Five mountaineers, representing Wayne players, will gather around a still marked "victory" and a revenue officer, representing Bloomfield, will come in and prepare to break the still. The mountain dwellers rescue it.

New terms brings two changes in high school schedule. Civics follows vocational guidance, and commercial law follows commercial arithmetic. Coach Robert Gibb teaches both.

Netraska Ranks High. After careful investigation by a government committee in Washington, it is found that Nebraska ranks fifth in what is termed "excellent" land. Iowa stands first with 25,983,110 acres, and then comes Illinois, Minnesota and Missouri in the order named. Some parts of Nebraska, including sections of the northeast quarter, are said to have too small farm units to provide adequate living and proper soil maintenance. The too small farm idea, however, could not refer to Wayne county, Seldom does any one here attempt to farm less than 160 acres, and many farms contain half sections or more.

Couple Marry Here Monday Morning. Mr. James O. Milliken and Mrs. Hattie McNutt were married Monday morning at 10:30 at the latter's home in Wayne. Rev. F. C. Mills of the Methodist church performing the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Milliken will make their home on a farm southwest of Wayne.

TRYING TO STOP CITY'S BUILDING PLAN IS COSTLY

IT WILL be noted in comparing figures that the court proceedings instituted some months ago to block building of the proposed community house, will impose an extra cost of $2,277—a difference between the former building contract and the one just awarded. Material costs and other conditions are not so favorable at this time as they were when the first contract was made and unavoidably was allowed to expire. Manifestly, it will not be practical to start work on the improvement before spring. But in contrast with the uphill pull for a community house, comes an encouraging report as to liquidating city obligations. In little more than a year, the city has paid off bonded indebtedness of $42,000, and has another accumulation of $500, to send on the same joyful mission.

Robberies Staged Saturday Night

Emerson depot agent was held up and cash drawer containing about $31 was taken Saturday evening about 9 o'clock. One unmasked man entered the station when the agent went to the platform to bring a cream can. On returning the agent was held at point of a gun and was forced to lie on the floor so that three passengers in the waiting room could not be attracted to his aid. The intruder took the drawer with cash and left in a car in which another man was waiting. The car bore a Wayne county license but it is thought the license plate was stolen for it was an old one and the car and persons did not answer description of parties here.

The same night the Standard and Shell filling stations of Winster were held up and robbed, the loss being about $60. The car model answered description of the one at Emerson so it is thought the same parties likely visited both towns. Officers are working on the cases.

The Merchant & Strahan filling station in Wayne had a window broken Friday night in what is thought was an attempted robbery. Nothing was missed.

To Managers' Meeting. Gene Broekemeier went to Omaha Tuesday and returned on Wednesday evening, attending Gamble managers' meeting in Hotel Fontenelle. Other managers who went with Mr. Broekemeier were George I. Reed of Randolph, Issadore Sudbeck of Laurel, Robert Stone of Wakefield, L. R. Winegar who starts a store at Cozad March 1, and J. E. Senior Class Play To Be Given Soon

Senior class of Wayne college high, under sponsorship of Miss Pearl Rutherford, will present a mystery, "The House of the Flashing Light," Thursday, January 24, at the college auditorium.

The cast, in order of appearance, includes: Lavina, Della Giese; Louise, Lola Doctor; Clark, James Brock; Jesse, guest actor, Alvin Giese; Stella, Alberta Farnum; Dot, Ruth Hanson; Mr. Li, Kenneth Beckman; Pedro, Virgil Beckman; Doyle, Paul Doctor; Eva, Minnie Denkinger; and Phyllis, Virginia Steele.

The scene is laid in an old house in southern California. The plot is built around a large ruby that is stolen and the aunt's will, which the relatives have gathered to hear read. When the ruby and will are both gone each member of the cast becomes suspicious of all the others and there seems to be startling evidence against each of them.

Classic Program Wins Audience At College Tuesday

Seldom have guest musicians received more enthusiastic approval from a Wayne State Teachers college audience than did the Manhattan String quartet at Tuesday evening's program. Not a large audience, but made up mainly of music-lovers from the hill and from about-town. The program of chamber music was played entirely from memory, no music being in evidence.

Most lovely was Beethoven's "Molto Allegro," which ended the first group of numbers, and Haydn's "Serenade" which was a muted first violin solo with pizzicato accompaniment. Of special interest was "Sehr Ergerlich" by Paul Hindemith, a modern composer who expresses modern speed and vitality in his works—captures the noises of the cities, the rush of stream-line trains, and mechanical repetition. As final encore the quartet played "Londonderry Air."

To Take Census. Wayne county will have seven to take farm census this spring.

RECOVERY PLANS INCREASE SCHOOL COSTS IN STATE

THE UNIVERSITY of Nebraska offers increased operating costs due to recovery plans of the federal government as ground for asking an increased appropriation from the state. While it is regretted that drought and failure of some recovery measures have caused prosperity to loaf behind maintenance and other expenses, sufficient support should be given the university and other educational institutions to keep them from slipping in facilities and ability to bestow important advantages on the boys and girls of the state. The university report states that "thirty-five per cent of the money appropriated must be spent for the fourteen special service activities that have been placed under the control of the University of Nebraska and the federal government, for which appropriations must be made." The university has an excellent faculty, but maintenance of such service depends on keeping salaries and opportunities equal to those of other universities. In this period of readjustment and recovery, preparation for future citizenship should not be allowed to suffer.

HONOR KIWANIS MEMBER MONDAY

O. R. Bowen Pays Tribute To J. T. Bressler—Supt. E. D. Clason Speaks.

Years full of activity and achievement—one of the greatest periods of expansion, growth and development in the United States—are included in the life span of John T. Bressler, eldest member of Wayne Kiwanis club, who was honored on his 86th birthday at Monday meeting of the group at Hotel Stratton.

In his birthday tribute, Prof. O. R. Bowen referred to Mr. Bressler as "the loved and esteemed-oldest member of the club." Mr. Bressler was born January 14, 1849, five years before Nebraska was established as a territory, 16 years before Nebraska was a state and 20 years before the Union Pacific railroad was built. His life of 86 years covers a period of great national development, the greatest period in our history. Mr. Bressler is a pioneer who has lived in midst of this period.

