructs and helps; another tears down and hurts.

EASTER

This is the last week before Easter Sunday which commemorates the resurrection, and all Christian organizations look forward to this occasion to re-emphasize spiritual truths and strengthen religious values. Easter is an outstanding day in Christian circles. It means that the Nazarene rose from the dead to reassure a sick world. The light of the resurrection has shone through succeeding centuries, and it has been a source of comfort and help to countless millions. In periods of stress when evils at least seem more numerous and vicious than ever, the orderly masses turn to the voice of the resurrection for hope and courage more than ever. With the Easter awakening consistently comes the renewal of vegetation—return of the green of delightful promise spread everywhere. The Easter observance signals new life and revived hope.

SLEEP

Do you take your troubles to bed with you, and as you hit the pillow begin to mull over the things you couldn't straighten out during the day? Perhaps the markets were not what you expected; perhaps trade was dull, collections disappointing. Perhaps you have enough in worldly comforts, but are dissatisfied by not having more. Perhaps plans have gone so far awry that you don't meet, and you are puzzled over ways to bring them together. Perhaps you have had to turn to charity, and the novelty of the experience finds your pride hard to manage. Perhaps you are so used to accepting charity that you are nettled by the seeming meagreness with which it is administered. Perhaps you have offended some one, or perhaps some one has offended you. Whatever the cause or the circumstances, you feel aggrieved. While you are busily handling and dismissing one task after another in the day's routine, nagging recollections do not take full possession of your conscience. Annoyances wait until you have withdrawn from the world and are ready to sink into refreshing slumber. Then troublesome thoughts stir up an argument and harrow you into prolonged wakefulness. As you crawl between the covers, think of some pleasing devils you wanted to do, but didn't do—how successfully you thwarted the blandishments of satyr, how heroically you triumphed over the whisperings of greed, how much worse you could have been treated by your fellows, or how much worse they could have been treated by you. Then, in a self-regulatory mood, you wake heads with yourself. You get everything and go to sleep.

Wayne Travelers Report Hitler's Government Popular With Germans

To come back from a winter's visit to mild-weathered Germany, into Wayne county's surprising equinoctial snowstorm was a cold welcome to Mrs. Caroline Dammeyer and her brother, Emil H. Steib, when they arrived home on Sunday, March 18. The two returned well satisfied with their visit, glad to have seen home folks again, but glad also to be back in the land of their adoption and well content to remain here. This was the first time Mr. Steib had been back in 42 years, but his sister had re-visited her birthplace in 1906 and again in 1912.

The Wayne folks sailed from New York on December 16 on the great German Lloyd liner, Europa, making the journey to Cherbourg, France, in five days and having a pleasant and uneventful stay on this floating hotel. Cherbourg was all green and fresh, with cattle grazing in the pastures right in the middle of December! A short stop-over in Paris where they shivered in the damp, raw coldness, and then on to Strasbourg in Alsace-Lorraine, where lives their brother. Conditions were better here than in France proper—more work and better living conditions. Here they had Christmas dinner in the good old-country style, and then on to Colmar in the same provinces, where both had been born. And, incidentally, they were born in French territory for France possessed these much-disputed provinces at that time, losing them very shortly to Germany and recovering them only after the World war. The old home place is now occupied by Mrs. Dammeyer's and Mrs. Steib's niece.

They found German the most popular language in Alsace-Lorraine, although both German and French languages are taught in the schools, and to be in business one must have them both. Every young man is required to serve a year in the French army.

Hitler Is Popular.
In Germany they found renewed optimism and their relatives were confident that Hitler's government would prove the salvation of Germany. He is given credit for saving Germany from communism. "Heil Hitler" is the greeting one receives everywhere—the conductor enters the railroad coach and raises his right hand in the Hitler-greeting. Clerks in the stores welcome one with the sign—everywhere, young and old, seem in strong accord with the new government. Everyone has work—in fact, loafing is not tolerated at all, and beggars are promptly arrested and locked up. In contrast, there were many beggars on the streets of France. Germany is a hum with building activity—the government offers to pay 40 percent of costs for remodeling homes and the citizens entered heartily into the plan. Fewer motor cars here—the laborers travel about on bicycles, just as they do in France.

This proved a mild winter, with no lasting snows and when the Wayne folks left Germany, farmers were in the fields plowing, trees were budding out and pie-plant had reached seven or eight inches in height.

After being with Mr. Dammeyer's relatives in Westphalia and Hanover provinces, Mrs. Dammeyer and her brother sailed from Bremen on the Europa. A heavy storm made it necessary to change the course and seven days were required to reach New York port. They landed on March 16 and came on to Wayne at once, reaching home on Sunday after over three months' absence.

medal for placing first in extemporaneous speaking at Hastings college, Jo Raymond Sala last week Tuesday. Raymond replied briefly, and the debaters who competed at Hastings spoke also. Next day, Josephine Ley, president of the Ppp club, introduced the winners in the sub-district declamatory contest, Bethel Brown and Raymond Sala, to the student body.

