

Crime News Here Organized... Clearer Recollection... When Community House Is Finished - Preserving Democracy - A "Pain in the Neck" - Renewed Assurance.

Last week was a hard week on sensitive nerves, harassed by... knowledge that some one was going to be hanged or electrocuted. During the week two were executed in Iowa, three in Massachusetts and two in Delaware.

Criminals suffer defeat twisted or diseased minds. They should be removed from injuring orderly society - imprisoned or perhaps killed, but the hardened consciences and brutal qualities which they have developed, should not be thrust back on them to the injury of the public.

An organized attack at Aberdeen, S. D., resulted in uprooting 2300 bushes of dandelions. The American Legion at that place sponsored the project, paying children ten cents per bush, and offering a special prize of $1 for the most productive individual effort.

Memories of Youth. As long as brain cells function, clearest memories are those of early youth. The swimming hole did not compare with the modern swimming pool, but it is remembered happily by old-timers.

A Coming Dedication. More conventions for Wayne will be urged when the spacious new community house has been finished. When the time comes - some time in the early autumn - to dedicate the building, it is suggested that an elaborately planned program be carried out during the day with a big banquet to try out the new quarters.

Inhoned With Americanism. When members of the American Legion get together, as they did at a banquet last Friday evening, we are impressed by the graying locks of the men who were boys, mostly just out of their teens, when they enlisted in the World War.

Gives sigh of relief. Speaking of the solar plexus blow received by the NRA from the supreme court, the Abbot News says "to the average small business man, unswayed by political prejudices, the whole matter of codes has been a pain in the neck."

The American Constitution... The York Republican thinks the supreme court's NRA decision was a jolt to sentiment and a fortification to wisdom.

HABEAS CORPUS CASE IS HEARD

Custody Of Dehart Boy Will Be Determined By The County Court. Habeas corpus proceedings, filed in Wayne county court by Robert Dehart of Sioux City in an effort to secure custody of his 7-year-old son, Robert, were heard Tuesday and the matter was taken under advisement by Judge J. M. Cherry.

Dehart's charge also states that John W. and Stella Skeehan on May 6, 1935, filed petition asking that Robert Dehart, jr., be adopted to them, that Mabel Danofsky filed her consent to the adoption and that the court signed a decree of adoption to Mr. and Mrs. Skeehan May 6.

Dehart, in his habeas corpus proceedings, presents copy of March 26 decree which grants Robert Dehart divorce from Mabel Danofsky and provides for custody of the child.

Dependants in the action state that the only home the child has known is that which the Skeehans have provided for him and that they are therefore the logical guardians for the boy.

the crisis which brought the executive order to suspend all banks for investigation following the administration change March 4, 1933.

As since revealed, Mr. Roosevelt, following his election, surrounded himself with a lot of theorists, manifestly bent on experimentation, and this fact, added to the talk of devaluation and inflation, aroused damaging suspicions.

The Post's introductory article shows the difference between broad statesmanship and narrow partisanship, and future revelations will doubtless clear up many misunderstandings and make possible just appraisal on the part of the public.

Prompt capture of the Weyerhaeuser kidnapers and recovery of a large part of the ransom money prove the greater efficiency of federal officers who are not restricted by state lines and who are fully equipped to handle desperate characters.

Looking into the political horizon, W. F. Cramb, democrat of the old school, draws this conclusion: "There is a wide rift in political parties. No longer do the designations, Republican and Democrat, mean what they did before 1933."

In his Columbus Telegram, Edgar Howard suggested that an excerpt from one of Lincoln's addresses be read to the Springfield republican meeting, the Columbus editor believing a conflict exists between the ideas of the great emancipator and those of persons now disagreeing with New Deal fantasies.

Trying to justify launched and proposed brain-storms, often pronouncedly unwise, New Deal pilots want to know of a better way. A sick person is not made the object of a lot of experimental nostrums in the daring hope that something will help.

With collapse of the NRA which required price fixing, we still have the anti-trust law which was designed to prevent price fixing. This latter act has stood the test of the supreme court and is both a live and sound instrumentality to save the buying public from unreasonably high prices.

