WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1934.

NUMBER TWENTYNINE

Lawyers and Shyster Lawyers—Helps and—Depression A... California—Digest's Latest Poll.

Good, high-minded lawyers are a real blessing. Shyster lawyers are a real menace. Good lawyers try to find ways to keep people out of trouble.

The Good Emphasized. A good lawyer is his whole nature reacting to the nobility of his calling as constantly smoothing out difficulties.

The Other Kind. On the other hand, the shyster lawyer is an ever-present nuisance. If he happens to have been allotted a usual brain quantity, nature carelessly left out average conscience accompaniment.

Hardens on the Masses. Like quack doctors, unscrupulous editors and charlatan preachers, the shyster lawyer has powers of harm not possessed by those in ordinary walks of life.

Depression Largely Responsible. The depression is negating its advantages by its disadvantages. Its benefits have come to be more than neutralized by its injuries.

Sinclairites Hasten West. According to a magazine story Upton Sinclair had rough sledding in trying to live while getting started as an author.

Swinging to the Right. The Literary Digest's latest poll, concerning satisfaction with administration policies, shows a marked change from the totals recorded in its poll last spring.

EUROPEAN TRIP IS DESCRIBED

Elmer Mortensen Continues His Travel Talk Before Kiwanians Monday.

Kiwanians traveled further into England and France under guidance of Elmer Mortensen at Monday noon luncheon meeting. Visiting rural sections and London, the Kiwanians absorbed much of the atmosphere of historical, changeless England, and gay, excitable Paris.

The speaker contrasted the unkept, moldy French countryside with the freshness and greenness of England. French streets are narrow, crowded, inhabited by stock and fowls, Poppies grow wild over the countryside. One sees bent old men cutting the grain with scythes and old ladies hobbling behind picking up the grain to shock it neatly. The French countryside is dotted with vineyards, every hill slope under cultivation.

War is in the air. The French are like a boy with his arms around a wildcat—afraid to let go. Bitter feeling continues between Germany and France and very little understanding. For 57 times these two nations have fought over Alsace Lorraine.

On to England to the heart of old London... here are Lloyd's, Barclay's and Midland banking systems within which rest the reasons why one doesn't hear the word "depression" in England. No bank failures... credit is very hard to obtain... common laborers don't have dignity in sight of the other classes, they earn about eight shillings or $2 daily. The English are ahead of us in social legislation... they have old age pensions and widow's pensions... Hyde park one finds the radicals of England mounted on soapboxes and expounding their theories of government, denouncing heatedly all right as long as they remain on crown property to do their agitating... England believes in letting the "reds" blow off steam and thus lose their menace.

They look upon us as inexperienced children, these English. They read about our strikes, murders and gangsters and think this affects the entire country. England is so small that people have no conception of the vastness of America and the distances between big centers. Someone said that if an Englishman falls down his head goes into the North sea and his feet into the Atlantic ocean. Refrigeration is just coming in to use in England... not much ice is found and no electric refrigerators. They seldom serve water with meals, and pie is eaten with both dessert spoon and fork. Roast beef or lamb and Yorkshire pudding are the usual dinner standbys... When one attends a show, he finds tea is served in middle of the show. Everyone smokes during the show... no one leaves till the audience has stood and sung "God Save the King."

They love their sports, these English... cricket is a favorite, tennis is strong... the old men bowl. Sports for sports sake, not just to win, is their idea... in fact, one English girl lamented our lack of sportsmanship in shooting Dillinger in the back and not giving him a fighting chance. Luncheon was followed by a song-feast, ending with a rather heavy serving of "Ham-and-Eggs". Dr. U. S. Conn introduced his guests, Dr. H. D. Griffin and Dr. Joseph Serena of Walton, Ky., and Fred S. Berry introduced Walter Gaebler, mayor of Winside. Announcement was made that representatives of Columbus Chamber of Commerce will come November 5 to propose formation of a North-east Nebraska Chamber of Commerce. Public affairs committee was charged with contacting the group and making arrangements for a meeting. Inter-club relations committee was instructed to make arrangements for a meeting with Norfolk club. President J. C. Johnson named Prof. O. R. Bowen, Ben Carhart and C. L. Pickett to draw up resolutions on the loss of Rev. H. C. Caspey.

