Breaks Silence FORMER President Hoover has broken silence after eighteen months following his retirement from the presidency by contributing an article to the Saturday Evening Post discussing public policies which, he points out, involve the issue of human liberty.

Mr. Hoover strikes at the infringement of either two extremes. "Our system," he says, "has at all times had to contend with internal encroachments upon liberty. Greed in economic agencies invades it from the right, and greed for power in bureaucracy and government infringes it from the left."

"It is now claimed by large and vocal groups, both in and out of government, that liberty has failed: that emergency encroachments upon its principles should be made permanent. Thereby are created the most urgent issues; first, whether we must submit to some other system by which the fundamentals of liberty are sacrificed, and second, whether, even if we made these sacrifices, we shall not defeat the hope and progress of humanity."

"On other occasions I have commented upon the perversion and assumption of the term 'Liberalism' by theories of every ilk—whether National Regeneration, Fascism, Socialism, Communism, or what not. I have pointed out that these philosophies are the very negation of American Liberalism."

"Liberalism is not the possession of any political party. The belief in Liberalism, the acceptance of it as a positive philosophy, does not designate a person either as a Republican or a Democrat any more than does his belief in Christianity."

Helpful Barriers DOUBTLESS people have to drink deeper and longer of the bitter depression cup than would have followed if fewer disturbing experiments had been launched. In trying to cure sweat shop ills, the NRA tackled all lines of industry and business, and by arbitrarily raising wages ahead of farm prices, hindered the recovery movement.

The depression disease has been a tough one to handle, and undoubtedly too many remedies have made it tougher. The drouth proved the wisdom of tying up last year's corn crop, and it has made distribution of corn-hog reduction payments an important aid at this time.

Timely Warning. Nebraska Farmer: In a recent meeting of the directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation a warning was sounded against "A system of government unemployment relief or charity that encourages idleness and indifference to emergency employment at comparatively lower wages."

Defending The Constitution DAVID Lawrence says there is no defense of a policy which interferes with the rights of states and individuals, and adds: "There can be no defense of the retention of any individual in any public office who believes that the constitution can be violated because the end justifies the means."

violated because the end justifies the means.

"If it is desired to amend the constitution, let the people have the chance to express themselves upon every such proposal. If it is desired to give the federal government complete power over all business and industry, let the people vote upon that proposition in constitutional conventions."

"If it is desired to abolish the state governments and let the federal authority control electric light and power, coal, oil, and all the production of American farms, let the American people, also in constitutional conventions, pass upon such fundamental changes."

"There is nothing in the constitution which permits any man or group of men to equalize competition, to redistribute wealth or to redistribute brains, to put a penalty upon efficiency or to punish success by confiscatory taxation."

Upton Sinclair, socialist, who was named the democratic nominee for governor of California, makes plain his intentions if he is elected. He proposes to move to the left, and though in practice he might be unable to go as far as he suggests, he does not try to conceal socialism—does not try to dodge the issue.

Editor W. F. Cramb of the Fairbury Journal, democrat of the old school, reproduces approvingly the following words of Mrs. George E. Simmons, a Missouri farmer's wife, to show that fewer experiments would have put more health and less cost into recovery.

West Point still retains its powers of initiative notwithstanding the growing tendency to look to Washington bureaucracy for instructions. It has reinstated the old-fashioned curfew as a way to preserve its youth. The curfew signals division between night and day and emphasizes hours for rest and those intended for work and recreation.

Playing Santa Claus must be carefully managed to avoid hurting Santa Claus and hurting the noble purpose which he seeks to serve. When a Santa Claus performs a charitable deed, and the object of his charity kicks because he didn't get enough or because some one else fared better, altruism receives a terrible backset.

Bigger And Better Propaganda. Omaha Journal Stockman: For the last 18 months, the American people have been bathered in a veritable ocean of wordy government propaganda. The New Deal administration makes no secret of the fact that in selling its ideas, it has built up in Washington one of the most imposing press bureaus that the country has ever seen.

