

Knee High on Fourth in Many Fields — Palpable Indiscretion — Fruit Wasted — New Community Building — Government's Deficit — Grover Cleveland — Leveling Fortunes — Sting of Ingratitude.

With a backward corn planting season, it looked impossible for the crop to even meet favored fields to reach the expected knee-high by the Fourth. An observation of different Wayne county sections on that day revealed the usual sight. The combination of heat and drought has been a wonderful stimulant to growth and prospects in north Nebraska for both corn and small grain could not be better. Cutting rye has begun and the next week will see most of this crop harvested. Small grain is heavy, and the public will be interested in finding out as soon as threshing gets under way how the crop has yielded per acre.

In Edward Perry's field of growing corn just south of town are stalks that measured five feet the first of the week. Samples in the heavy show window are offered as evidence. Mr. Perry says the best growing corn between here and Chicago is between here and Sioux City, and the best between here and Sioux City is between here and Wakefield.

Guessing the Wrong Way. The doctor who ventures a guess that there is something terribly wrong with a patient, and reveals his suspicions to his patient, is too often mistaken to escape the stigma of grievous indiscretion. The most helpful doctor will not disclose distressing suspicions unless he is certain, and then not unless necessary as a basis for relief. In the case of the student of medicine who is so prominently mentioned in the article, the aid of a kind person, and spreading gloomy forebodings has the very result that wisdom would avoid.

Find No Pickers. A report from an eastern state says ripened berries are allowed to waste on bushes because persons usually employed to gather them refuse to do it this year—refuse to do anything beyond accepting government relief. How many individuals prefer meagre government help to the independence and inspiration of private employment would be hard even to conjecture. In Wayne county we understand anyone who comes down on a berry job offered by a private source in order to remain an object of government paternalism, immediately loses his place at the relief counter.

Shows Conveniences. The new community building is now far enough along toward completion to show its capacity and conveniences. On the main floor and in the tiers of raised seats the building will accommodate a total of 1,000 persons. The plan enables one to see everything from any spot on the raised seats. A modern air conditioning system insures equal advantages of hearing to all parts of the house. For a banquet or a dance the main floor may be cleared in a few minutes by causing the seats to disappear under the stage. Plans to give the new building a proper dedicatory send-off will doubtless be made in ample time ahead of the final touches in the autumn.

Revenues and Deficits. Magazine Time says the government's deficit is $409,000,000 less for the fiscal year 1935 than for 1934 because revenues increased $687,000,000. The New Deal had been unable to spend money as fast as it thought it could. Perhaps it can rearrange its spending program to keep farther ahead of revenues next year. Time mentions that the total income amounted to $3,785,000,000 with a deficit for the year of $3,472,000,000. These yearly mounting deficits will be taken care of later.

Sound If Not Popular. The sum of $10,000 is to be spent to erect a monument to the memory of Grover Cleveland. The monument is to be erected by a citizen representative assembly that tried to make people think the country was going to smash. Cleveland was sound if not popular at the time, and his suggestion that people should support the government—not the people—expressed his idea of responsibility needed to insure an independent race and a strong government.

Starting at the Bottom. A storied tale of the nature of worldly possessions. A young man who had $60,000 became penniless in the market crash of 1929, and he has since been receiving relief benefits of $33 per month to pay his way while learning a trade. Many who were on "easy credit" before the depression started have had to begin at the bottom and often devote effort to training needed to gain a new foothold. Not just persons in medium and poor circumstances were hit by the depression. Many who considered themselves rich were swept away. The fellow unfamiliar with want and untrained in self-education (Continued on Page Four)

HORSE RACES TO IMPROVE GROUND COME NEXT WEEK

Beginning at 5 o'clock on the fair grounds each afternoon of July 16, 17 and 18, some of the Midwest's most fleet-footed animals will be contributed to the local speed program. KEARNEY DEAN HEADS COLLEGE

J. T. Anderson Is Chosen On First Ballot—Name Johnson Instructor.

Nebraska state normal board, at meeting in Lincoln Monday, appointed J. T. Anderson, dean of men at Kearney Teachers College, to presidency of Wayne State Teachers College to succeed Dr. U. S. Conn whose resignation as head of the school becomes effective September 1 when he completes 25 years in the office. J. R. Johnson, Wakefield superintendent, who has been teaching history and political science in Wayne, Dr. G. W. Lewis this summer, was elected to this position.

The board required but one ballot Monday to select Wayne college president. Mr. Anderson received four votes on first secret ballot and this majority elected him to the position. John M. Matzen of Lincoln, university instructor, John A. Jimmerson of Auburn, city superintendent, and Leon Smith of Omaha, assistant city superintendent, each received one vote. Normal board members present for the election were John P. Rohr of Fremont, Edgar Ferneau of Auburn, Fred W. Anderson of Cozad, Fred S. Knapp of Omaha, Edwin Critch of Chadron, Frank Mundy of Red Cloud, and State Supt. Charles W. Taylor of Lincoln. From a list of about 40 applicants the board some weeks ago choose 13 and made selection of the president from this group.

