

Herald Broadcasting to be Discontinued—Kiwanis to Take a Hand in Government Affairs—Humanity Prone to Suffer—Farm Independence—Demand for Gravel.

The Herald has decided to discontinue its broadcasting service over WJAG at the end of this month. November 30 will be the closing program from this studio.

We put into effect the broadcasting hookup with WJAG on February 13, 1933, and gave daily programs of one hour each.

If an advertiser had a brief announcement with a few special bargains—not too many to remember—and there happened to be numerous listeners who were likely to be felt.

It may be assumed that broadcasting for nearly three years has made Wayne better known.

What of the future of broadcasting, we can only conjecture. It seems to us that neighborhood tie-ups are too feeble and too unremunerative to warrant the burden of expense.

New Move for Kiwanis. While the Kiwanis club is not expected to engage in partisan politics, its governors-elect, representing 90,000 members in 1900 cities of the United States and Canada, have lately decided to project the Kiwanis organization into an intense study of government policies.

Earthly Suffering. In his Fairbury Journal, Editor W. F. Cramb mentions the existence of much suffering in this world, due to one cause or another—suffering that cannot always be relieved by governments.

Farm Conveniences. We acted as chauffeur for a Herald reporter out to the Iver Anderson farm, in the northwest part of the county, during the past week, and we were impressed by many substantial and modernly equipped farmsteads.

Monday Pavilion Sale Is Success. First of the Monday sales at the Wayne pavilion brought a good crowd and active bidding.

CORN HYBRIDS ARE DISPLAYED

Results Of Tests Made At Petersen Farm Shown At State Bank.

Corn from the hybrid and variety tests conducted the past summer at the Ernest Petersen farm northeast of Wayne, are on display this week at the State National Bank.

Corn displayed is from the more promising of the 35 varieties planted at the Petersen farm in cooperation with the University of Nebraska and United States Department of Agriculture.

Seed for the Peterson farm experiment was secured through the university college of agriculture.

Commercial hybrid seed corn refers to seed produced by growers in natural crossing plots.

Tests show that good hybrids outyield open pollinated varieties from 10 to 15 per cent.

Plan Decorations For Holidays Here

Young Business Men's club committee met last evening for discussion of Christmas plans.

At the meeting last week Norbert Brugger was appointed as chairman for the committee on decorations.

The committee will make plans for the number of trees needed for decoration of the business district.

Monday Pavilion Sale Is Success. First of the Monday sales at the Wayne pavilion brought a good crowd and active bidding.

CORN SHOW COULD WELL FIGURE IN HOLIDAY DOINGS

SOME one suggests that the Young Business Men's club could well include the proposed corn show in pre-Christmas activities.

Some of the varieties have matured remarkably well considering the distance seed was moved.

Endorses PRESIDENT Roosevelt casts aside all democrats and republicans who might aspire to the United States senate in Nebraska next year by announcing himself unqualifiedly for Senator Norris whom he thinks should be kept in the senate as long as he lives.

Unless the president and senator change their minds neither will oppose the other in the coming campaign. They will ride along in warring party vehicles, but each will boost for the other and hope for the success of the other, not caring a picayune what become of the vehicles in which they have found temporary accommodations.

Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit's radio priest, admits he was mistaken in thinking the Roosevelt administration had "driven the money changers from the temple," concluding that principles of his National Union for Social Justice and the New Deal are "unalterably opposed."

Word comes from Washington that Professor Rexford G. Tutwell, resettlement administrator, has cooked up a plan to colonize an 800-acre tract eighteen miles from Omaha, and launch a community-owned dairy industry under federal supervision.

Christian Science Services.
"Soul and Body" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches for Sunday, November 24.
The Golden Text is from Lamentations 3:25: "The Lord is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him."

A passage from the Bible in the lesson-sermon is from Deuteronomy 6:4, 5: "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."
A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy reads: "Science reveals Spirit, Soul, as not in the body, and God as not in man but as reflected by the latter. This is a leading point in the Science of Soul, that Principle is not in its idea. Spirit, Soul, is not confined in man, and is never in matter." (467).

Pioneers Are Honored Guests Monday Of Business and Professional Women

Faith and fortitude of pioneers characterized the experiences of Wayne county's early settlers as the stories were told Monday evening by pioneers who were guests of Wayne Business and Professional Women's club at the L. A. Finske home. Mrs. W. A. Hunter, Mrs. J. E. Brittain, Mrs. Sarah Ahern, who was accompanied by her son, J. J. Ahern, Mrs. A. A. Welch, Mrs. Mary McMakin, Mrs. J. M. Cherry, Mrs. P. C. Crockett and Miss Dorothy Bressler for her mother, Mrs. J. T. Bressler, were special guests.

