GENEROUS APRIL RAINS RESTORING COUNTRY'S FAITH

SO far April has been making up for past moisture deficiencies. Aquarius spread rains over a wide area during the week-end, and repeated the performance Tuesday. The rain fell slowly and gently, and accomplished the greatest possible good. Tuesday's fall of moisture was reported as far west as Valentine and as far north as Winner, S. D. The rain covered most parts of the state. Another dust storm is said to have originated in Wyoming the first of the week, but the wind was set to blowing from a direction favorable to missing the east, and, anyway, the wet elements would have discouraged it in trying to travel far this way. Generous rains are bringing this country back to normal, and justifying the faith of inhabitants.

GUEST PASTOR HEARD BY CLUB

Need Of Individualism Is Theme Of Address To Kiwanians Monday.

A generation which saw things simply, which had a simple but very profound religion, and which believed in rugged individualism, was recalled to Wayne Kiwanians by their guest speaker of Monday, Rev. Wilbur F. Dierking of Greenwood, Ind. Mr. Dierking pictured life as seen by those of the preceding generation, his mother's generation.

"I am not so ready to admit that the generation before us made a big failure out of living," he said. "Those folks knew many things we haven't learned. They knew things which he has planned for this world, nor tell the farmer how to run things when he has farmed for generations with only God's help."

In displaying the glasses which his mother had worn, the pastor pointed out that through these she had looked out upon a very simple way of living, contrasting with today when young folks entering marriage expect to have everything they have been used to and expect things to come easily. She saw a simple religion but a very profound one, and she saw God. Today we too often think we can get along without religion. The trait of seeing God simply and beautifully belongs to the generation which preceded us.

His mother had believed in rugged individualism, the speaker continued. "This individualism is now being ridiculed to the American people as something distasteful and obsolete, but this very trait is that which has made the world progress to what it is today. Where would we be without the greatest individualist that ever lived—Jesus Christ? To be an individualist isn't to be popular—it means going the long road by yourself. But this older generation believed in an individualism as high and as pure and as American as ever existed. The western plains of this country were not broken by communistic efforts. The trees were not hewn down by group effort. This country was opened up by individuals who stood by their own strength and who also have made America—simplicity, deep religion and rugged individualism!"

Guests at the meeting were George Roman of Fremont who accompanied Rutie W. Ley, C. E. Gildersleeve who was Rev. Fays Mills' guest, and J. J. Ahern who came with H. B. Craven.

A group of Wayne college music students presented two numbers from "The Bartered Bride." Willbur Porterfield and David Anderson sang "I Know a Maiden" accompanied by Francis Philcox. Miss Ruth E. Ganssant sang "Precious Little Bear" and Mr. Philcox played piano solo, "Polka Dance."

Report Given By Committee Praises Conn

Legislators Recommend That Dr. J. G. W. Lewis Leave Faculty. CRITICIZE STATE BOARD The legislative committee making investigation of faculty discord at Wayne Teachers College, recommended Wednesday that resignation of Dr. J. G. W. Lewis as a member of the faculty be asked by the state normal board. The committee cleared Dr. U. S. Conn of all charges which had been made against him by Dr. Lewis and praised his long record as head of the school.

As a reward for 25 years of faithful service of Dr. Conn the committee recommended that the state board appoint him president emeritus for one year without salary "for the benefit the institution may receive from his counsel and advice during that period." The legislators criticized the state normal board, saying "that the state board for a number of years has been cognizant of the fact that great inharmonies existed in such college as a result of the work of these two men, but contrary to the best interest of said institution it has neglected and failed to take the necessary steps to correct that situation."

REPORT GIVEN BY COMMITTEE PRAISES CONN

Legislators Recommend That Dr. J. G. W. Lewis Leave Faculty.

CRITICIZE STATE BOARD The legislative committee making investigation of faculty discord at Wayne Teachers College, recommended Wednesday that resignation of Dr. J. G. W. Lewis as a member of the faculty be asked by the state normal board. The committee cleared Dr. U. S. Conn of all charges which had been made against him by Dr. Lewis and praised his long record as head of the school.

