Alpha Psi Omega members had breakfast together both Thursday and Friday mornings following 6:30 rehearsal for the play which the organization is sponsoring. The breakfasts were attended by 14 members of the Alpha Psi Omega.

Girls of Neihardt had planned a formal party for last Friday evening, when they invited friends for a nautical dance. An eight-piece orchestra furnished music. Programs were ship's anchors; the recreation deck of a ship with anchor, port holes and life savers. The punch bowl was hidden by a coil of rope. Girls who served punch and wafers were dressed in sailor costumes. Mrs. Prudence Theobald and Mrs. Ilda Holmes were hostesses.

The four groups of the Y. W. C. A. held a joint meeting last evening at Neihardt hall when Mrs. S. A. Lutgen spoke to the girls on "New Beginnings," her topic embracing the Easter season in relation to the four heads into which the organization is divided, namely: Interpretive Religion, Current Events, Personality and Creative Leisure. She brought out ways in which the close relationship of the four could be used to bring beauty into daily tasks, to bring forgetfulness of closed doors and to mark the new beginnings which should come with the Lenten season as typified by the resurrection of Christ. At the close of her talk Mrs. Lutgen reviewed, "So Pilate Washed His Hands," prize-winning Biblical play written by Rhodes R. Stibley.

Symphonic Choir In Two Programs

Critical Analysis AN article appearing in Scribner's Magazine and reproduced in condensed form in the April Reader's Digest, contains a critical analysis of the New Deal by James Truslow Adams who mentions that he was one of millions who were fooled into voting for Roosevelt in 1932. Like others, he accepted platform and other campaign pledges as genuine. Like others, Adams is disappointed in finding a record directly opposite to and violently in conflict with the one promised.

In the 1932 campaign Roosevelt denounced in unmistakable terms an unbalanced budget, excessive government burdensome taxes, interference with private business and trespassing on constitutional rights. "Let us have the courage," Roosevelt said, "to stop borrowing to meet continued deficits." Then what happened? Were ever contradictions more evidently undisguised? Roosevelt holds the record in American leadership of preaching one thing and doing another.

Adams points out the conflict of performance with vote-persuading pledges. New bureaus and commissions have been multiplied until sixteen per cent of the nation's workers are estimated to be on the federal payroll. Government expenditures have not only not been decreased, as promised, but have been alarmingly increased. No administration ever attempted so much interference with business. No administration ever engaged in so much trifling with the constitution, boldly disregarding it rather than submitting proposed changes to popular consideration.

"In any case," says Adams, "we cannot continue merely to go gaily 'On Our Way' (to borrow the title of the president's book) without a clear realization of where it may lead. Mr. Roosevelt, who solemnly said, when speaking of wide-scale national planning, that we cannot expect a reversal of all the teachings of history," must have been wrong in 1930 or is wrong now. Not only history but also the contemporary history of several great nations show all too clearly where leads the path of national economic control."

Grave Crisis THE Sioux City Journal calls attention to the declaration of Republican Presidential Candidate Frank Knox that this country faces the gravest crisis since the Civil war—a menace to the people's rights to rule themselves. Three years of wild government spending have not made expected inroads into the armies of the unemployed, and what the country needs to insure lasting recovery is more confidence and not merely the shelling out of billions and the piling Cast Is Selected For College Opera Kathryn Greenslit, soprano, of Stanton, and Norman Leuthausen, tenor, of Beemer, sing leads in the opera, "Martha," by Flotow, to be presented April 28 and 30. Stanley Johnson, bass, of Stanton, David Sanders, baritone, of Beemer, and Lyle Spencer, tenor, of Neligh, have solo roles. Three maids are Charlotte Rasmussen, Randolph, Mildred Moses, Wayne, and Ruby Fredrickson, Concord, and two farmers are Donald Springer, Wayne, and Burton Gifford, Allen.

The cast of principals includes Frances Rhodes, Sioux City, Faith Adee, Randolph, Reuben Meierherry, Hoskins, Frank Gamble, Wayne, Everett Dennis, Wayne, Meredith, Bennick, Filger, Mary Widman, Inez Perry, Frances Rhodes, Ruth Hanson, Mildred Bessire and Faith Adee are ladies in waiting.

Village folk and attendants are selected from the opera-dramatics class and symphonic choir. Eight girls of W. A. A., directed by Miss Esther Dewitz, will feature a country peasant dance and ballet.

Production personnel includes Velma Ebinger, Vivian Noh, Bernadine Browne, Alice McGregor, Reuben Meierherry and Einar Bernston.

Ping-Pong Tourney Will Begin Today Thirty-two contestants have registered for the ping-pong tournament sponsored by P. L. March, and starting today at the Gay theatre. Matches will be played on afternoon conveniences for the convenience of the theatre stage. After first matches are played off semifinals and finals will be played off some evening within the next few weeks, in connection with a feature picture.

Wayne Band Concert Is Well Attended A good crowd attended the concert given Sunday afternoon at the auditorium by the Wayne up of increased tax burdens. The Journal offers this concluding comment: "The country does face a crisis that is nothing less than terrifying. Menaced on many sides the American people must protect themselves against waste of their substance, encroachments upon their constitutional rights, changes in their government, domination of their social, cultural and economic life, in short arbitrary abridgment of their liberties. And the pathetic thing about it all is that so many of them do not sense the crisis they face and from which they suffer."

The Saturday Evening Post raises anew the often discussed question of extending the presidential term from four to six years and making the incumbent ineligible for reelection. About half of the four-year term is usually devoted to public policies with little thought of partisan politics, whereas the other two years are largely influenced by prospect of reelection. Wisdom of a longer term for members of congress might also be considered. A congressman's term of only two years no sooner installs him in his place than he has to prepare for reelection. Arguments for and against longer and equal terms for both the executive and law-making branches of the government in Washington might open the way to improvement.

Ponca is reported planning to celebrate the eightieth anniversary of the founding of the town. It was in 1856 that pioneer home-seekers pitched camp in that town, and few settlements were then to be found in the north part of the state. Ponca was an important trade center for many years, drawing business from a wide territory. Increase of population in an area curtailed by other towns that later started, amply made up for diminished trade sources. Ponca is still a good town, of late years improving in many ways under the impetus of enlivened public spirit. As one of the oldest communities in the state, its proposed celebration will justly attract wide attention.

