FIFTY-FIFTH YEAR

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 22, 1935.

NUMBER TWENTY

RAINS BRIGHTEN CROP PROSPECTS

Wayne County Is Favored With Bountiful Showers Twice In Week.

Crop prospects, already promising in Wayne county this season, were given even brighter outlook by Saturday and Monday rains. In this county, both days brought moisture that will put the finishing touches on corn which is filling out, and will give new life to pastures and gardens. Many fields of corn measure 10 to 12 feet in height and they are bearing large ears of good quality corn. Wind and hail accompanied the rain Saturday in Wakefield vicinity and did some damage to crops.

Rain gauge at the State National Bank of Wayne registers 3.13 inches of moisture for August, this being more than the usual amount for the month. Monday's rainfall recorded 1.3 inches and Saturday's 1.21 inches. August rains since August 2 and August 5. The total for the year to date is 16.25 inches, nearly as much as 1934 total of 17.78 and more than 1933 record of 15.79. With four months yet to be added, 1935 has prospect for one of normal precipitation.

Sharp lightning played about in Monday evening's storm and caused some hindrance to telephone service. A horse was killed by a bolt of lightning at the Carl Nelson place west of Wayne. No other losses are reported from the electrical fireworks. Rainfall at Wayne was heavy about 8 in the evening and was followed by gentle drizzle part of the night.

Saturday's rainfall at Wayne consisted of a shower in early morning and another in the evening. Heavy at Wakefield. Wakefield's record of rainfall for this month is nearly double that in Wayne, the total being more than 6 inches which is unusual for August, according to C. W. Long. A steady rain fell Monday evening and was general in Wakefield vicinity, registering 1.75 inches in Wakefield. The fall was heavier about half way between Wakefield and Wayne where it is estimated 2.5 inches fell. The amount was lighter south and east of Wakefield. Lightning was sharp but no damage is reported.

Wakefield's rainfall registered .69 of an inch Saturday morning and 1.47 inches Saturday evening. Hail visited an area west of Wakefield Saturday evening, beginning about two miles west and two south of Wakefield and extending north for seven miles. The area is about four miles wide. The storm came from the southeast and moved northwest, striking some farms in the area and missing others. Most of the damage is light. Leonard Dersch, Nep Swagerty, Arthur Munson, Melvin Larsen and Lee Mason are among those whose places were struck. Wind was a brisk one in Minton's house. Insurance was carried on some of the places. Wind was strong Saturday evening in Wakefield and northeast of that city. Many limbs were blown from trees and some farm buildings were moved by the wind. Hay and straw stacks were blown over northeast of Wakefield.

Report at Winside. Rain fell steadily and without damage at Winside Monday evening, registering 1.5 inches in Winside, according to Walter Gaebler. The amount was less to the southeast, about 1 inch being recorded there, and heavier to the north where the precipitation was as heavy as 2.5 inches. The rain was general in the vicinity and was of great benefit to crops.

Some hail struck the area about five miles south and two east of Winside Saturday evening but damage was light. Only a trace of moisture fell in Winside Saturday, but about 5 inch fell to southeast where hail was reported. Monday's rain was especially welcome to territory southwest of Winside where moisture had been lighter this season. Hoskins and Norfolk vicinities, missing in several of the season's showers, received Monday's beneficial rain.

Showers at Carroll. Clouds bringing Monday's rain to Wayne county traveled to Carroll and returned without giving territory west of there much moisture. V. G. Williams reports .5 of an inch in Carroll and good rains to south and east. The rain extended about one and a half miles northwest of Carroll. Four miles west no rain fell, and a Laurel man coming to Carroll Monday evening found a dry road until he was two miles north of Carroll. Herlan Frese, three miles south of Carroll reports about 2 inches of moisture, and John Jenkins who lives three miles west of the Frese place states that rain fell at his place steadily for three hours but that two miles north of his farm the moisture stopped. No damage is reported from the sharp electrical display on from Wind. Mr. Williams and H. C. Bartels both.