Mr. Bressler came to this community, stated Prof. Bowen, in 1870. He like other pioneers of that period, was a rugged individualist. People in those days had to be independent and were obliged to strive for accomplishment and this they did. This pioneer spirit guided them always and led them to accomplishment.

Mr. Bressler is well read and an outstanding republican, Prof. Bowen added. When McKinley was elected president in 1896 John M. Thurston wanted to ask McKinley to name Mr. Bressler secretary of agriculture but Mr. Bressler declined and Mr. McKinley named him to the Union Pacific board. Mr. Bressler traveled extensively in this country and in the Holy Land, Prof. Bowen added. When the late A. R. Davis was Nebraska's Masonic Grand Master, he presented Mr. Bressler with the 50-year Masonic pin. Mr. Bressler is a 32nd and 33rd degree Mason.

Prof. Bowen also mentioned Mr. Bressler's devotion to his home and family as admirable and outstanding trait. Mr. Bressler has always been active in the church and community affairs also. "A pioneer, citizen, neighbor, Kiwanian, husband and father," stated Prof. Bowen, "Mr. Bressler has attained marked success."

In closing Prof. Bowen presented Mr. Bressler with a bouquet of red roses, a gift of the club.

Supt. E. D. Clason of Winside was introduced by H. E. Sman, who stated that Winside school is now at its highest standard in history.

Education has been treated like a "poor relative," stated Supt. Clason. In its establishment, schooling was an offspring of the church and home. After inception of educational training, government bureaus other than schooling were given more attention. Education, however, grew slowly and conveniences were poor at first. With the World War the provisions for education increased more rapidly. With savings of 15 years and mortgage on another year's salary.

Carl Wasmuth Dies Monday At Emerson And Rites Held Thursday.

Carl Wasmuth, resident of Wayne from 1925 to 1930, died at his home in Emerson Monday last week after several months' illness following a stroke he suffered last July 26, aged 87 years, 10 months and 2 days. Funeral services were conducted Thursday at the home and at St. Paul Lutheran church in Emerson. Rev. Hugo Welchert in charge, and burial followed in Emerson.

Carl Heinrich Wasmuth was born April 5, 1847, in Bodenfelde, Hanover, Germany. He was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith in Germany. He married Miss Henrietta Wasmuth in Ustar, Germany, in 1873. One son, Frederick, was born to this union. Mrs. Wasmuth died in 1884. Deceased married Miss Charlotte Kirchner in Ustar on December 16, 1890. Five sons and two daughters were born. Three of the sons and one daughter preceded him in death.

Surviving Mr. Wasmuth are his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Marie Mansfield of Alma, Neb., and three sons, Alfred at home, Adolph of Dakota City, and Frederick in Switzerland.

The Wasmuths came to this country in October, 1901, and established their home near Emerson. They were in Wayne five years and then returned to Emerson.

Sell Health Seals In County Schools

Most Entire Fund Remains For Health Work Among Wayne Students.

To date Miss Pearl Sewell reports $220 worth of Christmas health seals sold in Wayne county schools, 9 not yet reporting.

The 1934 seal was of special interest for on it was pictured the first tuberculosis sanitarium in this country. This was built in the Adirondack mountains in northern New York by Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau 50 years ago. From this little cottage have grown 650 tuberculosis sanitariums with 86,000 beds in this country. Many Nebraska children owe their first physical examination to the Christmas seal fund.

Hopelessness has been transformed into hope and campaign of education through lectures, movies, newspapers, radio, magazines, pamphlets and posters reaching every corner of the nation is now in progress. In Nebraska alone about 1,800 lives were saved last year from this disease which remains the principal cause of death in the more important years of life, 15 to 40. Among girls in the teen age there has been a slight decline in death rate although the death rate for all ages has been slashed more than two-thirds.

It is difficult for the general public to realize the ravages wrought by tuberculosis. In Nebraska there were 303 deaths from this disease last year. Official health authorities claim for every death from tuberculosis there are nine active cases of disease. This means 2,727 active cases in Nebraska. No home is safe from this disease until all homes are safe.

The purchase of Christmas seals is a simple and impressive act and yet each contribution added to millions of them aids in building powerful defense, and this defense means protection for each. It promises in time to vanquish the enemy completely.

Last year's seal sale in Nebraska amounted to $22,674.37, and 95 percent of the entire fund was spent for prevention in Nebraska and five per cent was sent to the National Tuberculosis association to be used for research work and to pay for consultation service to the state.

Fifty percent of the money raised in Wayne county will be returned here to be used for promoting health among school children.

Beginning in 1927, pupils of the schools were examined by a physician in Wayne county. Health projects were made to correlate with the state course of study in hygiene and these were sent to all teachers each month. The magazine, Hygeia, and the first-aid kit were given each rural school. Glasses were purchased for several pupils, teeth extracted, an X-ray picture taken and help given on a tonal operation. Glasses were purchased for several who might otherwise have been unable to have them. Care of the teeth was also given.

Supt. H. B. Rest and Prof. K. N. Parke went to Lincoln Tuesday for meeting of the Nebraska School Boards and Executives. Supt. Best, Supt. Homer Anderson of Omaha, and Supt. H. G. Neumayer of Paxton, served on the resolution committee. A change in tax methods to release burden from present use of ad valorem tax, was advocated by the group, and need for more federal and state support for our schools was stressed. It was brought out that in order to safeguard education, particularly in the poorer communities of the state, such financial aid will be necessary. The bill to cut down rural tuition from $81 to $54, now pending in legislature, was discussed. There is a movement now to meet this with proposal that each community set tuition fees at actual cost.