The Nebraska climate has quality intensified by variety. Just as its winter cold may annoy sensitive persons, so its springs and summers may give profoundest delight. It has no half-way or half-hearted habits. It is as gentle and soothing as it is rough and irritating. Perhaps because of harsh blasts of winter, the following seasons seem to bring skies of deepest blue, and an atmosphere softened to suit the most impressionable—enriched by the fragrance of new foliage and a million blossoms. Three Nebraska seasons amply make up for what some may interpret as winter torments.

In a late canvass, the American Institute of Public Opinion ascertained that seventy-three per cent of persons questioned were against currency inflation. Twenty-seven per cent registered for it. People who are conversant with distasteful inflation experiences in foreign nations have good reason to want to avoid such dangers here. People who have or hope to have property, must sensibly figure the need of a sound, dependable monetary base.

The Norfolk Daily News likens the senate committee's seizure of Publisher Hearst's confidential telegrams to the dictator-ridden European countries' policy of opening private letters. The constitution and courts that come to the rescue of Publisher Hearst, prevent others in America from suffering in the same way.

Project Meeting Planned In Wayne The sixth women's project meeting for Wayne county will be held in the court room at Wayne on Wednesday, April 1. The meeting will begin at 9 a. m., one hour earlier than usual and will last all day. The lesson will be on rug making. The presidents of the clubs are invited to attend this meeting as election of next year's county chairman and plans for the achievement day meeting will be made. There will be a covered dish luncheon at noon.

Fred Doecke Is New Operator Here Fred Doecke of Brainerd, Minn., came Monday to take over the management of the Western Union Telegraph office in Wayne. Mr. Doecke had been at Canton, S. D., before coming to Wayne. John Hillsbeck who had been manager of the station for several months left yesterday morning for Central City where he will have charge of the Western Union station.

Sixty Horses Sold At Monday Sale Sixty head of horses were sold at the Monday pavilion sale at good prices. The offering for the week included a nice bunch of stock cattle and hogs, selling at good prices. Pavilion sales for the past few weeks show an exceptionally good market for horses and the sale scheduled for next Monday will include another good run of horses, cattle and hogs.

EQUALLY BAD

We have seen the first page of a communist newspaper published in New York. It boasts of causing strikes and fanning flames of discontent and disorder. Every evidence of social upheaval is accepted as evidence of progress in spreading communistic poison. Communism clashes with fascism, though either is as repugnant to our sense of democracy as the other. Communism in Russia is supposed to have sprung from the peasantry of that country, and yet Russian peasants have become veritable slaves, belonging, like their lands and chattels, to the state. Fascism is no better. It is accepted as the creature of capitalism, and yet Dictator Mussolini has just issued an order taking over all large industries in fascist Italy. Under the heel of either communism or fascism, the liberties guaranteed under our form of government would be forfeited. Personal and property rights would be surrendered to the state.

culture. Objectives and purposes of the council are stated in this paragraph taken from the articles of incorporation:

"This is a patriotic, non-partisan organization. The object for which it is formed is to conduct investigations, study and research of policies, programs, methods and legislation, actual and proposed by the state or federal government of the United States for the promotion and aid of agriculture and to disseminate among the farmers and other citizens of Nebraska accurate and truthful facts, figures and other information concerning said policies, programs, methods and

MIND

We have just read a leaflet by Joy Elmer Morgan, editor of the Journal of the National Education Association, touching care that should be taken to develop a well-disciplined, well-balanced mind—a mind capable of seeing clearly and understanding fully. The wonderful and which man has inherited must start with good impressions, and must later find right companions and healthful influences. These must be cultivated in school and on the street and among groups everywhere. The mind depends to an important degree on a healthy body, and, as the author says, "wholesome health habits are the foundation of mental vigor." "Back of every achievement there is endless detail and planning," he suggests, clinching the point with this: "By planning your time carefully you will find a place for generous leisure, for happy companionship, and for relaxation and meditation, which are the marks of a well-balanced mind." Then further along the author says: "The race gets ahead; you get ahead by thinking and planning beyond the moment. That means imagination, memory, intelligence, persistence."

PRINTS ARE DIFFERENT THIS EASTER!

WHEN you look at what seems a polka dot and discover it's really an elephant, chicken, puppy or penguin, you'll know you have a print that is truly Spring, 1936! And when you choose florals in colors that speak Chinese, you will know they're new and smart.

Distinction In PRINTS

Your Easter print will be unlike any other you have ever had. Brighter, gayer, more original in color and design.

G. E. "BERT" CARPENTER FILES FOR DELEGATE
G. E. "Bert" Carpenter, vice president of the Carpenter Paper Co., of Omaha, Lincoln and Grand Island, is known in every county in Nebraska as a civic leader, today announced that he had filed for delegate at large in the 1936 Republican National convention.

"Nebraska needs a business man rather than a politician at this convention," he declared. "This is my first venture in the field of politics. I am making the race at the request of many friends."

"Bert" came to Omaha in 1886 and has since become a large farm and ranch owner and one of the state's largest taxpayers. He has been very active in the Boy Scouts and chairman of the state advisory board of Salvation army.

"If I am elected at the April 14 primaries I will use my best judgment at the convention."

FARMALL
The Farmer's Choice of all-purpose Tractors

SAVE TIME -- SAVE LABOR
SAVE COST
With F-12, F-20 and F-30 Farmall Tractor

One of the surest ways of making farming pay is to save on overhead costs. A Farmall cuts labor for its doer every acre. The low-cost operation is one of the Farmall's greatest features. One man can plant 20 to 40 acres of corn a day with a Farmall — and can cultivate 20 to 50 acres a day.

POWER FOR ALL PURPOSES — For every farm operation — field work, grainers, ensilage cutters, elevators, sawing — in fact for any power work the Farmall gives greatest satisfaction.

MCCORMICK-DEERING IMPLEMENTS are the choice of farmers who demand efficiency at economy cost.

LET US DEMONSTRATE THE FARMALL AND OTHER FARM EQUIPMENT YOU NEED.

NUMBER FIFTYONE

DEBATE TITLE TO WEST POINT

Class A and B Tournaments Are Held At College In Wayne Friday.

West Point took first place in class A and Emerson first in class B of the northeast Nebraska high school debate tournament held in Wayne at the college last Friday. Wayne high placed third in class A, and Wayne college high was second in class B.

Blair, Fremont, Hartington, Norfolk, Sacred Heart of Norfolk, West Point and Wayne were entered in class A, and Emerson, Coleridge and Wayne college high in class B.

