NUMBER FIFTY TWO

MANY IN WAYNE FOR AUTO SHOW

Amateur Programs Attract Attention—Car Displays Are Outstanding.

Wayne's first annual automobile show, sponsored Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the city auditorium by Correll Auto Company, G. & W. Garage, Briggs Motor Company, Finn Motor Company and Baker Garage, attracted large audiences each day.

Henry E. Ley presided ably for the amateur programs, Don Baker, playing a clarinet solo, placed first for prize of $15 Friday night.

Others who gave numbers to help make up the interesting program Friday were the following: Piano solo, Willis Volk, of Randolph; accordion solo, Erwin Schmidt of Pender; dulcimer solo, Betty Blair; piano solo, Leon Alford; vocal solo, Wm. Ossian of Wakefield; music on bottles, in charge of Braden Carst, saxophone and song, Ardie Schmidt of Pender; violin, Lon Holbrook; Dick Fenske appeared as a comedy character and received the gong on his horn solo.

Another amateur program showing much talent was provided Saturday evening with Henry E. Ley master of ceremonies. Little Lynelle Schuck, who, dressed in white suit, tap danced and was called back for a second number, placed first. Frank Gamble played a trumpet solo which gave him second prize, and Finley Heileberg sang and played a piano number to place for third prize.

Others who took part to make entertainment of special interest were the following: Trombone solo, Franklin Simonin, harmonica, George J. and song, James Hogan and company; song in old-fashioned costume, Miss Dolores McNatt; tap dance, Peggy Tietz; accordian—selection, Mrs. Ernest Kohrt; piano solo and tap dance in costume, Virginia Lewis; guitar and solo, Wilbur Radford of Winside; whistling solo, Miss Mary Esther Perdue; tap dance, song and piano solo, Ethel Jean Olson; drums, Hugh Maybrey; song, Wilmer Ellis, Lyle Seymour and Billy Hawkins; rope throwing act, Allan Splitzberger; song, Miss Jeanne Wright, Miss Frances Kiker and Miss Harriet Lawson; and piano solo, Richard Kelley. As a feature Charlie Martin sang a solo. Wilbur Porterfield started to draw a picture of the announcer and the latter rang the gong.

Sioux City singers, dancers and musicians furnished music for Thursday night. Harold Smalley's orchestra played each evening before and after the programs. The musicians also accompanied some of the amateurs.

Wayne Municipal band, directed by Prof. F. C. Reed, played at the auditorium Friday evening. They also played Saturday afternoon when they played in parades of cars through Main street.

Attendance Thursday evening reached 650, Friday evening's attendance was 865 and Saturday evening the crowd reached 1136. Wayne dealers had on display 20 newest models of cars. Included were the Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Lincoln Zephyr, Chevrolet, Ford, Buick, Plymouth, Chrysler, Nash and Lafayette. Flowers among the car displays added to the setting.

The dealers, W. C. Correll, W. H. Gifford, P. L. Briggs, Fred Westerbeke, Wm. Finn and Joe Baker feel that automobile show was a success and hope to make the occasion an annual one.

Mr. Frank Claycomb, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Claycomb of Wayne, and Miss Harriet Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Duncan of DeKalb, Ill., will be married Saturday, April 11, at an informal ceremony at DeKalb. Mr. Claycomb, who is a graduate of Wayne high school and attended Wayne college, is salesman for the Anacostia Wire and Cable Co. During his studentship with the company he studied at the Anacostia College in New York and Pawtucket, later he was salesman in New York and Detroit. He is now stationed at St. Louis. Some of the A. T. Claycombs plan to go to DeKalb next week for the wedding.

HIGH SCHOOL IS PLANNING GOLDEN JUBILEE EVENTS

THE graduating class of 1936 has issued a letter to the alumni of the Wayne high school to come back for the golden jubilee celebration to be featured in connection with the annual commencement in May. Preliminary to the joyful climax, the school's fifty years of evolution will be revealed in a booklet of photographs and stories. Preparation of the booklet is in progress, and orders are now being taken for copies at $1.25 each—less than the cost of production. Walter Harrison, early-day student of the school, now prominent Oklahoma City editor, promises to be on hand to recount school experiences here. He may explain how he narrowly escaped satisfying the appetite of an angered and doubtless hungry circus monkey. The anniversary occasion will not only reflect a half century of school life, but will reflect the spirit of the community. Addressing the alumni, the class communication concludes: "Yours for the pleasant memories and good fellowship and noble achievement characteristic of our school and our community."

RITEs FRIDAY FOR AGED MAN

George H. Cadwell, Former Wayne Resident, Dies At Oakdale.

Funeral services for George Henry Cadwell were held at the William Beckenhauer mortuary chapel, in Wayne, Friday afternoon, March 27, at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. M. C. Powers of the Baptist church officiating. Interment was made in the Wayne cemetery. Mr. Cadwell passed away at Oakdale March 25, at the age of 89. The Cadwells lived at Wayne for many years, going to Oakdale 8 years ago.

Deceased was born September 8, 1846 at Pekin, N. Y., and was aged 89 years, 6 months and 17 days when he passed away. He married Miss Jane Louisa Peer January 31, 1877 at Niagara Falls, Ontario, and several years later moved his family to Nebraska. The Cadwells lived at Wayne for about 40 years during which time Mr. Cadwell was a practicing veterinarian.

Mr. Cadwell is survived by his wife and three children as follows: Mrs. Clara Miller of Kansas City, Kan., Mrs. Anna Tomrle of Topeka, Kan., and James Arthur Cadwell of Oakdale, Neb. Eight children preceded their father in death, among them the late Mrs. John Soules of Wayne. There are 30 grandchildren and 15 great grandchildren.

Among those from out of town, here at last rites were: Mrs. Cadwell, his wife; Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Tomrle and James Cadwell, his children; Mrs. R. Williams, P. Ward and Mrs. T. Hayes of Oakdale, and a number of the grandchildren.

SERVICES ARE AT ST. MARY'S

Rites Held Here Saturday For Mrs. Andresen Who Died March 25.

Last rites were held at St. Mary's Catholic church in Wayne Saturday morning, March 28, at 9 o'clock for Mrs. W. H. Andresen who passed away last week Wednesday evening of a heart attack, following a brief illness. Rev. Wm. Kearns officiated at rites and the Hiscox funeral service had charge of committal in Greenwood cemetery.

Rev. Kearns sang the solemn requiem high mass. Rev. M. Kellner of Laurel, served as deacon and preached the sermon. Rev. T. Fortune of Dixon, was sub-deacon. Miss Eulalie Brugger, Norbert Brugger, Miss Helen Nuss, Miss Mary Alice Strahan and Miss Mary Perdue sang, and Miss Kathleen McFarlane accompanied them. Anna Marie Malec was born in Jeleniska, Austria, now a part of Poland, October 1, 1882, and at the time of her death was aged 53 years, 5 months and 24 days. In 1901 she came to America, making her home in the city of Chicago. She was married to W. H. Andresen September 10, 1907 and the couple continued to live in Chicago until 1912. In the following year Mr. and Mrs. Andresen made a trip to the latter's old home in Europe and on their return, in 1914, came to Wayne, Neb., where they had since made their home.

Deceased is survived by her husband, W. H. Andresen, one son, William, a daughter-in-law, and one grandson, Tommy Andresen. A daughter, Marilyn, died in infancy. She also leaves one brother, John Malec, who lives in the old country, and a half-sister, Mrs. Anelia Mizia of Chicago. One brother was killed in the World war, one of the first battles on the Western front.

