In New Auditorium

It will please the community as well as participants in "The Messiah," scheduled for next Sunday evening, to know that city officials and other directing heads are cooperating with all possible energy and eagerness to have seats ready to hold the performance in the new municipal auditorium. It is the present belief that the building will be in shape to accommodate its first public gathering. And how appropriate to start off with that same old Christmas masterpiece, "The Messiah."

STREET LIGHTING DELAYED BEYOND THE USUAL TIME

WHILE local business houses had their holiday decorations up and their Christmas goods displayed for the last week-end's trade guests, the special street lighting did not materialize until this week. The Wayne committee does an extra good job of decorating when it gets at it, but it was rather slower this year than usual, and thus permitted other towns to forge ahead of it in putting on holiday style. Extra touches will doubtless make up for the delay, however, and this week-end will find the down-town district a blaze of varn-colored lights with a liberal showing of evergreens as an appropriate expression of the season's spirit.

F. G. DALE TALKS TO KIWANIS

Addresses Club On Geography Of Ethiopia At Session Monday Noon.

Prof. F. G. Dale of the Wayne College, spoke to members of the Kiwanis club on the "Geography of Ethiopia" following noonday luncheon Monday. Prof. Dale stated that his talk to Kiwanians would differ from the newspaper standpoint in that theirs was political and his summary was from the angle of geography.

Ethiopia has been able to maintain its independence through its natural resources while other countries of the "dark continent" have not. In the year 1889 Italy named itself as protector over Ethiopia but in 1897 the country regained its independence. The country of Ethiopia is very ancient and its borders not very well defined, this bringing about a clash of political warfare in 1934. In its early history, Ethiopia was much larger than it is today, since Italy, England and France have had large slices. It is an inland country now, entirely surrounded by possessions of the three countries, with an area of approximately 350,000 square miles, or about twice the size of Nebraska.

In physiography, the country is mountainous, and sometimes called the Switzerland of Africa. The mountains of Ethiopia entirely surround the country and are one of the reasons for its having maintained its independence. The interior is a rugged plateau, cut by many streams. Population of the country is estimated at 10 millions of people; many estimate the population at six millions as against Italy's army of nine millions. Ethiopia is a country of mixed races with the Negro predominating.

"All Ethiopians are Christians," said Prof. Dale, "and are a highly religious, superstitious race, practicing a great deal of fasting. The people dress simply and clothing is always shapeless. They are timid, and slow in adopting modern customs. Many of the people neither read nor write." The country ranges from 5 to 15 degrees north of the equator and has a pronounced wet and dry season. The monsoon winds blow in from the ocean. Most of the inhabitants live at an altitude of 5,000 feet above sea level. At the capital, annual rainfall is as much as 50 inches. At other places it is only three inches. Leading industry of the country is agriculture and the country consumes all it grows. Coffee (Continued on Page Four.)

NEW FEATURES IN TODAY'S HERALD AROUSE INTEREST

BESIDES the story of the far northwest which started in last week's Herald, readers will find in today's edition the beginning of "comics" in serial form. In addition, the first in a series of proverb contests is introduced today. It is not a big contest and prizes are not large, but requirements are comparatively light and results are easily attained. Turn to the contest proposition on another page in this issue and see if it is not worth a little thought and effort. It is really more of a feature than a contest, but the combination will enlighten interest. Everyone participating wins something.

Facing the Future

Calling attention to the growing swing against the administration at Washington—increasing indications that tendencies toward socialism or facism will be defeated next November, the Saturday Evening Post emphasizes the giant task that will be undertaken by the man called to executive leadership to straighten out the bureaucratic mess that has been created and balance the national budget after an all-time high record of government spending. In part the Post warns:

"But it must be emphasized that even if Mr. Roosevelt should be defeated, his successor will occupy about the most thankless and unpopular position ever held by a chief executive. For it will take years to liquidate, even in part, the excesses and extravagances of the New Deal. Many of the new laws would probably be amended, but it will be next to impossible to repeal them entirely. Huge expenses can be reduced, but they cannot be suddenly stopped. Taxes are certain to be high under any administration which follows the present prodigal crowd.

"This is said not in a spirit of discouragement, but in an attempt to face realities. As it is, these realities are less discouraging than the prospect of four more years of experimentation, extravagance, attacks upon business, and half-baked socialism. It is better that there should be hard, discouraging, dogged work ahead than that the country should be given over to the New Deal cohorts for four more years of vivisection.

"Meanwhile the millions of citizens who do not trust the New Deal to liquidate its own experiments should do more than merely hope for a good opposition nominee. Governor Landon, of Kansas, recently said that when we talk of balancing public budgets, we usually think of the federal budget or state budget. 'However, the seed of sound fiscal policy must be planted in the smallest political subdivision, or it is likely not to be found at all.'

"The president is merely the top of the pyramid of government. Underneath are senators, representatives, governors, state legislators and local officials. The problem of the next federal administration will be hard enough at best, but it will be made unnecessarily difficult if the voters neglect to strengthen the base of the pyramid."

In his Chicago speech President Roosevelt passed severe judgment on those who disagree with him. He appears to find that anyone who gets out of line with his policies of the past few years, nurses directly selfish motives—darkly and diabolically conceived. According to his measurement, anyone who swallows everything offered is a useful citizen. It is from the crucible of opposing views with the electorate informed and unafraid, that the soundest, safest course is reached, and the president and the notions of his bureaucratic satellites will have to stand a maximum of searching analysis during coming months preparatory to final judgment at the polls. Such must be the course of a thinking, progressive democracy.

Holding the annual meeting of the Wayne County Agricultural association which manages the county fair, suggests that an early start should be made in booking features of entertainment and making other plans. Issuing the premium list which is intended as a guide to preparing exhibits, should not be delayed until it is nearly time to start the show. Disappointments in the past should be a spur to officers in making arrangements. The county fair is a valuable institution, and on wideawake attention to details in advance largely depends accruing benefits.

A Washington report states that questions submitted in the Literary Digest's poll relate to the popularity of administration policies rather than to personal popularity of the president, and thus the gathering flood of opposition is explained and excused. As a matter of fact, if one is against the things a fellow advocates or does, he must consistently be against the fellow who is responsible. The Digest's poll was truly indicative and prophetic in 1932 and 1934, and every previous poll scored almost amazing accuracy. Why should it be less so now?

