

We wish to say to the wrens and martins of the neighborhood that seventy-five new homes will be distributed in Wayne for their accommodation in the very year future. A contest in bird house building, participated in by school children, ended Saturday, and the result was a wonderful collection of little houses, all skillfully made and all suited to the convenience of wrens and martins—chiefly wrens. The wren is held in popular esteem, whereas the sparrow is a sort of outlaw—stealing from other birds and doing nothing that would encourage it feeling of welcome. Therefore, the little houses have been made just right to accommodate wrens, but not big enough to permit sparrows to exercise their trespassing habits. This kind of contest incites a spirit of gentleness—a desire to care for birds rather than to neglect or hurt them. It invites desirable birds to make their homes amidst the trees of the parks and private yards of the community without fear of molestation. It helps implant in early youth humane sympathies and unselfish considerations. The mechanical skill employed by boys and girls in making their bird houses reminds us of the experience we once had in trying to fashion wood into semblance of something we had been urged to make. A brother of extraordinary mechanical genius was offered as an inspiration, and thus guided, we tried in vain to follow the example. The result was a dreadful departure from the pattern, and we have seen nothing like it since, as we quit trying. But the youngsters who made bird baskets the past week, showed creditable skill and patience. Still better, they reflected a kindly and helpful interest in their feathered friends.

Primary is a Lemon. The nominating primary has become the buldest sort of mockery. It succeeds the convention and overthrows the growing abuses. But the primary cannot do what it was expected to do—express the popular will. It is no discredit to the intelligence of voters to say that not one in a thousand could know all state candidates well enough to discriminate understandingly. On most state candidates most voters venture the wildest sort of guesses. In the absence of facts, a familiar name often captures a majority, and the guess may be wise or unwise. The primary is advocated by grasping politicians as a way to bring the choice of public officers close to the people, and the ground seems logical, but as a matter of fact it is a device never planned, because voters cannot inform themselves sufficiently well to use best judgment. The primary is more democratic in appearance, but less so in practical in naming county candidates; it doubtless brings a truly discerning expression, but extended over the state, it is a colossal farce. A mixture of the primary and convention in the face of present folly could not do worse.

To Beautify Premises. A contest to clean and beautify private premises, including alleys, has been suggested, and some local groups are thought to be making plans for the enterprise. Rewards and prizes should be offered, and committees named to carry forward the work. Prizes are necessary, but they are not so important as the honor of winning. Chiefly a contest arouses pride, and the result is a more attractive community.

Use of Gasoline Tax. In an address before the chamber of commerce of Columbus recently, W. L. Pierpont of Omaha, sounded warning against a reported move to change the state constitution to restrict expenditure of gasoline tax money to road purposes. A one-cent tax on gasoline is now used to help pay old age pensions for crippled children and handle other similar needs. The speaker thinks the legislature which passed the gasoline tax for the purpose mentioned, should be the one to say whether it shall be kept up or discontinued. Entrenched in the constitution, the matter of limiting the gas tax to road improvements would probably be settled for all time. As taxes must be raised in some way to meet growing public expenses, Mr. Pierpont points out the sales tax or additional property tax, or both, as substitutes for the gasoline tax if the latter should become legalized only for road purposes. The speaker said that a "retail sales tax" has a bad record without exception led to extravagance or increase in governmental cost, and adds that "property has now all the tax load it can support." But manifestly some way must be found to meet the growing cost of government, and Mr. Pierpont's ideal is to let the legislature wrestle with the problem without the interference of a constitutional amendment.

WIFE OF WAYNE MINISTER DIES

Rites for Mrs. H. A. Teckhaus Are Held Tuesday at Our Redeemer's Church. Mrs. H. A. Teckhaus of Wayne, passed away Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in a Sioux City hospital where she had undergone a major operation Tuesday last week. She reached the age of 48 years and 9 days. The Beckenhauer service brought the body to Wayne for funeral which was held by Rev. H. A. Teckhaus at 2:45 from the parsonage and at 2 from Our Redeemer's Evangelical Lutheran church in Wayne. Rev. H. A. Teckhaus had charge at the parsonage. Rev. J. Schrader of Yutan, president of synod, spoke in English, and Rev. M. Marxen of Columbus, president of the northeast Nebraska conference of synod, in German at the church. The obituary was read by Rev. F. C. Schmidt of Hastings, and word of sympathy from the Wayne Ministerial association was extended by Rev. W. C. Heidenreich. Hugo Welchert, student at Theological seminary in Chicago and president of synodical Lutheran League, sent expression of sympathy which was read by Rev. H. A. Teckhaus. The children of Rev. Welchert sang two selections, and a group of pastors and their wives joined in a farewell song at Greenwood cemetery where internment was made. The obituary read at the service follows: Obituary is Read. Miss Gretchen Heidenreich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Heidenreich, was born on April 9, 1888, at Hamberg, Rhineland, Germany where she was baptized and confirmed in the Evangelical faith. Departed was reared in a happy Christian home where daily devotions were the rule and not the exception. She received her early training in the public schools of Hamberg, Rhineland. Being unusually brilliant, her instructors wanted her to continue her training, but her parents decided otherwise. She departed was very active in the young people's and choir work in her home congregation. In August, 1909, she became engaged to a young divinity student who wanted to serve the Master among the Lutheran people of German descent in North America. With a heavy heart, the parents let their eldest daughter leave the homeland and she arrived in New York in September, 1911. Professor Dr. L. Larimer and wife of Springfield, Ohio, opened their home readily and she stayed with the family until May 2, 1911, when she was married to H. A. Teckhaus, a young graduate of Hamma Divinity school of Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio. The marriage ceremony took place at the Fourth Lutheran church of that city. Dr. J. L. Meyer and Dean L. H. Larimer officiated. The young couple moved to Lincoln, Neb., where they made their home for a while with the late Dr. J. F. Krueger and wife. In June, 1911, departed and her husband followed a call to Saint Paul's Lutheran church of South Hastings, Neb., where they served for two years. Here their only daughter, Gretchen, was born. From March, 1913, until June, 1919, deceased labored with her husband at Saint Paul's Lutheran church of Dallas, Neb., where she made many friends. In July, 1919, she came with her husband to his third pastorate at Wayne, where she labored for 17 years untriflingly. Mrs. Teckhaus was a very devoted, loving wife and helmsman to her husband. What she meant to him during their 22 years of married life—they were to celebrate their 26th wedding anniversary—no words will be able to express. To her only daughter she was a perfect loving mother. Being endowed with an exceptionally keen mind, deceased went with her daughter through the grades, high school and part of her college years practically studying all the subjects with her joyfully and easily. She was an ideal pastor's wife, a true friend and loving counselor for old and young. Her original dramatizations and tableaux for Christmas, Easter and other occasions which she prepared and coached for the last ten years, which some day will be published, will never be forgotten at Our Redeemer's at Wayne nor at Bennington, Neb., where she lent a helping hand to her newly married daughter and son-in-law. Gifted with a lovely mezzo-soprano voice, Mrs. Teckhaus conducted the choir for many years, never attempting to play a prominent role, always remaining in the background. Departed was a retiring type, full of ingenuity and originality. Many came to her for advice. She was always willing to give it and her suggestions were readily followed by others who received the credit. Her last illness was attended at the Sunday school superintendent, Dr. (Continued on page two)

