NUMBER FIFTEEN

The Thirteenth—Johnson Hits Hitlerism—Inter-viewing Live Stock Prospects—Truckers Join Strike in California—Warms Loading Workers.

Any luck on Friday, the thirteenth, could properly be attributed to Mr. Jinx. An automobile accident on any other day would be just another accident, but if it happened on Friday, the thirteenth, it was planned and executed by some unusual coincidence which is dominant on ordinary days. Both those who were careful to avoid unnecessary risks and those who carelessly tempted the special devil appointed to preside over Friday, the thirteenth, seemed to escape equally unscathed. The way people disregarded dangers of the day leads one to conclude that superstition, like smallpox, has been largely exterminated, appearing only at rare intervals and then only in a mild form.

Johnson Gains Favor. We have more respect for General Hugh S. Johnson, head of the NRA, since his Waterloo, Iowa, speech in which he denounced the summary killing of individuals in Germany by the Hitler dictatorship. The general, witnessing the evils of suppressed publicity in Germany, says he now understands why the newspapers of the United States insisted on keeping their mouths free from everything that might imperil accusations of liberties. Johnson's reference to recent atrocities in Germany caused a fearful flutter in Washington diplomatic circles, and Johnson answered the flutter by standing pat on his Waterloo criticism, which further excites our admiration. Most Americans will agree that no apology is needed, Johnson's humanitarian qualities, as revealed at Waterloo, will do much to negate unfavorable impressions made by his rough and fiery speeches during the past year.

Wayne Temporary Headquarters. H. L. Carpenter of Lincoln, who is traveling representative of the Omaha Stock Yards Company, made Wayne headquarters during last week, journeying out from this point each day to talk over live stock prospects with growers. It is his business to ascertain the needs of the live stock industry and help solve its problems. This area looks good to Mr. Carpenter as he contrasts it with the less-fortunate sections of the South Platte country where ugly drouth is still ravaging the land and taking its heavy toll. With the exception of a few spots where hail caused ruin, he finds in this section of the state a luxuriant growth of corn. Fields that looked sick in May—the youth of blighting drouth—were transformed by abundant rains into a wealth of promise.

Truckers Walk Out. To help maritime strikes block commerce on the Pacific coast, 3,700 truck drivers are reported to have walked out of their jobs at San Francisco. This doubtless would be better news to the railroads and to automobile users of the highways if the truckers would make their strike permanent. Fellows who strike because of disagreement often a question of recognition contrast so sharply with those who want jobs and cannot get them, that the employment situation becomes both comedy and tragedy comedy fashioned from inequities, tragedy begotten by accompanying hardships.

Secretary Issues Warning. We want to take our hat off to Secretary Ickes of the interior department at Washington. He has warned the 4,000 employees under him that a government job is not just an easy berth with little to do but draw down the stipulated stipend. An inspection revealed too much government time devoted to loafing, to primping, reading and breakfasting, and also revealed a scramble to get away at the quitting juncture that would remind one of an answer to a riot call or an attempt to escape a tornado. Secretary Ickes not only works himself, but he proposes to see that those in his department work. In the government service or in any other kind of service one cannot give adequate value if his main thought is how little time he can put in or how little he can do, while ostensibly at work and still hold his job. There needs to be a reeducation of one's interests and abilities to the task for which he is employed with more attention to what he may accomplish and less to what he is going to receive. Secretary Ickes blazes the way to a new standard in the field of federal employment which, as an example, will stimulate hopes in private industry and business.

Cochran in Wayne. Roy Cochran who has resigned as state engineer to run for governor on the democratic ticket, was in Wayne Saturday night extending personal acquaintance. He is already well and favorably known as head of the state's road building. He says he is not a politician, which fact may be expected to aid him in his contest for the nomination. Mr. Cochran has been invited to come back and make one of Wayne's Main street speeches.

