Noisy Trucks - Whiskers for Celebration Purposes - Plea for a Job - Hypochondria - Looking to the Next Holiday Saturday - Dead and Injured in Accidents.

American cemeteries, hallowed by precious memories and resplendent in floral beauty, with a background of springtime's richest verdure, attract many visitors on Memorial day. The appropriate custom of decorating soldiers' graves is the signal for harmonizing all graves with the spirit of remembrance; the result is a wealth of flowers and foliage. Everywhere in America the grandest as well as the humblest cemetery brings manifestations of affectionate memories on Memorial day.

Greenwood cemetery on gently sloping ground in the northwest outskirts of Wayne is the handiwork of pioneer forethought. Its location is ideal, and the original plan of symmetry has been carried on. The wonderful evergreens that dot the carefully cropped landscape, the beautiful, sweet-scented flowers, the imperishable monuments reared to imperishable love mingle refreshing beauty with the solemn thought of loss and loneliness. Greenwood cemetery truly testifies to the community's noble regard for the departed. It is doing all humanly possible to do to make life's greatest mystery beautiful.

For Noiseless Trucks. Some genius could bestow a lasting benefit on community life by inventing something that would take the noise out of trucks. Also traffic regulations that would require a truck driver to draw the least instead of the most noise out of his machine would be a source of comfort.

Background of Whiskers. Ponca's eightieth birthday celebration has come the last of this month as started a whisker growing fad which is deemed fitting. Whiskers are often thought necessary to give the pioneer spirit a proper background, but we would think collection of the nuisance would make the time before the celebration starts seem painfully long.

Eager For Jobs. The Sioux City Journal reports receiving a letter from a young man who wrote that he would have to have work to provide for his wife and new-born babe or that he would have to steal. Simultaneously came report of the execution of four New York young men who had been convicted of murder as a climax to robbery. The Sioux City Journal aptly advises its young correspondent that the world does not owe him a living, but does owe him an opportunity, adding that a multitude of obligations between him and the world exists. The Journal's interest will doubtless help this young man, but how many like him are in almost desperate straits? Some earnestly want work. Others give scarcity of jobs as an excuse for idleness or crime. At present the demand for farm workers exceeds the supply, though doubtless many would turn to agriculture for employment if they were qualified to do so. When industry and business feel free to function normally again, many idle persons will find places for which they are fitted.

Imagined Diseases. A full-fledged hypochondria imagines possession of every serious disease in the neighborhood. We once knew a fellow who, entirely free from disease so far as a doctor was able to ascertain, refused to be satisfied until he received a prescription. The doctor gave him a bottle of pills containing opium, and results were reported beneficial. Most of us are more or less hypochondriacal. Any little ache or pain is interpreted as foreboding of terrible consequences, and the healthiest anatomy is capable of producing enough bad symptoms to keep one so inclined fearful most of the time.

Fourth Also on Saturday. Now that the inconvenience of Memorial day coming on Saturday is out of the way we may look forward to the Fourth of July's appearance also on Saturday. In an extra day had not been added to February this year, Memorial day and the Fourth would have landed on the leap year arrangement, Christmas this year skips Thursday and arrives Friday.

Nebraska Accidents. A report shows 156 dead and 4,738 injured in Nebraska accidents during a period of twelve weeks. Facts gathered by the Nebraska Press association and state superintendent of public instruction reveal an increasing number of accidents. Of the total number, 1,046 were charged to motor vehicles with 1163 injuries and 55 deaths. So called home accidents are more numerous than one would suspect, with a total of 857 and 224 fatalities. Children increase the number of home accidents by getting hands in washing machine whippers, by falling on hot stoves or into hot water, or by sampling

FRED S. BERRY TALKS TO CLUB

Kiwanians Hear Report On Trip To Washington, D. C. and New York City.

Fred S. Berry, Wayne attorney who recently returned from a trip to Washington, D. C., spoke to Kiwanis club members on "Washington Spotlight" following noonday luncheon at Hotel Stratton Monday.

Guests of the club Monday were R. P. Williams and A. J. Hyatt, only remaining Civil war veterans in Wayne county. Clyde Oman and C. Lynn Tuttle of Clarkston, Wash., were guests of Carl Wright. Mrs. Tuttle was a guest of the club. L. F. Good was a guest of Supt. C. F. Dienst. Following luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle gave a short skit in song, "Home, Sweet Home." Mr. Berry, in his talk on Washington, stated that it was very much like an overgrown small town. The last three years have added 165,000 more federal employees, most of them in the city. The people of the city are very aristocratic and refuse to have anything to do with outsiders; with the addition of so many more federal employees, apartments and rooms are almost impossible to secure.

The speaker thinks Washington, D. C., is a difficult city in which to get around and the only thing there that is cheap is the taxi service. On a trip to New York City he discovered a world of difference in the attitude of the people—residents of the large city being very obliging. In New York he and his son, Frederick, went to many places of interest, among them cafes patronized by society and the cheaper places frequented by unemployed authors and artists. Mr. Berry spoke to a number of these young people and found it a revelation to get their ideas on social life. In Washington, D. C., the Wayne man discovered that a man's official standing is of no help—family is the thing.

Mr. Berry discussed the New Deal with many attorneys in the east for the bar association meetings and failed to find any entirely against it and none entirely in accord with it. The southern men seem very much opposed to it. He sensed that if Roosevelt is re-elected he will find that congress is not in sympathy with the New Deal policies, and will find that his situation is much the same as Hoover's in the last two years of his administration.