Senator Borah made plain in his speech Saturday night that the times will not permit any fooling or sham battles in the approaching presidential campaign. "If we are going into the fight on the lines where the battle swings let us fight for free enterprise, free economic system, free from monopoly control, free from bureaucratic control," he said. The senator means that the country must be fixed on a solid foundation, made safe against every threat to its liberties.

A Washington report states that the three-cent postage rate will be continued because the department is "in the red." It is perfectly normal to keep the postal department in the red. We do not recall that it was ever far out of the red, and it should not be expected to draw a contrast with the way finances are handled by other federal departments.

On invitation of Miss Florence Drake, director, 300 students from thirteen neighboring high schools witnessed dramatic productions at the college last week. This friendly interest spreads knowledge of the college's accomplishments and of its power and eagerness to serve ambitious young persons.

third graders are especially invited to story hour this Saturday at 1 when college students will tell Christmas stories. After next Saturday the story hours suspend until after the holidays.

GIVING.

Different organizations of the community are contributing to Christmas baskets for families unable to make due provision for themselves. All over the civilized world there is a determination to see that everyone shares in material luxuries during the holiday period, and local groups are responding to the prevalent spirit. The fellow whose ill luck leads him to accept an act of good fellowship this year, may have contributed to a similar cause last year or the year before, or he may be able to help other unfortunate next year. The one who is down today may be up tomorrow, and the one who is up today may be down tomorrow. Fate has an exacting way that none can fully understand or wholly control. Giving at Christmas time is not mere charity. It is a manifestation of real fellowship that stimulates good will and strengthens resolution of the recipient so to manage his affairs that he will be on the giving line in another year. There is more joy in giving than in receiving, and everyone who receives is anxious to improve his lot and be in shape to bestow rather than accept.

struggles, but all remember him as they remember school days with highest esteem. In thirty-five years of teaching has not held aloof from teacher and student ranks. Plots on the hillside, hallowed by happy memories, find the names of some who were formerly familiar faces in Wayne school rooms where the thoughtful and good-hearted janitor is still doing his duty. His record is one of which he as well as the community may feel justly proud.

HOUSEKEEPING.

The question as to whether a good housekeeper with a bad disposition is better than a poor housekeeper with a good disposition was discussed at a meeting of a Wayne club this week. A neat, clean home is always desirable, but if it is presided over by a snapping terriest, it would be a source of irritation rather than pleasure to the family, and a little more dirt and disorder and less ugliness would be a relief. The other extreme—an unkept house, with late and unpalatable meals—would tend to destroy the charm in a lovely disposition. Over-particular household leadership, with a shrewish eye and caustic tongue causing a sort of strait-jacket misery, would seem no more comforting than household sloppiness that is indifferent to cleanliness and order. But either extreme is exceptional, the rule being a balance that insures pleasing freedom from nerve-blasting annoyances. The club voted the discussion a tie, and determined to stick to a happy mean.

Horace Is Honored By Latin Groups

In honor of the Horace bimillennium, Wayne college. Horace students sponsored a Roman banquet Saturday at the Presbyterian church, just a day before the poet's 2000th birthday. Sponsors were Leticia Barnell, Irene Bastian, Eleanor Cechin, Lola Doctor, Jessie Hanson, Marjorie Morton, Merlin Paddock, Gertrude Schmidt, Ruth Wagner and Dr. Mary T. Honey. Latin students and instructors were invited and 62 guests attended in Roman costume. Roman customs were carried out. Girls serving were dressed as slaves. Merlin Paddock served as master of ceremonies. Ruth Paddock played a march as gentlemen in togas and ladies in pallae entered the banquet hall which was arranged in Roman order. Robert Kiltz offered tributes to Faunus at a flower-decked altar. Guelita Shirley and Ursula Wriedt passed from bright baskets the menus printed in Latin and rolled like scrolls. After David Lakes and Rudolph Swartz, trumpeters, marched around the room with a bear's head, Una Switzer, accompanied by Velma Denver, sang "Caput Aperi." The head was then carried and found to be a paper imitation bearing hidden treasures, gaily wrapped favors, which were distributed by Alice Cooper, Emma Noe and Laura Nuernberger. Mildred Lee carried a tray with bowls of incense and sacrificial materials from the altar and placed them before Margaret Jackson who as Phidyle offered salt, meal and flowers to household gods as Ethel Person instructed her what to do. Prof. H. H. Hanson took flashlight pictures. John Gawwood and Merwin Paddock chose Waldo Gragon as madrigal biondi. Harriet Lamson, accompanied by Edith Horstmann, led singing in a march for eight girls. Ina Anderson, Florence Kraft, Margaret Brink, Althea Gillilan, Irene Hassinger, Ina Ruth Jonson, Vivian Noh and Helen Peterson, the group carrying flowers and perfume to the guests. Raymond Reising and Waldo Gragon crowned the bowl with a green wreath in honor of Horace. Dr. Isabel Rust gave a toast in honor of Horace. Jessie Hanson directed the Horace class in singing in Latin, Ruth Paddock playing and Howard McDonald taking part of the wolf. Faith Adee introduced a broadcast from the lower regions, this stunt being planned by Clifford Hallenbeck, Waldo Johnson, Margaret Meyer and Cecil Miller. The Horace bimillennium is celebrated this year throughout the world. Local Horace students competed in a contest, writing biographies. Miss Beulah Rundle, Miss Anna Gossler and Dr. Rust chose Merlin Paddock winner of this.

Dairy Cow Sale.

E. J. Auker will sell 35 Guernsey and Holstein cows Thursday, December 19, at 1 o'clock at Wayne sales pavilion. Mr. Auker was in Wisconsin to pick the cows.

F. G. DALE TALKS.

fee grows in the natural state and forms the principal export. Grazing is also an important industry. There is one railroad in Ethiopia linking the capital with the coast. Rails are not stable and travel is in the daytime. Many of the highways are only trails and there are few motor cars. Travel is mostly by foot or horseback. There are only two cities in the country—people do not congregate in towns. There is much mineral and a vast wealth in other natural resources. The country can furnish all its own water power. Minerals found in considerable quantities are iron, coal, copper, gold, platinum and potash. Gold is mined to more extent than the other minerals.