Miss Ruth Ross welcomed the visitors and introduced Mrs. S. A. Lutgen who spoke of the fitness of honoring pioneers, those who have gone ahead to prepare the way. "The pioneer is a builder and has dreams, faith and perseverance. He must meet solitude, drudgery and pestilence. Faith in self and place, desire and willingness to work and the blessings which come as a result of work are rewards." It was Corodona who visited this region and said it looked like a country of gold and silver. Little did he realize that 400 years later the soil would produce six times the annual wealth coming from gold and silver of the United States. Later travelers were discouraged, but in 1842 John Fremont declared this a great garden.

In 1869, Mrs. Lutgen continued. Willard Graves who was riding through northeast Nebraska seeking relief from rheumatism, realized the value of the soil and climate and sent this word to Paw Paw, Ill. It was in that year the first band of settlers came and others followed the next spring. The county of Wayne was organized in the Geo. Scott home in September, 1870, and the county seat was named for LaPorte, Ind. When the railroad missed LaPorte, the county seat was moved to Wayne.

Mistake With Babies.
To introduce stories of pioneer experiences Mrs. Lutgen told of a social gathering at the LaPorte court house. After the children had gone to sleep they were wrapped up and placed in the lumber wagons. The infant son in the Busdick family and the infant daughter of another family were placed in the wrong wagons and the families did not discover the mistake until they reached home. Each cared for the infant over night and returned to LaPorte the next morning, hoping the other family would do the same. They did and the babies were returned to their proper owners.

County Organized.
Mrs. A. Hunter told of the organization of the county at her father's home. Necessary papers had been secured from Governor Butler, but legal voters were so few that one of the men had to hold two offices, those of sheriff and coroner. To Mrs. Hunter, then Mary Scott, fell the duties of providing chairs and lunch for the men. W. G. Vroman served as chairman and the proceedings became so exciting that he tipped over in the chair and broke a rocker. As Mr. Whitten did not qualify as treasurer, having not been here long enough, Geo. Scott was appointed to this office by the commissioners. This was the first piece of business transacted by these officers.

Money In Ground.
Keeping the county money safe was a problem in the early days. Mrs. Hunter related. The family saved ashes to use as a substitute for lye in making soft soap. The Scotts conceived the idea of digging a hole in the basement floor for the money and covering the hole with the ashes. This provided the county's first safe. As the taxes were paid in Mr. Scott would drive to Sioux City to place the funds in a bank. On such trips he put the money in the bottom of the lumber wagon and on top placed hay and sacks of wheat.

Have Christmas Tree.
Mrs. Brittain described the first community Christmas tree at LaPorte, she and Mrs. J. T. Bressler having promoted the plan. This was in 1880. A heavy snow covered the ground. The women thought the young folks should have some special Christmas celebration so they solicited funds from the town and court house people. No evergreens were available and no opportunity was in sight for going to Sioux City or Winser for one. The women secured a boxelder and covered the branches with white cloth and placed cotton on the tree and about the base to represent snow. Everyone received gifts. A Mrs. Cook made a heavy wool coat, every stitch by hand, and placed this on the tree. Correspondence paper was given the young men with suggestion that they write home to their mothers. Turkeys and butter were among other gifts on the tree.

Mrs. Brittain related experiences in horesback riding. She had an Indian pony and a friend had a pretty black horse. The women sent east for stiff silk hats with veils and for patterns from which they made elaborate riding dresses. The veils and skirts floating on the air as the ladies rode together was an unusual sight.

Mrs. Brittain told of another occasion when she and Mrs. Bressler took their infants and neighbor girls and drove to Leslie precinct. Each drove. They were invited to stay for dinner and started home toward dusk. Mrs. Brittain led the way and was lost on the prairie until she came to a road near the Joe Beckenhauer farm. Her horse then sensed where he was and started on a run. Suddenly the horse began to climb an incline which proved to be the sides of a well which someone had started digging that day. The horse became frightened and went round and round the well. Mrs. Brittain held tight to the reins, realizing that great danger lurked in the open well, and soon Mrs. Bressler came. The Brittain horse fell and a shaft pierced its side. Others in the party called Mrs. Beckenhauer who brought his horse and wagon and led the frightened horse and the women back to LaPorte, arriving home about midnight.

Aherns From Jackson.
Mrs. Ahern and J. J. Ahern related early experiences in Wayne. The family had lived at Jackson where M. P. Ahern was employed on the railroad. Mrs. Ahern had a dress making and millinery store. When the railroad was extended, Mr. Ahern was supervising the construction to Wayne. Fire had just a short time before destroyed Mrs. Ahern's store at Jackson and a little son had lost his life in this, so Mrs. Ahern did not want to be left alone. She packed up and came to Wayne on the construction train.