In Washington Mr. Berry discovered that there were two distinct groups—the Tugwell group, anxious to change the constitution, and the group which believes that the people are the only ones who can change the constitutional government. The Wayne man was proud of the status of Nebraska—the only commonwealth without a debt. One man said that his state was out of debt but still on charity.

The general feeling in the east is that conditions are better. The present hope is that business will pick things up and disperse with the debt. Business opposes the tax bill, believing it will bring on another depression. The Frazier-Lemke bill is scheduled to pass. Business feels that if the government will leave things alone it will have a natural comeback.

Mr. Berry spoke of the G. A. R. group, which is fast diminishing and stated that anything the Kiwanis clubs could do for its members could be small in comparison to what the Civil war veterans had done for the country. These veterans really know the meaning of patriotism—later generations do not because it is too much like inheriting wealth, and not appreciated as when one must fight for it. In the eastern states communism and socialism cannot stand up under argument although there are many of the intelligentsia favoring them. "History is repeating itself," said Mr. Berry. "Humanity has risen, stumbled and fallen, only to rise again. I have faith in the common people—this is the class that will never witness socialism or communism when its people understand what they are."

Mr. Berry stated that as the G. A. R. fought to protect the constitution, so will the common people fight to keep it. "It is up to the middle class to save what the G. A. R. saved for them."

Immediately following luncheon Monday Wm. Beckenhauer led singing with Mrs. Tuttle accompanying. At a short business session a golf tournament with Kiwanis club members playing opposite the Young Business Men's club was discussed.

Mr. Ernest Hogelen, Laurel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hogelen, and Miss Helen Mae Grier, daughter of James B. Grier of Wayne, will be married June 6 by Rev. W. J. Dienst at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grier in Wayne.

LATE RAINS ARE OVERCOMING THE APRIL SHORTAGE

MOISTURE in May and thus far in June is making up for scarcity in April when only .61 of an inch fell here. May followed with 4.12 inches, and the first day of June contributed .85 of an inch. April was a wet month last year, the local gauge showing a total of 9.91 inches for the month. May brought 2.47 inches and June 2.57 inches. Shortage of rain in April this year caused small grain and hay and pasture lands to suffer, but moisture since then has worked a great change for the better. Corn has been wonderfully stimulated by late rains, and the work of cultivating is now in progress.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES HELD

Spirit Of Service Should Inspire Americans Anew Dr. Dienst States.

"To reconsecrate ourselves to the tasks of our days so that we too may carry on to the fulfillment of the hope of America" is the spirit of Memorial day, stated Dr. C. F. Dienst, member of Irwin Sears post No. 43 of the American Legion at Memorial day services Saturday morning at the city auditorium.

Wayne Civil war veterans, A. J. Hyatt and R. P. Williams, had places of honor on the platform which was decorated with flags and flowers. The band, directed by Prof. F. C. Reed, was seated on the platform. The color guard, including A. L. Swan and J. J. Steele of the army and J. T. Bressler, jr., and Wm. Finn of the navy, carried the post's American flag and Legion flag. The Wayne G. A. R. post flag was also on display.

Dr. Dienst, member of Wayne post, gave the address as follows: "Memorial day comes to us out of the heroic living and noble sacrifices of Civil war days. Its precious elements belong to the fields of honor wherever Americans have struggled for freedom and the more abundant life. We think today of Valley Forge. We listen again to the voice of Lincoln at Gettysburg. We join once more in the 'Battle Hymn of the Republic.' The war is over. We follow the boys in blue and the boys in gray back to civilian life and watch them build homes and communities throughout the land. Women of the Southland scatter flowers over the graves of their heroic dead. And Memorial day is set apart for annual observance by order of the commander of the Grand Army of the Republic."

"Each passing year brings to our hearts a deeper realization of its meaning to our citizenship in the (Continued on page two)

Will Organize Wildlife Clubs

Prof. C. R. Chinn To Name Heads For Districts Seven And Eight.

Prof. C. R. Chinn, head of the biology department of the Wayne State Teachers College, was named as organizer for districts 7 and 8 of the Wildlife Federation in Nebraska, at a meeting held in March. The counties in which Prof. Chinn will name chairmen for organization are: Boyd, Holt, Wheeler, Greeley, Antelope, Boone, Pierce, Madison, Knox, Cedar, Wayne, Dixon, Dakota, Thurston, Cuming and Butte. Prof. W. R. Hickman will be chairman in Wayne county.

The purpose of the organization is to protect and advance the interest of the sportsmen and outdoor enthusiasts as they are affected by legislation, state and national, and by governmental activities of various types.

"Ding" Darling, famous cartoonist and lover of wild life, perfected the plans by which the Wildlife Federation will be conducted. After counties are organized, councils of the district will elect directors, to represent the different groups of the counties on the state board of directors. The board of directors, numbering 15, will select 6 additional officers and the whole board will then elect permanent officers.

Many clubs and organizations throughout the nation have significant interest in supporting the Wildlife Federation.

Memorial Day Services Held

(Continued from page one) republic and clearer vision of the mission of America to the world. Memorial day is the finest spiritual heritage of our civilization.