In concluding his talk, Prof. Dale said: "If Italy were given the privilege of developing Ethiopian natural resources, trouble would end. England and the United States have helped themselves—why not Italy?"
Immediately following luncheon singing was led by F. L. Blair with James Brittain accompanying. Prof. O. R. Bowen told of telegrams received relative to the condition of Dr. U. S. Coan who is critically ill in a Long Beach, Calif., hospital. Dr. Charles Dienst told the group of attending a Kiwanis meeting at Lincoln Friday when a medal for distinguished citizenship was presented Dr. Erwin Barbour, head of the Lincoln museum. Dr. Barbour has built up the museum and has given a great deal of time to boy scout work.

NUMBER THIRTY-SIX

PETE HENKEL IS JANITOR OF SCHOOL THIRTYFIVE YEARS

Recalls Numerous Amusing Incidents Of Years Gone By.

SEES MILITARY SERVICE

Thirty-five years as janitor of the Wayne city school has made "Pete" Henkel as much a part of the institution as its very walls and has endeared him to the hearts of all who have known him from kindergarten age through four years of high school. Pete's eyes twinkle as he remembers the pranks played by youngsters in years gone by. Many a wad of chewing gum has Pete laboriously and painstakingly removed from desks and floors, and many a youngster has he scolded and praised.

Pete will be 73 years old on May 14, his birthday anniversary very fittingly near the fiftieth anniversary of the first graduating class of the Wayne public school. Thirty-five years ago when Pete began his work as janitor in the old frame building Dr. U. S. Conn was superintendent, there were six teachers. The new brick structure was finished in 1908 and moving accomplished early in 1909. Being in the new building was a relief to Pete—while there were more rooms to clean, result were worth the extra labor. No more would the old water pail be upset by some mischievous lad at recess time—the new fountains took care of that.

Remembers Halloween Pranks.
Pete remembers some of the Halloween pranks of the lads, which were enough to make a man tear his hair. One morning while school was being held in the old building, Pete arrived on the scene early to find all the board sidewalks standing on end. "I thought a cyclone had struck the yard in the night," said Pete, laughing his nearly chuckle.

"I remember once," Pete said shaking his head, with his mouse-like hiding a smile, "when Perry Theobald and Bill Mellor took the clapper out of the old school bell and hid it in a culvert."

It seems that Perry and Bill, not having their lucky horseshoes with them on that memorable Halloween night, got caught in the prank. The boys searched for the clapper but no amount of combing the grass would uncover its hiding place. The superintendent had Pete go to Frank Thielman to have a clapper made and—Perry and Bill paid for the clapper, which as Pete said, "sounded like a cowbell" when put into action.

A Cow Goes To School.
Another Halloween on which Pete is not likely to forget, fell on Saturday night. The Presbyterian congregation was holding services at the schoolhouse while their building was being remodeled. Pete went to the building at 9 o'clock to unlock the doors and see that all was in order. In the lower hall a peculiar animal odor smote his nostrils and wondering, he followed the scent to the assembly room door, to be greeted by a nice, gentle white-faced cow. Pete went to the home of T. S. Hook, then superintendent of the school. Said Pete: "We got a cow in the school."

"A cow?" inquired Mr. Hook doubtfully.
"Sure," answered the bearer of tidings, "a nice, gentle, white-faced cow."
The news disturbed Mr. Hook for a few moments, then he shouted with laughter. Gathering forces as they went, Pete and the superintendent, commanded L. A. Fenske, Frank Gamble, J. H. Kemp and J. M. McMurphy to assist in removing the cow from the building before the services started. The cow was tied to the desk of Mrs. Allis Pollard, principal, and had spent the night in her strange quarters with no evidences of the prank.

The men escorted the animal to the steps, one holding her head and others her tail. "She went downstairs just like she had been trained to it," declared Pete. The airing of the building was accomplished in plenty of time and the Presbyterians were none the wiser. The school board held an indignation meeting after the cow episode to decide what procedure to take. Mr. Hook advised the board to let the matter rest and take the stand that it was a joke on them, but to see that the same thing would be impossible to perpetrate again. Before many days had passed the superintendent knew the name of every boy participating and in meeting one would casually ask as to the welfare of "the dairy." The subtlety of this was a bit too much for the rogues and, in a body, they went to the office of the head of the school and requested that punishment be meted out instead of keeping them in suspense. For months after the episode, practical jokers called the high school asking that milk be delivered.

Early Students Mischievous.
Don Cunningham and Paul Harrison were two of the early students in Pete's regime. Pretty full of mischief, too, to quote Pete. "Yes," Pete declares, "kids today are a lot better behaved than their folks were—they're politer—and they're smarter. The school is so much better, too. We don't allow jokes like they used to play on Halloween. We have a watchman for that night. But anyway, kids don't seem to want to tear things up the way they used to—they don't cut holes in their desks and write on the walls."

Mrs. M. A. Phillips was principal of the high school when Pete began his janitor work. Mr. Conn was the superintendent at that time. M. R. Snodgrass followed and after that came O. R. Bowen, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Shirley, Conrad Jacobson, T. S. Hook, H. R. Best and Dr. Dienst. A procession of teachers has come and gone since 1900, so many of them, Pete says, that he can't remember their names any more.

Mrs. Ellis Gutten, one of the eighth grade teachers since Pete's day, he recalls cashly, because of an incident which still amuses him. A number of boys came to school one day in outlandish garbs—overalls, stuffed with straw and tied at the bottoms. As a punishment, by Pete's suggestion, the boys were made to sit on the floor with their legs stretched out stiffly before them. Before many minutes passed the boys were begging for mercy and making all sorts of rash promises.

In German Military Service.
Pete Henkel was born at Hasen, Darmstadt, Germany, May 14, 1863, and came to America at the age of 27. At the time Mr. Henkel left Germany he had served three years in the country's army—compulsory military service—and the early training gives him the straight soldierly bearing even at the age of 72. Mr. Henkel received a three-years pass when he left the army and at the end of the three years, he had taken out his first citizenship papers in America. "I wouldn't have gone back for anything," declared Mr. Henkel.

A half brother, Adam Saul, had come to Wayne, Nebraska, three months before Mr. Henkel left Germany, and was working for Chas. Gildersleeve. Pete's first week at Wayne was spent in setting fence posts at the Gildersleeve farm. At the end of that time he went to work in a butcher shop for Henry Goll and stayed there for some time, later getting a job in the Wayne brick works.