Miss Leone Westover will give program of readings at Kiwanis luncheon next Monday.

ROBT. SIMMONS SPEAKS IN WAYNE

Candidate For United States Senate Gives Address On Saturday.

That this administration has approached the problem of recovery from the viewpoint of the industrial east, was the charge of Robert Simmons, republican candidate for United States senator, who spoke in Wayne Saturday to an interested audience. Democrats themselves have proved this, he added, by bringing Congressman Moran from the conservative industrial state of Maine into Nebraska to defend NRA and to attack the Simmons program of higher prices for the farmer first.

"The influence of eastern industrial states prevailed when this administration made the NRA the dominant move for recovery," Mr. Simmons stated. "It has failed to increase business, to encourage the use of private capital in private business and the costs of NRA recovery program are being paid by the agricultural regions, while farmers themselves are being taxed on their hogs and grain to pay the costs of another great mistake.

"This great state," declared the candidate, "was not transformed from an Indian hunting ground to a mighty state by 'yes men' but was built by men and women who wanted to be dependent upon themselves and independent of everyone else, who believe in solving their own problems, fighting their own battles and running their own affairs."

Simmons declared that the governmental bureaucrats are trying to diagnose the ills of a nation when one of the old fashioned remedies would do more to hasten the state on the recovery trail than anything else.

"Let's try the old fashioned remedy of reducing taxes, not increasing them, let's cut living costs, not increase them, cut costs of operating a business or a farm, aid in the financing of operations as this administration, and the previous administration too, are doing and did, aid the farmer in his problem of marketing. In short, increase the power of consumption, and reserve always the right of the business man, farmer and laborer to be the final judge of what's best for them in their own particular business."

Simmons spoke in Wayne after addressing a good-sized audience at Wakefield the same morning. He went to West Point in the afternoon and entered into debate with Edward Burke at Norfolk that evening.

MORTGAGE LIFTER TAKES BACK SEAT UNDER TAX LOAD

W. E. ROGGENBACH, farmer in the Altona vicinity, and president of the Farmers Union of Wayne county had an experience last week with a shipment of sixty pigs—total weight, 4,000 pounds—that compelled him to pay $5.07 for the privilege of holding the back. He lacked that much of realizing enough from his pigs to satisfy the processing tax, trucking and other expenses. He figures he had to pay a fraction above eight cents per head to get rid of his pigs. He says he would have kept the animals if he had had feed for them, and thus with increased weight run the chance of a higher market price. Farmers who looked to the hog as the great mortgage lifter, will have to shift how to something else as long as the processing tax lasts. The AAA plan works especially to the disadvantage of live stock growers whose work often pans out worse than useless as proved by the experience of Mr. Roggenbach. The purely grain farmer is somewhat more fortunate.

Indirect lighting cast a soft shade on the improvised altar in the parlor of the Davis home. Two tall green baskets with pink chrysanthemums and smilax stood at the back of the altar. On either side were two cream-colored candelabras with pink tapers and the ones in front holding baskets of flowers. Small green baskets with chrysanthemums stood at the front on either side. Silver baskets with pink roses and chrysanthemums and blue delphinium were about the home.

As Mrs. J. T. Bressler, jr., played Mendelssohn's march, the ushers, Armand Hiscox and William McEachen, who had received guests, placed standards, which stretched cream-colored ribbon from the altar to the stairway, forming an aisle.

Mrs. M. B. Surber of Lincoln, and Mrs. Burr Davis, matrons of honor, led the bridal party. They wore pink silk net cut low in back, with puff sleeves and cape effect and with pink and blue sashes which formed pompons on one side. Their slippers were blue. Edward C. Moran Is Speaker Here

Maine Congressman Talks To Wayne Audience On Tuesday Evening

Have faith in the ability of Franklin Roosevelt and we will go forward to security in our homes, in our employment and in our old age," urged Edward C. Moran, congressman from Maine, who addressed an audience of about 80 on Tuesday evening at the Crystal theatre. Mr. Moran substituted for Edward R. Burke, democratic candidate for United States senator. Clyde Oman, county democratic chairman, presided, and Dr. Walter Bentback introduced the speaker.