Mrs. Andresen was a kindly neighbor, a true wife and mother, devoted to her church and to her home. These here Saturday from a distance for the funeral services were: Mrs. Anelia Mizia and Mr. and Mrs. George Mizia of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. George Schroeder of Fremont, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Andresen and Mr. and Mrs. John Grojovik of West Point, and Mrs. Frank Gorman of Chicago. Mrs. Fred Strulo and Mrs. Harold Hollquist, all of Oakland, and Mrs. Anna Kohnlemer of Wakefield, pallbearers were G. A. Renard, Harry Perdue, Joe Smolick, Frank Heine, Fred Martischang and Carl Nuss. An Austrian custom was observed when pallbearers, relatives and friends marched from the home to the church.

College High In Play Production

Award Basketball Letters To Season's Players On Wednesday.

"The Judson's Entertain," a three-act comedy by Edith Ellis, will be presented by the senior class of the college high school Tuesday evening, April 7, at the college auditorium. The story is based on the activities of a young architect and his wife, the principal parts played by Willard Johnson and Marilyn Glenn. The part of the aunt, who leaves her Colonial home in charge of the young people while she visits in Maine, is played by Mildred Murphy. Other parts are taken by George Brock, Frances Lutt, John Alden Lewis, Fay Davidson, Mattie Seace, Dorothy Anderson, Ralph Van Allen and Ronald Grunke.

Miss Lettie Scott is sponsor and the play is under supervision of Miss Florence Drake's college dramatics class. Student directors for the three acts are: Raymond Reising, Edith Horstman and Lucile Baker. Fred Downing is producing manager and is assisted by Margaret Jones, Bethene Barnell and Einar Bernson.

Miss Drake spoke to college high school students at convocation period yesterday, explaining types of plays and the points to look for in the coming production of "The Judson's Entertain."

Mrs. S. A. Lutgen gave a brief talk before the assembly at convocation on the essay contest which is being sponsored by the Woman's clubs over the state. Student Coach Larry Manning presented basketball letters to the following training school athletes: Seniors, Ralph Van Allen, John Alden Lewis; Juniors, Quentin Whitmore, Jean Hüntner and Russell Whlorow; Sophomores, Harold Jordan, Robert Hickman and Donald Strahan. Quentin Whitmore was also preferred a star because of his having been chosen honorary captain.

Club Work Starts In Wayne County

Wayne county 4-H clubs already have 77 members this season and it is expected the enrollment will reach 250 as compared to 150 last season. Baby beef and pig clubs are well started, also poultry, sewing and cooking clubs. Mrs. Frank Korff will lead a health club for girls from 10 to 15 years of age. Harvey Podoli will start a poultry club at Winside, and Mrs. Carl Sievers has formed one of these. L. E. Farnsbaaker will conduct a bee club. Mrs. Luther Andersen has a canning club in Garfield. C. H. Morris will lead a sheep club. Young folks interested in any of these are asked to see Agent Walter Moller or the leader.

Action Is Deferred On Pension Plan

State normal board, at Lincoln Monday, deferred action on pension plan for college teachers. Fred Andersen, comptroller, reported Wayne college property valuation at $1,018,310, next to Peru which is highest. The 4,590 students in the four colleges cost an average of $263.92 a year for education. Teachers' salaries average $159.81. Students' rooms average $136 a week and their meals 18½c each.

Scout Council Meets.
Girl scout council met Tuesday afternoon in the office of T. S. Hook to make plans for summer camp. No definite action was taken at this time.

Address Is Given By J. E. Brittain

Miss Florence Drake Gives Parliamentary Drill Before Club.

"Women are enjoying the best status in history at the present time," stated J. E. Brittain who addressed Wayne Business and Professional Women's club Monday evening following dinner at Hotel Stratton on the subject, "Present Legal Status of Women." Everything is in a period of change, Mr. Brittain began. To make clear the present status of women one must explain the past. In the past the world had English common law and Roman speaking law. Women in England were under common law and this was brought to the colonies in early settlement here. By this all property of a woman became her husband's at marriage. A single woman could own property. The married woman could not be in business. She was dead in legal affairs, and the husband had to assume debts she contracted before marriage.

An act in 1881 in Illinois allowed women to keep their own property and to take part in business. Nebraska adopted in 1871 a code of law which made a married woman's estate the same as that of any one else. A single woman was given all privileges accorded men. Debts were not assumed as under common law. The status of women, single or married, became the same as for all others.

Women do not serve on juries in Nebraska, but Mr. Brittain believes they should and will be granted this privilege and duty. Women would look at such service as an obligation to be fulfilled. Women should give attention to questions of the day, Mr. Brittain believes. Government and conditions must be studied by intelligent people, both men and women, to bring proper adjustment.

Pasture Meetings Planned In County

Two pasture meetings in Wayne county have been scheduled for the afternoon and evening of April 8, one to be held at Carroll at 2 p. m. and the other held at Wayne at 8 p. m. Elvin L. Frolik of the agronomy department from the college of agriculture, will discuss various pasture problems and the state pasture contest. The pasture contest program are going to work along hand in hand. No new seeding of pasture is necessary, however, in order to enter the pasture contest. The idea is to handle the pasture in such a way as to get the most pasture possible from it.

Will Serve Time On Check Charges

Leonard H. Mielke, Sioux City, pleaded guilty in Wayne county court Wednesday afternoon to seven worthless check charges, these checks being given in Wayne, Winside and Hoskins in December and January. Mielke was sentenced to serve three months on each, a total of 21 months, and has started the term here. To bring him to Wayne it was necessary to get extradition papers which the Iowa governor granted, Sheriff J. H. Pile and County Attorney Burr Davis went to Sioux City Tuesday to bring Mielke here.

Elect Wayne Men In Banker Group

R. W. Ley And J. T. Bressler Are Officers Of New Association.

Rollie W. Ley is president and J. T. Bressler, jr., secretary of northeast Nebraska bankers who met Wednesday evening last week at Hotel Stratton for dinner and discussion. The 80 who attended represent Wayne, Dixon, Dakota, Cedar, Knox, Pierce, Madison, Stanton, Thurston and Cuming counties. The group plans to meet four times a year and will come to Wayne again next September. Harry Miller of Stanton, president at Wednesday's meeting, Wm. Hughes of Omaha, state secretary, and Mr. Sorenson of Fremont, state president, spoke. Ten bankers were present from Omaha and Sioux City. Ben Zerzen provided entertainment features.

H. E. Ley and J. T. Bressler made local arrangements for the dinner and program.

Communication Is Received Here From Eastern Flood Area

A communication received this week from Mrs. Hilbert Libengood of Aspinwall, Pa., by Mrs. Wm. Libengood of near Wayne, tells of the hardships and wreckage caused by the recent floods. Excerpts from the communication are as follows:

"This awful flood was so much worse than the Johnstown flood of 47 years ago. It was the 48 hours of continued rain which brought it on. All streams leading to the Allegheny and Ohio were terribly swollen—all of the lower end of Wheeling was under water. We had seven feet of water in our cellar; it was up to the rafters and lacking only ten inches of coming up to the first floor. We had three feet of water around the house for one whole day and night—not much sleeping. "We were fortunate in only having our cellar flooded. The water has gone out now but the cellar is not dry. We have worked on it for two days trying to clean up the mess. The island where H. E. (Mr. Libengood) works was completely covered with water. At the time of the highest water our neighbors on either side of us left by boat before dark, but we stayed. I was not afraid of our house going because there was no current here, only backwater. I wouldn't have gone until the water reached the third floor and we had already moved everything up there from the first two floors.