"At first I didn't like working in the brick yard," said Pete. "It was too much like being in prison but then I got used to it and didn't mind it so much. Then in 1900, I got the janitor job for the school and I've been here ever since."

Work Is Not Hard.
Pete says the work is no harder for him now than it was 35 years ago—he thinks it may take him a little longer, but no much. He thinks "he could outwork a good many men a lot younger than he is."

Pete goes to the school building at 5:30 every morning and home to dinner at 11 o'clock. He works until 5:30 in the afternoon and sometimes goes back to work after he has his supper. "There is always something to do here, but I like it," declares Pete.

"About 14 years ago," he chuckled, "I'd have to come up here every day, just like an old dog. I've been here so long now that I wouldn't be at home any other place."

About 14 years ago, Pete was very ill and substitute had to be put in his place as janitor. When he started to get better, he was

Highway Works Show Progress

The work will continue as long as weather permits. Work on highway No. 8 between Norfolk and Pigeon is progressing rapidly and this new route grading will continue as long as possible also. Grading on a new route on No. 20 between Plainview and Osmond shows progress. The highway between Laurel and Randolph is being regraded, also between Norfolk and Winside on No. 25, north and south of Emerson on No. 9, east of West Point on No. 9 and between Niobrara and Verdigris on No. 84.

Summer Comes To Argentine As Winter Is Here

"Today was a real warm day so we are starting to have summer here," writes George Soden of Buenos Aires, Argentine, October 31 to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Soden of near Wisner. "In the past two weeks we have had a lot of rain which makes the country look very nice. It is very good for our butter business. We had the worst drought the past several months that this country had in years but the past two weeks several inches of rain have fallen over most of the territory."

"All crops will be lighter this year except corn which will probably be all right. Here they raise no soft corn like they do back home. It is all the flint corn or similar to it."

"I believe a group of American farmers could do real well in this country. The land is very good. There seems to be black, rich soil everywhere. If this country were farmed the same as Iowa, Nebraska and other states, five times as much could be produced easily. I imagine that the farm population in Iowa and Nebraska is as great as in this entire nation on the farms. Farmers here are almost all Spanish and Italian and the Italians are better farmers than the Germans, such as Germans and others, do not come here."

"Tomorrow we start having daylight saving time so we will have to get up an hour earlier and still that won't be so very early. Tomorrow also we intend to take a sight-seeing bus around the city. We have never taken this before."

Mr. Soden writes that Miss Helen Soden plans to attend school to study typing and Spanish. Mr. Soden thinks he may also go to night school to learn the Spanish language. School for Shirley, little daughter of the Geo. Sodens, was out November 30 for summer vacation which continues December, January and February. "They claim it is usually very hot on December 25 and January 1, so we have a hot Christmas and New Year to look forward to."

Wealthy land owners, politicians and other rich Argentine people live in Buenos Aires. They have houses that are 30 to 40 feet high and have 20 to 30 large rooms besides the basement and smaller rooms. The whole generation of a family lives in one house. They have chauffeurs, butlers and servants of all kinds.

Dale Soden was riding his tricycle past one of these mansions, writes Mr. Soden, when the millionaire and his wife were going into their home. Dale greeted the

Number Employed On Relief Shown

Of these 18 came from relief rolls and 29 from non-relief rolls and were paid $248.11 came from non-relief rolls and was paid $67.

People's Wants Are Too Great Kentucky Man Informs Mitchells On Their Recent Visit To South

"If'n folk was wise they could git out in this country anywheres, build 'em a shack and with a dog and gun could make 'em a livin'." Folks just want more'n they need these days." Thus a native Kentuckian answered when Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Mitchell asked him about conditions while they were on their recent trip to Elberton, Ga.

Mr. Mitchell, who was picked as representative monument dealer of Nebraska, and Mrs. Mitchell accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hummel of Marshalltown, Iowa, on the 3,000-mile trip to Elberton as guests of the National Granite company. The party went south through Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee.

Iowa, Illinois and parts of Indiana presented very progressive appearances, the Mitchells found. Crops are good, the country is thickly settled, farm homes are nice looking and the towns, and cities have thriving appearances. Kentucky and Tennessee are some different. Less evidence of wealth is seen there. The states do have many country mansions. But they also have a great amount of poverty visible. Tennessee was just harvesting its best ready-money crop, tobacco, and had an unusually large crop this year. To hear the talk of the rise and fall of tobacco and cotton the traveler realizes that he is out of the tall corn country, though a few small patches are in evidence.

Georgia seemed least productive of the states visited, the Mitchells found, and seen through northern perspective one is puzzled how the inhabitants eke out a living from the small acreages on which they live. One mule, a small wagon and a shack hardly habitable—much resembling the poor districts of the Ozarks in Missouri—is the picture of the average family. "They are used to these conditions," was one man's reply as to Mrs. Mitchell's query about how these people exist. The poorest circumstances in northeast Nebraska are much better than most of those in Georgia, Mrs. Mitchell concluded. However, there are large plantation homes but these are few in comparison.

The city of Elberton, Georgia, where the granite quarries are located is especially prosperous, the Mitchells found. Five quarries are in operation and these furnish work for several hundred white men and many more negroes. The negroes are employed only as helpers. The white men would refuse to work if the colored men were given jobs that require knowledge of craftsmanship, the Wayne people were informed.

Granite in the Georgia quarries is of fine grain, even texture in a beautiful dark gray. The Mitchells have visited many quarry plants in different parts of the country but have seen no quarries as vast or with marble of such perfect quality as these. A great waste always exists. Sometimes many hundreds of tons of granite are quarried without a slab perfect enough for memorials. In the Elberton quarries, though there is a large percentage of waste, there is much less than the average.

The Mitchells also visited a pink marble quarry in Knoxville, Tenn., and found that much of the marble there is cut in slabs and blocks for building purposes. Only the best grade is used for memorials.

Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Hummel visited some lovely old flower gardens in Elberton. Roses and chrysanthemums predominated in many colors. The owners were most hospitable and offered the women slips of the plants which they were loath to admit would not stand the zero weather of Nebraska and Iowa.

Roses and chrysanthemums in a color scheme of yellow and white predominated on the tables when the Mitchells and Hummels were guests of honor at a four-course turkey dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. John Logan of Elberton.

The travelers found pavement the entire distance excepting from Wayne to No. 20. Nebraska has few or good roads on any other state visited but the Mitchells feel that they prefer the Nebraska plan that "pay as you go" in highway work rather than being in great debt for pavement.

