

Exceeds Labor Supply—Department Houses—Careless Chewers—With No Lakes or Rivers—Miscellaneous Amendments—Ponca to Celebrate—April Driness Unimportant—Editor Returns—Abusing Generosity—Sunshine Seminars.

The supply of men wanting work on farms is reported unequal to the demand. Also the call for domestics is unneeded. It would seem among ten or more millions could be found to meet farm and household requirements.

A Local Need. Some one suggests that Wayne ought to have more apartment houses. The community is growing, and many who come here often experience difficulty in finding places to live.

Way to Get Arrested. Complaint is made that tobacco chewers often carelessly discharge the overflow of sidewalks. This disagreeable and unnecessary habit is contrary to a city ordinance.

Swimming Pool Value. Revived use of the swimming pool just south of town under experienced management will meet a large demand.

On Wrong Document. The Herald reporter who last week mentioned amendments to the declaration of independence instead of the constitution figured out the all-powerful New Deal had done that very thing in the course of its grandiose and swiftly moving parade of experiments.

Early Resident of Wayne Passes. The eightieth anniversary of Ponca's founding is to be given emphasis in a celebration at that place June 26 and 27.

Words of Confidence. Edgewood, editor of the Columbus Telegram and former congressman whose accuracy of memory is, we believe, more to be depended on than his accuracy of political judgment.

After Wives' Absence. We are glad Editor F. D. Stone is back at his desk in the Herald office in Hartington after his usual winter's sojourn in Phoenix, Ariz.

Critical Reservations. When government relief workers strike because the pay is deemed insufficient or working conditions are considered unsatisfactory.

Name Delegates For Convention Today. Nine delegates from Wayne county will be named at the republican convention today.

Father of Wayne Woman Is Ill. Mrs. Roscoe Porterfield has been at Pliger for the past two weeks helping care for her father, Miles Martin, who is seriously ill at the home of another daughter.

Early Resident of Wayne Passes

Rites Are Held Tuesday For J. W. Hodson Who Dies in Dakota.

J. W. Hodson, resident of Wayne for a number of years, died Saturday morning at 5:30 at Hot Springs, S. D., following an illness of six weeks.

J. W. Hodson, better known in Wayne as Bill Hodson, was born in Delaware, Ohio, September 17, 1867, and was thus aged 68 years.

Mr. Hodson married Miss Emma Williamson in Wayne in 1892 and four children were born to them. In 1905 the Hodsons moved to Crofton and later to Seattle, Wash.

Mr. Hodson leaves his wife and three children, Guy of Red Oak, Iowa, Mrs. Mabel Goodwin of Genoa, Neb., and Miss Florence Hodson of Genoa. One daughter, Lucy, died some years ago.

Mrs. Hodson of Hot Springs, Sam Hodson of Winterset, Mrs. Mabel Goodwin of Genoa, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hodson of Red Oak, accompanied the body to Wayne.

HEALTH WEEK IS USELESS UNLESS IT HELPS HABITS

This is "national health week" and its value, if it has any, lies in arousing thought of health and prompting the adoption of health habits.

The stomach is probably the chief object of abuse, and accordingly it is the cause of a good deal of trouble. It is assaulted with anything that suits taste, and it receives slight consideration until it rebels.

Dr. J. T. Anderson, president of the Wayne State Teachers College, introduced the guest speaker, Governor Nollen.

Woman Serving In Reformatory

Woman Is Taken To York After Pleading Guilty To Adultery Charge

Marie Vannische, also known as Marie Phillips and Marie Chesley, real name unknown, pleaded guilty to adultery charge at preliminary hearing in county court Friday and was taken before District Judge Clinton Chase at Stanton, the same day when she pleaded guilty. She was given sentence of 8 to 12 months in the women's reformatory at York and was taken there by Sheriff J. H. Pile Sunday.

Confession signed by Marie Vannische, real name unknown, states that she was married in Minnesota in April, 1926, to Cecil Phillips, whom she deserted. Still married to Phillips, she had lived with Gus Vannische from September, 1930, until November 2, 1935, when she left Wayne. She married Nick Backus November 12, 1935, and was known as Irene Baker Backus. On November 26, 1935, she married or pretended marriage to Wm. Butcher at Leeds, Iowa, and this marriage was afterward annulled. She was taken into custody by Sheriff Pile at Dakota City last week.