"Maine is conservative," began the speaker. "This is the first time in history that the state has re-elected a democratic governor, and one district elected the first democratic congressman since 1872. Farming predominates industry in Maine. The New Deal was the sole issue in the September election. People got behind Roosevelt because," the speaker said, "he has ability and courage."

Mr. Moran denied the charge that a brain trust is influencing government policies. He stated that the supreme court has declared no act of the New Deal as unconstitutional. He asserted that the Reconstruction Finance corporation, Public Works administration, and Farm Credit association are self-supporting and are not costing the taxpayers money. The relief program is the only one which does take tax money for support, Mr. Moran continued. The NRA does not handle money. Its work was to set minimum wages, maximum hours and to eliminate child labor.

Mr. Moran admitted that the democratic administration has made mistakes, but he added, "It got action. The speaker appealed to voters to use their power of vote to preserve American ideals."

The band and guardsmen formed escort to Memorial Park cemetery where they officiated at military committal. Rev. Capsey had been failing in health for two years and submitted to several operations but continued faithfully in his work. He was intensely interested in his chosen field and served earnestly. He was taken critically ill Tuesday night last week. Emerick church near Meadow Grove, Neb., was Rev. Capsey's first charge after coming to this country from England in 1909. He had spent the years since, except while in the army, in Nebraska Methodist churches, serving at Spencer, Beemer, Springfield, Emanuel in Lincoln, Syracuse, Geneva and Wayne. Besides his church work, Rev. Capsey was prominent in military circles. During the World war he volunteered to serve with the United States army and went to Fort Monroe, Va., attending the first chaplain's training school. He served overseas as chaplain with rank of first lieutenant in the 88th division. When Rev. Capsey returned, after signing of the Armistice, he was elected first Nebraska state chaplain of the Legion. He was senior state chaplain of the Nebraska National Guard, having held that position with commission of major since reorganization of the guard after the war. He was also chaplain of Wayne Legion post. Rev. Capsey always had sincere regard for welfare of young people. When boy scout work started in the United States in 1909 he took interest in the work and in 1911 formed a scout troop at Spencer. He continued in the scout work and served as leader until he went overseas. He led a scout troop at Lincoln four years ago. In every progressive movement Rev. Capsey was active. He was interested in the welfare of the community and its people and was always ready to do his share to help.

Stefan KARL STEFAN, republican candidate for congress, should have satisfied querulous critics of the opposition by his address from WJAG last Friday noon when he emphasized his interest in agriculture, in the welfare of all the people of this congressional district and his purpose to help protect farms and businesses from permanently entrenched bureaucracy.

In the course of his talk he made these pledges:

"I will keep in constant contact with all the people of this district, doing the best I can to get your ideas of the right kind of laws to make, and will cooperate with other congressmen who understand our problems and work for the best legislation I can for our mutual benefit. I will work and vote for every law which will permanently help the farmer to have a market for all he produces at a price which will give him a fair return on his investment and fair pay for his ability and labor. I will work and vote for those laws, and only those, which in your opinion and mine will keep the farmer and business man a free man, not bossed by anyone. I will work and vote against every proposal for spending money not absolutely necessary for the operation of government and consistent with the public welfare. I will work and vote for laws to eliminate a bureaucracy being rapidly built up in Washington to control the daily activities of our people. I will work and vote for any law necessary to bring relief to the unemployed so long as the present emergency exists. I will work and vote for laws which will give the farmers a sound dollar, equal in value to every other dollar. I will work and vote for any law, whether it be proposed by republicans or democrats, which in your opinion and mine is for the best interests of the people of this district. I will work and vote for laws which will insure to labor fair and just returns."

Sinclair and Religion

HERE must be a lot of Christian Scientists in California. Upton Sinclair, candidate for governor, is out with a letter explaining that his ridicule of Christian Science ideas in his book, "The Profits of Religion," published seventeen years ago, was a mistake, and he has instructed his printers to remove from the book's plates such erroneous references. Sinclair further explains that his unfavorable impression was gained through his former wife's unfortunate experience with a Christian Science healer and that his change of front was due to benefits his second wife had received. So, his first wife pulled him one way and his second wife dragged him back the other way, and as a consequence he has some revised notions to work into his printed book and explain to the public. Touching religion generally, he proposes to satisfy all denominations by extending wholesale and unfettered liberties.