WAYS OF PICNICS VACATION JAUNTS SHARE ATTENTION

The vacation period is now on in full blast, and will continue into September. People yearn for the mountains or lakeside, or wherever they are not, to see new scenes and to mingle with fellow-nomads who spin their yarns and shell their kicks around camp fires or over fishing paraphernalia. Revolving around blazing pines to keep all sides at an even temperature, or angling for trout that are too smart to be caught gives mental stimulus and lends variety to fatigue. If one has no elaborately planned vacation, he still enjoys frequent picnics, going to the grove or wateringplace that has captured his imagination, and sitting on a clump of brush to eat sandwiches, jams and dill pickles, the while watching and dodging routed flies and mosquitoes that are staging a comeback. Such interruptions of the accustomed grind—whether a vacation of a week or more or a brief and hurried picnic—bring refreshing change with enough tan and jigger bites and aching feet to enliven appreciation of the comforts of the usual groove and the usual routine.

TEMPORARY BOOM IN VALUES YEAR AGO IS RECALLED

ROGER W. Babson who makes it his business to study economic conditions and to issue frequent statements of his observations—interesting if not always enlightening—says we are now going through a seasonal slump, and that greater activity will follow in appropriate time. A year ago the stock market engaged in a feverish upswing, and prices made such an advance that people thought the depression was on the lobe, but the condition was unhealthy and temporary. Increasing costs with marked disparity in values slowed down building and other improvements, and thus hindered the prosperity which was eagerly sought. Babson says there is a shortage of more than a million homes, but that demand deposits in banks are $1,763,000,000 greater than they were a year ago. As soon as a share of hoarded millions moves into circulation, a powerful force will be lodged against the depression. Curing the depression is like curing a sick person by administering a lot of remedies without knowing what will help or hurt, but hoping that one or more of the remedies will take hold and effect recovery. Like a suffering person, a nation, a sick country will eventually get well even though some mistakes are made in treatment.

CONTRACTS SENT FOR FINAL OK

Expect Benefit Payments From Washington Soon In Wayne County.

With exception of a few corn-hog contracts which have been delayed for landlor's signatures, all Wayne county contracts have been mailed to Washington for final approval, and payment should be arriving within a short time, according to Agricultural Agent G. H. Liggett. Total first payment in Wayne county amounts to $239,000. Two later payments bring the total for the year to $544,000.

The Wayne county allotment committee feels that the quota set up for Wayne county by the state section were very fair. The committee in turn has put forth every effort to make fair and equitable adjustments between all contracts within the county and express appreciation for hearty cooperation of contract signers.

Expenses of the Wayne county corn-hog association to July 1 will amount to 1.1 percent of the benefit payments. J. M. Peterson, treasurer, based these figures on benefit payments at 30c per bushel on corn and $5 per head on the hog allotment compared with the budget turned in by the association for expenses to July 1. Books of the association are open to all who sign contracts and any may examine them.

Practically all the money spent, goes to local people who have done the work. Services and mileage of committee men and employees are included, also a little for supplies and office equipment.

A new budget will be drawn up by the directors to cover the period from July 1 to close of the year and this will not likely be as high as the first. Total expense of the association will not likely be more than 2 percent of benefit payments. This means that farmers receiving benefit payments will pay in association expenses about 2c out of each dollar of total benefit payments.

The state average of corn-hog contracts is $350.00 per county. By careful management members of the association have secured for Wayne county farmers a good sum of payments and have saved much in management costs.

Party Clubs THE main purpose in the organization of political clubs is to study public questions and form or reinforce convictions. One may accept belief in the principles of one party or another rather nonchalantly because of lack of facts or lack of discussion. In this day of unusual governmental experimentation there is need of more understanding interest than ever before.

The world got into a jam. Some European countries went from bad to worse in popular government. The theory of socialism has found practical expression in the terrors of nazism, fascism and communism. Agitators with axes to grind or selfish motives to serve have taken advantage of the low state of economic health to arouse discontent. Some foreign countries yielded to the blandishments of socialism only to be drawn into the vortex of dictatorial tyranny of the cruelest sort. With ugly examples abroad, many Americans, though aware of their unrestricted understanding and long established prerogatives, stand aghast at propositions that tend to strip the individual of inherent independence and move in the direction of national collectivism.