Defendant had five children when she lived with Gus Vannische. Two are in the Catholic home in Sioux City, two are with friends and the fifth was given for adoption at birth.

Menaced Freedom. WRITING for Nation's Business, (Thomas Nixon Carver, professor of political economy, Harvard university, points out that any attack which cripples private enterprise, is an attack on wage earners and on our whole economic system. Curtailing freedom of business, curtails possibilities for employment. It is a shortsighted policy to hamper individual industry and overburden it with taxes and at the same time expect it to expand and employ more persons. According to the writer, the question pressing for decision is whether people want "a system of freedom or a system of coercion."

Critics of our system of government magnify its evils and overlook its advantages. The writer offers this contrast: "So many things are being said against our economic system, that we are likely to forget some of its merits. In the first place it has solved the problem of adequate production and forever banished the possibility of famine. "In the second place it has enabled three-fourths of our people, even during the depression, to spend more money and to buy more comforts and luxuries than any similar number of people ever enjoyed anywhere or at any time before 1919.

"In the third place, even the other one-fourth of our people, whether on relief or employed on various projects, are better fed, clothed and housed than the lower one-fourth of any people ever were anywhere at any time.

"It takes a rich country to provide relief on an ample scale. No country could do it which had not grown rich as the result of free enterprise. In the fourth place, in spite of the figures as to the concentration of wealth in this country, purchasing power is more widely diffused than anywhere else."

The writer stresses the need of freeing business and manufacturing institutions from unnecessary restrictions, and encouraging them to feel safe in multiplying activities and spreading prosperity. The writer concludes:

"When the masses have more and more purchasing power, men will continue to get rich by catering to them, but that, in itself, will raise their standard of living. The riches of the rich will then be not a measure of their predatory power, but of their power to supply the masses with what they want; not a measure of what the rich have subtracted from the general well-being, but a measure of what they have added to the general well-being.

"Such a program holds out greater promise for the employed classes than any new and untried system. The first step in working out such a program is to save our economic system from destruction by the subversive forces that are trying to undermine it."

Early Effort EVIDENTLY inspired by the president's pronouncement in favor of keeping boys out of gainful employment until they reach the age of 18, Boyden Sparks has amassed a lot of facts about industrial and other leaders who started work in their early teens, emphasizing the value of the stamina which was developed through force of responsible effort.

Franklin Affleck, president of the Universal Atlas Cement Company, earned his first money—35 cents a week—pumping a church organ. He was then 12 years old. His first steady job was in a machine shop at 5 cents an hour, working from eight to twelve hours per day. William A. Irwin, president of the United States Steel Corporation, began work at 15. James Simpson started clerking for Marshall Field & Company at 17 and became president of the organization at 49. James H. Hustis, retired president of the Boston & Maine railroad and of the New Haven & Hartford railroad, got his first railroad experience as office boy. Frederick H. Ecker, head of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, was 15 years old when he began work at $3 per week. Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover and Alfred Smith made their own living in the magazine field, figured he could do almost anything on a farm when he was 12 years old. Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone, C. W. Nash and many other leading figures in American life got their first lessons in industry in boyhood.

While none had opportunities afforded by money or easy schooling, not one blamed lack of advantages on his parents. Not one expressed the idea that he didn't have an equal chance with other boys. Each one helped struggling parents by helping himself, and affectionate consideration for parents was almost invariably expressed. Early experience in productive employment built needed pluck and self-reliance, opening fields for observation that proved valuable for later leadership. Too much regulating, as proposed by the president, would likely hinder the character development needed to fashion winning human fiber.

H. L. Menchen of the Baltimore Sun, in an address to the American Press, advised that while newspapers should not always be against the government, their duty lies in keeping a "wary eye on the gentlemen who operate this great nation, and only too often slip into the assumption that they own it." Commenting, the Omaha Journal-Stockman says: "Much of our vaunted freedom is now more or less of a memory, but genuine American liberty is safe and secure as long, and only as long, as the press of the nation remains alert and unfettered."

A woman of 70 years says she feels and looks younger than she did at 50 because she keeps busy, takes plenty of exercise, watches her diet and follows a few hobbies. She thinks selfishness is the greatest foe to contented and useful old age. She advises women to begin at 50 to grow old gracefully. She says: "Be your age, but be it rightly. Look your age if you must, but don't let it rub the smile from your lips or the laughter from your eyes." The same advice to men would no doubt also be appropriate.