IMPROVED TIMES FELT BY PERSONS TRAVELING ABOUT

PERSONS who have been visiting large centers lately report improved travel conditions. More factories in operation indicate enlarged demand and a generally more favorable state of business. Economist Babson says foreign trade which has increased slightly, determines considerable measure the extent of business activity in this country. He suggests that building up trade with outside countries is more important to industry and agriculture than all the New Deal experiments put together. Locally, the small grain harvest and corn crop prospect lend much encouragement, and should enable people to buy more of the things they need. In the coming autumn this area ought to swing largely in the direction of plenty and prosperity.

CHANGE IS MADE WITH RAILROAD

City Council Will Charge Company For Water Used At Wayne Yard.

At a special meeting of the city council held Tuesday in the council room at the city hall, a resolution was adopted whereby the city will now charge the railroad company for the use of water. A contract made in 1912 between the city and the railroad company agreed that the city use the rail company's water in exchange for the company's use of city water. The contract has expired and since the city no longer has occasion to use the railway property, the council has cancelled all obligations.

The council has made application for 30 percent PWA grant for furnishing the new city auditorium which will be completed within about six weeks. The furnishings will cost about $12,850. No word has been received from officials as to whether the grant will be approved.

The board also heard the application of Carl Nicholas for license to sell beer. The application was granted by the council members.

New Engine Is Being Installed

Peak Load Easily Cared For By 750-Horse-Power De La Vergne.

The new De La Vergne, 750-horse-power engine which arrived here from the Philadelphia factory about 10 days ago, is being installed at the city light plant. About 30 days will be required to complete work on setting up this mammoth piece of machinery, says S. A. Hemple, superintendent of the Wayne plant.

The new engine has a 500-kilowatt generator and will easily take care of the peak load at any time. The De La Vergne will bring the Wayne plant on a par with the finest in the state. The two engines, 400 and 600-kilowatt, on which the plant has depended for the past few years, were found to be insufficient to carry the increasing load, and also in case of emergency. The addition of the new engine will bring the total of power engines to 2,100 horse power. Engines will be alternated, running two weeks at a time, the idle ones to be overhauled.

The peak load is always reached in the winter, varying as much as 100 kilowatts more than the high load of the summer. Mr. Hemple states that with the increase in the use of electrical appliances, each year shows greater amount of electricity consumed. The peak load of winter is due to the increase in use of lights as electrical appliances are used just as much in winter as in summer.

Six men are at work putting together the intricate parts of the big engine, under the direction of J. Bell of Philadelphia, who is sent here from the factory to direct the installation. The bed plate and fly wheel were in the first of the week, and work is progressing satisfactorily.

Mr. Hemple states that the Wayne rates are the second lowest in the state over 100 kilowatts.

CITY AND RURAL SCHOOLS SOON TO RESUME ACTIVITY

SUMMER vacation for city and rural school children will soon be over and they will then be called back to the school routine. A number of rural schools will resume next week, and others will follow until by the middle of September all institutions of learning, large and small, will be running full blast. Many children will have their first experience in school, curling in the kindergarten, some fearfully, others confidently. Students will usually step up a grade and view at closer range the goal of graduation. Recent high school graduates will as a rule enter college. The kindergarten starts development that in time —seemingly long to youth, but brief to oldsters—reaches the end of the college and opens the door to real practice and real self-dependence.

Mission Minister To China Speaks

District Program Held In Wakefield Church Well Attended.

The convention of the Wakefield district and the Women's Missionary society of the district held its opening services at the Salem Lutheran church, Wakefield, Tuesday evening. An address by Rev. Daniel Friderg, now on his way to China, was the feature. Rev. Friderg is a son of the late Dr. Friderg, medical missionary to China. He stated that during the last year of his life his father treated 31,000 patients.

"World Conditions In Mission Work" was Rev. Friderg's topic. He referred to the conversions of St. Paul and his call to be a missionary. "Paul packed no boxes of books, rode neither train nor steamship, had no synod of over 200,000 back of him, and received no salary," said Rev. Friderg in comparing Paul's condition with his. Christians have a wonderful organization, synod, conference, district, local congregations. "The Mohammedans and Buddhist lack that."

"Former mission work flourished during the last century and not until then. Now it has retarded especially among the groups that are doubting the Bible as God's word. Folks are not so ready to sacrifice for only educational endeavors if stress on the deliverance of the conscience is lacking. "Deliverance of conscience" results in new light. Schools and more efficient agriculture, etc., follow. We are losing when the order is reversed.