"Such distress makes your heart ache. We cleaned clothing and sent all we could spare to the Red Cross. We have no light or phone but have had gas all the time for which we were thankful. Our new furnace was buried in water and mud for two days. We had very little water and had to boil that and use it sparingly. We had no bread for two days and was unable to get yeast so had to use other things for baking.

"Many refugees are being fed in the churches and armory. The whole lower section of Bairdville was destroyed. Only half of Livermore is left and the bridges washed away. The old Campbell mill, landmark, was carried away and downstream where it crashed in a farmyard, smashed to pieces. The stores in Pittsburgh were flooded to the second floor with all stock lost. There is no school here at all and it will take two weeks to get things straightened up."

Stanton Couple Wed. Mr. Benjamin D. Halsey and Miss Esther Schlueter of Stanton, were married March 28 by Judge J. M. Cherry.

Relief DIRECTOR of relief work in Pennsylvania, writing for the Saturday Evening Post, gives this experience among others:

"Probably the prize case of a WPA worker failing to report occurred in Philadelphia. He came to the Philadelphia emergency relief office to see why his relief had been discontinued. They checked up and found that he had been assigned to a road project in Montgomery county. It was ascertained that he had received a letter instructing him to go to the Broad Street Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad to be taken to his job.

"With the aid of an interpreter, the mystery was solved. The relief customer had reported as ordered. His story was that he was taken for a long ride into the country with a lot of other men. When the train stopped, they all got out, played cards, shot crap, ate a luncheon, slept under the trees and, after a very pleasant afternoon, were taken back to Philadelphia by the same train.

"It never occurred to the man to go back to the Broad Street Station the following morning, for he thought the relief board had given him a free excursion; it never entered his mind that he had a real WPA job."

Handling Crime DOUBTLESS the press and radio believe they are satisfying popular demand in playing up the Hauptmann case, and perhaps they are. But it would seem the demand is cultivated by surfeiting it, and the fewer the harrowing details, the better would society be served—especially the great body of persons to whom crime horrors are bitterly distasteful.

In the execution of one charged with murder—the punishment deliberated and paraded for months in advance—authorities, through publicity agencies, make sensitive people whose lives are well aloof from crime influences, share in the revolting repudiation.

It is doubtful if the prospect of capital punishment for which society assumes responsibility, reduces crime, and it is likely more convictions on murder charges would be had if prison instead of the electric chair were the penalty. Civilization's advance would seem to carry an extra burden in the law's rule to exact an eye for an eye, and in the prevailing policy to give the world all the terrifying details.

Facing Future WE have heard the opinion expressed that defeat of the Roosevelt regime would impose a giant task on any winning group to meet the New Deal's mistakes and debts, but it is apparent that tangles must be straightened out and a sound basis reached, and the longer the burden is sidestepped, the harder will be the day of reckoning. No private business would keep the same management if one thing were promised and another thing were done—and if a few helpful policies were overshadowed by impractical and costly experiments.

We doubt if the New Deal is in the ascendancy after the first of the year's slump. We doubt if the masses have forgotten broken pledges, forgotten the NRA and other fallacies headed off by the supreme court, forgotten the billion-dollar appetite that has far exceeded the limits of average sense. If the administration does not succeed in getting a majority of voters in bureaus and on relief, we doubt if it will be able to win approval and reinstatement. Those who toil and economize, know the difference between fact and fancy and cannot long be fooled.

History Of Nations UNDER the caption, "The Power to Destroy," Nation's Business concludes a story about the ups and downs of nations with this paragraph, trusting that survival of the American democracy will prove an exception to the rule:

"Sir William Flinders Petrie, famous archaeologist, studied scores of dead and buried civilizations. He probably knows more than any other man why governments have risen and fallen. It is his considered statement that all ran the same cycle: Autocracy, bearing down to the breaking point until the people gradually pulled away the powers of the autocrat and set up a democracy. Then democracy—and mark these words—democracy eating itself up through taxation until collapse and a strong power asserted itself in the form of an autocrat. Then the cycle running again."

We wish the government would quit figuring out public activities that unnecessarily impose burdens on already busy people. In launching an information-finding or some other sort of public policy whose chief purpose is to give idle minds or hands things to do, care should be taken to avoid driving programs into private groups that are struggling uphill to achieve results. A bureaucratic idea may be no more costly and no more useless, if it does not invite the cooperation of persons who are driving along in an endeavor to fight off depression tentacles and bring back prosperity.

The almost unanimous vote cast for Hitler in Germany Sunday was as much of a farce as an election could be made. Provision for opposing ballots was carefully omitted, and no one dared to vote against him.

We often wonder if the farmer doesn't grow weary of being the object of political prating by vote-seeking individuals who have little or nothing of practical value to offer. What the farmer would appear to need most: Development of home and foreign markets for his products, freedom from excessive taxation and liberty to make his own plans in his own way. His own judgment will take him farther and surer than the noisy solicitude of politicians whose solution of farm problems is largely restricted to getting the farm vote.

It was a good thing for flood-devastated districts of the east that the government has been delayed in executing its proposed plan to absorb capitalistic surpluses because stricken industry and business will now need them to rebuild and re-equip their plants. A wrecked Pittsburgh department store or manufacturing institution with a surplus may now go ahead and repair the damage done without mortgaging its future or asking the government for aid. Of importance, scattering surpluses in bringing former order out of chaos will materially sharpen demand for manufactured supplies and help reduce the ranks of the unemployed.

Big Business Leadership. Omaha Journal-Stockman: Owing to five or six years' very unsatisfactory experience it must be confessed that we are not looking to Big Business for leadership as confidently as we were along in the late '20s. A very general impression still prevails that it was Big Business that led the country into financial collapse and that the commercial and industrial leaders have been unable to show the nation the way out.

In other words, Big Business stands discredited at this time as far as the general public is concerned and politicians have not been slow to sense the popular distrust of the commercial and industrial leaders. The public therefore is not inclined to place much reliance in the declaration of Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, that "experiments in economics have definitely postponed recovery."

On the other hand, we can extract some satisfaction from Mr. Sloan's conclusion that "added responsibilities must be assumed by industry. Industry must assume the role of enlightened industrial statesmanship. It can no longer confine its responsibilities to the mere physical production of goods and services. It must aggressively move forward and attune its thinking and its policies toward advancing the interest of the community at large from which it receives its most valuable franchise."

It is this indication that Big Business is now assuming a less callous attitude toward its employes as well as toward the public, that affords some encouragement and leads to the hope that out of the badly muddled situation as it stands today there may eventually arise "a broader foundation of confidence in the security and opportunities of the future."

Chronic Pauperism. "This is not a depression family but one that will be with us always."

Thus pessimistically closes the report made by Des Moines social workers on the dependency record of four generations of two pauper families united by marriage. Members of these families have been on county relief rolls for 18 years and 66 of them are now dependent on public charity.

The detailed report on individuals is a distressful record of feeble mindedness, illiteracy, drunkenness, degeneracy, delinquency, immorality, shiftlessness and general all around cussedness.

One of the central figures in this group is a father, 46 years old, who quit working 11 years ago declaring that he wasn't fit to work any longer. He has been on the hands of social agencies and on the backs of the public ever since. He has been placed in jobs but he shirks and loses them. Two medical clinics have thoroughly examined him and report that he is a malingerer, capable of doing any work assigned him. He has been forced to take a WPA job and complains bitterly of the ill treatment.

Here is a social problem of grave concern. This Des Moines study does not represent an isolated instance. It represents a condition altogether too numerous and widespread. It is a problem with which social agencies are faced everywhere, the problem of chronic pauperism which seems to run in families. The depression didn't cause it and it won't cease with the end of the depression.