The Ahern family first lived in a tent and soon established a store in a little frame building on Main street, living in rear quarters. Though Mrs. Ahern lacked capital, she went to Chicago and wholesale in a stock of hats and dry goods. She figured carefully and bought only the exact amount the Chicago men allowed, and was careful to pay just as she had agreed. Mrs. Ahern raised her family and managed the store.

Fine millinery was important in the early days and hats were trimmed and retrimmed for several seasons. Mrs. Ahern's method of bookkeeping was interesting. As she completed work on a hat she wrote the name and amount of charge on a slip of paper and pinned this to the window curtain. Each night the senior Mr. Ahern collected these slips to compile the day's business.

McMakin Came Early.
Mrs. Mary McMakin related that she came in 1884 and located southeast of Wayne. Each fall the family was discouraged and wanted to sell out and move elsewhere. But each spring they felt encouraged and after a few years they were glad they had stayed.

The blizzard of January 12, 1888, Mrs. McMakin recalled as the worst storm she ever experienced.

Comes As Teacher.
Mrs. A. A. Welch, who came in 1883, said her sister had written her about the fine young man who was head of the high school. She and her brother drove straws to determine who should come and Mrs. Welch was the one. In a couple of years she was married to the young man.

Mrs. Welch told of her parents coming from Pennsylvania to LeMars, Iowa, in early days. Oxen were used in traveling the 10 miles to town. Mrs. Welch recalls that the family did not have newspapers or calendars and it was difficult to keep track of time. Debates and doctrinal discussions occupied much of the leisure time.

Here Before Wayne.
Mrs. J. M. Cherry and Edith Mears, came to Wayne county before the town was started. The Mears family had land southwest of the present site of Wayne. Mrs. Cherry recalls that deer were plentiful in those times and that her brother killed 16 one winter. Indians were few but always caused children to fear in the early times. Mrs. Cherry and her brother were home alone one time when Indians stopped. The children quickly began to nail bedclothes over the windows. The Indians stopped to change blankets and went on.

Find Treasure Here.
Mrs. P. C. Crockett arrived in Wayne July 3, 1884. The day the Methodists were having a stand at the county fair and she spent her first day selling candy for the church. Mr. Crockett had come earlier and when he met Mrs. Crockett at Emerson he told her he had no place for them to sleep. She assured him they would find something and they did get a room and later moved into a frame building on north Main street. They made a bed by nailing 2x4's together, tying rope across, and on top placing a straw tick. A grocery box served as table. The Crocketts entertained friends at dinner and all enjoyed the occasion so much or more than though they had fine furniture.

Bressler Writes Letter.
A letter written by the late J. T. Bressler to his father in Pennsylvania was read by Miss Bressler. Mr. Bressler landed in West Point April 21, 1870, on his way to the new land and as this was end of the railroad and it would be some time before he could mail another letter, he wrote to his folks that he would remain over night and then walk 18 miles to take a homestead. "I like the country fine so far," he concluded.

Miss Bressler told that her father lived in Leslie precinct and her mother, who had come to Dakota county in 1867, came to this county to teach. Long years of activity followed.

Elaborate Functions.
Mr. Ahern described a few of the elaborate functions staged in Wayne in the early days. The organization of lawyers was one of the most active. He read a menu for a banquet given by this group, the menus for which were printed on white satin. Three kinds of soup, six varieties of fish, several other meats and elaborate variety of cakes and other good things were included.

"Messiah" Progresses.
Miss Genevieve Kingston reported that the "Messiah" is progressing successfully and will be presented December 15, Carleton, born of Sioux City, who sings in the oratorio each year at Monmouth college, will take the bass solos. Prof. Clifford Bair, director, will sing the tenor solos. Prof. J. R. Keith is directing an orchestra accompaniment.

It was reported that the club made $19.56 on the show sponsored and this will be used for "Messiah" expense.

Mrs. E. E. Gaitley, who represented the group at the community council, reported that the group will assist in auditorium dedication.

For Monday's program Miss Harriet Lamson, Miss Jeanne Wright and Miss Frances Kiker, accompanied by Miss Helen Toy, sang "On Wings of Song" and "The Blue Swan." Mrs. E. E. Melby and Mrs. Gayle Childs played a piano duet, "Enticement."

Refreshments were served to 40 by Miss Maude Curley, Miss Ruth Ross, Miss Mary Kile, Miss Helen Kellogg, Miss Eva Glimsdal and Miss Pearl Sewell.

A Christmas candlelight dinner is planned Tuesday, December 3, when Miss Martha Pierce speaks on "Christmas in Art," Mrs. R. R. Smith "Christmas in Story," and Prof. Bair has Christmas music.

NUMBER THIRTYTHREE

Hunters Numerous For Pheasant Season

Second season on pheasants, open from Sunday until today, brought hunters here from many Nebraska counties, also from Iowa and South Dakota.

