Vaccination Checks Spread Of Anthrax

Dr. J. C. Johnson announces that anthrax, which started several weeks ago in the Carl Pfeifers herd, six and a half miles west of Wayne, has been successfully checked.

Anthrax is an infectious blood disease which is transmittable to man and to any species of animal. This virulent malady is a blood disease which breaks down the red corpuscles. It may be transmitted by flies and by contact with infected soil.

Anthrax is more prevalent in herds during the season when grass is short and cattle cut close to the soil. Epidemics also occur immediately following heavy rains when waters carry carcasses of diseased animals and lodge them on the grass where cattle feed.

Comparing Governments

DEMAGOGUES who berate the American system of government and who would substitute for it a system fashioned from a foreign pattern, have led C. L. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, to find out what the United States has done through private initiative and the free flow of investment capital. Here are the results:

With 7 percent of the world's population, this country has 32 percent of the railroads, 58 percent of the telephones and telegraph facilities, 36 percent of its developed water power, 76 percent of the automobiles, 33 percent of the radio broadcasting stations and 44 percent of the radio receiving sets.

In the United States are produced 60 percent of the world's oil, 48 percent of the copper, 43 percent of the pig iron, 47 percent of the steel, 58 percent of the corn, and, prior to the coming of the AAA, 56 percent of the cotton.

Our standard of living is so much higher than in foreign countries that we consume one-half of the world's coffee, one-third of its rubber, one-half of its sugar, three-fourths of its silk, one-third of its coal and two-thirds of its petroleum.

In 1933, a depression year, there was spent in the United States more than three billion dollars for education, and that was more than the amount expended for education by all the other countries in the world. The United States is the only country in the world to put one out of every five children through high school and one out of every 116 through college.

This country has more than 7 billion dollars invested in public and private schools and nearly 4 billion dollars invested in colleges and universities. It has nearly 4 billion dollars invested in churches.

Most workers in America are capitalists already. In 1930, 14 million families owned their own homes. More than half of all the farmers own their own farms. In 1934, including postal savings, there were more than 38 million savings accounts in banks throughout the country with aggregate deposits exceeding 2 billion dollars. In the year 1933 there were more than 9 million members of building and loan associations, with assets approaching 7 billion dollars.

At the beginning of 1934 there were over thirty-one and one-half million ordinary life insurance policies in force for a face value of over 70 billion dollars, and there were in addition over eighty-eight and one-quarter million industrial policies calling for payment of almost eighteen and one-half billion dollars.

Such is the condition made possible under our system of government. It is a system which no one conversant with affairs in other countries would exchange for any other system in the world. Under our government a standard of living inconceivable in other lands, has been established.

Congress Adjourns

CONGRESS has finally adjourned after making the largest peace-time appropriations in the history of the nation. The two houses acceded to the president's demands less willingly than formerly, and though in the end eating out of the executive's hands nearly as directed, they grinned and muttered while doing so. Measures passed lost some original objections, and evidences of congressional revolt, though not wholly effective, encourage hope for the future of our democracy.

Congressmen have had a hot time in Washington. The heat of the capital city's summer was accentuated by the heat of debate and the conflict in pressed demands. Members have hurried to their respective homes where they will explain to constituents the inside reasons for piling up a mountain of debt for present and future taxpayers to meet. Taxpayers will have a clearer idea of what congress has done as the bills commence coming in. Simultaneously congressmen will find out what taxpayers think and they will return to Washington better prepared and fortified to resist further unbalancing of the budget.

It would be cheaper and easier to give Italy what she wants in the way of African territory. Mussolini could persuade himself to stop if without the glory of conquest. The Italian dictator doubtless feels that he can make himself stand stronger with his subjects by getting their minds centered on the serious business of war and away from just making spaghetti and raising garlic and bothering with other local problems. Bringing home the trophies of war even if it won would enable Mussolini to present himself in the favor of the Italian people. He is not thinking of the ancient world, but of the modern Mussolini's. He is frustrated.

if England decides to interfere. In that case another world conflagration may follow with the United States struggling to keep out, and if the masses are consulted and their wishes are observed, we will keep out.

Putting new laws up to the supreme court to determine their constitutionality in the suspicion that they are unconstitutional shifts the burden of responsibility from one branch where it belongs, to another branch where it does not belong. Sworn to obey the constitution, congress should be fairly well satisfied that a measure is constitutional before passing it. And enacting laws that are manifestly unconstitutional, pleading that the constitution is in the way of helpful public policies, and asking for a change in that fundamental document to meet the whims of flaring ambition, does not harmonize with democracy's idea of statesmanship.

We have found a young fellow who is really fond of his mother-in-law. That is the way everybody should be led to feel. Every mother is likely to become a mother-in-law, and a fellow should accord to his mother-in-law the respect he would have felt for his mother. The basis for reciprocal feeling is eminently fair if not always possible. Sometimes the mother-in-law intrudes unnecessarily, and then she starts up an irritation that is hard to cure. If you can't love your mother-in-law, try to respect her, because the person you vowed to love, loves her.

Some freshly incubated politician in Virginia aspires to the official shoes of Senator Glass, charging that the latter is a "renegade" democrat and ought to be displaced. Glass flashes at this budding opponent with a four-lettered word. As the stalwart Virginian stands squarely on the democratic platform, no one with a modicum of reasoning power can figure that his statesmanship is in conflict with party principles. It is the administration with which Glass disagrees, that has left the democratic camp.

