Poisoning Pests In This Vicinity

Grasshopper poison is being mixed and distributed here in an effort to get rid of the pests. Agent Walter Mollers states that the charge for the bran is its actual cost only. It is estimated that each hopper poisoned causes two others to die for they feed on the poisoned hoppers.

Appraisal Value Cut By Bindweed

Further evidence that bindweed infestation is becoming more and more serious in Nebraska was noted this week in the report that financial concerns now are "holding out" from $50 to $500 per acre on a quarter section of land where the weed is prevalent. Widespread infestation reduces the loan and appraisal value.

Bran Not Poison To Farm Stock

With the grasshopper "war" in its height and farmers using poison bran mash as ammunition against the pests, it was pointed out by Agent Walter L. Moller that there is no important danger of pasturing live stock on such areas where the bait has been spread properly. Experimental workers and Prof. M. H. Swank of the University of Nebraska college of agriculture were quoted as authorities for the statement.

In past years numerous rumors floated around indicating that bait properly spread was dangerous to poultry and domestic animals. Investigation showed that where some poisoning actually did occur, it was found with poultry fed on unsprayed masses of the bait or on lumps or chunks of it and not on bait properly spread.

At the Oklahoma station a bait made up of the regular formula was scattered evenly in pens at the rate of 50 to 100 pounds to the acre—two and one-half times the regular maximum rate of spreading in the field. Chickens having no feed for 24 hours were placed in the pens. No fatal cases of poisoning arose. The test was repeated with bait containing four times the regular amount of white arsenic. Still there were no fatal poisonings.

"The accuracy of the experiment was tested further. Grasshoppers placed in cages were poisoned with both white arsenic and sodium arsenite. These poisoned dead hoppers were fed to chickens of various breeds from small chicks up to fully grown fowls. Some were fed on a diet of poisoned grasshoppers and water alone for 10 days. Others were fed on varying rations for different periods. In no instance did a fatal case of poisoning occur. These experiments, says Professor Swenk, fully justify the assertion that there is no danger of any kind to poultry from poisoned bran bait that has been spread properly or from dead grasshoppers that have been killed by eating the bait.

A Modern Parable

Lincoln Journal: The vice of paternalism lies in the fact that it teaches the people generally to rely upon the central government for everything they need or desire. It inculcates the false notion that the government is something set apart from themselves, with the ability to reach up in the air at any time and pull down whatever sum, usually huge, is needed for satisfying the demands of the hour, thus excluding from the vision of people the fact that this money comes out of their own pockets.

Packers Know Good Hogs

Omaha Journal-Stockman: Considerable diversity of opinion always has prevailed in purebred swine circles as to what constitutes a good hog. As a result at various times, fads for inferior types have done serious damage to particular breeds and to the pork production industry in general. The packer knows the kind of hog that he can put to most economical use for he has worked the problem out by exhaustive tests, and in the long run the type which suits the packer is the kind to raise.

"The day of the big type hog is fast passing into the discard," commented a representative of one of the big packing companies recently, "and the quick maturing, high yielding, more compact type is forging ahead."

His general description of this type was a hog with:

- Neat trim joints.
- A short neck.
- Smooth shoulders no wider than the balance of the body.
- A good strong back with a good spring of ribs.
- Deep smooth sides that are free from wrinkles and carry down full in the flanks.
- Well rounded, short shanked hams.
- Such a hog must be well finished to attract packer buyers.
- Nothing new to hog growers is to be found in the foregoing outline, but breeders of purebreds and swine show judges sometimes are inclined to forget some of these points in their enthusiasm for new

No Time To Get Panicky

Omaha Journal-Stockman: Reports of disinterested observers agree fairly well that too much emphasis has been placed on the drouth. In certain areas, severe crop damage has resulted from heat, dry weather, and insect plagues. It is even possible that there are sections where conditions are worse than in 1934.

Generally, however, that is not true, at least not yet. The situation in many districts may have serious possibilities but it is far from hopeless right now.

Nothing is to be gained by painting conditions any worse than they are. Scaring farmers and ranchers who have fed into marketing stock that isn't ready to sell is a poor service, since it tends to pile up excessive supplies and has a depressing influence on prices.

Recent reductions in storage stocks of meats and improvement in the demand for live stock in the face of broadening receipts indicate a healthy market situation. All in all, it's a good time for stockmen to keep their heads and not allow exaggerated reports to make them panicky.

The Real Problem AS long as there are hungry people anywhere food should not be wasted. Speaking of the farm problem, the Omaha Journal-Stockman reemphasizes what has often been said, that it is not over-production, but faulty distribution. Says that newspaper:

"If every man, woman and child in the United States consumed all the food required for proper nourishment, all the acres now under cultivation in this country would not produce an adequate supply, and instead of worrying about surpluses, farmers would be busy trying to figure out ways to bring production up to domestic requirements."

"The foregoing statement by Dr. Mary Swartz Rose, Columbia University nutritionist, contains no new information, but it does center attention on the fact that the real farm problem of America is, after all, not so much agricultural as it is industrial; that it is not so much a matter of production as of distribution."

