

Message to the Editor of the Morning Driblet With Apologies to the Public.

Dear Driblet Editor: Like the little fish that inks surrounding waters to limit its world, you narrow your circle of thought to the morning Driblet with suspicion and spite.

Home Harmony, Bah Not long ago you prated about the need of harmony in building the community, but still you have tried to keep inflamed late differences which involved the teachers college—most valuable institution for Wayne and surrounding country.

Looking to the Future Citizens who are interested in the future of Wayne, regret that the college trouble happened, but they did not cause it and could not avoid it.

Pursuit of Peff. In charging us with pursuit of money you only reflect your own gross ideas of business relationship. You draw conclusions based on your own experience—your own twisted and perverted notions.

A Slight Backward. However, we are reminded by your recent jabs at the county and city attorneys for not prosecuting municipal officers for selling to the city that you are doubly at fault.

Suppressing Communications. You say we refused to publish a certain letter which was written to our congressman by yourself, but which was signed by a farmer who felt he had a grievance against the county allotment committee.

Revising the Old Style. In this column we have descended in a measure to the kind of journalism you have invited and seem to relish, but we feel like apologizing to the public for doing so.

PLAN OF RACING SYSTEM IS TOLD

Will Follow Pari-Mutuel Idea For Horse Meet Here In July.

The reason that horse races have suddenly become so popular in this state, explains J. J. Ahern, is that the pari-mutuel racing law prevents the "firing" of races by gamblers and a certain class of horse men. When you watch a race now you have the satisfaction of knowing that every horse is doing his best to win.

Fremont Minister Was Married At Concord Church In 1910.

Dr. and Mrs. C. O. Gulleen of Fremont, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Monday evening, June 24, when Lutheran pastors of Wahoo and Omaha districts and friends gathered at Sinai Lutheran church. The Gulleens were married in Concord in 1910.

Pink, white and silver decorated the church parlors. Mrs. Gulleen wore a pink eyelet dress and carried a bouquet of 160 roses. Miss Helen Luther played Mendelssohn's hymnal march as Dr. and Mrs. Gulleen and their four children were escorted by deacons into the church.

A quartet, consisting of Mrs. Vern Johnson, Miss Helen Luther, Dwan Lundstrom and Kenneth Holmberg, sang "O Happy Home" and "Homing." Guests Speak Here Saturday

"This campus represents the best interests of my life," said the president. "I feel no regrets at leaving the college only relief in giving up the responsibilities and being free to do many things I have long planned. To build such a plant is a privilege and pleasure which come to but few individuals."

Prof. Clifford Bair sang two solos, "The Countryman" by Peter Warlock, and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." He was accompanied by Prof. A. G. Carlson.

Who Traveled First.

To Elsie Gifted Short of Riverside, Wash., 25, went the 55 price per having traveled the greatest distance to attend the jubilee. She came 2,014 miles.

Among the distinguished visitors introduced were: George L. Towne of the University Publishing company in Lincoln, pioneer in education field; M. D. Cunningham of Omaha, alumnus of N. N. C.; Charles A. Bowers of Lincoln, secretary of the Nebraska State Teachers' association; W. H. Morton of Lincoln, principal of teachers' college high school; Supt. J. E. Ray of Dodge county; Supt. Fred S. Sch of Dodge, secretary of the state and three legislators, Rep. Marjory Stark of Norfolk, Rep. August Bierman of Wayne and Rep. L. C. Nuernberger of Wakefield class of 1900; C. L. Chiller of Lincoln public schools; Dr. F. M. Gregg of Wesleyan university, formerly of N. N. C. faculty; Supt. A. H. Waterhouse of Fremont; Dr. Frank E. Henzlik, dean of teachers' college, University of Nebraska; Mrs. Conn; and Dr. John G. Nehardt, student of N. N. C. and Nebraska's poet laureate.

Several of the guests spoke briefly.

Said Mr. Nuernberger: "On this hill I received inspiration which motivated my life in the old J. M. P. Nebraska Normal college. I wish to pay tribute to Dr. F. M. Gregg, who has been a wonderful influence in my life, and in the lives of many other men. And I wish to pay tribute to that marvelous educator, J. M. Pile, who inspired the youth of over a quarter-century ago. Students here find the most beautiful campus in the state, but it is the ideals and inspiration which they have secured under Dr. Conn's leadership which stay with them and will live on long after these buildings have crumbled into dust."