Granting that no one directing the new deal has any intention of going dangerously far in that way, the public generally is not disposed to run chances on the subsequent ascension of radicals who would entirely upset the existing order.

The republican party has needed the removal of obstructive barnacles—the shearing off of stupefying fossilization. It has needed new blood, aroused interest, clarified perspective, redefined principles dedicated to the preservation of American fundamentals, holding to a middle course that is both progressive and safe.

Some persons hitherto affiliated with the republican party, notably Senator Norris of Nebraska and Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, will be found heartily in accord with the new deal. On the contrary, many democrats, fearful of too great swing to the left, will support the opposition as presented by a reorganized republican party.

Thus, the future of party alignments will see division largely according to socialistic tendencies. Those who wish to put a check on the new deal's experiments will express themselves through the dissenting political organization. Those who accept the new deal's record in its entirety will vote for its candidates at the polls.

So, party clubs to discuss national affairs and to disseminate information touching things that have been done or may be done, are of vital importance and should be encouraged.

From Maine DEMOCRATIC leaders are not slow in sounding alarm. Mark Sullivan quotes from a speech given Memorial day by William R. Pattangall, chief justice of the supreme judicial court in Maine, and a leading democrat of that state. Here is the quotation:

"When the judiciary strive to find reason for upholding laws enacted at the behest of noisy minorities: when the plain and simple language of federal and state constitutions is given new, and strange meaning in order to meet assumed existing emergencies; when the sovereignty of the individual states is disregarded; when men are denied the right to buy and sell the products of their labor in the open market place, fixing the prices of the goods in which they deal by bargain with their fellows; when the farmer is forbidden to sow and reap on the land he owns according to his own best judgment; when every detail of daily business life of the citizen is ordered by officials, not of his choosing; when written agreements cease to have a binding force, even upon government itself—the nation which the Civil war was fought to preserve will have ceased to be. Our nation and our state were organized for one great purpose, to secure to the citizens thereof the blessings of liberty... All that they (Washington and Lincoln) lived and died for becomes a sad and futile waste if we of this generation are to surrender the heritage they bequeathed us because we lack the courage, the independence, the manliness, to work out our individual salvation but prefer to become paupers to the state; depending upon its bounty to supply our needs... The great mass of the people of this nation are sane. Should they not assert their sanity? Should they not make one more stand for individual freedom and a preservation of the form of government they inherited?"

Russia's New Law THE soviet government of Russia has a new law which fixes a penalty of death or ten years' imprisonment for any citizen who flees across the country's frontier, besides confiscation of all his property. Any member of a fugitive's family who knows of his intention without informing authorities, is liable to imprisonment for from five to ten years. Any adult member who didn't know his intentions may be banished to Siberia. (And Siberia at its worst would seem an improvement over Russia.) That is the kind of government—a government without conscience—that some would impose on the rest of the world.

Commenting on Russia's new law, the Christian Science Monitor says in conclusion: "What makes the new law still more surprising is that it was accompanied by a fanfare of editorial articles in the Moscow newspapers exalting it as a means of inculcating patriotism. There may be some difference of opinion in western democracies as to what constitutes patriotism; but there would be substantial agreement that it is not something that can be inspired through terrorism.

"One of the highest tributes to patriotism in the English language is Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. If one compares the words and spirit of that address with the test of the latest Soviet decree, one has an idea of the deep psychological gulf that separates the democratic countries of western Europe and America from the Soviet Union, where the self-styled dictatorship of the proletariat is simply carrying on, often in more extreme and aggravated form, the methods of ruthless repression which characterized its Tsarist predecessor."