GAG rule in congress is a rule adopted to require a majority to petition to draw a bill out of a committee for consideration of the house. This rule is justified on the ground that it keeps members from monopolizing the time of the session with bills with interest restricted to constituents back home to the exclusion of necessary business. When the present minority employed this rule a few years ago, the present majority, then in the minority, engaged in a lot of wild kicking. Now it is in order for the other side to kick if the disposition to play politics is allowed to override the judgment of expediency. Expedients are sometimes necessary to make headway in congress, and the so called gag rule is one of them. If each member were allowed to occupy time pushing pet measures originating back home, important matters of national interest would inevitably suffer. Here are a few paragraphs from an editorial in the Norfolk Daily News touching this subject:

"Nearly every representative's pocket holds, or held, some 'white rabbit' bill urged upon him by an influential group of his constituents. 'White rabbit' is the name applied in Washington to visionary and Utopian schemes to bring back prosperity, most of them involving the payment of large sums of money out of the public treasury. The number of these schemes which have been drafted into bills is embarrassing to the administration. Its own bills are in danger of being engulfed in the flood of such measures. Furthermore, President Roosevelt is likely to be put to the embarrassment of publicly opposing many of these measures, if they should come out of the committee.

"So the best way to keep the situation in hand, the administration leaders have found, is to increase the number of names required to bring bills out of a committee from 145 to 218."

Still Not Pleased WHILE noting with approval the president's withdrawal from some former public policies, Editor W. F. Cramb, Fairbury Journal's Jeffersonian democrat, does not like the way impractical theorists still persist in giving socialistic advice. Adding together the millions employed on government projects and other millions looking after such employment, together with still other millions looking to government employes for business, Editor Cramb issues an almost hopeless sigh as he contemplates the government paternalism and state socialism that may be developed in the future. He concludes:

"Taken altogether there is little to commend in the president's message. Commendation is forthcoming for that part where the president and his advisors admit the error of their present and past schemes. But it does not seem to have taught them anything. They are apparently just as ready to embark on a new sea of experiments as ever. Change and destruction of what is established is their ever-present attitude. Behind it all is state socialism and a crafty and cunning attempt to lull the people to sleep with empty promises."

Looking Forward THE Omaha Journal-Stockman calls inventors to the front to testify that the world is just fairly started in the matter of inventions. We have made little progress so far, according to the Journal-Stockman's quotation from William B. Stout, Detroit's brilliant mechanical engineer, who says:

"The entire world is out of date. Cities like these (pointing to the towers visible from his window), are due to fall. Public buildings and private residences must be replaced.

"All of the railroad rolling stock must be replaced with equipment of the automotive type. New trains can't be financed on a twenty year life basis because they'll be obsolete in much less than two decades. All machines used in your heating plants, lighting, dishwashers, means of travel—all will be different in three years.

"Industry, finance, politics, and insurance must be revised to fit the new era. The world of the future will change more in five years than did the world in the last five centuries."

In Time Of War MILLIONAIRES are going to be on the front firing lines in case of another war if some leaders have their way. Property as well as men will be conscripted with places in the thick of the fight reserved for those having more than a million dollars. All these present-day plans for the next war argue powerfully against the next war. The Lincoln Journal comments in this way: "One of the newer peace moves is a proposition to draft the wealthy first in the event of war. Representative O'Malley of Wisconsin would draft the millionaires first. He holds that those who 'profit most by war should serve in the ranks and answer the military call before anyone else is called.' Rich men fought in the last war—not all of them but perhaps as large a percent of rich men as of any other class. Congressman O'Malley would make that percentage much larger than that of any other class. He would make it 100 percent."

When a sort of hectic flush mounts to the cheek of human endeavor, and when one's plans hit snags and go awry, finding more stops than starts in the course of trying to make headway, the nervous system engages in such a game of quick and aimless firing, that the truth is often difficult to find and pin down. Stories are frequently told without taking the time or going to the trouble to ascertain the facts. Some things peddled out to consumers are so obviously false that one may safely dismiss them without inquiry or investigation. By matching a story with probability one may arrive at a fairly sound conclusion and avoid looking around for corroborative evidence. Dizzy souls prone to circulate what isn't so in order to be sociable will observe the amenities of neighborhood and other relationships by taking the time to capture bottom facts if a floating rumor seems worth repeating. An irresponsible and uncertain state of mind may for ease and convenience be charged to the depression.

One observer says national planning for agriculture is more difficult than in any other field. Farmers have long been accustomed to making their own plans, deciding the kinds of crops to plant and the kinds of livestock to raise. As a rule, the farmer's judgment on what and how much to raise is safer than that of any outsider. The farmer may sometimes be mistaken and accordingly he may lose, but in the long run he will land on his feet more times than he would if he tried to follow the blueprints of a government official who has but superficial knowledge of agriculture and its problems. Besides being impractical, the attempt to regulate farming and livestock raising from bureau headquarters in Washington would weaken the sturdy fiber that conquered the frontier and wrung rich production out of virgin prairies.

A writer in a current magazine explains that the multitudes of Utopians have in mind different schemes to insure security without work, obligation or responsibility, and if one is not satisfied with any of the popularly understood plans, he can figure one out for himself. The communist's answer to the query as to what he wants is "security" provided by the government, and he does not seem to be discouraged in his zeal by the tyranny in Russia which, under communism, probably gives less security to its people than any nation in the world, unless "security" means to shoot those who frown on the idea of forfeiting their products and starving to death.

Astronomers are peeved at the newspapers because they gave minor attention to the blowing up of a planet—a planet bigger and perhaps better than the earth. The explosion took place some 1,200 years ago, evidence of the fact having just reached the earth, but those who keep track of planetary affairs think the news, though a trifle old when it arrived, should have been given prominent first-page place. Editors could not be impressed with the startling news value of something that happened long before the discovery of America.

The question of the federal government paying taxes will be settled in Colorado where the government has taken over ownership and operation of the Moffat railroad. The tax commissioner of Colorado proposes to go into court if necessary in an endeavor to collect the same tax imposed on private ownership. If the federal government can escape paying taxes, then, as such ownership grows, new sources of revenue will have to be found.