The pitiful waste and ruthless cutting of trees in Nebraska was noted by the travelers. In most states the natural trees have been left standing and additional ones have been planted. They add much to scenic beauty, they found. A movement to preserve wild flowers seemed to be prevalent and a very fine one. Signs warn travelers not to molest plants of any kind. Mrs. Mitchell thinks the plan is one well worth adopting in Nebraska.

The Cumberland mountains are much like the Ozarks. In their fall colors they were a most attractive sight. With these for a background one travels on concrete roads winding their way along the Tennessee rim to see a lovely sight of stone and rail fences many years old. Roads bordered with rock terraces and vine-covered cliffs.

KRAEMERS GIVEN DINNER

Former Concord Couple Honored At Norfolk On Anniversary.

CONCORD (By Miriam Huse.)

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kraemer of Norfolk, residents of Concord for many years, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last Friday when their children planned a family reunion for them at their home. The Kraemers were married in Plattville, Mo., December 6, 1885, and came to Dixon county shortly afterward, residing here until 1917 when they moved to Norfolk.

As a feature of the celebration a 6 o'clock dinner was held Friday evening for relatives and close friends of the Kraemers at Christ Lutheran hall. A short service followed at the church with the pastor, Rev. M. E. Mayer, officiating. An open house reception followed at the school hall and to this all members of the Aid society of the church and other friends were invited. The children also sponsored the reception.

Seventy-five guests attended the dinner at which tables were decorated with cut flowers and tapers. A large wedding cake with golden bells made by their daughters, was centerpiece. The nine children of Mr. and Mrs. Kraemer, 20 of their 24 grandchildren and a few friends were in the dinner group.

A native of Menzingen, Germany, where he was born in 1858, Mr. Kraemer immigrated to America in 1882, settling in Philadelphia, Pa., where he worked for several months before going to Wisconsin. Mrs. Kraemer, the former Louise Jaichner, was also born in Menzingen, Germany, coming to Philadelphia, Pa., in 1884. She also worked there a short time before going west to Wisconsin.

After the marriage at Plattville, the couple came to Dixon county in Nebraska, where they purchased a farm near Concord. They were among the early settlers in that community, much of the county at that time being unbroken prairie.

They continued to live at their farm at Concord until the time they retired and went to Norfolk to live in 1917.

Although 77 and 75 years of age, respectively, Mr. and Mrs. Kraemer both enjoy fairly good health, and live alone at their home here. Both are faithful members of Christ Lutheran church. Mr. Kraemer having been an active officer in both the church and Sunday school until asking to be retired a few years ago. Mrs. Kraemer is a member of the Ladies' Aid society.

Their children who attended the celebration, are Gus and Herman Kraemer, both of Concord; (Frieda) Mrs. J. W. Schram of Sioux City, Ia.; (Lena) Mrs. Glen Troth who with her two children is here from Ashton, Ida.; (Rose) Mrs. E. Cunningham, Ashton, Ida.; (Bertha) Mrs. Virgil Dedman and her two children from Los Angeles, Calif.; (Marie) Mrs. William Henkel, Norfolk; Fred of San Antonio, Tex., and Rudolph of Seattle, Wash.

The Gus and Herman Kraemer families returned to Concord Saturday after attending the anniversary observance. Fred and Rudolph Kraemer left for their homes Monday. Others plan to remain here until after the holidays.

Taxes Throttling Expansion.
Omaha Journal-Stockman: Try as hard as we may, we cannot get away from the menace of future excessive taxation. This is the certainty that is holding back business and investment. No man wants to expand his business with the certainty facing him that his profits will simply go to pay taxes and no man is going to invest in land or other real estate knowing that taxes will eventually absorb all his equity in the property.

A chart prepared by the National City Bank of New York shows that combined debts of federal, state and local governments, total about $3,000,000,000 in 1900, $8,572,000,000 in 1913, $33,556,000,000 in 1919 and approximately $47,000,000,000 in 1924. Of which $27,053,000,000 consisted of federal debt and $20,137,000,000 of state and local government debt. The figures for federal debt comprise only the direct obligations and do not include the contingent debt of the various federal government credit agencies, which on September 30, 1935, had total liabilities of $7,942,000,000.

Total government expenditures in 1934 were 431 per cent higher than in 1913, while the per capita expenditures of governments increased from approximately $30.00 to $123.00 or by 305 per cent. And nothing is being done about it.

The total national income in six years—1929-1934 inclusive—was $337,661,000,000. Expenditures for government equalling $79,332,000,000 of that amount, quibbling 14.1 per cent of the income in 1929 and over 33 per cent in 1932, 1933 and 1934.

To apply on government expenditures the collection of taxes in the six years totaled $55,116,000,000, equalling 20 per cent of the national income in the past three years.

These are figures that must be faced, they cannot be explained away nor can their consequences be avoided. Taxes and more taxes are inevitable and this is the prospect that is throttling business and industry as well as agriculture.

Has Month of Contacts and Enjoyable Trips On Recent Visit to Coast City In California.

In a recent visit to California, Mrs. D. J. Cavanaugh visited a number of former Wayne county people and enjoyed interesting trips to points in the west. Mrs. Cavanaugh and Mrs. G. K. Pittinger of Norfolk, made the trip west by car, taking the Salt Lake route.

Improvement of roads by the Salt Lake route, has cut off about 300 miles from the trip. The road is no longer routed through Salt Lake City, this along cutting off 50 miles. Just before reaching the California line the two women stopped at Las Vegas, and took a trip from there to the Boulder dam.

"The first sight of Boulder dam is awe-inspiring," said Mrs. Cavanaugh. "It is so unbelievably huge."

Boulder dam is said to be the biggest piece of work ever attempted by man. The Egyptian pyramids cannot compare with this colossal structure. People of Las Vegas told Mrs. Cavanaugh and Mrs. Pittinger that death rate of workers on the dam was greater by comparison than the World War. Dynamite explosions were responsible for many deaths in the great construction project. Many itinerants working on the dam lost their lives, and were never accounted for. Two years will be required to fill the dam when completed. It is estimated that work will continue for one more year before the dam will be declared finished. Light rates in Los Angeles will be very low when power is supplied by Boulder dam.

Star At Temple City.