The president's desire to have large discretionary powers in handling policies involving foreign governments as war clouds develop was hotly resented by a congressional delegation. The congressmen expressed determination to keep the country out of war, and did not relish the idea of intrusting much authority, involving the gigantic war issue, to the judgment of one man.

Young democrats of the country are not disposed to toady to the president's son simply because he accidentally belongs to the executive's family. The young man was honored by being made treasurer and then secretary of the organization but he lay down in the harness and finally he was dropped. Like many other young persons he wanted the honor without the work.

The fellow who exudes flappoddlle without making clear what he means, or flings out insinuations with muddling indifiniteness, may massacre the truth with impunity excepting for the contempt borne thence by those who appreciate target practice in the open.

Any public policy that would transfer property from the industrious and frugal to the indolent and wasteful would react seriously against progress. There must be rewards for initiative and effort to keep society moving forward.

Sunday's Omaha Bee-News compared the president's "must" program presented to congress with the "must" program carried on with less delay in Russia.

Cattle Men, Read This.

(Nebraska Farmer.)

The following appeared in the Omaha, Canada, Globe, August 2:
 "Canadian farmers have benefited to the extent of nearly $5,000,000 this year to date, as compared with last year, through the reopening of the United States markets to Canadian cattle.

"Total exports of Canadian cattle, whether for improving of stock, for dairy herds or for slaughtering, have nearly trebled from the 28,319 head shipped in the first half of 1934 to 84,728 head exported in the first six months of this year. "In value this export movement increased by more than $3,000,000 from $1,843,668 last year to $4,956,449 this year.

"While exports of live cattle to Great Britain totalled 24,903 head in the period under review last year, and those to the United States numbered only 2,492 head, shipments this year to the end of June totalled only 6,181 head to the overseas market, while those to the United States increased to 77,215.

"Exports of beef have likewise greatly increased, those to the United Kingdom from 1,756,500 pounds last year to 2,487,000 pounds this year, and those to the United States from 44,700 pounds to 4,604,400 pounds."

The foregoing should be considered in connection with the fact that there are only about half as many cattle on feed in Nebraska as normally and only about one-third as many hogs on the farms.

According to the Department of Agriculture the number of 2-year-old steers in the ten Great Plains and Rock Mountain states is 36 percent smaller than a year ago and the smallest in 15 years; yearlings 38 percent less, cows 24 percent less. Since the calf mortality last spring, that crop will be short.

The trend is one of the most perilous that has confronted American agriculture in a general way. A condition of scarcity in our own country is being created while other nations are finding it easier to enter our markets.

TWENTYFIVE YEARS.

We came here twentyfive years ago this month and launched development of the Herald. Then four pages were printed at home, and equipment of the plant contained nothing that could be called modern. In time machines displaced hand composition, and automatic presses crowded out the hand-set variety. The more machines installed the more helpers were required. In 1910 a girl was setting type at $7 per week and an all-around printer of highest skill was drawing only $15 per week. It was not long until wages soared and the total payroll mounted from a minimum of $22 per week to a peak of $300 per week. Incidentally our feeling in 1932 that we could buck the depression by maintaining maximum wages had to surrender to downward revision. During the upthill pull of the last few years, despite decreased revenues, the service has been kept unimpaired. In fact, the public has been given more than ever for its money. The readiness with which people of this area take the Herald and pay for it is evidence of popular appreciation. That is liberal reward.

UTOPIA.

We are told that Utopia is just a dream, a condition ever desired and ever sought, but never found. Probably the pattern of Utopia was abstractly followed, it would not be entirely satisfactory and therefore would not be Utopia. If that ideal state, a contributor to the Lincoln Journal says: "All men try more or less to establish or find Utopia—the ideal place. Democrats, republicans, socialists, communists, vegetarians, nudists, Episcopians, religionists, pagans, Epicureans, all people, have their peculiar Utopias. They insist that if men would adopt their ideas we could have Utopia, in this world or in some other world. Utopia seems to be man's goal. He knows that it isn't real, but just has a fancy of what it is. He shares it. Every idea of Utopia has been scoffed at, and has been picked to pieces by critics; because it was found unresponsible, and reason is always the acid test with which man assays the Utopias. Man has never known Utopia in his whole historical experience, so he reasonably concludes that it is an idea that never will be real. The vaunted merits of republican tariffs, democratic free trade, socialist equality, vegetarian superiority, Epicurean happiness, Christian and mental enlightenment, prayer-wheel and pyramen miracles, and other Utopian master keys, have never been satisfactorily demonstrated, so men say Utopia can not be achieved. Nowhere have men seen Utopia. Utopia is just a dream—a dream of an ideal place."

CONGRESS As Seen by a Nebraskan

The orders from the majority leaders went into effect yesterday and legislation which usually requires weeks of study went through in ten minutes time. They started out with the important Guffy coal bill. That went through like greased lightning with about seventy-five members not present. It was a record vote, 194 for and 168 against. Then they brought up the railroad pension bill and that without a record vote; the conference report on the rivers and harbors act passed the same way; the item of the Grand Coulee dam was taken up separately. Those who want to save money felt it will eventually cost the taxpayers three hundred and nine million dollars and started a fight against it; they felt that the people on the Columbia river wanted this Grand Coulee money to be put into production of thousands of acres of land at a time when we are reducing production of farm produce. That is why the many votes against it but the measure went through with machiavellian precision; then came the omnibus bill on bridges and that, too, was passed; the conference report on the banking bill, too, went through rapidly. The swan song of the first session of the 74th congress has been sung. Congressmen are packing up and going home.