To be eliminated from the tournament a team was obliged to lose two debates. Pairings for the various rounds were made Friday morning when debates started on the state question of medical service in schools. Class A eliminators brought West Point and Norfolk together in the finals Friday evening. On West Point's champion team were Robert Kerl and Wayne Stewart. In this class West Point, Norfolk and Wayne ranked three highest, and in class B Emerson, Wayne and Coleridge placed in the order named. The Emerson team included two girls, Miss Rockwell and Miss Jones.

The first and second in each class qualified to enter the state contest at Lincoln the week of April 9.

Raymond Bowers' Wayne high school teams included Durward Sevy and Gerald Wright in the affirmative, and Bud Bornholt and Marian Jean Dienst on the negative. In first round Wayne affirmative won from Blair negative; in second round Wayne drew a bye, in third round Wayne negative lost to West Point affirmative; in fourth round Wayne negative won from Sacred Heart affirmative; and in last round Wayne affirmative lost to West Point negative.

Miss Lettie Scott and Gale McGee had charge of Wayne college high debates. Jean Hunter and John Kvi argued both sides of the question. In first round Wayne had affirmative and lost to Coleridge; in second round Wayne affirmative lost to Emerson; and in third round Wayne negative won from Coleridge.

Judges for the Wayne tournament were Prof. Palmer of Vermilion, S. D., Prof. Palmer, Thane VanAusdel and J. D. Cron of Sioux Falls, S. D., and Mrs. W. F. Dickling.

The debates, as well as other high school activity contests, are to be under the general supervision of O. B. Webb of Lincoln, according to a plan being arranged.

Meet Next Week

Legion men will meet next Wednesday evening at the hall for routine business.

Josephine Silvers Is To Be Chairman

State Officer and Other Wayne People Are On Library Program.

Miss Josephine Silvers, Wayne State Teachers College librarian and president of the Nebraska Library association, will be chairman of district library meetings, one at Oakland April 7 and one at Wausa April 9.

Besides Miss Silvers, Mrs. E. W. Huse will go from Wayne to take part on the Oakland program. At the morning session speakers will be Miss Nellie Carey of Lincoln, state executive secretary, Mrs. J. A. Clark of Tekamah, Miss Dorothy Dingsler of Fremont, and Mrs. Geo. Koeb of West Point. At the afternoon meeting Mrs. E. R. Oetting of Dodge, Mrs. Huse, Mrs. P. L. Cady of Fremont, and Supt. Harold Hackwood of Decatur, take part. Mrs. Huse's subject is "The Library and the Individual." Miss Katherine Boyd and Mrs. Harry Benson are hostess librarians.

Miss Silvers presides at the Wausa meeting April 9. Prof. A. V. Teed of Wayne, is one of the speakers in the afternoon, his subject being "The need of wider library service from a schoolman's point of view." For the morning program Miss Carey of Lincoln, Miss Elva Randa of Niobrara, Mrs. Daniel Kerr of Randolph, and Mrs. Sehbert of Plainville, will speak. Mrs. M. S. McDuffee of Norfolk, P. H. Peterson of Wausa, and Prof. Teed are on the afternoon program. Miss Rose Banks is hostess librarian.

Rites At Sidney Held on March 16

Wesley Shinkle, Son-in-Law Of George Hofeldts Dies March 12.

Funeral services were held at Sidney Monday last week for Wesley Shinkle, 48, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. George Hofeldt of north-west of Wayne. Mr. Shinkle had been in poor health the past year and passed away March 12 at his home at Sidney.

Mr. Shinkle and Miss Bertha Hofeldt were married September 22, 1915, at the Hofeldt home near Wayne. Deceased is survived by his wife and three children, Harlan, Myrna and Lamoyne. A nephew, Merlin Meyer, made his home with the Shinkle family at Sidney for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hofeldt and Harry Hofeldt went to Sidney to attend funeral services. Mr. Hofeldt and Harry Hofeldt returned home Friday and Mrs. Hofeldt remained for a longer stay with her daughter, Miss Shinkle. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krikow and son, David, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Engelson and son of Fargo, N. D., were also at the funeral.

CONGRESS As Seen by a Nebraskan

The ways and means tax subcommittee which has been meeting behind closed doors for several days working on the administration tax program, removed the so-called gag rule following a very exciting show-down between members and reporters in a capitol corridor yesterday. While there are various interests watching the activities of this committee, the central western bloc of house democratic members are meeting to combat proposals which they charge may seriously injure constituents' interests. Most of these come from Rocky Mountain states and western mining states. The tax subcommittee which is charged with formulating the general nature of the new corporation earning tax, spent all day yesterday trying to plug possible revenue "leaks" in the proposed tax bill, with much attention to the methods of reaching dividends. Members say these dividends must be taxed at the source, but the problem is how to tax them. The Rocky Mountain house bloc is against the processing tax on beef and mutton. So some of the mid-western congressmen have decided to take a stand opposing the processing tax against meat animals raised in their state. Although reports are printed in the newspapers here that the committee is making progress rapidly, members of the committee tell other congressmen that they are still far away from a completed tax bill.

Those who want a change in the federal land bank, claimed that the management of these federal land banks is in the hands of a few bureaucrats, and that the management of them has been taken away from the farmers with the result that the bank is more expensive now than it was under the old plan, to which they want to return. They plan for reorganization so that the stockholders, the farmers, in the federal land bank, can have more say about it. Quite a fight developed between the Iowa and Nebraska representatives. However, a motion got through so that a committee will be appointed and charged with the task of finding out from Governor Myers, head of the bank, all of the information needed regarding profit and loss of the federal land bank during the past 5 or 6 years. They want to find out whether or not it was more economical to run the bank under the old organization than it was under the new plan. Members of the prairie states group are interested in getting a bill passed to continue a 3-1-2 per cent rate for farm loans. Most of the members present were in favor of the Fowler-Longo refinance bill for a five per cent rate for refinancing farm mortgages. A new name has appeared on the petition which now has 211 names. 218 are needed to bring the bill out on the floor of the house for consideration.

You may be interested to know that at the present time, the government is building a settlement of houses for felicit workers, some of which will probably never be used. You will also be interested to know of the plans of furnishing these homes for these workers. The specifications read that the furnishings are to be in colonial style, the furniture to be of dull and unfinished maple, and the all-wool blankets on the beds must be pastel green with wide taffeta rayon bindings 80"x60" and weighing 2 1-2 pounds each. The puffs to go over the blankets must be of down duvets covered with sunfast fastenings. The fireplaces must harmonize with the colonial style of furnishings. In every reception room there must be two grandfather clocks with dials of silver, striking chimes on the hour, half hour and quarter hour. The love seats, davenport, wing chairs, coffee and cards tables, tilt top and butterfly tables must be in colonial style, and there must be old fashioned pewter candle sticks. The floor lamps must be of Cape Cod style with soft yellow shades and the paintings on the walls must be by recognized masters. These are being built for the relief workers on the Passamaquoddy project in the state of Maine. The working men and women of the country do not live in surroundings like these, but for generations to come they must earn by the sweat of their brow the money to repay in taxes the money thrown away.