The Saturday Evening Post makes this sensible observation: "There is always a price to be paid for any departure from the simple rules of sound business and economics. The longer the delay in returning to the hard, straight and narrow way, the bigger the price to pay."

Several Ak-Sar-Ben Race Horses Will Come For Pari-Mutuels Here

Spectators at the Wayne racing association three-day running races at fair grounds July 17 and 18, are promised some excellent sport by the officials in charge, and will see some fine horses in action. From present line-up of entries, these officials predict that the races will be well worth price of admission. Six races will be run daily starting at 5 p. m., so as not to interfere with working hours. Posters have been sent out to 43 towns advertising the meet.

George Robin, racing secretary for the Wayne events, goes to South Dakota, this Saturday to officiate as manager at pari-mutuel races at Vermillion, Sioux Falls, Rapid City and Aberdeen. He will line up horses there for the Wayne competition.

Local officials have received word from Kansas City that several good horses will be entered from there. Among outstanding horses already entered are: "Albion," owned by A. C. Meyer, which has already won two races at the Ak-Sar-Ben this year, and won four derbies in South Dakota last season; "Prairie King," owned by Sioux City stables, which has two seconds to its credit; "Bud Smith," which won last Saturday at Omaha and paid $42.80 on a $2 straight ticket.

Wayne racing track was completed at fair grounds track this week. The old wire back-stops on base ball diamond are being torn down, and will be re-built when the new baseball diamond is laid out for the fair.

CONGRESS As Seen by a Nebraskan

The proposal to relieve unemployment in rural districts and at the same time construct great highways where material is available to the back farms is being put up directly to the President and the Powers that be in a very interesting manner. The sub-committee of the prairie farmer organization is taking some of these ideas directly to the various departments. We have proposed to President Roosevelt and Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, a plan to use six hundred million dollars for this purpose. This would mean an average of about $200,000 to every county in the United States. This would employ about three million men for four months and by their working part time would employ them for six months on this work. (The work would be started within thirty days from the time the appropriation is made and without any extra overhead cost.

Omaha and Dale E. Cochran of Geneva and they are three very happy boys.

This town is different from any town in our land. Here and there you can find some industry, mostly bottling spring water or fizz water for the increased demand for drink mixing, but generally everything works for Uncle Sam. They are paid by the taxpayers. Most of them have money so far as money comparisons with our towns in Nebraska is concerned. And they spend that money. The business men make it easy for them to spend.

While a lot of the congressmen went fishing and sight seeing over the holiday most of the farm states congressmen stayed on the job. The farm states representatives held a meeting Saturday to see what can be done about getting the Frazer-Lemke reform bill passed at this session. With 178 names on the petition to introduce the committee all get the measure up before the house for action. Farm states representatives feel that they have a chance at success. They have promises of a number of more names in the meantime congressmen are flooded with letters from farmers who are threatened with losing their homes. Many have taken advantage of the Frazer-Lemke legislation. Now they don't know what to do. Their condition is hopeless. These letters are coming in from all over the country. Men in their millions are waiting to personally see 48 other congressmen and ask for their signatures.

It costs money to spend money and give relief. Oil of the relief fund the other day six million dollars was taken and handed over to the general accounting office and that office says it will add fifteen hundred new employees to take care of the increased auditing work under the five million dollar work relief act. The oil field now employs about twenty-seven hundred persons.

Memorial Day in Washington yesterday was pretty much like it is at home. There were many speeches. Thousands went out and decorated graves. Along sixteenth street where Gold Star mothers and others had planted memorial trees a little stone marker near each tree had its little flag and a little bouquet of flowers. It was an impressive sight and interest is added because that men and women who were decorating the grave of a soldier of the north never passed the grave of a soldier of the south without leaving a flower at both graves.

The end of the month and open season of bill collectors here just the same as at home. These Washington bill collectors are about the same as those at home in Nebraska except that nearly everything here costs 15 to 25 per cent more than in Nebraska and these bill collectors are repeaters. You can't stand them off. They just hang around until they get their money. They know how to do it because the spirit among these collectors is the spirit of the Almighty Dollar.