Familiarity Breeds Contempt.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: Owing to the humanitarian governmental practice of feeding the elk in Wyoming, these animals are in danger of becoming semi-domesticated public nuisances. The Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture finds that the herd of 22,000 elk in the Jackson Hole country are fast becoming state charges.

Kinds of Hogs

(Omaha Journal Stockman)

"Just what kind of hogs are you looking for, anyhow?" ponders the Corn Belt farmer whenever the subject of type is broached, and it is small wonder that he is puzzled. After having heard the merits of bacon type hogs extolled all of his life, the fattest hogs which he grows continue to sell at the top of the market. They move in the up register of prices, not because they are so fat, perhaps in spite of it, but they sell the best nevertheless.

It is true that the packers have a place for all kinds, and they have a greater outlet for medium grades than for fancy hogs, but the grower should bear in mind that it costs no more, if as much, to produce a medium grade hog as a choice animal, and that the better grades always are in demand. In this connection, the term "better grades" can mean but one thing, hogs which make cuts most satisfactory to consumers.

After testing types of hogs ranging from very rangy to very chuffy for cut-out value in the pork trade, workers at the Illinois experiment station recently concluded that none which were included in their study effectually meets market demands. The intermediate type most nearly approaches the ideal, they affirm.

Rate and economy of gain in raising hogs were found fairly satisfactory in all instances.

"American consumers have shown a preference for small lean, tender, firm cuts, and that kind of pork comes only from young hogs. With the export outlet for lard and cured meats narrow as at present, it is readily seen that hogs can be too fat to completely meet the desires of processors. On the other hand, hogs which are sent to market poorly finished tend to cut out a large percentage of thin, skippy bellies unsuitable for making bunches of good quality.

Rhode Island Rebels.

Nebraska Farmer: Results in the recent special congressional election in Rhode Island may be interpreted as a wavering public faith in the New Deal recovery program, if not actual repudiation of it.

In addition to defeating a Democrat for Congress, the Rhode Island voters turned down a 12 million dollar public works bond issue advocated by the state's Democratic government. Rejection of this bond issue, intended to match (or supplement) public works expenses of Rhode Island, may be interpreted as a decision by Rhode Island voters to head off increased debt burdens wherever possible.

Rhode Island speaks from bitter experience. Before cotton carried a processing tax under the AAA program, demand for cotton cloth kept men and machines in the textile mills busy. When the processing tax and price pegging costs finally filtered through the channels of commerce down to the consumer, plus NRA overhead, the price of cotton goods became too high for normal purchases.

Mills were slowed down, and in some instances closed and labor laid off accordingly. So in the recent election citizens of the state voted their condemnation of unsound economic policies that are being forced upon them.

Registration Dates Named at College

Dormitory Rooms Are Taken And Inquiries Indicate Good Enrollment.

Two days, September 16 and 17, will be given over to registration at Wayne State Teachers College. Freshmen will register Monday, September 16, and upper classmen will register Tuesday, September 17. Classwork will begin Wednesday, September 18.

Over half the rooms in dormitories are taken and the many inquiries received point to a large enrollment for the first semester. Juniors and seniors have alternated with repair on buildings since closing of the summer term, thus enabling all to enjoy short vacations.

Plastering in the various buildings is being repaired, furniture checked and mended, and floors in brick dormitories waxed. Accountant Andrew Segel of the state auditor's office at Lincoln, came Thursday last week to resume auditing of college books. Mr. Segel was called back to Lincoln last week by word of the death of Wm. B. Price, state auditor.

Dr. J. T. Anderson and family will arrive first of the week from Kearney and will move at once to the President's home on the hill which the Dr. Corin family will vacate Saturday. Work of Mrs. Elvira Brockway Miller as secretary to the president will be completed the last of the week. Mrs. Miller plans a vacation trip.

Dr. and Mrs. L. S. Conn and daughter, Miss Ardath, plan to leave the first of the week for a two weeks' stay at Lake Okoboji, Iowa. Dr. Conn will go from there to points in Minnesota on business, later taking his family to Indiana for a two months' visit. Sometime the early part of the winter, the Conn's will go to the west coast.

Congress As Seen By A Nebraskan

Thomas Walker Page, who is acting chairman of the United States tariff commission, has just issued a report of imports into the United States from foreign countries of the following farm commodities for the month of June: Corn, 6,121,927 bu.; rye, 799,248 bu.; barley, 174,586; oats, 405,597 bu.; flax, 1,738,201 bu.; hay, 2,727 tons; potatoes, 342,915 lbs.; beef, 237,169 lbs.; pork, 399,372 lbs.

The house was not in session except for a short time Monday. Adjournment followed the announcement of the sudden death of Congressman Truman of Ohio. He died of a heart attack shortly after he left the house to go to his rooms. He was an auctioneer by profession and was a bitter opponent of capitalism and toll bridges. He stopped the passage on general consent calendar of many bills for toll bridges but was ever alert to help those who had bills for free bridges. He made free bridges over rivers his hobby.

Letters are now coming in indicating that the terrible heat and lack of rain is killing what is to have been a good corn crop. Already members from the corn-hog sections are coming around to sympathize with congressmen from drought districts. Only a few weeks ago corn-hog congressmen had been bragging about the prospects for a good crop of corn. Now they are saddened by the news from home and they are praying for rain.