As a reward for 25 years of faithful service of Dr. Conn the committee recommended that the state board appoint him president emeritus for one year without salary "for the benefit the institution may receive from his counsel and advice during that period."

The legislators criticized the state normal board, saying "that the state board for a number of years has been cognizant of the fact that great inharmonies existed in such college as a result of the work of these two men, but contrary to the best interest of said institution it has neglected and failed to take the necessary steps to correct that situation."

"A though recommending Dr. Lewis' resignation the committee also urged the state board to give him a high recommendation as an instructor of exceptional ability."

The committee cleared Dr. Lewis of a charge that he was teaching communistic doctrines in his classes. On this point the committee said that "Dr. Lewis should be completely exonerated from such charges."

The committee report denied that morale of the institution was low. "The charges of irregularity and dishonesty made by Dr. Lewis against his superior, Dr. Conn, were without foundation, as sustained by the evidence," the report said.

The committee including Floyd Stewart of Clay Center, John S. Callan of Odell, J. F. Ratcliff of Trenton, L. C. Nuernberger of Wakefield, and S. J. Plimberger of Lindsay, took testimony in Wayne two days, faculty members, students and townspeople being questioned on both sides of the controversy. Looking To Nebraska. A friend in California sent us a copy of an editorial appearing in the Sacramento Union and referring to Nebraska's balanced budget and sound financial condition...

Most people are inclined to look on Nebraska as a state famous only for producing corn and hogs, but Nebraska also produces some exceedingly wise governmental ideas...

Issuing bonds every time the state wants to do something is fine at the time, but it isn't so nice when it comes time to pay the bill. Nebraska's constitution forces the state to operate on a cash basis...

We are reminded that Governor Merriam of California is a mid-western product, having lived at one time in our neighboring town of Wisner, and he knows a good deal about Nebraska.

Christian Science Services. "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches for Friday, April 14. The Golden Text is from Jeremiah 17:14: "Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved: for thou art my praise." A passage from the Bible in the lesson-sermon is from Proverbs 3:25, 26: "Be not afraid of sudden fear, neither of the desolation of the wicked, when they come. For the Lord shall be thy confidence, and shall keep thy foot from being taken."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy reads: "The cause of all so-called disease is mental, a mortal fear, a mistaken belief of conviction of the necessity and power of physical health; also a fear that Mind is helpless to defend the life of man and incompetent to control it. Disease has no intelligence. Unwittingly you sentence yourself to suffer. The understanding of this will enable you to formulate this self-sentence, and meet every circumstance with truth." (pages 377-8).

Foundettes by Munsingwear

Foundette is the Munsing name for their elastic girdles. And Munsing knows how to make girdles that fit and wear and hold their shape after repeated laundering. That's because Munsing knits rayon and lastex by a special process which insures far greater stretch combined with far greater firmness. No wonder then that the "Foundettes" so firmly persuade your figure into the correct new "contour"—curving hips, flat thighs, rounded back, indented waist and raised, natural bust. "Foundettes" stretch two ways—they're far easier to slip into. They wash like a hanky—hold their shape after long wear. Pertinent Facts About The Soybean

The United States Department of Agriculture lists 102 varieties of soybeans. The soybean has been used by Chinese for food for over 5000 years.

The soybean is the richest protein-producing grain grown on Illinois farms.

The soybean seed has 664 pounds of available protein per ton. This is 27% pounds more than corn. It is more than four times the protein content of corn and more than three times the protein content of any other commonly grown Illinois farm grain.

The soybean oil varies widely in different varieties. The soybean has an average oil content of 17 to 19 percent. Oil yields, however have been as low as 12.7 percent and as high as 25.6 percent.

One ton of soybeans will yield about 30 to 32 gallons of oil. One ton of soybeans will yield about 1650 pounds of oil meal.

Soybean yields vary greatly in different sections. Best varieties yield from 25 to 40 bushels per acre. Yields run as low as 15 and as high as 70 bushels or more.