The director of Uncle Sam's national parks service in the interior department, is a Nebraska man. His name is Arno Cammerer and he was born in Arapahoe, Nebraska. His father was a German Lutheran minister and the national park director likes to talk about Nebraska and early childhood days and likes to meet Nebraska people when they come to Washington.

We couldn't find any trace on the capital grounds any place placed to the memory of the late J. Sterling Morton, father of Arbor Day. So we took it up with Dale Lynn, the architect of the capital, and asked him to let us plant a nice white oak in the capital grounds in memory of the great tree planter of Nebraska. Mr. Lynn is favorable to the idea but we are assured that this will be done.

Clarence VanNess, of Stanton, Nebraska, has one of the real chances for writing history here. Old Fort Potté, about ten miles up the Potomac river, has been abandoned for a long time. During the Civil war this old fort was used by soldiers and had cannon there to keep the ships from coming up the river and the fort protected the city of Washington. The old fort and other historical relics are decaying and monitoring away with time. Today the man in charge of that old fort is Clarence VanNess of Stanton. He is employed in the park department but on Saturdays and Sundays his job is that of caretaker of Fort Foote.

Recipes

Cream of Split Pea Soup. 1-2 lb. dried split peas. Small piece salt pork or bacon. 1 small onion.

Soak peas over night in cold water. Add slowly until peas are soft. Add three spoons to remove skins, onion and pork. Add two cups of thin white sauce. Serve.

Apricot or Peach Ice Cream. 1 quart can apricots or peaches of the same amount of fresh fruit. 1 cup cream. 2 cups sugar.

Scald the cream and mix in it 1 cup of the sugar, then set away in refrigerator pans to freeze. Drain off the fruit juice and save it for pudding sauce. Rub the pulp through a puree sieve and add other 1 cup of sugar. When the cream is partly frozen add the fruit pulp and return to refrigerator trays until fully frozen.

Strawberry Ice Cream. 2 cups thin cream. 2 cups sugar. 2 quarts berries.

Wash and hull the berries, sprinkle them with the sugar, and let them stand. Mash thoroughly, mix with the cream and let them stand again. Place in refrigerator trays until partly frozen, remove and stir and return to refrigerator to complete freezing process.

Chicken Terrapin. 1 chicken. 2 lb. red pepper. 2 whole onion.

2 hard boiled eggs. 1 cup chicken broth. 1 cup cream. 1-4 pound butter.

1 heaping tablespoon flour. 2 tablespoons currant jelly. Roll the chicken and giblets; when tender, cook thoroughly; cut into small pieces half an inch square. Put into sauce pan with the seasonings, chopped eggs and other ingredients, rubbing the flour in the latter first. Simmer for about 10 minutes; add the jelly and serve.

Chicken Pie. 1 chicken. Salt and pepper. 1 tablespoon of flour. Yolk of hard boiled egg. 1-2 tablespoon parsley. 1-4 pound salt pork. Fat crust.

Prepare the chicken as for fricassee; put the giblets in cold water and stew until nearly done. Add the chicken seasoned with pepper and salt and simmer for 20 minutes. Remove with a skimmer and make a gravy of the broth by adding the flour, egg yolk and parsley. Line the sides of a deep baking pan with pie crust; place an inverted cup in the center; put in the chicken in layers covered with strips of salt pork and moistened with the gravy. Pour on the remainder of the gravy; cover with pie crust, making the edges as firm as possible and cutting a few slashes. Bake slowly for nearly an hour.

Casserole Meat Balls. Mix chopped veal with, minced onion and parsley. Season and form into broquettes, dip in beaten egg and crumbs, then bake.

Fried Halibut. Dip halibut in corn meal and fry in butter. Season and serve garnished with broiled tomatoes, lemon and watercress.

Boef Ring with Vegetables. Combine ground round steak with beaten egg, salt and pepper and 1 tablespoon of flour. Pack in greasing ring mold and bake in hot water bath. Remove to hot platter and fill with creamed peas and carrots.