Mr. Anderson, who takes office September 1, is 52 years of age, is married and has two children. He received his A. B. degree from Nebraska Wesleyan University in 1914, his M. A. degree from University of Nebraska in 1916, and his Ph. D. from University of Southern California in 1930. Mr. Anderson served as Harlan county superintendent, Alma and Ashland city superintendent, Holdrege principal and Ragan superintendent. Since 1928 he has been on the Kearney faculty. Educators rate Mr. Anderson as most capable and deserving of the promotion. He is a member of the Baptist church.

Salary of the president has been $4,170, but from this the board deducted $600 a year for use of a house furnished to the president. Mr. Johnson, about 38, who has served as head of Wakefield school for two years, has A. B. and M. A. degrees and work on his Ph. D. at University of Nebraska. He has been principal and superintendent of Denton and Waterloo schools and was dean of Norfolk Junior college for a year. Mr. Johnson has advanced steadily in school work. He is married and has two children. The board fixed Mr. Johnson's salary at $2300 per month for 12 months.

Dr. U. S. Conn of Wayne, was present at the board meeting but left before the elections. He reported that the Wayne Dormitory construction which cost $250,000 on its bonds from the state to build a dormitory, has paid off $37,000 in three years and has cut the debt to $105,000.

Home Wedding Is Of Interest Here

Before an attractive setting of flowers and lighted tapers, Miss Mary Jane Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Morgan of Wayne, became the bride of Mr. Donald C. Simpson of Sioux City, Mo. The ceremony was in simple but effective ceremony at home of the bride's parents on Saturday morning, 9 o'clock. Rev. F. C. Mills of Wayne Methodist church, read the marriage vows in presence of about 20 relatives and friends.

A pair of tall green baskets bearing pink roses, blue delphinium and baby's breath, formed background for the bridal party. Pink tapers burned in seven-branch candelabra placed atop white columns at either side. Another candelabrum gave soft glow from the piano, flanked on either side by bowls of pink sweet peas and blue bachelor's buttons.

Jack Morgan, brother of the bride, lighted the candles, then Mrs. Carrie Welch played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the wedding party took places. Miss Rhea Schmiedeshamp of Walthill, and Willard Witts of Wayne, were attendants.

Wayneites Go Forth To Tell Northeast Nebraska About Approaching Races

Shortly after 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, a caravan of motor cars sped northward out of Wayne city, charged with telling northeast Nebraskans all about the big pari-mutuel racing meet here next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The itinerary was to include Laurel, Coleridge, Hartington (for lunch), Randolph, Pierce, Norfolk, Madison (for dinner), Stanton, Pilger and Wisner. Fred L. Blair, Carl Nuss and B. F. Stanton, were leaders of the pilgrimage, and several other interested Wayneites went along, including Charley Martin. The boosters were bright yellow sun hats advertising the races. Wayne band, numbering about 42 members and Prof. F. C. Reed, turned out in new blue uniforms to live up the affair.

Quite an imposing looking parade, it was sure. Fred Nyberg's loud-speaking system led the line-up, alternating music with announcements of the race meet made by D. S. Wightman. Stops were made at each town on the itinerary, and the band marched through business section. At Madison the Wayne delegation was to be entertained at the races and to parade before the grandstands.

Merchants have marked down prices to put snap into a usually dull season, giving buyers trade advantages nowhere else surpassed, and this has not been your regular trade center, your experience may persuade you to make it so. * * * The Herald is issuing some hundreds of sample copies of this edition, covering further outlying territory, in the hope that recipients will become regular subscribers. FOURTH OF JULY ADDRESS GIVEN

J. E. Brittain, Reaffirms Faith In Endurance Of Our Democracy.

"I am one of those naive individuals who believes in democracy, and who still thinks that under democratic form of government, we will work out our national problems," stated J. E. Brittain, Wayne lawyer, in his patriotic address at Wayne State Teachers college chapel Wednesday morning last week. Dr. U. S. Conn introduced the speaker, following group singing of patriotic songs.

"For many years it has been the habit at this time of year to look at some of the things we are celebrating," said the speaker. In discussing the Declaration of Independence, he pointed out that "some people call the document a radical one, inasmuch as it contains a statement setting forth the divine right of revolution. This is: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.' That whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."

"This theory of divine right of revolution did not originate with Jefferson, but with an Englishman... the theory is that government is a compact with people, but when the purpose of the agreement becomes subservient to the needs, then the people have the right to set it aside, and set up a new agreement. Jefferson writes in the Declaration that this should only be done after utmost care, and after all other ways out. This theory should be acceptable to us, a free people prizing our liberties."

"After the revolutionary war, we tried to govern ourselves under the Articles of Confederation but these were inadequate and the nation which the revolutionists had fought to establish, was in danger of breaking up. Then the Constitution was formed, providing for preservation of property as well as human rights. Ten amendments were added shortly after, the most important in my opinion being the guarantee of liberty of speech and liberty of the press, for there can be no freedom without freedom of intellect to express what the intellect leads one to believe.

"There was great doubt among European and other nations as to the success of this new experiment in democratic government. Many in this country, even, realized that it was an experiment and they would be fortunate if it succeeded. But it did work out. Jefferson's opinion was that a democracy would succeed only if there was an intelligent electorate—only if the voters had access to information and were able to form judgment and to express it at the ballot box. Since Jefferson's time, the ballot has been further extended to include women, and all adults without property requirements. In Jefferson's day, voters balloted for men only, not for issues.