"On this occasion we are highly honored to have with us two veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic. Comrade Williams rode with his father in the same troop over the frontier guarding the builders of the Union Pacific railroad. Comrade Jackson Hyatt shared in many campaigns and was with General Sherman on his march to the sea. Each carried on for the cause of the Union until victory at Appomattox, and then each turned again to home and the pursuits of peace.

"The issues of the Civil war are clear to us now. But in the trying days of the sixties men found it hard to understand 'the house divided against itself.' Neither compromise nor evasion could heal the evils that had fastened themselves upon the nation.

"Only the will to sacrifice could realize the new birth of freedom for America and keep her true to the age-old struggle for human rights. It is to the everlasting glory of our forefathers that they placed loyalty to convictions above fortune; yes, above life itself. Such has ever been the price of freedom. The scarlet thread of sacrifice is woven into the fabric of our lives and our civilization.

"No man who has answered his country's call can ever forget the thrill of self-abandonment that is the high reward of service to God and country. It is the most crowded moment of life. Instantly imagination gathers up the danger of campaigns of suffering and death. And then he realizes to the fullest, his obligation of loyalty to comrades and of devotion to common welfare. Life is no longer his own; he has given himself for others.

After marching through suffering and misery of battlefields of the World War, I hold no brief for militarism in any form. But our history indicates that war is more than mere pageantry or clash of arms. War has proved to be the alternative to slavery of the human spirit.

"In the days of the struggle for independence, we hear the cry of Patrick Henry, 'Give me liberty or give me death.' In his second inaugural address, President Lincoln declared of the Civil war, 'All dreaded it—all sought to avert it,—but one of them would make war rather than let the nation survive and the other would accept war rather than let it perish. And the war came.' Before the close of the century of the Civil war, the sons of the men who wore the blue and the sons of the men who wore the gray fought side by side to free the new world from the tyranny of the old. On April 6, 1917, President Wilson expressed the obligation of our people to the world in these words: 'The time has come for America to spend her blood and her treasure for the principles that gave her life. God helping her, she can do no other. Thus, America has ever answered the call for help in the struggle of men against autocracy.

"We dared to hope that the World War was a supreme effort to 'make the world safe for democracy'—a war to end war. We have come to recognize that the purpose of Memorial day is to move forward toward universal peace. The program of the American Legion and other patriotic organizations includes three fundamental phases: 1, Adequate national defense; 2, strict enforcement of neutrality in international affairs; 3, elimination of war profits. This is the program of those who bear the scars of battle and suffer from the consequences of war. This program is worthy of the cooperation of every American citizen.

"Our hearts are one in longing for peace and working for peace. For we know from the past that peace is not won with arms, nor guaranteed in treaties, nor secured through sanctions. Peace is of the spirit of Memorial day. It is the faith and good will of our innermost souls in the ultimate realization of the Kingdom of God upon the earth.

"Even though our little programs of today may fail, the eternal purpose of good will among men must triumph. It is hard for us to understand the place of battlefields in the progress of civilization, but such has been the pathway of our race. And so we carry on, confident of that nobler future when 'men shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; and nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.'

"Comrades of the Grand Army, we are grateful for the inspiration of your presence. We freely acknowledge our debt of gratitude to you for the Union that you saved for us in the sixties. We are glad that one from your ranks, Don Freeman, claimed the first home-stead in Nebraska and that you came to Wayne county when the war was over to help build this community and this commonwealth, in the heart of the country you loved and served so well. We know now that the beautiful story of Will and Abbie Deane is true.

"And so we salute you as soldiers and treasure our comradeship with you as pioneers of our state. We've caught the spirit of sacrifice and service of Memorial day. We share your love of freedom. We cling to the faith that right makes might.

No Evidence Of Inconsistency

THE New Deal's suggestion that business and industry turned to the newly enthroned national leadership for security three years ago, but are unfriendly and critical now, shows no breach of consistency. Roosevelt had been elected, and cooperation between the executive and financial and industrial leaders was necessary to pull the country out of the post-war doldrums. Everybody cooperated in the hope that action based on the generally sound democratic platform would prove effective.

But when the platform and pre-election pledges were coolly cast aside and the advice of wild theorists was substituted for that of experienced statesmen, grave doubts displaced ardent hopes. To try to discredit the motives of business leaders or others who disagree with the New Deal's collectivist policies, is side-stepping the issue.

Nation's Business quotes this from the head of a national industry:

"Business leaders are just as much in favor of the avowed objectives of the New Deal as is the average citizen. Business men are more anxious than anyone else to see the unemployed with good jobs again—to see the farmers with restored purchasing power, with children in school and old people properly cared for, with everyone, including business men, with shorter hours, thus having more leisure to enjoy the more abundant life. But the only way we know how actually to make these ideals come true is by the same slow, practical process by which our pioneer forefathers turned the forest and prairies into farms; by which Thomas Edison turned a laboratory experiment into a great industry; by which Henry Ford changed a horse and buggy into a horseless carriage."

Nation's Business offers this concluding comment:

"For the last six years, business has been scolded for its lack of leadership. The expectation of wonder-working is a compliment to the power of commerce in American affairs. What it ignores is the necessity for cooperation in a world of conflicting interests and opinions. Those who employ business men to cooperate, under threat of destruction of reputation, strait-jacket regulation and political reprisals, and who see no truth save under their own label—they are the real reactionaries. They would take us back to the government-ridden days when to 'discuss publicly controversial questions' was something of an adventure. They endanger the American tradition."