CUSHING GIVES CLASS ADDRESS

Miss Pearl Sewell Presents Diplomas To Eighth Graders Thursday.

"The greatest heritage ever given man was the desire to work," stated Herbert L. Cushing of Lincoln, deputy state superintendent, last Thursday when addressing Wayne county's class of 134 eighth grade graduates and their friends at Gay theatre. "The school of thought which says that everything is available to all without work, is impossible," Mr. Cushing continued.

In advising the young folks as to their careers, Mr. Cushing urged them to follow their desires. "The professions are not overcrowded and youth should not be discouraged. Each can work out something worthwhile," Mr. Cushing told of a colored lad who had desire to learn. He worked his way through college and returned to serve his people in the south. Thomas Edison offered him a responsible position with good pay during the World war and he declined, preferring to help his race. Through efforts of Dr. George D. Harvey every bit of the peanut is utilized and this means additional billions to southern people.

"The bluebird of happiness is right in our own homes," Mr. Cushing added. Dr. Walter Priden told the youth Vancouver to the Rio Grande and stated that if the people are smart they will move from this region as he thinks it will again be a desert. But, Mr. Cushing said, the pioneers put too much into this country to let it go back to a desert, and they will work as the pioneers to prevent this.

Mr. Cushing complimented the class and their parents for attainments. "I advised the students to make records that will live through the years. He urged that each make his everyday life such that his friends could recommend him. "Have moral fiber along with your brains," Mr. Cushing added, "The cross should be shaped into your lives."

Miss Pearl E. Sewell, who presented diplomas in the class, announced the diploma of district #2 as having the highest average, 93. Edwin Baker of #3, second with 84, and Ruth Frevert of #4, was third with 91. Students with averages of 90 are Florence Root of Sholes, Betty Gray of 79, Christine Leuker of 31, Mylva Rehms of 31, Violet Smith of 83, Wilma Gemmill of 18, Irene Suber of 6, and Bernice Langenberg of Hoskins.

Betty Hawkins played the march as eighth graders entered the theatre and she also played "Pfe-

County Officials Meet At Norfolk

Wayne was one of 14 counties represented last Thursday at meeting of Northeast Nebraska Association of County Commissioners, Supervisors and Clerks at Norfolk. Miss Hertha Berres, Frank Erickson and David Koch attending from here. They were accompanied by Mrs. Erickson, Mrs. Geo. Berres, Jr., and Miss Thildegard Berres.

A resolution passed recommending that method of selecting C. C. camp youths be changed so that they could be selected from "border" families and not solely from relief boys. The present plan urges some families to give relief to get appointments.

The additional cost gas tax for relief was discussed and it was opinion that this fund which is accumulating should be given to the counties as they are in need of the money for relief work.

To Teach in Boulder. Marjorie Wright has been elected to teach music in junior high school at Boulder, Colo., and will go there this fall after studying at Evanston, Ill. this summer. He has resigned the position to which he was re-elected at Gillette, Wyo.

To Receive Bids. Among bids for $360,000 worth of road improvements, to be opened at Lincoln June 20, is 17.5 miles of re-paving on the Winside-Norfolk highway.

Certificate Sent. Certificate and emblem were sent by Miss Esther Dewitz of the college to Vivian Dikeman of Royal, who passed senior life saving test.

COMMUNITY SHEEP-DIPPING DRAWS SHEEP RAISERS TO THE C. H. MORRIS FARM THURSDAY

Wayne county sheep had a memorable get-together at the C. H. Morris home near Carroll last Thursday. Such sheep as were interviewed did not report a very happy time, involving as it did an immersion in sulphur solution, but the sheep owners and their families had a good old visit and very ingeniously combined necessary labor with a social affair. For it was annual sheep-dipping day at Morris.