"We helped you get a good price for your hogs and corn—now help us get a decent price for our potatoes." That is the plea the members coming from potato growing states are putting up to congressmen from the corn-hog sections. Potatoes selling for a penny a peck or a dime a barrel is like pigs sold for a quarter apiece a year ago. The potato congressmen say they are up against the same thing the hog farmer was last year and they want the same help. They want spuds in the basic commodity class with the same protection. They want at least cost of production. They are getting plenty of sympathy.

It is very important for communities in Nebraska to hurry along their application for farm to market roads to their WPA directors. The money for these farm to market roads will come from the big fund and works projects directors are intensely interested in helping various communities to fix up their applications for such rural work. This farm to market road program has the approval of the relief director and the president and the various work project directors over the country now have plenty of information to pass on to committees which are interested. The farm state congressmen are highly pleased at being able to accomplish this piece of work and they believe that they have achieved more than has been published along the farm market road program. If all the committees take advantage of these projects and can show enough work to be given unemployed on farm to market roads they will find that the works project officials will give them the necessary application blanks and information with the result that many million dollars will be brought into the actual farming towns and farm communities. This is that part of the works project work which is done through WPA directors and not through the regular road building channels.

Members who favor the combining of the army and navy to promote economy and peace are watching the allocations of WPA funds. They have discovered that out of the 770 projects allowed, thus far 230 have gone to the navy, 212 to the army and 46 to the coast guard, and about six to the veterans' administration. Just how much work these army and navy projects will give to the unemployed is not definitely known. The news in this, however, is that the army and navy have a way of getting a lot of the relief money.

Normal Board In Meeting Monday

No Comptroller Nomination Because Of Absence Of Many Members. The state normal board met at Chadron Monday but because of the absence of a quorum did not choose a comptroller to take the place of the nomination of E. W. Smith of Red Cloud, which was rejected by Governor R. L. Cochran. The governor rejected the nomination of Mr. Smith because he desires that a business man be appointed for the position of comptroller.

Last state legislative session brought an appropriation of $9,000 to pay the salary and expenses of a comptroller, although board members had not requested such an assistant.

According to State Superintendent Chas. Taylor of Lincoln, the board set up a plan whereby normal dormitory bonds will be refunded to the amount of $350,000. This will save the state $35,000 in interest on the bonds. Bonds in the sum of $181,000 are held by the state board of educational lands and funds, which, however, has been advised that it cannot take the refunding bonds, so will take cash instead.

Wayne Girl Is Home From Trip To Eastern Points

Miss Mary Ella Pile who arrived home Friday from a visit of two months with her grandmother, Mrs. J. M. Pile, at Rochester, N. Y., and with relatives in Chicago, has much of interest to relate and a girlish enthusiasm for all that was new to her.

Miss Mary Ella attended the girls' scout camp at Sodus Point, Lake Ontario. The scout camp includes 175 acres of rolling woodland on the shores of the lake.
 About 191 girls were enrolled at the camp at the time Mary Ella was there. The girls were divided into units according to their rank in scouting, each unit having special duties to perform each day.

The girls found their days filled with work and play. Following the flag raising rites each morning, breakfast was served and the day's program began. Patrol leaders met each morning to make decisions as
 to work and to plan entertainment.
 Nature study, archery, swimming and sailing were the most popular studies. Mary Ella took archery and practiced swimming. Junior and senior life saving tests were practiced and passed in the waters of Lake Ontario.

Plan Overnight Hikes.
 Overnight hikes were planned so that each girl might have an opportunity to participate in at least one while in camp. Six of the girls there belonged to the Far Forest unit, finishing work for their Eaglet ranking. These girls, cleared away timber for their camp site, pitched their own tents and cooked their own meals. Miss Pile is an Eaglet scout so took up advanced work in pioneering and the making of tree furniture.

Miss Pile also attended a three-day camp at Seneca park in Rochester. Scout leaders in this camp are Eaglets and are selected from graduates of the University of Rochester. While in the Seneca camp girls specialize in merit badge
 work and prepare for camp.

Rochester Beautiful City.
 Rochester, says Miss Pile, is a beautiful city, with huge modern buildings, manufacturing plants, and well-kept parks. The Eastman Kodak plant is located here, buildings of the plant extending for blocks. The company maintains a school of music, part of the building given over to a theatre for the production of opera. The General Motors company has its main plant at Rochester and Miss Pile noted many other manufacturing plants located there for the production of delicate mechanisms, such as clinometers, surgical instruments, and fragile watch parts. Much of the power for the factories comes from the falls of the Genesee river.
 One of the gorges in this river is as deep as the Niagara gorge. The Wayne girl visited Niagara Falls and was much impressed by its grandeur.

One of the enjoyable trips which Miss Pile took while in the east
 was a boat ride from Rochester to Cobough, Canada. The trip took a full day over and back, and was not a slow steamer. Trains were carried across the line on the boat. These were loaded with coal to be left on the other side. The town of Cobough will be remembered by many as the birthplace of the beloved American actress, Marie Dressler. Miss Pile visited
 Miss Dressler's old home.

A few days before Miss Pile took the trip across the lake, a large oil freighter had turned turtle near the dock at Cobough and she was much interested in watching workmen draining oil from the bottom of the wrecked vessel.