THIRD DISTRICT'S FOUNDERS' DAY IN WAYNE YEAR AGO

A YEAR ago this week republicans of the Third congressional district held their Founders' day meeting in Wayne, and listened to speeches by Sam McKelvie and Robert Simmons and others. The meeting was one of several held in the state, laying the foundation for the political campaign this year. The two principal speakers at the evening banquet were now conspicuous in Nebraska politics—McKelvie as delegate to the republican national convention and Simmons as the republican nominee for United States senator. REV. GRAMLIN IN KIWANIS SPEECH

Wayne Minister Speaks Monday On Politics And Religion In World Today. Rev. L. W. Gramly spoke to Kiwanis club members Monday following 12 o'clock luncheon at Hotel Stratton; his talk touching politics and religion. Prof. Clifford Bair and Wm. Beckenhauer led singing with Rev. F. C. Mills accompanying at the piano. Plans were made for the Kiwanis party to be held at the city auditorium next Monday evening. Ladies will be guests and Dr. John S. Nollen, president of Grinnell college, Grinnell, Iowa, district governor of Kiwanis, will be principal speaker. "Although the Declaration of Independence was written 160 years ago, we haven't caught up with it yet," said Rev. Gramly in his Monday talk. "It took two years to have the document accepted and later 10 amendments were attached. People fail to recognize the difference between the American method of business. If a change in business is suggested it is taken as tampering with the government methods and systems. Little things may lead to a great change." Rev. Gramly spoke of the taking of land out of production in the south and the organization of 25,000 people into a tenants' cooperative union, and the change brought about by the releasing of slaves—just free and no place to go. The cotton picking machine can now take the place of from 50 to 100 men. A memorial fund was suggested for the building of homes for those thrown out of work by the machine. Russia desires the patent, for by the fall of 1936 she expects to have a her employed in military ranks. Counts of Germany in Cleveland and Detroit are now working to enlist all boys of German parentage, now in America for the German army. Rev. Gramly stated that man's ambition was to build a temple for God to come down and praise him, instead of building a way from earth up to God. "In the beginning, life and creation were more spiritual than physical. The Great Teacher predicted great wars, and also predicted that man would, in a spiritual way, overcome these obstacles. Are we to become so concerned with the physical as to lose sight of the spiritual?" he asked.

College High In Operetta Tonight

Sixty Pupils Of School To Enter District Music Contest At Kearney.

The college high school will present the operetta "Ask the Professor," this Thursday evening in the college auditorium. The production is directed by Prof. H. H. Hanscom. Training school orchestra, directed by Prof. J. R. Keith, will furnish music.

Arrangements are being made for 60 pupils of the Wayne Training school to attend the state music contest at Kearney, May 1 and 2. Parents are asked to cooperate with the school in furnishing transportation for the contestants. Pupils are looking forward to the trip after their intensive preparation for the contest.

Dr. James Brock of the college faculty, addressed students of the college high school on a scientific subject at convocation in the assembly yesterday morning.

Gayle Meize, student coach for the debate group, accompanied Quentin Whitmore, LeRoy Addison and Jean Hamner to Lincoln last Friday where the boys took part in the state debate contest. The boys were defeated by DeWitt, Elm Creek and Upland.

Miss Irene Carpenter of Wayne, former practice teacher in the training school, is doing graduate work this semester at the University of Chicago. Miss Carpenter has a position in the English department of the State Agricultural school at Brookings, S. D.

Miss Edith Stocking of North Bend, Neb., visited the training school the first of the week. Miss Stocking has a year's leave of absence from the primary department.

First week in May has been designated as "Health Week." Dean H. H. Hahn suggests that parents and all others in charge of children devote themselves not only to the physical health of children but to include their mental health as well. Says Dean Hahn: "Such mental quirks as temper tantrums, quarrelsomeness, bullying, stubbornness, fear, jealousy, selfishness, shyness and others are more dangerous to a child's welfare than the contagious diseases mothers so much dread. Health week should awaken new interest on the part of parents and teachers in both mental and physical health of the oncoming generation."

Through the courtesy of Prof. C. E. Wilson, children of the training school had the opportunity of seeing an opossum which was captured near Wayne and given to the biology department. The opossum is an animal rarely seen in this part of the country and few, if any, of the children had seen one before.

Making Record Of Women In War

American Legion Auxiliary of Nebraska is trying to get a list of all the women who served overseas. The Women chapter is asking that all of the army nurses, navy nurses, yeomanettes and marinettes register with Mrs. C. E. Wilson. These questionnaires must be in by May 1.