Last year, you'll remember, Mr. Morris sent out a call for sheepmen to bring in their recently sheared animals for a community dipping. And they came from many miles around. 1,275 animals were brought by 21 owners. It was a hot, dry day. May 25, but everything had a good time and voted to repeat it again. And Thursday day discouraged some from attending last week's dipping, but nevertheless fully 1,027 animals underwent an unwanted bath, and a goodly number of sheepmen and friends dotted the Morris lawn and farm-yards. From the greatest distance was Robert Kay Phillips of Fayetteville, Ark., who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. William T. Esry of Lincoln, Mr. Esry being shepherd for the University of Nebraska agricultural college. The sheep had been pastured near Carroll, Randolph, Winfield, Wayne and Redick.

Early in the morning, by 6 o'clock the butting animals began to arrive. Some by truck, packed solidly. Some in trailers attached to truckloads. Some by wagon. The dippers were ready. The tank of dip, an effective anti-parasitic and disinfectant solution, awaited its victims. It was a friendly and not-to-be-hurried affair. The owners drove in, exchanged greetings, then backed their vehicles up to the corral. The animals leaped out through the backgate, landing lightly on their feet or scrambled down the runway. Then huddled together at one end, fearful of the ordeal ahead. Some had gone through the dipping process before and perhaps vague and none-to-pleasant memories lingered. Others had probably been forewarned by their manna. Perhaps their wariness was due to the very noticeable odor which would have made any animal, even the rather unsensitive hog, wrinkle its nose.

Fished along or pulled by their wool, the sheep soon found themselves catapulted into the yellowish liquid, and made a wild scramble to emerge. Once on the "dipping-board," they shook themselves and bleated their disgust with things in general and with nicotine sulphur bits in particular. A minute or two to drain off preparation, then the shivering, bedraggled animals scampered off to opposite end of the yard to beat-their-sentiments, and to put plenty of distance between themselves and their enemies. Now and then a load contained a tiny lamb. Art Keiland brought a punning little brown goat which received special ceremonial for its dipping. C. H. Morris' animals were purebred Oxford Downs, from which stock have come most of the herds in this locality. Fred Reeg has only purebred Oxfords also.

Was Sheep Pioneer.

The presence of sheep in West-central Canada vicinity may be traced back to the late John R. Morris, "daddy" of the Welsh settlement, who had herded sheep in his native Wales and saw no reason why they could not graze on Wayne county land. For about 45 years he was a heavy sheep grazer, often having as many as 2,500 head at one time. In the summer these were taken up into Holt county by a herder, and usually one of the Morris sons accompanied the herder, living in camp wagon and helping to watch the nervous animals. And so those Morris men had good background for the sheep business, and Thursday's get-together was indicative of their continued interest.

Several agriculturists came for the dipping. Wayne Girardot, agricultural teacher at (Randolph high school, Prof. F. A. Alexander of the department of animal husbandry at University of Nebraska, and William T. Esry, university shepherd.

While the dipping was in progress, the women chatted and prepared the picnic dinner. Each brought generous baskets from which emerged the aromas of hot baked beans, fried chicken and spicy relishes. Their generous bowls of potato salad topped with yellow and white egg slices, glistening fruit jello salads, bowls of cottage cheese, pans of breads and angel food cakes, jars of fruit sauce made their appearance. The men held their houseward, urged by a certain emptiness in their central regions, and by the inviting odor of hot coffee. Time to eat, then littenball and horseshoe pitching, and more visiting.

Professor Is Speaker.

Prof. Alexander, who had previously taken pictures of the dipping process, photographed the picknickers, then made a short talk on the farm situation. "The cutting farm outlook is changed from this time last year," he stated. "Then it looked like we would get practically nothing, and get very little for what we did have. Why is the price of wool so low when you have to pay plenty for a blanket at a store? One reason is that farming cannot be regulated like industry. The manufacturer who is over-producing can close down within a day or two, and cut several hundred men off his payroll, with a day's notice. Not so with the farmer—his production can't be cut down in less than a year or two. The professor predicted an increase in wool prices during the summer months, and reported the outlook for hog raisers as very good, and that for cattlemen, quite favorable. Mr. Girardot also spoke briefly expressing pleasure at being present.