Sinclair finds the theories of an author do not operate very smoothly in a field of practical politics. If elected, he will learn still more of the difficulties of trying to hitch theory to practice.

With Sinclair in the governor's chair, southern California earthquakes, hitherto without competition, will have a real rival in the sport of keeping inhabitants on the lookout.

Internal Troubles

THE so-called "internal troubles" at the Wayne State Teachers College which brought the state board here for an investigation during the past week, are reported left in abeyance until December 17. Facts that have leaked but do not warrant rumors set afloat, nor do they justify suspension of judgment for nearly two months, during which imagination may ramble unrestrained and serious injury to the school may be threatened. The interest of Wayne and vicinity in the college is more than that of mere spectators. The college is vital to the town's life and culture, and internal friction is a menace to cooperation and best results—a menace that the community should ask the board to remove without harrowing delay. Other schools have been irreparably damaged even by trivial differences, and Wayne cannot afford to look on apathetically and see its chief public institution sacrificed in that way.

Plight of Hogs

THE Omaha Journal-Stockman quotes Charles E. Herrick, chairman of the foreign trade committee, as saying that our trade with foreign countries in pork and pork products has declined the equivalent of six million hogs in five years. "The trade has declined," declares Mr. Herrick, "because of efforts of former meat importers to put themselves on a self-sustaining basis; because of quota restrictions, and, in some cases, because of discrimination against importation of American meats."

The Journal-Stockman offers this comment: "Here is a condition calling for real 'shirt sleeve' statesmanship and diplomacy. In the United States conditions are more favorable than anywhere on earth for the production of hogs and the feeds on which hogs thrive and yet the world's markets are practically closed to American pork because of the battle of tariffs."

"Reducing hog production is merely an admission of defeat. The real remedy for the situation appears to be an enlargement of the foreign outlet for our pork. The world wants our pork and pork products and it would seem as if statesmanship should find a way to bring this about."

For Certain Currency

THE question of the future status of American currency is believed to be delaying confidence and holding back recovery, and the president's failure to make his plans in that direction clear and definite adds to bewildering uncertainty. The need of a sound and dependable currency is found in a Massachusetts company's experience which is explained in this way:

"The Republican Printing Co., of Springfield, Mass., is in court, on complaint of the United States Government, because it held $94,860 in gold when all gold was called in. The company had an outstanding contract with a Finland paper manufacturer, running over a term of years. It had contracted to pay gold for its imported paper. It owed $94,860 on paper still to be delivered. The government contends the company had no legal right to withhold gold to fulfill an outstanding contract. If the government wins, penalties aside, this company must pay not $94,860 but $132,000 because this government has devalued the gold dollar and it will take $38,000 more than the contract price to use American money of today buying foreign gold to pay the Finland paper mill."

Envy the individual who seems to have more than his share of material wealth, reflects a state of mind that draws conclusions without first taking all the facts into consideration. The fellow with modest earnings has fewer responsibilities, and he is comparatively free from the harrowing task of directing big enterprises. The danger that a lapse of judgment will flatten the ultra-rich individual beyond recovery is ever threatening. Then he would be reduced to a more helpless condition than the one who has been satisfied with little. The average person of comparatively small means would not, if he could, destroy peace of mind and shorten life by managing or being responsible for great employing industries. Industrial leaders are necessary, but their tasks, if understood, would not be envied.

One New Deal leader can't understand why republicans who have been kept from starving by the democratic administration should now oppose the present system of paternalism. If republicans are getting enough from the government to keep them from starving, what kept them from starving before the New Deal went into effect? And if it takes more government relief to keep people from starving now than ever before, how can New Deal economists figure that the country with expenditure of billions is really better off?

When a public official bases claim for election on something he has done in the course of his public duties for a community or an individual, he is asking extra consideration for what he is already paid for doing. If the thing employing his service is not desirable, he should not favor it. If it is needed, it should be granted without any strings hitched to it. To thank an officer for doing his duty is a good deal like thanking a juror for a favorable and deserved verdict.