The objective of this survey is "to locate all veteran women who served in the World War as army nurses, yeomanettes, navy nurses and marinettes. These are the women who are inducted into service and who received an honorable discharge from the army or navy. We especially wish to locate the disabled veteran woman whether hospitalized at government facilities, contract hospitals or living at home. No such roster has been made since these women enlisted. It is most important that we should have this record for historical purposes as well as to assist us in the war service program," writes Mrs. Clyde Krause of Newman Grove.

better in the way of measures to insure employment."

Senator Norris who is being urged to run as an independent to succeed himself, comes out strongly for the Roosevelt administration. The president had urged Nebraska democrats to send Norris back to the senate. Senator Norris had expressed a desire to retire, but he may yield to persuasion, and then we would have a three-cornered contest—Simmons, Carpenter and Norris. A lively campaign would follow. Simmons would uphold traditional American rights. Carpenter is on record in favor of the Townsend old-age pension plan, and he puts an abundance of fire into his discussions. Norris would generally uphold the New Deal's left-wing performances. Finally, Simmons ought to win enough Jeffersonian democrats to capture the plum.

What causes one person to relish human agony, while another recoils from it with horror? There are those who take a sort of fiendish delight in torturing life—human or animal. Others cannot rest while any creature is known to be suffering. Two Illinois boys in their teens burned a 4-year-old lad with a hot wire to satisfy a desire to see him tortured. Others in their teens are sensitive and sympathetic, kindly disposed and eager to relieve distress. What makes so much savagery in some and so little in others? A careful study of heredity and environment might find the answer.

Minnesota republicans did no side-stepping in their state convention last week. Congressman Christianson who was a leading spirit in the convention, denounced the national administration as the greatest peace-time spending machine in all history. Speaking of the important service of the republican party at this time, he said: "It is a fortress of defense against those who would invade this country with a philosophy alien to our institution, unsuited to the temper of our people, and destructive of the principles on which the republic was built."

The way automobiles race along Main street during busy periods of the day one would think each driver was a fire chief and that he was hurrying to a fire. A little more time in motoring home at noon might prevent a serious accident. It is a worthy instinct that prompts a fellow to want to reach his own beloved fireside with least possible delay, but too much haste might defeat his desire—might land him in a hospital or a morgue.

The Nebraska Kennel show has taken 400 dogs of all varieties to Omaha this week, and the animals differ in temperamental qualities quite as much as human bipeds. Some are naturally friendly; others are just as naturally ugly, and they probably wouldn't agree on any proposition before them excepting possibly on a resolution aimed at the skulking dog poisoner.

As we read the Herald's rural correspondence each week, we are inclined to envy the neighborliness of farm families. Automobiles and good roads have encouraged sociability and warmed friendships. Getting together frequently, families review experiences and exchange viewpoints. They are certain to be refreshed and stimulated by these social contacts.

It is explained that the president is more popular than his New Deal. It is said that while many are turning against New Deal policies, they still feel friendly to the chief executive. This is almost inconceivable, but possibly true. The president led the administration's course, and there would seem no reasonable way for him to escape full responsibility.

Senator Burke's victory in the late primary may be accepted as endorsement of political independence—approval of the senator's policy to do his own thinking in an endeavor to represent his constituents, refusing to act as a rubber stamp or yield to bureaucratic hamstringing.

Wayne's municipal auditorium with its superior seating capacity, ought to attract to this place north Nebraska's chief political meetings during the forthcoming campaign. Room to handle big crowds is backed by a friendly community as experienced of the past amply testify.

Prospective Increase In Hogs.

Omaha Journal-Stockman: While the object of the recent AAA law was to bring about a sharp reduction in the country's hog population, it seems that the result of the new soil conservation legislation will be to further decrease our pork supplies.

At the Feeders' Day meeting in Lincoln last Friday, Professor Gramlich called attention to the present favorable corn-hog ratio of 15 to 1 and declared that this was bound to bring about an increase in hog breeding and feeding operations. Farmers are only too quick to note these attractive opportunities.

On the other hand, Professor Loeffel pointed to the soil conservation act as a restraining influence. He pointed to the strong probability that the new program will mean "greater emphasis on cattle and sheep production and a reduction in swine numbers. This is due to the fact that the pig is primarily a consumer of concentrates and utilizes forage and pasture only to a limited extent."

Reports from all sections of the Corn Belt indicate a revival of interest in hogs. Long experience has demonstrated that the hog is one of the most valuable of our farm animals—but he is of no value whatever to the man who has none to sell when prices are attractive.

HARD WORK

It is our observation that no genius is great enough to do capital is large enough or sufficiently secure—to score outstanding success, measured either in dollars or satisfied ambition, without hard work and persistent attention to details on which results depend. An inherited fortune—coming easily and going easily—may flourish under the unfolding of a talent which otherwise might become wonderfully useful. Unaided and over-confident brilliance fails as a substitute for careful judgment and painstaking effort. The rare combination of capital and talent and a will to achieve without the single goal of material gain gives constructive service of almost incalculable public benefit. But a start is given to the fellow who starts by having to dig for every new idea and toil for every dollar that comes into his possession. He does not figure that he, as the world by the tail, and that his brains will carry him through without stirring them. It is largely the individualism manifested by powerfully motivated mediocrity that has developed a nation with the highest standard of living and with the most nearly altruistic standard of thinking the world has ever known. Will the government break down this sturdy independence and pride and penalize those who, starting with neither silver spoons nor superlative talent, have built largely and substantially as a credit not alone to themselves but to the democracy whose opportunities have been free and inspirational for 150 years?

Results of a poll to show how popular feeling stands on the question of shortening the week's work without decreasing the week's pay, and the answer is 76 per cent for and 24 per cent against. Some industrial leaders say the plan would increase the cost of production and accordingly decrease demand so that unemployment would be more instead of less. Thus, we have a conflict of opinions which could be settled only by another costly and doubtful experiment.

Increased Tree Planting.

Arbor day—a creature of J. Sterling Morton's early-day foresight—has passed with the original idea carried out more generally and more earnestly than for many years. Use of trees for fuel and other purposes, followed by the belief that deforestation has robbed the land of due protection, has brought renewed attention to practical Arbor day observance. More trees than ever have been planted, and late experience will undoubtedly lead to greater care in their preservation.