Those who voted against the legislative bill calling for $23,284,000 to run the legislative establishment here for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937, are starting to find out that a lot of the things they endeavored to find out on the floor are really hidden in the bill itself. The bill was passed without a record vote as are many of the appropriation bills. Old timers say that if record votes were taken on all legislative bills there would be a good chance to save about a billion dollars a year. One new member who went to the committee meetings stated that he had heard that congressmen have free barber-shops, free lunches and free baths. He found out that not only does the government run a restaurant at the expense of the taxpayer, but it runs a barber shop, shoe shining parlor, and steam baths, but he could not find such information in the bill. So that committee member told this inquiring congressman that barber shops and shoe keepers are carried on the payroll as clerks and janitors. So are the shoe shiners and the men who run the lobby lunch room and so are the masseurs in the bath-rooms and the waiters in the restaurant. These employees who are recorded as janitors and clerks get from around $115 to $140 a month and work the year around, but this congressman also found out that members of congress pay 60 cents for a haircut and $2 for steam bath, and 10 cents for a shine; and all the way from 45 cents to $1 for a lunch. New members who knew very little about this are told that time was once when members didn't pay for a steam bath or a haircut or a shine. While they are not honor bound to pay for these things, the "tip" custom came in and they pay the regulation union prices for such services. While the public eats in the regular members' restaurant, both the public and the members of congress pay the regulation prices for food. Old timers say it used to be the restaurant didn't pay out, but now it's different. Over on the senate side they have free gingerale and carbonated water, but new members are told it is impolite for members of congress to say anything about the activity of the senate. It isn't done. Once in a while, newspapermen irritate the congressmen by calling attention to these things, which do not make common sense. KARL STEFAN.

D. A. R. Convention For Americanism

Maintenance of ideals of freedom and equality on which the government of the United States was established, was stressed at the state Daughters of American Revolution at Grand Island March 18 to 20. Mrs. D. J. Cavanaugh and Mrs. C. A. Orr, local regent and state chaplain, returned from the meeting Saturday. Mrs. Clyde Egan, who was also there, went with Mrs. Egan to Bridgeport to visit the Jason Gorsis. Mrs. Cavanaugh reported on Wayne chapter work and Mrs. Orr conducted memorial hour.

Copies of the "Daily Worker," communistic paper, were distributed to show the growth of communism in this country. Working under direction of Russian leaders, thousands are being influenced to join the group which has for its ultimate purpose the overthrow of a communistic state. "Laborers and intellectuals" are most easily influenced and agriculturalists are the slowest to take up the movement.

More than 200,000 in the United States are now enrolled in this dangerous communistic party. "Every walk of life is organized and the communistic menace in the United States is a reality."

The D. A. R. believes in adequate national defense. "Danger from without is not nearly so acute as danger from within," and for this reason the chapters are making special efforts against radicalism in this country.

Pioneer Courage and Fortitude Displayed During Winter Storms

Parents, teachers and pupils in Wayne county rural schools proved true to their pioneer heritage during the sub-zero snow storms and the thaws of this winter and spring. Among the reports coming to Miss Pearl E. Sewell, county superintendent are the following:

Mrs. Alice Larson Borg reports two weeks' vacation in district 13, south of Wakefield, during the stormy weather. "When we returned the drifts along the road were so high that we could not see the passing wagons." Mud followed the snow but roads are good again and attendance is perfect, on time.

"As roads in this part of the county were impassable, or nearly so for seven weeks," writes Leonard Nelson of district 77 in west part of the county, "many families had a hard time getting food and fuel." More than half of the total enrollment attended school in coldest weather. The week of February 10 to 14 most of the pupils stayed in homes close to school. Because of extreme cold and coal shortage no school was held February 17 to 21. Fathers of others of the families accompanied children to school through the deep drifts. "When the thaw started four boys had to be taken on horseback by neighbors across a valley because of high water. We have perfect attendance now and four of the 19 pupils have perfect records for the entire year."

Miss Verna Anderson, teacher in district 85, near Hoskins, reports walking two miles to school each day, many days in drifts above her knees. "Pupils' parents walked to school with them to be sure they arrived safely. It would have been impossible for the children otherwise." Several pupils froze fingers and cheeks and Miss Anderson had a foot frosted. One morning, with drifting snow so badly that it was impossible to face it. One pupil was walking the mile and a half with me. To get through the drifts I had to crawl over them and then turn around and pull the child through. Pupils who ventured out suffered frozen faces, ears, fingers, legs and feet. After the snow came high water and two in the district were thoughtful enough to provide a horse for me to ride across the deep water."

Children and teacher, Miss Blanche Johnson, in district 60, battled snow and storms every day for some time. "During the severe weather attendance averaged 9 and 10 each day."

District 62, taught by Miss Eleanor Edwards, dismissed a week and two days during the coldest weather. "When we returned the next week snow was level with the fence posts. Teams fell down going through snow and then got up and jumped like rabbits to get over the drifts."

Though Miss Alma Luttenbaugh stays only two blocks from school in district 47, she reports the storms the worst she ever experienced. "I would never have managed to get to school if it had not been for Mr. Larson. The snow bore his weight but when I stepped into his tracks I sank into the snow to my hips. Mr. Larson scooped me out. A little farther on the tip came off the sack in which I carried potatoes and eggs for children's hot lunch. The eggs fell out and broke and the potatoes rolled off into the snow." Attendance was good with at least 12 each day. Parents were very good in cooperating. One man tied a rope around his daughter's waist so he could help her get through the drifts. One boy fell into a drift so deep that he had to pull himself out by grasping a tree limb. Several families came in sleds and tipped over occasionally into the deep snow.

"One morning," relates Miss Lois Pierson of district 34, "most pupils came to school and by noon the snow was blowing so we could hardly see. Parents came for children in wagons and on horseback. All got home safely though some froze their faces. School was closed for the next two weeks."

Regardless of cold and snow, district 33 did not miss a day of school, states Miss Gertrude Most. "Parents showed real cooperation in bringing pupils by bobbeds, wagons and horseback. Some of the fathers walked with their children. One day only seven were present but most of the time from 15 to 18."