"You who go out to teach are in reality taking public office... you have an important responsibility in furthering democracy and education. Remember—when your curiosity ends, when you are no longer curious and interested in finding out about things, then you are mentally dead.

"What of other governments of the present day? Some say that on the left we have dictatorship of the proletariat—the common people—as in Russia, with all freedom of expression and thought gone, and government policy determined by those at the top. Then on the right, they say, is fascism, as in Italy and Germany, where there is no real legislative body, only an appendage known as parliament which is really powerless. We still have free elections in this country.

"At present we are confronted by a great body of opinion which says 'Democracy has failed, and we can't continue, but will drift into a government of the masses, or a business dictatorship.' I don't subscribe to this. Democratic form of government has worked out in England, the United States, France and the Scandinavian countries, and where it has been tried, has been fairly successful... those countries which have gone into dictatorships have never had any experience with democracy. Democracy is not perfect—it has its shortcomings, but it is very safe."

Economic Planning THE Saturday Evening Post charges that high-brow economic planning really means high-voltage spending. As the Post suggests, the average citizen who is attending to his own business and trying to make ends meet, does not understand the practicability of setting up bureaus in Washington to do the planning for the rest of the country. "If he has had any experience in life," says the Post, "he knows that problems are not solved by the simple procedure of saying, 'Now let us plan.' There must be millions of plans; there always have been and always will be. It may be helpful to emphasize the word, but it has no inherent or automatic beneficence."

Mentioning the "Wisconsin plan" and the different projects to be undertaken, the Post concludes: "Nothing is further from our thought than to criticize these individual expenditures in themselves. They are probably desirable, and, no doubt, part of them are necessary. But to describe the aggregate of these outlays as 'a plan' or as the 'Wisconsin plan' would seem to obscure the fact that all the debts contracted must be paid and that all the taxes to pay the debts must be earned and collected. If a plan is nothing but expenditures, then the word 'plan' is unnecessary, for it adds no meaning. Citizens of Wisconsin will find it no easier to pay their taxes because the spending of hundreds of millions is to be known as a plan. Nor does the fact that the federal government describes these outlays for public works as a plan make it any easier for its own taxpayers to meet their increasing obligations. If these expenditures are sound and wise, they do not become a whit more so by calling them a plan."

Disregards THE Wagner act is called Jug-handled by the Omaha Employers Journal-Stockman. The bill is careful to look out for the employe, but is indifferent to the employer. Under the measure, the employer who furnishes the capital and assumes all responsibility, would, if employing union labor, have to enter into a contract with employes. Unfair practices may be alleged against an employe and he may be brought into court to answer charges. If union laborers wish industry to be able to employ more instead of fewer men, pay more instead of less wages, they should lay off from making burdensome demands. If unions have in mind nationalization of industry—of forcing government ownership of everything—they would seem to be following the effective course.

Speaking of the Wagner bill the Journal-Stockman says: "It is this sort of legislation that makes employers suspicious of all so-called labor laws and regulations. It is the constant fear of this kind of legislation that is holding back industry and business. What is needed is legislation that will encourage employers to hire more help in order to expand their operations. Jug-handled labor laws do not and cannot help industry."

Relief Hurts THE Nebraska Farmer received a letter from a Colorado farmer who said he wanted to hire a good man at $25 a month and board him until after corn husking, explaining that he couldn't hire anyone out there on account of government relief. The Nebraska farmer offers this comment: "Of the measures deserving condemnation in the recovery program, one of the worst is the relief set-up which rewards idleness, competes with industry and agriculture for needed labor and is accompanied by waste and political machinations not in the interests of the taxpayers or good government. "This country will always fulfil its obligation to care for those actually in distress, but it must be done in the most efficient and economical manner possible, with the least injury to the character and resourcefulness of the individual receiving aid. All relief work should be conducted with a view to returning the distressed individuals to the pay rolls of private industry at the earliest possible moment. The methods being followed in many instances are destructive to the moral fiber of the people, and the longer they are continued the more they will break down desire and determination for self-help."

Testing Of Cows Reported For June During June 315 cows were on test in the Madison-Cuming-Wayne County Dairy Herd Improvement association, compared to 290 the previous month. Pastures are good and cows have had an even level of production. All cows averaged 774 pounds of milk and 20.8 pounds of butterfat for June, almost a pound a day. Of the 315 cows on test, four produced 80 pounds or more butterfat, three belonging to Fairness Farms of Winfield and one to W. E. Von Seger of Wayne. Nine produced 50 to 58 pounds, and 49 produced 40 to 48 pounds.

Man Injured In Attempted Robbery George Rätzlaff, 46, Pierce, father of Edwin Rätzlaff, Wayne college athlete, had his throat slashed by two unidentified men who attempted to hold up the Krueger oil station at Hadar, where Rätzlaff is employed, Monday morning about 1 o'clock. Mr. Rätzlaff's condition is serious and he is in a Norfolk hospital.