County Spellers In City Contest

Donald Horn and Helen Schroeder, winners in the county spelling contest, entered the inter-state contest in Sioux City last Friday. Donald missed 10 and Helen 6 words in the written contest. All who qualified for the final oral test had perfect records in the written work. Miss Pearl Sewell, Mrs. J. P. Horn, Stanley Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schroeder and Esther accompanied the students to the city.

TO LIVE ON.

The desire to live on after the body has been discarded has been inherent in people from the beginning, and many are so constituted that they are able to believe without further proof than that offered by the scriptures. Many others are skeptical, and have to be reasoned with logically. We have just read Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick's book, "The Assurances of Immortality," and he convinces us that nature is rational and reasonable and has a definite purpose, and that preservation of the greatest thing in the world—personality—is the supreme essential. Everything else perishes, and without continuity and continued growth of personality, the entire scheme of creation would be a failure—worse than useless. "The essence of personality is self-conscious separateness," says Dr. Fosdick, "and without it, everything would be destroyed. Love and hope would come to naught. Noble influences of all the world's great leaders would vanish like soap bubbles. The 'pay of goodness' and the opportunity to become better," and this would soon end if the priceless possession of personality were thrown away. Dr. Fosdick says man is immortal now, and that death is just an incident that deepens and beautifies the surviving entity. He thinks nothing rational comes from chance, and that creation of the universe was thought through in advance. He quotes this from Prof. Wiske, leading evolutionist: "The materialistic assumption that the life of the soul ends with the life of the body, is the most colossal error of the less assumption that is known to the history of philosophy."

Tests Are Taken By Many Pupils

About 250 7th and 8th graders took the county examinations Monday and Tuesday at the county. Eighth graders wrote both days and the 7th graders wrote Tuesday. Miss Pearl Sewell conducted the tests for 104 in Wayne.

Present Program At City Auditorium

The "Show Boat" and "Trans-Atlantic Merry-Go-Round" presented by Wayne city school students Tuesday evening at the auditorium attracted a good crowd. The program featured rhythmic hand, quartets, tap dances, solos, octet numbers, plays, debate and dramatized story. Proceeds amounted to about $40 and the money will be used to help defray expenses of the school annual to be printed for the school's golden jubilee.

Arbor Day Program Given At High School

Two "jubilee" oak trees were planted on the city school grounds in an Arbor day ceremony yesterday afternoon. The trees were presented by the school by the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary. Prof. C. R. Chinn gave an Arbor day address. Miss Day sang "McMatt" song "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer. The prize winning essay on Arbor day, selected from the group of 34 submitted in the contest sponsored by the Wayne Woman's club, and written by Rodney Peck, was read. Oak trees were selected for the tree planting because of their long life and the hope that they would survive 100 years from the day of planting.

Don't Blame the Want Ads.

Omaha World-Herald: An Omaha housewife is telephoning. She is perplexed, and a bit on the aggrivated or indignant order.

"What," she asks, "is the matter with World-Herald want ads? I've always used them, especially when I needed domestic help, and they've always brought me at least a plenty of answers. But not now. I have just had a help wanted ad in your paper for four insertions—for a maid at good pay. And there's not a single response. My neighbor has had almost the same experience; not quite, because she did get one applicant. But that girl called up the next day to say she'd got a government job at better pay—and so, good-by. What I want to know is, has The World-Herald lost its pulling power, or is the government providing everybody with jobs at better pay than we can afford—and making us pay for them just the same?"

And all it is possible to say to that is that World-Herald want ads are tops. They'll find the help if there is help to be found that is willing to work.

Meanwhile, of course, the government is urging private enterprise to provide work for the millions of jobs.

It is all very perplexing. We can't blame our lady of the telephone for being a trifle annoyed.

Those Big AAA Payments.

Nebraska State Journal: In fairness to the agricultural administration it must be pointed out that payments of many thousands of dollars in single checks to large scale producing companies are not subject to criticism if the contracts involved were fully complied with and drafted as the terms of the adjustment act. That is, if a single man or corporation operated a thousand sections of land, he is entitled to perhaps a thousand times as large a check as the man who operates one section, if, in each case, the provision of the contract were carried out to the letter.

Generally speaking, the benefits were paid to make workable a scheme for taking land out of production. That was accomplished whether checks were large or small. Checks naturally were larger where larger acreages were involved. The payment of a benefit to a British firm owning land in the South is not vulnerable. The desired result was obtained, regardless of who owned the land.

Justification for varying sizes of checks and the pointing out of the unfairness of limiting their size, does not have any bearing on the policy involved. Mistakes in policy are now and have always been vulnerable to attack.

There has been serious quarrel with the administration of the sugar problem and this quarrel may continue with ample justification for the rebellion of domestic sugar producers. Sugar comes in a different category than most other crops and domestic sugar growers, who produce only a fraction of that consumed by the nation, may in all fairness continue to demand explanation of why the production should be restricted and payments made for restriction abroad.

All in all, Senator Vandenberg has not been at all unreasonable in demanding a list of recipients of payments of $10,000 or more. This is information in which the country has an interest and to which it is entitled.

The Primary Lottery.

York Republican: The editor of this newspaper was one who eagerly advocated the adoption of the Wisconsin-conceived direct primary after the elder LaFollette had proved its usefulness. Nebraska had been going through a period of boss-controlled politics. The railroad managements had been riding hard and high in both parties. It was time for a change. The direct primary seemed a solution of the problem facing disgusted voters. And they were quick to compel its adoption by the legislature.

Now democratic government is the pride of our people and we like to believe that the people are capable of ruling themselves. But are they when it comes to the selection of candidates for state office in a field of candidates bewildering for number and disconcerting because of the absence of acquaintance? We wonder. Only one who has had an unusual opportunity to know the candidates could wisely choose from the lists offered in Tuesday's voting, and even then he might be tempted to vote for a name that had become familiar in state politics without knowing the individual whom the name represented.