Social scientists have made a few studies of the phenomenon, social agencies have been collecting and studying records, but we seem to have made little progress toward arriving at an adequate method of treatment or finding a final solution to the problem.

Sterilization has been offered as a means for preventing the perpetuation of such families, but this solution encounters two difficulties. It presents no answer to the question of what to do here and now with existing chronic pauperism. And it which will have teeth in it and at the same time protect the rights and liberties of those who are merely temporarily unfortunate. —Omaha World-Herald

PRIMARY.
 The primary for naming candidates to appear on the November ballot will be held on April 14, less than two weeks ahead. To choose delegates for national conventions necessitated the fixing of an early primary. Candidates for state and district offices will be nominated at this time, as will also candidates for a few county offices. Four-year terms give most county officers two more years of freedom from acute uncertainty. So far little excitement has been aroused by the claims of rival candidates in the primary campaign. Discussion centers mainly on the kind of national government the people want, and this will intensify after presidential nominations have been made and party platforms have been announced. Swing of voters in the national contest will be largely influential in determining state results, nominees for state offices to be helped or hindered by the trend of national politics. A lively and enlightening national campaign is in prospect.

 Coming to the Gay.
 "Magnificent Obsession," wonderfully popular story, is a coming treat at the Gay theatre in Wayne, beginning April 5 and running three days. Everyone should know the story. It is as wholesome as it is thrilling.

Ping Pong Tourney Progresses At Gay
 Ping-pong tournament semifinals were played off last evening at the Gay theatre between features with Lewellyn Whitmore and Don Wright playing off the first match and Jack Morgan and C. Van Vleck playing off the second match. In elimination rounds played off last week Whitmore defeated Robert Gibb, and Don Wright defeated W. R. Hickman; Jack Morgan defeated S. Eckhardt and C. Van Vleck defeated Carl Wright. Finals will be played off next week.

Home from California.
 Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Carhart arrived home Tuesday from California where they had been since December. Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gately also arrived home Tuesday. Both couples were located at San Diego and took trips out from there. The Carharts stopped with Dr. E. C. Carharts in Los Angeles before returning, and the Gatelys went to Needles, Ariz., to visit relatives.

At Church Returned.
 Rev. P. Pearson returned home Saturday from Hershey where he had gone the week before to attend the thirtieth anniversary of Maria Lutheran church, of which he is a former pastor. Rev. Pearson was a guest of the congregation which was his charge for 10 years.

Trucker Pays Fine.
 Norman DePue of Page, paid a fine of $10 and costs of $4.77 in Wayne county court March 25 when found guilty on charge of carrying in excess of 20 percent of the load allowed for the truck he was driving.

Project Clubs Meet.
 Thirty women were here Wednesday for the project club meeting and luncheon at the court house. Miss Leona Davis had charge of instruction in hooked rug making.

Remains Very Ill.
 Mrs. E. W. Ferguson, mother of Mrs. Ralph Crockett, remains very ill in Denver. Mr. Crockett returned Tuesday after being there to see her and Mrs. Crockett remained.

PENSIONS.
 The Saturday Evening Post renews its attack on the fallacies of extravagant old-age pension demands, pointing out that any system which keeps afloat must provide only moderate payments, much less than wages or salaries paid to individuals. Reserves must be accumulated to meet even small demands. Solvency of a reserve account and of the United States treasury depends on ample advance provision and moderate pensions. The Townsend plan is altogether outside the bounds of reason, and oldsters who have been looking to it to provide luxurious sledding during sunset years will be rudely disillusioned. A recent investigation of the Townsend campaign movement shows a multitude of contributions from elderly individuals who have thus invested in the expectation of later rewards. They are going to be disappointed because no scheme of such wide proportions can work. Saying that history is filled "with the wrecks of well-intentioned pension systems," the Post concludes: "Thus the fact that several million people appear to believe the government, by a stroke of the pen, can immediately give them benefits or pensions out of all proportions to the earnings of the individual is merely one more tragic reminder that human enlightenment proceeds very slowly."

Sons Are Guests At Noon Monday

Kiwanis Club Members Host To Forty Boys For Annual Father-Son Meeting.

Kiwanis club meeting Monday featured a "Father-Son" noonday luncheon at Hotel Stanton with 40 boys as guests of members. T. S. Hook addressed the boys and fathers following luncheon on "What Kiwanis Stands For."

"When I was a lad," began Mr. Hook, "James Fenimore Cooper was my favorite author and I went through my boyhood days looking for a chance to be a hero. I found that some of my contemporaries were as mean as Indians—a little 'tough' by their neighbors—to show their importance. We find today the same thing in men who have had a degree of success and allow themselves to become snobbish. We do not like this attitude. We feel that these men should serve society a little better and that society in turn will repay them."

Mr. Hook explained that about 20 years ago a group of business men saw some of their number still "playing Indian" and organized a club which was not at first named Kiwanis. The members decided to make one of their chief aims looking toward the spiritual side of life and not so much toward the material side. From this small beginning the organization has grown, since 20 years ago last January, to 1,800 clubs with a membership of between 80 and 90 thousands of men. The main purpose of the club is to make the individual "a good Indian." The Kiwanian idea is that an individual may be as good a business man as a "go-getter."

"A boy is born a savage," went on Mr. Hook, "but becomes less so as his education progresses. A good plan would be for the 'good Indians' and the Kiwanians to get together once a week, to plan how the fathers and sons may work together. One Kiwanis club has a shoe shop where old shoes are mended for the poor, the men and boys working together in this project. Other clubs have other projects. It is a boy's job to grow up to be a better man than his father because he has his father's experiences by which he may profit."

Lloyd Exleben responded for the sons stating that "boys like to work with their dads and to be with them. The dads' jobs, the same as the Kiwanis organization, must some day be taken over by the sons, and it is up to them to learn to manage."

Dr. C. F. Dienst, city school superintendent, was called upon for an impromptu talk and remarked that he was always ready to talk to boys in the presence of their fathers, and "had been put in place as a dad," assuring the dads that the boys would later carry on.

Dr. James E. Brock responded, saying that one of the country's greatest statesmen and a great athlete, Theodore Roosevelt, once said that his motto was: "Play the game, by all the rules; play it hard and be fair."

Prof. W. R. Hickman welcomed the sons. A. T. Cavanaugh announced the dinner party for tonight when Kiwanians and Young Business Men's club will entertain the Soo Men, Sioux City club, at dinner in the city auditorium. Announcement was made of the condition of Dr. C. T. Ingham who underwent a major operation in a Sioux City hospital the past week.

Singing for the Monday meeting was led by Prof. Clifford Bair, Wm. Beckenbaver and Rev. F. C. Mills, with J. E. Brittain playing the accompaniment. Rev. L. W. Gramly became a new member. Paul P. Chaney of Lincoln, was a guest of H. E. Siman.

Junior High School Plans
Declamatory Contest
 For This Month.

Junior high of the Wayne city school completed declamatory competition last Thursday afternoon. J. M. Lockard, who had charge of declamatory work in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades, is arranging a competition in which other towns will participate. Date has not yet been definitely set but will probably be April 17. Cole, ridge, Wakefield and Laurel have accepted invitations to enter the junior high school contest.

In declamatory judging Thursday, dramatics division placing was as follows: First, Patricia Brown with "The Last Leaf"; second, Barbara Hook with "And A Little Child"; third, Donaloy Reese with "Daddy Dog." In the oratory Wesley Jacobson won first place with "An Adequate National Defense"; Billy Hawkins had second with "The Action of the Hitler Regime Against the Jews"; and Lyle Seymour, third with "Hating War."

