PILGER WINNER IN WAYNE MEET

Takes Championship From Wayne—Pender And Winside Lead.

Pilger basketball team took championship of the class A basketball tournament in Wayne Saturday evening at the college by defeating Wayne high school with score of 21 to 14. In the game between Wakefield and Pender, losers in the semi-finals, Pender won by 24 to 23. Winside and Macy, winners of two class B tournaments of the week before, also met Saturday evening and Winside won by 24 to 18. Pilger goes to state class A meet at Lincoln this week-end, and Winside enters state class B tournament at Hastings.

Wayne and Pilger teams tied scores often in first half of the tilt and the lead changed from one to the other. At the half the score stood 9 to 5 in favor of Pilger. In the second half Pilger made a steady gain after the score tied at 11.

In the Pender-Wakefield game, Pender held a good lead in first half. Wakefield rallied and tied the scores and toward close of the game Pender gained and held a slight lead.

Winside outplayed Macy throughout the class B game. Pilger received the plaque presented by the athletic association. Wayne, runner-up in the finals, and Pender, winner of semi-final losers, received trophies from the college W club.

In semi-final games Saturday afternoon Wayne won from Wakefield by 29 to 18 and Pilger won from Pender by 24 to 12. Both games were close. Wakefield led over Wayne at the half by 14 to 11, holding Wakefield scoreless in third quarter, and allowing that team to make only four points in last quarter. Pender and Pilger had close scores until last quarter when Pilger went ahead to a 12-point lead.

In second round of the tournament Friday evening, Pilger won from Bloomfield by 26 to 15; Pender defeated Lyons by 22 to 15; Wayne won from Walthill by 26 to 21; and Wakefield defeated South Sioux City by 17 to 16. In the Wayne-Walthill tilt, Walthill led by 9 to 0 at the first quarter and by 11 to 8 at the half. Wayne team presented better play in second half to gain a lead. The Wakefield-South Sioux City game was close all through, the score being tied much of the time. Pilger held a slight margin over Bloomfield most of the game, and Pender did the same in Lyons tilt.

Upset at Beginning. First rounds were played off Thursday afternoon and evening, the crowd being rather large for opening day. Dopesters predicted that Bloomfield, Wakefield, South Sioux City, Pilger and Wayne had good chances to enter the finals, after watching the teams in action. Coach W. R. Hickman pronounced the basketball of higher class than in previous years. The only upset was Winnebago's defeat by Pender, the Indians being expected to reach the semi-finals at least.

In the afternoon, Pender defeated Winnebago by 27-26, illness accounting for part of the Indians' inability to come through. Lyons took a 24-22 win from Allen. Bloomfield swamped Laurel underwilt 29-9 score. South Sioux City took 22-17 win from Oakland.

That evening, Wakefield and Ponca opened the tilts, Wakefield winning 26-20. Walthill-Vergide game was fast but not particularly finished. Walthill won 34-18. At first quarter of Pilger-Hastings tilt, tally stood 9-2, but Pilger had 6-9 lead at half. The first half was mostly interesting to spectators although there was not much scoring. Wayne took 29-15 victory over Emerson in final game of the evening. This slated second round games as follows: Pilger vs. Bloomfield, Pender vs. Lyons, Walthill vs. Wayne, and Wakefield vs. South Sioux City.

The Wayne class A meet was one of 13 held last week in the state. Supt. H. R. Best was chairman, and Prof. F. G. Dale and Coach W. R. Hickman were officials. Attendance at the meet was good, and the 16 teams entered showed some very good playing.

War Of Words
 THE duel of words between Hugh S. Johnson and Rev. Chas. E. Coughlin, Michigan priest, started by the former last week and enlivened by the latter Monday night, produces a masterful exhibition in word painting, and will stimulate interest in and understanding of public questions. Johnson and Coughlin are well matched for a battle of wits. Johnson is rawer than the priest, but he does not lack force of words, to express himself. Coughlin is more polite, but not less incisive. The priest commands a wonderful rhythm of words, and he is as graceful as he is effectual in taking off the other fellow's skin. We are in favor of continuing the war until the ammunition runs out. It is both entertaining and enlightening.

Huey Long who also figures as a target for Johnson, is of small intellectual caliber as compared either to Johnson or the priest. Long is probably the world's most outstanding and most dangerous demagogue. If he could prove sincerity, he would prove lack of judgment in marshaling irrational ideas. He is likely to take part in the debate by discharging batteries of billingsgate and mud.

Under Fire
 THE NRA is under fire in congress, and while those directly connected with its operation are trying to defend its usefulness, a growing and determined opposition threatens to let it expire with the time limit June 16.