Manufacture Dolomite For Roads.
 A special product of Rochester, manufactured extensively in that place, is dolomite which is used for road surfacing. Miss Pile states that it is similar to rock but has many desirable qualities in road work.

The art museum at Rochester contains many original and valuable paintings and priceless antiques. One of the objects in which Miss Pile was interested was a glass urn, Roman make, and of the second century A. D. Another was a Flemish Renaissance tapestry, made in Brussels in the sixteenth century.

The Wayne girl enjoyed many short trips, among them a visit to Buffalo, N. Y., and to Palmyra, Al.
 At the latter place is located the monument where people of the Wor-mon faith hold their ceremonies.

Winside Woman Instructor Six Years In Wayne School of Four Decades Ago

The Wayne city school of 40 years ago would present a strange sight to people of the county who are accustomed to seeing the modern brick structure in which the children of today learn their "reading, and writing" and "rhythmic." Mrs. Emily L. Mettlen of Winside, recalls the crude structure of four decades ago in which she taught for six years, as having been the frame building later used as town hall.

B. W. Ashley was superintendent of the Wayne school at the time Mrs. Mettlen was teaching in the grades. Miss Emily Bergeson (Mrs. Mettlen), Miss Sally Conroy (Mrs. George Lundberg), Miss Cora Reynolds (Mrs. C. S. Beebe), Miss Mae Van Curran (Mrs. Dan Harrington), and Miss Reinger made up the faculty for the six-room hall of learning. Instruction through the tenth grade was given at that time.

Mrs. Mettlen recalls attending school in Wayne when her teachers were given by Prof. J. M. Pile and Prof. Clemmens who came here from Fremont to instruct teachers in the latest methods of education.

This first visit of Prof. Pile to Wayne sowed the seed which germinated in the present Wayne State Teachers College, for it was then he conceived the idea of starting a school of higher learning here. The first college building in Wayne was a dilapidated store building in the business section, where the Central Meat Market now stands.

During the time she taught in Wayne, Mrs. Mettlen roomed with Mrs. E. B. Crawford and with Mrs. Margaret Bush Auker. She recalls some of the old time business houses of 40 years ago as having been the Connor and Hughes, grocery and dry goods store, First National Bank, with Harner Wilson and Nathan Chase in its employ; the P. M. Corbit dry goods store; and the August Piepenstock bakery.

Mrs. Mettlen came to Wayne as a young girl, from Galesburg, Ill. Her brother, S. D. Bergeson, had come here earlier and settled on a farm north of town. Shortly after their marriage in 1891, Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Mettlen, went to Winside to live. Mr. Mettlen died several years ago and Mrs. Mettlen has continued the store which he started there in the early nineties.

Frank L. Mettlen was a son of John T. Mettlen, early pioneer who settled at La Porte when the county was in its infancy. Original deed for the farm owned by the Mett-lens, bears the signature of Pres. U. S. Grant.

Missions in California are being conducted. An organ at the San Just mission was five years in arriving from France—it has kept its lovely tone through all the years.
 This mission at one time had 8500 Indians in its charge.

Visit Historic Monterey.
 Monterey, one of the historic coast towns, was visited by Miss Chibley and Miss Lewis. Many interesting stories have their origin at the site of California's first capital. California's first theatre is located here and its walls echoed the silvery voice of Jenny Lind, who sang in the old arboe building on her tour of the west in the first part of the last century. Monterey bay was once a retreat for widows which led to the building of an old whaling station still standing close to the wharves of Monterey. The custom's house, where duties were paid by importers, is remarkably well preserved and still serves as office rooms.

The girls went out to "Pop Ersk's" restaurant built out over the bay, and famous up and down the coast for sea foods. From there, it is but a step over to the fish wharves where the boats unload their cargoes of deep sea fish.
 Stands along the wharf offer any and all kinds of fish for sale—deep sea cod, rock cod, abalone, clams, sole and many other varieties. Curiosities from the deep are often found hanging in the sale booths—one sees octopus, shark, strange species of eel and mammoth shelled fish.

Go To Carmel-By-The-Sea.
 Miss Curley and Miss Lewis visited Carmel-By-The-Sea, also on the Monterey peninsula and were much intrigued by the European atmosphere of the little shops.
 Population at Carmel is mostly made up of artists, novelists and playwrights. A bright morning on the beach at Carmel is often the scene for dozens of artists, perched on rocks, painting the blue of sky and bay. With the exception of the Bay of Naples, Monterey bay is said to have the bluest water in the world.

The famous Seventeen-Mile drive around the edge of the Monterey peninsula afforded the girls one of the most beautiful trips of their vacation. This road winds through the pines and never loses sight of the ocean, beginning at ighthouse point near Pacific Grove and following the edge of the peninsula to Carmel and Pebble beach. Cypress trees along the drive are said to be the only true cypress in the world outside of those in the Holy Land. The coast line is rocky and treacherous for miles north and south of Monterey and many ships have met their doom along the drive. Many of the spots where shipwrecks occurred, are marked. Heavy beams and spars washed up by the waves, dot the sandy beaches.

Have Trips To San Francisco.
 The Wayne girls enjoyed several visits to San Francisco and were in the city when the U. S. naval fleet came in. They visited Golden Gate park and the old Presidio.
 The latter is an army training camp, dating back to the days when California was under the rule of Spain.
 Driving through the Presidio one sees the remains of old stone vaults where ammunition for the protection of Golden Gate was hidden.
 Chinatown was an interesting novelty for Miss Curley and Miss Lewis.