The two women stayed at Temple City, Calif., with Mrs. Johnson Rickard, formerly of Norfolk. Rickard will be remembered by many Wayne county people who stayed at her home just across the street from the Norfolk General hospital. Dr. A. B. Cherry, former Winside physician, has a beautiful home at Temple City.

Mrs. Cavanaugh visited Mrs. Name Boyle and son, Waldon, while in Temple City. Waldon Boyle has had small parts in motion picture productions and hopes to get assignments to larger parts. He specialized in dramatics while in college. J. C. Ficker, Mrs. Boyle's father, was editor of the Winside Tribune a number of years ago. The Wayne woman also visited Mrs. Horace Miller, daughter of the conductor on the Wayne-Norfolk railway for many years. John Crosby, former Winside banker, lives in the Sierra Madre canyon, Los Angeles.

See San Diego Fair.

The exposition at San Diego, Mrs. Cavanaugh decided, could not compare in size and interest to the World's fair in Chicago. Grounds were lovely and lighting very elaborate. The exhibits of flowers, fruits and food-stuffs were outstanding.

Mrs. Cavanaugh enjoyed a day with the H. J. Miners at the Ellis Miner home outside of Temple City. Mr. Miner had been ill with anemia early in the year but was much improved in health and enjoys working with the 25 walnut trees on his ranch. Mrs. Miner is occupied with chicken-raising and is beginning to feel more at home in the west. They plan to visit their daughter, Mrs. Lorrie Hunsley, at Edinburgh, Ill., next spring. Ellis Miner is salesman for Swift Products Co. and drives the 35 miles into the city each day.

Visits Many Friends.

At Wilmington, Calif., Mrs. Cavanaugh visited at the Lute Carter home. The Carters are former Carroll residents. Miss Lucretia Carter won a scholarship at Occidental college just outside Los Angeles the past year. Mr. Carter is employed by the Shell Oil Co.

Mrs. Chace Shaw and Mrs. Carter entertained for Mrs. Cavanaugh and Mrs. Pittinger at the Lakeview Country club near the city of Los Angeles. The club grounds are very beautiful. The Chace Shaws formerly lived at Winside, and are now at Long Beach.

Naval Fleet In Harbor.

The United States naval fleet was in the harbor off San Pedro while Mrs. Cavanaugh was there, and she was much impressed with a view of the harbor at night from the San Pedro hills. The ships were signalling with colored lights and the light reflection in the sky and water presented a most beautiful sight. From the hills one can look out over Los Angeles, Pasadena and Long Beach with their myriads of lights.

Mrs. Cavanaugh visited with Mrs. Josephine and Miss Edith Carter, formerly of Winside. The first named taught at Winside and has been in the Los Angeles school for a number of years. Miss Josephine will be on the retired list of teachers for Los Angeles in four years. The Carter sisters have a very nice Spanish-type home and also have a home on the Santa Clara beach.

Jessie Prince Rountree lives in Los Angeles. She will be remembered by Wayne people, having done nursing in many homes in the county. Mr. Rountree is attorney for the Los Angeles street car lines.

Mrs. Etha Shaw Kron, former Winside resident, has a position with the Best Drug Co. in the city. Mrs. Cavanaugh regretted that she was unable to see Miss A. Lewis, who went to California from Wayne last fall. Miss Lewis is employed in the corset department of May's store in the city.

Has Postoffice Position.

Miss Loretta Cullen, oldest daughter of the Ed. Cullens, formerly of Winside, has the highest position a woman may be given in the Los Angeles post office. Miss Mildred Cullen is bookkeeper in a telephone office in the city. Dr. Bernard Cullen, son of the Ed. Cullens, is surgeon in one of the large hospitals in Los Angeles. Mrs. Cullen is badly crippled with arthritis.

Mrs. Cavanaugh visited Mrs. Alice Ley at Encinitas, and her granddaughter, Miss Alice Ley, who is staying with her and attending school. Mrs. Ley remains very active and recently conducted a campaign to beautify the little town. Flower beds were planted in the business district and trees and hedges put in. Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Ley are living in Wilmington and Mr. Ley is sponsoring an oil project. An oil pocket was recently discovered and Mr. Ley had eight wells with hand pumps sunk; the oil procured from the pocket is almost pure gasoline. The pocket has been explained as seepage have been discovered but seepage is so small compared to the amount of gasoline the companies handle that they consider recovery not worth while. Private individuals are allowed to prospect the gas fields, but the oil being recovered by the Ley project is only 1/16 feet below the earth's surface.

Talk of Town and Plan.

Californiaans are all talking about the Townsend plan and feel assured that it will be adopted. Mrs. Cavanaugh was told that California holds the balance of power in eight states on the Townsend plan. Townsend clubs are being formed constantly and funds raised for carrying on the campaign. Those favoring the Townsend plan are expecting to buy a national hook-up for furthering it.

Building activity in the city of Los Angeles is greater than for many years. Much of the building is being financed through the Federal Housing plan. Some new homes valued at $30,000 are being erected but the greater number are smaller homes for people with moderate incomes.

Mrs. Cavanaugh visited Mrs. Lilyann Rennick Townsend in Hollywood. Mrs. Townsend has a married daughter living in Oakland, Calif., and Edward Townsend is at home. While in Hollywood Mrs. Cavanaugh saw a number of the homes of motion picture stars and of studios.

Has Tia Juana Trip.

A trip to Tia Juana was like a visit to a ruin. The president of Mexico has forbidden gambling in the country and as a result, Tia Juana is "a deserted village." The famous "Foreign Club" at Tia Juana burned some time ago. The road to Agua Caliente is closed and no one is allowed to enter the former famous racing city.

California wineries, expecting to use tons of grapes for their products, have been forced to leave acres of the fruit rotting on the vines. The wine grape has become a drug on the market.

Mrs. Cavanaugh enjoyed the town of Temple City more than any place visited in California. "The town is like Wayne," she said, "people are so friendly, so neighborly and kind."

Visits Many Libraries.

The Wayne woman enjoyed a number of visits to libraries in the west. Huntington Library, an endowed institution, is one of the most beautiful places in Los Angeles. Grounds are spacious and beautifully kept. The library has some famous masterpieces of art. At Forest Lawn Memorial, Mrs. Cavanaugh was fortunate in seeing the picture, "The Last Supper," which is made entirely of glass and came from Italy. The picture was displayed at the World's fair in Chicago. Mrs. Cavanaugh was amazed to see that all monuments had been removed from Forest Lawn cemetery and copper name plates substituted.