The NRA has caused more annoyance and less help than any one of the government's experiments, and while differences of opinion have been expressed with reference to ways to handle the bureau, seldom anyone can be found in the middle west to acknowledge that it has any value. The plan to shorten hours, increase wages and regulate prices did not appeal to the mid-westerner's idea of the way to meet and conquer a depression.

The freer agriculture and industry and business can be made from extra impositions of bureau interference and unnecessarily increased overhead, the easier and quicker can the paralysis of unemployment and sluggish market and trade arteries be overcome. If congress would label the bureau for extinction June 16, its action would cause a wave of hearty approval.

On Wrong Ground
 OPPOSITION in the senate to the administration's work relief bill appropriating $4,880,000,000 is largely based on the proposed wage scale which, in order to stimulate private employment, would be placed

Kearney Conference Pronounced Success
 State Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. conference at Kearney last week-end was pronounced a splendid meeting by the Wayne college group which attended. Y. W. C. A. sent Helen Jones of Wayne, DeLoma Scott of Pacific Junction, Iowa, Helen Toy of O'Neill, Kathryn Greenhill of Stanton, and Bess Cropley of Sioux City, accompanied by Mrs. John R. Keith. Y. M. C. A. delegation included Art Larson of Wakefield, Clarence Sorenson of Bancroft, Llewellyn White below that prevailing in private industry. Opposition on the ground that the amount asked is too great and would add too much to already staggering national indebtedness, would make a winning appeal to practical persons with the future in mind. But the idea of wanting to pay more than industry can pay smacks of the dole, unnecessarily fawns at the feet of labor unions and flings monkeywrenches into the recovery machinery. We think the administration is asking too much, but it is certainly right in wanting to place government wages below the general level and thus keeping the government from competing with private industry. The administration has made plenty of mistakes, but its latest attempt to fix wages is not one of them.

Work To Start
 AFTER eighteen months from the time bonds were voted to enlist the aid of the national government in building a community house in Wayne, the first visible move towards actual construction is being taken. A workmen's house is being built, and excavation will soon follow. Satisfying the government's red tape took considerable time, and then court action to block the improvement caused delay. The city administration had to exercise exhaustless patience and courage not to give up in despair. But the authorities stuck to their task, and now after a series of disappointments, success is in sight—before long the community house will be a reality. When completed the building will be modern in all respects, and of sufficient capacity to accommodate largest crowds.

The Hartington Lions club is protesting with a good deal of vigor against holding the next international convention of the organization in Mexico City on the ground that the Mexican government is in league with the devil to destroy Christianity contrary to one of the fundamental principles of the club to foster religious liberty. The convention place having been fixed, about all Hartington can hope to accomplish is some advertising for itself. Under the circumstances, the practical thing to do would seem for Lions delegates headed by the Hartington group, to go quietly to the meeting and by precept and example soak Mexico City as much as possible with the spirit of religious tolerance and Christian duty.

If everyone going through a critical surgical operation could be sustained by the popular interest which has attended little Alyce Jane McHenry of Omaha, who underwent rearrangement of her upside-down stomach at Fall River, Mass., how much easier would be the battle against affliction—how much more certain would be the road to recovery? Every report indicates that the little girl is going to get well, and a sympathetic world is profoundly glad.

It is not likely the administration will try to reconcile its sweeping move for a child labor amendment with its highly meritorious CCC activities. The CCC encourages useful employment of boys under 18, while the proposed amendment would encourage them not to work until after they are 18.

Rev. Father Coughlin says General Hugh Johnson is to be "regarded a cracked gramophone record," the "first great casualty of the new deal," a "political corpse whose ghost has returned to haunt us." Next we will hear from the general.

Eleven campuses were represented at the conference, and principal speaker was Dr. Bruce Curry of Union Theological seminary in New York City. Miss Stella Scuplock, regional Y. W. C. A. secretary, and Miss Barbara Lantz and Paul Iverson, student secretaries of the two groups, were present. The Wayne group left Friday morning and returned home Sunday evening.

Jubilee Committee Named From Council
 Carrying out the Community council's plans to cooperate with silver jubilee celebration at Wayne State Teachers college this spring, Chairman T. S. Hook named a committee of J. S. Horney, chairman, Mrs. S. A. Lutgen, Mrs. E. W. Huse, Mrs. Rollie W. Ley, C. M. Craven and G. A. Renard to represent civic organizations. This was done at Tuesday evening meeting of the council in Mr. Hook's office. About half the organizations were represented.

To Present Drama Of English Origin
 "Moor Born," drama in five scenes, will be presented at the college by dramatics classes March 28 under direction of Miss Florence M. Drake, assisted by Joyce Rhodes of Sioux City. This Broadway success, produced for first time April 3, 1934, ran for 64 performances.

The play has literary significance. Charlotte Bronte (1816-55) is well known to lovers of English literature as author of "Jane Eyre" (1847) and her sister, Emily (1818-48) held her position in literature as author of "Weathering Heights," (1847) one of the most powerful of all novels.