The girls attended several art exhibits at the Legion of Honor hall in Golden Gate park. Many of the pictures exhibited were by contemporary artists.

The girls drove back to Nebraska by the shorter route and stopped for a day, with Mrs. George Durnin, the former Miss Alice Lewis, at Gering.

Historical Sketch Of Winside Given By Mrs. A. H. Carter

Mrs. A. H. Carter, wife of one of the early Winside pioneers, prepared a brief sketch of the village history which she read to Woman's club members May 29, 1924. Facts noted in the sketch were given her by Mr. Carter, who passed away a few years later. Pioneers of the county are fast disappearing and authentic history is now difficult to procure first hand.

Some of the data from Mrs. Carter's history is here reproduced: Jack Cherry built the first residence in Winside, after the fight which settled the future of that place, removing the village from Northside to its present site in 1886. The next building was the
 A. H. Carter structure built in February, 1887, when Mr. Carter established a general merchandise store. A year later McCusky and Neffman established their business.

The town of Winside was incorporated in 1890 with the following directors of the first village board:
 W. H. McCusky, Frank Weible, A.
 H. Carter and W. M. McGue. That year school district 39 was organized, and the block where the city school now stands was purchased for $250, the total sum in the possession of the board. The district was bonded for $500 and another $500 borrowed for the building of a schoolhouse.

Church services at this time were held in the waiting room of a railway depot by special permission of the company. People of the village were anxious to build a church and by circulating a petition were able to raise $650 which they offered to any denomination desiring to erect a place of worship. The Methodists were the first to accept.

The first waterworks system was constructed in 1892, a small one but adequate at the time. In 1903 the Clark Automatic Telephone system was installed, to be displaced in 1905 by the Nebraska Telephone company.

The first tree planted in Winside was a boxelder in front of the Carter building, in 1878.

Wayne Girl Is Home From Trip To Eastern Points

Miss Mary Ella Pile who arrived home Friday from a visit of two months with her grandmother, Mrs. J. M. Pile, at Rochester, N. Y., and with relatives in Chicago, has much of interest to relate and a girlish enthusiasm for all that was new to her.

Miss Mary Ella attended the girls' scout camp at Sodus Point, Lake Ontario. The scout camp includes 175 acres of rolling woodland on the shores of the lake.
 About 191 girls were enrolled at the camp at the time Mary Ella
 was there. The girls were divided into units according to their rank
 in scouting, each unit having special duties to perform each day.

The girls found their days filled with work and play. Following the
 flag raising rites each morning, breakfast was served and the day's program began. Patrol leaders met
 each morning to make decisions as
 to work and to plan entertainment.
 Nature study, archery, swimming
 and sailing were the most popular
 studies. Mary Ella took archery and practiced swimming. Junior
 and senior life saving tests were
 practiced and passed in the waters
 of Lake Ontario.

Plan Overnight Hikes.
 Overnight hikes were planned so
 that each girl might have an opportunity to participate in at least one while in camp. Six of the girls
 there belonged to the Far Forest
 unit, finishing work for their Eag-
 let ranking. These girls, cleared away timber for their camp site,
 pitched their own tents and cooked their own meals. Miss Pile is an Eaglet scout so took up advanced work in pioneering and
 the making of tree furniture.

Miss Pile also attended a three-
 day camp at Seneca park in Rochester. Scout leaders in this camp
 are Eaglets and are selected from
 graduates of the University of Rochester. While in the Seneca camp
 girls specialize in merit badge
 work and prepare for camp.

Rochester Beautiful City.
 Rochester, says Miss Pile, is a beautiful city, with huge modern
 buildings, manufacturing plants,
 and well-kept parks. The Eastman Kodak plant is located here, buildings of the plant extending for
 blocks. The company maintains a school of music, part of the building given over to a theatre for the production of opera. The General Motors company has its main plant
 at Rochester and Miss Pile noted
 many other manufacturing plants
 located there for the production of
 delicate mechanisms, such as clin-
 ometers, surgical instruments,
 and fragile watch parts. Much of the power for the factories comes from the falls of the Genesee river.
 One of the gorges in this river is
 as deep as the Niagara gorge. The Wayne girl visited Niagara Falls
 and was much impressed by its grandeur.

One of the enjoyable trips which Miss Pile took while in the east
 was a boat ride from Rochester
 to Cobough, Canada. The trip took
 a full day over and back, and was not a slow steamer. Trains were carried across the line on the boat. These were loaded with coal
 to be left on the other side. The town of Cobough will be remembered by many as the birthplace
 of the beloved American actress,
 Marie Dressler. Miss Pile visited
 Miss Dressler's old home.

A few days before Miss Pile took
 the trip across the lake, a large
 oil freighter had turned turtle near
 the dock at Cobough and she was
 much interested in watching workmen draining oil from the bottom of the wrecked vessel.

Manufacture Dolomite For Roads.
 A special product of Rochester, manufactured extensively in that
 place, is dolomite which is used for
 road surfacing. Miss Pile states
 that it is similar to rock but has
 many desirable qualities in road
 work.

The art museum at Rochester contains many original and valuable paintings and priceless antiques. One of the objects in which Miss Pile was interested was a glass urn, Roman make, and of the second century A. D. Another was a Flemish Renaissance tapestry,
 made in Brussels in the sixteenth century.