As a workable piece of machinery—designed to permit free and full expression—the state-wide primary is a good deal of a failure. It can't do what its makers expected it to do. It is free and noble enough, but much as voters try to use it understandingly, they can't do it only finite minds.

Speaking of plagiarism, much discussed lately in connection with the Missouri boy who perpetrated a confessed fraud in an essay contest, the Lincoln Journal admonished republican speakers in the forthcoming campaign not to borrow the words of the president, used by him four years ago, without giving due credit.

The president has demanded of congress the privilege of spending public money wildly during the past three years, and yet the disposition in some quarters is to blame everybody in Washington official circles excepting the president.

Chairman Jim Farley echoes the president's desire to have Senator Norris returned to the senate, the belief evidently being that support of Nebraska's senior senator will strengthen the administration's cause in this state.

Light rain here amounted to a heavy downpour in southern parts of the state where moisture was more seriously needed.

Decadence is the likely penalty for government paternalism that offers premiums for doing less and producing less.

Attends Syracuse Conference. Rev. and Mrs. William Fischer went to Syracuse Thursday evening, the former to attend the Nebraska District Conference of Evangelical Synods, which was held there from Friday until Sunday. Mrs. Fischer spent the time with relatives at Lorton. Twenty-eight ministers and 22 delegates attended the conference. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Keph went to Syracuse with Rev. and Mrs. Fischer and visited relatives. The four returned to Wayne Sunday evening.

To State Convention. Mrs. R. W. Casper, state officer, left Tuesday for Holdrege to attend the state P. E. O. convention. Mrs. A. T. Gavannugh and Mrs. Paul Mines, delegates from Wayne chapter, went Wednesday to attend the meeting which continues over Friday. Mrs. J. E. Hufford accompanied the last two and will visit at the convention while a guest in the home of Mr. Hufford's brothers, Dr. T. B. Heckert and granddaughter, Nancy Mines, went to visit at Lexington.

Miss Gingles Named As State President Miss Nelle Gingles of Beatrice, teacher in the Wayne schools 13 years ago, is the only nominee for state president of the Nebraska Business and Professional Women's Clubs at a convention held at Chadron April 23. Miss Gingles was instrumental in organizing the Wayne branch of the club and was one of its charter members. She was the first president of the Wayne club until Miss Gingles had served four years on the state board and was RELIEF. A late public poll announcing that six out of ten persons believe politics influences the handling of federal relief funds suggests popular resentment went opportunity to do so is presented. It is the majority belief, then, expressed by many republicans, a considerable number of democrats and even some relief recipients that politics is considered in distributing taxpayers' donations. From another source it is learned that a Philadelphia party leader instructed one committeeman in March to urge persons doing relief work to register as democrats on threat of losing their jobs. President Roosevelt and Administrator Harry Hopkins had declared themselves positively against allowing politics to have any influence in bestowing relief benefits. However, the record of broken administration pledges only aggravates the suspicion that promise and performance do not necessarily bear any close relationship to each other.

Under-Supply of Humorists. Some one thinks there is a dearth of humorists in America. A fellow who sees and reflects good humor as did Will Rogers, is a valuable asset to society. The philosopher, capable of scattering sunshine banishes blue devils, lifts drooping spirits and makes burdens easier to bear. The kindly humorist shows up human follies, modifies the seriousness of disappointments and helps dissipate clouds of gloom.

PLATFORMS.

Wayne county republicans and democrats will hold conventions today, and it is presumed both will discuss current issues and define principles in sets of resolutions. There should be no evasion of questions that will occupy the minds of voters during coming months. It is not necessary to block progress in order to avoid threatened communism or fascism. It is not necessary to coddle left-wing extremists as a gesture of left-wing elements. On points that involve danger of American ideals—constitutional safeguards, freedom of speech and press, freedom to reap due rewards for honest effort—there should be no sidestepping. People want to know what political parties stand for, and whether in county, state or national convention, principles should be set forth clearly and firmly. Though the platform of the last democratic national convention did not seem to mean much to the winning administration, it did mean a great deal to many Jeffersonian democrats who were sorely disappointed over failure of observance. A political platform reflects—or should reflect—the foundation on which claims for success are based.