In the Wednesday last week contest Shirley Powers placed first in humorous with "X Marks the Spot"; Catherine Cavanaugh, second with "City Noises"; and Wilmer Ellis, third with "China Blue Eyes."

Miss Leone Westover, English instructor in the high school, judged the contest.

Winside Bank Suits In District Court

Suits to recover on notes in the Winside Citizens State bank receivership will be tried before Judge Clinton Chase in district court here Friday. Before the bank closed in 1931, J. C. Schmude gave a few creditors notes which the banking department claims should be collected and divided among depositors. The department claims the notes were given when the bank board knew the bank was insolvent. Schmude claims that the loans were legitimate transactions made by himself to invest funds for which he was guardian and that the holders should thus collect on these notes. Six such actions are on file.

FIFTY-FIFTH YEAR

WAYNE, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 1936.

NUMBER FIFTYTWO

Marry Wednesday At Lincoln Church

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Baier Will Make Home On Farm Near Wayne.

The marriage of Miss Alla Beck and Mr. Paul Baier of Wayne, took place Wednesday, March 25, at 5 p. m. at the First Presbyterian church in Lincoln, Rev. Paul Calhoun performing the ceremony. The young folks returned to Wayne Thursday to make their home. Miss Beck wore an afternoon dress of dusty pink silk crepe. Her accessories were brown and she carried roses. Her sister, Miss Vida Beck of Lincoln, attended her and wore an afternoon frock of deep yellow shade and brown accessories. Mr. Baier and his brother, Walter Baier, who served as best man, wore dark suits. Others attending the wedding were Mrs. Hannah Beck, mother of the bride, and Daniel Baier, father of the bridegroom. A wedding dinner was served at 6 o'clock at Miss Vida Beck's parlor for the party of six.

The featured speaker on the educational program will be Dr. Harry L. Fuog of Los Angeles, Calif.

Students Chosen In Two Contests

Results of the all-school popularity contest were announced last Friday evening at the annual Katz club "hobo" night party in the college gymnasium. The poll resulted in the following choice among the girls: Nicest personality, Jeanne Wright; best line, Ann Vackel; best all-around girl, Jeanne Wright; most scholarly, Louise Heidenreich; best dancer, Marcella Hunter; best dressed, Mae Winters; prettiest, Ann Wellenstein; most popular, Marcella Hunter. The poll among the young men gave honors to the following: Nicest personality, Arthur Dickey; best Spanish athlete, Harold Henderson; most scholarly, Arthur Larson; most popular, Lewis Hayes; most handsome, Merrill Mulready; best dressed, Dean Thorpe; best all-around athlete, Ervin Retzlaff; best dancer, Wayne Farber.

The gymnasium represented a hobo den and most of the large group attending the party were costumed as hoboes. Dancing was enjoyed, and Prof. E. J. Huntmer crowned the queen and king of hobo. Elizabeth Wentworth was chosen queen and Arthur Dickey king of the hobo party. Marcella Hunter and Marjorie Eby were princesses, and Ashley Edsall and Earl Dunham were princes. Honorable mention for princesses was given Cathryn Craven, Lorraine Baker and Elaine Yocum, and for princes to Burton Gifford, John Christensen and Gale McGee. Miss Mildred Piper and Miss Margaret Schemel served as judges.

CONGRESS

As Seen by a Nebraskan

Washington social life goes on in spite of "hell and high water." Wars and rumors of wars or floods lapping at the very feet of the White House, fail to disrupt the mad whirl of entertaining in this nation's capital. Cocktail parties, dances, teas, banquets and dinners seem to attract more attention than serious legislation which is being discussed in order to eliminate the depression. The town is "in the money" and it seems as if everybody in every county in the world and in every state in the Union knows it, because a close investigation of the city's inside life shows that the people in this capital are living and doing a lot of entertaining. Everybody seems to be in a hurry to do something. It is even hard to get an appointment with the chief of one of the smallest departments without giving many hours or days advance application for such an appointment. Visitors coming from home are bewildered, and they wonder what it is all about.

Many Nebraska people are here today, all of them interested in some kind of legislation. Former Governor Bryan is here, and he was the guest of honor at a banquet given in memory of the late William Jennings Bryan. Governor Cochran is also here, interested in various legislation. Walter Christensen, editor of the Omaha World-Herald, accompanied by his wife, was a recent arrival. Most of the Nebraskans who are here, come from Omaha, and working on legislation affecting that city. Many of them are interested in a river bridge; some of them are railroad men and representatives of community organizations working for and against the long and short haul bill, which is being debated on the floor of the house. Those favoring the bill say that it will give the railroads an opportunity to compete with steamships which are subsidized by the taxpayers. They say the farmer in the middle west has lost his market for grain and corn because the steamships can haul it cheaper through the Panama Canal, and on the water; and under present conditions, the railroads cannot compete with these cheap freight rates. They claim that this legislation will give them an opportunity to compete with water rates, and again restore the market of the middle states farmer on the coast. Those opposing the bill state that it may give the railroad an opportunity to charge more for short hauls than they do for long hauls, but the proponents state that the Interstate Commerce Commission will continue in their power over rates, and will make it impossible for the railroads to work a hardship against the short hauls.

President Roosevelt, after delaying his vacation trip three times, finally left yesterday, after getting full information about the flood damage, and learning that all relief work is well under way. However, he did not leave until he had made a two hour inspection tour of the flood area in Washington. On his way back from the river Friday, he sat in his automobile and signed a Nebraska bill for Senator Norris. This bill provides for establishment of the Freeman homestead near Beatrice, Nebraska, as a National park.

The high water has left this vicinity and behind it tons and tons of debris, and a visit there shows a covering of mud over everything. The flood waters have left a terrible odor in their wake, and people here are warned against the impurity of the water. Many of the scenes here resemble the scenes around the Elkhorn river, especially around Norfolk years ago when that river went out of its banks during flood time.

A photograph reached Washington today, of Mrs. Frederica Fitzroy of Plainview, Nebraska, who is 72 years old. She still uses the old fashioned spinning wheel and makes from wool various products such as stockings, mittens, gloves and sweaters. The photograph is being turned over to the Library of Congress which has a lot of pictures of pioneers and pioneer life.

Some members of the house who are close to the committee endeavoring to fix up the new tax bill, now figure it might raise around $792,000,000 of new taxes, and figuring on that basis, this amount would run the government about twenty-five days. Some of the officials close to the administration say that in the next fifteen months our national debt will reach $33,000,000,000. Others figure it will be about $40,000,000,000.

The committee on education completed hearings on the vocational training bill, but they are not to take final action until next week. The bill carries an authorized appropriation of about twelve million dollars, as compared with about three million dollars last year. Several features have been placed in the new bill which will permit expansion in some instruction so as to make it possible to teach young men and women how to earn their own living after leaving high school and college. The senate has an amendment in a similar bill which will permit some training of city officials' fire departments, police departments, and while this amendment was not acted on favorably by the house committee, the senate amendment will be discussed when the bill comes up for final passage in the house. The bill is being held up in the committee on education in the house because some members feel that an increase from three to twelve million dollars is too much for this work.

Cakes' liver costs 69c a pound here. Pork chops are selling for 50c a pound. The price of food in Washington is high. Many grocery stores here keep open until midnight. They sell meats and groceries of all kinds in these stores and besides that they sell also, half of their stores for the sale of liquors, wines and whiskeys of every description. One clerk tells us they make most of their money in these stores from liquor sales. This town has no other liquor stores than any other town its size.