Soybean seeding time is from April to August. Soybeans are comparatively free from insect pests. The chinch bug does not attack them and experiments have demonstrated that fields planted to soybeans and corn produced good crops, while in adjoining fields of corn alone the crop was destroyed or very severely injured.

Soybeans are rarely attacked by weevil. Each price change of one cent per pound for soybean oil is equal to about 7.34 cents per bushel of beans. A difference of one dollar per ton for soybean meal is equal to about 24 cents per bushel of beans.

Experiments show that cracked soybeans used as a dairy feed in milk production are one-third more valuable than old-process linseed oil meal.

Soybeans and soybean hay compare favorably with cotton seed oil and alfalfa hay for the production of milk and fats.

While the demand for soybeans has so far been mostly from oil crushing industries, the outlook is for a material increase in demand for human consumption.

It is estimated that the soybean is the most nearly perfect vegetable substitute for meat grown.

Tested Recipes

Cabbage Pudding.

(Mrs. W. F. Robinson) 1 medium size head of cabbage 1 teaspoonful of salt 1 medium size onion, cut fine 1 tablespoonful of butter 1 slice of bread (1-1/2 inches thick) 1 pound of ground beef 2 beaten eggs 1-2 cupful of milk 1-2 teaspoonfuls of salt 1-8 teaspoonful of pepper 1-8 teaspoonful of nutmeg

Cut the cabbage in half, cover with salted boiling water, cook for 8 minutes and drain thoroughly. Cook the onion in the butter until the onion is soft. Soak the bread in a small amount of cold water until soft, then squeeze off any excess liquid. Add the soaked bread to the beef with the beaten eggs, milk, salt, pepper, nutmeg and onion. Place a layer of the wilted cabbage leaves on the bottom of a greased pan, then add a thin layer of the beef mixture. Alternate the layers, making 3 of the cabbage and 2 of the meat. Set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 45 to 50 minutes. Turn out on a deep serving platter and pour over a cream sauce made of 3 tablespoonfuls of butter, 3 tablespoonfuls of flour, and 2 cupfuls of liquid (milk and additional milk or cream). The dish may also be steamed or cooked gently on top of the stove, if desired.

Hot Tamale Pie.

(By Mrs. S. W. Rash) 2 cups cooked meat, ground 1 to 1 1/2 cups gravy or meat stock 1 small clove of garlic minced fine (about 1/4 teaspoon) or 1 T chopped onion 6 ripe olives chopped 1 T raisins chopped 1 T chili powder 1 salt 1 quart mush cooked stiff Mix all ingredients but the mish, lard, bottom and sides of a baking dish with the mush, put in meat mixture and cover top with very thin slices of mush. Bake 20 to 30 minutes in hot oven. (This is a good dish to use up left-over roasts or steak which has gravy. It makes a good one-dish meal when combined with salad.)

Chocolate Nut Bars.

(By Mrs. S. W. Rash) 1 cup sugar 1-2 cup butter or lard 1 cup flour 2 eggs beaten whole 2 squares chocolate 1-3 cup English walnuts or pecans 1-2 t vanilla 1-4 baking powder added to flour

Mix the butter and chocolate together over hot water. Beat eggs and add sugar. Add melted mixture and flour alternately. Add nuts and flavoring last. Spread in pan about eight inches square. Bake at 350 for about 30 minutes. Cut in strips when cold.

Opera Translator
Writes To Producer

Stanton Leads
Music Contest

A letter received by Prof. Clifford Bair, director of "The Bartered Bride" to be presented at Wayne college from Libushka Bartuske of Chicago, translator of the opera, is as follows:

"I must tell you that I was delighted when I heard from the Gamble Music company that 'The Bartered Bride' is to have a production and your excellent guidance at Wayne. It is too bad that Chicago is so far off, making it impossible for us to see the performance.

"It should thrill those students of Czech extraction to the depths to be singing our beloved Smetana's music. I know what happens to me each time I hear even the shortest phrase!

"Well, Clifford, success to you and your group! Needless to say you shall have it, for I can think of no one better fitted to direct a 'Bartered Bride' performance than the world's finest Vashek."

Prof. Bair played the Vashek part of the opera in Chicago where he was acquainted with Bartuske, the translator.