One reason so many hunters come to Wayne county, explains Sheriff J. H. Pile, is that Wayne county people are excellent hosts.

Wayne county had a large number of pheasants this season because the corn was plentiful and the birds came in from the north and west.

Personality Development Challenges Parents and Educators of Present

In the youths of today is great possibility—in them lie the hope and real mission of America, in making a finer and better world.

Dr. Dienst began his address by complimenting women of Wayne community. It was the incentive of women who started the city library in 1897.

Dr. Dienst stated that the "education of the 20's was attractive. Those were years of prosperity—false prosperity—but they taught us much."

Dr. Dienst told his father's habit of taking his children one at a time to work with him and helping them do little things.

Christmas dinner is planned December 12 with Dr. Mary Honey and the International Relations group in charge.

Unusual Exhibits Displayed Saturday At St. Paul Church

A number of interesting articles were displayed at the antique exhibit at St. Paul's Lutheran church Saturday afternoon from 5 until 10 o'clock.

A cane belonging to Mrs. T. S. Hook's father, elaborately engraved with figures of "Heroes of the Fistic Era," bore signs of long usage in the smoothly worn hilt.

Mrs. Van Bradford exhibited an egg broiler which came from Holland 200 years ago, and a home-spun velvet pressing her grandmother as a wedding gift.

Coin exhibits were very interesting. In Chas. Lapham's collection is a Bryan lucky piece with the date, 1896.

Mrs. Wilbur Spahr exhibited a cane made from natural growth vine, which originally belonged to her great-grandfather, a general 60 years old which belonged to her grandmother. In the locked pendant is woven a lock of hair.

Exhibits owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Robinson are a high chair used by three generations and a doll cradle which was made for Mrs. Robinson as a child.

A number of old books belonging to Wayne people, were in the exhibit. Mrs. Wilbur Spahr owns a German song book dated 1829.

"The New York Clipper," a newspaper, belonging to Miss Doris Lincoln, has a complete account of the death of Abraham Lincoln.

Miss Frances Cherry displayed a footstool made 100 years ago, with well-worn needlepoint cover.

Other unusual articles displayed were garments with hoop skirts, bustles and basques; old-fashioned petticoats and baby garments.

Sirup Important In Family Diet

Sirup of some kind, as well as sugar, is usually an item in the well-stocked pantry. Some of the sirups have a special place in cooking, and all of them are useful on the table. In some parts of the country, sirup or molasses appear on the table at every meal. That may be too often for a well-balanced diet, for sweets take away the appetite and crowd out more important foods, such as milk and vegetables and fruits. But such is the sweet tooth of America.

There are sirups and sirups, however, and they differ in food values as well as in flavor and consistency, says the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Considered geographically, there are the sugar-cane products of the "deep south"—cane sirup, molasses, and refiners' sirup; the "sorghum belt," which reaches northward from the sugar-cane belt, sorghum sirup; in New England and some of the northern states, maple sirup. Corn sirup comes, of course, from the corn belt of the middle west. There is plain sugar sirup, made of sugar (beet or cane) and water. And last but not least there is honey, produced in nearly all of the states, and one sirup that nature offers ready-made.

Cane sirup is made, and most of it is used, in the states where the sugarcane grows. There, they say, every household has its cane sirup, either made on the home farm or bought in a local store. The farmers raise the sugar cane and make the sirup by pressing out the juice and boiling it down to sirup thickness. Thus cane sirup contains all the food values of the sugar cane juice, most important of which are iron and calcium. Government regulations require that cane sirup, to be so labeled, shall consist of evaporated sugar cane juice containing not more than 30 percent water.

Molasses and refiners' sirup are by-products of the commercial sugar-cane manufacturing process. They are sold all over the country in one form or another. When the "raw" sirup is crystallized out of the sugar cane juice, a "mother" liquid is left. Concentrated and clarified, this is molasses, of which there are different grades according to the amount of sugar taken out. "Cooking molasses," therefore, is being less sweet. "Blackstrap" is the lowest grade, and has very little sugar. Any molasses, however, contains all the food values of the cane juice except that part taken out in the raw sugar, and like cane sirup, is rich in iron and calcium. To be correctly labeled, molasses must not contain more than 25 percent water.

Molasses, as every cook knows, is the "very making" of some kinds of cakes, cookies and candies because of its flavor and texture it causes it to be used also in baked beans, Indian pudding, and various dark breads. It contains acid, and soda should be used with it in breads and cakes of all sorts. The gas thus produced acts as leavening.

The other by-product of sugar-making, refiners' sirup, is the liquid left from the refining of the brown, or "raw" cane sugar, into white sugar. It has the cane-sirup flavor and brown color, and is used often in mixtures with other sirups, under various trade names.