"In short, whenever all the people of this country are gainfully employed at a sufficient scale of remuneration to enable them to buy all the things they need to eat and wear, there won't be enough to go around. Extend the same reasoning to other nations of the world, where under-nourishment and poor living conditions are even commoner problems than they are in America and you get a new picture of what sort of a destiny agriculture has to realize. The sooner the question is attacked from this angle, the better it is going to be for both consumers and producers."

Three-Cornered Race Promised EDGAR Howard, Columbus editor, makes a powerful plea for either Terry Carpenter or Senator Geo. W. Norris to withdraw from the senatorial race in order to prevent division of radical ranks and thus insure the election of Robert G. Simmons. Carpenter is the regular democratic nominee, and will of course stick. Norris probably believes his personal popularity would prove a winner in the face of all opposition. He may be convinced that he can draw heavily from both democratic and republican groups, and so leave both rivals in the rear. If so, he expects both parties to abandon their candidates and sweep him back into the senate. This extraordinary action would be in accordance with the expressed wish of the president who likes Norris' support of left-wing policies.

But Howard is an astute politician, and probably knows what he is talking about. However, likely his plea will not sidetrack either Carpenter or Norris. Carpenter would turn his back on a great mass of voters within his party if he should withdraw. If Norris were to refuse to run, he would turn down many petitioners who think he ought to stay in the senate to help push the country farther into socialism. So, as Howard reasonably predicts, the result will be the election of Robert G. Simmons whose big caliber and sound public record will inspire increased respect for and confidence in Nebraska's senatorial representation.

Predicting Weather METEOROLOGISTS and weather forecasters have been kept busy the past week issuing and dodging predictions which came back like boomerangs. They sent out the cooling and calming assurance that the drouth would break during the last weekend. Light rains fell in some parts, but the firmness seemed to be restored instead of shut down, and the intensity of the heat continued unabated. Then came an explanation that a great mass of refreshing clouds came up to the hot belt, but lacked the horse power to get through. Then they melted away or went back for recruits. Showers have been reported every day since, but as none reached Wayne county we consider the prognostication a good deal of a failure. As inhabitants mopped perspiration from their hot and weary brows Tuesday night, they read about a two-way onslaught on the mile-high heat wall, one coming from the north and one from the west. Rather cooler elements Wednesday morning suggested that the attack was somewhat of a success, and that meteorologists and others would be less disturbed in explaining. It has leaked out from scientific circles that this drouth period was planned in an atmospheric furnace above the Pacific ocean 1,000 miles off the coast of California last winter. In this planning business for remotely situated and widely scattered subjects we think New Dealers and the weather ought to get together and talk things over in advance.

Holding Freedom THE Saturday Evening Post emphasizes a warning to two college graduates who criticized the supreme court, that the very liberties which they want for themselves, would be jeopardized if the high tribunal were not functioning according to the constitution. College professors who attack constitutional safeguards and fearlessly upholding of American rights are reminded that their freedom would be among the first to be forfeited if this government were changed and modeled after the foreign pattern.

Following a discussion of the subject, the Post draws this conclusion: "If study of the humanities leads to inhumanity, even though it temporarily wears the cloak of charity; if study of the realities leads to unreality, even though it temporarily wears the cloak of high purpose, then education in the United States is a flat failure. But we do not believe that those who have seized the spotlight and the loud-speaker represent the majority opinion of our colleges and universities and their heads. No man who has read deeply and who has thought things through in the light of the past and the present, can fail to see that present-day tendencies lead toward the destruction of their most-cherished ideals. And these men, we believe, are still in the majority in our educational institutions."

What Is Representative Program? R. Hope of Kansas, asks: "Just what is the administration's agricultural program?" The president expressed gratification over a ten per cent increase in wheat acreage in the presence of drouth, whereas last fall farmers were asked to reduce their winter wheat five per cent. This led Representative Hope to express amazement in this way:

"Until the president spoke no intimation had come out of Washington that the administration had any other idea in mind than a reduction in these crops. "Now that the drouth is threatening, and it appears that the reduction program was a mistake, the president comes forward with the astounding inference that this increased planting was really a part of the administration's plan all along. "In other words, the administration is now attempting to get out in front and lead the parade the other way."

Up to Tuesday night 2,800 persons in the United States had perished from heat. Danged Dr. W. S. Petty of Sioux City, director of the Woodbury county health unit, to advise people to slow down both mentally and physically during the hot spell. Children become fretty when they get hot and don't know what ails them. They make their mothers fretty if the latter are unable to look at the inevitable philosophically. Adult irritability makes children feel, and act worse. Father comes in with a face long enough to feed out of an old-fashioned churn, and whatever he permits himself to say sounds like an attempt to fix responsibility for the weather on his family. This state of mind increases suffering and aggravates the heat peril. Most people are careful to ease off on physical endeavors while the mercury soars above the hundred mark. One way to escape danger points is to avoid borrowing troubles and magnifying evils.