A "Bartered Bride" poster symbolic of the opera, made by Miss Alice Schwinderman, advanced art student, was entered in a Chicago poster contest together with other work from this department.

Miss Schwinderman designed the costumes for the opera and the set made by the home economics department under direction of Miss Mary Cutler.

A number of out of town people announce intentions of attending the Saturday opera performance. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Johnson and several others interested in promoting presentation of the opera at Clarkson, will be here. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jensen, the former WJAG radio announcer at Norfolk, will come. Mrs. Jensen is chairman of a Norfolk committee considering sponsoring the opera there.

Musical fixtures from Wahoo, friends of Prof. Bair, and relatives of performers will be present.

World Topic Books
Added To Library

Four interesting new volumes have been sent to Wayne library for the international mind album, gift of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. These are: "Turkistan Reunion" by E. H. Latimore—a readable, personal and entertaining account of what must have been a very difficult journey into central and eastern China. It depicts a part of the world which has always been mysterious and romantic.

"The Great Wall Crumbles" by Grover Clark—Countless books have been written on China and the Far East, but this is one of the most comprehending and most recent.

"Bright Mexico" by Larry Barretto—a friendly and informal interpretation of one of our neighbors in books. Not a guide book nor a travel book, but an intimate account of experiences in picturesque and unusual settings.

"Peace with Honour" by A. A. Milne—Here's a protest against war written by an Englishman who is well known to American readers through previous writings. If read with an unbiased mind, one cannot fail to sympathize with Mr. Milne's sincere appeal.

Wayne Once Headquarters For A Flourishing Drama-Carnival Show

(By Norma Carpenter)

April may mean garden-time to flower lovers. It may inspire poets and moonlight stroll to the "lovers". It brings visions of walks to be cleaned and attics to be moved into for the housewife. It sends the Tommys and the Mary Lous scouting for last year's marbles and jumping ropes and baseball mitts. But to the veteran stock trower April means but one thing—time to get started on rehearsals! And it wasn't so very long ago that April brought an influx of theatrical folk to Wayne city, come to join Walter Savidge's dramatic stock show and carnival company for its summer season. Those were busy and interesting days, to be sure.

Sometimes through the trade journals, sometimes through theatrical exchanges these trowers and musicians would hear about the Savidge show—a jump cross country meant nothing to them if a job was in prospect at the other end.

The cast of 10 or 12 was assembled and rehearsals started in city hall about two weeks of intensive practice, three a day, and at the end every actor would have his parts for seven plays practically letter-perfect. "Civilian Clothes," "Three Wise Fools," "Abe's Irish Rose," "Mother's Millions," "Three Live Ghosts" were a few of the favorites—these were pretty safe choices. But Mr. Savidge and his director knew that certain plays must be picked for certain localities and when their twenty to twenty-four week-long bookings were ready, plays were carefully apportioned. For instance an Irish play took well in an Irish neighborhood, rural sections liked plays with rural setting, westerners seemed to like adventure and western "thrillers" and strange to say, during very hard times "Over the Hills to the Poorhouse" was a record breaker. These then-modern novels, "Calling of Dan Matthews" and "That Printer of Udell's" had a good following. "East Lynn," a queen of melodramas, brought down the house every time. Everyone had a grand old cry and came away thoroughly happy and refreshed.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" gave them plenty of thrills, particularly when Arthur Savidge, Mr. Savidge's brother, played the leading role. He was an actor of note, that chap, and could send the chills slithering down one's back and make one glance warily at the dark corners as the climax approached.

The usual stock company included a male lead, female lead, male comedian, villain or "heavy" man, "general business" man, juvenile male lead, the ingenue or artless young woman, a "heavy" or "general business" woman, a character man and character woman. The "general business" men and women were sort of all-around characters who could be switched to most any part. And most of these people could carry double roles in productions so quite pretentious plays were possible. Mr. Savidge insisted upon experienced actors—amateurs were too costly and they usually caused difficulties among the trowers which weren't found among more seasoned "hoofers". The usual ratio in those was 8-4—that is, eight men and four women. Now it's usually 3-5 in stock companies, three men and five women.