In the sorghum belt, the farmers grow sweet sorghum cane and make sorghum sirup from it in the same way their neighbors to the southward make sugar cane sirup. The sorgho food values are higher if anything than the cane sirup values. More than 13 million gallons of sorgho sirup were made in this country last year, and this year there will doubtless be more because the sorghum crop is bigger. Sorgho is a table sirup, dark, thick, and strong flavored, and is used just as molasses is used in cooking. Sorghum sirup, by the way, is sometimes wrongly called sorghum molasses. There is no such thing as molasses made from sorghum. Under the law the label "sorghum sirup" or "sorgho sirup" belongs to the product made by evaporation of juice obtained from the sorghum plant, and contains not more than 30 percent water.

Sugar maple trees yield the sap that makes the only native American sirup. Though sugar cane and sorghum were brought to this country from the other side of the world, the Indians were making maple sirup long before white men appeared on the American scene. The maple flavor is considered by many people the finest of all sirup flavors, and maple sirup or maple sugar is used in cakes and puddings, sauces, ice creams, and candies of choicest kinds. As to food value, however, sugar is the chief item.

Only a little over two million gallons of maple sirup were made in this country last year, and the average yield is not much if any more. For this reason, and because of the wide demand, maple sirup is often diluted for market, or imitated. Maple mixtures usually contain sugar sirup, or refiners' sirup or corn sirup with maple, but no mixed sirup may be legally sold as maple. The label "Maple sirup" is allowed only on sirup made by evaporating maple sap or by dissolving maple sugar in water. The product must not contain more than 95 percent water and must not weigh less than 11 pounds to the gallon. Imitations are to be distinguished from mixtures. They contain no maple sirup and must be labeled "Imitation" or "artificially flavored and colored."

Sugar sirup, which is used commercially in sirup mixtures, is made simply by dissolving sugar in water and boiling it down to a sirup thickness. It usually is made at home, perhaps with brown sugar, or perhaps with white sugar (beet or cane) and fruit or other flavoring, to use with hot cakes for breakfast, as sauce for some dessert, or as sweetening for drinks, especially iced drinks.

Corn sirup differs from other sirups in the kinds of sugar it contains and the purposes it serves. In the cane products, in sorgho and in maple sirup, most of the sugar is the kind chemist call sucrose. Corn sirup is chiefly glucose and maltose, neither of which is by any means as sweet as sucrose. For table purposes, corn sirup is usually mixed with refiners' sirup or maple sirup, to give it sweetness and flavor. The mixtures are sold under various trade names. The corn sirup known as "crystal white," which is about 90 percent corn sirup and 10 per cent refiners' sirup, is colorless and very useful in making soft candies and some kinds of frostings for cakes, because the glucose in it keeps them from crystallizing too much, or, as we say, "turning to sugar." Corn sirup is largely used in some of the maple sirup mixtures, as the labels, of course, are required to show.

Honey, manufactured by the bees from the nectar of flowers, is the sweetest of all sirups because it contains so much of the sweetest of all sugars, levulose. It is used as other sirups are used, and is prized for its unique flavor.

Former Winside Boy In Training For Jockey At Kentucky Racing Stables

Not many boys realize a childhood ambition at age of 17. Horses were always a passion with Irving Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Anderson of northwest of Winside, and in January of the past year he was fortunate in securing work at the Calumet Farms near Lexington, Ky., stables for thoroughbred race horses. Lexington is in the famous bluegrass country, the Calumet Farms covering an area of 1,000 acres of rolling, grazing land.

Warren Wright is the owner of the Calumet Farms, the Wright family famous in the horse-breeding business in a state where racing horses are at a premium. Mr. Wright lives in Chicago and is owner of the Calumet and General Food Products manufacturing plants in the city. The racing stables are a hobby of Mr. Wright.

The stables now include 33 head of yearlings, 30 brood mares and 18 racing horses. In 1930 the Calumet Farms changed from standard breeds to thoroughbred racing breeds. The Farms featured the best in standard and are now working toward perfection in the racing breeds. There are six large racing stables in the vicinity of Lexington and several small ones, most of the country thereabouts devoted to horse raising. As one progresses farther south, tobacco fields are seen for miles.

Boys Supervised in Work. Irving is one of seven boys employed in looking after the horses. The boys are under the supervision of trainers and a manager, with four of the lads caring for the yearlings and three the racing stock. More boys are usually employed during the summer months.

The boys exercise the horses during the mornings, usually finishing about 11 o'clock. The Farms have two outdoor racing tracks, a three-fourths mile work-out track and a three-eighths mile gallop track. There is also an indoor track in the large horse stable for exercising the animals in bad weather. Yearlings are trained at the Farms until pronounced old enough and good enough to take out on racing meets.