Freedom Of Press

SO long as the United States can be kept free from a dictator, it will maintain its free press. A free press and a dictatorship do not go along together. As soon as the latter is established, mediums of expression are taken in charge and made subject to the will of the controlling power. Attempts have been made the last few years to curtail the freedom of the newspaper—a step in the direction of censorship. This would mean regulating published matter to suit the ruling authorities. It would mean surrender of the people's liberties. Publishers are on the alert to avoid abridged freedom—not to protect the comparatively few conscienceless newspapers, but to safeguard the great majority whose enterprise is used in faithful efforts to keep the public informed and free from dangers.

Touching the importance of the free press, the Saturday Evening Post says: "Whatever the faults of the newspapers, there would be no liberty or freedom without them; government would become merely another name for tyranny. Therefore, the newspaper publishers are wise in calling attention, as they recently have, to their efforts to maintain independence."

"Newspaper editors and publishers are not, of course, entirely unselfish and altruistic in fighting encroachments upon them. They wish, naturally, to protect their own jobs and their own property. But just the same they are fighting the people's battles, since every successful assault upon the press means an equal breach in the liberties and rights of the people."

For Liberal Platform

SENATOR W. Warren Barbour of New Jersey, would evidently take a safely progressive course in framing a platform for the republican national convention. Speaking recently he gave expression to this among other things:

"I trust it will be a liberal document in every sense of the word. A truly liberal movement is one which liberates, which guarantees or extends the freedom of the individual. It is the antithesis of the new deal, which considers itself liberal but which actually curbs the freedom of the individual and tends to bring all human activities within control of the federal government."

Former Congressman Edgar Howard pleads feelingly in his Columbus Telegram for harmony within democratic ranks in order to keep Bob Simmons from going to the United States senate. Reference is doubtless made to the Burke-Carpenter rift which involves the prospective independent candidacy of Senator Geo. W. Norris who is to be pushed into the political area by petition. If Carpenter sticks, as he must in answer to the popular will, the rift will continue, and despite Editor Howard's cry for party harmony, Simmons will ride to victory, to the good fortune of Nebraska. Simmons would lend strength to Burke in taking an independent course and in routing the sickening rubber-stamp business in the senate.

How much the victory of Senator Lester J. Dickinson of Iowa for the republican nomination to succeed himself reflects popular feeling with reference to the prevailing political regime is not fully determined, although his lead of nearly two to one over Smith W. Brookhart, New Deal ally, encourages the belief that Washington's left-wingers are on the way out. Senator Dickinson's victory is all the more significant because he has been a savage and uncompromising New Deal critic from the start.

Reading Geo. N. Peek's series of articles in the Saturday Evening Post leads one to sympathize with Prof. Wirt whose attempt to forecast administration events three years ago was pooh poohed at the time as the product of wild imagination. Subsequent performance would appear to have out-Wirted Wirt's fearful predictions.

Public relief is misapplied when the recipient wastes on himself what he receives and lets his family whistle along in want. There should be some way to see that unfortunate wives and children get the benefits, letting the household lords do the whistling.

The tree-belt hubblebuboo has evaporated down to a proposition to dish out trees to settlers who want to plant them. The individual tree-planting spirit will keep up forestation without the costly and doubtful Washington experiment.

Increasing crop production according to individual judgment and shipping any surplus to the starving Chinese would seem the way to bring the "more abundant life," rather than by forcing a policy of scarcity.

"Astonished."

(Omaha World-Herald)

With great success Secretary Morgenthau has negotiated the largest peacetime government loan in American history, to the tune of $2,050,754,400. Of this, one billion represents new and additional indebtedness, the remainder going to meet maturing debt. The national debt mounts with this to $32,643,000,000.

With the cash on hand, there will be more than four billions of dollars available for spending in the next three and one-half months, whereupon new borrowing will become necessary. The relief and deficiency bill, which passed the senate this week by a vote of 62 to 14, appropriates nearly two and one-half billions, and is described as "one of the biggest supply measures in peacetime history."

Said Senator Byrd of Virginia the other day:

"I am astonished to discover that the administration proposes to spend 600 million dollars more for ordinary expenses and for relief in the fiscal year beginning July 1 next than for the present fiscal year. With improving conditions, I and nearly all other citizens expected a reduction in the colossal spending program."

Great expectations—but disappointed. The "biggest" loans pile on top of the "biggest" expenditures.

This, notwithstanding the improving conditions on which Senator Byrd had placed a mistaken reliance. In the last two years industrial production has increased 26 per cent, construction contracts 24 per cent, factory employment 14 per cent, factory payrolls 33 per cent and national bank deposits 41 per cent. Yet for the first nine months of the current fiscal year, spending for FERA, CWA, CCC and WPA were 40 per cent greater than for the same period two years ago. And the upward spiraling continues unchecked.

Higher taxes, to be paid directly or indirectly by all the people, is the consequence. And if the public credit is to be preserved, taxes must mount higher and still higher.

The man on the street would think that with improving conditions expenditures for relief would diminish. He would think that with the public debt so menacing and taxes so burdensome, expenditures for the ordinary operations of government would be severely curtailed. When they are sharply increased instead, he is "astonished," along with Senator Byrd. He wonders why the course that would reasonably be pursued in any well managed private enterprise is not followed. And we suspect that a good many of him are becoming resentful, because alarmed, that it is not.

Future of Farming.