High school art students are working on athletic posters. Attractive letter-holders and boxes are being made also.

In Junior High.
Eighth graders had a debate in history Thursday on the question, "Resolved: That the blockade did more to defeat the South than the military attacks of the Union forces." Betty Helen Ellis, Roberta Baker and Mildred Ringer upheld affirmative, and Wayne McMaster, Franklin Simonin and James Kingston argued the negative. Judges favored the affirmative. Eighth grade service league met Wednesday last week. Franklin Simonin, James Kingston and Wayne McMaster presented a play, "Mr. Cigarette Pays a Visit," and Betty Strahan, Marjory Hook and Betty Helen Ellis sang rounds. In arithmetic, the class is taking up study of the metric system.

Betty Helen Ellis and Geraldine Gamble had drawings submitted to Miss Martha Pierce, approved for artists' merit badge last week. The work was done in school art class. Geography 7 class is studying about Holland. The junior service league held a party in gymnasium Friday evening, playing games and concluding with refreshments.

History 6 class completed study of Canada last week. The fibres such as hemp, flax, silk and wool are occupying fifth graders in geography period.

In Lower Grades.
Last week fourth graders studied about rubber, in connection with their rubber project. They brought a ball, eraser, hot water

An original play, "Shoes," was written by third graders in English class and each wrote a part, personifying himself as a part of a shoe. Those chosen to take part were: Dorothy Jean Casper, sole; Robert Wright, heel; Dorothy Nelson, upper; Nan Nicholaisen, eye-let; Bobby Jean Carroll, shoestring; Rodney Love, lining; Elaine Ben-thack, thread; Ida Mae Evans, welt; Kenneth Sevy, nails; Dorothy Ahl-vers, glue; Thomas Johnson, [cob-]bler. In the playlet, the parts quar-rel among themselves over which is the most important, and then the cobbler comes in and tells them that no one is more important than the other—they are all necessary to the shoe. It closed with the shoemakers' dance. Norman Ray Reynolds gave a synopsis of the play at the beginning and intro-duced the characters, and Bonnie Fays Kugler was the curtain, Bot-ty Jean Carroll printed the signs which distinguish the different parts. This culminates the shoe project.

Gordon Johnson had a birthday on March 19 and brought treats for his classmates in third grade. He was eight years old.

Second graders have two absorb-ing new water pets—little turtles from the Century of Progress ex-position, which have the name of the fair and hand-enameled flowers on their shells. Clair Hoblet brought them.

The Patty Hill block house has been converted from a library into a workshop, and the children have enjoyed cutting out wooden animals and figures.

The kindergarten play house has cheesecloth curtains now, and a table, stove and cupboard have been fashioned out of orange crates.

Men and Pianos

I guess pianos are a good deal like men. You know once in a while you meet a man you know is a high grade fellow the minute you look at him. Most men you can't make up your mind about until you know them awhile, hear them talk, get their ideas on this and that. But now and then you see a man you can bank on the moment you set eyes on him. There is something about his face and the expression of his eyes that shows he has the stuff in him. That is a good deal the way with the HADDORFF piano. There is something about the cases and the finish and the tone and the detail that seems to register class with every one. And I'll tell you something more; I don't believe there is a finer piano built.

There is no piano built with which we do not invite the closest inspection between the Haddorff and it. This pertains to tonal beauty and tonal resources as well as excellence of workmanship and the fine quality of materials.

There is one point that we wish to impress. The Haddorff belongs to those few things which are still hand-made, custom-built and which are cherished as personal possession and passed along finally as heirlooms. Pianos of this kind are not turned out in quantity. There is no rush about their making, and nothing is overlooked or neglected. And that, of course, is the way it should be with something that you purchase, not to be used for a short time and discarded but as a permanent life-time investment.

A piano is always just as fine as it feels to the touch and sounds to the ear of the accomplished musician—just that fine and never any better. The perfect regulation of a piano action is a thing which is never accomplished except by experts. And the fine points of piano tone—the quality or color, the clear singing resonance, the purity, the reserve of power and the even balance of the whole scale in both quality and power—these things are never accident. They represent the ideas of the man who created the piano and a skilled craftsmanship carefully trained execute them.

These things are in no sense superficial. They go down to the very roots of the piano design and structure. They are reflected in the selection or rejection of every piece of material, the fitting of every joint and the care of every operation. That explains why a really fine piano always has a long musical life.

We Have Placed Several of These Haddorff Grand Pianos In Wayne and Vicinity

Radio station WCLO Janesville, Wis., are using two of these pianos for broadcasting. Also WMAQ Chicago uses one of these pianos. The Universal Picture Corporation uses it in performances for Universal Movie-toné Film recording.

I have put the Haddorff Concert grand to many tests, having used it in numerous recitals as well as with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra as soloist. It is an achievement to have built a piano so eminently satisfying to concert artists, and I congratulate the Haddorff Co. on having accomplished this.