Miss Minnie Will Quite Ill In City Miss Minnie Will has been very ill the past week at the home of her sister, Mrs. D. D. Tobias, in Sioux City. Mr. and Mrs. William Will and son and daughter of Portland, Ore., who arrived Friday to see her, visited also in Wayne and Wakefield and left for their home Wednesday. Mrs. Ed. Quinn of Alameda, Ga., formerly Miss Rose Will, arrived in Sioux City last Wednesday to be with her sister.

A BIG TASK. The editor's greatest task is to keep wide-eyed individuals or self-seeking persons with or without axes to grind from getting into print with unwise statements. A fellow thinks he has been mistreated and concludes that the easiest way to retaliate is to use the editor and make him the goat. Reasoning with one who thinks he has a grievance, trying to convince him that he may at least be partially at fault, is as difficult as trying to frighten the moon out of its orbit by the baying of a dog. Imaginations seem to be more fertile and active during periods of stress than when conditions are normal. It is a dull day when some one doesn't want to use the press to right something he thinks is wrong. The imagination handles a grievance in such a way that one finally wants to tell the world about it. He usually makes a mountain out of a mole hill, and when he feels around for proof, he finds he can't find any. An unfortunate thing about an inflated imagination is the fact that it turns the wrong way. It exaggerates the bad instead of the good, and seems satisfied only when it can impose itself on others. Also more cock-and-bull stories are created for general circulation than one would believe possible even during this favorable period for them. If a story doesn't take and therefore doesn't circulate freely, it is made over until it does.

To Head School THE selection of J. T. Anderson of Kearney, for the presidency of the Wayne State Teachers college to succeed President U. S. Conn, resigned, gives general satisfaction. Mr. Anderson bears high recommendations as an educator and executive. His age and experience support confidence in his leadership.

Faculty members and the community generally should rally to his support and lend every possible assistance in promoting the growth and welfare of the school. The Wayne Teachers college is Northeast Nebraska's leading educational institution, and it determines the advantage this town holds over the average town of this size. One important aid to a larger and better community, benefiting a wide area centered here, will be a steadily growing college enrollment. Students must have reason for coming here rather than going elsewhere, and united support of competent leadership will largely supply that reason.

Last year fearful people thought the world was going to dry up and blow away, and this year the same people suspect it is going to drown out and wash away. In many other things we are inclined to glue ourselves to the present without looking backward or paying much attention to figuring out the future. When times were good and we were flying high, we thought they would never go into reverse. When we began going down and we had to retrench, we figured with every downward slip that conditions couldn't be worse. Though we are beginning to recover, we are still in doubt that conditions will ever get back to the flush days before the crash. But when we have too little moisture, we naturally need to follow with an excess to make up the shortage. When times swing to one extreme, they are almost certain to rebound to the other extreme, satisfying accumulated and long-neglected demands.

The suicide of Dr. W. E. Sealeck who was dismissed as president of the Omaha Municipal university, was a distinct shock to persons who knew his fine character and outstanding qualities of leadership. As an educator at the University of Nebraska and later head of the Omaha school, he entrenched himself in the hearts of both students and fellow-teachers. Reason for his dismissal has not been sufficiently explained by the regents. We suspect that a highly refined and sensitive nervous organization, evidently possessed by Dr. Sealeck, snapped under the force of an injustice.

Dictator Mussolini appears determined to have a fight, and he has selected Ethiopia as the victim. For Italy to go to distant Africa to rout people out of their long-fixed homes does not offer sound sense to a casual observer. We suspect that Mussolini has convinced himself that he is a considerable pumpkin in the ruling business and that as a worthy successor to the conquering Caesar he ought to do some fighting, and as preliminary exercise he has decided to engage in conflict with the comparatively helpless natives of Ethiopia.

One may pour anathemas on biting cold weather or on piles of impassable snow without any qualms of conscience, but when he roasts under a July sun and he feels like kicking, his conscience reminds him that the crops need the heat, and regard for the future persuades him to suffer heroically and keep still.

Conservative individuals who balk at visionary government schemes, have less confidence in the leadership of the president as he seems inclined to imitate Senator Huey Long's crazy ideas.

As a recovery measure, Roger W. Babson, economist, advises a brief respite from accustomed activities. "A good vacation this year would be the wisest 'buy' you could make," he says.

Wayne's Eldest Lady Rounds Out Century Mrs. J. R. Rogers will be 100 years old July 22 and the occasion will be observed with a family reunion at home of Mrs. J. G. Mines. The latter goes to Omaha Monday to meet Mrs. R. E. Atwater and Jane and Ruth Mary of Des Moines. Mrs. Paul Mines will stay with Mrs. Rogers while Mrs. Mines is gone. Other relatives also plan to come.

Miss Minnie Will Quite Ill In City Miss Minnie Will has been very ill the past week at the home of her sister, Mrs. D. D. Tobias, in Sioux City. Mr. and Mrs. William Will and son and daughter of Portland, Ore., who arrived Friday to see her, visited also in Wayne and Wakefield and left for their home Wednesday. Mrs. Ed. Quinn of Alameda, Ga., formerly Miss Rose Will, arrived in Sioux City last Wednesday to be with her sister.

Corn (Continued from Page One) denial had an especially severe experience in getting down to brass tacks and substituting hard toil for a soft and indulgent life. These fellows probably feel the sharpness of the wealth plan has been going on since the crash in October, 1929.