The Nebraska Farmer quotes Dr. O. E. Baker of the U. S. Bureau of Agriculture on the future of farming and closes with this observation:

"Although farming will not be a rose-strewn path to riches and ease in the future, Dr. Baker prophesies that it may offer a more abundant life than the cities afford and give adequate rewards other than material. Among these rewards Dr. Baker lists greater security, independence, better health, contentment, and a more wholesome environment for rearing families of useful citizens. According to Dr. Baker, we must look upon rural living with a different philosophy, which is that the land is the foundation of the family and the family is the foundation of the state."

VICE PRESIDENCY.

The New York Herald Tribune urges the republican national convention to place patriotism above partisanship by naming a democrat for the vice presidency. The Herald Tribune has been a republican newspaper since the organization of the party. Mark Sullivan, Washington newspaper correspondent and severe New Deal critic, has advised the same thing. There is no difference in principles between republicans and Jeffersonian democrats. All believe in sound money, in constitutional safeguards, in progress without ruin, and it is pointed out that by taking the course suggested both democrats and republicans would have due representation while voting their convictions. Convention delegates will doubtless give serious thought to the suggestion, and follow the course that seems wisest. It is believed anti-New Deal victory is more important in the present crisis than party victory.

ZIONCHECK.

Marion A. Zioncheck, wild-eyed congressman from the state of Washington, has distinguished himself as the craziest man in the national capitol, managing to excite a good deal of ill-flavored attention by engaging in drunken hilarity and disregarding most of the rules of orderly society. He thinks house membership gives him immunity from restraint. He has been arrested for disturbing the peace and for motoring without heeding traffic regulations. His threatening antics finally led to an examination into his mental condition. He could be crazy unobserved and undisturbed if he could keep from being so violently annoying. His lack of power to be peacefully insane is likely to land him in an asylum where he can watch the world go by. As he is manifestly of no benefit to the Washington district which he is supposed to represent, fellow-congressmen ought to figure out some way to send him back to the land of his constituency. His nomination that he be kept there. He is no credit to his constituents, and only a nuisance in congress.

Jury in county court Tuesday brought in a judgment for Wightman in the suit filed by Walter Blatchford of Newcastle, against Don Wightman. The defendant bought seed corn from Blatchford and said the first crib produced corn of the high quality claimed. Mr. Wightman bought a second crib of corn which he said Blatchford guaranteed to be equally as good. Mr. Wightman gave him a check for $147.69 for this. When the corn was tested defendant testified it was not of the quality guaranteed. Payment on the check was thus stopped. Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to neighbors and other friends for their many kindnesses and floral tributes at the time of our bereavement. Family of Mrs. C. J. Huff.

Your roof should not only keep you dry—but cool in summer and warm in winter. Nearly half of the heat you lose to the outside during winter goes off through the roof. The roof is as important as doors and windows in conserving the right temperature.

A new shingle roof, put on over the old, not only keeps your roof water tight, but provides fine insulation. Even if your roof does not leak right now, it's wise economy to build up its thickness as a protection against winter.

If you ask our prices for a new shingle roof you'll not be obligated—Come in.

GOVERNOR GIVES TALK THURSDAY

Many Receive Degrees And Diplomas At Graduation Of College Students.

Governor Roy L. Cochran was here from Lincoln Thursday morning to deliver the commencement address for graduates from the Wayne State Teachers College. Among the candidates for degrees were 65 receiving the bachelor of arts in education, 8 for bachelor of science in education, and one for bachelor of fine arts in education; 58 students completed work for their two-year course diplomas. Eleven students will complete work for bachelor of arts degree in education in July and 18 in August; three will receive bachelor of science degrees in July and one will receive bachelor of fine arts degree in education in July. Eighteen students will complete work for two-year course diplomas in July and nine in August.

Commencement Thursday at the college auditorium was very impressive. Faculty members of the college and training school in full regalia followed the standard program to the stage. The procession was led by Dr. J. T. Anderson. The candidates for degrees wore black robes and those for the two-year course, blue. Stage decorations were baskets of peonies, iris and spirea. The procession from "Sigurd Jorsalfar" was played by the college symphony orchestra, under direction of Prof. J. R. Keith. Assembly singing of the school song was followed by the overture, "Ariane," by the symphony band. Dr. H. D. Griffin gave the invocation. Stanley Davis played a clarinet solo.

Dr. J. T. Anderson introduced speaker of the morning, Governor Cochran opened his address by stating that the Wayne college was a great institution and had been made so by the untiring efforts of "that grand old man, Dr. Conn," who fought and worked for its growth over a period of a quarter century.

The speaker stated that the location of Wayne is ideal for a college, situated as it is in a rich agricultural community and relatively free from drought. "The state showed great wisdom in selecting Wayne for a school site when higher education became a necessity as the commonwealth developed."

Governor Cochran declared in addressing young graduates: "Education is a preparation for life—what sort of a life it will be is up to you!" He touched on the social and economic situation today and stated that the past few years had made a great change in the feeling of security. Many have agitated a change in the country's government, but those who have faith in the American form of carrying on the affairs of the country will always advocate the old traditional forms which have carried the nation through a series of difficult times.

Graduates 26 Years Ago.
The governor told that at the time of his graduation from the University of Nebraska 26 years ago, conditions were not so much different than they are now. He had received an engineer's degree but was unable to get work for some time. His first job was with the Santa Fe railway at salary of $35 per month. When the company learned that he had a degree he was told that his salary would be raised to $40 per month. "I found that the tangible value of my degree at that time was worth just exactly $5 per month," he said.