Well, two weeks usually put the troupe in shape for the road. The band of about 14 men had arrived for a week's practice. Scenery for the shows has been worked out by a scenery artist in the big ice house near the tracks.

Open In Wayne.

Then a week's showing in Wayne—the townfolks and the country folks gathered in to the big tent and witnessed opening performances of dramas and melodramas and the wonders of the carnival. The younger generation felt a peculiar fascination about the "big top" and the mysteries it housed. Sometimes one was rewarded by a glimpse of the fat lady, the littlest man or the snake-charmer. Perhaps tropical-colored birds were the piece de resistance of the animal show. Again, a huge horse. Then the rides—the throbbing, galloping merry-go-round, the hair-raising ferris wheel, the seaplanes and kiddie-rides. Here centered youthful interest and the more rides one was able to coerce one's parents into financing, greater the success of the day.

The Davis Ten-in-One show, the dramatic stock company, the illusion show, the fat woman, little George Thompson who was the "littlest man in the world" and the animal show were headliners of the show. "Baby May" who over-tipped the scales at 600 pounds, hailed from St. Paul and was just about as intelligent as she was weighty. She spoke seven languages and was a "good sort" and good-looking in spite of her size. Then the corn games, the popcorn and hot dog stands, the lemonade booths, about 20 concessions in all, so important in a carnival-land. Add to that the nose-tensing odor of popping corn, the smell of dusty canvas, the sparkle of be-spangled costumes, and the mingled sound of the band, excited animals and the barkers' invitations.

Then off on the road. A private train of 10 to 15 cars, each one painted bright red with big yellow "Savidge Amusement Company" lettering. Two sleepers, a diner, two baggage cars and several flats to carry the wagons with the show equipment. About 125 men and women made up the company and 65 of them lived in the cars all the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Savidge were along. Junior usually joined agents had gone ahead to handle advertising and bill posting. As far west as Landor, Wyo., up to the Black Hills, down south to Marysville, Kan., they trouped.

Theatrical folks nick-named the Savidge company the "Sunday school carnival" because Mr. Savidge prohibited card playing on the trains. "Crook" games weren't allowed among concessions.

Two valued members of the stock dramatic company were Ed and Anna Henderson who were with Mr. Savidge two years. Good people, easy to get along with, he remembers. Their son came one summer to help with the concession and slept out in the concession tents. When there was a minor part open in a show he was given it. A natural interest in the theatre, growing out of former experience in dramatic productions at an Omaha high school. The young chap made good, was advanced to play juvenile male roles and later was leading man. From stock to movies and the young Savidge player became Lyle Talbot of Hollywood fame.

It was a busy season for actors, musicians and tent-handlers. A new play every night in the week usually, a Saturday matinee. Then down with the big tent after Saturday night's show and on to the next stop. Maybe a few miles down the track. Maybe a good many. But the show must be unloaded and set up for Monday's show. This big tent, by the way, was a history maker among tents. It held 1,600 people. The stage was well equipped and the company had its own light plant. It took eight good men to handle the stage and equipment.

Some amusing things to remember about those busy days when Wayne was headquarters for one of the well-known show companies of the mid-west, and Walter Savidger's mentor and owner. One evening a fellow was doing a take-off on Napoleon and suddenly the ghost of Napoleon was to appear before him. In his terror he fell to throw up his hands and fall over in a swoon. He threw up his hands, he fell. . . but he miscalculated his step and fell back off the stage to the ground six feet below. The show went on. Then another time a chap was to put up a faked fight and hit another. The victim was laid out cold for half an hour and nursed a sore jaw for nearly a month. But the show had gone on. Then there was the Case of the Missing Actor. At the Kansas City terminal he was directed to a train bound for Concordia, supposedly Concordia, Mo., and way he sped fully 150 miles into Kansas, bound for Kansas Concordia, while the Savidge train plowed through Missouri and a frantic wife became hysterical as the Kansas City police found no trace of her husband.