Agricultural Notes

(By Walter L. Moller)

Nebraska's "big four" soil conservation crops and practices under the soil conservation program have been listed for consideration. The first practice which will draw the soil conservation payment is to leave stand for pasture, hay or seed an additional acreage of second-year sweet clover or an acreage of alfalfa or perennial grass which was seeded in 1935 with a grain nurse crop harvested as grain or hay. The second is to seed alfalfa-clover or grass this year without a nurse crop or with a nurse crop which is used for pasture. The third practice is summer fallow and the fourth, temporary rotation of pasture.

Nearly 400 Nebraska farmers have entered the 1936 pasture contest with May 1 the final date for entering.

"Muddy water doesn't look so good," says Henry Debuhr, Johnson county farmer who learned soil conservation in Holland, Mr. Debuhr finds strip cropping without terraces to be effective in controlling erosion on gentle slopes. On more sloping land he uses terraces to prevent soil washing and to con-

Provisions are made for just compliance for the farmer who handles land owned by more than one party and the landlord who has more than one farm in one county. The farmer who operates land owned by more than one party can make his change in soil conserving crops on one or more of the tracts and will receive payment for the acreage changed. Those who own several farms need to figure carefully. Fifteen percent of the total soil depleting base on all of the land a landlord has in one county will be the minimum, total conserving acreage of old and new practices on the farm at the end of the year. The maximum payment a landlord can receive will be determined by taking 15 percent of the soil depleting base on each tract times the appraisal on that tract, divided by the share of crop which the landlord receives.

Seniors Present Class Play Here

Wakefield High Boys Take Part In Events At Track Meets.

"Lady of the Moon," a comedy in three acts by Gladys Bagg Taylor will be presented by the Wakefield senior class tomorrow evening, May 1, at the high school auditorium. Miss Margaret Swenson is directing the play. The story centers about Anne Kirkpatrick, played by Clarice Ekereth, who is forced into a marriage with a man she does not love and who she knows wants to marry her for her wealth. On the day set for her wedding she runs away and accepts a position as governess in the Winslow home under the assumed name of Anne Prescott. Robin Winslow, portrayed by Dale Lund, is engaged to Augusta Maria (Adah Ekereth). This engagement is also arranged by Robin's mother, Mrs. Eleanor Winslow (Martha Peterson). When Anne appears on the scene, Robin falls in love with her and Augusta's jealousy prompts her to belittle Anne.

Mrs. Alice Mason is played by Verna Stipp, Nancy Winslow by Ruth Clayton, Philip Morely, Robin's roommate, by Burnell Gross, Jimmie Winslow by Robert Felt and Bessie May by Agnes Ruth Anderson.

Marvin Bichel is acting as business and stage manager. There will be special numbers between acts. The play is produced by special arrangement with The Penn Publishing Company, Philadelphia.

English Classes Conduct Program

Sophomore Class Entertains High School—Other News Of Past Week.

Wednesday morning assembly of Concord school was in charge of the junior and senior English classes. The program was a demonstration of ways of making introduction in the most frequently used social situations. Winton Wallin, Norman Anderson, Helen Jewell and Hazel Paul were the committee in charge.

The sophomore class entertained the high school Friday evening. A treasure hunt was followed by a wieners' race.

The room had nearly 100 percent attendance last week. Current event days are Tuesdays and Thursdays. The class is interested in the European and Ethiopian war situations.

Intermediate Room. The fifth and sixth English class is studying the adjective and adverb.

Markers for the arithmetic chart this week are Darrell Tideman and Verdell Erwin. Both boys have a perfect score of ten on their improvement test Monday.

The pupils made May baskets from paper plates this week in their art work.

The fourth grade is studying the source and uses of running water. Pupils are working on a sand table project showing a river system, springs and divides, also the uses of running water.

The history class is studying the ways in which George Washington helped his country in war and peace.

Target Shoot Held In Concord Sunday

Fancy shooting was done at a target shoot for six boys April 26. Ivan Anderson, Concord school senior, was most accurate, hitting 29 out of 30 moving targets in the air with a .22 caliber rifle. The first 25 shots were bulls eye with no misses on a coaster wagon wheel five inches in diameter sailing in the air. The last five shots were also thrown in air and were bulls eye. One miss, one bull's eye; three pennies, all bull's eye. Others taking part

Fiftieth Anniversary of School Observed by Present Class of '36

Early Teacher And Graduates Of Wayne High School Tell Early Experiences When Town Was Young.