When the last sheep had been dipped, C. H. Morris reported the number as follows: John O. Jones, Randolph, 69; William Morris, 15; H. Morris, 258; Ramey Hill of Winfield, 9; Lloyd Morris, 4; Herbert Carson of Randolph, 7; George H. Owens, 44; Robert E. Jones of Randolph, 15; Blanner Morris, 50; Basil Osborne, 17; David Reeg, 25; W. H. Rees, 11; Fred Reeg of Wayne, 12; Bill Kieper of Wayne, 6; George Korn, 4; Glenn Wingett, 29; Worley Bushoof, 17; Myron Larson, 24; Robert Waller of Belden, 50; D. S. Wightman of Winfield, 137; L. E. Link, 82; Elmo Jenkins, 8; Art Reiland of Randolph, 77; total, 1,027.

The register of folks attending the picnic dinner lists the following: Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Morris, Miss Cecylia Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Lot Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Bortner Morris, Mrs. Helen Morris, Rodger Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones and son, R. ## CHAPTER 11—Continued.

"More piling on of the inferiority complex," McNamara interrupted. "And she cracked under it. Then she made up her mind to forget Mrs. Gatin—and she did."

"A clear case of auto-hypnosis, Dan. Now you've got to run down the record of our Penelope and that of her parents. She must have it and it must be proof of the most convincing character because such proof is necessary if we are to hope to help her mental tranquility."

"Well," said Dan, "I'll be back presently with the girl's record, and then—"

"Out of the darkness into the sunlight, Mac."

"Well, the next one I find in the darkness will stay there," the chief growled.

The absence of the capable Lanny was a constant reminder to Dr. Stephen Burt of his sole experiment to date in the case of vital personality. He yearned with an aching scientific yearning to get to work on Penelope Gatin, and when Dan McNamara appeared at the office on the day by the satisfied smile of the McNamara counted once that all had gone well.

"Let me see the documents," Stephen demanded.

McNamara handed over the pile of papers.

"Well, you've done your full duty and have kept the police of various cities busy for a few days," said Stephen. "What do you hear from Lanny?"

"She'll be home next week. The skin graft on the girl's nose was a complete success."

"And how does the girl feel about the situation now?"

"She's crazy about her new nose and spends hours examining it in a hand mirror."

Stephen smiled. "Naturally, she would."

"Lanny says that the girl's been her real self more than half the time since that first look."

"She would be. And now I'm going to add to her happiness by sending her this record, which I shall supplement with a report of my own on her case. She'll study it, and in this convincing proof that she is not what Mrs. Merton told her she was, she'll probably get well. These cases are simple, Dan. All you have to do is to discover the cause and remove it. Nature does the rest. She will have no more rebellious thoughts, because the despot can do her no further harm. Her black moods of depression will not come again; she is organically and mentally sound, the product of sound ancestry on both sides of her family."

"But she knows she was an inmate of San Quentin. She'll remember she was a thief."

"She will, of course, feel great shame when fully restored to her normal personality. In her other personality, with her acquired instincts of morality and convention smothered in her sub-conscious mind, she had, of course, no sense of remorse or shame. I think that when I have explained this to her she will understand just what her condition was. And her fear that the world will discover her sorry record will, I feel certain, be alleviated by her knowledge that it would be impossible for anybody who knows her as saddened Nance Holden to recognize her as good-looking Penelope Gatin."

"All I've got to say, young fellow," the admiring McNamara declared, "is that you're one hell of a smart man!"

Some two weeks later, Lanny walked in on Stephen. "Well," he declared excitedly, "you've certainly taken your time about getting back on the job. You're looking mighty particular, Lanny. Happy?"

"Stevie, dear, I never knew there was such complete happiness in the world."

"Where's Penelope?"

"She's gone back to Paris—on a new passport."

"Well, well, well," Stephen chided her. "I'll be things."

"Stevie, she's as lovely as a May morning."

"And the operation?"

"A phenomenal success. Of course," Lanny added, "she could never stand a sock on the nose."