Looking back over forty years and considering the things people had to contend with then as contrasted with things that have come along lately to test wits and endurance, the present impresses one as altogether more acceptable. Forty years ago one didn't have much, didn't expect much, worked hard for little, and small wages and low market and commodity values were sufficient to maintain human demands that were not far above nothing. We have gone a long way in living comforts, and to be knocked out of the orbit of usual emoluments or daily habits makes one feel like a motorist with a flat tire.

The way drought has stricken large areas of the corn belt increases the advantage of tying up last year's corn crop in government loans. Whether fed or sold, the stored corn crop should be worth considerably more than the government's interest. As developed by this year's shortage, the old corn will be needed and will be turned to good profit by growers.

In a dull period when a policeman's salary looks more attractive, the metropolitan governments ought to be able to improve the quality of their police groups. Employment of police officers for intelligence as well as for physical dimensions would seem to help solve crime problems and make the world safer for orderly members of society.

The spirit that dumps every possible task and responsibility on the other fellow is not the spirit that tamed the frontier and reared substantial and prosperous cities and towns. Inveigling another into carrying one's load enfeebles the metal inherited from sturdy pioneers.

Regular habits of sleeping and eating help sustain the individual in combatting hot, sultry weather.

General Johnson. Lincoln Journal: Dispatches from Washington tell us that the colorful General Johnson is "on his way out." Interpreted, that means that he is to leave the NRA, that his work as recovery agent is done.

A finished job should show results. The end sought at the beginning should be attained. What was promised to be brought about through this agency should have been brought about, if the work is complete. Just how well the job has been cared for, how far results have been obtained, the public will judge.

When the general rushed into power we were told that within a few months millions would be re-employed. Employment was at a low ebb then and that promise therefore brought joy to millions. Some estimates then placed the number of men out of work at between eight and twelve million. The estimates made were often an effort to serve a political purpose and the truth was difficult to find. More than a month ago estimates were that PWA work would employ six millions by mid-summer. It is midsummer now. If that many men have been put to work it is certain that as many men are not working.

Even in the best of times there is always unemployment. Men shift from job to job and because of that frequently are unemployed. Some men have a hesitancy about working that amounts to almost continual unemployment. These classes should be deducted from the total of unemployed if true conditions are to be shown—that is the exact variation from normal or good times employment. There never was a very careful and rapid survey made of the employment situation. A lingering effort along that line might not show present conditions, although it might reflect conditions when the survey began. So the world will never know just how many men who wanted work could not get it at the height of unemployment.

General Johnson quits his job before recovery has been attained, after spending many millions in an effort for which extravagant promises were made. Some claims are made for what has been done in the east, but out here the handicaps that the NRA has placed upon business have not been outweighed by the benefits following. General Johnson, cast in a top sergeant's mold, has not been entirely successful as a recovery agent. But like the top sergeant, he made his commands heard.

STRIKES.

The longshoremen's strike on the western coast which has involved enough sympathetic strikers from other groups to paralyze San Francisco, leads one to wonder why the orderly masses should be made to suffer the consequences of labor disputes. Peaceful settlements have been sought. Exactly where justice lies is probably known to those who have made impartial investigation. Non-participating persons are seriously menaced through failure of arbitration. Their usual pursuits are interrupted and property are endangered. They are made subject to threats and often violence as the result of disagreements in which they have no voice. It is one's right to quit a job, but it would not seem his right to interfere with those who want work or with those who have no connection with the issues at stake. We have a suspicion that professional agitators of reddish hue are aggravating and prolonging the conflict and preventing the success of Washington mediation. In strikes that threaten famine and riots it would seem the duty of the federal government to step in with troops and supplement state authorities in safeguarding the orderly conduct of affairs. It is remembered that President Grover Cleveland landed soldiers in Chicago during a critical juncture in a labor war and brought order out of chaos without any ceremony. The federal government's enlarged activities may well be extended to exercise of power in seeing that the rights of cities and individuals are preserved.