Meets Opportunities. Lincoln Journal: William Sproule, whose death was recorded a few days ago, is pointed to as a man who made the most of his opportunities. He took advantage of situations as they came up, and when they seemed to be antagonistic to his plans, he made his plans fit, and went ahead doing what he most wanted to. He became president of the Southern Pacific railroad just as California decided on regulation of railroads. Up to that time the railroad had been a power in politics, finding political action its only safeguard. When regulation gave it the protection of the courts and commissions, Sproule turned his attention to running the railroad. That made an easier job for him. He made it profitable for the railroad. Regulation benefited the railroad and protected the people.

Proposed Short Week. Commenting on the proposed 30-hour work week, the Sioux City Journal concludes with this warning:

"One must keep in mind the idea that the thing to avoid as we struggle toward a normal condition is the business failure. We cannot afford to enact laws that will drive large numbers of important enterprises into bankruptcy. Our strength as a fight for recovery lies in the number of businesses that can be kept going, that can be made to survive. The more failures there are the more concentrated becomes industrial ownership, and that is the thing from which we are trying to escape. Let us keep the 30-hour week in prospect, but let us avoid errors in forcing it upon the country too soon."

BEING WORKED. Many honest, sensitive, sympathetic persons are often worked by the calloused and crafty. The fellow who labors and earns his way, giving full measure for stipulated pay and paying adequately and promptly for what he gets, is frequently the prey of conscienceless slickers who are on the lookout for suckers. An intended victim's weak spot is detected and lured to advantage. If one is overcharged with emotions, the sympathy plea is artfully and effectively used. If pride in family is overly strong, it is carefully drawn into a plan to win confidence and get something for nothing. If a fellow has a firm political or religious bias, the fact is ascertained and made the foundation for material gain. The individual whose ideal of work is to work the gullible and unsuspecting plodder, believes society owes him a living, and he is not balked by sense of pride or feeling of injustice in trying to collect what he believes is due.

more. We like to find authoritative confirmation of the generally understood truth that the nation's best farm lands lie in the middle west.

Pluck That Wins. Congratulations and courage to the widow who says she has maintained a household and raised nine children without outside aid, and while the going has sometimes been hard, she proposes to keep right on in her independent course. She pays as she goes, and if she can't afford a thing she doesn't buy it. Of course she has to manage carefully, and often has had to skip, but she has no obligations to nag her, and she has preserved a spirit of independence — one of the most precious human values.

Dividing Advantages. Those who have more than they need will enhance their own satisfaction by turning advantages to those who have less than they need. This is not charity. This does not mean accepting something for nothing. It does not break down pride. It means to give the other fellow who is battling against odds, some favorable breaks in his own row and earning his own way. The fortunate may make traveling easier for the unfortunate by pulling barriers out of his way and putting him in tune with opportunities.

World Events

The 74th congress convened at Washington last Thursday. Plebiscite in the Saar showed majority favoring return to German control.

Italy and France have reached partial agreement in regard to Austrian independence. A revolt was brewing in congress the last of the week to block appropriation of $4,000,000,000 for relief.

President Roosevelt asked congress Monday to appropriate eight billions of dollars, half to furnish relief jobs. President Roosevelt has proposed to congress the revision of federal relief, abandoning the dole for a vast public works job-making program.

Trial of Richard Hauptmann, charged with kidnaping Charles Lindbergh, jr., started last week. Col. and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh have testified, and Miss Betty Gow, the child's nurse, was witness first of this week. Dr. J. F. Condon, the one who paid the ransom money, will testify this week also. Testimony the past few days was given in Flemington, N. J., to prove that Richard Hauptmann is the man who wrote the ransom notes in the Charles Lindbergh, jr., kidnaping and the one to whom "Jafsie" paid the ransom. Prosecution traced $49,600 of the $50,000 ransom to Hauptmann.

THE SHORT WEEK. The thirty-hour work week is another delightful theory that won't pan out, especially at a time when more instead of less work is needed to swing the country back to a state of general prosperity. The theory is to reduce hours and hire more persons, and thus extend the benefits of employment. The idea is not to reduce wages accordingly, but if that were done, efficiency would be lowered and production curtailed. If those employed were to accept less pay for a short week, their problem of making ends meet would increase to the detriment of tasks in hand. If the work week were shortened with no change in wages, how many employing institutions could carry the extra load? If employers were oppressed beyond endurance, the result would be to flood the world with new unemployed. Low-making bodies would seem to do better for the country by using their allotments of gray matter in trying to figure out ways to stimulate demand and consumption, results of which would absorb unemployment at wages and hours consistent with earning possibilities.

Selected From The Editor's Late Radio Talks

A bill providing for a two percent sales tax has been introduced in the Nebraska house, and if it becomes a law, it would mean considerable extra revenue with considerable extra work involved in handling the retail business of the state. Iowa has a sales tax law, and its experience would be a valuable aid in directing the footsteps of Nebraska law-makers.

We made a hurried survey by telephone of neighborhood opinions touching the advisability of a sales tax law in this state. Some who were questioned, had not considered the proposed measure thoroughly enough to form definite opinions. Results of the questioning:

Ole G. Nelson who farms at the northwest edge of town, and who specializes in raising pure bred pigs, says he has not fully made up his mind in regard to a sales tax, but he is inclined to favor it. He has been influenced in support of the measure by an Iowa man who said it had reduced real estate taxes in that state.

Russell L. Larson, local merchant, is against a sales tax because it would necessitate an increase in retail price of goods, and with higher prices would follow decreased sales. He frowns on any scheme that raises retail prices and curtails volume. He quotes a New York merchandising authority who, referring to the price-raising prohibitions of the NRA, said anything that interferes with the steady flow of goods to consumers retards recovery.

Prof. O. R. Bowen welcomes a sales tax as a way to make fair distribution of the tax burden. With a sales tax everybody would contribute to the government. Under existing laws, many escape every form of taxation. The fellows who own property carry the load. Prof. Bowen would make everybody share in supporting the government and ease the burden saddled on real estate and other property.