To avoid the extreme left as well as the reactionary right is the reason Nebraska should send republicans to congress as a deterring influence at this time. The patient has had enough experimental remedies to satisfy all the ambitious economic quacks in Washington, and the recovery developed so far from sheer endurance, should not be further hindered by additional speculative surgery.

Charles W. Taylor, state superintendent, up for reelection, is reported to have alleged in a petition in the district court of Lancaster county against an airways corporation asking damages for injuries, that he has been "permanently disabled and incapacitated," and still, despite his statement, he thinks he is sound enough to handle the duties of an important state office.

Torch light processions lately introduced in political rallies, were common at the time of the other big depression—in the campaign of 1896. It was not long after that tragic year that prosperity came back. We hope torch light parades are now prophetic of better days just ahead.

When a political writer weeps over a public issue under fire and sobs in bestowing eulogiums on a candidate, we are sympathetic until we find that a personal favor has inspired both the tears and the praise.

One of the travesties on justice is the frequent attempt to satisfy a private pique by trumpeting up and magnifying charges entirely foreign to the actuating grievance. That is especially the way of politics.

REV. H. C. CAPSEY.

The passing of Rev. H. C. Caspey, Methodist pastor, leaves memory of an earnest church and community leader—memory of an indomitable courage that did not surrender until the final summons came. He will be remembered as a vital force in the many good things the church does and stands for. Not only were his activities evident in church and community affairs, but in the American Legion of which he was a devoted member. He crowded much useful service into a comparatively brief life. Seeing the end approach only fired his will power to do more instead of less. He did not weaken under the burden of an incurable affliction. He refused to put off the harness of service until the door of eternity opened. His life will be remembered with esteem by a grateful church and an appreciative community.

Digest reports that 65,000 persons throughout the nation, taken in March and April, showed 69.03 per cent approved the New Deal; the same 65,000 in August and September showed 50.97 in favor of the New Deal. This is a healthy and encouraging swing, and the administration which is very sensitive to popular opinion, will take notice of it, and perhaps sidetrack some of its wild ideas.

Complaint Is Heard By State Board

State normal board held special meeting at Wayne Saturday and Sunday to hear some complaints concerning alleged internal trouble in the college. The board has taken this matter under advisement until the next regular meeting December 17 at Lincoln.

Bag Is Snatched From Lady's Hand

When Mrs. Otto Vogel was returning to her home in the east part of Wayne Saturday evening, a man passing her grabbed from her hand a leather bag containing about $5 in money, some groceries and some valuable papers. Mrs. Vogel's hand was hurt somewhat. No trace of the party has yet been found.

Skeleton Problem Still Unsolved

Identity of the skeleton found east of Wayne last week Wednesday has not yet been solved. Officers have several clues and are continuing search in effort to determine identity of the find. Facts seemed to identify the bones as those of Ben Benson, 24, of Wakefield, who drove to Wayne about three years ago, left his car in a garage and was not heard from afterward. Relatives say, however, that the watch, gun and shoes are not those of Mr. Benson. A letter from Wood Lake, Iowa, tells of a missing man who had a scar over the right eye. The skeleton found does have a forehead scar.

Women Respond To Request For Sewing

With heavy supply of government materials on hand, call was sent out last week for volunteers to sew at the FERA sewing room.

HOME-COMING.

Annual home-coming at the Wayne State Teachers college was held Friday and Saturday of last week, and this stellar event reminds us of the way the institution has developed since it was bought from private hands by the state in 1910. It also reminds us of the fact that one man who was put at the head of the school at the time of the state's purchase is still in charge—thanks to good judgment—still expanding capacity and marshalling forces to meet growing requirements, still fashioning and directing student life. For nearly twenty-five years Dr. U. S. Conn has been found at his desk figuring out ways to accommodate more students, ways to improve physical comforts and teaching facilities, and to help solve the multitudinous problems of instructors and students. For nearly a quarter of a century Dr. Conn has made student problems his problems, and the success of the task he has carried is reflected in mounting enrollment and overflowing quarters—in the spirit of student and teacher loyalty. Young persons who come back on this home-coming occasion thrill with pride over the achievements of their alma mater—stirred by profound appreciation of knowledge and stability received under the president's wise and courageous leadership. Through grace of the state, the armies of students scattered over the world since 1910, look back with grateful hearts to the institution and to its practical head for the things they learned to do and the things they learned not to do. This home-coming is a happy event, and President Conn who looked far into the future in making plans was properly the center of the exchange of congratulations and good wishes.