The Wayne girl enjoyed many short trips, among them a visit to Buffalo, N. Y., and to Palmyra, Al.
 At the latter place is located the monument where people of the Wor-
 mon faith hold their ceremonies.

Girls Home From Summer Work At University In West

Miss Maude Curley and Miss Mary Lewis arrived home the first of the week from Palo Alto, Calif., where they attended summer sessions at Leland Stanford university. The girls enjoyed their work and saw much of interest while in the west.

Miss Curley and Miss Lewis took the route through Pueblo, Colo., going out early in the summer; this took them through Salida, over Monarch pass and up the Gunnison river, the latter famous for its fishing. The Gunnison has always been a favorite stream for anglers but of late years, too much commercialized.

Streams had overflowed banks after heavy rains and the girls had glimpses for miles of beds of wild iris, the fragile purple blooms nodding above the water. Wild snapdragon grew in profusion along the roadside in the higher altitudes. The girls went through Salt Lake City and into California by the beautiful Lake Tahoe route. Tahoe nestles like a blue jewel at the base of lofty mountains; pines grow down to the edge of the lake.

Interesting Short Trips
 The Wayne girls had many interesting trips from Palo Alto to points along the coast. One day they drove to the Mission San Jose at San Jose. The church belonging to this old mission, was wrecked many years ago but the mission proper, where Indians were instructed by the padres, is still standing. Many of the old

Rural Rehabilitation Projects Helping Solve Relief Problems In Dakota County

One of nine rural rehabilitation projects in Nebraska is the project near South Sioux City, in charge of Dr. W. M. Hawkins and under local supervision of Wm. E. Von Seggern, Jr. Each of the 22 sets-ups is comprised of seven acres and set of buildings. The government rents the land and buildings the first year to the occupant who will purchase the set-up the second year.

Five acres are used for crops, one for the pasture and one for the house and barn. Each family has a cow, about 150 to 200 chickens, a sow and pigs. Produce is marketed in cooperative way, each being given credit at the cooperative organization for the amount he brings to market. At the end of a period each will be paid for produce brought to the cooperative.

Each family was taken from the Dakota county relief rolls. The acreage must be cared for according to regulation. If a man can find supplemental employment, such as cementing, packing house or other work, he is permitted to do this. Such work must not interfere with his gardening. Often one will hire another to attend to his acreage for a time.

The rural rehabilitation farmstead projects are solving the problem of caring for stranded farm families. The program of small acreage farming enables a large number of families to be placed on a small amount of land with a minimum cost to each family.

Products stressed for this intensive farming program are vegetables, berries and fruits. Little time has been devoted by Nebraska farmers to the cultivation of these products, large amounts being imported every year. Men working these plots of land are bringing this produce for their families to supply local markets.

Great care was taken in selecting places suitable for intensive farming, special attention being paid to soil quality and water supply, and outlets for surplus products. Consequently farmsteads are located, where possible, close to city markets.

Size of each unit in the farmsteads varies from 7 to 13 acres. The small unit carefully selected and handled under expert supervision offers best opportunities for families chosen. The South Sioux City farmstead of which Wm. Von Seggern is director, is made up of 152 acres and carries for 22 families.

Design of buildings on farmsteads is controlled to meet individual needs and by the precedent of rural architecture in the state. Buildings are not planned with modern conveniences. This gives the individual an opportunity to better his own condition by planning ahead, and also prevents criticism of government aid to relief cases. Buildings are located on the plots and planned as to interior, so that routine tasks may be accomplished with the least expenditure of time and effort. There is no waste space. Building materials are selected with the thought of obtaining the maximum in quality for expenditure made.

Buildings are substantial but unpretentious in design, neat and clean in appearance and maintained accordingly. Individuality may be attained by the tenant in attention to porches, roof lines, entrances and the location of the buildings on his plot. A dwelling, a chicken house and a barn meet the requirements of the farmer. The barn provides room for two cows and feed storage space. Water for domestic use is obtained from individual wells located conveniently.

Sizes of the dwellings differ with the sizes of the family to be housed therein but are alike in that they contain a living-dining room, size-

A. J. Hyatt Recalls Joining Army Seventyfour Years Ago At Age of 15

"I'm over 17," declared a 15-year-old lad "way back in 1861, standing unsteadily on a log which separated his socks from the soles of his heavy boots. "Well, you look it," snapped the recruiting officer at Davenport, Iowa, and so A. J. Hyatt, breathed a sigh of relief and joined the Union army 74 years ago. Private Hyatt took up his musket, figured out speaking, and became a full-fledged unit in Company A, 11th Iowa Infantry. The war broke out in the spring of 1861 and continued five years. During all that time, though in active fighting, suffering much discomfort from cold and wet, Private Hyatt was never ill a day nor was he wounded.

Mr. Hyatt's parents objected to his joining the army on the grounds of his extreme youth, so he ran away to a steamboat landing on the Missouri, taking a boat over to the Mississippi and on to Davenport, Iowa. Fearful of letting his parents know where he was, thinking they might take steps to procure his discharge from the army, Mr. Hyatt did not write to them for over a year. Extreme loneliness finally forced him to write his sister in Illinois, who in turn, informed her father and mother of the boy's whereabouts.

Recruits Roughly Trained.