We seriously question if more than ten per cent of the voters in Tuesday's primary voted a completely intelligent ballot. How could they if they did not know something about every candidate running?

What is the cure for this public

Trouble With Corn In Storage. Omaha Journal - Stockman: Farmers and elevator men have long realized the difficulty of storing corn for any great length of time. It is hard enough to crib sound corn so it will keep and it is almost impossible to hold soft corn. This has rendered corn a rather hazardous security for bank loans and apparently the government is discovering the fact.

Political Spoils. Nebraska Farmer: When Andrew Jackson, during his two terms as president of the United States, from 1829 to 1837, introduced the patronage spoils system into the United States government (to the victor belong the spoils) little did he contemplate that more than 100 years later another administration, ignoring the commendable civil service system which had succeeded the spoils plan, would set an example of political patronage so vast and powerful as to bring condemnation from men in all parties.

A recent public poll showed 88 percent of the voters favoring the Civil Service plan for hiring federal employees, as compared with 12 percent who want to see party workers rewarded with federal jobs. How flagrant has been the disregard of civil service in recent years is revealed by the fact that only one out of every 107 of the 235,000 new full-time federal jobs created by the present administration, is on a Civil Service basis. Since April 4, 1933, the percentage of Civil Service employees in the Federal Government has been reduced from 80.8 to 57 percent of the total. The patronage plan no doubt prevails as well in the selection of part-time and emergency employees connected with federal activities operating in the various states.

As the government extends its activities in the regulation of individuals and business, the army of federal employees increases and with it political support for administration's policies. The result is a huge political machine fueled and manned by federal employees whose jobs depend upon continuance of federal activities. These federal employees, plus the beneficiaries of relief and recovery agencies, comprise an almost unbeatable force for party domination, since they and their families are rapidly approaching a magnitude sufficient to influence a majority of the vote.

Aside from this dangerous trend, party patronage through the spoils system in politics cannot be too severely condemned because it also (1) ignores ability on the part of the appointee; (2) encourages inefficiency and unnecessary expansion in federal payrolls; (3) encourages corruption in parties and government; and (4) adds to the tax burden.

E. Kostomlatsky Is Champion Of Early Wheelmen

About 40 years ago the bicycle was the popular sport and it was then that Emil Kostomlatsky, father of Mrs. C. A. Orr of Wayne, was champion wheelman. His picture and a story of cycling in Iowa appeared in Wednesday's Sioux City Journal.

Mr. Kostomlatsky was head of the League of American Wheelmen in 1890 when the cyclists of the United States were organized and were active. Mr. Kostomlatsky has about 50 medals which he won in various events.

In 1895 there were more than 1,000 members of the Wheelmen's league. In a meet held at Jefferson, Iowa, Mr. Kostomlatsky won a 10-mile race, the most remarkable event of the races. He finished the 10 miles in 25 minutes and 55 seconds and the crowd cheered loudly for "Kostomlatsky of Osksloos."

He had broken the state record by a narrow margin, lowered the two, three and five-mile records and set records for all other distances up to 10 miles. Later the same season Mr. Kostomlatsky reduced his own record for 10 miles by 20 seconds and made a new world's record of 11 minutes and 50 seconds for five miles.

Clover For Pasture Typical Of Plan Leaving second year sweet-clover stand for pasture, hay or seed in 1936 will be one of the most practical ways eastern Nebraska farmers will qualify for payments in the soil conservation program, according to Agent Walter Miller. Many farmers seed sweet-clover with all their small grain, pasture the clover and stubble in the fall, plow under the clover about May first of the following year and plant the land to corn. Some men leave part of their second-year clover for pasture and seed each year.

A typical example might be as follows: In 1935 the farm had 75 acres of corn, 25 acres of oats, and 10 acres of second-year sweet-clover. Sweet clover was seeded with the oats. In 1936 if the farmer again plants 25 acres of oats and sweet-clover and 60 acres of corn and keeps 25 acres of second-year sweet-clover for pasture and seed he will draw soil conserving payment and also soil building payment. In eastern Nebraska soil conserving payments will average over $10 per acre. Soil building payments would be $25 on this farm, and total payment would be $37.50 if the land was appraised at average productivity.

Careful preparation of land for fall seeding of alfalfa will be another common practice under the soil conservation program in eastern and central Nebraska. Western Nebraska farmers are likely to increase summer fallow and restoration of light land to native grass if these two recommendations of the state committee are approved by the secretary of agriculture.

History Read At Annual Meeting

Mrs. Anna Long Gives Report On Cemetery Association Over Many Years.

At the annual meeting of the Wakefield Cemetery association held April 7 a history of the organization was read by Mrs. Anna Long. The first interest in improvement of the cemetery was created by Mrs. John Marriott, Mrs. Sadie Rawlings and Mrs. Elanthe Herrington.

Marriott were appointed as a committee to call on the village board to ascertain the amount available for cemetery use and to ask their cooperation.

The association was formed according to law and at a meeting held September 15, 1899 the organization was perfected and permanent officers named as follows: President, Mrs. Herrington; vice president, Mrs. Carrie Bard; secretary, Mrs. Anna Long; treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Weaver.

At a meeting in April, 1900, the constitution and by-laws were read by Mrs. Long and accepted by the association. Dinners were served Memorial day for a number of years, the proceeds used for the cemetery fund.

Mrs. Herrington left Wakefield in 1901 and her place was filled by Mrs. Rawlings, which place she filled for 24 years. She was succeeded by Fred Larson.

During this correspondence Mrs. Long received the following letter from John Cook of San Diego, Calif.: "What a wonderful work you are doing looking after the grave of our first born, almost forgotten for 50 years."

Philo Graves donated a part of his farm for the beginning of the Wakefield cemetery. The John Cook infant was the first burial in the cemetery.

Trustees and committeemen met for 36 years in the home of Mrs. Anna Long. A fence was built about the cemetery in 1925 at a cost of $1,210 and labor on this was donated by August Helgen, Alfred Lundberg, Ole Dahlgren, Walter Fredrickson, Gnas. Borg, Ed. Sandahl, Alfred Hougland and El Telander.