Spirit of Charity Hurt. This lead paragraph in an editorial from the Kansas City Star shows how charity recipients may turn on givers and take all the joy out of generosity: "Give a man with a hard luck story a quarter and he will thank you; give him 50 cents tomorrow and he'll thank you, but keep it up for a month, then reduce to a quarter or half an hour in giving it to him, and he'll feel and show resentment."

Mortgage Indebtedness. The following shows the Mortgage Indebtedness Record of Wayne County, Nebraska, for the month ending June 30, 1935:
 14 farm mortgages filed, $59,752.50; 14 farm mortgages released, $76,295.58; 3 city mortgages filed, $6,000.00; 1 city mortgage released, $3,000.00; 295 chattel mortgages filed, $150,557.11; 101 chattel mortgages released, $82,901.49.

Birthday on Sunday. F. G. Phillee was 70 years old Sunday and for the first time in some weeks was able to be down stairs for dinner with the T. L. Priests and Franklin Phillee.

CHILDREN. As you have observed children at their play—aroused to glee, then to tears,—you have wondered what chance they will have—what their later ambitions will be—how well they will fit themselves into the social order. They are too young to think seriously of things ahead, but as they develop, they will awaken to conditions and begin to understand responsibilities. What impression is being made on immature minds to prepare them to master future problems? Are they taught to expect too much for nothing? or are they led to think and plan for themselves? One child may be dangerously coddled, another dangerously oppressed. A delicately fashioned and quickly responsive human organization is groping in the direction of maturity—sometimes hindered by too much freedom from obligations, sometimes hindered by too many barriers of restraint. Whether over-indulgence or too little indulgence, the result is about the same—failure to unfold full powers of expression—inability to develop qualities of initiative and leadership. The child, busy at play or gaining the rudiments of knowledge, does not realize what is happening to future capacity by pampering influences on the one hand or by cruel indifference on the other, but elders do know and it is up to them to lay the child's foundation and shape the child's course, so that the spirit of pride and ambition will develop wholesome and useful living. Behold the child on the street or in the nursery! Will the child early learn to think rationally and act wisely, determined to accomplish something worth while regardless of handicaps? or will the child be made too soft or too hard through the faulty judgment or cold indifference of elders? As you behold little children everywhere, can you pick the future leaders, the future mollycoddlers, the future mendicants? Their fate depends largely on the way their parents discharge their responsibility.

He has talked before Butler county institute and with numerous rural teachers on this subject.

The R. W. Leys Find Black Hills Fresh And Well Groomed
 Greenness everywhere and promising crops are reported by Mr. R. W. Leys, who with Mrs. Leys returned home Monday evening after a six-day motor trip into the Black Hills. The Leys went primarily to see the stratosphere gondola, hoping to see the take-off, but weather conditions were not favorable. For many miles around, people are waiting for news of the flight, ready to make hurried trip to Rapid City to see the start. Word will be given out about 11 o'clock one morning, the night will be spent in inflating the balloon, and flight will start next morning. About 8 to 10 hours will be required for the inflation.

Work on the Mt. Rushmore memorial was in full swing, and Washington's face could easily be distinguished. Jefferson's face is being formed, but no work has been done on Lincoln's. So huge is the undertaking that spectators marvel at the imagination and foresight of the sculptor who visualized this memorial. Some Rapid Cityans had opposed the carving on the land-mark rock because they hated to see the great point defaced. Mrs. Leys was told, but are now reconciled as they glimpse the effectiveness of the memorial, and see the number of visitors it will bring.

Highways were excellent through the hills, and everywhere along the route, through the Badlands and the hills, the countryside is green and grain thick and golden. Even the sand-hills and South Dakota cattle are in good shape, although not numerous. The Leys returned home through Custer and Gordon, visiting over-night with Mr. Leys' friends at the latter place.

Absorbing, Eventful Medical Career Rounded Out By Dr. E. S. Blair, Wayne

Almost a half century has elapsed since a young man took leave of his good friends at the University of Michigan medical college, packed up his diploma and assembled medical equipment, and prepared to set up practice in the then rapidly developing midwestern country. For about 25 years of active, strenuous practice, and now Dr. E. S. Blair of Wayne can look back on a most useful and satisfying career. During his early years as general physician in growing prairie towns, he traveled thousands of miles to visit the sick and the dying, sometimes even on horseback or on foot when roads became impassable. It was only during the latter part of his career that the auto came with its new ease in travel.

When Dr. Blair decided upon medicine as his future profession, his father was so sure that he had the very best of training. Born at Forreston, Ill., the young man had attended Belvidere high school, then took six years of study of Allegheny college in Pennsylvania, being graduated in 1884. Then followed four years at the University of Michigan medical college at Ann Arbor.

Medicine had progressed far, but greater discoveries were on the way. Cocaine was just coming into use as a local anesthetic. Well does Dr. Blair remember the first time it was used by the celebrated surgeon. He used it to remove a cataract from eye of an elderly lady, and great interest was shown in the experiment. The surgeon explained how it was to be used to relieve pain in place of a general anesthetic. Great was the aged lady's joy when the surgeon completed his work and she exclaimed, "Oh, I can see!"