"One day a group of eight were in a bobbed on their way to school. The driver started around a drift when the sled upset. Lunch pails, book bags and pupils were scattered here and there under a covering of straw. None were hurt and the pupils enjoyed the experience which seemed unpleasant at first."

Up to February nine pupils had perfect attendance for the year. LeRoy Hammer, first grader, kept this record. In spite of much cold weather, Miss Mildred Soden reports only two days' vacation in district 19. Each of these days Miss Soden went to school and built up the fire to have it warm when school resumed. The district bought two tons of coal just before the bad spell so had plenty of fuel.

School was held every day but one in district 23 taught by Miss Neville Troutman. Wilbur Bruns was the only pupil who came one day. His brother brought him on a horse. The horse got down one of the large drifts and after that Wilbur came through fields. The Obst children were unable to attend three weeks because of high drifts. Helen Obst froze her feet. The Aurich children and Howard Persigal attended most of the bad weather. Arland and Howard led their sister, Lorana, 5, a half mile through deep drifts.

School in district 88, near the fair grounds, was closed from February 7 to 20 on account of the weather. Snow drifted higher than the gate at front of the school, Miss Ruth Heidenreich reports. Harold Quinn brought Laura Jane through fields. Lloyd Powers brought his three children in a wagon and after the thaw the Powers children were kept home by floods. Norma Powers had to break her record of perfect attendance since she started to school. Laura Jane Quinn was obliged to stay in town one night because of high water.

Miss Viola Thomas reports pupils all back in district 36 after the bad weather and roads. Patrons were very good in cooperating. Often fathers walking with the children who came more than a mile. Though the district had plenty of coal it was difficult to keep the rooms warm. "Every morning we were busy thawing out ears, cheeks, noses and heels as the children arrived. No school was held one week as the children couldn't have gotten there. No children suffered. The fathers suffered more."

One teacher reported to Miss Pearl Sewell that she started home on horseback and the horse was stalled in a drift going up a hill. Her brothers were back of her and helped get the horse out, all continuing on through the fields. When roads were blocked one teacher was being held out by the snow. Her horse and both horses got down into deep snow and she had to walk. People would walk where horses could not because of their weight. Miss Sophie Damme reports that her throat and lower jaw froze and swelled badly after a mile walk to school. Another day her nose froze, the frost spreading from a small white spot until it covered her nose. After the thaw Miss Damme was provided horseback rides over flooded low ground.

Another teacher froze her legs in spite of wearing a ski suit. One teacher who drives three miles to school carried chains, rope and scoop each day. One day the school door would not open and she entered through a window, started a fire and warmed the room. The door then yielded. This school also had excitement during the present season. A crack and bang startled everyone. Investigation showed that two shots had hit close to a window near which a little boy sat.

One morning one of the teachers, who drives four miles, became stalled in a drift with her car a half mile from school. She had extra shoes in her pockets to wear at school. These fell out and were lost in the snow but she dared not turn back. Her legs were frozen but she continued her teaching. After the thaw she was taken to edge of the water by car and walked through the waist-deep, icy water to reach her boarding place at midnight so as to be there for school the next day.

Plan Church Day Here In Early April "In recognition of our obligation to the various churches in this community and desiring to contribute in an equitable manner to their support, we will designate Friday, April 3, as our annual church day," states L. E. Brown, manager of Wayne's Brown-McDonald Golden Rule store. "Then percent of our sales on this day will be contributed to the various churches, every customer to name the church to receive credit for the particular sale. The name of the church specified will be written on the sales slip, and at the end of the day the amounts on the sales slips will be

HOURS MORE NEWS AND LOWEST PRICE And delivered on the date of publication. The Daily Lincoln Nebraska State Journal can give two to ten hours later news out on rural routes and in many towns because it is the only large daily between Omaha and Denver printing at night, in fact after 5 p. m. The Journal prints editions right up until train time day and night. The Morning Journal comes in time for mail delivery the same day. Dailies printed on the Iowa line edit for Iowa readers. The Lincoln Journal sells for one to two dollars a year less than any other big state morning daily, and is priced as low as day late afternoon papers. With the Lincoln Journal you practically get the Sunday free, for other morning papers charge as much for daily only as the Journal does including Sunday. Don't give money to strange solicitors; order direct or through our office. By mail in Nebraska and North Kansas three months' daily $1.25, with Sunday $1.50; a year daily $4.00, with Sunday $5.00. m26t1 totalled and credit given to the designated churches. "Checks will be sent to each church for an amount equal to 10 percent of the sales designated to that church. These checks will be mailed as soon as the necessary computations can be made after the day's business. "Here is a splendid opportunity," adds Mr. Brown, "for those people who are interested in the financial support of the churches to help the church of their choice in a substantial way. We suggest that you contact at once the heads of your various organizations which are interested in raising money in order that they may be able to give the plan some publicity in the organization and thereby get substantial results for your church. We are interested in making the day as big as possible and hope that the various churches will take enough interest to make the results really worth while." m26t1

Playing Hotel

(By Edith Huse Wightman) "It's raining cats and dogs," said Betty as she and Bob stood with their noses pressed against the big front room window.

The farm twins spent most of the morning playing school, coloring and reading. Soon they grew tired of being shut up in one room and went to Mother for help.

"Mother, can't you think of something new for us to play?" asked Betty. "Yes," agreed Bob, stretching his arms in the air and yawning. "We are tired of all our old games."

Mother thought a minute and then said, "I know. It is almost dinner time. How would you like to play hotel?"

at your hotel on a rainy day like this," said Daddy. Vegetable soup was the first thing Betty and Bob served. It was served from their guests' left side.

"When you eat your soup," said Mother, "you should fill your spoon by dipping it away from you."

"I know what we could do," suggested Betty. "Let's make up rhymes about what we should do and what we shouldn't do at the table." The guests agreed that would be a fine idea.

"I have one," said Daddy. "Keep your elbows off the table. Sit up straight if you are able. I can see Betty has one," said Mother.

Marry Wednesday At Morris Home

Miss Tillie Morris Bride of Lemuel L. Jones of This Vicinity.

The marriage of Miss Tillie Marie Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Morris, and Mr. Lemuel L. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jones, was solemnized Wednesday, March 18, at high noon when Rev. R. L. Williams, pastor of the bridal couple, performed the ceremony at the Morris home in the presence of relatives and a few near friends. The ring service of the Presbyterian church was used.