In Training For Jockey. Irving is in training now for a jockey. He has already ridden in two races and will ride regularly during the racing season at Miami, Fla., which begins the last of this month. A year after winning his first race, Irving will be considered a full-fledged jockey. The weight of a jockey is usually kept between 105 and 115 pounds, an apprentice getting a five-pound weight allowance for the schooling year. The Winside boy now tips the scales at 100 pounds. Most racing horses are

V-8 LEADERSHIP

ONE MILLION FORD V-8 CARS AND TRUCKS IN TEN MONTHS

On October 31 of last year, Henry Ford announced his intention to build a million Ford V-8s in 1935. We are pleased to report that this goal was reached in exactly ten months instead of a full year. One million cars and trucks is an impressive total. But figures by themselves mean nothing. It is what they represent that counts. Selling a V-8 at a low price has brought a new kind of automobile within reach of the people. Producing it has provided steady work for hundreds of thousands of men in the Ford plants, associated industries and on the farm. These million Ford V-8 cars and trucks have helped to make things better all around. In the first ten months of 1935 the Ford Motor Company paid out, in the United States alone, $140,119,326.00 in wages and $523,111,389.00 for materials.

At Sea, October 17. The state department furnishes each member a set of instructions and full information about China, Japan and the Philippines. This is in form of a mimeographed book and contains valuable information about the customs, foreign exchange and what to do and when to do it, and when not to do it. So members, when they land in these countries now know what to wear, what to say and what not to say.

The propagandists and lobbyists follow the party to the other side of the world. Every senator and congressman daily by pre-arrangement gets a letter or literature about something. These letters are delivered to the steamers. Members too seasick to eat pay no attention. Others read them and are surprised to know they are being followed by propagandists of more money for the Grand Coulee, for lowering taxes or tariff on coconut oil and thousands of other things. There's a reason for this propaganda—never before have so many powerful leaders been together on such a long trip.

Awfully cold and half the passengers are sick. About the best sailor on board is the vice president. He takes his daily walks on the deck, smokes a black cigar and watches the senators and congressmen play shuffle board or takes a hand at a game of bridge in the smoking room.

There are two brides and grooms on board and both couples have been seasick for two days.

Members of the insular affairs committee are going into a huddle and from now on will study the sugar and coconut oil situation. These have much to do with this trip. We know that.

At Sea, October 23. This ship was once the property of the United States shipping company. It was named "The Pine State." It weighs 22,000 tons and was bought by the American line for a very low cost. Some hints are made that it didn't cost the company much over a dollar. The speed from last noon to this night was 450 miles. It carries a lot of freight. Even logs which will be finished into lumber in Japan because they tariff the lumber by the piece and logs go for a cheaper rate. It carries Ford parts for the Ford assembly plant and a lot of rayon pulp made in Washington state. The Japanese will make it into rayon cloth and sell it to Americans. Members of the crew say the freight pays the bill on this ship but a visit to the postoffice shows that this steamship is subsidized by our government and gets thousands of dollars from us for carrying a few bags of mail. Ship subsidy is expensive to American taxpayers.

Thirty years ago a lot of Nebraska boys went to the Philippines to join the Constabulary. When they crossed the meridian and lost a day they organized what was then known as the "Antipodes Club." Among them were Chas. Hourigan, Joe McDonald, Walter Neal and others. Most of them are dead now. So crossing this mythical line again after thirty years a new club was organized and a toast was drunk for the old Nebraska boys.

Two giant eagles have been following this ship for several days. The white scullies have disappeared and we are being followed by the dark albatross known as the North Albatross. Many whales are alongside blowing and attracting the attention of the party. Now and then a strange bird comes aboard and during the rough seas some of the giant black fish which abound in these northern waters are washed aboard.

At Sea, October 28. Since Friday this ship has been going down the coast of Japan. We are entering the Japanese waters from the north and we dock this afternoon at Yokohama. Many Japanese junkies and other craft have saluted the ship and signals that a great reception is awaiting us have come to us. There is much activity on the water and also on board. Members of the official party are getting ready for the good will functions and many of the newspaper men and people who are not coming back through Japan are making ready for the overland trip to meet us in Kobe.

The 75 Chinese and Hindu passengers who have been in the steerage are up on deck. We took these orientals on in Victoria, B. C. They are going back home after many years in America. Not one of these orientals came from a United States port. Visits with them indicate that it is mighty hard for them to get into our country. They tell us they saved many years to get the $90.00 which it cost them to get steerage passage on this ship. Many of them tell us they would like to live in our country and hope that some day the bars will be lifted and allow more orientals to come to live in the United States. They learn, too, however, that many of these Chinese, save much the money they make in our country and bring it back to their own country. So the listeners wonder about lifting the bars.

A newspaper correspondent who waited in Yokohama a week for your boat tells us he has been followed by spies during his entire stay. His luggage has been searched and some of his notes have disappeared. The Japanese want to know all about your business here and they find it out.