Just about this time a new cure for tuberculosis had been discovered, and many expected great things of it. The discoverer advocated injection of sulphurated hydrogen gas. Like many other tubercular theories, this was disproved.

Appendicitis was not yet recognized in the 80's. Instead, it was called "inflammation of the bowels," and was treated medically, not surgically. Dr. Blair recalls an incident during his senior year at Ann Arbor, when the superintendent of an insane asylum near Detroit sent for a student to take charge of the institution while he was on vacation, and the young Dr. Blair-to-be was assigned. While on this duty, he was called out into the country to answer a call and find a man ill with what is now diagnosed as appendicitis. He treated him, and strangely enough, says the doctor, the man got well. It was several years later that appendicitis was so named, and surgery advocated.

In 1887 the young physician had gone from Ann Arbor to Sioux City and there hung out his shingle, practicing for three years. While there the first epidemic of influenza broke out. It had spread from Asia and was known as the "grippe," probably because it got such a severe grip on one. Grippe was wide-spread in that year, and it was known as a pan-demioic disease because it was not respecter of national borders, but well-nigh spread over the entire world. Thousands of persons died. The medical men of Sioux City were on duty night and day in effort to best the disease. From then on, each winter brought a certain number of gripe cases.

In the Iowa city he was associated with many doctors who afterwards became most prominent in that locality—Dr. Knott, Dr. Jepson and Dr. Wheeler, for instance. Dr. Wheeler was president of the Sioux City medical college, now abandoned, but which contributed several excellent doctors to this Northeast Nebraska. Just before leaving Sioux City, Dr. Blair was made city physician.

The Sioux City of 1935 presents marked changes over the little river town he knew in 1887-90. He traveled usually in horse and buggy, the horse cars were in operation, and cable cars came soon, as did the elevated line which was built during boom period. This elevated, you long-time natives will recall, was a very pretentious and forward step for a midwestern town to make. The line ran from down-town section across the tracks to the stock yards, and was a great source of pride to the citizens of the gangling prairie town. When Dr. Blair lived there the Haystack Grand Opera house, the Fourth street burned down, and Haddock, noted temperance slayer, was killed by whiskey leaders. It was a wide-open, wild and woolly town, to be sure, and dangerous to travel about at night alone.

During the three years of Dr. Blair's residence, big hills in north Sioux City were cut down to make way for a residence section. The open prairie and hills gave way to relatively flat city blocks. The packing houses were built after Dr. Blair's arrival. This was a period of emigration and settlers were pouring into Sioux City, bound for the farming country of Nebraska and beyond. Dr. Blair's father could have bought lots right in the heart of the city for practically his own price—lots that are now worth $25,000. He had a building on college campus was converted into a hospital and scores of students cared for there. Dr. Blair calls this year, when he was 61 years old, the most strenuous and active in his entire career.

Looking back over the changes in his profession during the 48 years which have elapsed since he left medical college, the doctor sees wonderful spread of knowledge. . . great progress in cure and knowledge of diseases. Summer diseases of infants, for instance. . . medical men used to expect numerous cases each summer but improved sanitation has almost eliminated the disease. And take typhoid, 20 or 30 years ago cases were numerous in the fall. Dr. Blair recalls one family in Wayne in which five or six cases developed at one time. . . two more members were taken ill in the same house a few years later. Now preventative serums and bacterins have reduced this and other diseases.

Were Dr. Blair to write the story of his career and to entitle it "Forty-eight Years of Doctoring," it would no doubt be an intensely human and inspiring story of quiet service, endurance of hardships, and devotion to the principles of his profession, as exemplified in the Hippocratic oath and revered by physicians of all ages.

A note from Coffee Flavor Headquarters

Dear Mrs. Blakemore:
Thank you for praising my flavor to Mrs. Jordan. She had me in for dinner last night. Everyone said my flavor was the most delicious they had tasted in years. Mrs. Jordan said, "I've seen Butter-Nut ads for years, but thought their claim of extra fine flavor was just big talk. Now I'm sorry I didn't try it years ago." I wish some other woman I know of could have heard that!

Good Crowd Here For The Fourth

Full Program Greet The Visitors Who Come From Miles Away.

Winside sponsors of the community Fourth of July celebration expressed themselves as well pleased with the turn-out, and with the cooperation shown by the taking part in events, and in the parade. The attendance was good all day, with almost every place crowded at night.

Winside junior band, directed by Theodore Albrecht, played in evening concert, and Wayne Municipal band, under Prof. F. E. Bergerson, played frequently during afternoon and evening, and was enthusiastically received. Carl, even the water fight from Hoskins and girls' kiltball team to a rural men's team in later afternoon.

About 25 entered the tug-of-war and float parade. Charles Spinken placed first in the tug-of-war competition. The winners, Ed. Granquist, Frank Gray and Alfred Koplin, were seen.

Find Much Beauty In Nebraska Land During Motor Trip

Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Fowler, their daughter, Miss Helen Fowler of Washington, D. C., and another daughter, Mrs. Harold Soybel and two children of Norfolk, arrived home Tuesday last week after an interesting motor trip westward. Miss Fowler left for the capital city on Friday, returning by bus. Her parents took her as far as Sioux City.