The year 1886 saw the first class graduated from the Wayne high school—the first three of the more than 800 since that memorable day, 50 years ago, left the schoolrooms of the old frame building on the site where the present institution now stands.

In 1883, three years before the class was graduated, Mrs. A. A. Welch of Wayne, then Miss Anna Davies, came here to teach in the primary department. The grades were then housed in the old building which was torn down a few years ago when Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Swan replaced it with a modern structure and the higher grades were in the old Presbyterian church just north of the present site.

"I came here about Christmas time, 1883, and began my work the second semester, taking Miss Weatherby's place," explained Mrs. Welch. "My coming here was a matter of chance—you see, I was taking vocal work at LeMars, Iowa, then and getting along very nicely. When my sister, Mrs. Susie Davies, wrote me of the vacancy in Wayne, I was terribly undecided. I couldn't shake up my mind so my brother insisted that I draw lots and the result decided me. The next day I was on the train, coming to Wayne."

A. A. Welch was then superintendent of the Wayne school. Miss Davies taught in 1884-1885, at the end of which the pretty little teacher and the distinguished-looking professor were married. Mr. Welch gave up the superintendency the last year Mrs. Welch taught and his place was taken by Mr. McCoy. Mrs. Welch's sister, Miss Susie Davies, who also taught in the earliest Wayne school, was married to Eugene Harris in 1884, the couple moving to Illinois. Mrs. Harris now lives in Illinois.

quiet voice which held the poignancy of memory. "The social activities were centered about the churches and schools and we had lovely times. People of the town made every effort to make life pleasant for the teachers who were very much 'looked up to.' Saturdays were calling days and we teachers frequently made as high as 25 calls in one afternoon. 'Calling' nowadays seems to be a lost art."

Mrs. Welch taught alone in the old building and the schools were not graded then as they are now. Work was advanced as the pupil advanced and the children were in no special group. This former teacher in the Wayne school remembers an amateur play which was sponsored by the instructors and people of the town, the proceeds going toward financing hospitalization of a lame Wayne boy.

"I remember the play distinctly," she smiled. "It was called 'The Peek Sisters' and I think we had as much pleasure out of practicing and producing the play as we gave him with the money. I think we enjoyed things more because they were so simple and everyone entered into the spirit of entertainment so wholeheartedly. People didn't hurry and rush so from one thing to another and had time to really appreciate what they did."

In Class Of 1896.

Mrs. H. B. Craven, the former Miss Maude Reynolds, was a member of the class of 1895—almost ten years after the first class was graduated. Supt. W. W. Boner was then head of the school and while in Wayne married Miss Lillie Beckenbauer, cousin of Eph Beckenbauer of Wayne, the family now residing in Washington.

went about it in a rather unique way! A group of boys would go about in a buggy stopping at the girls' homes where they wished to arrange for 'dates.' One of the young men would take a note into the house for the party most concerned, who remained in the buggy. The girl to whom the note was written would write her reply while the carrier waited. The process was repeated until the 'buggy-load was dated' for the coming social event."

Mrs. Craven remembers that there were declamatory contests even as early as 1895, she and George Wilbur winning first in the Wayne elimination events and then going to Columbus for the district contest.

Sleighriding parties and taffy pulls were events of much gayer in the nineties. Long, cold rides in the snow culminated in evenings of oyster stews and anxious peepings into bubbling kettles of taffy-in-the-making.

Punishment in the school which was most disliked was for the teacher to put a boy and girl together in the big double seats. Mrs. Craven's sister, Miss Cora Reynolds, now Mrs. Chas. Bebe, was teacher in the school and succeeded in punishing her younger sister in this manner because of her knowledge of the boys Mrs. Craven especially disliked.

Mrs. Craven recalls that Mrs. W. S. Gaidic, now of Wilmington, Calif., was one of her high school teachers. Mrs. U. S. Conn was principal and a very fine instructor and disciplinarian.

Mrs. Craven, Mrs. E. L. Chichester (Miss Bertha Norton), and Miss Mary Mason are the only three members of the class of 1896 now living in Wayne. Harry Gamble lives at Missouri Valley, Iowa, Earl Gibson in Omaha. Ed Lundberg was at one time superintendent of Wayne county and later, attorney for Swift and Co. of Chicago. He is now deceased.

Mrs. Perry Is '93 Graduate.