Miss Ruby Davis played the wedding march as the bridal party entered the parlor at the Morris home and took places beneath an arch trimmed in the bride's colors of blue and white. Miss Morris wore navy blue silk dress with white trimming and accessories. Miss Eva Mae Morris, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore pretty rust colored silk dress. Mr. Jones and his cousin, Edwin Jones, who attended him, wore dark suits. The bride's traveling outfit was a navy blue spring suit with accessories to match.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Morris entertained at dinner. Tables were decorated in blue and white with a large wedding cake as centerpiece. Miss Ruby Davis and Mrs. Owen Jenkins, cousins of the bride, served the dinner. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel L. Jones, Miss Eva Mae Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Edwal A. Morris, Erwin Morris, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jones, Rev. and Mrs. R. L. Williams, Thomas Thomas, Ellis Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Ora Selson and daughters; Myra June and Ruth Ann, of Wayne; Miss Ruby Davis and Mrs. Owen Jenkins.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Jones returned to make their home with the bride's grandfather, Thomas Thomas.

English 9 class is doing work with vocabulary building. Each member of the class is required to look up 25 words a day, to know their meanings and to be able to use them in sentences.
Grammar Room.
The English classes have been working on a "Town History Questionnaire" sent out by the Works Progress Administration, Lincoln. The Nebraska Federal Writers are compiling data of Nebraska for "The America Guide," a government publication of six volumes. A printed certificate of merit will be sent to the pupil offering the most comprehensive information and essays. Some very interesting things concerning the history of Winside were discovered. Junior Trautwein told about his great grandfather having run the mill which burned down. Ruth Schmode told about the brick yard that was located in the east part of town.
Miss Nuss' Room.
The fifth grade has started a new unit in arithmetic and is now working on decimals. The sixth grade will take up the study of the circle this week. Last week Wednesday Mrs. Clarence Witte visited the room. Mrs. Gurney Benschhof was a visitor in the room Friday. Shirley Wagner is a new pupil. She comes from District 28 South.
Miss Leffer's News.
First grade pupils are learning to copy from print to script. This week they are working on small letters.
Opening exercises this week were used to talk about sounds of spring. Pupils also read a science book which gave some interesting facts about spring.
Second grade pupils have been working hard to improve their writing. After each lesson the mistakes are discussed and an effort is made to correct them. They are particularly noticing the letter formations in the height of tall and short letters.

This week pupils made paper cuttings of fruit. The best cuttings will be taken to the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Miller Enjoy Colorful Winter In California

Hear Aimee Semple McPherson At Temple In Los Angeles With Dramatic Scenes For Emphasis To Sermon.

"It seems to me," Mrs. J. G. Miller remarked, apropos of a question concerning her winter in the west, "that lower California has more of interest than any equal area, anywhere. It is said that moving picture directors seldom have to go more than 200 miles in order to find a perfect setting for any picture. It is only a half-day's trip from the beaches where one sees countless numbers of people sunbathing, or splashing about in the surf, to the mountains where the snow is deep enough for sledding or tobogganing. At El Centro, the Yuma desert settings are perfect for Arabian desert pictures. Out from Los Angeles one travels through groves of lemon, grapefruit, walnut, orange and avocado trees."

Mr. and Mrs. Miller arrived home last week from California, having traveled 8,000 miles. They spent ten days on the way home, stopping at points of interest along the way. They had planned to stop at Glenwood Springs, Colo., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Myron Brockway but snow was so deep in the mountains that they were unable to make the trip that way.

Here Evangelist Lecture

The Wayne people went to hear Aimee Semple McPherson at her temple in Los Angeles. The temple was packed with people for the Sunday evening service. On one side of the platform was a choir of 100 voices, the members clothed in white satin robes. On the opposite side was a 100-voice choir of colored people, dressed in black satin. The stage setting was very elaborate and Aimee made a very spectacular entrance. The evangelist wore a Colonial costume and white wig; all through the hour before her sermon she was much in the foreground. The negro choir gave a concert of spirituals and old time southern songs; this was followed by a quartet from one of the large churches of the city.

On the platform was a great bouquet of mixed flowers. Aimee stood beside this and requested the representatives of the different states of the union rise—flowers were selected from the baskets and presented to the individual states from the separate states. The flowers were carried by ushers; almost every state in the union was represented.

At the close of the musical hour the evangelist preached a sermon comparing the life of Christ with the life of Lincoln. At intervals through the sermon the curtains were drawn at the rear of the stage which was divided into two equal parts. Tableaux were shown at either side with scenes from the life of Christ and from the life of Lincoln. The result was very dramatic and intensely interesting. The evangelist delivered a very fine sermon.

"In some ways it was like a very spectacular show," said Mrs. Miller, "and in others one felt that she was doing considerable good and deserved a great deal of credit."

The climax of the evening was very much like an old-fashioned revival. Mrs. McPherson's voice was not especially pleasing and seemed very strained at times. The evangelist is a very striking looking woman; her daughter, who was with her mother on the platform, was very beautiful in formal evening attire.

Enjoy Shoreline Drive

A trip which Mr. and Mrs. Miller thoroughly enjoyed was a drive down the shoreline from Long Beach to San Diego, a distance of 100 miles, and then down to Encenada in Old Mexico. Encenada is a typical little Mexican town, out from the village is the Playa Encenada, an elaborately beautiful hotel popular in the days when gambling was all the rage in the country. It was in this hotel that Jack Dempsey sank large quantities of money in the days when it was a playground for the wealthy people of the states. The place is still beautifully kept but one sees very few people about. Many of the paintings and mosaics in the hotel were brought from Spain. The 200-year-old iron gates and panels were brought from a Franciscan church in Cuba; the wood-carvings were once a part of St. Augustine chapel in Havana.

Throughout California and the southwest the Millers found the Spanish influence in architecture very strong. Most of the buildings are of stucco with the attractive red tile roofs; all of the homes of the wealthy class have patios, many of which are riots of bloom and greenery. Many of the restaurants of southern California are in the old-time Spanish style with waitresses wearing the full skirts and costumes of the day; when Spain ruled supreme over California, floor shows were Spanish dances and songs. On a trip to Catalina Island, Spanish troubadours sang on the wharf singing greeting songs and songs of adios.

For the most part the Millers were not favorably impressed with the quality of the Spanish mission built all the way down the coast of California. The missions were built one day's journey apart and started by Fra Junipero Serra, one of the first padres to bring religion to America. Each of the missions was a small oasis of civilization where the trades and handicraft arts were taught to the Indians. "To me," Mrs. Miller said, "the origin of the missions was merely the building up of small kingdoms for the padres and the elite of Spain, with the Indians doing all of the menial labor."