The party drove to Kearney to attend the passion play given back in the hills. Very effective it was, and very convincing. They saw Christ mounted on his donkey and surrounded by his disciples, come from far over the hills toward Jerusalem. Men and women in bright Oriental costumes, went forth to meet them, carrying palm branches and shouting "Hosanna!" The temple was reproduced about the money-changers out of the temple, and the people came pushing little lambs. The "last supper" was faithfully reproduced, with Christ and his disciples seated to reproduce the famous painting.

The audience was seated about on the grass, many making use of auto cushions, and most of the spectators wrapped up in blankets. An excellent loud speaker system was used and lighting was effective. A heavy rain began to fall as the play was discontinued, the ascension and earthquake scene being omitted.

The Fowler party called on friends at Ogallala, then went on to Scottsbluff to visit another daughter, Mrs. J. H. Mead, and family. Here they all respected Stagecoach hill which has been made into a state park, and the C. C. camp near the bluffs where adobe buildings were being erected. At Torrington, Wyo., a fourth daughter, Mrs. W. H. Dickinson, was visited. The route back was through Crawford and beautiful Smiley canyon, then to Whitney where Mrs. Fowler's 84-year-old uncle is living. At Chadron the group inspected state park with its bluffs and pine trees.

Returning to Norfolk on a Saturday evening, Rev. and Mrs. Fowler and Miss Helen remained until Monday in the Seybold home, then went to Milford to visit Rev. W. A. Fowler and family, arriving home on Tuesday following.

Miss Laura E. Lyons Writes From West
 Miss Laura E. Lyons of Long Beach, Calif., writes Herald readers July 1 as follows:
 "Dr. Bernard Cullen, former Winside youth, is head physician in St. Mary's hospital here. He has a good private practice also. He and Mrs. Cullen are proud parents of a son.
 "Mrs. Bert Brown of Wilmington, visited here yesterday. She had come to hear Bishop Ralph Angelo, of St. Paul area, speak at Methodist conference in First church.
 "Bishop Magee, and Dr. Richard Bishop, of Minneapolis, have spoken to record-breaking congregations. Two services are necessary each Sunday morning to accommodate crowds at Dr. Raines' regular services. My 80-year-old patient, for whom I have cared for a year and a half, is confined to her bed now so I was unable to attend much of the conference.
 "I met a second cousin of Abraham Lincoln who resembles him so closely that the first time one meets him on the street he is startled by the close likeness. He dresses similar to Lincoln's period and wears a high silk hat which Abraham Lincoln gave him. It was a pleasure for me to interview him and hear about his illustrious relative.
 "Part of the Pacific fleet is back in this harbor after maneuvers off Hawaii. One surely misses the gobs' as well as the big beats off shore."

Farm Loan Groups To Sponsor Picnic
 Fifteen National Farm Loan associations of northeast Nebraska will be hosts to farm families of 12 counties at a picnic to be held Sunday, July 14, at West Point, according to plans announced today. All farmers of Cuming, Dodge, Washington, Colfax, Platt, Stanton, Madison, Pierce, Wayne, Thurston, Dakota, Dixon and Cedar counties are invited to be on hand and take part in the all day program.
 Featuring the events will be a basket dinner picnic at noon, followed by talks given by officials of the Federal Land bank and the Farm Credit administration of Omaha. Races and stunts are being arranged for the youngsters. There will be a $5 cash prize for the largest family present, too.

 D. F. Hogan, president of the Omaha land bank, and Gerald E. Lyons, general counsel of the Omaha FCA, have accepted invitations to speak at the gathering. Judge Fred A. Wright, assistant general counsel of the FCA, sometimes called "the Will Rogers of Nebraska," will be master of ceremonies.
 The 16 associations are putting on the picnic to help the Dodge National Farm Loan association celebrate its growth to a 10 million dollar institution. With 1,300 loans and 10 million dollars on its books, the Dodge association is the largest NFILA in the United States. Those associations are the local units of the Federal Land bank system.
 Anton Tressnak, secretary-treasurer of the Dodge association, is chairman of the picnic program committee, of which A. C. Burke of Barcroft and Charles Beckenhamer of West Point also are members.
 Other NFILA secretary-treasurers assisting in arranging the program are A. A. Koepnick of Bancroft, A. L. Cull of Oakland, Lloyd Lawrence of Tekamah, C. R. Chas. Hanson of Plainview, R. N. Linksviler of Winnebago, Henry Thielen of Herman, C. H. Childers of Pierce, Peter Kautz of Homer, E. Telder of Wakefield, P. H. Lamenz of Wakefield, James J. Lynch of Thurston, Jerry A. Dwyer of Norfolk, M. S. Zook of Afton and A. L. Lammers of Hartington.
 This picnic is the first of its kind ever staged in Nebraska, the announcement said, and is expected to attract a great throng of farm folk.

Attend Race Meets.
 J. J. Ahern, Carl Nuss and Mrs. Minnie Strickland attended the pari-mutuel race meet at Hartington on Friday. Miss Marian Becker who had been visiting there, returned home with the group.