Aside from name, the democratic party is no longer the party of Jefferson. That sturdy old pillar in the original democratic structure couldn't now figure any similarity between what he advocated and what present usurpers of the party equipment now stand for. So, democratic editors who have abandoned the New Deal as not democratic, really have no reason to offer explanations or apologies. They are where they were, but the democratic party, as they knew it, has disappeared.

John D. Rockefeller, oil magnate, appeared in the best of health and spirits as he reached his ninety-seventh birthday during the past week. He has practiced regular habits of rest and nourishment, always abstaining from excesses. He has had a steadfast faith in a hereafter, believing that his experience here is just the beginning of life and usefulness. His state of mind has undoubtedly supported habits of abstemiousness in prolonging his life.

George N. Peek who was the first administrator under the AAA setup, withdrawing after finding himself out of accord with the plan, says he does not agree with any policy that curtails home production and invites shipments from abroad. Peek has been studying Landon and Landon's ideas touching agriculture and other national problems, and he expresses confidence in the Kansan's judgment.

A late report states that in view of drouth conditions the government proposes to hurry up payments on 1936 farm contracts, paying in September amounts due in December. Faith in the prospect would be stimulated if past due 1935 payments were hurried along.

The proposed step by the city council to abolish the firecracker nuisance altogether on the Fourth will meet the hearty approval of people who believe they can be patriotic without making a big noise and menacing the lives and property of neighbors.

This being "national railroad week," attention is centered on the great value of railroads in developing the country. Besides facilitating growth, the railroads excel as tax and wage payers.

REAL VALUES.

We think normal persons esteem the love and confidence of children above any material gratification. Some children, having little and expecting little, are refreshingly responsive to kindnesses—appropriate gifts no matter how small. Often some children, having much, want more, are never satisfied and are ever complaining. What happy memories cling to the experience of making personal sacrifice for youngsters and seeing their eyes brighten with gratitude. The parent who is forced to cut costs, finds a wealth of joy in the fine spirit of appreciation that reacts to the best he can do. Family ties are strengthened by carefully planned and mutually helpful household economy. Good feeling is more important than uncertain abundance, and this is better assured with frugal habits, keeping within one's means and avoiding unsupported excess. Children want nice things, and they should have them as far as possible. They enjoy luxuries, and they should have them in reasonable moderation. But if they can eschew envy and share responsibility, how much greater is their health and content!

SUNDAY'S PAPER.

How the sensibilities are stirred by news in the morning newspaper—especially Sunday morning when more time is afforded for review and contemplation! Witness last Sunday's papers: We are appalled by the automobile tragedies. A Sioux City girl is killed and others are injured in a collision near Hartington. A Malvern, Iowa, editor who had often urged, through his columns caution in motor-ing, is crushed to death in a wreck near Plattsmouth, Neb. Whether faulty driving or faulty cars or obstructed view or reckless disregard of rules of the road, results are the same—death and sorrow. We notice an Omaha mother killed her husband as he threatened her by brandishing a dangerous brick. She had her children to think of, and he had his stomach to think of, his murderous fury whipped up by a demand for money to buy liquor. It is almost inconceivable that a man could become such a brute. We read that the present drouth was detected by federal crop experts as early as April 2. If so, why didn't they tell Secretary Wallace, so he could arrange for increased instead of decreased acres under cultivation. Turning to politics, our feelings go up as we note the Landon lead given as a result of the survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion. Also we note the courage and clarity with which the editorial page exposes the fickleness and fallacy of the New Deal. How varying pulsations sweep through the nervous system as we scan the morning paper! We are glad, then sorry, then incensed. Some things we justify; others we condemn. What a compendium of world affairs is crowded into the Sunday edition! What a wealth of knowledge.

Former Teacher Recalls Early Days In Wayne

"It would have been a great privilege to me to attend the recent reunion of the Wayne school," writes E. H. Wilson of Chadron college to Mrs. E. J. Hunter. "Twenty-seven years have doubtless wrought great changes in the appearance of the boys and girls I used to know. I shall always remember them just as they were then."

"How well I remember your father (T. W. Moran) What an excellent member of the school board he was. He was conservative in his attitudes, clear in his judgment, always considerate of others and at all times thoroughly conscientious in public schools. He was one of the very best board members I knew."

Prof. Wilson who heads the social science department at Chadron, adds that he spent 10 days in a hospital last winter but is very well now and spends many hours each day at his school work.

College Instructor Appears In Play

When Miss Florence Drake, dramatics instructor at the college, takes the part of one of the sisters in the play, "Daisy Mayme," next Wednesday evening at the college, it will be her first appearance on the local stage. She has always preferred to give the acting opportunities to students.

The play is far the most ambitious undertaken by a summer school group and the cast is seriously trying to present an evening of wholesome entertainment in a somewhat finished manner.