Fourteen members of the house committee on insular affairs held a meeting today. They instructed their chairman that they want less of social functions and more opportunity to visit the interior of the Philippines in order to study the coconut oil, sugar, hemp and other industries. These members suddenly find out they are not on any pleasure trip. They have learned that an effort is being made on the part of the Philippines to get more free trade into the United States after the Commonwealth government starts functioning. They learn that a trade conference is called for in January. They know that legislation pertaining to the Islands must originate in the house and this committee will have to act on that legislation. Every member represents some district which is interested in building a road, a canal, etc. So these members are holding regular meetings and telling their leaders that they want to find out about things in the Islands first hand so they can act intelligently when they come back home. Private interests are represented and there is some intrigue but so far as the insular affairs committee is concerned these members are determined that American interests must be protected first.

Members of the party are beginning to ask what to buy and what not to buy. Many of the members want to visit those places where so many novelties are made which are sold in competition to American made goods. They are told that even beer is now made in Japan and sold in Germany for less money than the Germans can make beer for.

Sansons and other craft are coming toward the ship. The pilot is on board and soon we will land. After a day and night we sail for Kobe and now we are but nine days from our objective, the Philippine Islands and to attend the birth of a new nation.

Fourteen 4-H Project Clubs Organized Past Year For Boys And Girls Of County

Fourteen project clubs were organized in Wayne county for 4-H workers the past year. Boys enrolling at the beginning of the club year totalled 54 and girls, 68. To date 41 boys and 48 girls have completed the project work outlined. The 4-H club work was organized in the county several years ago and enrollment increases each year.

Lozein and Donald Baird this year received county 4-H honors and last week were present with medals from the state headquarters.

Want To Be Leader.
To be a 4-H club leader is the ambition of Lozein Baird who has found social, educational and financial benefit from several years of activity in the work. Socially Miss Baird found the club helped her mix with girls. The study was of benefit educationally as it helped her learn how to keep records of activities and also how to conduct business meetings. She has found financial benefit through the prizes received, the poultry marketed and the savings effected on food and clothing.

Lozein Baird received the gold pin, an award for home economics champion of the county. The pin bears the picture of a girl and also the 4-H symbol. On the back is written, "County honor for food preparation."

Begin Work in 1927.
Lozein's interest in the club started in 1927 when her mother, Mrs. Fred Baird, organized a garden and poultry club for five girls. Lozein was then 10 years old. All five girls finished the work 100 percent that summer. Lozein had a garden 20x25 feet and raised 100 chickens. The following year Lozein was the only one who could continue the work and this she did alone, having five projects, canning, cooking and clothing in addition to the garden and poultry. Lozein made apron, holder, clothespin bag, work box and towel in the clothing project; canned 36 jars of fruit; raised 100 chickens; cooked 10 meals, planned menus for three days and prepared 15 recipes; and had garden the same size as the year before. In 1928 she continued all the work excepting sewing. She canned 40 quarts; raised a garden the same size; raised 100 chickens; and served 15 meals and planned menus for three days. Each of these years Lozein exhibited her work at the county fair and took a number of premiums.

During her high school days, Lozein was not so active in the club work. In 1934 the clothing club was formed in Brenna and Lozein became assistant to Mrs. Harold Anderson. She made two dresses, a slip and clothes convenience. She gave demonstration alone on the welt pocket and how to alter a pattern. With a team she demonstrated sewing at the Altonzo Soden home. She also demonstrated coloring and acted as judge. In district 35 she received first and second on dress, third on slip and first on clothes convenience. At the county fair her dress placed second and winning third.

Centers On Cooking.
Lozein's club activity was centered on cooking during 1935. She demonstrated breakfast menu and the club year just ended and prepared 2,725 meals. Mrs. Luther Anderson had a canning club last summer for little girls who put up 330 quarts of fruits and vegetables. Each child canned five pints of different fruits and vegetables. For display at the Wayne county fair.

Wide Awake Workers' club was organized the past spring on the "How and Why of Cooking" with Mrs. Carlos Martin as leader and Laura Vahlkamp assistant leader, and the following enrollment: Bonnie Jo Martin, president; Ruby Harper, vice president; Henrietta Vahlkamp, secretary; Etta Siphley, Laura Vahlkamp, Leona Meyer, Dorothy Baird, Lozein Baird, Wynette Wade, Wynred Mattes and Marian Frahm.