KARL STEFAN

Enthusiasm for the Olympics, a sports note says, has stimulated long, distance running in Japan. The Chinese, however, really seem to need it more just at present.—Boston Herald.

Mr. Hoover has been delving into the philosophy of split milk. "It shows," he says, "that some people cannot be entrusted with carrying the jug." Mr. Hoover is late in making such a discovery. The American people beat him to it by nearly four years.—Charlotte (N. C.) Observer.

IN THE FACE OF RISING TIRE COSTS GAMBLE'S TIRE PRICES GO DOWN!

Rubber has advanced considerably and will undoubtedly go up still higher; labor costs have also gone up and yet for a limited time we are offering reduced prices on our finest top-quality Crest 4 and 6 Ply tires, and also on our fine quality G & S Tires.

We have reduced prices because we realize that many, many of our customers are in need of tires and price has been an obstacle. To do this we have actually cut our profit. You can prove this statement for yourself by checking our prices against others before you buy and then you know you will be convinced of the savings we offer. These are the same high quality first line Crest tires that we have always sold. Crest is our name for one of the leading brands of tires made by one of the great leaders and pioneers in the tire industry. When we add to that fact that we are reducing prices considerably, then Crest stands head and shoulders above all others, as an outstanding tire value. Check our prices and then check these features:

Definitely GUARANTEED in writing against all road hazards.

Travel Six Thousand Miles In Trip Through Southern States

Six thousand miles of travel have given Dr. and Mrs. T. B. Heckert a wealth of experience in the past three months and a first-hand knowledge of many of the southern states and their most interesting cities. St. Petersburg, Fla., and New Orleans, La.

Enroute south Dr. and Mrs. Heckert stopped in the Ozark mountains, staying at Winslow, Ark., in a cabin camp at an altitude of 2,500 feet. The camp afforded a delightful view of the surrounding mountains and valleys, the panorama much similar to the Black Hills in South Dakota. They noted that most of the trees in the Ozarks were oak, sugar maple, walnut and hickory. Mountaineers make curios from the native wood and baskets which they sold were strong and well put together. Dr. Heckert learned that the government is now planning a forest reserve in the hills, the natives to be moved to better land in the valleys, not however, without protest from the tenants who inconsistently refuse to leave their hilly, rocky farms, even for the better-lying portions below them.

Dr. Heckert explains: "We were told that the best time to visit the Ozarks is in September and October, although natives claim that the mountains are never hot, even in mid-summer. About 6° above zero was the coldest temperature noted the past winter."

Spring in the Ozarks begins in February and the Heckerts saw some snow falling in January. There were small patches of corn although fruits are the principal crop. One of the good crops of the hills is the pecan, which grows wild, and makes a profitable living for the marketer. There seemed to be an abundance of wood for fuel, making the country an ideal place for its inhabitants, a poor class of people who are able to make their way by raising a little fruit and a few vegetables.

The drive from Winslow to Hot Springs was a distance of about 70 miles, a wonderful highway and through a beautiful country. Hot Springs is made up of hotels, apartments, and bath houses. Dr. and Mrs. Heckert enjoyed the baths for a few days but were prevented from leaving the city when they had planned because of a snow and ice storm. Roads to Little Rock were very pretty, winding in and out among the pines. The general appearance of the country changed gradually, poorly paved roads becoming more prevalent through the flat country. They noticed many negro cabins along the roadsides, most of them in a miserable state of repair. The Heckerts noticed many negroes and some whites walking slowly along the pavement. Most of the tumble down shacks have small front porches opening onto a small "stoop," piled full of sticks of wood on which chickens roost.

Snow lay over most of the country until the travelers approached within 150 miles of New Orleans. Louisiana soil seemed better provided with moisture and a better state of cultivation. At Vicksburg Dr. and Mrs. Heckert crossed the Mississippi on a ferry boat, after looking about the historic old battle front for a time. The Iowa monument, one of many dedicated to soldiers who fell during the Civil war, is the most impressive of those representative of the several states.

The country about Jackson, Miss., seemed to be better and more prosperous looking, and it was through this section that Dr. and Mrs. Heckert caught their first glimpses of some of the fine old pre-war homes, some fine school buildings and colleges. Approaching New Orleans they crossed a fine causeway between Lakes Ponchartrain and Mauve. In the city they stopped at one of the old aristocratic southern homes, property of an old slaveholder's family, now in reduced circumstances and taking tourists to make a living. The daughter of the family was an official guide for tourists over the city, going with Dr. and Mrs. Heckert on a tour through the interesting districts of the old French town.

Many of the old plantation homes are now used as shops and cafes in the French quarter. The guide explained to the Heckerts the arrangements of the old houses of the south. The grounds were entered through a wide arch over a curving driveway around the manor house. To one side were the carriage house and stables, the manor house on the other. A patio filled with flowers and trailing vines was at the back. The kitchen was always detached from the house; rooms for the young men of the family were over the kitchen or storeroom while the owner, his wife and daughters occupied the plantation home.

The Heckerts were shown the old slave market and the cells where the negroes were kept awaiting auction. Women brought higher prices than men at auction because few of them could survive the hardships of the trip by sea. Common price for slaves was $1 per pound. Another interesting spot shown the Heckerts by their guide was the "Duel Oaks," so called by the number of duels fought under their branches, their guide informing them that a duel had once been fought in this place over her own grandmother.

The Heckerts found that Louisiana people seemed still to mourn Huey Long who had built them fine roads and bridges and at the same time had managed to reduce their taxes.

The Wayne people were anxious to reach St. Petersburg, Fla., and did not stop at Mobile although the city looked very interesting. They saw no orange or grapefruit trees until they were within fifty miles of St. Petersburg. Lodging in the city was something of a problem; they learned that apartments were renting for $125 to $150 per month and rooms for from $15 to $20 per week, the owners giving the plea that they only get the tourist trade for about four months of the year.

They visited the beautiful city of Sarasota, winter quarters for Ringling Bros. circus. The Heckerts were amazed at the many and varied types of trailer houses used by tourists spending the winter in the south. Beaches near St. Petersburg were lovely with long stretches of fine white sand, the city itself located on Tampa bay and the Gulf, almost entirely surrounded by water. Drives along the bay and the Gulf are beautiful and many happy hours are spent watching the sea birds wheeling over the blue water, the boats, and the crowds in a holiday mood. Dr. Heckert states: "We really believe that it is nicer in Florida than in California; beaches are prettier, water warmer and the crowds grayer."

Paase Grille is one of the most beautiful spots of the city, a key reaching out into the gulf. The Heckerts spent one day visiting the Tampa fair; the fair is similar to the Mardi Gras, named for Gasperilla, a famous pirate who raided the coast in the early days. There were many beautiful floats on which considerable time and money had been spent. The St. Petersburg float was given first prize.

The sponge fisheries at Tampa Springs are very interesting, the Heckerts found. The small boats taking out the fishermen hold from 12 to 15 men and sponges are located by sounding; sponges from coral or from rocks are of different grade, the best being the smooth round type. Divers down when a suitable location is found; they carry with them baskets and long hooks. As the sponge is torn loose it is squeezed, the animal matter falling to the bottom of the ocean where it attaches itself to rock and forms other sponges. The fishermen stay out for a couple of weeks, the sponges sold at auction on their return. This is one of the largest sponge markets in the world. The divers are not much afraid of dangerous fish while on the ocean floor, because of the escaping air bubbles from their helmet, which frightens the sharks and barracuda.