During Wilson's administration the show trains had special consideration, having precedence over others as the president had decreed that the American people needed to be entertained as relief from the anxiety and suffering of wartime. Actors weren't drafted and some individuals joined show companies just to escape service.

Walter Savidge had several seasons as circus performer to his credit before organizing his own company. He walked tight ropes across streets, was a high-wire trapeze performer, and served as property man with a dramatic troupe. His brother, Arthur, whose stage name is Elmer Strong, joined Walter and the two had the stock company together, adding the carnival feature after two years. Then they separated and Walter Savidge continued alone. The carnival went out three seasons ago for the last time. . . now the shining red train is in discard and no longer do the good-humored, happy-go-lucky folks gather in during April. Nine cars stand idle on the tracks. . . three were sold to a circus at Houston, Tex. Only the ride concessions will go trouping this season, and they'll travel by trucks.

The day of the stock dramatic show is about over, says Mr. Savidge. Radio programs and moving pictures have come into popularity and folks no longer patronize the big tents. Massive productions and trick photography are complete the weekly-stand show can't compete with. But you can't blame concession-stakers for feeling a certain itching of the feet, and a restlessness of spirit as the days approach when one culminated extensive rehearsals with the big opening week in Wayne, then boarded the big red train for several months' travels through hot, dusty Nebraska and her neighbors. . . a roamy life, and a fun.

"Now I know why the MAYTAG tub is made of CAST-ALUMINUM"

No Maytag owner fully appreciates the many advantages of the cast-aluminum tub until after she has used it. Not only does this remarkable tub provide lifetime service, but it is specially built for the most effective washing action.

There is an important reason for its square shape. The corners of the tub break up the water action into hundreds of cross currents, penetrating every fibre of the clothes.

The thick, cast-aluminum tub and the handy, hinged lid keep the water hot for an entire washing. This tub is but one of many advantages that only a Maytag gives you. Prices are very remarkably low. Easy deferred payments arranged.

Triple-Sealed Hydraulics

the finest brakes money can buy

WHEN YOU SIT at the wheel of a silver streak Pontiac you command one of the finest performing cars ever built. You start in less than 10 seconds even in zero weather. You get away from the curb like a shot from a gun and you glide along the highway with only a faint whisper to let you know the engine is running.

That might be enough for some manufacturers, but not for Pontiac. Pontiac knows that stopping is just as important as starting, so the new Pontiacs have a special kind of brakes—sure 12-inch hydraulics, smooth, strong and even—powerful enough to bring any sized car to a quick stop. And Pontiac safeguards this fine action by triple-sealing the rear brakes, and double-sealing those in front, to bar out every grain of dust and every drop of water. You can trust Pontiac brakes in any weather. They are the finest that money can buy.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby whom he names "Penelope." But his wife has never wanted a baby, and their affairs end in divorce. At a baseball game a ball strikes Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirals the child to Europe. Gatlin visits Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when an accident ends his life. Ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt is a young psychiatrist. Dan McNamara, chief of police, brings him Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara sympathizing with Nance, obtains Burt's expert testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is won over to Nance's cause. Nance having a criminal record is sent to the penitentiary. She escapes and goes to Lanny's apartment. Detectives Flynn and Angelotti, seeking the reward for Nance's apprehension, go to Lanny's apartment in search of the girl, but she has gone. From a banker, McNamara learns that Nance Belden is Penelope Gatlin, heiress to $750,000. Mrs. Gatlin, Penelope's foster mother, is now the wife of a man named Merton. Lanny finds Nance in her apartment. Dr. Burt plans an operation to restore the girl's nose to normality. Through McNamara's connivance, Nance escapes the clutches of Flynn and Angelotti.

Of the weeping, the groaning, the burning sensations in the eyelids, the bewilderment, the groping, vomiting, cursing and despair of Messrs. Flynn and Angelotti nothing need be said. Suffice that Angelotti felt his way out of the gassed area and about two minutes after Lanny's departure, stationed himself on her front steps, while the valiant Flynn, dying a thousand deaths, stuck manfully at his post, leaning up against the kitchen door, endeavoring for duty's sake. Convinced they had Nance Belden cornered, they waited for the night wind to dissipate the gas. Angelotti ceased to weep about half an hour after escaping from the gassed area, but continued to gag for an hour. About ten-thirty he was able to see, so he rang Lanny's bell repeatedly, but received no answer. Then he noticed that their car was missing, so he summoned the martyred Flynn around front and told him the worst.