In city hall, Mrs. Garfield Swanson, Mrs. W. C. Heidenreich and Mrs. W. T. Horrell came on Thursday and Mrs. Anna Kopp checked out materials for home sewing this week. The B. C. club, represented by Mrs. Fred Baird and Mrs. Harry Baird, volunteered to sew at meetings and received material. Eastern Star members will probably sew at Kensingtons. The rooms will be open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday next week, 8 a. m., till noon, and 1 to 5 p. m., and anyone interested in sewing for children or trying comforters will be welcome. Mrs. Lyle Asay sewed Wednesday. U. D. club plans to sew soon.

Home From Cruise To Cuba and Panama

Cruise to Havana, Cuba, and to the Panama canal zone proved most interesting and most restful to Mrs. J. J. Ahern who arrived home last Thursday. Such a trip would prove helpful to everyone in present strenuous times, stated Mrs. Ahern, for it was so refreshing. Mrs. Ahern was a guest of her sister, Mrs. C. R. Gregg.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregg and Miss Mae Pridmore, another sister of Mrs. Ahern of Chicago, also Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Temple and Robert of Mason City, Iowa, and Mrs. Ahern left Chicago for New Orleans where they took the boat for Havana. The cruise took them to Panama where they went through the canal zone by train. They stopped at Port Limon, in Costa Rica, and then went back to Havana and then to New Orleans by boat. About two-thirds of the 16-day cruise was spent on the water and captain of the United Fruit line boat said the passage was perfect. The sea was smooth most of the trip.

The party visited Havana during revolutionary uprisings, and were at Port Limon when strike broke out among banana plantations. The ship and people were guarded during the entire stay at the port, and one of the ship's big guns was fired once to let the natives know the crew was prepared for protection. Natives loaded the ship with 32,400 bunches of bananas for the return trip.

Mrs. Ahern spent two weeks in Chicago with her daughters, Miss Marian and Miss Margaret, and son, John, also with her sisters, before returning.

Corn-Hog Program To Be Ready Soon

With approximately 69 percent of all producers voting in the corn-hog referendum favoring a continuance of an adjustment program through 1935, a new corn-hog program probably will be launched in all corn and hog producing states as soon as possible, states C. H. Liggett.

The count on the referendum from 41 states, including all of the principal corn and hog growing areas, shows 345,310 in favor of a 1935 program and 153,181 dissenting on the development of new program. Approximately one-third of the non-signers voted in favor of the program. The favorable vote among both signers and non-signers averaged about 67 percent of the combined total.

Nebraska's official vote in the referendum showed a slight majority of contract signers in favor of the 1935 program. Western counties carried by a large majority. The official count showed 27,327 signers voting for the program and 26,490 voting against. A total of 2,169 non-signers voted for the proposition and 9,517 against. In 56 counties, contract signers showed a majority for the 1935 program.

In Washington, Dr. A. G. Black, head of the corn-hog section of the A. A. A., has announced that it is hoped that features of the 1935 plan will be announced about the first of November. Officials hope to have the contract itself ready for sign-up meetings before the Christmas holidays. Administrative procedure will be simplified in order to eliminate unnecessary delays and to plug up holes that developed in working out the 1934 program.