The new recruits were taken to Camp McClellan at Davenport, Iowa, and roughly trained for immediate service. Many who enlisted at the time Mr. Hyatt joined the service were boys. After a month of rigid discipline and training the men were taken to a camp at Carroll, Ill., where they were separated into brigades and sent to Pittsburgh Landing on the Tennessee river. First active fighting was seen by the "rookies" in a ten-day battle which began early Sunday morning with a surprise attack. The close of the first day of fighting saw the north taking a great deal of punishment and loss. Then, but by evening of the second day, the boys in blue had forced the boys in grey back into Corinth and won the day.

Mr. Hyatt recalls the sensation which sent prickles up his spine when he awoke to hear bullets whining through his tent roof on the morning of his initiation into army life. Orders flew fast and furiously. Lines formed and two days of open-field fighting followed. General Grant was chief commander of the Union armies and General Johnson and General Beauregard, in charge of the Confederate troops.

Many Fatalities In Battle.

The many who fell in these skirmishes were buried in long trenches at the close of day. The wounded were taken from the fields and carried to rude tents which served as hospitals. Nurses and doctors followed the troops and took charge of setting up the hospitals near the battlefields. Losses in the battle of Pittsburg Lapping were heavy on both sides as neither army had had time to put up breastworks. Mr. Hyatt recalls that his first pension was given him after an examination by a southern doctor after the war.

In Sherman's Famous March.

General Sherman's Atlanta campaign, with the famous march to the sea, brings back to Mr. Hyatt the hardships of the long trek. Twenty miles a day or over, through mud and slush over the shoe-tops, soaked to the skin and tired to the point of exhaustion, the soldiers plodded on day after day. When orders were given to stop for the day, the men ripped up rail fences for fires to cook the evening meal and to dry out clothing as much as possible. Supper finished, the men lay down for the night in their gum rubber blankets which partially protected them from the mud and water of the roads. Often the rubber blankets, or "paunchos," would be stiff with cold and covered with snow in the mornings. Orders for night marching often came shortly after the men had settled themselves for the night and the weary soldiers struggled to their feet, pulled up haversack, knapsack and musket from beneath the paunchos, loaded them onto weary shoulders and plodded along for the remainder of the night.

The men carried a load of from 70 to 80 pounds consisting of a rubber blanket, two wool blankets, a dog tent, knapsack for clothes and haversack with five-days' food rations, 3-pint canteen, bayonet, cartridge belt and cartridge box containing 40 cartridges. The first guns carried were old-fashioned muskets which used ounce balls and three buckshot. Rifles replaced these heavy guns the last few years of the war.

Food Rations Light.

Food rations consisted of hard tack, "sow-belly," beans, rice and a small amount of coffee. This was supplemented by any delicacies which might be procured along the line of march—chickens, geese, ducks and young pigs. The weakness of the northern men for bayonetting all provender crossing their path earned for them the title of the "ravenous Yanks." Mr. Hyatt chuckles as he recalls the misfortunes of a fat little pig which crossed his path one afternoon, and so took its last pig-a-back ride toward a pot of stew.

The cavalry went ahead to scout for possible attacks. After the cavalry came the infantry, each regiment followed by its own ammunition wagons. The quartermaster's wagons carried the "grub" supply. The infantry proceeded in march formation, companies divided into ranks of one and two, three and four, thus making identification of position easier for officers in command.

Regiments were made up of ten companies each. There were 1,000 men in Mr. Hyatt's regiment when the long march began but active fighting all along the way diminished its number. The fort at Atlanta, Ga., was stormed as many as seven times in one day.

Regular clothing was furnished by the government but dress suits for parade had to be purchased by the individual. Uniforms were plain trousers and blouses in the vivid blue adopted by the Union army. Caps were of the same shade. Shoes were sturdily built of rough leather. All extra clothing aside from that furnished when a recruit entered the army, was paid for from the soldier's salary.

News of Wars Traveled Fast.

News of the end of the war traveled like wildfire through the ranks. Mr. Hyatt's regiment was encamped at Louisville, Ky., at that time and troops were mustered out soon after. Sherman's men lacked one day's march to Richmond when the news came that General Lee had surrendered to General Grant. The city of Richmond was surrounded by Union troops and all means of communication from the city had been destroyed.

After receiving his discharge, Mr. Hyatt went to Plattsmouth, Neb., where his parents lived, having migrated there from Somers, Kendall county, Ill., before the war. Mr. Hyatt was born at Somers on February 1, 1846, and will observe his ninetieth birthday this winter.

Lives Here 47 Years.

Forty-seven years ago, Mr. Hyatt came to Wayne with his family and has resided here since. When his parents first came to Nebraska elk and buffalo roamed the prairie and wagon trains traveled the old trail from Omaha to Denver. Mr. Hyatt recalls the heavy whips which the drivers cracked about the ears of the plodding oxen and the buffalo jerks, swaying in the drying air from the poles of the wagons. Some of the wagons were so heavily loaded that seven and eight yokes of oxen were required to haul them. From ten to a dozen wagons made up a train, moving westward over the rutted trails.

Mr. Hyatt enjoys excellent health despite his 89 years, is jovial and active and has an excellent memory. He walks the mile downtown in all kinds of weather, sometimes as many as three times a day. He points with pride to the silk flag which always hangs on the wall of his living room and which was several years ago at Denver by the president of the New York Relief Corps.

Mr. Hyatt and son, Burt Hyatt, went to Grafton, Neb., last Thursday to visit the graves of Mr. Hyatt's mother and father.