AAA plan was the subject discussed by farmers during the farm fair on a period of WIAG at Norfolk on Sunday afternoon, but the discussion turned out to be one-sided as no one was present to uphold the government's position. All farmers who spoke opposed the present arrangement. The opinion was expressed that to do best with either cattle or hogs, one must raise both. C. W. Anderson of Hoskins, who was one of the speakers, and he did not hesitate in expressing himself against government regulation of the farm business.

A general strike intended by union labor to paralyze the entire metropolitan area of San Francisco began Monday, aiming to help 27,000 workers to get changed working conditions. Police have started a drive to end the radical movement.

PROPHECY.

It seems that Diller, Nebraska, has a prophet or an interpreter of old prophecies. He suggests that earth's inhabitants are punished by one calamity or another all the time on account of sundry sins, keeping eternity's penal department too busy to think of a vacation. By consulting the scriptures he finds that the war, depression and drought were brought on by a lot of extra sinning, and the cleansing results of these punishments not being sufficient to recreate a respectable world, some other and bigger things will come along to put the finishing touches on sin. He mentions a tremendous, death-dealing earthquake which will not be restricted to California. The sun will be taken out of commission to give the universal distress a suitable background of darkness, and the stars will engage in annoying target practice, employing meteors of different sizes. The moon will hang in the usual place, but its face will be painted red to fling additional terror into hardened souls. Perhaps also to warn heavy hearts of rouge and lipstick. Judgment will follow, and the celestial yardstick will determine what proportion of the populace is fitted to associate with angels. We would say that one serious handicap is lack of a clear definition of sin. If a fellow treats his family and neighbors with due consideration, is industrious, generous, truthful and honest, making his conduct square with the average conscience, he would seem able to measure up to requirements, though we suspect that the Diller prophet, judging from his rather lugubrious plans, looks with distrust on anyone who does not appear in sackcloth and ashes and look and act like a hunted criminal. We have often wondered why prophecies could not as easily be made optimistic and cheerful. Why always try to make the world feel disagreeable? Or is it because a prophet cannot be a prophet unless he is plugged in on gloom and fear?

Flat Tire Causes Car Accident

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Carhart were bruised and their new car was considerably broken on one side last Thursday morning when a flat tire caused the machine to turn over near Wahoo.

John C. Carhart went to Wahoo and brought his parents home. The car was left for repairs.

Wayne's First Golf Course Centered Around City Park

Rattlesnakes, "Tree Golfers," Floods, Early Sod House And Outdoor Pool Figure In Club's History.

There was a time, and not so long ago, when certain well-known men of Wayne were experimenting with knocking around a little white ball by means of a thin stick, trying to make it enter certain excavations, and some folks called them "rather queer".

It all goes back to about the year 1911 when J. J. Ahern was recovering from a serious illness and, acting upon doctor's advice, came home from a Chicago hospital toting a set of golf clubs.

He had been told to play golf and stay out-of-doors. Well, golfing was a new wrinkle in these parts but Mr. Ahern conscientiously pursued the sport—and the ball.

Shooting off into the woods meant considerable ball hunting. C. H. Fisher bought the next set, having taken a few practice shots with Mr. Ahern's.

They laid out nine holes in vicinity of Bressler park, teeing off first from road in front of the late R. Craven's barn, and shooting off into the park.

They tell an interesting story of C. M. Craven's entry into the golf-world. He had a new Studebaker which he delighted in driving of a Sunday—this being a day when cars were rare, indeed, and an auto tour a real experience.

But one Sunday the golfers caught him early, inveigled him into hitting the ball once, and away into the air it went, fully a block. Mr. Craven was immediately possessed of the golf-bug—away he went after the ball, ready to whack it again, and from then on he was one "of the gang".

The four originals were soon joined by "Spike" Kibbourn, R. L. Will, Leroy V. Ley, H. S. Ringland and Park Mabbott. The last-named was labeled the "tree artist" because one day he hit the ball and it disappeared completely.