Western Union Gives Use Of Facilities. Western Union has placed its nation-wide system of telegraph offices at the disposal of the president's birthday ball committee. Each person who places his signature on the birthday greeting pays 25c and the full sum will be turned over to the fund to aid in the fight against infantile paralysis. The greeting will read as follows: Happy birthday Mr. President. I am proud to know that the cost of sending this greeting will help in the great fight against infantile paralysis to which you have given your leadership and loaned your birthday. Signatures from every telegram will be sent to New York where they will be bound into what will probably be the greatest birthday greeting in history.

the superintendent was then able to buy a car. The board then figured he was getting prosperous and cut his salary. With arrival of the depression education was again "put in the hospital," and bare necessities provided. Salaries were lowered, tuition cut and education thus handicapped.

Through the period of rise and fall education has arrived again at the period of being a "poor relative." It is given meagre opportunity because of books which are out of date and clamping down on other needs. Teaching with materials that are out of date is like using a one-horse plow. Supt. Clauser said.

It is important, Supt. Clauser stressed, that educational advantages be kept up with other developments. Children should be provided opportunities in keeping up with progress in inventions and other lines.

Atlas Sorgo Seed Scarce This Spring

Supplies of genuine atlas sorgo seed will be extremely short this spring. P. H. Stewart, extension agronomist at the Nebraska college of agriculture has notified Agricultural Agent G. H. Liggett. He warns that much seed offered as atlas sorgo will not be "true atlas."

Atlas has proven its value for Nebraska conditions as a forage and ensilage crop. Stewart says. Unfortunately in 1934, the demand was so great that much seed sold in good faith through regular seed channels turned out to be other varieties. Seed of this so-called atlas will probably be on the market in some localities.

One variety, hegari, may be available to Wayne county farmers for spring planting. It has produced slightly heavier yields of cured forage than black amber sorgo during a 6-year period in Nebraska experiment station tests and was unsurpassed in grain production. It should prove satisfactory as an emergency forage crop. As a forage crop, it should be equal or superior to blackhall kafir and grohoma. Because of its shorter height, hegari will not yield nearly as large tonnage as atlas sorgo and other tall sorgo varieties. The seed is rather soft and starchy and may give some trouble in securing stands although it should be less troublesome than falerita. In any case, the seed should be treated with copper carbonate before planting.

Dixon County Farm News.

By Greth M. Dunn, County Agricultural Agent, Ponca, Nebraska. Dixon county 1935 Corn-Hog Program. Feeder pig evidence—1935 Corn-Hog Contracts.

Farmers who expect to sign 1935 contracts, must show evidence of all feeder pigs bought since December 1, 1934. Get a receipt when you buy feeder pigs.

Any signer in 1935 can purchase an unlimited number of feeder pigs from contract signers who sign and comply on 1935 contracts. Signers are limited to their own feeder pig base on purchases from 1935 non-contract signers.

Educational meetings will be held at Newcastle, Ponca, Allen and Wakefield the week of January 20. Tentative plans are to hold one series of educational meetings only. Signing of applications will begin February 1 and close March 1.

A somewhat different plan will be used for sign-up work this year. Most of the applications can be filled out in the office from the 1934 data.

New signers must have their hog evidence for 1932-1933 and corn production data on the place they will farm in 1935 for the same period.

Under the provisions of the new contract, the signer agrees to plant from 10 to 30 percent less corn than he planted in the 1932-33 average but he can use the land for small grain or other crops. Hog production allowances are increased over last year and the payments are made up 10 percent of the average annual production for 1932-33.

Would Establish Devil's Nest Land For Federal Park

Petitions asking the government to establish the Devil's nest near Bloomfield as a federal park and game preserve are being circulated in northeast Nebraska by Lloyd W. Longnecker of Omaha, who was in Wayne Saturday. One petition is in the hands of R. W. Ley and persons may sign the same by seeing him.

The Devil's nest, a secluded sunken tract of 6,000 acres among the Missouri river bluffs, is regarded by Mr. Longnecker as the greatest beauty spot east of the Big Horn mountains. Deer are already in the primitive region and it is proposed to add buffalo and elk. Mr. Longnecker would also promote wild bird life in the park. He is especially interested in reestablishing the almost extinct Bob White, the quail which saves $350,000,000 for farmers annually through its destruction of insects and obnoxious weeds.

The Devil's nest has served as a hide-out for many years. Men and women from the Sioux and Santee Indian tribes took to the Devil's nest in early days. Wahpekute, meaning to shoot in the leaves, was chief of these for some years. He is now dead and another, Inkpaduta, has taken his place as chief. Children and grandchildren of the Indians still live in the Devil's nest.

Jessie and Frank James, hold-up men of earlier days, also sought refuge in the Devil's nest after robbing trains and doing other desperate things. Mr. Longnecker is told that when the two James brothers were going to the hiding after a robbery in Minnesota a boy sitting along a road shot Jessie's hat off. The two took a pair of horses from a nearby farm and rode them to death in an attempt to reach the hiding. Frank returned to Missouri and later Jessie went there and was hunted down and shot. Jessie James married an Indian maiden in the Devil's nest and a son of the couple still resides there.

Mr. Longnecker urges the establishing of this region as a federal park to preserve one of the finest virgin spots in the country.

Fairacres Herd High In December Test

Cold weather and scarcity of feed lowered production somewhat in the Madison-Cuming-Wayne Dairy Herd Improvement association, the 289 cows averaging 633 pounds of milk and 26.5 pounds of butterfat.

Of the 289 cows, 34 made from 40 to 49 pounds of butterfat, two had 50 to 59, and nine had 60 pounds or over. Fairacres Farms has seven of the nine cows producing 60 pounds or over. W. D. Noakes of Wayne, and Hugo Nickolson of Wisner, had the other two.

Fairacres herd was high in the large group, with 16 cows or over, for fourth consecutive month. This herd of 28 Holsteins produced an average of 1,147 pounds of milk and 42.8 pounds of butterfat. High cow in the association is also at Fairacres, this Holstein producing 2,945 pounds of milk and 123.5 pounds of butterfat.