Two popular Wayne College pianists, Deweyne Gramly and Miss Helen Toy, will be heard in a joint-recital next Monday evening, December 16, at 8:15 in the auditorium. They will be assisted by David Sanders, baritone, of December.

Mr. Gramly and Miss Toy were heard frequently last year in recital, at clubs and over the radio. Many favorable comments were made on the work of these young artists.

The program Monday evening will contain works chiefly from the modern group of composers. Of special interest will be a Sonata written by Mr. Gramly and played by him on this program. Miss Toy's offerings will include the famous "Liebestraum" by Liszt. Three works for double-piano, "Parade" by Chasins, "Dance in the Patio" by Repper and "Rakoczy March" by Berlioz-Hutcherson are ensemble features of exceptional musical interest. Miss Toy and Mr. Gramly are students in the piano department with Prof. Albert G. Carlson. Mr. Sanders has been a favorite in college vocal circles and is a student with Prof. Bair of the voice department. He will sing a group of songs including the negro spiritual "Were You There" by Manney, "Captain Mac" by Sanderson, "Bois Epais" by Lully and "Ballymore Ballad" a folk song. No charge is made for this program and it is open to the public.

SYNOPSIS

As Alan Garth, prospector, is preparing to leave for his mining claim in the Big Horn, a plane lands at the always emergency station. In it are Barton Ramill, millionaire mining assayer, and his daughter, Edith, and Vivian Huxley, pilot and mining engineer.

"Platinum?" Garth questioned. "But your friend here calls it gold." "Mr. Ramill, interested, "Permit me, I'm young man, I am large, I've interested in platinum mines. If you have located a lode of gold, the lead might pay for development of the prospect." "That depends," put in Huxley. "Where's the place?" "Three weeks' paddle and portage," Garth answered. "Slow travel. But by airplane?" "The bird distance can't interest you. Neither lead nor silver would pay for airplane freighting. No, would packing. I lost ten pounds of this—platinum. Came upset, running one of the rapids."

The girl stopped in the entrance to peer around the cubbyhole kitchen, her scarlet-smeared lips curled with disgust. Though soap-clean, everything in the place looked crude. The air was choky from the smell of cheap bacon. Huxley sprang up to place the chair at the near end of the table. He lifted the boiling teapot from the stove and started to fill a tin cup with the black brew. "Pardon our not waiting, Lilith," he apologized. "I did not wish to waken you with the refueling. Planned to do it while you breakfasted." "Quite thoughtful of you, darling. But you need not think I'll drink this lye or eat any of these beastly messes. Not for me. You can have your storage garbage. I'll keep to cabin fare." She faced about and went back through the passage. Huxley stood hesitating. Mr. Ramill motioned him to sit down. "You stocked the cabin with enough wines and delicatessen to last several days. Finish your meal."

As Garth spoke he put up a hand to cover a yawn. "If you don't mind, Tobin, I'll roll in. It's a long traivois to Great Slave." "The portly investor in mines caught the eye of his engineer partner. He spoke to Garth: "You are going outside?" "Perhaps."

"Well, a day or so should make no difference to you. Is there a lake or pond near your prospect?" "One about four miles long; half as wide."

"Huxley repeated his question: "It could be reached how soon by air?" "The fish were no longer nibbling; they were hooked. Garth had only to haul in on his line. But he took his time about it. He paused to consider. Not all fish prove to be desirable catches."

Neither Mr. Ramill nor Huxley looked like a crook. They had the appearance of reputable business men. On the other hand, neither looked easy. Huxley broke in on Garth's weighing of the chances. "Well, Jack, it's three hours."

"Two or three have it," Garth replied. "I don't know the speed of your plane."

"Fastest type of cabin cruiser. Call it six hours to go and return, and the same to inspect your prospect. It's possible there may be a trace of gold in your ore. I'll test it while you get your sleep."

The girl spoke to Mr. Ramill: "I shall take a nap myself, Dad. Ten hours of flying, with no chance to stretch off the Scotch, is enough to kill a horse."

In the act of handing a nodule to Huxley Garth, paused to stare at the girl. So that was the answer—liquor, tobacco, paint, and all the rest of the flapper-jazz rot.

She stiffened and stared back at him haughtily. He dropped the nodule into Huxley's cupped palm and crossed into the rear room to stretch out on one of the bunks.

A tug at his shoulder roused Garth from his six-hour sleep. Tobin's hoarse voice croaked in his ear: "Roll out, sir. Sun's up. The pair of 'em are keen to be a-wing. Looks like their tests of your nugget 'lived' 'em up. Grab 'n' go."

Garth pulled on his buckskins and mooseias and stepped into the storeroom. Miss Edith was coming in at the front door. She paused to remove her headnet. Huxley and Mr. Ramill were already putting down a hearty breakfast of bacon, sourdough bread and oatmeal porridge. Garth crowded past them and Tobin to the end of the little shell table.

He Lifted His Pack Up Again on the Wharf, and Swung the Canoe Over His Head.

He favored Garth with a patronizing smile, and opened his gold-mounted cigar case to offer one of the choice Havana.

Garth declined. "I never smoke. It deadens the nose."

"Deadens—What's that?" "Though man has the sense of smell, compared with dogs he lacks the ability to scent. Yet even a trace of it may be of use in the bush."

The investor's portly body quivered to his chuckle. "I've heard of nesting out prospects! First time, though, it's been done to my knowledge." He caught himself up. "At least, Mr. Huxley considers it possible your discovery may be worth an examination. That leaves only the question of terms, in case we find the mine promising enough for me to make an offer."

Garth spared an inquiring glance. The portly gentleman gave him a bland smile.

"I believe in encouraging prospectors. They find new districts. With that in view, I buy numbers of undeveloped prospects, taking the risk of heavy losses. Though I drop thousands on some mines, I have made a fortune from others. But the average prospector, like yourself, stakes his all. Ninety-nine times in a hundred, he is cleaned out by total failure. If your lode looks at all possible, I'll pay you up to a thousand dollars cash for it."

"I'm not selling," Garth said. "I like to play a game through to the end, win or lose."

The investor's eyes hardened. "What's your idea?" "One year's lease, and 60 per cent of the gross returns to me."

Mr. Ramill blinked. "Sixty per cent of gross! You're crazy!" "Like a fox. Some kind of nose."