The play directed by Miss Drake, is under the auspices of the college budget committee and is the only program on the student activity ticket for second summer term, taking the place of a play brought in by an outside company.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS THINK

Makes Position Clear.
The Omaha World-Herald makes this announcement of its political position:
"For about fifty years, under the ownership of Former Senator Hitchcock, the World-Herald was 'Democratic' in politics."
"On Mr. Hitchcock's death the World-Herald was changed to an independent newspaper, trying to explain fairly to our readers the facts as we saw them without partisan prejudice."
"We have stated editorially quite frankly that we do not like many actions of the 'new deal' administration, including broken promises, the unbalanced budget, profligate waste and expenditures and unconstitutional laws."
"We have also protested the projected regimentation of the nation under a central authority at Washington."
"A careful reading of our recent editorials will not leave much doubt as to our position."
Editor Cram Explains.
W. F. Cram, veteran Fairbury editor and life-long democrat, writes the following letter to the Lincoln Star:
"To the Editor of the Lincoln Star: It probably makes no difference who the editor of the Fairbury Journal is for or against politically. But having had my name in your paper sufficient to provoke considerable personal inquiry of me as to why I have changed my opinions, perhaps it would be well to satisfy a wondering public by making it more specific."
"First—I am not for President Roosevelt—far from it. I consider him the most dangerous man in America today, politically speaking."
"Because he seeks to destroy the American democratic system of government."
"He is not honest—no man is who will secure office on promises and pledges which he ignores after being seated."
"Second—I am not for Senator Norris and believe the country will be relieved when his term of office expires."
"Because he follows Roosevelt and incites him to experiments that are not founded on sound business principles."
"He has assailed the supreme court and publicly expressed a desire to see it changed if not destroyed."
"He has been in congress so long he has lost his perspective and his mind dwells continually upon theories which will not work. A new man, fresh from the people, would be a vast improvement at this time."
W. F. Cram.

Had Coolidge Lived.
Geneva Signal: If President Calvin Coolidge had lived until last Saturday he would have been only sixty-four years old. Probably the strain of carrying the presidential load shortened his life by a number of years. He took the duties of the office very seriously. He didn't think it funny to waste public money and he had no taste for experimentation with wild theories of government.

The Farmer Kicks.
York Republican: When the Roosevelt administration agreed with farmers to extend them certain money benefits in return for decreased production, a great many farmers readily agreed, considering the money not a gift from a charitable government, but a payment on a contract which in some manner the recipient would pay back in part or in full.

Now it is being urged that all farmers who received money benefits from the government ought to be loyal enough for gifts received to support the benefactor in time of need. The time of need is, of course, election day, 1936.

Unfortunately for the administration, but fortunately for manhood in the nation, there are thousands of these farmers who did not at the time and do not now look on the AAA check as a gift. It was paid off when the signer complied with the terms of the written contract. These men have a right to feel a sense of hot resentment when the whip of the democratic party, Mr. Farley, sends out word that the beneficiaries of AAA checks must come across with their votes for President Roosevelt.

Feed and Cattle.
Norfolk Daily News: "About half way between Dell Rapids and Sioux Falls, a nice field of barley has been plowed under as a part of the federal soil conservation program," says the Sioux Falls Argus-Leader. "And this destruction has taken place while sixty six miles to the west, the drought has created an acute feed shortage and farmers are wondering how they will feed their cattle."

Others are wondering, too. The Argus-Leader cites the incident as "an example of the shameful results of entrusting the nation's management to a group of starry-eyed theorists."
Figuratively speaking the government is plowing up feed with one hand and killing starving cattle with the other, which is all that need be said.

As to Popular Mandate.
York Republican: President said in his acceptance speech, "The people in 1932 gave the democratic party a mandate and I have faithfully carried that mandate into actuality." Farmer employs man to raise the ranch. Agreement states that hogs, wheat and corn to be raised. Man kills hogs, raises Jack and Jim rabbits. Employs a lot of help to plant another bush and Russian thistles. On that record the man wants the job another year. Farmer pulls down the southwest eyelid of his north eye and asks, "See anything green in this lamp?" Doubt piled up for children and grandchildren to pay. No difference between the rule that governs hiring a hand on the farm and the one that employs the top hand of the nation. The platform was the mandate. It was repudiated. The people did not vote to do what has been done. This year is the first chance the voters ever had to say whether or not they really enjoy being ruled from the top down instead of the Jefferson notion of governing from the bottom up. November 3rd is mandate day. Do you want to be told when to open and close shop, what to plant and when and how much to plant, when and where to sell at prices fixed in Washington?

House Trailer Provides Well For Travelers

"And a Gamping We Will Go" is the song proudly sung by Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Andrews. Who could blame them, particularly since they have a lovely cabin trailer to take along? The trailer is five rooms in one, a dining room, bedroom, kitchen, parlor and bath. With every possible space of the 16 by 6 foot trailer consumed in cabinets and drawers, the cabin meets all the requirements necessary to provide for a home. Imagine taking your table and making a bed out of it, or having a cupboard which discloses a stove, or a table which shields a sink. All of this is possible in the Andrews trailer camp.