(Supt. Waterhouse paid warm tribute to Gov. R. L. Cochran for his fine action in the recent flood and strike troubles. "The inspiration and stimulus which have radiated from Dr. Conn these 25 years are something greater, finer than the physical plant which he has built up."

Dr. Gregg recalled his arrival with Mrs. Glegg 37 years ago, the couple coming as bride and bridegroom to the prairie college. At the station they were met with a phaeton and, brought up Main street, past the stand-pipe, to campus hill. Only about 100 students were here then, but they were hard-working, earnest young folks. Never was there a finer, more honest group in his opinion. And the greatest class that ever passed from the institution was the class of 1903. Dr. Gregg taught 10 classes a day for 50 weeks, the college suspending only for Christmas and a half-day on the Fourth.

Prof. J. M. Pile, a man of marvelous foresight, vigor and energy—he did the work of three men. Dr. Gregg has followed Dr. Conn's career and watched with keenest interest the growth of Wayne college. He has often called Wayne college the best housed institution in the state of Nebraska.

"If the people of the future who have charge of the institution do as well as did Dr. Conn during the past 25 years, we can look forward to a remarkable development for W. S. T. C.," said Dr. Henzlik. "No institution is doing a better work, nor is there any which the state needs more than this."

Mr. Culler recalled a rainy November day when he drove his team of ponies up the camphus hill through oozing mud, to inspect the college which Waynettes and Prof. Pile were building. The building was completed that spring, and Mr. Culler returned to take summer work. He and Dr. Nehardt made up the Cicero class.

In the nature of a benediction to the ceremonies, and a formal farewell to Dr. Conn were Dr. Nehardt's remarks. He recalled the coming of two "light-bringers," Prof. Pile and Dr. Conn, to Wayne city. "And now Dr. and Mrs. Conn are standing on a high hill, looking about them and seeing the work of their hands—and behold, it is good!"

JUST ONE PIANO LEFT AND IT MUST BE SOLD!

Another one of those BUSH & GERTS PIANOS sold to Henry Arp of Wayne. No wonder when you can get them at such low prices and on such easy payments. I have just one more left to sell at a very low price. IT MUST BE SOLD!

Regular $575 Bush & Gerts Piano, 4 feet, 6 inches high, for only $190

I can show you the factory list price to show that it lists at $575 and that I got a lot more for them than $190 before I bought them at the low closing-out prices. They are real pianos. Bush & Gerts have always made fine pianos. Built by Haddorff who has never built a cheap piano. Our guarantee is worth more than the paper it is written on. IT IS A GUARANTEE THAT HAS STOOD THE TEST OF TIME!

Read This Letter From the Manufacturer:

September 7, 1933

Dear Mr. Voget:

We are much pleased to have your letter and thank you for the order contained. We will accept the order just as you have given it. The understanding is that you will give us shipping instructions on the remainder of these pianos before end of October. We are glad to have the stock in your hands because you know the difference between a real piano and the imitation, and we are confident that through you these pianos will get into good hands—people who know what they are getting and how to take care of it.

We have already explained to you why we are selling these pianos at so low a price. In the future, we do not intend to make anything larger than a 4-foot upright. It is too bad, of course, because the larger uprights are much finer pianos as regards tone and musical quality—and that, after all, is all there is to a piano. People, however, particularly in cities, have lately got the idea that they must have very small pianos, thus cutting down the strings and the sound boards until in some cases you have nothing left but a toy.

(Signed) Bush & Gerts Piano Co.

Reform and Recovery THE Omaha World-Herald has been a staunch supporter of the New Deal, but it has come to the conclusion that an over-charge of experiments has caused what it calls a "log jam," preventing a needed flow of work and enterprise, destroying confidence and hindering recovery.

The World-Herald would at this critical juncture give recovery efforts precedence over reform notions, concluding with these paragraphs:

"Increasingly the emphasis is on the need for recovery first. Experience has proved it, is proving it more emphatically day by day. We might double the number of laws, each new law further discouraging private enterprise, and get nowhere. Presently we should begin going backwards.