A young ladies' chorus sang two numbers and Mrs. Philemon Smith, Wauson, sang a solo. Meetings continued through Wednesday at the Wakefield church of which Rev. A. L. Peterson is pastor. Attendance was reported good.

Next Year's Election

The question of the right man for republicans to pick to run for the presidency is now being discussed. The national campaign is a year ahead, but with communists and fascists actively at work in this country, and with the administration oscillating uncertainly between the right and left, it is up to Americans desirous of preserving traditional prerogatives to act unitedly in the direction of holding democracy at its old-time moorings.

In a recent nation-wide poll of county chairmen and of other leading republicans, 1565 replies received showed Senator Borah the leading choice for the party's next presidential nominee. Others mentioned in results ranked in this order: Colonel Frank Knox, Governor Landon, Senator Vandenberg, Frank O. Lowden, Herbert Hoover, Theodore Roosevelt, Ogden Mills, Representative Fish, Senator Dickinson and Representative Wadsworth.

If we could be as sensible and practical in hiring executives to handle public affairs as we are in employing help to manage private business we would probably hire Hoover if we could, and then cooperate with him in the gigantic task of solving increased public problems. In employing a man to do a certain job we would consider his understanding of the work and his capacity to handle it. We would not attach importance to his ability to laugh in three of four different languages or to his facility in tossing his head back triumphantly in issuing pronouncements in conflict with party pledges. But, if we wanted a man who could capture the imagination, who was long on pretense and short on practice, we would not hire Hoover.

But with threats to our constitution and with wild expenditures of taxpayers' money, and faced by the problem of preserving traditional rights, the fanfare of cheap politics may reasonably be expected to yield to the sane judgment of naming and electing an executive leader who, if not Hoover, possesses the caliber of Hoover.

Travel Cures

The Omaha Journal-Stockman points out that travel cures the mid-western farmer of the feeling that he suffers more obstacles than settlers in other parts of the country. The Journal-Stockman quotes this from Wallace's Farm:

"A trip to the Pacific coast is good medicine for anybody who is a little discontented with the corn belt and its various farming puzzles. Going through the great plains and the desert, the country spreads out flat and then suddenly turns on end. Cactus, mesquite and yellow sand take the place of blue grass and black soil. Up on higher land, where there is more rainfall, cattle pasture during the summer, but the brain traveler sees mostly the barren and lower lands.

"Here the struggle for water never ends. In the corn belt, we are indignant with the elements for giving us too much rain or too little. In the desert country, the farmer knows water will never be given him. He has to dig for it, blast for it, decoy it out of mountain streams down long ditches into his fields. The cotton-woods by the ranch house, as well as the fields alongside the irrigation ditch, are triumphs over sand and sun.

Looking the country over, the visitor from the corn belt begins to think his floods and droughts are minor troubles. With us, nature has her moods, but on the whole she is kindly. Out in the desert, nature seems a baldheaded eagle sitting on a bare rock on the top of the range, ready to pounce and kill."

A psychologist explains that people's moods are due to no particular cause, but to the rise and fall of emotional energy un-influenced by anything that may happen in the outside world. A fellow changes from low to high and from high to low spirits without any reason. The psychologist says, however, that up and down cycles may be predicted like the weather, and probably not less accurately, with persons governing their activities accordingly. He concludes: "The cause of this ebb and flow of our energy science cannot explain; for the present it must be enough that there has been revealed the monumental fact of their place and operation in all our lives and that we can discover them for ourselves and so turn them to advantage."

Jeffersonian democrats have been foremost in criticizing the bureaucratic government in Washington, but now comes a New Deal democrat, Representative Dies of Texas, who raises his voice in warning, saying this among other things: "With a spirit of helpfulness toward the president I think that congress, beginning at the next session, must curtail all unnecessary expenditures, and abolish many of the numerous bureaus, boards and commissions that have grown up like mushrooms. A bureaucratic government is as destructive to freedom as a financial oligarchy or a dictatorship."

Prediction by General Hugh S. Johnson and Donald Richberg, bellwethers of the NRA, that chaos would befall industry following the supreme court's paralyzing decision has been proved unwarranted by recently reported business improvement and by ample basis for still greater gains during the fall.