The interior of the trailer is finished in a dark and light mahogany veneer. The exterior is covered with leather which is of a heavier composition than a Spanish leather. The trailer is equipped with electric lights and water. Some of the lights are connected to the car battery and the rest of the electricity is provided by a windmill which is located on the top. The water tank is in the back of the trailer and looks very much like a gas tank.

A full length mirror and clothes closet are additional features. Mr. Andrews finds that the trailer does not interfere with his driving, except on very rough roads. It takes only one gallon of gas per 100 miles to carry the Andrews trailer. Mr. Andrews expect to leave in a short while for Wyoming and they may possibly travel in other western states.

Lynette Rennick Writes Of Yellowstone Experiences

Local Girl Enjoys New Position At Park Auditor.

SCENERY IS BEAUTIFUL

"It is a great privilege to work where you have only to raise your eyes and turn your head very slightly and have all that beauty spread out in front of you," writes Miss Lynette Rennick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Andrews of Wayne. Miss Rennick has just recently secured a position at the Canyon hotel in Yellowstone park. The text of Miss Rennick's letter is as follows:

"Four hundred fifty strong (or thereabouts) we thronged the Los Angeles central station on the evening of Sunday, June 14. Eager, more or less excited people waiting for the departure of the Yellowstone Park Special at 8 o'clock. Everyone had from two to ten people to see him off—so you can just use your imagination as to the hullabaloo which they set up. And at 8:30 the train managed to get under way with about half of the summer staff for the entire park aboard.

"The train consisted of 11 pullman coaches, two chair cars, one dining car and a baggage car. It took (or at least there were) six people to collect tickets and call the roll for the crowd—three representatives of the park company and three for the R. P. At Las Vegas early Monday morning we picked up the orchestra for Canyon hotel and an extra dining car—not for the orchestra alone, however.

"Monday was a long hot day across the desert of Nevada and Utah. In the afternoon we ran into a sand storm and every window had to be closed (the only air conditioned cars on were the dining cars.) Monday night we had a 45-minute stop in Salt Lake City and managed to get some good fresh air and were especially admonished not to miss the train. It would be the last one for West Yellowstone for four days. The son of the Big Boss did manage to miss it but he hired a car and caught up with us at Ogden.

"Tuesday morning, June 16, everyone was up bright and early as we were supposed to be at West Yellowstone by 7 o'clock in the morning. We arrived at 9:10 but had one thinned much (the others had been taken off and we were getting hungry) because the scenery was beautiful. It was not as cold as we had expected it to be. There was a mad scramble all over that little place for breakfast. After that we just waited and in due time we were herded into the big yellow park buses and whisked off to our respective destinations.

"Lucky, as usual, my destination happened to be the Canyon hotel—the prettiest place in the park (subject to dispute, I suppose). Arriving shortly after 1 o'clock everyone rushed up the transportation mess hall (the only place open) and ate stew, bread and butter, apple pie, cheese and coffee. Then—to work.

"A crowd of employees had also arrived through the Gardner entrance from St. Paul. The majority of maids are Finnish girls from Red Lodge, Montana. The staff includes a great many college youngsters. The chef is a six-foot three-inch Irishman—very well read and amusing. The head waiter is a university graduate and an athletic coach during the winter. One of the bell captains just passed his Nebraska dental examinations and one of the porters is a full-fledged osteopath. Another bellman is a law student at university of Minnesota. The hostess is from Maryland and has been at sea on the Grace line for four years. The chief clerk is a Stanford student—and so on down the list.

"Everything is dismantled here for the winter and porters, bellmen, housemen, maids, etc. are immediately put to work to get the place in order for the opening on the 20th (the park was already open to automobiles). I was amazed at the speed, quiet and efficient manner in which everyone worked. And how amazingly congenial everyone was in the midst of all the uproar (is that a contradiction?) A great many of this year's Canyon staff (there are 216 here exclusive of the engineering staff and the transportation men) are first season people—which makes it doubly difficult. Several of the heads of the departments have worked together before (chef, housekeeper, superintendent of service, etc.) being from El Mirador hotel in Palm Springs, Calif. The manager, Mr. Buck—well, words will hardly express how very much everyone admires him.

Wayne Vicinity Fortunata Says Dakota Visitor

The vicinity of Wayne presents the best crop prospects between here and Bismarck, N. D., a distance of about 350 miles, according to Earle F. Tucker of that city who was in Wayne last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tucker and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Tucker of Crofton, spent the day here with Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Bingham, the latter a daughter of the A. F. Tucker and sister of Earle F. Tucker.

Bismarck and vicinity have not had any rain this season, though the locality had plenty of snow last winter. There is no sign of crops at Bismarck. In fact this is the fourth year in succession, states Mr. Tucker, that that vicinity has had a failure. Last season some feed was realized.