Dan Toheroh has molded the lives of the tragic Brontes into an excellent play, giving faithful and dramatic interpretation of the lives lived so long ago in the Hawthorth parsonage. The Brontes are brought back to life by the author's genius. The play is best drama

ULTRA-RICH
 There are advantages in not having more worldly means than one needs for comfort. Rich John D. Rockefeller lives in secrecy or under guard to keep from being harmed. Ultra-wealthy persons are robbed of independence through fear of kidnapers or other criminal elements. Wealthy individuals have to be watched to save them from becoming the victims of nefarious schemers. Not so with a fellow in comparatively poor financial circumstances. He may go when and where he pleases without inviting or suspecting molestation. If he has little, he escapes curious or covetous eyes. If he pays as he goes without ostentation, and expects no favors not granted to others, he enjoys all the freedom guaranteed under the constitution. While he is eager for more riches, his liberties excite the envy of the overly rich man who is hemmed in by barriers of caution.

 number of persons on relief, and the smaller the inroads on relief funds. If more persons on government pay would strike and find other jobs, the sooner would the country get back to the healthier dependence on private industry.

Nocturnal Quiet in Cities
 Substitution of automobiles for street cars in cities has done away with the intermittent grinding of wheels which used to keep persons awake nights. One accustomed to clanking car wheels couldn't cover his ears with sufficient thickness or find enough sleep to count to defeat the outside noise and hasten sleep's sweet relief.

Huey Corrects the Record
 Huey Long asks Arthur Brisbane to correct the statement that he had promised the American people $15,000 a piece as part of his economic policy. He says he is promising only $5,000 per person, and in amending the report, Brisbane suggests that the larger amount would be as likely as the smaller one, and that the original impression of $15,000 per made a stronger appeal. And it is learned from experience that political pledges are not of great consequence anyway, and the bigger they are made, the better they sound.

GREECE
 Greece on a rampage reminds one that its national importance has shrunk to a good deal since its ancient 50, Alexander the Great, mastered the known world. The present rebellion promises soon to be over without disturbing the peace of the rest of Europe. Conditions were different when Alexander took command between 300 and 400 years B. C. He did not waste any time exchanging diplomatic notes or waiting for popular explanations. Alexander went forth at the head of his army, and he conquered one country after another until there was nothing left to conquer. He was a brilliant leader, a matchless organizer, an adept in strategy, but he never stooped to intrigue. He was not cruel—when he was sober—but he was brave, and quick to decide—and quick to act. It is said, he died in his thirty-second year and in the thirteenth year of his reign. Present Greeks are small potatoes compared with Alexander the Great, Aristotle, Socrates and other intellectuals who put ancient Greece on the map and cut a big figure in the world long before the beginning of the Christian era.

Needlecraft Art Learned By Mrs. J. G. Kyl During Her Early Years In The Netherlands

With the clickety-clack of shining steel needles and the deft manipulation of firm white strands, Mrs. J. G. Kyl turns what most practical and utilitarian of threads carpet warp into interesting and much-coveted frocks for her daughters. And the knitting needles, well, in an emergency Mr. Kyl made her a pair out of discarded fly swatters, sharpened them to a good point, and what could be more satisfactory? Both Kathryn and Elizabeth, the former a training school student and the latter nursing in Chicago, will have summery knit dresses in a short time for Mrs. Kyl knits rapidly, with surety, and can carry on a conversation all the while. These white frocks she is completing cost only $1.50 to $2 for the warp, which is another point in their favor.

Not only knitting but crocheting proves diversion for Mrs. Kyl—especially since she had a rather bad fall a year ago and had to be inactive for a time. Five beautiful crocheted bedspreads completed—and two more to do for there must be one for each of the children. Something to prize for generations, firmly made of the white warp in intricate patterns. One has firm, graceful basket design, this copied from a lace curtain by the resourceful Mrs. Kyl. Another has full-blown rose design taken from a long-discarded cap and matching corset cover. Then she originated a star pattern and a formal Greek design. The one sent to her daughter in Chicago is meditation design. Two more to make, one to be the lone star in color.

But busy hands are quite necessary in Mrs. Kyl's philosophy of life, for she comes from the Netherlands where no good farm sits idle, and where few ladies are taught to knit and sew fine, careful seams as soon as their chubby little hands can hold the needles. Remember, a well-dressed woman of the Holland of 30 years ago wore a hand-knitted wool shirt and bloomers, also a wool skirt, then on top of that a linen shirt, topped by a cotton waist in summer and wool one in winter. Not so cold in the "land of dykes," but always very damp and it was necessary to bundle up warmly. Most folks have queer ideas about the Dutch, says Mrs. Kyl—they think everyone wears stiffly-starched lace caps, though, those green and white windmills waving their big, graceful arms in slow rhythm.