Coincident with preparations to attack Ethiopia, Italy is directing threats at Great Britain, and is talking of another world war. The fact that European countries have failed to pay the United States the money borrowed during the last war may serve advantage in keeping us out of the next one.

Nerves are necessary means of information. Without them one might have his skin perforated or even be killed without knowing what happened until he looked on later from above. But some have more sensitive nerves than others, and sensitive nerves cause a good deal of trouble.

The more than an inch of rain that fell Monday night would seem to give assurance of properly matured corn. Most of the state shared in some degree in the fall of moisture, and corn not too badly damaged will be greatly benefited.

Congress is getting ready to adjourn, and we think the hurry to lift barriers before adjournment against American complicity in any foreign war is the most important relief measure proposed.

If the king of Ethiopia is going to head his forces in meeting the Italian invasion we would suggest that for comfort and convenience he ought to shave off his whiskers.

Wayne's promising future may be greatly strengthened by united effort.

The Vanishing Hog (Nebraska Farmer)

Hogs reached $12 in Chicago one day last week—the highest price in 6 years. Adding the processing tax of $2.25 the price was actually $14.25. The price increase is due to an alarming decrease in hog population. Nebraska's supply is off far more than one-half.

Recent market receipts of hogs, with comparisons for previous years, tell the story of the vanishing hog. On the day that hogs reached the $12-mark last week, receipts at Omaha were only 2,316 head, the lowest in many years, if not in the history of that market. Chicago receipts are the smallest in a half century. For the five days ending Friday of last week, hog receipts on the Omaha market were 15,976 head compared with 47,804 for the same period last year. To August 9 this year hog receipts at Omaha were 758,062 head, compared with 1,882,209 head in the corresponding period last year.

At the seven leading livestock markets of the country, hog receipts for the first seven months of 1935 were 5,905,478 head compared with 11,666,945 in the corresponding period of 1934, and peak receipts in the past 11 years of 19,398,971 head in 1924. Average 7 months receipts for the past 11 years at the principal markets are 14,370,150 head—nearly three times this year's shipments for the same period.

A glimpse at the government's estimate of hog numbers on January 1, 1935, and of the 1935 spring pig crop further confirms the alarming decline in hog production. On that date the hog population of the nation was 37 million head compared with 57 million on January 1, 1934—a decrease of 35 percent. In Nebraska on January 1 were 2,169,000 hogs compared with 4,715,000 on January 1, 1934, and 4,883,000, the 5-year average on that date.

Moreover, the spring pig crop estimate, instead of forecasting an upward trend in hog production, actually reveals a substantial decline from the previous year. Official estimate of the 1935 spring pig crop for Nebraska is 42 percent less than in 1934, but only 20 percent less for the nation.

Any program of planned economy which results in such alarming reductions in food production is doomed to certain failure no matter how great the temporary benefits may be.

Two internationally known men, Will Rogers, humorist and philosopher, and Wiley Post, daring flier, went to their death in an airplane crash in Alaska Thursday night. Rogers' kindly wit made people feel better. No one was so frank that he did not see the silver lining. No situation was so perplexed that he did not see a way out. He took the imagination away from brooding—away from contemplation of blue devils—lifting it up to behold the rainbow. He punctured follies in a fashion to give least offense. He was a valuable contribution to society—especially so when people are in a feverishly uncertain state of mind—when they most need the tonic of good humor to drive away the shadows. He had not yet far beyond his position of Indian blood. He once said his ancestors did not come over in the Mayflower, but that they met the Mayflower when it arrived. In the death of both Rogers and Post the world is made a heavy loser.

Rocky Mountain Lake Resort Is Place Of Beauty

Red Feather Lake in the Rocky mountains in northern Colorado is an interesting and restful place for vacationing, according to Dr. and Mrs. G. J. Hess who arrived home Wednesday morning after spending two weeks at the resort. The Hesses of Lincoln, were also at the lake and will return home the last of this week.