Land around Bismarck is both under cultivation and in grazing. Wheat and corn are the principal crops raised on the cultivated lands. When the land does produce corn, adds Mr. Tucker, the stalks, which grow to a height of about two feet, make a yield of 50 to 65 bushels to the acre. But there is neither wheat nor corn this season, and the grass on grazing lands is burned out.

People of North Dakota expect crop failures but they manage to live well. They don't worry over a crop failure for that can't help them, states Mr. Tucker. And a failure does not affect business greatly, the visitor said, and substantiated his statement with information that in the automobile business, in which he is engaged as salesman, his firm alone sold 65 units (new and second-hand cars) last month. This was after people knew the crop was gone.

"People keep right on buying; they find the money to buy with and they are contented." Mr. Tucker, who has traveled over the northern middle western states considerably, reports "hoppers" worse in the northern and western parts of South Dakota.

Mr. Tucker feels that people of Wayne vicinity should feel very fortunate in their conditions. Though the small grain was hurt, the corn looks good here.

Mr. Tucker was on the railroad in northeast Nebraska between 1912-15.

HISTORY OF WAYNE BAND TOLD BY EARLY MEMBERS

Amusing Incidents Revealed By Original Players Organizing Wayne's First Band In '84.

Back in 1884 when Wayne had only one sodded street, sidewalks eight feet wide and made of planks, and wooden awnings hanging from the buildings, the business men, all of them, decided to form a Wayne band.

There were nine local business men in the band, some of whom are familiar to the older Wayne residents today. The leader was Robert W. Wilkins, druggist, who played the cornet. Charles M. Craven, photographer, played the clarinet. John E. Bennett, real estate owner, played the cornet. Charles Woytler, painter, played the tuba; Sam Davies, newspaper agent, played the tenor horn; H. A. Danielson, jeweler, played the clarinet; John F. Sherrban, brick yard owner, played the snare drum; and J. M. Cherry, carpenter, now county judge, played the bass drum.

The name of this organization was "The Wayne Silver Cornet Band." The first time the musicians played in public was at the first county fair in Wayne in 1885. The festival was held where Ted Perry's feed yards now stand. For this performance, the band succeeded in getting bright red shirt waists.

From the proceeds of the fair the band bought new instruments and hired a director. They were paid nothing for the music at the fair, but the fair commission gave the band concession rights and they cleared about $400.00.

This first band had headquarters in what was at that time the old skating rink which stood on the site of the present city hall. It was a very old building with a tar roof but according to Judge Cherry it was the community center. All skating parties, dances and shows were held in this one building.

Several years after this in the late '80s, the musicians contracted with the Sioux City "Corn Palace band," and were known as the Wayne Corn Palace Street band and considered one of the best in the northwest. They met trains, delegations and conventions. There were sixteen members. Harry Fisher replaced J. M. Cherry and some outsiders came into the band.

story of "The Other Wise Man." At the business session plans were made for an ice cream social. The hostesses served. The W. W. G. will have charge of the August meeting and a picnic is planned if weather permits.

Grace Lutheran Aid. Mrs. Frank Longe entertained Grace Lutheran Aid Friday afternoon at the chapel. Guests were Mrs. Bertha Siefert, Mrs. Otto Heithold, Mrs. W. H. Racherbauer and Mrs. Ed. Frevert. The hostess served after a social time. Mrs. H. Hopmann entertains August 7.

World Wide Guild. World Wide Guild met Friday evening with Miss Marjorie Dawes at the Donald Fitch home. Miss Grace Chichester assisted. Miss Florence Drake gave a resume of the work she has observed among the negroes. The society is studying the American negro this year. Discussion followed. The hostesses served. The society may have a picnic in August.

Recital By Pupils. Mrs. Paul Harrington presented piano pupils in a recital at her residence studio Thursday evening, mothers and friends being guests. Light refreshments were served. Billie Lee Hahn received a booklet as reward for playing the minor scales and naming the relative major, the signature and leading tone of each. The program follows: Duet, "The Mill" by Schmitt; the white major scales, ensemble, Dorothy and Alice Smolski; "Three Little Studies in the Key of F," Betty Franzen; "Do's Best Friends" and "March," by Blake, Bonnie Jean Kabisch; "Study," "Surprise" and "The Cricket," Patty O'Hara; "The Twelve Minor Scales," Billy Lee Hahn; "Cradle Song," Scott; Alice Smolski; "The Clock," "Our Soldier," "Chord Study," "The Rainbow," and "The Rain," Betty Franzen; "Shadows," by Still-

Mines In Nevada Are Very Active Reports Visitor

Conditions in Nevada are better this summer than they have been for 25 years, reports Curtis Walker of Gardnerville, Nev., a visitor in the T. S. Hook home Wednesday and Thursday. Mr. Walker owns and operates several mines. Many of the older mines have reopened and are actively producing ore. Mr. Walker believes that last winter was the best in the mines for several years. In going to one of his mines Mr. Walker had to go through a 40-foot snowdrift this summer. This is a very good indication, as it assures the valleys of ample water supply for crops.