Miss Lita Corbit, now Mrs. Edward Perry of Wayne, was graduated with the class of 1893 and went to school in the two-story frame building located on the site of the present brick structure. The frame building was moved to the corner of Eighth and Main when the new building was begun, and later used for a ward school. When the training school was started at the college the old structure was sold to Eli Laughlin who had it wrecked.

In the old opera house. As Mrs. Perry recalls, a speaker was present from Sioux City, Ray Carroll was valedictorian and Fred Bartlett was salutatorian. The latter was killed in the Philippines during the Spanish-American war. Mrs. Perry read the class history and John Dobbin read the class prophecy. B. W. Ashley was superintendent.

Tragedy visited the class of 1893 twice in a few years. Miss Alma Jones, the class beauty, died of typhoid. The Jones family moved from Wayne shortly after Miss Alma's graduation, going to South Dakota. Miss Alma came back to Wayne for a visit with Miss Bertha Armstrong, now Mrs. E. A. Forbes of Rinelander, Wis., and while there was taken ill and passed away within a few days.

Miss Edna Sewell, now Mrs. Ray Agler of near Wayne, was a member of Mrs. Perry's class. Mrs. Perry recalls that Mrs. C. A. Chace was one of her teachers while she was in the grades.

Tells of 1896 Class.

There were 10 members of the class of 1896, three now living in the Wayne vicinity: Miss Pearl Sewell, county superintendent; Miss Theo Seace, now Mrs. C. K. Corbit of near Wayne; Miss Lulu Lindsay, now Mrs. Everett Lindsay of near Wayne.

Miss Sewell recalls the first alumni banquet which she attended the spring of her graduation from high school. The banquet was held in the Boyd hotel and was very elaborate and quite an event for the newest alumni members. Charles Reynolds, deceased, graduate of the class of 1896, was county clerk for 24 years. Miss Elsie Merriman of the same class assisted Mr. Reynolds for almost 20 years, nearly until her death. Miss Mae Cunningham was married to Claude Hudson and has lived in Montana since her marriage. Waldon Tucker is a banker in Boise, Idaho. Tom Cook's name changed to Tom Schaffer and now lives in Omaha. Of the class of 1896 four have passed away: Chas. Reynolds; Miss Pearl Reynolds (Mrs. R. W. Ley); Miss Merriman and Ted Phillips.

Nine in Class of 1898.

Mrs. H. J. Felber who was graduated from the Wayne high school in 1898 as Miss Ethel Tucker recalls vividly her graduation night, the exercises given in the old opera house. Each of the nine members of the class delivered an oration.

been bored to tears," laughed Mrs. Felber. "There was no limit to the length of the orations. I remember that mine began 'the individuality of man has asserted itself—' Isn't that a profound subject? The exercises lasted for hours. After they were all over we were all presented with baskets of flowers brought to the stage by little flower girls. The girl graduates wore dresses of white or light colored organdy made with long, full skirts and the stage, with the pretty dresses and baskets of flowers, made quite a picture."

As Mrs. Felber recalls there were no school parties and most of the social functions were either private or church parties.

Miss Julia Anderson was valedictorian of the class. She was later married to Chas. Corbin, now a professor at Pacific college, Stockton, Calif. James Wright, father of the jockey, Wayne Wright, who has attained some racing fame in the past couple of years, was also a graduate in 1898.

Training School In Operetta Production

The operetta, "Ask the Professor," given by the Wayne training high school students Thursday evening at the college auditorium netted about $25 which will be used to help defray the expenses of the students who will go to the state music contest at Kearney this Friday and Saturday. The production was coached by Prof. H. H. Hanscom. The training school orchestra played selections before the operetta and during intermission with Prof. John R. Keith directing

Highway Graveling Begun In County

Graveling on highway 98 west of Wayne was started Monday with J. N. Einung, contractor, in charge. The graveling project includes nine miles of the Wayne-Pierce highway. The state plans to connect the highway by gravel with Carroll. Culvert work on a five-mile stretch on highway 92 south of Wakefield was started Monday. A delegation from Pender which visited Lincoln recently in interest of the Wakefield-Pender highway, is of the opinion that prospects for completion of the project this year, are remote. Contract for grading a portion of this highway in Wayne county was let some time ago.