Officers of more recent years have been: Mrs. Robert Natherow, Mrs. M. Ekeroth, Mrs. Fannie Hugelmann, Mrs. Sina Hyspe, Mrs. Wilhelm, Mrs. Adam Nuernberger, Mrs. Ellen Haskell, Mrs. George Aistrop, J. A. Seagren, Ray Diltz, J. O. Peterson, A. Okeson, Mrs. Lucy Peterson, Mrs. Mercy Oliver, Dr. D. Quimby, Dr. G. W. Henton.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Sudler moved to Norfolk Wednesday.

Beef Slaughter Is Heavy. Omaha Journal-Stockman: Another high record in the slaughter of beef cattle was made during March. The total was 769,029 head, which has been exceeded during the month but a few times. For the first three months of the year, cattle slaughter totaled 2,410,898 head, third largest for the first quarter of the year on record, having been exceeded only by a few thousand head in 1918 and '19. A lot of beef is being harvested, and there is no indication that supplies will dwindle for some time to come.

Of course, the beef is needed, to make up the short pork supply, and as has been said so many times, it is fortunate that we have it. The hog slaughter is only a little ahead of a year ago, which as everyone knows was the smallest year since the slaughter records have been kept. This year the first quarter slaughter of hogs numbered 8,364,021 head, against 7,614,817 during the same three months last year. The average of the past few years, for the first three months, has been around twelve and a half million head.

March was another big month in the slaughter of sheep and lambs, and the total for three months is just short of the 4,545,434 head during 1932, which stands as the first quarter record.

Agricultural Notes

(By Walter L. Miller)

Nebraska farmers, according to estimates, will increase their corn acreage in 1936 by 15 percent over 1935 harvest. For the country as a whole the estimated corn acreage increase is 6.5 percent. Corn acreage in Nebraska from 1926 to 1930 was nine million; for 1930 to 1933, ten million; for 1934, six million; and for 1935, seven million. The estimate for 1936 is eight million acres.

In the war on soil erosion strips of erosion-resistant crops alternated with strips of sloe cultivated crops across the slope have been found effective barriers. These erosion-resistant strips, varying from 29 to 100 feet in width, may be thickly seeded annuals such as sudan grass, cane, oats, wheat, barley and soybeans.

Wayne county farmers this week observed Arbor day by planting 7,500 trees for windbreaks and woodlots. Farmers in this state have set out 1,500,000 seedlings this spring. This is an increase of 465,000 over last year.

A test on planting up and down slope showed that 650 times as much soil and 14 times as much water was lost when planting was across the slope.

Forest products are tenth in the Big Ten of farm crops. Leading them are cotton, wheat, truck crops, tobacco, fruits, nuts, potatoes, corn and hay, and below these are 35 other products. Woodlands pay their owners extra income, also building material and fuel.

Breeding plants that resist disease rather than depending on remedies to control plant diseases is the latest effort in science. Some hybrids which resist disease do not have the quality of the original plant. This scientists must work on too.

Farmers will ultimately find their credit improved when scientists have eliminated diseases from livestock and plants because the collateral will be of more certain value.

MARSHA

Occasionally in our daily routine a new thought occurs and is carried to completion. Few are as important as the yearly presentation of an opera by the Teachers College. Last year an excellent production of "The Bartered Bride" was offered. This year again Prof. Clifford Bair has near completion the opera "Martha!" Operas have something of the greatness of history. They have the background and usually contain the suggestion of the tempo of the folk music found in the territory in which they are written. Having once proven themselves they are permanent. So few of value have been composed that the ones that last are appreciated by music lovers the world over. Yet we seldom have an opportunity of seeing and hearing them. The larger cities produce them during their seasons. In Wayne once each year we are privileged to witness an excellent production of one of the better operas. Only through the talent assembled in an institution as large as the music department of the Teachers College and a director as capable as Prof. Bair are we able to hear an opera rehearsed and blended into a synchronized performance in which we can enjoy and understand the message of these master composers.

Martha, a light opera, is indeed a popular work. The libretto by St. Georges carries us into the greatest of the three known dramatic plots, mistaken identity. Through the entire story we are fascinated by the antics of Lady Henrietta endeavoring to relieve herself from the predicaments she has encountered in disguising herself as Martha, a servant girl, including her love for Lionel, the brother of Plunkett, a farmer. For popularity, entertainment and appreciation it seems that Professor Bair could hardly have done better in his choice.

Dr. Anderson In Chapel Address

President Speaks To Group On College Improvement And Life Philosophy.

Dr. J. T. Anderson, president of the Wayne State Teachers College, addressed students and faculty members at convocation period last week Wednesday morning on "Questions and Problems, Education in General, and A Sound Philosophy on Life and Education." Rev. W. F. Dierking of the Wayne Presbyterian church had charge of devotionals and music was furnished by the capella choir under direction of Prof. Clifford Barr.

Dr. Anderson opened his address by expressing his deep appreciation to college students and faculty members for their loyal support, their sympathy and understanding, and their help in assisting him to orient himself in his new surroundings and tasks. "I am much pleased with the outlook for our school," he declared, "and see ahead a few things which we must accomplish and attain."

The president enumerated the six improvements he would desire for the college as follows: A new dormitory for men students; new housing for the library; a larger auditorium for the accommodation of students and friends; improvements for the gymnasium and athletic field; new laboratory equipment; an outdoor theatre on the site of the sunken garden. The improvements suggested would have a definite part in the improvement of the college when the time arrived, the president stated. "Students going out of the college into the various fields of activity will have an opportunity to be of great service—or to hinder our growth," Dr. Anderson stated. "Students trained in the school represent a worthy institution."

The president spoke of the need of coordination between students and faculty members, and the need of avoiding a spirit of competition. "We need to do away altogether with the student attitude of 'Here I am—educate me if you can,' and also the instructor attitude of 'Here I am—get help from me if you can and work together for the greater good and growth of the school,'" he continued.