"The new deal has come to a critical period, for itself and for the country. It can triumph over this crisis, as it has over others. Triumph will consist in actively aiding the breaking of the log jam of private enterprise. Stubbornly to pile it up higher is dangerous, and can end only in calamitous failure.

"The administration at Washington can serve itself, and grandly serve the nation, by bringing to a halt the making of new laws, by giving the country a breathing spell and a chance to find and adjust itself, and by encouraging, in every proper way, American enterprise to put American dollars and American labor to work.

"The 20 millions still on relief, the billions of idle capital and credit, are the sufficient reason for such a course. They are also dangerous signals, that he who runs may read."

Looking Forward EDITOR H. H. Humphreys of the Wisner News-Chronicle, who says many Wisner young people are enrolled in the Wayne State Teachers college, and who is looking forward to the time when he will send his children to this college for higher education, is like many others, anxious for future leadership that will triumph over local differences and keep the school forging ahead in educational opportunities.

Observed "EVERYTHING new is not right, whether it be a new deal or anything else," said Senator Glass, democrat of the old school. The Famous Virginian said for a representative government to get off its constitutional orbit would be as sure to bring disaster as for the world to leave its orbit and go adventuring through space.

Congressman Karl Stefan surprised congress the first of the week by promoting installation of a loud-speaking system in the house during the week-end recess. Some kicked, while others were pleased. The congressman explained that he expected to get reactions from house members after showing them how the system would carry voices and facilitate hearing. He says proceedings are not always audible, and so there is danger of legislation that is not understood in advance. With the loudspeaking system, the strongest voice has no advantage over the weakest one, and no discussion is lost in transit. Congressman Stefan thinks the improvement would not require so much effort to hear, but would impose more effort to regulate things that are said.

The first of the week reports from Washington indicated that the latest move on the part of the president was a swing to the left. His announced intention to break down large fortunes through taxation in order to give wider distribution of wealth is interpreted as a left-wing action. It has been hoped he could be persuaded to slow down his reform tendencies at least until industry could contribute its full share to recovery. In breaking down wealth and heading off large incomes it would seem difficult to draw the line to avoid hobbling great employing institutions and thus increasing rather than diminishing the number of persons out of jobs.

Parts of the state suffered from hail and wind during Monday night's storm, and it is to be regretted that the benefits of moisture cannot always be bestowed without risk of damage. Luckily this part of the state has so far escaped from injury accompanying rainfall, and it is hoped we may be permitted to continue present promise of abundance. We are glad to learn that results of damage in other sections of the state are less severe than at first reported. The soaked ground would seem an insurance against drought.

The suggestion by some one that the administration set about leveling off the Rocky Mountains probably has some merit. The project would at least give employment. The final result would ease travel between the east and west. On the other hand it would destroy a lot of wonderfully rugged and always inspiring scenery. The mountains could be leveled off as an experiment, and then if not satisfactory they could be put back, furnishing more employment.

A report states that the following words, exposed to view in a large city office, invite the attention of ambitious young employees: "Work hard for eight hours a day and don't worry; then in time you may become a boss and work 18 hours a day and have all the worry."

A magazine writer says Russia has all the evils of our system of capitalism, but none of its benefits. Capitalism means independent employment and independent earnings. Communists in Russia take over the capital and direct employment, and no one dares offer opposition.

Following Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's reference to the supreme court's "black nighties," some one put this question to the American people: "Shall we have the constitution interpreted by distinguished jurists in black nighties or sophomore lawyers in knee breeches?"

Some one holding a position in connection with the shelter belt says the project is a success—meaning either that the trees are growing or that the plan is already bringing desired results in the way of moisture.

Regimenting The Farmer. Omaha Journal-Stockman: Farmers are sometimes inclined to doubt that there is any intention on the part of the government to regiment them, to take over the supervision of their operations and to compel them to plow, to plant and to harvest according to regulations laid down by a bureau. And yet there can be no question that this is the ultimate aim of the agricultural planners.

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, the college professor who has been placed in charge of the Tennessee valley, is rather more frank and outspoken than some of his associates but he announces boldly that: "The TVA furnishes a limited area in which various elements of social and economic planning might be worked out before being applied to the United States as a whole."