Marches Arrive Home From Trip To California

Comparing the process of making motion pictures with the finished product and also contrasting motion picture stars in real life with their film appearances proved most interesting to Mr. and Mrs. P. L. March who arrived home July 3 after a three-week trip to California.
 The Marches visited three picture studios. Persons visiting the studios during making of talkies must be very quiet and one studio prohibits visiting of children. The films and talking records are made at the same time but after one of the other must be made to gain perfection. In one scene which Mr. and Mrs. March watched, the scene recorded perfectly but the picture did not and the actor repeated the scene three times. A photograph reproduced the music and the actor went through the motions of singing but did not sing as it was the picture only that was to be perfected.

The filming is a tedious process for each scene must be repeated so often to satisfy. Each of the principal stars has a "double" who stands in the scene during the three preliminary takes. The actual filming requires very little time in comparison to the making ready. When everything is ready for the filming the star replaces his "double" during making of the picture.
 One scene the Marches watched included a group of about 150 people at small tables in a garden. Just before the filming all were warned to be very quiet and not to take a step or say a word while they were being filmed. Another of the scenes was filming "Lara Dadd in a beauty parlor." The star stepped in to be "snapped" after many preliminaries in which her "double" stood for her. They learned that no one is allowed to watch until the scene is ready for making a film. The Marches had hoped to see Shirley Temple but she was not making a picture at present. Most of the important films are made in winter months so that activity at the studios is light in summer months. They saw Helen Twelvetrees and James Dunn making a film, and scenes with Jack Oakie were in the making at Catalina island when they saw him there. Genevieve Tobin was making a musical scene of the scene than on. Some stars are flattered by the pictures and others appear better in real life, the visitors found.

Mr. and Mrs. March heard Al Jolson in a radio broadcast and they liked the way he entered wholeheartedly into his singing. His personality and pop, as well as his voice, are appealing. Alice Fay and James Cagney were on the same broadcast. Ben Bernie and Irwin Cobb were broadcasting from Catalina island when the Marches saw them. Joe E. Brown drove up to one of the studios when the Wayne folks were there, and they also saw Warner Baxter and John Boles at the same place. Mary Brian, Patricia Ellis and William Haines were attending a Los Angeles night club when the Marches were there. Ralph Bellamy, Chester Morris and John Mack Brown were in Hollywood ball of fame at the fair in San Diego, showing how motion pictures are made.
 The San Diego exposition has many attractive buildings and displays, the visitors found. Mr. and Mrs. March spent three days there and happened to meet the G. H. Liggotts of Wayne, on the grounds the first day. The Ford building is outstanding, the entire process of car making being shown. Lighting is effective at the grounds, a singing fountain with colored lights being especially attractive.
 After three days at the fair, Mr. and Mrs. March went to Long Beach to visit the latter's uncle and aunt. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schoenmann. They spent a day at Catalina island and a week at Los Angeles, going to places of interest there. They went to Pasadena rose bowl and several Chinese sunken gardens. They visited Gay's lion farm, the largest in the world. In Los Angeles they visited the Homer Thompsons. They stopped in Watsonville to see a cousin of Mrs. March and visited four days with Mr. and Mrs. Curtis East at Berkeley.
 Mr. and Mrs. March went west the southern route, through Arizona and New Mexico, this being about 1,800 miles. They saw many Mexican villages and found the desert region very hot. The return from northern California was about 1,600 miles. They crossed the snow-capped Sierras. Roads all the way were good. The trip was most educational and pleasant, but they were glad to arrive home.
 Mr. and Mrs. March left Jack at Vermilion and Marjanne at Hartington with their grandparents and the Marches went for the children on the Fourth.

 From Ponca Journal for July 19, 1883: During the Sunday storm a house in Wakefield was blown down and two men badly injured. . . The store of W. C. Paul of Emerson was damaged by fire. . . Railroad is being extended from Wakefield. . . Many are planning to buy Omaha reservation lands as soon as they are placed on the market.

Demond Is Principal Factor.
 Omaha Journal Stockman: Market happenings of recent months, and especially of the last few weeks, are worthy of careful study, for they are teaching some economic lessons which the brain-trusts either have forgotten or never learned.
 A splendid example was furnished by June market conditions. In all branches of the trade the story was the same, lightest receipts in years failing to prevent prices from declining because of the lack of demand.
 Everyone knows that the law of supply and demand governs market fluctuations. But what many people fail to realize is that neither of these factors is constant, and furthermore, that of the two, demand is by far the more important. Supplies that might be readily absorbed at one price level prove unobtainable when the scale of value is raised, because higher prices always tend to restrict consumption of any commodity unless general business conditions and the wages and salaries of the consuming public show a corresponding improvement.

 At this time last year, for instance, drought and a threatened lack of feed were forcing the liquidation of so much live stock that slaughtering was at record levels. Yet by keeping prices at moderate levels, the unperceived supply of meat then being produced was kept moving in spite of a generally depressed industrial situation.
 Since then, sharp price advances have taken place. At first the rise in values merely held consumption down to the level of reduced supplies, but more recently demand was shrunk until it has become difficult to move the limited marketings and prices have had to settle back again.

 In the last analysis, therefore, it has been demand, and not supply, that exercised the final control on prices. This has been the case since markets began. But the fact has either been overlooked or greatly minimized by the proponents of controlled production as a panacea for all of agriculture's ills.