There are less tangible things to consider in the growth of a school but probably more important, and these include an improvement of the content of the course of study, of the graduation requirements, measuring and recording results of learning, Dr. Anderson stated. Tests and contests may not be the best methods of measuring results, and educators are constantly on the look-out for better methods.

"We need to enlarge and improve the social program," the speaker declared, "and to build character. We are now working on a plan to exchange instructors with other schools and thus discover the best our neighbors have, and also to give them our best."

In a whimsical aside the president said that he "would like to suggest some substitute for smoking in front of the doors of the buildings."

Asking a list of questions, Dr. Anderson included the following: "Shall attendance in any school be compulsory or shall the program be built so attractively that parents will deem it a privilege to send their children? Shall secondary education be added at public expense? Should there be a common curriculum which only provides for the average child?" Dr. Anderson believes that secondary education at public expense should be provided for every child and that the curriculum should be so arranged that it cares for every child, there being a question as to whether there is such a development as "average" in children.

"Shall the schools prepare for society as it is, or shall they seek to re-organize it?" the speaker asked. "If society be reorganized, how shall we know to what point we must raise our standards so as not to be too far above the rest of the world?" He believes that there should be an equalization of college opportunity and an equalization of the burden of taxation. Education must always be considered an investment rather than an expense.

"Education is life," declared Dr. Anderson, "and not a preparation for life. The best preparation for the future is always that which is best for the present. Students must begin now to face life's problems and must learn to lead, whether they are leaders or not. Unless we are willing to dedicate our lives to becoming an example for youth, then we should be in other lines of work."

O'NEAL SPEAKS HERE THURSDAY

Farm Bureau Official Talks On New Soil Erosion Plan For Agriculture.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau association, was in Wayne last Thursday and delivered an address to farmers and business men of the community at the city auditorium. Merchants of Wayne entertained honor guests and farmers at 12 o'clock luncheon at Hotel Stratton. At 1:30 a concert was given at the auditorium by the Wayne Municipal band, under direction of Prof. F. C. Reed.

Country representatives at the meeting were: Sapp, Douglas, Burk, Thurston, Dayton, Pierce, Stanton, Gamble, Antelope, Lancaster and Wayne. Out-state guests were from Seneca county, N. Y., and Lauderdale county, Alabama.

J. J. Aiken president at afternoon speaking at Hotel Stratton introducing F. L. Moses, Wayne county farm chairman. Mr. Moses introduced guest speakers at the hotel and also at the auditorium.

T. S. Hook of Wayne, gave the speech of welcome at the auditorium. Mr. Moses introduced E. T. Winter, secretary of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, W. H. Brokaw, director of the extension service, University of Nebraska, R. E. Holland of the extension service, C. Y. Thompson, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau, Clay Wessott, organization director for the Nebraska Farm Bureau, R. A. Spencer, field supervisor. Mr. Thompson is from West Point and the others from Lincoln.

Mr. Brokaw spoke briefly stating that the new farm program was a matter for whole-hearted cooperation and for farming communities to put shoulders to the wheel of progress and to push to gether. The foundation for the farm program was laid a year and a half ago for a soil conservation program to fit an emergency, that of restoring soil fertility and conserving moisture. "The world is dependent on agriculture for its food and clothing, the essentials of life," said Mr. Brokaw, "and it is up to us to do the job that confronts us in making this program a success."

Mr. Thompson gave a short talk in which he brought to the attention of his listeners, that in a recent poll taken over Nebraska, it was discovered 52 per cent of the farmers wanted to be let alone and wanted no interference from the government or anyone else. The remainder, or 38 per cent, wanted a different program and it is with the latter group that the farm bureau wishes to work. "The consulting centers must go with us to get us in our program," said Mr. Thompson. "The program was worked out in a short time and built up so that it might appeal to farmers and consumers alike. We must put the program in operation now."

Mr. Thompson said that efficiency of production was the biggest problem of the agricultural communities, that the farmer must maintain their soil without putting back anything toward a continued fertility.

"The farmer who produced 44 bushel corn from 12 1/2 acres in 1933 and had put something back into his soil made more than the man who had 100 acres of 25-bushel corn from staved soil," said Mr. Thompson. "The farmer will get ahead if he feels that he wants to learn more about the care of his soil—we must show our interest in this program or it will be a long time before we get another."

Pres. O'Neal, main-line speaker for the afternoon, one-time cotton farmer in the south, addressed the gathering with the soft drawl and ready wit of his native state of Alabama.

"The main trouble with farmers of America," he began, "is that they haven't taken time off to think for a good many years. I used to do that myself—just get out and plow, but never think. One day I learned the fundamental reason—the farmer loves his stock and loves his land. He sees the beauty in everything about him and he is contented to drift along from day to day, happy in his home and his wonderful acres."

"Cotton takes a heap more farm labor than corn," said Mr. O'Neal, "and the more cotton I produced, the more help I needed—the more help I had, the 'raggeder' I got. I did right well," he went on whimsically, "my mortgage increased and I used to have great pride in the way the bankers always let me add a little more to it."

The speaker spoke of the beginning of the farm bureau in Washington, originated in 1914 and introduced into Congress. The boll weevil, cotton crop menace, brought about the first interest in the south in a government bureau for home use of the soil. The boll weevil and the germ of the farm bureau both turned out to be

"sharp things that know how to penetrate." In 1920 Pres. O'Neal, in a speech before Congress, stated that the mid-west and the south, great agricultural communities, must stick together in order to gain help and recognition. The farm bureau really had its birth in 1920, an attempt to promote a program wholly in the interest of the farm people. "In the last three years I have seen more laws enacted for the farmer than in the rest of my life-time," he declared.

"The gravest danger to any democracy is sectionalism and regionalism," the speaker continued. "It takes an agency like the farm bureau to mold and draw together the loose strings of separated sections of the country. When the mid-west finally educated the south into a realization of the needs of agricultural sections to help—they were ready to get together. Early in my career I saw the need of knocking down those barriers between the two sections, the need of making the south forget the Civil war and to make the voice of agriculture heard above all else."