"Don't speak to me," Flynn commanded passionately. "I'm dead! Hunt up an all-night drug store and phone for a taxi."

"This," Angelotti hissed, "is Dan McNamara's work. Where would they get the bombs if he didn't swipe 'em out of the police arsenal?"

Flynn commenced to sob as he considered the barren fruits of his enormous sacrifice.

"Amadeo, swear to me, by our common faith, that, come what will, I will blow high, blow low, come sickness or sorrow, happiness or health, you'll never lay off this job until we've landed that—that—hussy."

"Right! I swear," Angelotti's voice trembled with the sincerity of his purpose.

The respective wives of the worthy pair telephoned down to the chief of detectives next morning and informed him that their husbands were confined to bed with influenza.

It was not a police car in which Nance had escaped, but the private vehicle of Detective Sergeant Flynn, and its loss troubled him until the car was found, abandoned thing, therefore, was to cast about for a job in another part of the city and see that both detectives were assigned to it.

While he was considering where he could dispose of them, the president of the Security Trust company in San Jose rang up.

"Miss Penelope Gatlin has just been in the bank, chief," he told McNamara. "She has purchased a letter of credit for ten thousand dollars and has withdrawn a cash the remainder of the funds on deposit to the credit of her checking account, amounting to eleven hundred dollars."

"Is she in the bank now?"

"Yes."

"Have one of your clerks follow her. Give him some expense money—I'll be responsible for its repayment. And when you get his report please telephone me."

At three-thirty the banker telephoned again. "She purchased a ticket to San Francisco, on one of the buses leaving here at three fifteen. She spent two hours shopping."

The buses, McNamara knew, entered the city via Mission street, and his depot was at Fifth and Howard streets. Ella Cates lived on Howard street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth. Howard street runs between Mission and Folsom—and Flynn's car had been found abandoned at Sixteenth and Folsom. Nance was smart. She had left the car a block from Ella Cates' home and walked there. McNamara reasoned the incoming bus would drop the girl out at Sixteenth, and Mission streets a regular stop—and she would then make her way to the Cates woman's house.

He glanced at his watch. He had an hour and a half to intercept her; for that hour and a half he must have Flynn and Angelotti in another section of the city. To his amazement he discovered they were out on a detail, so he decided he would have to risk it, called a taxi and drove to Ella Cates' address.

To his inquiry regarding Mrs. Cates, he was informed that she had moved to parts unknown a week before, nor could his informant give him any clue to aid him in discovering her.

As he came out of the apartment house he glanced warily around and was amused to observe Detective Angelotti leaning against a cigar stand across the street. He was certain the detective had recognized him, for Angelotti immediately turned his back. The chief walked up Mission street, bounded a street car and was at the bus terminal two minutes before the bus on which Nance had left San Jose rolled in. But Nance was not among the passengers that alighted.

McNamara chuckled. Flynn and Angelotti watching waste a great deal of time watching the apartment house in vain. Nance, discovering Ella Cates had moved, had sought quarters elsewhere. What puzzled McNamara, however, was the girl's failure to communicate with him or Lanny; and he knew now that she did not intend to. The fact that she had purchased a letter of credit was proof that she intended leaving the country, and the more the excellent fellow contemplated this impending move the more inclined was he to regard it as a not unmixt blessing. While Nance remained in San Francisco she would be a constant menace to himself and Lanny; if captured she might, during one of her moonlight moments, consider it a great joke to tell the world how she had been enabled to escape captivity so long.

"I can't baby the world," he recited. "I'll let her go. She'll probably live abroad, and when her letter of credit is gone she may remember who she is long enough to draw more checks. I can always get a line on her through the bank, and if Steve and Lanny still insist on salvaging this nut I'll tell them where to find her. Me, I'm through if I keep this pace up I'll be as big a nut as she is."