The NRA alone confesses to having handed out some 5,000 articles for newspaper consumption and the AAA must have sponsored almost as many more. And those are only two of the government's numerous alphabetical divisions. Printing any considerable proportion of this matter would have taken practically all the news space available in the average large daily.

Readers who feel that there is too much Washington news and propaganda in the papers as it is should be thankful that the average editor throws better than 90 percent of the release he gets from the nation's capitol into his waste basket. Just think how much worse off they'd be if they were the editor and had to read it all.

Nebraska Farmer: In a recent meeting of the directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation a warning was sounded against "A system of government unemployment relief or charity that encourages idleness and indifference to emergency employment at comparatively lower wages."

Politically, the American Farm Bureau has been very liberal. Especially is this true in the extent of its support of the present administration. Therefore, when it gives warning against the program of unemployment relief now being carried on, there is good reason to believe that the situation is serious.

SAFETY WEEK

This is "automobile safety week," and heavy rains Sunday helped motorists start off observance successfully. If an annual "safety week" will shock people's sensibilities into more careful driving and reduce accidents accordingly, it will be eminently worth while.

Broadway Hit Now In Films, Stars Crosby

Acknowledged the premiere show of the current Broadway season "She Loves Me Not," the smash stage hit, is coming to the Gay Theatre September 9, 10 and 11 in the Paramount picture version, starring Bing Crosby and Miriam Hopkins, with Kitty Carlisle featured. With a distinguished supporting cast that includes Warren Hymer, Lynne Overman, Judith Allen, George Barber and Vince Barnett, "She Loves Me Not" brings to the screen the fanciful tale of wild escapades in a Princeton dormitory that has convulsed Broadway audiences for months. The story depicts the escape of a night-club dancer from the scene of a Philadelphia murder, her concealment at Princeton and her subsequent entry into motion picture circles with a wild fanfare of publicity, and at the same time develops a tender romance between Bing Crosby, as a student, and Kitty Carlisle, as the dean's daughter. Elliot Nugent, who was responsible for the highly successful "Three-Cornered Moon," directed "She Loves Me Not," which features several brand new tunes by Rainger and Robin and Gordon and Revel, including "Love In Bloom" and "I'm Hummin', I'm Whistlin', I'm Singin'".

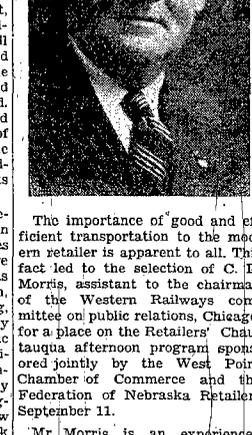

thousands of acres of land in the drouth territory will probably be seeded to prevent wind from blowing the top soil away. Rye and wheat are the best crops for this purpose. Under the rulings of the corn-hog and wheat programs, signers of these contracts can not save the extra acres of wheat for harvest in 1935. Under the wheat program they can plant up to 90 percent of their base acreage and under the corn-hog program they can plant as much as their wheat contract permits, or if they have no wheat contract, as many acres for harvest as grain in 1935 as they planted in the fall of 1932 or 1933, whichever acreage was higher in those two years.

Cure Is Effective For Acid Poison An effective cure for prussic acid poisoning of livestock has been discovered by veterinary scientists of the United States department of Agriculture. Sodium thiosulphate alone or, better yet, in combination with sodium nitrate, if administered in time, will save the lives of animals poisoned by eating plants which for one reason or another have developed prussic acid or hydrocyanic acid. Treatment should be by a skilled veterinarian, and the bureau of animal industry is informing the profession as to the technic of administration and essential results of the experimental work. Hydrocyanic acid does not develop in dangerous quantities in healthy growing plants but does develop in many valuable storage plants when normal growth has been retarded or stopped by drouth, frost, bruising, trampling, wilting, mowing or other cause. Many plants develop some hydrocyanic acid but, under practical conditions, only a few are actually dangerous. Among the more widely distributed of these are the sorghums, Johnson grass, flax, arrow grass, Sudan grass, wild black cherry, and wild chokecherry (not the chokecherry, which is a different species).