The farmer, himself, is to be told where to get off at. "If a farmer will not use his land well, if he is allowing it to be destroyed, it may be taken away from him and given to men who will treat it well," declares Dr. Morgan. "If he has 100 acres and his holding is being washed away, perhaps his holding should be cut to fifty acres. I am inclined to think in the long run that our farmers ought to be under dual service so that the ownership of the land should depend upon the proper use of that land, which means planting proper crops, terrace farming and taking out of cultivation entirely land which should be out."

This is a fair sample of the objectives of the agricultural planners who are in charge of the big Tennessee Valley project and other socialistic federal schemes. The independent farmer is to disappear from the face of the earth and the farm worker is to be just a cog in a vast government machine. At least that is Dr. Morgan's idea and aim.

A Relief Story. Nebraska City Press: The following story is contributed by an Iowa reader. Two Fremont farmers met in Riverton the other day. One remarked he was in town to buy poison with which to eradicate gophers, but was uncertain as to what type should use. "Get some of this relief flour," his neighbor declared. "I don't understand," said the other, "how that would work?" "Stick it down the gopher holes," said the first man, "and after they have eaten it they'll become so indolent that when they come out to lie down for a nap you can club 'em to death."

An Example Of Hope. Lincoln Journal: The treasury department received a letter the other day which contained a check for $67. It was from a man who had received work relief in 1933. Now he is in a position to repay the government and is intent upon doing so, although he is under no obligation to repay. He promises the balance of $40 in a few months. This person takes pride in his independence. He wants to be under obligation to no one. If there were more like him the president's relief problem would be much lighter than it is at present.

INDEPENDENCE

Approach of July Fourth reminds us that the Declaration of Independence was signed 160 years ago, and with late and present conflicts between left and right wingers, we are led to reemphasize the importance of that document. The independence gained by the original colonies may have been abused, but it still breathes the primal spirit of freedom which none would knowingly surrender. With all its imperfections, this government, following the Declaration of Independence, has proved the most humanitarian in the history of the world. Radicals who are dissatisfied, and who think they could fashion a better government, would do worse instead of better as witness suppressed liberties in some European countries that are trying what they herald as "noble" experiments. Despite the economic disorder and unusual handicaps of the past few years, we enjoy far greater advantages than those experienced in the early days of this country, and far greater than those known at present in other countries. Blows aimed at American fundamental individual initiative, rights for individual effort, as well as the Declaration of Independence is recalled, our grip on the American security long possessed.

The bride is a niece of Miss Margaret Schemel and attended college here.

WOMEN

Women have made wonderful progress in understanding and helping direct public affairs in the last half century. A writer points out that fifty years ago few women took any interest in politics. Now, following serious study of public questions, and active participation in conventions, they have often forged ahead of men in arriving at facts and in drawing logical conclusions. Years ago men did most of the thinking. Today women are the chief readers of both local and general news. Sometimes men are too busy to read; sometimes too indifferent and inert. Years ago a man retailed a fraction of the little he had read to his wife while the latter was toiling over preparation of a meal. Today the women often keep the men informed. Without the desire of women to learn and know, there would be less need for newspapers and magazines. The men are fast supplying men as students and thinkers, and with their increasing knowledge of and activity in public affairs they will more and more be called upon to assume responsibilities of public offices. The writer mentioned suggests that the way women are digging into and mastering live issues and taking leadership in handling public policies, the election of women to the presidency within another decade will not be surprising.

Dramatics Classes Will Present Plays

Dramatics classes of Wayne Teachers College, under direction of Miss Florence M. Drake, will present three short plays July 2 at college auditorium. The first play is "The Death of Tintagiles," by Maurice Maeterlinck, and is directed by Aulda Surber. Maeterlinck believed in tremendous, invisible and fatalistic powers of which no one knows the intention but which are attentive to all actions and incidentally to joy, life, peace and happiness. The play cannot alter the cruel and inexorable tragedy that death, sometimes love, plays with human beings. This play symbolizes the crushing of humanity, mercilessly by inexorable death. The castle symbolizes life; the tower that overshadows the castle is the dwelling place of death; and the mad queen is death. The old man with scars is age and wisdom; and the sisters are love. Wisdom and love temporarily hold death, but inexorably it separates families, and most beautiful. The old mad learned of the fertility of bombing fate; one sister cries out bitterly against it.