It was Garth's turn to smile. "Not so keen, though, for galena. Better for something out alloys of gold, platinum and platinum-iridium."

The last word knocked the benevolent encourager of prospectors speechless. Yet, after a moment of blank staring, he managed a half-pitying look.

"Dad!" he muttered. "That must be it. These prospectors, alone in the wilds for months at a time!" He raised his voice. "You had your man. If you'll make it gold and silver, I might have been able to swallow the bait. But platinum! That's a bit too thick. Platinum is found in quantity only in Russia. Very little anywhere else. Only a minute quantity in North America."

He rose as if to go. Garth gave him a regretful look.

"Yes—too bad, sir. Now I'll have to go outside. I may even have to wait until the ice goes next year before I can dupe a gull into taking that lease."

Garth went into the bunkroom. Before long Tobin came to open the door a handbreadth. He checked. "—Uh, you got your book in their fish. Pilot's tinkering with the motor. Changed the oil, but no more to refuel. Ain't rushin' to flop out."

Garth kept on fathering his beard. When he came out, his certificate was tucked about his waist. It held his usual knife and beltax. In one hand he carried his rifle, in the other the first of his small outfit, strapped on his pack board.

Down on the wharf Mr. Ramill puffed cigar smoke through his beard-while he watched Huxley's examination of the motor and propeller. Miss Edith was not in sight.

"Right-o, Tobin," said Garth. "Shunning it is. When that big come down, you never heard a sweeter motor—every cylinder hitting true. Wish I felt as sure of that southbound Beljanea."

"Don't fash yourself, Mr. Garth. She'll make Fort Smith on schedule."

"Then here goes for my next play."

He went down the slope to lay his pack and rifle a little way out from the base of the wharf. After that he fetched his canoe from the bank. He swung it down into the shallow water within close reach of the pack.

Mr. Ramill came shoreward rather hurriedly for so dignified a gentleman. "One moment, Garth. I've consulted with my engineer partner. He still thinks it may be worth our while to investigate your prospect."

"What's his view of my ore?" "They're outrageous! Still, it is just possible they—or mine might justify them. The least we can do is to inspect the lode. I make no deals sight unseen."

Garth spoke as if to himself: "An air ride, free, and only a few hours' delay. Time enough to make the trip out before the freeze-up."

He lifted his pack up again on the wharf, and swung the canoe over his head to tow it back to his previous position, bottom up, on the bank. When he returned he carried his pack and rifle out to the airplane. From the cabin came the rhythmic dissonance of a jazz-dance tune. The plane evidently was equipped with a long-distance radio receiver.

Although the foreign settlement government is carried on by a joint organization in Shanghai, the British apparently still control this settlement. The French hold aloof and have their own concession and do not come into the foreign settlement government although they cooperate. Chinese police with some Indians and nationals take care of the tremendous traffic and regular police work. Europeans and Americans work very short hours and hire many servants. The foreigners of the white collar class go to their offices at 9 or 10 a. m. and quit about 4:30 or 5 p. m. There are many clubs and many bars. The Shanghai club which is popular, had the longest bar in the world up to a few years ago. Much whiskey and soda are consumed by the foreigners.

The Shanghai dollar continues to drop and sells for 3.26 for the American dollar just before sailing time. There is much rushing to get rid of the Shanghai dollar because it is no good in Hong Kong, which is ruled by the British and where the exchange is about 2.25 Hong Kong money for one American dollar.

Camel, Chesterfield, Lucky Strike or Old Gold cigarettes sell for seven and a half cents a package. There is no tax on these American cigarettes. The natives like them and smoke them. The Philippine delegation which boarded this boat at Shanghai to escort us to Manila tells us that the American made cigarettes are as cheap in Manila as they are in Shanghai.

Programs of the British entertainment are passed around as we near Hong Kong. Teas, luncheons, receptions and dinners—but many of this party have already planned to see the country and go to Hong Kong and talk to some of the military leaders of the anti-nationalist government. An invitation has been received and accepted for this unusual visit. This gives some of these Americans the unusual opportunity of having talked with both factions in China.

Parting of the ways between the New Deal and business was revealed at the congress of American Industry in New York. Business platform seeks the following: Maintenance of constitutional guarantees and protection of the American constitution, preservation of American enterprise, elimination of undue regulation of private business, opposition to excessive taxation, unground government financing, and excessive federal expenditures beyond the normal operating expenses of government, establishment of a national currency upon a dollar of fixed gold content, adherence to the natural theory of "economic progress" as the best means for social security, and adherence to the "American system."

The letter said the kidnap band had a hideout in Elizabeth, 40 miles from Hopewell. # To The Orient With CONGRESS

Shanghai, China.

The reception of this congressional ship party in Shanghai was wonderful. Members were thrilled at passing an American gun boat in the river. They were thrilled again as they disembarked and found a company of American soldiers and the band playing "The Star Spangled Banner." It was a round of entertainments by the American and Chinese officials and similar to the welcomes given by the Japanese in Kobe and Yokohama.

The cars of the party are well guarded. On our way to the Chinese civic center a few miles out of Shanghai the roads are patrolled by the "police army." Members stand with drawn revolvers and their fingers on the triggers. It's a special occasion for this land of trouble and many important statesmen are in the group. Chinese officials say most anything can happen and they won't take chances—for that reason much protection.

Shanghai is a great metropolitan city. The flag of every nation floats here. The foreign settlement is well policed. Foreigners tell us that they feel sure that the foreign settlement will go back to the Chinese some day and that some of the British are already liquidating. In private conferences between business men here say they feel sure that in ten years Japan will control most of China. Unconfirmed reports by very serious minded men here are to the effect that Japan now "OK's" everything done by the Nationalist government and that the Japanese have controlled the anti-nationalist government at Canton for a long time.

HERE ARE THE RULES Each week for a period of six weeks THE WAYNE HERALD will print one of a series of cartoons representing some well known proverb or saying.

Contestants solve the picture puzzles by writing the proverb that the cartoon suggests or illustrates in the blanks below the pictures.

The prizes, $10 in cash and Gay theatre tickets, will be awarded those sending in complete or near complete picture sets with the best and most appropriate answers to the pictures published, and either paying their own subscription for a period of one year or securing one new one-year subscription to The Wayne Herald.

In case of ties neatness and originality will be considered. Cartoons should not be sent to the paper until the series is complete.