Chris Hansen's pasture west of Wayne, was leased after a few weeks, the greens laid out by guesswork. Then, in 1917, the present 53-acre golf grounds belonging to J. T. Bressler were leased for 10 years, and laid out in greens by a professional, Charles Johnson of Omaha.

One spring morning the small interested group who were pushing the project, started out to canvass for memberships and by noon had a most surprising list. It was planned at that time to dam up the creek which is fed by springs, and use it for a swimming pool.

At one time the water was shoulder-high and members expected great things of the natural pool. With this in mind, they placed showers for men and women in the club house built the first year.

Skating was much anticipated by the juveniles but while the pool was large enough for skating purposes, the springs beneath melted the ice and gave a rippled finish to the surface, making skating difficult and hazardous.

Mr. Bressler was first club president. Mr. Craven, the vice president, and J. J. Ahern, John Ahern, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Morgan and Dean H. Hahn were active workers.

In 1920 the club house was given a generous screen veranda to south and kitchen added. Most of work on club house and grounds was done by members.

A well was dug and pump put in. When the state sold buildings to clear off the college campus, one of the structures was purchased and taken to the grounds for a caretaker's home.

Jerry Jones, Floyd Conger, Art Banks, Harold Weber, Charles Adcock and William H. Racherbauer have filled the role of caretaker up to the present time.

The caddy house was brought from the Fisher property in town.

Wayne's First Golf Course Centered Around City Park

One caretaker and his family made a hurried exit, due to the ever troublesome water. The water rose and rose—the caretaker acted quickly—he bunched his wife, his children, his furniture and his chickens into the family wagon and away they went in middle of the night—straight south across the hills, not stopping for fences or fields. And never to return.

Before straightening of the creek, the golf grounds were flooded regularly and once the water came up swiftly, and well over the clubhouse floor. The fairways were mowed by a pair of mules or, originally, but tractor-pulled machine added later.

Two different years professionals were imported from Chicago to give lessons. One was Frank Brady and the other, Allen Te Tong-staff. The latter had quarters in the club house and one day he complained bitterly about having to walk outside mornings and wash his hands and face under the pump, then pulled out. That night brought such a downpour that water came up around the bed he had been occupying, and the club members lost no time in commenting that if he'd stuck it out, he'd not even had to get out of bed to wash his hands next morning.

Number Three tee was once the favorite sunning place of rattlesnakes, these coming out from an adjoining hayfield where they had a den. The first two years the present course was in use, over 30 rattlers were killed on the course. However, none have been seen the past ten years.

It is interesting to note that the mounds directly west and east of No. Four greens are the fallen-down remains of one of the earliest sod houses in this community.

The grounds are recognized as among finest of northeast Nebraska, the turf being especially good. Visiting golfers have been warm in praise of the greens.

Although one visitor tied the course record of 32 set by Mr. Morgan, none have bettered it. Prof. Fred G. Dale equalled this record a few weeks ago, and made a 67 on the 18 holes. Mr. Ahern and Prof. W. C. Hunter both made No. Two hole in one shot, and Mr. Fisher twice sunk the ball in No. Nine hole with two shots, four being par.

Max Hendrickson was accorded a place in "Believe It Or Not" after shooting No. Two hole in one twice within 30 days, with the same club and same ball.

Northeast Nebraska championship has been won by only one Wayne player—Mr. Morgan—who captured the prize in 1929 at Fremont. Many local men have won one-day tournaments of this locality.

Prof. Fred G. Dale made a remarkable record of winning Madison's one-day tournament three times straight.

Social afternoons for the women are organized and bridge played in the club house, some of the women preferring to play golf. Among the first devotees of the sport were Mrs. C. M. Craven, Mrs. Will Smith, Mrs. C. M. Craven, Mrs. W. C. Woodward, Jones, Mrs. H. B. Jones and Mrs. Harry Fisher. These were the nucleus of a rapid-in growing group of women golfers.