The lake is in Medicine Bow range of the Rockies, near Roosevelt national forest, named for the president. The altitude is 10,000 feet, about 800 feet above Estes park. A number of vacationists from Iowa, Nebraska, Arizona, Kansas and Oklahoma were at the lake and like the resort especially because it is not commercialized. It affords beauty and quiet and temperature that always calls for blankets at night.

Colorado state fish hatchery is located about two miles from the lake, and one of the state's latest silver fox farms is also a short distance away. A new C. C. camp has been established near the lake. About 200 young men are busy making new roads over passes and straightening and shortening highways already there. A government survey camp is also working in that region. A large boy scout camp, called Camp Wayne, is located about three miles from Red Feather lake and groups from different towns were at the camp during the entire season.

A trip of interest taken by Dr. and Mrs. Hess was to Trails End resort about 35 miles from Red Feather lake and located in the Rockies. The resort is owned by a Mr. Miller, friend of the late Will Rogers. Mr. Miller and Mr. Rogers used to appear on the stage together, the former in gunmanship and the latter in roping exhibitions. Rogers, Fred and Dorothy Stone often visited Mr. Miller at the Trails End.

Colorado mountains are beautiful this season, the Hesses report. Plenty of rain has made an abundance of wild flowers.

The Hesses also spent a few days while away in Denver where they visited relatives. The Ringlads had left for Montana before they arrived so they failed to see them.

SUSPICION.

No one who is busy wants to train his mind to be suspicious. No one wants to be kept on the look-out for missiles flung from ambush. And the one who engages in shooting from the dark and in that way trying to do undeserved injury, is wasting a lot of valuable energy—energy that might better be devoted to constructive effort. How unpleasant is the experience of avoiding a person you think you cannot trust—a person you fear would turn familiarity to unshared profit or do you injury without other reason than the hope of personal gain or to satisfy fancied ground for revenge. You want everyone to be friendly to you. You want to trust everybody. But when your confidence is violated, you are forced to become suspicious. You learn to watch for deception, and to direct footsteps away from objects of suspicion. How much more and better work one could do if he were not compelled to look out for himself. The inducements designed to gratify selfish interests or to satisfy personal spite.

Historic Spots Are Of Interest To Wayne Couple

Visits to the old homes of Abraham Lincoln at Springfield, Ill., and Mark Twain, at Hannibal, Mo., proved of much interest to Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Fickett who arrived home Friday from a 12-day trip to Missouri, Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois.

The Picketts drove to Springfield, Mo., which was Mr. Pickett's home 30 years ago, and from there went through the Ozarks, stopping at Round Spring to visit a natural cave in which were interesting specimens of onyx and bears' skeletons, and also stopping at Big Springs, Mo., resort where they found a dashing water fall.

The Picketts crossed the Mississippi at Wickliffe, Ky., and there found an interesting little old town. This unpaved village is scene for some very extensive excavations which are leading to unearthing of an ancient civilization. First such finds were made in 1932 and since then four chambers have been excavated. Skeletons of an ancient people have been found buried in tiers.

Through eastern Missouri and western Kentucky the Picketts traveled in the cotton and tobacco region. Cotton was in blossom during their trip and they found it growing even along railroad tracks where the seeds had been dropped. Primitive huts dotted the landscape. Eastern Kentucky appeared more prosperous.

In Kentucky the Picketts crossed the Green river, said to be the world's deepest stream. Bridge tolls for the ancient for the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers were very high. Going on to Winchester, Ind., the Wayne folks visited Mrs. Mary Ann Pickett.

The Lincoln home visited at Springfield, Ill., on the return trip was built in 1832 and the entire house is of walnut and oak, put together with wooden pegs. The residence stands closer to the street than is customary now. It was here that Abraham-Lincoln lived when he was visited by a committee from Washington and asked to be nominee for the presidency. He moved from this to the White House in 1861.

The two-story frame house at Springfield has a front and back porch. The front porch, in which the Washington committee was received, still has the red green and tan carpet, the horsehair overstuffed mahogany furniture and beautiful but old-fashioned pictures of Lincoln's time. A large portrait of Lincoln hangs above the fireplace.

In the dining room of the Lincoln home is a gateleg table of old but interesting style and so low that one wonders how the tall Abraham sat at it in comfort. A front hallway, which is a large as most living rooms and which contains another fireplace, is the room which the family used most.