A much debated question is solved in the second play, "Are Men Superior?" by Harriet Court, directed by Alice Masonholder and produced by Blanche Collins. It takes eight women of many various stations in life to find the solution. Susan, who does not need a man's world is in direct contrast to Fannie, who always needs a man at her elbow. How can the question come to a happy, satisfactory ending when the test takes place in a log cabin in the mountains far from the protection of any man? The last play, "The Message from Khufu," by H. Stuart Cottman and La Vergne Shaw, concerns the mysteries of an Egyptian tomb. The rapacity of some men who desire the riches of the mummy buried in the tomb brings disastrous results to those who disobey the "message from Khufu." Greed makes them forget the closing door until it is too late. This play is directed by Alvin Jones and produced by Blanche Collins.

Taken To Hospital

Miss Herman Mahke entered University hospital at Omaha on Monday for medical examination.

CONGRESS As Seen by a Nebraskan

Tax Slaves—Six millionaires have made slaves of about 26,000 natives of the Virgin Islands according to impressions members of the house insular committee received from testimony given to the committee recently by the governor and other American officials of those islands. It seems that most of the valuable land there is owned by a few millionaires. The land is taxed on the basis of cultivation. So the rich men there don't cultivate the land. The natives who own a few acres of land cultivate their land so most of the land taxes are paid by the poor farmers. The committee is trying to figure out a tax method to get after the big fellows and make them pay their just share of the taxes.

In Boozed Business The Insular Committee had another interesting meeting on the Virgin Islands situation today, and they learned that your Uncle Samuel is in the boozing business in those islands. We learned that last November our government set up what is known as the Virgin Island Company, which is a United States Government institution. Our government put a million dollars into this concern, which manufactures rum. In fact, your government rum factory in the Virgin Islands has already manufactured one hundred and forty thousand gallons of rum, which is now aging. They have contracted to sell 10,000 gallons of this rum to Puerto Rico, where it will be blended with Puerto Rico rum and then sent out for sale. The committee also learned that this million dollars our government put into this rum factory came from PWA funds.

Spanish-American Pensions—Something happened which the Spanish-American war veterans will be interested in. While we were signing the petition asking that the rules committee be discharged and H. R. 6995 be brought up for consideration of the house that same bill came up on general consent and was passed in a twinkling of an eye. A lot of the congressmen didn't even know what the bill was all about, and there were a lot of them who were absent. It never happened like this before, the old timers say. It was something new and caused quite a disturbance after some of those who were half asleep in their chairs realized that such an important bill had passed. The belief is that the bill will pass the senate. This bill grants pensions to veterans of the Spanish-American war including the boxer rebellion and the Philippine insurrection, their widows and dependents. Some predictions are made that if the senate does pass this bill the president may veto it.

Farm Roads Favored—The prairie farmer congressman subcommittee working for the farm-to-market roads met for over two hours with Harry Hopkins, the federal relief administrator, this morning and Hopkins made no bones about a promise to help this committee carry out their program to get more money from the big five billion dollars, work relief fund to improve the actual farm to market roads. The relief administrator is in full sympathy with the committee's ideas, that more men could be put to work and more valuable work could be done by improving and building the real farm to market roads but the program is a big one and it looks like it will be carried out with full support of those who have the taxpayers money in their hands down here in Washington. The committee does not want this money to remain in the hands of the big money corporations and big road contractors.

Propaganda—There is a lot of kicking in congressional circles about what is declared to be press propaganda. Considerable is being said to the effect that most of the propaganda is emanating from various departments and bureaus in Washington. About twenty-two years ago congress passed a law that no money appropriated by it should be used to pay any publicity expert unless specifically appropriated for that purpose. It is stated that 53 agents are now putting out propaganda for departments and bureaus.

Time Signals—The tourists who come to Washington seldom go up to the United States Naval Observatory, which many people here believe is one of the most important places in Washington. That is where you get your correct time, and very few people know it, but the time signals from Arlington come directly from this observatory, and you receive them in Nebraska at the same time the figures are computed in the observatory by the scientists.