Wide Awake club held eight meetings and had 11 public demonstrations, three of which were judged. August 27 was set for the club's achievement day program at district 81; members displayed 61 exhibits at the Wayne county fair. Dorothea Bartlett of Winside, was leader the past summer of the Busy Bees and Twila Katz, assistant leader; Betty Wittie, president; Margaret Miller, vice president; Shirley Loebach, secretary; Mildred Christensen, news reporter; Mary Anna Reinbrecht, Ruth Schmode, Lore Weible, Mae Jurack and Twila-Katz were other members of the club devoting its attention to sewing. Merry Mixers, Winside cooking club, had Dorothea Bartlett as leader with Shirley Loebach as assistant leader. Officers were: Myrna Reimbrecht, president; Ruth Schmode, vice president; Twila Katz, secretary; Lore Weible, news reporter. Membership for the Merry Mixers was the same as for the Busy Bees.

Winside Sunshine Clothing and Cooking club had Mrs. H. J. Podoll and Mrs. Frank Gray, as leaders. Betty Gray was president; Margaret Miller, vice president; Elsie Dangberg, secretary; Goldie Coulter, news reporter; membership: Betty Nielsen, Anna Dangberg, Betty Podoll, Eileen Rabe and Audrey Farran.

Has Baby Beef Work.
Donald Baird, who is 16 years old, has concentrated on baby beef club work. In 1929 and 1930 he raised one calf each year. Since then he has had two calves during each feeding period. Donald demonstrated calf fitting in 1934 at the Lutt home and the same in 1935 at the Lawrence Ring home. With Dale Harper he gave similar demonstration before club leaders at Wayne in August, 1935. Donald served on the judging team at A. T. Claycomb's in 1934, and at Norfolk and Wayne on teams in 1935.

Of the 10 calf club meetings held each year Donald has missed only three in seven years. He attended the judging event in Norfolk, 4-H banquet last winter and the 4-H picnics. Each year he has shown his calves at the county fair in Wayne and the live stock show in Sioux City. His animals placed fifth in 1929, second in 1931, first in 1932, second in 1933 and fourth in 1934 at Wayne, and sixth in 1931, sixth in 1932, seventh in 1933 and fifth in 1934 at Sioux City. Donald was president of the calf club one year and has been news reporter two years. He secured Kenneth and Gene Baird as new members in 1933, Dale and Cecil Harper in 1934 and Russell and Earl Baird in 1935. Donald is a junior in Winside high school.

Many In Club Work.
Boys and girls doing first year work the past club year, number 87; second year, 14; third, 10, fourth, 6; fifth, 1; and sixth, 4. Club years are ended the last of September, and reorganized after that time if clubs are to continue for a full year. Some of the clubs are organized in the spring, others continue through winter months, according to the nature of the club work.

Cooking groups of the county prepared 1,700 different dishes for presenting a part of the pledge taken by boys and girls: "I pledge my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger services, and my health to better living, for my club, my community and my country." The national motto is "Make the best better."

There are a number of general requirements for the organization of a 4-H project club. There must be five or more members in one project with a local leader in charge. There must be a definite club organization with officers having charge of business meetings, and at least six meetings scheduled. A judging contest of work accomplished must be held with a demonstration team giving at least one public demonstration locally. There must be an exhibit of products and an Achievement day, with at least 60 per cent of the enrollment making final reports.

Club members not only get practical education and training in farm and home practices, but develop themselves as public speakers, judges, exhibitors, good sportsmen and good citizens. They become more interested in farming, home making and community life. Many get a practical education in the prize trips they win.

To Select Calves Soon.
Boys and girls in calf club work in Wayne county will soon select animals for feeding in compliance with the 4-H project club rules. Calves are selected at a few months of age when they may be seen with their mothers. Advantages in selecting a calf at an early age, are that the animal's mother may be observed and good points noted; and that the calf may be taught to eat grain before it is weaned.

Members choose calves of the breed which they most admire, and are careful in choosing purebred animals when possible. The animal must be a good calf in addition to being a descendant of good breeding stock. In selecting a calf, general appearance is noted, weight or growth according to age, conformation, quality, condition, breed type and general disposition.

When the calves have been selected and feeding operations are well underway boys and girls watch their animals closely, safeguarding health in every way. Many calf ailments are due to improper feeding and sanitary conditions; the animals must be kept out of cold rains in winter as much as possible and warm, dry, well-bedded stalls provided for them at night. Calves must have plenty of exercise, fresh air, sunshine, an abundance of fresh water and a variety of feeds.

Calves are trained to present a good appearance in the show or sale ring. They are kept clean, well-groomed and halter broken. The animals are trained to stand squarely on all four feet with heads alert so as to exhibit best features. They are taught to become accustomed to being handled by strangers, seeing strange sights and hearing unusual sounds.

During the summer calves are kept out of the sun during the day and allowed to graze at night. Hot sunshine sunburns the hair of the calves and gives it a dry coarse appearance. Calves are blanketed with burlap to keep flies from annoying them and are kept well-groomed for a couple of months before the show season.

Youngsters sometimes sell their calves after the show season. They are often kept on the farm for herd foundations if they show up well in the show ring.