"Just what is she going to do in Paris?"

"Close out her apartment and dismiss her servants."

"And coming back to San Francisco?"

Lanny nodded. "How do you stand Miss Ordway as your office nurse, Stephen?"

"Rather well, I'm sorry to say. She's very competent and much more tactful than you."

"And do you want me back, darling?" she queried for a compliment. Of course I do, but it isn't necessary. You could come in once a week."

"Not for a great many weeks, Stevie."

He glanced up at her sharply. "How come, Lanny?"

"Lanny's face was the color of an old rose. 'I'm going to have a baby,' she whispered."

"And then Stephen Burt stood up and took dear old Lanny in his strong young arms and hugged her. At last, she was going to have her little slice of life!

"Of course," Lanny said presently, "you'll be the baby's godfather?"

"He nodded. "Of course."

Three months passed to Stephen Burt remarkable by reason of the fact that Mrs. Rudolph Merton did not call upon him. At last, to satisfy his curiosity, he telephoned Rudolph Merton to ask him how his wife was.

"I don't know," Merton replied complacently. "She's gone."

"Dead?"

"No such luck. She's gone to Southern California to join a new religious sect. A colony on the fringe of the San Bernardino desert with a prophet in command."

"And what are you doing about it, Mr. Merton?" Stephen asked.

"I'm subsidizing the prophet so he'll stay in business ten months longer. Mrs. Merton has deserted me, thank God, but she has to be away a year before I can secure a divorce on the grounds of desertion. The prophet comes high, but I can afford to pay for my fan-fancies."

"I gather from your manner that you're not broken hearted."

"Such sorrow as I feel now would be delicious delight compared to what I'd feel if she decided to come back to me."

"I congratulate you, Mr. Merton. Good-bye and good luck to you. You deserve it."

As Stephen hung up the telephone receiver, chuckling, Miss Ordway brought in his mail. In it he found a registered parcel that had been through the custom house, with duty prepaid on it. It contained the finest and most expensive combination stop-watch and time-piece he had ever seen, and a note that read:

"Dear Doctor Burt:

"I know it would not be so fair for me to ask you for a bill for professional services, for I realize that what you did for me was done as one human being to another and quite without thought of financial remuneration. Moreover, I prefer to remain forever your debtor. You will never know what you have done for me. Christ, restoring life to the dead son of the widow of Nain, performed no greater miracle than you did in restoring life and happiness to my dead soul. I would try to thank you if words were not so pitifully inadequate to express the profundity of my gratitude. Will you not please accept the enclosed trifle as a token of that gratitude, and add one more debt to those already owed you by me?"

It is not easy to learn to live with my secret, now that I have found it out. I am trying to forget the past as one backs back in memory to a very serious illness. Some days, when I have achieved sufficient courage I am evicted from about my other self, I am plunged into darkness. There are blanks in my life. Perhaps you can fill them in. Perhaps you will not care to know that they are better left blank. I was ever truly wicked. If so, I have no recollection of it.

"Your grateful

"Penelope."

"Old Mother Nature is speaking to Penelope," he soliloquized, and replaced his father's old watch with the one Penelope had sent him. "Give Nature a chance to give her an even break, and she'll prove herself the greatest physician of all."

After some consideration he wrote the following to Penelope:

"Come home and let me iron out the few remaining wrinkles in your life. It will be as smooth as you could wish. The watch is wonderful. Thanks and I think you are very wonderful, too. Love as usual.

"Stephen."

It occurred to him to tuck that phrase in for good measure. Love—not merely the love of a man for a woman but the love that is a fine friendship—was, he knew, very necessary to Penelope. She must, he knew, be assured that in all the world nobody really cared. Nobody knew better than he the weakness that kindred and love denied can make of human lives; never a day passed without leaving him evidence of this.

He was not getting quite his little slice of life. Money, success, the joy of accomplishment, professional standing, the respect of his colleagues, he had, plus some good friends and true. But he was lonely.

He decided not to dine alone. It would be far better to drop in unannounced on Lanny and Dan than to look for dinner.