And when one traveled it wasn't by dyke route as a rule—horse and buggy was the favored mode of 30 or more years ago. Bicycles were popular for travel in cities—in fact, recent travelers in Holland report a constant stream of cyclists on the highways. Such flatness combined with wide, smooth roads and brief distances make bicycles really practical. Goat-carts and dog-carts were used by the poorer folks and some of the wealthy ones had diminutive carts drawn by donkeys which they used to transport the children back and forth to school.

It's different with farmers over there—the land is owned by a few titled folks who rent it out, too. She remembers the very poor who were housed in long streets lined with narrow houses, and given weekly food rations. Monday was begging day—about 8 o'clock the beggars started on their rounds, covering a set route from house to house where they knew aims would be forthcoming. At Mrs. Kyl's home there was always a long, long row of pennies ready for them—one to receive a penny, another two, some as many as six—the pennies were lined up inside an ornamental window, and handed out as the lame and the blind and the feeble came to claim their own. These little visits lasted until noon.

How about the spottless stables one reads about with stiffly-starched curtains at the windows and the cows' tails suspended from a pole? Well, Mrs. Kyl recalls, the stables were clean as possible because they were scrubbed every day. There were clean white curtains in summertime but not in winter. Every week the cows were given a thorough scrubbing, and their tails really were suspended from the rods and there was fine white sand on the floors.

And did the good Dutch housewives scrub the outside of their houses as pictured in one's first grade readers? No—it wasn't necessary, anyway, because Holland is a very clean country and things don't get very dirty. Streets are of cobblestones, very noisy under travel, but scrupulously clean. Wooden shoes weren't worn except in the stables and then were kicked off before entering the house. Your Dutch farmhouse of very early days was all in one piece, divided by partition and one half reserved for the good farmer and his family, the other for his live stock family. But more modern houses had the stable adjoining house but separated by a narrow hallway.

Mr. Kyl learned to speak not only Dutch and German but English and French as well while in the Netherlands—he's found these pretty handy during his 25 years association with the Fairmount creamery, living for the most part in foreign-born communities. Mrs. Kyl found it a bit more difficult to acclimate herself to the new America for she had to learn English after crossing the Atlantic.

Long-Time Farming Record Of Interest

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Gehrke, long-time Wayne county settlers, were in Wayne on business Thursday. The Gehrkes have just moved from near Winside to a farm seven and one-half miles north of Hoskins. For 52 years Mr. Gehrke has lived in this county and in those years he has known most contradictory farming conditions. '94 brought hot, drying winds, '99 featured 96 oats, and '96 followed with soft corn realizing only 8c a bushel. Then coming down to the just-past years, '31 was dry, to dry. In '32 he harvested almost 4,000 bushels of corn but it only brought 12c a bushel and didn't pay the rent. Hail came in 1922 and beat down a promising crop, and '34 was dry and hot and crops failed. But most years have been good ones and Mr. Gehrke has great confidence in Wayne county.

the morning and water only in the afternoon.

By the time the chicks are eight weeks old this feeder space should be increased to at least four inches per chick and this will remain a sufficient feeder space for the rest of the chicks' lives. The watering space need never be increased.

Great care should be used in the cleaning of feeders and waterers as this is one of the main points of infection for chicks. Waterers should be thoroughly scrubbed at least once a day and feeders should be thoroughly cleaned and scrubbed at least twice a week.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground the space that is to be used as a run for the chicks should be thoroughly lined with unstacked lime. Allow this lime to lie on the ground until it is slacked, then turn this lime under five or six inches deep. This serves as about the best and most thorough disinfectant that can be given the ground to get rid of old contamination for the chicks.

When this has been done it is then a very good practice to plant some grain crop such as wheat or oats into this ground to provide clean feed in the yard for the chicks as soon as it is possible to turn them out. This growing crop also acts as a considerable disinfectant of the soil.

When the Townsend plan gets going, there'll be fresh pot to the old song, "Everybody Works But Father."—Louisville Herald-Post.

ish corn appraisal by April 1. Any farmer who has not had an opportunity to sign a contract by March 9, will have an opportunity to sign an application for his 1935 contract at the time corn appraisals are made.

Any one who wants to sign after committee have visited his farm, will have to pay extra cost of appraisal and office work in connection with his application. State and county officials have agreed that this is only fair because the majority of men have signed applications at the regular time. Associations do not feel that they should stand the extra expense and inconvenience of delay that otherwise might be caused by late applicants.

April 1 will be the last date on which applications for 1935 contracts will be taken under any circumstance. This date has been announced by the corn-hog section at Washington as the final closing date for the entire county.

Any farmer who has not signed an application for a contract, is urged to sign at the time the committee visit his farm for appraisal work.