Mr. Walker is in the heart of the mining region and has been connected with mines since he was 14 years of age. He does his own prospecting and often leases out a mine of a company for operation. The visitor came here from Whiting, Ia., where he had been visiting his daughter, Alice, who with a friend, Ivy Richards, accompanied him to Wayne.

Mr. Walker married a cousin of Mr. Hook and was closely associated with him in business when the Hook family lived in western Nevada.

Common Things Appreciated By Restored Sight

Seldom does one stop to appreciate the everyday beauties of life until they are taken away. Last week when a surgeon performed delicate operations to restore sight, a man looked all about him and then directed his sight toward the sky with the remark, "I never knew anything could be so beautiful as the blue sky." A woman who had her sight restored, when asked what she thought most beautiful, replied, "The human face for its expressiveness."

Dramatics Class To Present Play

Wayne State Teachers College dramatics class, directed by Miss Florence Drake, will present the three-act comedy, "Daisy Mayme," at Wednesday evening, July 22, at the auditorium. George Kelly, author of the drama, is noted for his character studies. "Daisy Mayme" deals with two middle-aged sisters with homes of their own and with their bachelor brother in whose home a niece lives. Interference of the sisters with the affairs of the brother and niece makes an interesting study of American types.

The cast includes the following: Ruth Fenner, Helen Aiken, Mrs. Laura Fenner, Frances Tom-jack, Mrs. Ollie Kipax, Florence Drake, Cliff Mettinger, Milton Evans; May Phillips, Peace King-ston; Daisy Mayme Plunkett, La Verne Rundquist, Charlie Snyder, Llewellyn Whitmore; and Mr. Fillion, Robert Bromer.

Students and others enjoyed the production last Thursday of "He and She" by an all-star cast including William Day, Dorothy Peterson, Elvora Hepfinger, Dorothy Terry, Arnold Peterson, Dorley Feggerson, Ruth Hepfinger and Margaret Bruner.

Assessed Value Of Property Is Up

Lincoln, July 9—A net increase of $13,445,783 in the total of 1936 assessed valuations over 1935 on all tangible property, exclusive of railroads, in fifty-one of Nebraska's ninety-three counties was shown today in a compilation of returns received thus far by State Tax Commissioner W. H. Smith.

The grand total of 1936 valuations for the fifty-one counties was $791,056,007, while the 1935 total for the same group was $771,610,239. The total increase by counties was $14,949,510, but eight of the counties reported decreased valuations. The decreases totaled $1,503,742, bringing the net increase down to $13,445,788 or 1.7 percent over last year.

Motor vehicle valuations were responsible for $5,001,748 of the net increase in all property, mainly because of a recently enacted law which requires payment of property taxes on motor vehicles at the time the annual license plates are purchased.

The fifty-one counties reported a total of $13,282,904 in motor vehicle values for 1936 and a total of $8,281,156 in 1935, an increase of 35 percent.

Intangible property likewise was valued higher in the same counties this year. The total for 1936 thus far is $30,734,838 while that for 1935 for the fifty-one counties was $28,755,271, the net increase being $1,979,567 or 6 percent for intangibles. In this classification twenty-three counties reported increases and twenty-eight decreases.

Nebraska Compares Favorably With New York Style Center

"Styles in Nebraska are as up-to-date as in New York City," was the surprising revelation of Mrs. H. E. Ley, who with her husband and Miss Josephine Ley has just returned from a two weeks' trip to New York City.

New York now has a fad of "charm bracelets" and clocks in a miniature size. Women also are wearing brightly colored silk and wool handkerchiefs around their heads in peasant style. These were the only noticeable changes in style between Nebraska and New York, according to Mrs. Ley.

Mrs. Ley, whose interests are along artistic lines, was particularly interested in the Metropolitan Museum and the Museum of Natural History. One complete room in the Metropolitan museum is devoted to the Central American explorations. This room contains reconstructed temples, altars, pottery, sculpturing and large columns. It also contains a great deal of jewelry which was found in tombs.

Another feature of the museum is feather cloaks made by the Aztec Indians for their chieftains. These feathers were taken from birds and woven into intricate designs.

Mrs. Ley was particularly impressed by the entrance to the Natural History Museum. As one enters the building, he is confronted by huge pillars in a massive hall. "I felt very small and insignificant in comparison," remarked Mrs. Ley. The building was dedicated to Theodore Roosevelt at the time President Roosevelt was governor of New York. The corridor walls are covered with murals depicting the different countries in which Theodore Roosevelt traveled. There are also many quotations from his books painted on the walls.

"The cases around the walls are filled with stuffed animals," continued Mrs. Ley, "and they look very realistic, particularly since the background is painted to portray the natural environment of each animal." Twigs and soil form the floor for these animals.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art has sponsored an Egyptian expedition and now has 14 rooms of Egyptian collections. The management reconstructed several temples, one of which is about 314 feet. The figures used in this imitation are about 1-4 inch high, thus giving the approximate size of the temples. The steps and high columns are also reconstructed.