At Tampa the Heckerts saw the Tampa University which was formerly a hotel, filled with priceless statuary and paintings. Part of the building is given over to a museum and is cared for by the city. They spent a week at Fort Lauderdale, 25 miles from Miami. There is a very fine beach where hundreds of people enjoy the bathing, and sun baths.

Daytona Beach is a city of about 18,000 people. Record speed trials are held once a year under the auspices of the AAA over the 23-mile beach, made of granulated coral sand, washed in from coral reefs. The Wayne people visited St. Augustine, oldest city in the United States, with its narrow streets, overhanging balconies, grilled doors and windows. Fort Marion national monument is at the north end of the city, reached by a beautiful drive along the sea wall. It was built during the 17th century; a deep moat surrounds the fort and the space between the drawbridge. The fort was used as a prison during the Spanish American war.

A hundred pesos equal about $35 in American money and as expenses are high in South America, she has $3, shoes $8, etc. Miss Soden had difficulty in making much of an essay about spending this sum.

Farmers Cooperate To Purchase Needs

According to Ray L. Verzel, local resettlement supervisor, the resettlement administration is sponsoring a cooperative movement to encourage the working together of the low income farmers of the various counties. Many possibilities are found whereby different pieces of machinery are needed in a community, but are beyond the purchasing means of the individual, such as threshers, corn binders, engine cutters, fanning mills, drills, bindweed machinery, shellers. These machines can be purchased by a number of farmers forming an association or partnership. The original purchase price will be met by a loan from the cooperative division of the resettlement administration and paid by the income derived from their use.

To encourage better livestock breeding is also one of the plans of the cooperative division. Through this division, purebred bulls, stallions, and jacks may be purchased by the forming of associations or partnerships of farmers. The purchase price will be financed by the resettlement administration, and the income from the

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Stratton Gain Interesting Experiences In Month's Vacation In Delightful Southern Climate.

"Now, Mother," said Stanley Stratton, a few days before the departure of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Stratton, for the south, "all I want you to bring me from Florida is a baby alligator and a cocoon—and neither one will cost you very much!"

Mrs. Stratton promised her son faithfully, before leaving Wayne, that she should have his alligator—writing him from Miami that his pet-well was enroute. The mails were anxiously watched and on Saturday, March 21, the expected date of arrival, Stanley conceived the idea of a circus for his small playmates. His placard, announcing the event, read: "There will be a circus in town. Come and see the baby alligator that gets here today." Later in the day when the alligator failed to arrive in any of the unceasingly watched mails Stanley took down his sign and printed on the bottom of it, one word: "Maybe."

Go To Warm Springs, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Stratton went from Wayne to Warm Springs, Georgia, haven for sufferers from infantile paralysis, then to Miami Beach, Florida, the first of the month and arrived home last week Wednesday.

Warm Springs is in a beautiful location, surrounded by low mountains—weather delightful for nine months out of the year. Water for bathing gushes from natural springs at a temperature of 80 degrees. A glass enclosed outdoor swimming pool affords sunlight bathing during the three months of winter. All patients have supervised bathing exercises each day in the week with the exception of Sunday, with one and one-half hours each morning. After lunch patients are required to rest an added one and one-half hours, then are given walking exercises when sufficiently recovered to be able to use the limbs.

Lunch time is a hilarious event, especially for the children, when the "wheel-chair parade" starts pell-mell down the long halls for the dining room. The patients are kept in good spirits and seem to enjoy their exercise periods and recreation. The sanatorium is able to care for 100 and is full practically all of the time. Of these, about 50 per cent are full-paid patients at a cost of $42 per week; 25 per cent are half charity and the remainder are full charity.

"I only saw two patients at Warm Springs who were better off than I am," said Mr. Stratton, "and I am fully convinced that any sufferer from infantile paralysis may receive the same benefit as was given there, by bathing in warm water and exercising under supervision of a trained nurse."

President Early Patient. Franklin D. Roosevelt was one of the first patients to receive treatment at Warm Springs and became interested in the project. A certain per cent realized from the Roosevelt birthday parties goes toward the upkeep of the sanatorium and the major portion toward research for the prevention fishing trip they were surprised to see a bed of oysters in the water far below them; the oysters were in a muddy and very unappealing bit of the bay. However, Florida oysters are not considered very palatable. On the still-fishing, bait of live shrimp was used.

Through Heart of Everglades. The Strattons had an interesting and enjoyable trip across the Tamiami trail, new highway through the heart of the Everglades, which runs from Miami to the west coast. The Everglades are a haven for birds—the air seems full of darting patches of color; in the swamps long-sees heavy-beaked pelicans, long-legged cranes and the graceful heron. The flamingo is one of the most beautiful birds of the Florida swamps. The flight of the pelican is amusing; the legs seem to hang out behind the bird instead of being folded under, and are used as a sort of rudder. Wild turkey hunting is a favorite sport.

Many Patients Adults. Fifty per cent of the patients at Warm Springs are adults. While the Strattons were at the sanatorium Dolores Costello, moving picture star, made a personal appearance at her Warm Springs Little Theatre for crippled children. A good deal of the bookkeeping and administration work for the sanatorium is done by former patients, who are sufficiently recovered to be able to work. Cigar stores and small shops about the grounds are managed by people in wheel chairs; manager of the institution is a former patient who is now able to be about on crutches.

The state of Georgia built the main dining hall and reception rooms for the sanatorium. Philanthropists have donated buildings which are used as dormitories for the patients.

Enjoy Miami Stay. After leaving Warm Springs, Mr. and Mrs. Stratton went to Miami where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Blythe Ursin at their beautiful winter estate, located on the bay just opposite the colorful line of Miami Beach, a mile and a half across the water.

"My first impression of Florida was of vivid colors and the brilliancy of the sunlight. The light seems to have a peculiar, penetrating quality and almost everyone wears colored glasses," explained Mrs. Stratton. "The sky and water are so vivid a blue that they seem almost unreal. Flowers seem brighter—grass greener—! On my first walk along the beach I was confused by the number of what I thought to be bright blue balloons floating in the bay—a gorgeous shade of blue!"

Mrs. Stratton later learned that the "balloons" were the Portuguese Man O' War, a species of fish. The long tail of this marine dweller is used as a sail which is set to the wind in whichever direction its owner wishes to be propelled.

Deep-Sea Fishing Trip. The Ursins' private yacht rode at anchor in the bay, almost at the front door of the estate and Mr. and Mrs. Ursin planned a deep-sea fishing trip for their guests. The Ursins are inveterate fishermen, yet on a two-day fishing cruise, Mrs. Stratton "outfished" the host and hostess. Fish on a line were caught by trolling; a lure is reeled out behind the slow-moving boat to a distance of from 75 to 100 feet. Fish are played and reeled in slowly. Floridians say that the weather has not been warm enough the past winter for good fishing.

The yacht rode in quiet waters on the fishing trip so no very large fish were seen, although Mr. and Mrs. Stratton caught several glimpses of barracuda. On a still-strengthening and buying along the beach is very active with prices double those of a year ago. Florida has drawn an increasingly wealthy class of people until it has become a resort only for people of means. Rates for the ordinary run of people, are almost prohibitive. Cabanas along the beaches rent for as much as $50 per day. The cabanas are used only for changes from street dress to beach clothing.