Pavilion Leased To Care For Hemp
Wilbur
Former Resident Of Carroll Passes

J. N. Einung started work of graveling the road from Wayne nine miles west, beginning near Wayne. It is understood that the state will start the first of May to improve the grade north and south at the west edge of Carroll, making this road ready for gravel.

The Gumbo Fibers Co. of Blue Earth, Minn., leased the Carroll pavilion for a hemp processing factory. Work of removing seats and putting the building in shape for installing machinery started Monday. The hemp will be made into a pulp for shipment east where it will be manufactured into commercial products. Three trucks of seed for planting hemp again this year have come here the past week.

Mr. Mary Zimmerman, about 80, died Sunday last week at Hartford, S. D., and funeral services were held there Wednesday. The Zimmermans lived a number of years ago on the farm northeast of Carroll, now the Pete Hansen place. Deceased's husband, Leander, and only son, Layton, died previously. An adopted daughter survives. Grant Zimmerman of Wayne, is a nephew and he and his wife attended the rites.

Importations
At a recent agricultural meet held here in Sioux City, many amazing facts and figures were presented regarding the importation of foodstuffs.

We consider this the farmer's most vital problem at present. Regardless of party affiliations we think they should make a united protest.

and climbed out to scramble forward into the cockpit.

The side of the cockpit had been pierced by several bullets. But when Huxby fired at the drifting plane, in his attempt to kill the supposedly hidden fugitive, he had aimed with great care to avoid damage to the instruments and controls and the motor.

After removing the breaker points from the magneto, Garth ran back to the tail of the plane. Here came the greatest of his risks. The bridge poles had risen to the surface again, but the outermost cross logs remained embedded in the mud under the water.

He let himself down sideways. As his momentum touched the slender trunks, he let go of the rudder and leaped. Though the ends of the poles shot downwards, his swift dash carried him up their sharp slant to the next pair of trunks.

The rest of the improvised bridge was fairly firm. A single misstep anywhere along it would have made him in deep bog; but he had not planned for too much canoeing and rough-ground running to lack balance or sure-footedness.

Safe back on solid ground, he at once stepped into his snowshoes and headed straight away from the shore into a dense growth of spruce. There he circled to the right towards the glacier gulch, keeping well back from the lake.

Midway to the stream channel he stopped, where through separate vistas, he could see both planes. The first lawn had brightened enough to make them visible at a distance. He set down on a log to wait. In the Eskimo suit, the cold was negligible.

A look at the constable's pistol showed it to be fully loaded. He took off the belt and buckled it on again under the loose fulness of his parka. Hosedated between the caribou skin and his rabbit fur, the caribou oil in the pistol mechanism would become warm. Cold oil is apt to jam a gun.

After making sure of the pistol, he had nothing to do except give his face an occasional rub to prevent frostbite. He sat restfully relaxed, as patient as an Eskimo hunter beside a seal hole. Very slowly the gray dawn brightened. It at last began to mellow into gold.

From across the lake came the crack of Hites—three shots in quick succession. Garth told himself that Huxby had his men were hunting Hites. He surmised why. The engineer planned to cover the shattered ends of the three-seater plane's floats with rawhide.

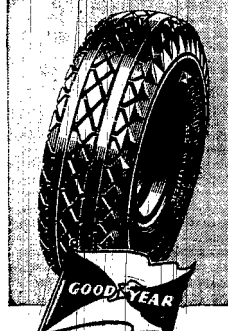

The sun glared over the jagged barrier mountains into the frost-gripped valley. Quite a while later, Garth saw one of his four enemies come out of the trees near the lake shore, on the far side of the frozen glacier stream. The man carried a full folded Hite on his left shoulder. He held his rifle ready for a quick shot and as he advanced, he peered around at the brush and trees.

A short turned the man's steps up towards the ford. Other shouts came from the slope above. Garth smiled. It was as he had foreseen, in coming to repair the floats of the three-seater plane. Huxby and his men had formed a line from the lake shore to timberline and searched the spruce woods.

But the hunters had found no trace of their quarry all the way to the bank of the frozen glacier stream. There, however, the snow-shoe tracks coming down from the tundra made plain even for cheebachos. Huxby came running along the trail, followed by the man with the moosehide.

Near the plane the engineer stopped for the winner to overtake him. They approached the stranded aircraft warily, with rifles raised, ready to shoot. When nothing happened, Huxby signaled for his companion to do the same. Huxby then took the man's rifle, another of the miners' guns running down the trail.