Devil's Nest—Because of many requests to develop Devil's Nest, in Knox county, Nebraska, we have completed investigations and arguments in that regard with the United States Department of the Interior, and have been informed that a recent field investigator had reported that, although the area does not meet national park standards, it might possibly be considered for development for park or regional recreational use by the state. We are further informed that if the lands were owned by the state and devoted to and intended for recreational use, the National Park Service, through its State Park Division, would be very glad to cooperate with the State of Nebraska in the placing of CCC camps to aid in its development.

How Great Britain is balancing her budget, which she has done for the second consecutive year. That nation apparently has reduced its taxes and finds business vastly better than in the preceding year, but there is nothing in the papers about Great Britain's paying its debt to the United States; that seems to be something else again."

One great official here says that about the only changes in Washington today are the amendments to the Constitution, and that the only fight now going on is to endeavor to amend the amendments to the Constitution. KAREL STEFAN

The question between the two schools is whether to bake, or not to bake the bottom crust before putting in the fruit.

You need a hot oven here because the dough in the bottom of the pan must cook before the fruit juice can soak in.

The other school of pie making says - and in a series of tests in the experimental kitchens of the Bureau of Home Economics, this method was successful more often than any other.

Share Program On Friday Morning.

Old Nebraska Normal days were re-lived, Wayne college's 25 years of expansion traced, and Dr. U. S. Conn's quarter-century of leadership and vision fittingly emphasized at special jubilee chapel in the college auditorium Friday morning. Students, former students, faculty members and interested townspeople completely filled the auditorium, the center section being marked off with black and orange ribbons for the alumni-guests.

Prof. John R. Keith directed an orchestra in music preceding the program. Seated on the stage were Dr. and Mrs. Conn, William E. Johnson of Clarkson, president of the Wayne college association, Dr. John G. Neihardt of Branson, Mo., Miss Margaret Schemel, junior chairman, County Superintendent Pearl E. Sewell, graduate of N. N. C., Miss Edith Stocking, Dean H. Hahn and Prof. E. J. Hunter, the last three having been on the faculty in 1910. Miss Alwine Luers and Prof. C. R. Chinn, two of the three members of the class of 1911, first to be graduated after the college became a state institution, and Prof. O. K. Bowen.

Mr. Johnson extended greetings to the alumni and other guests. Miss Sewell described her graduation in 1900, when Prof. and Mrs. J. M. Pile, F. M. Gregg, Miss Elizabeth Kingsbury, Mrs. C. H. Bright and Fred M. Hils were on the faculty, and the 32 graduates included L. C. Nuernberger of Wakefield, Mac Cunningham Hudson and C. H. Bright. Each gave an oration for the exercises in the old opera house. "We thought we had a good school 35 years ago, but it was nothing to what it is today," she stated.

Mr. Nuernberger was introduced and stood up in the audience. Miss Luers spoke for the graduates of 1911, commenting on the smallness of the class, but reminding the audience of a German saying, "All good things are three." "We have not achieved fame, but have tried to fill our small niches," she stated. "All credit goes out to president and his faculty."

The four faculty members who have served during past 25 years were next introduced. Dean Hahn recalled his arrival in Wayne. Supt. John H. Kemp met him at the station with a horse and buggy he had borrowed from Frank Gamble, and took him on about a 15-minute drive "out into the country" before arriving at the hill-top campus. He found the training school scattered through several buildings, with rooms on different floors and during the building period had followed had great difficulty in keeping track of the classes under their frequent changes in meeting places. At first, the teacher training plans were vague. The faculty proceeded without precedent to guide it, working out a philosophy of education through experiment and study. "Always the college has kept abreast with progress in educational methods."

Prof. Hunter was introduced as the "personification of pep," and came forward to tell of the campus in 1908 when he arrived, its present scope, and its future. When he arrived in 1908 to join the faculty, Prof. Pile met him with a teppess back-board and drove him up the hill to behold a, for that time, pretentious outlay of buildings, dominated by a towered structure. "If the next president carries on with the same vision, and sees material needs as clearly as has Dr. Conn, a big growth will be inevitable."