The speaker stated that each one seems to represent the ultimate in achievement, yet it is so soon replaced by other and better things that the world is always off again on a new and splendid age. He urged graduates to make the most of all the possibilities of each golden era, that life is just beginning after commencement and that the world is skeptical until each individual proves himself.

Urges Interest In Government.
"Never lose interest in government," said Governor Cochran earnestly, "and always be vigilantly concerned with candidates for office. Government is more a concern of individuals than it used to be before the cataclysm of the depression brought it foremost in the minds of Americans. We have learned that the god of business and finance is not all-wise, and we need not have political prejudice to know that government is more important now than it was before the collapse in 1929. We have been forced to take cognizance in the defeat of industry and finance. The theme reverts to government and the individual—what the government may do for him, and what he may do for the government. The radio is the biggest agency in the bringing of government within the consciousness of all. Those who are unable to discern the good from the bad in government must be substituted for individuals with higher education who have been trained to think along the right lines. We must hold the nation fast to its ideals and faithful to American principles."

Only State Without Deficit.
The governor stated that Nebraska is the only state in the union forced to rely on agriculture alone, yet it is also the only state without a deficit. Nebraska has built thousands of miles of roads, completed her beautiful state capitol building, supports four normal schools and still has a surplus of over $12,000,000 in the permanent treasury. "Nebraska's property tax may be old-fashioned but people of the state believe in a policy of rigid economy and will always refuse other taxation methods. Our policy of economy is the inheritance of pioneers who settled the state. It has often been said that 'the people get the kind of government they deserve,' and there is no better aid than an active interest in government."

As Field For Life Work.
The speaker stated that he would like to enlist graduates in government as a possible field for their life work. He spoke of rural electricity as a coming field for men. "I regret that so little attention is given to government as a career. If more attention were paid to this in institutions of higher learning, it would bring about a better government, and eventually do away with the 'political spoils' system. It would give individuals a chance to advance without the need of 'political pull.' There could be no better government aid for the future than to substitute the merit system for the spoils system in obtaining political jobs. Government should be made a matter of personal concern all through school and all through life. Keep it clean and sane and free from corruption!"

The governor urged young people to think of the depression as merely a repetition of history. "The doors of opportunity are still open at the end of the pathway, though the path may have to be changed. Accept it and show the next group that you have the fortitude to make the best of your opportunities. Education ends only with life itself—some of our best educated men have never gone far in school. College trains the mind in an orderly way of thinking. It teaches us to gain a better insight in the use of good books, though college loans may soon be forgotten. One is not cased from hard work by college training—rather the opposite. The greater the responsibility, the greater the labor!"

Present Degrees and Diplomas.
At the close of the governor's speech, Dean H. H. Hahn presented the classes to Dr. Anderson for graduation. The president of the college presented degrees and diplomas to candidates as they filed to the stage. The college choir sang "Now the Day is Over," and Rev. L. W. Gramly pronounced benediction.

Luncheon For Governor.
Business men of Wayne honored Governor Cochran at noon luncheon Thursday when about 60 were present to meet the executive. Following luncheon, Dr. Walter Benhack introduced Governor Cochran who responded with a brief talk.

The governor whimsically referred to a remark made in his hearing by George McManus, cartoonist, who was once asked to speak twice in the same day. The artist said to a friend: "I really don't know what to say—I don't want to say the same things I said in my speech earlier in the day." The friend tactlessly replied: "Oh, that's all right. Anyone who heard you this noon won't be there this evening."

The governor spoke of Wayne's fine school and the atmosphere of the town which seemed to make it just the right spot for such an institution. "Since seeing the Wayne college campus, and others in locating a college, a hill should be built, if there isn't one already there."

Speaking of the financial situation in the state, the honor guest told of a governors' conference which he attended some time ago. Executives from other states were boasting of what their bonds were selling for, and the amounts coming from income and sales taxes. "I was proud and happy to reply, when my turn came," Governor Cochran, "in Nebraska our position is not one of selling bonds, but of buying them. We have in our treasury the sum of $2,000,000 for soldiers' relief, and $12,000,000 for state schools. We have recently completed a state capitol building at a cost of $7,000,000. We have 18 institutions under jurisdiction of the state board of control. We have no indebtedness, nor have we levied extra taxes."

The governor explained that while rural property tax in Nebraska was $1.18 per $100, that of Kansas was $1.47 plus luxury tax, and that of Iowa $2.40 per $100, with both sales and income tax.

Wayne Lutheran Academy

Local People Give History Of Early School Abandoned Many Years Ago.