RALPH LAWTON,
Concert Pianist and Virtuoso.

I want to tell you how delighted I have been with the beautiful Haddorff piano, which I have been using in our Opera Musicals. In playing these Opera Scores I must have a piano that is really capable of all gradations of tone, for I have to produce orchestral effects; and that, of course is impossible on the average piano.

MAX E. OBERNDORFER,
Concert Pianist, Omaha, Nebr.

About ten years ago I became acquainted with your wonderful instruments. These pianos at once impressed me with their gloriously beautiful tone. No other piano of which I know excepting perhaps the Steinway is adequate for my demands, and even that famous make is limited in certain respects.

"Dog-Town" Was Point Of Interest To Early Settlers Of Wayne County

Did you ever hear about Dog-Town?

Sounds like a blues song, or maybe a lively part in the South, but the settlers, as any early settler will tell you, the inhabitants of Dog-Town were probably the earliest Wayne county settlers, colonizing the land now farmed by John Vennberger to northeast of Wayne, and setting up an intricate housing system extending 10 or 15 feet below ground, where they lived in complete independence of the red-skinned tribesmen, or the palefaces with barking dogs, who supervised them.

The dog-town inhabitants were those large ground squirrels known as prairie dogs, who were most familiar to early explorers of northeast Nebraska and to the founders of old LaPorte. Mrs. W. A. Hunter recalls a visit she made to Dog-Town in those early days, and the hundreds and hundreds of little fellows which came out of their holes to back and chatter in the sunshine, standing erect on their hind feet. Appearing like little faces resembling dogs, and a sharp little bark which resembles the dog's. These almost extinct prairie inhabitants lived under mounds two or three feet across and nicely rounded off, the crater-like hillock keeping out running water and providing an excellent height from which to watch for enemies. Just a stir, a scent, and the dogs were aware of danger—they scurried quick as a flash into their holes and dog-town was deserted!

Folks who went out with spades, determined to dig out the elusive little fellows, usually became exhausted before they reached bottom of the holes. Below they would find several horizontal chambers, some used for living places and others for storage of foods. A small nut which grew below ground on roots of a tough prairie grass, was eaten by the dogs, and herbage and grass made up their entire diet. Water supply did not worry them for they did not drink at all, getting enough moisture from their regular fare. When the prairie was broken for cultivation and new crops planted, these mammals caused plenty of damage, but as the season advanced, the growing crops were safe from them.

Ask Mr. Hunter what he remembers about dog-town and he'll say "Jiggers!" for he had good reason to remember a visit to Dog-Town from which he came home well-infested with these insect pests. Their presence in Dog-Town was one reason it was seldom visited by the settlers. Only thing to kill the jiggers was pork rinds, says Mr. Hunter. Rub yourself all over with the rind and the salt kills the pests.

Eli Sheldon who came here in the early days and boarded at the Hunter homestead, spent two years assembling a collection of prairie animals, birds and snakes, in preparation for the Philadelphia Centennial exposition. Owls, coyotes, prairie dogs, skunks, large white eagle, bobcats, snakes and Nebraska minks were included in the caravan with which he set out, accompanied by Mr. Hunter and another man, for the journey east. Three big wagons bore the load, rattling and bumping over the ill-marked roads from old LaPorte to Fort Wayne, Ind. Here the wagon and horses were sold, and Mr. Sheldon loaded his collection on a train for the east. And never again did the hunters hear of him, or the fate of his Nebraska exhibit. Dog-town representatives were secured after much effort, Mr. Sheldon capturing them alive by means of traps.

Cultivation of the prairie drove out the dogs and Dog-town was soon abandoned.

Easter

'Tis Easter morn, the day breaks fair,
Spring birds are singing songs of glee;
The Christ is risen from His grave—
His resurrection sets men free.

Throughout the world let voices ring,
Let children raise their voices high,
Let flowers raise their dainty heads,
And birds soar to the azure sky.

Let all things praise the risen Christ—
And let me not forget this day,
But make my heart an open vault,
Wherein my lord may always stay.

And let me, too, my voice raise high
In praise of Thee, Oh Christ above;
In praise of Thee who died for me
And filled me with Thy blessed love.

Protects Machinery and Equipment
Increases Power

Saves Repairs - Cuts Costs
Pyroil improves the operation and lengthens the life of autos, trucks, tractors and all equipment on the farm. Cuts operation and maintenance costs immensely. Reduces damaging wear on all frictional areas. Not a substitute for regular oil, but a concentrated extreme-pressure super-lubricant simply added by the ounce to the oil, gasoline and grease. Pyroil has perfected the greatest enemy of friction known to science. It establishes a cooling, slippery, wear-resisting and heat-proof surface on all vital parts. In motors, provides sustained lubrication in the head, offsetting many troubles at the source. Frees valves, aids compression, increases power and performance.