The capitol and museum in Springfield, Mo., also visited. In the Lincoln room of the capitol are hundreds of letters and articles about the Emancipator. One sheet is the Ford theatre bill advertising that the president would honor the theatre with his presence and that box seats were $8 to $10 for the night.

Continuing homeward the Picketts stopped in Hannibal, Mo., to view the setting of Mark Twain's writings. A former bank building has been converted into a museum which contains Twain's letters and books. There one also sees the bed which the writer bought in Italy. The bed is of walnut, carved in relief and parts of the head and foot boards are about a foot in thickness. On each bed post is a figure of cupid carved in the wood.

The Picketts visited the cave along the river a couple of miles south of Hannibal, the setting for Twain's stories in which he was Tom Sawyer, and other characters were taken from real life in that vicinity. The cave site and land around are now a park.

Statues of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn stand at the foot of Cardiff hill, a high point on top of which is a light house which guides boats on the Mississippi.

In the Hannibal museum are statues of Mark Twain's characters, the by A. G. Walter Russell. A multimillionaire is now backing a project through which Mark Twain and his story characters will be sculptured in bronze, life size. Two, those of Twain and Tom Sawyer, have been completed and the city is now arranging a big celebration for dedicating them November 30.

The Picketts drove the 460 miles from Hannibal to Wayne in one day.

 "Mind" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches for Sunday, August 25.

The Golden Text is from 1 Cor.inthians 2:16: "Who hath known the mind of the Lord that he may instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ."

A passage from the Bible in the lesson-sermon is from Romans 1:18, 21, 24, 26: "The depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out. For who hath known the mind of the Lord? Or who hath been his counselor? For him, and through him, and to him, are all things, to whom be glory forever. Amen."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, reads: "If God were limited to man or matter, or if the infinite could be circumscribed within the finite, God would be corporeal, and unlimited Mind would seem to spring from a limited body; but this is an impossibility. Infinite Mind can have no starting point, and can return to no limit." (page 294).

FIFTY-FIFTH YEAR

Industries Utilizing Nebraska Corn Crop Increase With Years

"Outside of its usefulness in fattening stock, Nebraska people have seldom considered the many ways in which their main crop, King Corn, is utilized in the industries of the country at large. While its main value is, of course, concerned with putting an extra curl in the tail of the Poland China or an added gloss to the sleek hides of prize Herefords, its minor uses are many and varied.

After the derivation of corn starch, chemists have succeeded in making products used by bakers, bakers, powder manufacturers, brewers, confectioners, color makers, explosive producers, iron foundries, paper mills, paper box factories, the making of asbestos, cotton mills, manufacture of rayon and linen textiles. There are thirty major industries utilizing the by-products of corn.

How many are aware that each bushel of corn yields one and one-half pounds of oil from the germ of the kernel? This oil is used in the making of soaps, glycerin, dyes, paints, oil cloth, varnishes, cooking and salad oils. It also comes in for its share of glory as a substitute for rubber in the making of gut gum and bath sponges.

From the endosperm is produced a corn gluten meal which has been found invaluable as a dairy cow food. A material used as bullet-proofing for battleships comes from the pulp.

Dextrin, a yellowish-brown powder, becomes an ingredient in the making of adhesive tapes, gum for paper and postage stamps, library paste, mucilage and glues. Dextrin is used in strengthening fibers and fabrics, thickening colors for print calicoes, and as a glaze for rice and coffee.

Corn set-up has a growing demand in the manufacture of candies, jams, jellies, mince meat and that great American dessert, ice cream.

Nebraska has the distinction of ranking as third in quantity of corn production and the glory of being first in quality. Many are aware that eighty percent of the corn produced is used in the fattening of cattle and swine, but the last twenty percent deserves more study and thought from those who have taken the big crop as a matter of course. This state has the added honor of being named as the fourth largest corn market in the United States.

With this new knowledge in mind and added respect for the old, it behooves us to repeat solemnly with the poet:
"Heap high the farmer's wintry board, heap high the golden corn."

Coming Old Settlers' Reunion Recalls Early Days To Remaining Pioneers

The old settlers' picnic to be held at Winside August 29 will bring memories to mind of the few remaining pioneers of the first chapter in the history of its incorporation in 1901. This annual reunion of the old settlers of the county was one of the bright spots in the lives of many residents who had suffered hardship and privation in building a new country.