On the missions was back-breaking in the early history of the country. The church walls were made from adobe and sandstone, several feet in thickness. All of the bricks and tiles; freestone and grout-work were done by hand. The Indians lived in adobe stables clustered in rows at the outer edge of the church and mission yards. At one time the missions were abandoned but in the last few years they have been restored as nearly like the originals as possible. Thousands of tourists flock to the missions each year.

The Millers report California full of tourists. Mr. Miller found that sentiment among tourists was against the New Deal with even the democrats unfriendly toward it.

Attend Laurel Picnic. Mr. and Mrs. Miller attended the Laurel picnic at Long Beach where 100 attended the gathering. One hundred and fifty former Laurel people, now living in California, were unable to be present. At the Iowa picnic held at Long Beach 100,000 former middle-westerners attended. The Millers found the city beautifully kept with well-built homes, "financed by money earned in the middle west."

The Wayne people witnessed the Forty-seventh Annual Tournament of Roses in Pasadena New Year's day. Floats were entirely covered with flowers—the wheels and bodies of the cars were concealed with blooms. Long Beach was awarded first prize in the tournament this year with a legendary picture of an empress of a long-ago dynasty in China. The empress bower was supposedly drawn by three sea horses, made entirely of flowers. Another float which attracted much comment, carried Will Rogers saddled, but riderless, on the whole float made of white roses. Another float was of a portrait of Will Rogers in flowers on a flower palette. Part of the parade was made up of houses from some of the nearby Spanish ranches.

range which were barren of vegetation.

Says Mrs. Miller: "We met a great many interesting people and I am tempted to believe that 'tis not the things you see, but the people you meet" which make travel interesting."

His birth was mixed with admiration for the mine investor's nerve. Along with this he felt a glow of satisfaction over the results of what his rigorous training had done for the once-soft millionaire. Though still heavy-set, the sprightly gentleman has become something of an athlete in appearance. His baby muscles had been hardened; his loose jaws were now firm. His pitch had disappeared. "My word, sir," Garth sang out, "you look fit for the football squad. That should be worth more to you than a dozen platinum chains. At least, you might toss me my buckskins."

Mellowed by the bath and swim to a temporary return of friendliness, the millionaire chuckled and came down the bench to fling the sudden garments out to their owner. His beltjacket afterward appeared on the floor of Huxby. Yet he went back to the lead fires with Garth, when the engineer muttered something about having dropped his penknife.

As the two disappeared over the top of the heap, Huxby sprang to open the wolfskin knapsack. From it he snatched out a piece of rancid bear-cub fat, a clip of pistol cartridges, and his "lost" automatic.

With swift, purposeful movements, he rubbed the fat on the rusty pistol and head, examining it carefully. But as the sun-melted fat soaked the rust, the action became normal, and

"Come on, Vivian. This is wretched. Take Lillith's bag and get your potash."

The wolfskin knapsack, with its platinum silver treasure, had been left attached to the mooring line of the canoe. There was no bag for Garth. He made one by opening the front of his buckskin shirt and hand-ladling wood ashes inside.

Lillith went over beyond the spruce thicket with her blanket-bag, while Garth led Mr. Ramill and Huxby to the strip of sand below the beached canoe. There he showed them how to cheat the buzzing insect pests. Instead of stripping for his laundry work, he muddled his ashes and plastered the paste all over his body and on the inside and outside of his clothes.

He rubbed in the mess and gave the weak solution of potash lye time to act. After that came the rinsing. He waded out and sat down in the water up to his neck. Thus protected from the swarms of stingers, he stripped off one garment at a time, washed it clean of ash and tossed it upon the edge of the beach. Before coming out, he took a luxurious swim in the clear river water.

First Ramill and then Huxby rather gingerly copied Garth's method. Like him, both wound up with a swim. Neither, however, ventured far out into the vast slow flood of the Mackenzie.

When the bathing came to the end, the other two dried their bathing before Garth. He tread water to watch them. Both had wrung out their clothes and flung them well up the beach. The moment they splattered ashore, the waiting swarms of blood-suckers buzzed to the feast.

Huxby cursed, snatched up his hairy rug, and dashed back to the dress under water. Mr. Ramill, however, had no desire to put on wet clothes. He beat at the zipping pests with his tattered union suit. It enabled him to get into the leather trousers and coat without being stung more than half a hundred times.

Garth's mirth was mixed with admiration for the mine investor's nerve. Along with this he felt a glow of satisfaction over the results of what his rigorous training had done for the once-soft millionaire. Though still heavy-set, the sprightly gentleman has become something of an athlete in appearance. His baby muscles had been hardened; his loose jaws were now firm. His pitch had disappeared. "My word, sir," Garth sang out, "you look fit for the football squad. That should be worth more to you than a dozen platinum chains. At least, you might toss me my buckskins."

Mellowed by the bath and swim to a temporary return of friendliness, the millionaire chuckled and came down the bench to fling the sudden garments out to their owner. His beltjacket afterward appeared on the floor of Huxby. Yet he went back to the lead fires with Garth, when the engineer muttered something about having dropped his penknife.

As the two disappeared over the top of the heap, Huxby sprang to open the wolfskin knapsack. From it he snatched out a piece of rancid bear-cub fat, a clip of pistol cartridges, and his "lost" automatic.

With swift, purposeful movements, he rubbed the fat on the rusty pistol and head, examining it carefully. But as the sun-melted fat soaked the rust, the action became normal, and loaded the clip into the hollow butt and slid back the outer barrel to throw a cartridge into the breach.

As was of course to be expected Lillith Ramill had not returned from her own dip and wood-ashes laundering. Garth sat down beside the tin cup and little aluminum pot to mend a rip in his buckskin trousers.

Still in a friendly mood, but with shrewd calculation in his eyes, Mr. Ramill stretched out on his back in the long grass beside Garth.

"Well, young man, it appears that the game is played out. The job on us, as you say, has had the cards stacked. A cold deck, and no stakes up."

Garth differed: "Why not put it according to the facts, sir? I offered a square deal—a straight business proposition. The placer was in on that. Had I not sent out my papers for record, I would have had no legal claim to offer in my bargaining."

"Why—er— But when I refused your terms, and you refused mine, you said you preferred to play out the game."

"My game," Garth qualified; "not yours. It was you and Huxby who thought you had the cards stacked to win."