Miss Stocking was introduced, then Prof. Keith led the audience in singing of "Alma Mater." Dr. Neihardt, next speaker, recalled the days when a white-headed young man sat up in the college hall tower forty years ago, and rang the bell bell at regular intervals to herald the opening and closing of classes. And as he sat and studied Virgil, he dreamed of what that little college might develop into some day. Through Dr. Conn's influence, he became interested in Virgil, and through him was introduced to the "eternity of literature." It had been for this interest in Virgil, Dr. Neihardt would never have followed the literary line he held.

"In this early college there was so little to work with," he recalls, "but the earnestness of the faculty made up for lack of equipment. If a special class was needed for one student, it was created. Dr. Conn formed a special class in trigonometry and a special class for Nebraska's future poet-laureate. I feel a personal part in this triumph of Dr. and Mrs. Conn's—they don't want praise and flattery for their years of service to the college they have reached the heights and are able to see around."

Miss Schemel, representing the college association, presented a bound volume of messages from alumni and former students to Dr. Conn. Then Bonnie Brinkman, ward of Miss Luers' and the two small sons of Prof. Chinn, brought in boxes filled in silver which contained the silver gifts from members of the college association to Dr. and Mrs. Conn. They were displayed a pair of candle sticks, pair platter, flower basket, and pair of bird vases.

The audience rose in tribute to Dr. Conn as he stepped forward to respond. "Your friendships and well-wishing mean far more to me than this expression of friendship coming in a material way," he stated. "These gifts will recall the many happy hours on Wayne campus to Mrs. Conn and me. I have had real pleasure in working here. I have been given free hand in planning the development of the campus, and appreciate the real support given by faculty, students, citizens of Wayne, and friends of education throughout the state."

Miss Elsie Ford Piper, assistant dean of women at University of Nebraska, Earl Seippel, assistant principal at Benson high in Omaha, Elwyn and Adlai Johnson, the former of Lakewood, Ohio, and latter of Genoa, Neb., and Miss Elizabeth Bettcher of Indianapolis, Ind., were introduced briefly.

Parade Features
College Jubilee
Saturday Morning

Wayne citizens and collegians united in doing honor to the college's 25 years of progressive development in a colorful parade on Saturday morning, as feature of silver jubilee of M. C. Foy school. Mrs. S. A. Lutgen were in charge, and marshals were Mr. Craven, William E. Johnson of Clarkson, Harry Ellis Fisher, Joe Lutgen and Frederick S. Berry, all wearing orange and black hats.

The colors in charge of Legionnaires, boy scouts and clubs, town band, Mayor Martin Ringer, city and county officers, Dr. and Mrs. U. S. Conn, Dr. and Mrs. John G. Neihardt and the other honor guests headed the line. About 225 young people here for the Methodist young people's institute formed an impressive group.

In the church group were St. Mary's Catholic, First Baptist, Grace Evangelical Lutheran and St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran cars with orange and black decorations. Presbyterian car with eagle and silver streamers. Methodist with a cross atop.

Both civic institutions and business houses were represented in the next group two fire engines, a car representing city library, Merchant and Strahan car, Kiwanians marching in a body wearing colored caps and carrying orange-filled canes, Wayne Herald car decorated with big pastel flowers. Gay theatre car advertising Shirley Temple with little Nancy Perry representing the way actress. Young Men's Business club auto, horse-drawn hearse of 1910, trucking with Beckenhauer's modern hearse, and Wayne hospital car with banner stating that 52 student nurses had attended the college. Coryell Auto Company, Briggs Motor Company, G. & W. garage and Joe Baker had new cars in the parade. City school had a banner.

Green streamers and fluffy pom-poms on open car. Women's club streets were. Better Mothers' club contributed a truck filled with boys and girls carrying bright parasols and flowers.

College floats showed much originality, the most original being a truck labeled "The Help" and crowded full of college workmen, two dogs and their various equipments, and trailing along behind an ancient horse reel and lawn mower. Kappa Mu Epsilon, Y. W. O. and Y. M. C. A. cars bore organization names and streamers. "W" club exhibited various trophies won in athletic events. Science club had a large laboratory flask at front of car. Katz car was topped with a large megaphone. Conell hall called attention to the fact that it was named after Dr. Conn. Newmah float was prettily covered with blue and white lacing, and featured a young woman in blue frock of 1910, conversing with a girl of 1935. This exhibited a victory bell, symbol of college "pep." On the W. A. A. sketches of athletic figures were in colors, a globe and flags of all nations decorated in blue and white, and a great nation like the United States would find it impossible to stay out if war broke out. We could stay out only if we changed our entire plan of government and became a closed-door nation, consuming at home what we produce.