A. B. Clawson, H. Bunya and J. F. Couch, of the bureau of animal industry, in testing various chemicals as remedies for prussic acid poisoning, found that methylene blue, sodium tetrathionate, sodium nitrite, sodium thiosulphate were effective and that sodium thiosulphate in combination with sodium nitrite was surprisingly effective. In these experiments, the first of the kind conducted under field conditions, the animals were drenched with doses of potassium cyanide in water ranging from a lethal dose to 2 1/2 times the lethal dose. The remedies were administered at various times after the cyanide was given.

Speaker Chosen For West Point

This importance of good and efficient transportation to the modern retailer is apparent to all. This fact led to the selection of C. D. Morris, assistant to the chairman of the Western Railways committee on public relations, Chicago, for a place on the Retailers' Chautauqua afternoon program sponsored jointly by the West Point Chamber of Commerce and the Federation of Nebraska Retailers September 11. Mr. Morris is an experienced speaker, having been in his present position for twelve years, during which time he has spoken in more than half the states of the union and before all sorts of gatherings. He is an entertaining speaker, unusually well-informed upon all phases of the transportation question and his addresses are always full of interest and information. He is on the program for an address on the subject "Transportation—The People's Problem," in which he will make the situation of the railroads today very simple and plain to his hearers and explain their responsibilities therefor. The Retailers' Chautauqua will be held at the Hotel West Point starting at 2:30 P. M. All retailers in the territory and their employees are invited. There will be no registration charge.

Soviet Russia Is Described (Continued from Page One) fully illustrated to show why people should break away from religion. There's the decayed body of a monk on exhibition, illustrating that he fared just like lesser people after death. William Jennings Bryan and the monkey trial are vividly pictured. Marriage and divorce are very simple. Mr. Stewart visited the marriage bureau, saw a couple sit down and register. But marriage is not necessary for a couple are considered married when they live together. Another desk nearby is for divorce, which are correspondingly simple. There's also an active mother-child welfare bureau and a birth control bureau. The drama, the cinema, opera and music are splendid. Paris are well developed. As an example of Russian inefficiency Mr. Stewart told of an American who wished to rush a letter to Leningrad so bought a 500 air-mail stamp. She waited and waited for a reply, then sought out the postmaster. "But madame," said he, "it may be a week. We have to wait until we get enough air-mail letters to make a load."

T. S. Hook led group singing, accompanied by J. E. Brittain. Delegates named to the convention at Fort Dodge, Iowa, are Mrs. Hook, Supt. H. B. Best and Fred L. Eskin. One guest was present, Dr. Paul Siman who accompanied H. E. Siman.

Milk Invaluable In Diet For All

Every one knows that milk is an invaluable part of every child's diet but often adults are apt to pass it by in favor of foods that afford far smaller return in health and appetite appeal. If you happen to be one of those rare people who do not care for milk as a beverage, you'll find that you may still include this important food in your diet by utilizing such recipes as these on your daily menus.

Wayne Couple Duplicate Marriage

When Mr. Weber and Miss Alice Morehouse spoke their nuptial vows in the latter's home in Tekamah, Straightway they embarked by train for Florence and spent the day in the Weber home. Next day they were taken to the Missouri river on a friend's yacht, and spent a delightful day on the river boats, no doubt, brightly populated on shore, but muddy and treacherous as always.

Local Stores Give Tips On School Lunch

Safeway Stores tell of some interesting ways to vary school lunches this week in their Family Circle Magazine, the weekly periodical that these stores give away to their customers every Friday.

With school season starting, mothers wonder what to pack in school lunches. Wise mothers have learned that these lunches must be as tempting and tasty as they are nourishing, and many a plain sandwich has been thrown away, after the sugar or jelly has been licked off.

This week marks the second anniversary number of the Family Circle, which is now given away by food stores to 1,300,000 people every week.

Copies may be obtained by asking at any Safeway Store. 5611 Detroit News: You can tell those who have been broadened by travel. They know how to pronounce "visa."