At School

Edith Huse Wightman "What's the matter with you, Pepper?" asked Betty. "Something surely is wrong with him," said Bob. "I never saw Pepper have a stubborn streak like this before." Betty and Bob, the farm twins, had to go about a mile and a half to their little country school. With some difficulty they had ridden Pepper to let them both ride on his back. She Pepper faithfully carried Betty and Bobby to and from school every day. On this particular morning Pepper had taken the twins about half the way to school when suddenly he stopped dead still. No matter how much Betty and Bob urged him Pepper would not move. "Let's get off his back," suggested Betty. "Then maybe we can see why he won't go." "I guess we will have to," said Bob. "We can't sit here very long or we'll be late for school." Betty and Bob walked all around Pepper but they couldn't see anything wrong. "Maybe if we lead him a ways he will go," said Bob. "He might be afraid of something along the side of the road." "Come here quick, Bob. What's this hanging down on this side?" asked Betty. "Why, that's the hitching strap," said Bob. "That's why Pepper stopped. I've heard Daddy say that ponies are trained to step as soon as the hitching strap is down. Even if the pony isn't hitched up he knows enough to stop." Bob hooked the strap back where it belonged, and he made sure it was tight this time. "Just how are we going to get back on Pepper's back?" questioned Betty. "I'll give you a boost," said Bob. "Then I think I can jump on." Bob gave Betty a big boost. It was too big a boost for Betty went sailing right over Pepper and landed on the other side with a little "Hugh, hugh." The fall didn't hurt Betty. She was up ready to try again before Bob realized what had happened. "Don't push me quite so hard this time," said Betty. "I don't like sailing through the air like the man on the flying trapeze." Finally Betty and Bob were both back on Pepper. "Hang on tight," said Bob. "We're going fast." When the children reached the school Bob tied Pepper to a nearby tree. Then the two ran a race to the school house. "I beat you that time," said Betty. "Yes, but you had a head start," responded Bob. Miss Johnson, the teacher, greeted Betty and Bob with a smile. "Here are my two wide-awake twins. Good morning Betty and Bob." "Good morning Miss Johnson," said the twins. In drawing class Miss Johnson let the children make ink shadow pictures. It was lots of fun. Miss Johnson showed the children just what to do. "First fold your papers," Miss Johnson explained. "Then unfold them and put dots of ink on the crease. Fold your paper together again and when you unfold it this time see what funny looking pictures you have." Betty's picture looked like a tree. Bob's like a butterfly. Some of the other children's looked like black snowflakes, bees, church windows, stars and flowers. The children took turns showing their pictures and having the rest tell what they resembled. The children were all studying when suddenly they heard a soft knocking on the door. Miss Johnson started for the door but before she could open it there was a loud-r knock and a scratching noise. What could it be, thought the children. As Miss Johnson opened the door Brownie, Betty's and Bob's dog, came bounding in. Miss Johnson gave two short "Oh, Oh's." Brownie had frightened her. The dog ran right to Bob, crawled down by his feet and wagging his tail, looked up at Bob as if to say, "I finally found you." Of course they couldn't have a dog in school so Bob had to take Brownie outside. "We are going to play a game instead of having our regular spelling lesson today," said Miss Johnson. At their home Thursday evening guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Thorngren of Sioux City, Mr. and Mrs. Art Kellner of Norfolk, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bowers of Wisner, Mr. and Gurney Beneshof of Winside, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Riggert, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Mittelstaedt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Amus, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Behmer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hansen. High score was awarded to Mrs. George Langenberg and Harry Strate. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Kiesau, Joe Bowers and Frank Miller also received prizes. Easter decorations were carried out through the evening and a two-course luncheon served. The next meeting will be

CAUGHT IN THE WILD By ROBERT AMES BENNET

CHAPTER VII—Continued "Oh, but it is bad—frantically bad! No food—not a thing to give Dad all this time. No chance of getting any for either of you. And now his fever, too. No medicine for it!"

A sudden thought jerked Garth up to a sitting position. He swayed from dizziness. Then his head cleared. He was only rather weak from blood-loss and sore about the back of his head. An exploring hand found a wad of moss, tied upon his wound with a band of platted grass. He heard the girl murmur: "I fixed Dad's the same way—ashes and the moss to hold it on. Ashes or soot—I once heard about something like that for cuts."

CHAPTER VIII Woodcraft. "OUT of the pit of blackness, Garth's first dimly conscious thoughts were of water. He was still in swimming. . . . No, the water was only on his face. Not rain, nor poured water—something wet seeping his forehead."

He opened his eyes, blinked the dust from them, and found himself gazing up into a pair of sunken blue eyes. They were clouded and dark with misery. Yet with strange suddenness they brightened. At that he realized they were the eyes of Lillith Ramill.

"What's—happened?" he muttered. Even as his lips moved, he remembered. "Hixxy—his pistol. Must have shot me."

"Yes, Dad also." Garth sought to tense his faceted muscles, ready to bound up. She laid a restraining hand on his forehead. "Lie still. He went—"

"What, merely a matter of fire, medicine, food, and massage? If only you were a Boy Scout! How about becoming a Campfire Girl? Fetch me a two-foot willow branch the size of your forearm, a thin one, straight dry stick, and that chunk of dead birch trunk."

A little sand increased the friction of the fire-drift point at the bottom of the shallow hole he made in the block of wood. The dry birch soon began to smolder. Lillith had gathered tinder of dead inner bark. In wide-eyed wonderment, she watched the simple primitive method of lighting.

After the meal on roast duck, he set snare rabbit snares. He then showed Lillith how to make cords by splitting off strands from peeled spruce roots. While she worked at this, he collected more ducks and fish, the latter being a smidge for smoke curing.

Next came the carving of Eskimo hooks from duck bones. With bait, a catgut leader and a spruce-root line, he began to catch Mackenzie whitefish. Lillith had never seen so beautiful a fresh-water fish.

The newly caught fish proved far better eating than even the best of trout. Mr. Ramill's slight fever left him a distance from duck meat and the rabbits that were snared. But he ate his full share and more of the delicious fish.

Besides the cranberries, Lillith gathered black currants and blueberries and mushrooms. No fish were caught, thus could be eaten fresh. A number were soon on the smoke rack, along with ducks and rabbits. For the present and near future, the question of food had been met.

Dead sleepy rainstorm grenched the camp. It brought only temporary discomfort, for Garth kept the fire burning under a slanted heap of spruce boughs. None the less, the storm spurred him to redoubled activity. He knew it to be the forerunner of the autumn blizzards that might now howl down off the snow-capped Selkwas at any time.

While Mr. Ramill's slight fever remained, he said little and seemed to take no interest in anything save of course. He had fully recovered from the effects of shock only before the fifth day when the bullet wound through his upper chest began to heal. But with the passing of his feverish condition the irritability of convalescence jabbed him out of his placid contentment.

"Why are you leading around here, Garth?" he asked. Instead of wasting all this time piling up food, you could have made a canoe and run us down across to that refulgent post days ago."

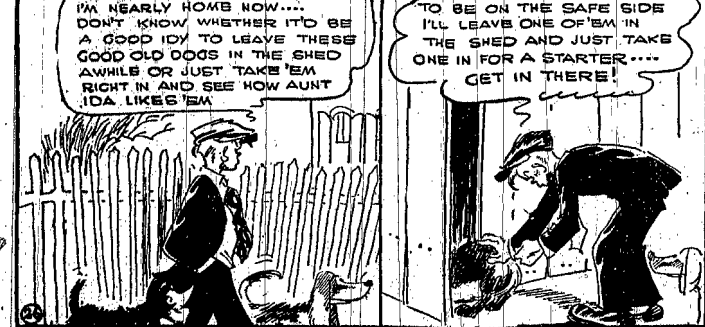

Garth swept his right hand edgewise out across his uplifted empty left palm. "No gun—no hides. Dead birch—no bark. No hides, no bark—no canoe."