High herd in the small group is that of Lytle Schmitt, of Madison, his five Holsteins averaging 964 pounds of milk and 33.1 pounds of butterfat.

Pioneer Banker Is Eighty-six Monday

John T. Bressler who observed his 86th birthday on Monday, looks forward to some improvement in conditions during the year 1935.

"If we have a good crop and the government leaves the farmers alone, we should swing back to better times here in this state," said the banker. "Never during my life in Nebraska have we had as complete a crop failure as last year."

Mr. Bressler pronounces himself as enjoying quite good health and thus enjoying life. He is down at his office every day.

Mr. Bressler firmly believes that the early days on the prairie were the happiest—people were more satisfied, yet had less. And he should speak with authority on the early days for he came to Wayne county in April of 1870, tramping alone across the prairie from West Point. He took out a government homestead, breaking ground with a yoke of oxen. His land proved up on, he moved to the county seat, LaPorte, and there served as county treasurer the 1877 and 1879 terms. He and D. C. Patterson then entered the banking business on a small scale, and moved it to Wayne when the new town was located on the railroad.

Engineering Feats Produce Projects Of Great Help In East

Feats of engineering accomplished in modernizing projects appear as most interesting to one visiting the east. Dr. R. H. Loder found on his recent trip to New York and New Jersey. One of these he noted is the new four-way highway which is elevated 150 feet above the countryside. Traffic congestion is a big problem in the east and on this highway cars can make the six miles in 10 to 15 minutes whereas the same distance through traffic jam would require four to six hours. One who wants to drive off the highway turns toward the center aisle and down a ramp. This elevated road is world known. The Holland tunnel beneath the Hudson is another engineering feat which speeds up traffic in the east. This also provides four-lane travel and permits drivers to travel 40 and 45 miles an hour. The Washington bridge, 150 feet above the water and a mile long, has a cable span and is another aid to traffic. Cables are larger than one could reach around. Dr. Loder noted that these and other projects have worked wonders in enabling motorists to travel faster and more easily. Radio city theatre and building in New York was interesting to Dr. Loder. The auditorium is modernized. The "telescope" ceiling makes lighting indirect. Stage is large enough to accommodate 60 or 70 girls in a single row. On New York Dr. Loder reported 8,000 in the hall listening to the program. Ninety per cent of the building is rented. It is stated that this is figured very good because the percentage is larger than above banks of the falls and part of the Empire State building. A million people were on streets of New York theatre district New Year's eve, the visitor was told. Everyone was friendly and all seemed to be enjoying the time. Policemen were numerous and the crowd was very orderly. Dr. Loder attended the Columbia Medical center and found this a wonderfully well equipped institution. Tendency in the east is toward use of soft color schemes for interior decorations of hospital rooms. Dr. Loder found soft green and light tan are used very much. Dr. Loder also visited Bellevue hospital in New York and was impressed with skill in this institution. At first one feels that easterners are precise and indifferent but after acquaintance they are most hospitable, the doctor found. This is true even on wealthy Riverside drive. At Asbury Park, N. J., Dr. Loder saw the ruins of the Morro Castle, the ship which was destroyed by fire last summer with loss of many lives. The huge shell is charred all but one point and the ruins lie in the harbor. Contrast of homes in Pennsylvania is striking. Dr. Loder found many mining villages are made up of little shacks huddled together for several miles along a highway, and then nearby in the hills one sees great mansions, beautiful homes on vast estates. Traveling up the Hudson Dr. Loder saw many places of historic interest. The gently rolling hills with pine trees covered with snow were beautiful. Niagara Falls was a sight of great interest to Wayne doctor. Mists rose high above banks of the falls and part of the water was frozen and the rest looked like syrup as it fell over er the great rocks. Power in the falls is sufficient to supply the entire United States if this were harnessed. Dr. Loder traveled from Lincoln, Neb., to Wilmington, Del., a distance of 1,300 miles, in 36 hours. Returning, he went into Canada and crossed to Detroit by tunnel. Southwest Wayne (By Staff Correspondent) Doris Granquist was ill last week with a cold. George Bruns and Fred Melvin were in Sioux City Thursday. THE ARTIST An artist sat at his easel, His palette was in his hand, Before him stretched the ocean waves And a shore of yellow sand. But the sand to his was paying, Paving of bright shining gold, And the sea was not water but turquoise With colors both warm and cold. And soon with a stroke of vigor That master's hand was at work, He brushed and stabbed with fearless zeal As a woman wielding a dirk, And lo! and behold on the canvas A miracle soon was wrought, And a thing of beauty emerged - The spirit of beauty was caught. And so we too are all artists, With many degrees of will; Some are masters of note Who wield with infinite skill; To them the task that is given Can be seen in brilliant hues - Can be seen in all of its beauty; And cobalts are royal blues, Aye, let not we mortals be driven, Let's master each task at hand And see in that task all the glory The Artist saw in the sand. The First Germans In Nebraska

(Chronicling the History of German Settlements in the Prairie State, and Contributions of the Emigrants to Development of Our Agricultural Importance.)

The following article was translated from the German by Miss Hilda Neiharit, student at Wayne State Teachers college and daughter of Nebraska's poet laureate. The original is work of Dr. W. H. Werkmeister, professor of philosophy at University of Nebraska.)

In the melting pot of the Middle West, the German element is one of the most important constituents of the American mixture of peoples. Already, purely a matter of figures, it develops that 37 per cent of the entire population of Nebraska is of German descent. One can rightfully say that without the Germans and their descendants our state would not be what it is. The facts are so well-known that we need waste no words about them.

It is no longer with certainty to be ascertained when the first German settlers came to Nebraska. It appears to be certain that between 1818 and 1819 two or three German families lived west of the Missouri, among the Indians of the broad Nebraska prairie. The first absolutely certain news of a German who set foot upon Nebraska soil we find in the incomparable and informative travel stories of Prince Maximilian of Wied, who, with the German painter, Botmer, in the years from 1832 to 1834 explored the region of the Missouri.