To youth the sands of the hour-glass trickle with maddening slowness, yet 50 years are but a brief span in the scheme of things. Wayne's Lutheran academy, once a flourishing institution to which the hopes of students and faculty alike were pinned, has long since crumbled into the past—only a few remember its existence and some of these have scarcely thought of it for many years. There is a saga of early day struggle in the unfolding of the story of the old academy, begun first at Homer, Neb., in the year 1886 and moved to Wayne in 1887. Far-sighted educators, realizing 50 years ago the need of higher learning, made a struggling beginning at the little town of Homer, community of good Lutheran people. Wayne offered more to the school and it was moved here, at that time Homer had no railway outlet and the leaders of the academy movement saw the need of a location connected with the outside, even though Homer offered a start of 50 students and Wayne only 30. Rev. Baird proposed starting of the academy at Homer in 1886. The late Rev. W. C. McCool, brother-in-law of Mrs. E. W. Huse of Wayne, who was on a visit from Pennsylvania to the middle west, attended the synodical meeting at which Rev. Baird asked that a school be started. Rev. McCool became interested in the school and came to Wayne as one of the first teachers. The school was held upstairs in what is now the State National Bank building, in the rooms now occupied by the French Beauty parlor. Robins and Harrington had a general store on the first floor. Even at that time a dental office occupied the upstairs front rooms of the building and students were often interrupted at their work by sounds of distress from the office of the dental surgeon—in those days dentists were not so well treated in painless extractions. The Lutheran Academy taught a mixture of high school and college subjects. A third grade teaching certificate could be secured at that time after a student had completed eighth grade work. By attending the academy for a term they were able to secure a second grade certificate; by completing the course they earned first grade teaching certificates. Mrs. C. D. Gearhart of Wayne, recalls that some high school subjects were even taught in the country schools and recalls studying algebra, English composition and civil government in old district 10, southeast of Wayne. Mrs. Gearhart is the former Miss Ellen Cunningham and was a student at the academy in the second year of its existence. Mrs. McCool, sister of Mrs. Huse, taught music and Latin in her home and all other subjects were taught at the academy. Dr. H. G. Leisenring taught physiology classes; Rev. Mr. Mueller, pastor of the German Lutheran church in Wayne, taught Greek and German; Rev. Melick, English Lutheran pastor, was instructor of rhetoric, an important subject in the early days. Rev. McCool, in charge of the institution, taught arithmetic, algebra and all of the subjects which were distasteful to the rest of the faculty members. Mrs. Huse recalls an incident which was humorous to all except Rev. Mueller: The latter taught a Greek class at the academy in the early hours of the morning. The professor came into his classroom on dark winter mornings, shivering with the cold, to be greeted by the leering skeleton which Dr. Leisenring used for his physiology classes. After a number of cheerless mornings Mr. Mueller complained of the unpleasant greeting, and thereafter the skeleton no longer gleamed in the early morning light—he wore a decent robe. Dr. Leisenring practiced medicine in Wayne and taught on the side. A. P. Childs had his printing office over the First National bank at that time and his daughter, Miss Nettie Childs, attended the academy. When Miss Childs had extra work or essays to write for rhetoric class, she would dash over to her father's office for added quiet, complete her work and return to the academy handing in her work for Rev. Melick to correct. The academy term was of nine-months' duration and each student paid $10 a semester tuition, this amounting to about $300 out of which must come Rev. McCool's salary and all other expenses. With the exception of Rev. McCool, none of the teachers received pay. Many of the students boarded with Mrs. Flohr who had a dining room in the second story of the Ley store building. The Phillips 66 station is now on the site of the Ley building. The McCools lived where the M. L. Ringler family now resides and Miss May Fisher (Mrs. Huse) stayed at their home while attending school. The town gave the academy land south of the present site of the Wayne cemetery for a building and excavation was completed—the building never progressed any farther. The story is told that Silas Melick, brother of the minister, and father of Mrs. Ed. Miller of Wayne, was driving across the prairie one evening and had an unhappy experience when he reached the excavation. There were no roads or fences in the country at that time and one drove at will over the land. There had been a light snow and Mr. Melick failed to see the hole and drove head-on into it. The first commencement for the academy students was held in 1888 in the English Lutheran church. Mrs. Henry Ley had a collection of stuffed birds which was used to decorate the church for the occasion. Mrs. Huse recalls the lengthy exercises even to the names of some of the orations. There were only two graduates in the first class. Webster Fisher (now Dr. E. W. Fisher of Long Beach, Calif., and brother of Mrs. Huse) and Jess Leamer. Mr. Fisher gave the oration, "Rome Was Not Built In A Day," and Mr. Leamer,

"Beyond the Alps Lies Italy." Miss Caroline Stringer gave the recitation, "Curfew Must Not Ring Tonight." Miss May Fisher read an essay, "For What Am I Studying?" Each student in the academy had some part in the commencement program and assembly singing was one of the big features. There was no speaker. The school motto, which hung above the platform, at the exercises was "Mihicuri futuri," meaning "My care is for the future."

In the fall of 1888 Rev. McCool received a call to a church in Ponca and left the school here to take charge. Another manager came and the school was conducted for about a year after that time, when it gradually died out. The Pile offer for a normal school came about this time and was accepted by Wayne. A Lutheran academy had been started at Atchison, Kans., at about the time the school was started at Homer. When the school here was discontinued, the Atchison school was moved to Fremont, considered sufficiently close to serve both territories. The school in Kansas was also called Midland.

Jess Leamer, one of the first two to graduate from the Lutheran academy here, became a minister and now lives in Iowa. Webster Fisher went to Rush Medical College and was graduated from there at the age of 21.

Mrs. Gearhart recalls the following as students at the academy at the time she attended: May Fisher, Webster Fisher, Jess and John Leamer, Will Armour, Maude and Ruth Dutton, the last five of near Dakota City, Will and John Young of Lyons or Oakland, Nettie Childs, Nora Crawford, Nellie Cleaver, Caroline Stringer, Carrie Pelren, Ed. Miller, Monte Spahr and George Lundberg. Carrie Leona Hunter who was a student in the academy, later went to the Philippines to teach and is now married and living in California. Among others who were in the early school were: Gop. Philico, John Swangle, Mr. House, Jake Miller, Flora and Adelia Flohr, Otis Stringer, Lottie Pelren, Mabel Gamble and Harvey Mason.