Unique Theatrical Group Pleases In Tuesday Eve Play

Wayne collegians witnessed the Hedgerow players' interpretation of "The Romantic Age" as a lecture course feature Tuesday evening and were highly amused, most enthusiastic. A. A. Milne's lines are clever, no questioning, and the plot was well chosen for a college group. Melisande, romantic of name and of nature, despairs of the awkward, love-sick Bobby Coote and yearns for a more colorful lover. Gervase Mallory appears in velvet costume, attired for a fancy dress ball and, being romantic himself but in a more practical manner as befitts a member of the English stock exchange, spends the night in the open "dreaming" of the lovely Melisande. They meet at dawn, a princess and prince from fairy tales, but this lovely interlude is ruined when Melisande glimpses Gervase in violently striped sports jacket and knickerbockers. Mrs. Knowle, Melisande's mother, is most amusing as she plots marriages for her daughter, and dwells on her own ailments. Jasper Deeter, director of the company, is the colorful peddler who meets Gervase on the hill-top and advises him on marriage.

These Hedgerowians are being coached by Coach Frank Kroger, the boys express appreciation to Mayor who wanted to act as they wished, in the plays they enjoyed. They found an old Philadelphia mill 11 years ago, and, with $9 capital, began putting on plays. Jasper Deeter has always directed, but no one person is started or has particular influence in the group. A player who has leading role one night, may be shifting scenery the next. Many who have never been before the footlights are taken into the company if they show sufficient talent and are able to contribute to labor of the group—that is, help with scenery designing, with making costumes, electrical work, etc. The Hedgerows are practically self-sufficient—they do all their own work, sometimes even the cooking, and live in a big house near the theatre at Rose Valley, Pa.

From the first, a different play was put on each night, and these were repeated at intervals so from 10 to 20 were given during the month. These varied from tragedy to highest Italian farce, including Checkoff, Ibsen and Shakespeare as well as the most modern of playwright. In the past 11 years the group has put on 108 plays, 35 of these being world premieres.

It's interesting how the theatre received its name—Ann Harding, member of the original group, heard the theatre was threatened with closing because of financial troubles and said: "All right, if they throw us out, we'll play to the negroes." And from the blonde, intense Ann the players took their title. In 1926 the group "went broke" so all went out and found other roles, saved money then returned to re-open the theatre with their funds. Eva Le Gallienne, John Beal and Alexander Kirkland are among the most famous of the former Hedgerowians.

This is the first extensive tour taken by the company. Portable stage framework of aluminum pipe is carried which can be used to convert any building into a theatre. The players travel in two cars with a truck for scenery, lights and properties.

I saw a tree. I think an elm.
'Twas growing in most barren soil —
I watched it struggle day by day,
It raised its head with fearful toil.
Surrounding it on every hand,
Were men who toiled for weary days
And one there was, a youthful lad,
I watched his most peculiar ways.
For every morn when sun was up
He took the time to tend the tree,
He helped it grow, I asked him, "Why?"
"Because," he said, "That tree helps me."
I've watched it struggle day by day
For it has courage rare to see
And oft I've wished that I could work
And struggle as does that small tree.
The years have gone by one by one,
That lad is now among the great,
That tree with branches spreading far
Is now beside his garden gate.
For as he wrote a while ago
Just as he said that day to me,
"I always had befriended that tree,
For 'twas that tree encouraged me."

Trials Of Early Mormons In Their Search For Religious Freedom Told

Fascinating to Mrs. Frank Strahan and to her son and her grandchildren in turn, were stories told to Mrs. Strahan by her mother concerning the old Mormon settlement at Nauvoo, Ill. Colorful, tempestuous days these must have been for feeling run high between the French settlers of the town and the refugee Mormons, finally resulting in the followers of Joseph Smith continuing their trek westward to freedom and Salt Lake City.