"We're not moving to the left, we're moving to the right. The last election was only the people's approval of relief. But power is not in the hands of the people as yet."

Poet Laureate To Seek The Messiah
Of Plains Redmen

Nebraska's poet laureate, that friend and chronicler of the plains Indians, returned to Wayne last week to re-visit the much-changed campus where he once functioned as hall warden and seeker after knowledge, and to pay honor to Dr. U. S. Conn, his teacher and inspirer. He found time to chat with alumni and visitors, and to read from his "Song of the Messiah" to an interested group on Friday morning.

After leaving Wayne Monday, Dr. and Mrs. Neihardt were to go up in the vicinity of Long Pine, or maybe near Chadron, and here he will pen the remaining 30 lines which are needed to complete his "Song of the Messiah," a work started nine years ago. Thirty lines are now, agreed the poet, but they must be allowed to "grow" — must not be forced. Maybe in two weeks, maybe longer. Nine years it has taken to complete this work but other interests, such as the necessity of earning a living, have interfered. Dr. Neihardt was on staff of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, his time well taken, but for the past five years he has been at Branson working on his great historical cycle.

"I feel as though I had been climbing and have now reached my heights in this 'Song of the Messiah,'" he says. "For nine years it has occupied me — but I could not have written it sooner. I didn't know enough I had to be older."

And then what? Other things to be written, much yet to do. Out through South Pass to Salt Lake City, and then to follow the trail of Jed Smith. Then there's a Pude Indian, Wovoka, who was the Christ to all the Indians of America, and Dr. Neihardt will seek his story. This Indian was the Messiah of Neihardt's work. He was a man of vision, too often represented by a crazy Indian. No one has ever gotten his story, but Dr. Neihardt is confident that he can reach him. Then at Tomastobe, Ariz., there is a white man with a remarkable story and Dr. Neihardt will visit him.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Neihardt was winning recognition as a sculptor, and had studied abroad. The Neihardt bust in Wayne college auditorium is her work. Now she is sculpturing again, and has completed a life-size fountain figure.

There must be a new social integration in keeping with the irrefutable logic of machines.

What lies ahead? Well, his guess, since the NRA has been pronounced unconstitutional and unconstitutional and it was, as that the only thing possible to take its place during the transitional period ahead of us, is some form of business dictatorship which will be established by business, not for it. This undoubtedly would be some form of fascism, although maybe not recognized by that title.

"Revolutionary temper is almost non-existent in this country," Dr. Neihardt believes. "Only a small minority advocates revolt. The great rank and file of American people are not sympathetic." They merely say, "Oh, maybe it'll come out all right," and take it as the take the blizzard, with heads down and humped together.

"This business dictatorship will come quietly — we may not even know when it begins. But it will be necessary to save the situation. In case of war it could come quickly, almost overnight."

What of war? Is it near? Dr. Neihardt believes there is considerable danger in Europe and Asia, and that a great nation like the United States would find it impossible to stay out if war broke out. We could stay out only if we changed our entire plan of government and became a closed-door nation, consuming at home what we produce.

Orange and black banners on electrolators and attractively decorated windows made appropriate parade setting.

They also went to the Arthur Hersted home at Winsted.

"Hay Fever" Provides Amusing Situations

The Goodman Theatre players, product of the Art Institute of Chicago, sent their student audience forth in high humor Thursday evening, chucking over certain quips from Noel Coward's "Hay Fever." The college auditorium was completely filled for this, the first presentation of summer lecture course.

Week-end guests in the Bliss home found the temptations high, strong, over-the-top-the-foglights Bliss a bit wearing. Judith Bliss was an ex-actress who made her home her stage, and every incident in a dramatic situation "Snud," her daughter, and Simob, her son, entered, whole-heartedly into every argument, as well as into various affairs of the heart. David Bliss wrote books good sellers, too, and came forth in between-times to share in the eccentricities of his household. This climax found the Blissos on bed against at the breakfast table while their house-guests tip-toed out, bound for home and quiet.