The speaker said that for the first time in the history of the country the voices of its 1-2 million farmers are being heard in Washington. When the farm representatives were called to Washington to make out a program in the interest of agriculture, they insisted on a permanent law, not temporary affair which would be a matter of politics. The unity purpose put through the present program, that whose interests are in the farms of the country made the statement to Congress: "Unless you give us a permanent hope for recovery, we are not going on with you." Under the soil-erosion program, representatives felt that provisions would work if farmers in the corn and cotton belts would cooperate.

"Perpetrators of the program asked for the sum of $440,000,000 and got it," Mr. O'Neal said, "but it will not be easy for us to get money again unless we make good use of the money which has been appropriated for us. East, west, north and south voted for the appropriation—even Tammany, which doesn't know a hog from a hole in the ground."

The Commodity Credit Corporation is still in effect for the farmers, the speaker continued. The storing of corn and the corn-hog good here and in the south. The security of agriculture still guarantees the consumers of cooperation. "It is in your power to make the program succeed or fail—those of you who are taking a free ride are asked to hop off or to help push. One of the ways in which the farm program has gone far to assist, is through our monetary system—we want the dollar to keep on an even keel with commodity prices, other words to put it actually on commodity basis."

Mr. O'Neal spoke of the TV work in the south, stating that millions of acres of land are being terraced under the set-up. Cost for individuals to terrace land would be about $68 an acre, while on cooperative basis with the government, it can be done for about 25 cents an acre. Southern farmers are also cooperating with the government in the building of dams and the planting of leguminous crops.

"It is up to the county agents to organize the farmers and to keep the farm bureau program out of politics," he declared.

Mr. O'Neal expressed himself as being greatly in favor of the improvement of rural roads and sees in it a method of taking the employment out of the cities and putting the jobs to work on highway improvement. "I have, and shall continue, to fight for rural roads, for vocational education and for soil erosion. I am not worried about anything except the cooperation of the farmers I am trying to help. It took 10 years to get through an equalization act and two months to get through the soil erosion program—it is up to you to get behind and help."

He declared that the income of the working people must be distributed. "The last bulwark of our capitalist country is the farm vote." He spoke of the need for a steady of so many young people, prepared for work and unable to find jobs. "If you will pause to think you will discover that every great movement of the present day—fascism, socialism, etc., is led by youth. The remedy for this lies with the farm people, and the fundamental social philosophy which arises in the hearts of the farmers."

George Soden Writes From Buenos Aires, Argentinean City

George Soden, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Soden of Wisner, writes the following from Buenos Aires, Argentina:

"Summer is pretty well over down here and I suppose it will be quite warm in Nebraska when you get this letter. By the sound of letters and newspapers, you had a tough winter—both cold and snow. The last snow they had here was in 1916. Most of the children have never seen any snow, except in pictures.

"We have had a very cool summer, comfortable temperatures and lots of rain. Farm conditions are very good and prices are fairly good. Corn is going to be a good crop. In certain sections the grasshoppers completely ruined the corn. I made a trip west a short time ago, and in the grasshopper district there is not a spear of anything left. Corn fields look like they had been cut with a binder. The grasshoppers get so thick on the roads it is like driving on a carpet. Trains get stalled as there are so many on the tracks, making them so greasy the wheels spin. When the locusts fly down from the north they come in flocks and everyone has a terrible time waiting about. They make it dark in the middle of the day as they completely blot out the sun.

"To kill the locusts, tin fences are built for miles, with pits every 40 rods or so. Before the locusts get large enough to fly they go from field to field by crawling and hopping. When they come to the tin fence which is too high for them to crawl or jump over, they move along until they come to the pit from which they are unable to jump out, once they get in millions of them are killed in this way. It makes a terrible smell out in the country but since dead animals are left lying about, the odor is nothing unusual.

"Shirley started to school last week and we think we are going to send Dale to a kindergarten which is close by. It costs a lot to send children to school down here unless they go to the regular Argentine schools.

"I took a two weeks' vacation about a month ago. We spent the time going to places about Buenos Aires. There are beaches along the river, also a zoo with all kinds of animals and amusement parks. This is quite a pretty city in general and is flat and level as is all of Argentina.

"This is a great cattle country. I understand the Swift company killed 1,000,000 cattle down here last year. Practically all of the meat is shipped to England as frozen beef. The meat has to be frozen because of the slowness of the boats."

Wayne high debaters won the district title. Bonnie Hess, Lynette Rennick and Leslie Rundel comprised the team.

it, too, ought to be appreciated by all those who do more English services, for it shows the willingness of the congregation to do everything possible for the continued growth of St. Paul's. That is as it should be in response to this splendid attitude the pastor has decided to hold double header services every Sunday. May you show your full appreciation by making use of the additional services offered. The new field that this decision has opened is readily apparent. It has caused a sensational increase in attendance. During the last period of the "double header" service every Sunday during the past Lenten season our average Sunday attendance has increased from an average of 150 to well over 200. May this new interest continue unabated.

The Mayor and Council find that there have heretofore been issued and are now outstanding and unpaid valid interest bearing bonds of the city of Wayne as follows: Twenty-two Thousand Dollars ($22,000.00) Refunding Bonds dated April 1, 1928, due July 10, 1945, optional any time after July 10, 1935, bearing interest at the rate of four and one-half per centum (4 1/2%) annually, being bonds Nos. 19 to 40 inclusive for $1,000.00 each, which were authorized and ordered issued by Ordinance No. 346 of said City, which was passed and approved on the 27th day of March, 1928. And, Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) Paving District Bonds, District No. 7, dated February 15, 1928, due February 15, 1938, optional February 15, 1936, bearing interest at the rate of five per centum (5%) annually, being bonds Nos. 4 to 13 inclusive for $500.00 each, which were authorized and ordered issued by Ordinance No. 344 of said City, which was passed and approved on the 31st day of January, 1928.