Mrs. Gearhart attended the academy for six months in the second year of its existence and took mostly high school work. She taught after that and later attended the Midland school at Fremont. It was there that she first met Prof. Pile who started the Wayne college. Mrs. Gearhart is a sister of Mrs. W. H. and Mrs. Chas. Gildersleeve of Wayne.

Mrs. Ed. Miller recalls the days in Waverly, Neb., when Mrs. Huse was getting ready to attend the old Lutheran academy. The finishing of pretty clothes for school days caused quite a lot of excitement in the little town of Waverly where Mrs. Huse then lived. Rev. Melick, uncle of Mrs. Miller, who taught in the old school went to a pastorate in Omaha several years after leaving Wayne. He was there about eight years and then went to Rising City. Later he returned to Omaha where he spent the remaining years of his life.

Charles Richard, six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kay, fell when jumping from a fence Saturday evening and broke his left arm in the elbow. The member is healing nicely.

CONGRESS

Many letters are being received by members of congress, urging the passage of the anti-lynching bill. About 32 of these anti-lynching bills have been pending before a committee in the house for nearly two years, but southern representatives are blocking the passage of such bills. However, a new bill was introduced this year, and there is unusual pressure being brought to bear to get this up for a vote. So important has it become that a caucus of majority members was held last night to discuss this bill. Southern representatives want the bill defeated. Whether or not it will come up for action during this session is problematical. Many letters condemn the unchristian practice of lynching in the United States. Twenty-five of these lynchings occurred during the past year; and about 102 lynchings were narrowly averted.

He tells friends here that he re-

Those who voted for the bill get it out as their belief that unless ships are subsidized there will never be an American merchant marine.

About 23 million dollars which would go to the Philippine people as a result of the evaluation of the American dollar was a question debated in the senate the other day, and the question will soon come before the Insular Affairs Committee of the house.

The Philippine representatives want these 23 million dollars pretty badly, but the senate defeated an attempt to turn that money over to them. Indications are that the house committee will follow suit.

The question has to do with the gold content of the dollar. The Filipinos want the difference. Uncle Sam figures that if American citizens didn't get it, and if the government made a profit on it, the government is entitled to a profit in this country.

Agricultural Notes

(By Walter L. Moller)

Hatching of the overwintered grasshopper eggs has begun and the young hoppers are appearing along roadsides, pasture edges, ditches and cut banks, sod fence rows, and packed field edges. Most of the hatching has occurred and the young hoppers in some cases have started moving. Poisoning of the hoppers should be done while they are still in the hatching grounds or just starting to move out.

County Agent Walter Moller can supply poisoned bait to anyone who wishes it. This bait should be scattered before hoppers begin to scatter over the fields.

Some damage of corn by cutworms has been reported within the county. This pest has not done extensive damage, however. Poison bran bait is almost 100 per cent effective in controlling this cutworm if it is used correctly and at the right time.

Precooking below boiling temperature is suggested by home-canning experts of the United States Department of Agriculture as a simple new method of keeping fresh color, flavor, and texture in canned green vegetables.

Recent investigations have shown that if the green vegetable is precooked at low temperatures, between 160 degrees to 180 degrees F., the color seems to "set" so that when the vegetable is put in the can and exposed to the high heat of processing it will not fade so much.

The new method consists in first giving green vegetables a short cooking in a saucepan with water, keeping the temperature at or below simmering point. The hot vegetables are then put immediately into hot sterilized containers and processed under steam pressure.

Eastern Nebraska farmers have the opportunity of attending some old-time dairy cattle exhibitions again this year. They are the third annual Jersey "Parish" shows scheduled to be held at Lincoln, June 9; York, June 10; and Beatrice, June 11.

Wayne county farmers and dairymen were extended an invitation to attend the events by Agricultural Agent Moller who is co-operating with the Nebraska Jersey Cattle club in helping make local arrangements for the shows.

Penny Cress and weeds of the mustard family in pastures do some damage because of their tendency to taint milk and cream. Agricultural Agent Moller warned farmers this week. There are a number of annuals and fall annuals of the mustard family all of which have the tendency to cause milk and cream to taste "garlicky." Farmers would do well to mow and burn patches of these weeds before they have produced seed.

Overworking the Farm Boys. Greenleaf (Kan.) Sentinel

The old man gazed out over the south forty and noted that the recent moisture, followed by a few days of warm weather, was giving the weeds a great start. We must get busy on that forty at once, he thought, so I'll tell my four boys. Each one can work ten acres and in that way it won't be much of a chore and we'll have those weeds knocked out in a jiffy.

So the old man went to the house to tell the boys to tie into the job and each one knock the weeds out of ten acres on the south forty.

However, John, the oldest, was still abed, having been out cavorting around the night before, and pleaded a terrible headache. Jim, the second son, informed his dad that he would like nothing better than to attend to his ten acres, but his baseball team was practicing that afternoon, so he would have to let his part go over until tomorrow. The third son had agreed to accompany his best girl and a party of friends on a fishing trip that day and of course he couldn't attend the meeting because by his attendance he might learn something of value.