First president of the society, as formed by residents of the county, was A. G. Metten, at that time of LaPorte, and later of Winside. It is a regrettable fact that the early records of the society were destroyed. Dr. R. B. Crawford was the first secretary and at the initial meeting of the old settlers, delivered a history of the county.

In the horse and buggy days of the early nineteenth century when time was relatively unimportant, a whole day was given over to the annual reunion. Baskets were laden with all manner of good things, covered with snowy cloths and carefully packed in the top buggy, the surrey or the spring wagon. People drove for miles to the picnic held in the Bressler grove two miles northwest of Wayne going early and skying late.

A platform erected each year on the picnic grounds made it possible for all visitors to hear and see the speaker of the day. An organ was always brought from town for accompaniment of quartets, solos and group singing.

Mrs. Mary Bettam recalls one of the early reunions which was held on the lawn of her court house. At this meeting Miss Charles White was the speaker of the day. A male quartet, of which

In recalling old time happenings Mrs. Brittain humorously describes the first Wayne county car, owned by Dr. H. G. Leisenring. At a picnic held at the John Grimstey grove two miles from Wayne, Dr. Leisenring, entertained many of the ladies by taking them for short rides in his automobile. This early forerunner of the modern car, was painted a brilliant red and as a stock freighter, prompted farmers of the county to contemplate getting out an injunction against the doctor for endangering the lives of humans and the nerves of living cattle.

This early model car had a door in the back which permitted the motorists to step up into the seat. Two could sit, probably not very comfortably, in the back. There were no doors in the front and one entered the surrey. Many residents of the county during the early part of this century, remember their first automobile rides as having been with Dr. Leisenring.

About 1918, Winside pioneers requested that the meeting place be moved closer and since that time the picnic grounds have been located in or near that town.

Old settlers are beginning to be few in number but those left remember with pleasure the bands imported from Sioux City, ball games and sports which made the day of the old settlers' picnic longer in the memory of old and young.

AMAZING RECOVERY IS NOTED IN GERMANY SINCE WAR BY WAYNE COUNTIAN ON VISIT

Germany has recuperated amazingly from the post-war-torn land of 15 years ago says Fred Peperkorn, Winside farmer, who arrived home Friday morning from a two month's visit in the kind of his birth. "Good to be back," says Mr. Peperkorn, "but Germany is good, too." He stated that farm lands in Nebraska looked better than any in the middle west.

Mr. Peperkorn has one brother in Germany besides the families of 32 nephews and nieces, whom he visited in the northwestern section of that country. Relatives reside at Osnabruck, Dissen, Borgholzhausen and Duisburg Essen, all in the farming district. The German countryside is joyfully noted with its wealth of flowers and well-cared-for fields. Rain has been plentiful and crops excellent. Mr. Peperkorn's people live near the mountain range of Teutoburg Wald. The popular summer resort of Rottenfelds is located in this range, famous for its salt baths.

Farms Cover Five Acres.

Most of the farms are divided into five-acre tracts, tenants renting the land from the large landholders. Every foot of ground is utilized for growing. Work on these small farms is done by the women and children while the men of the family put in eight-hour days at the factories. Rent is rather high, the tenant paying as much as $20 per acre.

Small Crops in Season.

To make the most of the season and his land, the tenant farmer will grow two or three crops on his tract in one season. First comes the principal crop of rye; this harvested, the land is immediately prepared for the planting of beets, rutabagas and turnips to be used for feeding dairy cattle. Rye or barley is again planted after these are gathered in. Part of the land is given over to the vegetable gardens. As soon as one vegetable is through bearing, another takes its place. Frequent and thorough fertilization of the soil keeps it from reacting to the drain of the many crops planted and harvested.

Crop Yield Is High.

Barley in good years yields 60 bushels to the acre, while rye yields from 30 to 40 bushels. About one-fourth of the rye crop must be sold to the government at market price. This is put into warehouses and thus gives the government control of supply and demand. The price of rye the past season was 10 marks the hundred pounds, which translated into United States currency would be $2.50 per hundred. This is the only crop from which the country requires a certain percentage of the farmers. This system was started the past year. As grain is needed it is released on the market and may be purchased by any who are in need of extra supplies.