"But—your game? You had the placer clinched. Why not have said so at once, or at least there at the lake when you turned the tables on us? I might have accepted your terms. At least we could have flown out together, instead of going through all these weeks of privation and hardship."

The last words won an amused glance from Garth.

lillith burst screaming from the spruce thicket. Half clad, wet hair flying, she dashed forward to fling herself down on her bare knees beside her father.

She looked up, her eyes black with horror. Huxby had risen to his feet. He was advancing, once more cold. She hung out a forbidding hand.

"Stop! Keep away! You—murderer!"

His lips tightened. "You're mad, darling—clear of your head. I shot to save your father, not him. No, listen—you must listen to me! The d—d roughtneck attacked your father—with the knife—had him down. At my first shot he flogged me. I thought I missed. Your father sprang up just as I fired again. It's the truth."

"Truth!" she cried—"truth! You've killed them both!"

Huxby advanced with wary quickness. But at sight of the two men he had shot, he thrust his concealed pistol into his sheath. All the back of Garth's sidewalk turned white was a crimson blotch. What need of wasting powder on a man slung through the head?

Mr. Ramill's wound gave him no less satisfaction, though for an exactly opposite reason. The bullet had struck high up on the shoulder blade, between neck and arm. Huxby pulled the thickest body from under his shirt and opened the front of the leather coat. The steel-jacketed bullet had drilled clean through and come out below the collarbone.

"Look!" he shouted his relief. "Your father—he's not killed, only knocked out. The wound's not serious, so high up through the chest. Same way one of my classmates was shot by a hold-up. Take hold. We'll let him eat the canoe and make a quick run down across to the refueling post. That fellow Tobin will have a medical kit."

The pulling of her father from under her had let the girl down upon the body of Garth. Huxby's eager assurance roused her from the semi-swoon. She struggled partly up, to peer at her father, her hands braced upon Garth's lax front.

Even as she gazed, the gray of her father's face became less ghastly. But in place of the spittle of relief for which Huxby looked, she sprang up to stare at him in another outburst of denunciation:

"Murderer! Liar! There's his knife where I left it. He did not attack it! Liar! Swear! He did not attack it! But you—you crawled up and shot him—without warning!"

Huxby dropped his mask.

"What of it? The d—d wood louse had first. He thought it funny to keep mum about having recorded his claim by the knife. He did not attack it! Liar! Swear! He did not

Rush at one time. Engineers are surveying between Jackson and Oakland for a possible extension of the railroad to connect with Omaha. A new ferry boat will ply the Missouri between Sioux City and Covington.

Fairacres Farms Herd Tests High

The herd of registered Holsteins owned by Fairacres Farms at Winside has maintained a daily average yield of 1.3 pounds of fat per cow during the first 217 days of the current annual production test. Five cows in the herd have topped the 200 pounds fat mark during the 217 days with top honor going to Beauty Gerben Superior with a credit of 330.7 pounds fat and 8401.8 pounds milk. She was surpassed in milk production by L. V. Mechthilde Queen Piebe whose credit for the 217 days was 10,016.6 pounds milk and 329.9 pounds fat. During the last reported test period Logan Valley Piebe was high cow with a yield of 65.4 pounds fat and 2173 pounds milk. Six other cows in the herd topped the 50 pound fat mark for this period. The Holstein-Friesian herd test is a test of the entire herd and records the production of milk and butterfat for each cow during the year. For the past year 258 Holstein herds from all parts of the United States averaged 11,338 pounds milk and 391 pounds butterfat per cow in the herd test. This is just about two and one-half times the average production per cow for the United States, which is 158 pounds fat per cow, according to government figures.

Speech Tournament Has "High Lights"

A few minutes' observation and "listening in" on the Northeast Nebraska speech tournament at Wayne college last Thursday was interesting. The room was quiet except for the coming and going of spectators and participants in the few minutes allowed between numbers. The oratory contest was on. A clean, wholesome looking lad took the stage for an oration on Patrick Henry: "Let us not deceive ourselves any longer—I beseech you, gentlemen..." cried the earnest young voice. "We shall not fight our battles alone... There is a just God." The young orator warmed to his theme, pacing the stage and gesturing to emphasize a particular point, leading at last to the culmination in: "Is peace so sweet, that we must buy it at the price of chains and slavery? Gentlemen, I repeat—give me liberty, or give me death."

girl with a pleasing contralto voice, entirely at ease on the stage. Her voice came back to the audience with all the pathos of her oration on Lincoln. The reporter caught snatches of the oration between glances about at the group in the auditorium... "rocked him in the cradle of poverty... the mystic chords of memory, leading from every patriot grave and battlefield... his dead body bridged the yawning chasm between the north and the south." After listening to several orations the Herald reporter left the auditorium, pausing for a moment in the lower hall of the administration building—meeting place for friends since the building was erected. Here former students, now instructors in high schools over this section of the state, paused to greet each other with a "Hi, fellow. Well met." Faces lighted as old friends wrung each other's hands and clapped each other's shoulders. Jolly raillery in some greetings: "Hey, fella, you're getting fat." Others were more polite—if veiled: "You don't look a day older than you did ten years ago!" One of the judges looked the crowd over, singling out contestants in divisions just over. Walking up to a youngster he asked: "Were you in that last contest, young man?" "Yes, sir," replied the boy a bit uneasily. "Then, if I were you, I'd get those criticisms and read them over—read them three or four times." "Yes, sir."

Fairacres Farms Herd Tests High

The herd of registered Holsteins owned by Fairacres Farms at Winside has maintained a daily average yield of 1.3 pounds of fat per cow during the first 217 days of the current annual production test. Five cows in the herd have topped the 200 pounds fat mark during the 217 days with top honor going to Beauty Gerben Superior with a credit of 330.7 pounds fat and 8401.8 pounds milk. She was surpassed in milk production by L. V. Mechthilde Queen Piebe whose credit for the 217 days was 10,016.6 pounds milk and 329.9 pounds fat. During the last reported test period Logan Valley Piebe was high cow with a yield of 65.4 pounds fat and 2173 pounds milk. Six other cows in the herd topped the 50 pound fat mark for this period. The Holstein-Friesian herd test is a test of the entire herd and records the production of milk and butterfat for each cow during the year. For the past year 258 Holstein herds from all parts of the United States averaged 11,338 pounds milk and 391 pounds butterfat per cow in the herd test. This is just about two and one-half times the average production per cow for the United States, which is 158 pounds fat per cow, according to government figures.