When Nebraska was opened up for white settlers, there were also Germans in the first expeditions there, that made a new home here on the wide, storm-swept prairie. Alone and in small groups they came out of the more thickly settled east or directly from the old home. Daring and unswerving will to succeed fired them on to fight through and complete in spite of all obstacles. In Otoe county and in the surroundings of Columbus they built their block houses and earth huts—the first meager beginnings of a culture which like a thunderstorm raged across the prairie and was to destroy the old, the world of the red men, forever.

In the year 1857 a company of settlers composed of thirty-five Schleswig-Holsteiners under the leadership of William Stollen and Fred Hedde started from Davenport, Iowa, crossed the Missouri by Omaha, travelled with covered wagons and oxen past Columbus out westward, as far as the Wood River. On the fifth of July, 1857, they laid out a new city on the virgin land which was untouched by any western culture. In spite of winter's cold and starvation, in spite of prairie fire and Indian resistance, the German settlers laid here on the farthest frontier of western civilization the foundation for the America Comes In For Attention Of London Press. If you wonder that the English are inclined to consider the term "American" as synonymous with "vulgarity," and to look upon our cities as infested with gangster hordes fully as numerous and as blood-thirsty as the redmen which once inhabited the country, just glance through a London newspaper and you'll find the reason—America's "worst" is featured.

Mrs. H. C. Caspey receives "The Daily Mirror," an illustrated daily, and it proves most fascinating entertainment. The cinema stars from that much-publicized Hollywood come in for full share of interest. Featured is Wallace Beery in the film, "The Mighty Barnum." And just glance at the cinema notices—Garbo in "Queen Christina," Madge Evans in "Paris Intruder," Burns and Allen in "Many Happy Returns," Joan Blondell in "Kansas City Princess," Warren Williams in "The Dragon Murder Case," Charles Ruggles in "Friends of Mr. Sweeney," "Transatlantic Merry-go-round" and "The Count of Monte Cristo."

And here was America's news contribution to one issue—June Knight, cinema actress, had parted from Mr. Paul Ames, stock broker, whom she married 13 days before. All of which confirms British conceptions of the ultra-wrist life of Hollywood.

Turn to the "Gramophone Notes." Here America also makes third largest city of our state: Grand Island.

Less than ten years later, in 1866, 124 German colonists from Wisconsin entered here in the northeastern part of Nebraska. Under the leadership of Hermann Braasch and Louis Hockendorf they founded Norfolk. The more thickly populated East was thrown out of proper balance by a quite grievous administrative crisis. Nebraska, however, with its uncultivated, fruitful valleys and plains invited new settlement. But here also the crisis was perceptible. Money was scarce. Corn seed cost two dollars a bushel and had to be bought in Wisner, which was thirty-five miles away. An excessively severe winter threatened still in the last moment to cross the plains of the German settlers. The life-preserving provisions came to an end and only an almost "communist" community life made possible for the founders of Norfolk to withstand the winter.

The founding of cities and the settlement of the unbroken prairie were, however, only the upward beat to the creation of the Germans in the state. Our compatriots rendered special service in that they called to life a flourishing sugar industry in Nebraska. Henry A. Konig, born in the Magdeburg sugar region, was the first who attempted to convert ideas of beet culture into reality. He obtained seeds from Washington and began his at first quite meager attempt.

The result was little satisfying. But Henry A. Konig did not rest. In 1887 he established, in company with Charles A. Wiebe, William A. Hagge and other farmers of Hall county, a small company for the furthering of the raising of sugar beets. In the spring of 1888 extensive attempts with the most different kinds of seeds were carried through in the whole county. The government in Washington had contributed one hundred pounds of seed for these attempts; however a small sample of seed which Henry A. Konig had got from Germany gave best results. These seeds delivered surprisingly good results. Because of that a considerable number of beet seeds were introduced from Germany the next year, and with these seeds came also a German expert, to oversee the growing and use of the sugar beets in Nebraska. The year 1889 was the deciding year.

The result of the many-sided attempts with the different kinds of soil exceeded all expectations; it turned out that the beet revenue in Nebraska itself widely exceeded that in Germany. This was the hour of birth of the sugar industry in Nebraska. Today our state, thanks to the circumspection and pioneering spirit of its German settlers, stands second among the sugar-producing states of the Union.

its presence known. The H. M. V. Regal-Zone, Parlophone, Rex, Decca, are joined by Columbia and Brunswick announcements. And guess who head-lines the best-sellers for Crosby? None other than Bing Crosby. . . Mills Brothers and the Castilian Troubadors also register.

For some reason The Mirror ignores American radio broadcasts. Here are the "Best from Abroad," stressing Belgian, German, Czechoslovakian, Italian, French and Scandinavian stations, but never a mention of the National or Columbia chains!

Ice skating, greyhound racing, a circus, Madame Tussaud's exhibition (the same wax-works of old), horse racing, boxing, soccer, golfing, even the great American contribution of football share sporting interest of the British.

And here's almost a full page devoted to a well-known brand of cold creams which originated in the United States, and fairly dotes on printing endorsements from society women and members of nobility, the kind that start off with "Lady Mait has the fair ethereal beauty that is so rare. . . Despite long days in the saddle, and a busy round of social activities, her complexion is always faultless! . . . you know the rest."

Now this picture has a familiar look—it's a section of Hagenbeck's circus arriving in dear-old Lunnon—and a trainer is leading a well-grown tiger down the street while a Bobby looks on somewhat reflectively, but not in the least perturbed, as befits a Bobby.

And here's a bit of chat from America—Pollowemen "in New York are to be armed, and they don't like the idea. It's all because such arming would necessitate carrying "very large handbags." Presumably, says The Mirror, when a policewoman joins battle with a gunman, he, chivalrous, as ever, waits until she has unfastened her very large handbag and extricates her large before opening fire. My, my, do they think we send women out to fight our Dillingers and Capones?