Lamanites, from which came out North American Indians. The Nephites fell away from their faith in spite of the appearance of Christ in their midst, following His resurrection. Finally they were annihilated by the Lamanites in a huge battle about 384 A. D. One of the few to escape was Moroni, son of Mormon, who completed the last chapters on his father's book which was to become the law of the Mormon people. Joseph Smith's followers grow rapidly and they moved westward, soon being driven from their colonies at Independence, Mo., and at Kirtland, Ohio. Smith accompanied a group to Far West, Mo., in 1838, but much trouble ensued with the Gentiles and threats and blows followed, finally bringing about a state of civil war. Climax came in 1838 when militia murdered 20 Mormons at Hawn's Mill and Smith and other leaders were arrested. The governor of Missouri ordered all Mormons from the state on pain of extermination. About 15,000 of them crossed the Mississippi into Illinois and settled at Nauvoo. Smith and his men were allowed to escape from Missouri prison and to rejoin the others several months later. At Nauvoo all were welcomed by leaders of the political party and given special charter to the city. But the question of polygamy arose when it was found that Smith had several wives. Bitter Mormons who disapproved this practice established "The Expositor" but only one issue came forth, well filled with tirades against Smith and orthodox Mormons. Nauvoo city council ordered the plant destroyed and this brought on an uprising of anti-Mormons. Poor Smith and his brother and others were arrested, charged with treason and imprisoned. A mob invaded the jail and shot them. Young Becomes Leader. And so Brigham Young, one of the 12 apostles of the faith, was raised to president of the church. He, as successor of Smith, and two counselors who were all considered the successors of Peter, James and Paul, had control of the sect. In 1846 feeling was so high in Nauvoo that the Mormons set out, led by Young, and made a long, hard journey to Salt Lake City. But enough of book history—there's too interesting history to be found just chatting with our townsmen. The Strahans know considerable of Wayne county's early beginnings for Mr. Strahan first came as a lad of 16—it must have been about 1832—accompanying cattle sent to graze on the Nebraska prairie. His father had purchased 3,000 acres of school land and used it for grazing purposes, having the cattle driven overland from the home at Malvern, Iowa, and taken across the river at Sioux City, by ferry. When lumber was needed for a new building, it was necessary to haul this overland from Wisner. The Strahans were married at Malvern 44 years ago and came right on to Wayne where they settled on the ranch four miles to west. Their first 10 years in the county were spent on the ranch and then the Strahans moved into town and may be found today in the big comfortable square house at top of Main street. Two sons make their home in Wayne—Postmaster J. M. Strahan and E. P. Strahan. Another, P. E. Strahan, is dead but his family live next to the parents, and there are eight grandchildren who find a warm welcome at the Strahans'.

Brothers Admit Kidnap Story Told Is Hoax

Fred Miller, 64, and Paul Miller, 44, Hoskins brothers who returned last week after having been missing since July 21 when they left for Wood lake to fish, have admitted that a kidnaping story they told was a hoax. They admitted to authorities that they had really been to the state of Washington trying to find work. They were able to get only seven hours work on the trip and returned home when their funds got low. In their story, which they admit is untrue, the Millers stated they were kidnaped and help captive for 86 days. They said that when they arrived at Marsh lake two men, one dressed in soldier's uniform, held them up at point of guns and forced them into a bread truck. The kidnapers, they said, bound and blindfolded them, and then traveled for twelve or fourteen hours without making a single stop. They said they were taken to a brick house, location of which they didn't know, and there kept prisoners for eighty-six days. Food was fed to them through a slot in a door, and at no time during the eighty-six days did they get a good look at their kidnapers, the brothers said. The brothers said the kidnapers put them in a car and took them to a highway about halfway between Columbus and Plattville, there they said their kidnapers told them they "were the wrong men" and released them. They also told Chief Blatt that they were told to walk down the road and they would find their automobile. They said they found their car had been rebuilt and that a new body had been put in place of the one they had when kidnaped. All their tools and shotguns were in the car and nothing was stolen from it, the brothers stated. When questioned about their hair being cut, they said their abductors had entered their "prison" and clipped their hair. Police found a pair of hair-clippers in the brothers' car. Norfolk police suspected the story was a hoax when he noticed each brother had "a beautiful tan" that wasn't acquired while imprisoned in a building for eighty-six days. The brothers, however, stuck to their story for several hours, but after considerable questioning admitted the kidnap yarn was a hoax. Resolutions. J. Francis McDermot of Omaha writes John T. Bressler, jr., sending the following resolutions: "On behalf of the three hundred fiftieth infantry association and on my own behalf I wish to express our deep sense of loss and regret at the death of Harold C. Caspey; it was our privilege to serve with him for many months during the late war and always we found him a genuine gentleman, a loyal soldier and a faithful friend. Those of us who shared with him the toil and strain of those long weeks in France will always remember his spirit and zeal. We who knew him best loved him most. Personally I am bereft of a dear friend and comrade. I mourn his passing. I lament his loss."