Factories in which these small farmers are employed are sometimes ten miles distant from their homes. They ride to work on cheap fares by trains maintained for the working classes. The trains stop every few miles to pick up the workmen and run every hour. Factories are not government-controlled but are in the hands of private owners. Workmen must be qualified for their jobs. Steel, iron, munition and machine factories are abundant in this section of the country.

Employment Situation Better.

The employment situation has improved in the past year. A certain amount must be paid to relief from the earnings of residents of the country. For instance, if earnings amount to 125 marks, 25 must be given over to the government for support of the aged and unemployed. Those who are able to work are given jobs on road improvement, forest replanting and soil improvement. Hard surfaced roads are maintained throughout Germany. Mr. Peperkorn states:

Under a new law which takes effect this fall the unemployment problem will be still more greatly reduced. The government will reopen its army training schools and make it compulsory for all boys born during the years of 1914 and 1915 to take military training for a period of one and one-half years. Jobs which these boys now fill will then be given over to men without work. When the training period is over, other lads will take the places of those who have completed military work.

Working Class Supports Hitler.

The working classes are satisfied with the new plans for military training and are staunch supporters of Hitler whom they refer to as "Reichsfuhrer," which conveys something of the same meaning as president. The landowners are not so satisfied with Hitlerism and the new regime as taxes are very high.

Mr. Peperkorn explains the question of religion in Germany as the Germans themselves see it. Hitler would like all the religion of Germany to be the same, the Evangelical church doctrine. His feeling against the Catholics, says Mr. Peperkorn, is prompted by the amount of money which goes out of the country each year to the Pope in Rome. Hitler has no feeling against the Jews who have lived in Germany for many years, but is incensed by those who have come into the country from Poland and Russia since the war, the latter taking the better jobs and letting the German native take the leftovers. Some lodges are allowed in the country. Mr. Peperkorn found, but Hitlerism is against the Masonic group because its members are banded together too closely. The government fears conspiracy from too much secrecy.

Germany for Germans.

Hitler wants to keep Germany only for Germans. Very little is exported from the country, all food raised is kept at home. The "Reichsfuhrer's" great desire is that Germany may be independent from the rest of the world and be advocates that all Germany try to get along with its own produce.

Mr. Peperkorn was much surprised to see the number of dairy cattle in the country. Where 15 years ago there were only two or three cows, one now sees from eight to ten. The Holstein is the main dairy breed.

Climate Very Agreeable.

The climate of Germany differs from the climate here, the seasons being less severe. Summers are comfortable with nights cool enough for the use of feather beds. The air is moist and balmy. Winters are ordinarily mild, although severe cold and much snow are not uncommon. People are healthy and robust.

Few of the working class own automobiles and much exercise is derived from the use of the bicycle. Very little machinery is used on the small farms, most of the work being done by hand. Farms of a hundred acres or more boast modern machinery. Cars seen in Germany are mostly of German make, although some are American. High taxes on automobiles and the high price of gas put this vehicle in the luxury class.

Politics Not for People.

Questions of political nature are settled by the "Reichstag" and Hitler. The former is much like our own Congress but is appointed by the head of the country, not by popular vote. Election of the "Reichsfuhrer" or as we would say, president, will take place in two years. Length of office is seven years. People of the country have little to say in affairs of the nation.

Mr. Peperkorn left here three months ago enroute to Germany, stopping a few days in the home of Fred Henry Morganau of Yale University, in New Haven, Conn., before sailing. At New York City he boarded the "Bremen" one of the North German Lloyd steamers and enjoyed a pleasant voyage, landing at Bremen, Germany. Enroute home Mr. Peperkorn stopped again at New Haven, and at Springfield, Mass. Connections from the east were splendid and Mr. Peperkorn enjoyed the trip to Winside by train.

South American Residents In States After Two-Year Sojourn In Tropics

To reach the coast one takes a steamer, or fast boat, down the Magdalena river to Cartagena, Columbia port where steamers come in from New York City from the east and San Francisco from the west to bear the American residents homeward.