From Ponca Journal for February 8, 1883: The crowning effort to hand down to a happy immortality this county, its towns and business men came this winter. One day a somewhat decaying specimen of gentility struck this town and immediately commenced the recultivation of its well-worked field of literature and the remaking of its business men. He would write for a Chicago magazine a full, complete and graphic history of the county, the towns, the citizens and various industries and their important future. Truly the millennium seemed at hand. Each citizen would want to purchase a few magazines at the ruinously low price of 50c a copy to send back east to let the folks know about us. He sold 250 magazines in Wakefield and a like number in Ponca, 500 magazines at 50c or $250. These were in addition to thousands of regular subscriptions. A second man delivered the magazine—always a good idea—and it was found that the little pamphlet was printed just for the Dixon county people, there being no Chicago office and no world circulation.

It is refreshing to observe people coming for worship on a cold and stormy morning like it was Sunday. It means determination and special efforts. But there is compensation in worship. SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby girl, whom he names "Penelope," in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in divorce. Ten-year-old Penelope is given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. Gatlin and Penelope go to a baseball game. A ball strikes Penelope on the nose and Mrs. Gatlin removes her from the hospital, and spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin retires from business, while Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt is a rising young psychiatrist. Dan McNamara, chief of police, brings him a patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's expert testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is won over to Nance's cause. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Lanny visits her and Nance persuades her to smuggle out a letter, which a confederate steals from her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV

ARRIVED at the little bungalow she occupied in St. Francis Wood, Lanny put her car in the garage, entered her home, and sat down to read Nance Belden's letter. And when she failed to find it she did some of the logical thinking of which she was so eminently capable in situations where her emotions were not being preyed upon.

"Good work," she decided finally. "That girl I picked up on the road in Greenbrae stole it out of my hand-bag when I got out to look at the flat tire. She must have visited Nance before I got there. She was a flashy sort of damsel, too, now I think of it. An underworld huzzy, doubtless; doubtless, too, known to the police. So Nance had no opportunity to slip her the letter. The matron watched too closely. Nance feared that would be the case, so she had an alternative plan. What a shrewd judge of human nature that girl is! She knew she could work on me, and oh, what a fool I was to permit it! Why, I'm as lawless as she is, only I'm a responsible member of society and she isn't."

"Nance knew I wouldn't fall to visit her, so she described me to her confederate, who spotted me when I drove up to the main gate and parked my car. "When the confederate saw me coming back she drove a nail about an inch into my rear tire—simple as two and two are four. The nail was driven all the way in and the air was out before we'd gone a mile. Oh, dear, dear, what a simpleton I am! I suppose I ought to do something about this, but then if I do, how can I explain my conduct to the prison officials?"

She realized thoroughly now the extent to which she had been an accessory before the fact. That sly mix-telling her she could read the letter before mailing it; that if she did not approve of its contents she was free to destroy it. That was the point upon which the susceptible Lanny had impaled herself. "Well, it can't be anything so very important," she decided finally. "It couldn't be part of a plan to escape, because escape from that place is impossible. Besides, no woman convict has ever succeeded in escaping from San Quentin. In all probability it was just a private message to one of her old underworld friends. That girl is too intelligent to dream of formulating plans for

And again a masculine voice said: "Miss Rebecca Lanning?" "Yes," Lanny controlled herself. "Yes," she said calmly. "Who's speaking?" "Dan McNamara." "Oh, hello, Dan. How are you?" "Fine, Lanny. How's yourself?" "Well, I might be dead for all the interest you've taken in me since you swallowed that good-bye note you gruffed off me the day you came to Doctor Burt's office with that Nance Belden girl." She added archly: "You egg!"

"Dan McNamara laughed. "Can I come out now?" "The very idea. Of course not. It's almost ten o'clock and I'm just about to retire." "This is business, Lanny. I've got to see you at once." "I didn't know the police were after me."

"The police aren't, but the chief is," Lanny thought. Nance Belden escaped from San Quentin late this afternoon. She got to San Francisco all right. We know that because we found the speed-boat she crossed the bay in tied up in the yacht harbor at Marina. There was blood all over the cockpit and bullet holes in the hull.

"All of which proves, Dan, that God's in his heaven, and all's well with the world. Are you seriously trying to recover the girl and send her back to the penitentiary?" "I'm not. I'd give two of my big buck teeth to see her make a clean getaway. You know that, but the warden—naturally. It seems you visited Nance two weeks ago and smuggled a letter out for her and mailed it."

"Dan, I give you my word of honor I neither mailed a letter for her nor passed it to somebody else to mail. Nor did the girl discuss with me any plans for escape. If she had I would have told the warden. In order to prevent her escape, it wouldn't have been kind not to do so. The girl is mentally irresponsible and it would have occurred to me that, in any had attempt to escape, a guard might shoot at her."

"Well, a guard did, and he hit her, too. But he didn't stop her. Her outside gun opened on him with a Tommy gun from a speed-boat off the point, and made him flinch his hole. Nance swam out to the boat under cover of their protective fire; they hauled her in and beat it forty-five miles an hour across San Quentin bay and headed up toward Carquinez straits, while daylight lasted. After dark they doused their lights and sneaked back. The warden telephoned Central office here and gave the alarm. I wasn't on hand, but of course the captain on duty had the water front covered at once. He had two men at the St. Francis Yacht club and they saw a speed-boat sneak in and across the little harbor to a vacant berth on the pier. He signally before the cops could lurry across the pier the boat jumped out and to a waiting car. The cops followed in a police car as soon as they could. But one of Nance's friends riddled their front tires with machine-gun bullets and the trail was lost."

"How exciting, Dan!" "Yes, and it will be more exciting for you, Lanny. I got home about two minutes ago, and my phone was ringing. It was central office trying to report to me. They're just stalling a couple of dicks out in a cruiser to watch and see if Nance tries to make your house. You're a trained nurse. The warden's found out that much—matter of looking you up in the San Francisco directory. So he thinks that he'll head for your house to receive medical attention. And you must be a friend of hers—otherwise why did you call upon her?"

"Dan," said Lanny desperately, "she's here now!" "Into your car with her, Lanny, and beat it out to my house with her." He gave his address. "That's the last place on earth the devil himself would hunt for an escaped convict." (TO BE CONTINUED.)