Founder of Morris Clan Has Led Eventful Life In Two Countries

John R. Morris, patriarch of the Morris clan of Carroll, owes the respect he commands from neighbors and family not to his years, which are numerous, but to the fitness which motivates his everyday life, and to the mellowness which has come with passing years. Eighty-four years he has tallied up, and 50 of these were on the same land in Wayne county.

North Wales was his birthplace on August 22, 1850. He carries a big copper United States penny, sent him by a Randolph friend, which was coined this same time, at mid-century. One wonders if that penny in its wanderings of 84 years, has seen as much of living as has John R. Morris. During Mr. Morris' youth, young boys and girls joined clubs in Wales into which they paid a sum each month and were given a ticket to New York.

Three more children were born to the Morrises. Mrs. Morris' sister, who had married to Red Oak, married, and then came back to Wayne in an effort to regain her health, died at the Morris home. So slow was mail that after dispatching the news to husband, to share in the mastering of rough prairies, John R. Morris answered the call. He came to Nebraska, planning to meet a friend, Henry Evans, on horseback, at Sergeant Bluff, south of Sioux City.

When Mr. Morris and Mr. Evans went to locate their land, they stayed overnight in Norfolk, and then took train as far as Hoskins, starting off then on foot to look for the section. Not a man living in the township to south. They found a man herding cattle, finally, and he told them how to reach section 36. So they walked and walked, and without food and water, the rest of the day. It was almost dark when they found the corner of the section, and then they walked about a mile till they sighted a little light down in a hollow along the creek.

Newton, the next son, is employed by a power company and stationed at Milford. He is named after Sir Isaac Newton, discoverer of the law of gravitation.

Celyn of Wayne, bears the name of the farm upon which Mr. Morris was raised in the old country. It translates, "Holly," the beautiful waxy leaved bush with red berries which grows in Wales.

Value Of Forests Shown In Exhibit. How forests feed the rainfall to the land and how the absence of trees and forest ground cover permits the soil and the country to become a prey to alternating flood and drought, is shown in the exhibit of the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture, at the Century of Progress exposition at Chicago.

Suit Case Is Stolen. When Miss Hazel Reeve stopped over at Emerson Friday evening on route to Wayne, someone took her black suit case from a car at the depot. Puzzling Village Remains Reconstructed At St. Helena

Work of Archeologist Near Missouri River May Shed Very Important Light On Early Inhabitants of this Region.

"The inhabitants lived high on the bluff overlooking the river, and evidently had no horses for travel. They built houses down in the ground with timber and sod roofs, and stored their meats and grains in round caches in the floor. In the center of the sunken houses were fireplaces from which the smoke rose to an opening in the roof. Seashells gathered in the river below were utilized for dishes and drinking cups, and animal bones were carved into needles, combs and fish-hooks."

It sounds like a leaf from some hardy explorer's notebook, recounting discoveries in some far land, but don't be misled, reader friends... this is how scientists sum up the living conditions of very early dwellers around St. Helena, Neb., not very far distant from our own Wayne. Dr. Earl H. Bell of the University of Nebraska, supervised excavations on the bluffs nearby and uncovered some very exciting remains which throw new light on our predecessors.

Visitors to the reconstructed house are viewing what is probably the first and only Indian dwelling rebuilt by white man. It's half underground—a big round mound covered with sod. The entrance just out 20 feet and is narrow and low to keep out the cold.

Then, as your eyes become accustomed to the darkness the interior takes form. The house is 23x36 feet and required 28 loads of dirt to cover over the top. Four rough-barbed posts placed in the ground in the same holes as the original posts, support the log beams of the roof, not one of which is fastened by nails.

Look at the three round holes deep in the brown earth floor—they're caches for food. Here the Indian secreted his valuables when going off to hunt, tramping firmly the earth to hide the opening. The three smaller caches were probably for foodstuffs. Hard to tell how they were covered over to prevent little feet from stumbling into them.

These relics in the case were all picked up from the excavations—the long slender needle is of bone... the spoon made from a seashell with bone handle attached... there's even a bone whistle and what is evidently a bone toothpick.