A unique feature of the Wayne clubs is that membership is open to anyone interested—names are not proposed and voted upon as in most such organizations. The founders hoped to make it a community gathering-place and to that end have kept down dues and encouraged everyone to join for the social contacts and the sports.

During the winter, weekly social meetings are held in the city.

Present membership of the Wayne club includes 54 who play golf, and 35 with social privileges. L. W. Ellis is president, D. F. Miller the vice-president, and D. F. Miller, Casper, secretary-treasurer, with Fred L. Blair, W. C. Coryell, Prof. Fred G. Dale, J. Woodward, Jones and Carl E. Wright on the board of directors.

Mrs. W. F. Canning is the social chairman, and Mrs. C. E. Wright, house chairman, both having place on the board. Interest in golf this year, has been greater than ever before, according to Mr. Ellis, and a group of women are coming out regularly to play.

HIS VOICE I can hear his voice in the meadows Where the beautiful skylark sings, I can hear his voice in the shadows And Oh! What joy it brings. I can hear his voice in the sea waves Where the shimmering white crests dance, I've heard his voice down in the caves And where the dead leaves prance. I can hear it there in the woodland And hear it in whispering trees, I can hear it in the desert sand And with the humming bees. I can hear his sweet voice all the time, In the frigid zone or torrid clime— Where 'ere I go, he's there. If you'll listen I'm sure you'll hear it, I am sure he will talk to you There where the birds of the woodland fit Just hear him speak—please do. Then his voice will give you the pleasure It often has given to me. And you'll find it a valued treasure On mount, in vale or sea. Franklin Lee Stevenson We are equipped for emergencies. Introducing Just A Few Interesting Personalities From Wayne's Dog World

To one not endeared to canines, "dogs is dogs" and one wet-nosed, friendly animal looks just like another. But to its owner, each dog has a definite personality—his moods are respected, his preferences consulted, his peculiarities excited, and these serve to further bind him to the family of his adoption.

"Lady's" sister, "Dinah," lives at Winside and frequently visits Wayne with H. E. Siman. "Dinah" is the same age as "Lady" but only 28 inches tall.

"Mugs" Smokes Pipe. Seldom do you see F. C. Reed without "Mugs" close behind, for this American bulldog is his constant companion. She's an independence day dog, being born on July 4 just five years ago.

The A. G. Adams family possess two good-sized Persian cats, Brownie and Buddy, also one of less important ancestry who answers to "Boots," a much less elegant label.

"Imp," Rev. P. A. Davies' wire-haired terrier, belongs to dog artistry. His father was "West-borne Teelotator," now champion wire-haired fox terrier of the United States.

"Mike," Mrs. Eugene Steiner's white and black dog is in the gangling stage, long-legged, playful and cuddly. Like Mary's little lamb, it follows her to work against Mrs. Steiner's rule, and sometimes it takes considerable strategy to get "Mike" headed homeward again.

"Patches," Mrs. A. Erickson's Boston bull, is so-called from the irregular patches of white which ornament his Ethiopian exterior.

Then shall the Kingdom of Heaven be likened unto ten virgins, who took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were foolish, and five were wise. For the foolish when they took their lamps, took no oil with them; but the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps. They that were ready went in with him to the marriage feast and the door was shut. Watch therefore, for ye know not the day nor the hour. Matt. 25: 1-13.

The Bible has full and sure directions how to be ready. Study to show yourself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. 2 Tim. 2: 15.

BUICK THE NEWEST $795 [LOWEST PRICE IN BUICK HISTORY] New Low Price Unequaled for the Quality It Buys First of all, the newest Buick is built to be a Buick through and through. Then, it is given a price—lowest in Buick history and unequalled today for the quality it buys—which puts its value beyond comparison. Big, beautiful, modern, it is upholstered in fabrics of exclusive smart design. Unmatched in performance by any other balanced car, its dependability is attested by Buick records of 30 years. For it has every famous Buick feature. Thousands have waited for such a car at such a price. They are buying now. They are getting deliveries now.