One of the other features is the room of jewels. Some of the original collars owned by queens are here, Mrs. Ley remarked that they are very beautiful. They are about six inches wide and are set with jewels in such a way that they form a pattern, usually a hawk's head.

Other pieces of jewelry include rings and necklaces, many set with huge stones, pieces of beaten gold, links of stones, filigreed gold.

Another particularly impressive room is the Hall of Armor. Most of the suits of armor are very expensive. It is thought that three of these suits cost approximately $500,000. One sword set with diamonds cost almost $1,000,000.

There are six model horses in the hall equipped completely with armor. The complete outfit is present in most instances, including the padded suit, the chained suit and the steel suit of armor. Most of the steel suits have very fine carving on them.

One of the Egyptian rooms in the Metropolitan museum depicts the early life of the Egyptian. All of these models were taken from the tombs of the people and portray their entire civilization.

"Egyptians had these so that they could be handed down to their spirits in order for them to carry on the work of the Egyptian people," remarked Mrs. Ley. "Actual cloth, beads, chairs and other furniture, even a blind harp, singing to his master was modeled," continued Mrs. Ley. One box of over 100 dolls was found. This was to represent servants for waiting on the dead.

Mrs. Ley got to be quite an experienced New Yorker, and had little trouble finding her way around. She was not particularly impressed by tall buildings since the streets are so wide the buildings do not seem tall except in Wall street.

Wall street is a very narrow one-way thoroughfare, and the sidewalks are only wide enough for one person. Here the buildings are quite tall and go right straight up to the air.

The Wayne people were quite fascinated when they ate at the Automat, where food is dispensed as in a slot machine and they thoroughly enjoyed eating at tea houses. "It was much more enjoyable to eat at different places and gave me more of a chance to see New York," remarked Mrs. Ley.

Other points of interest which Mrs. Ley enjoyed were the Statue of Liberty, a trip on the Hudson river, and the aquarium.

While the Lays were in New York, Mr. Ley attended a banking school at Rutgers university.

Cedar county Red Cross plans to establish first aid at service stations.

I Crossed the Continent on a Cupful o' RED CROWN!

Hosts Kermit Kidder

IT'S something of a hobby with me—crossing the continent is. But, old experienced continent-crosser that I am, do I have my eye-opened this Spring? I do!

"Always before, I make the trip by foot, figuring I'm money ahead if other folks buy the gasoline. This time, though, I get reckless. I decide to forget expense and go in my own car. 'But, Kermit,' I say to myself, 'don't go completely nuts all at once. Take it easy and gradual.' I say.

"That's sensible, so I start it off with just one tea-cupful of gasoline in the tank. And right there is where I get my eye-opened; it happens to be Red Crown gasoline that I buy. And do I have to make another single stop for gas the whole way across? I do not! That one cupful takes me coast to coast, and I even have trouble stopping the car when I get to the Golden Gate!

We don't believe Kermit could really have been serious about this matter. In fact, we don't believe there is any such person.

It is a fact, though, that many motorists do have false or exaggerated ideas about gasoline mileage. That's why Standard Oil is conducting a great public road test this summer, in which thousands of motorists are taking part.

Reports already indicate that many are learning valuable new facts about the economical operation of their cars—discovering how to use gasoline more efficiently—finding out which brand of motor fuel does the best and cheapest job for them. Even if you aren't entered in the World's Greatest Road Test, it will pay you to

LEARN THE TRUTH ABOUT GASOLINE MILEAGE

THIS SYMBOL identifies the thousands of cars throughout the United States entered in the World's Greatest Road Test. Text conducted by Municipal Oil.

HAVE YOUR STANDARD DEALER FILL YOUR TANK WITH STANDARD RED CROWN. Then note carefully how many miles you drive before you need gasoline again. Compare that mileage with any you've ever gotten before.

We know from our own tests that Standard Red Crown is good for fully as long a mileage as any regular street gasoline on the market. But rather than make claims, we prefer to let Standard Red Crown speak for itself.

Rainy Weather Is Experienced By Travelers

Rain, rain, rain! And only two days of summer weather the last of June. It hardly sounds possible to middle westerners but such has been the case in England, writes Mrs. H. C. Capsey to Mrs. E. W. Huse, Mrs. Capsey and two children are spending the summer near London.

"The weather has been cold and rainy ever since we landed except for yesterday and the day before when we enjoyed summer. Now it is raining and is cold and gloomy again this morning."

"On Tuesday, which happened to be one of the summer days, we went to Windsor castle, Stoke Poges church and Eton college on one of the Thomas Cooks conducted tours. We went through apartments of Windsor castle; visited Stoke Poges church and church yard where Gray wrote his famous elegy; and then to Eton college where we were shown many of the classrooms where the desks and forms have been in use since 1480. There are 1158 boys in residence at the college and the waiting list is filled up until 1946. Over 1100 old Etonians were killed during the great war and the school has a small memorial chapel and a memorial window with all the names engraved."

Mrs. Capsey relates that she and her children visited the houses of parliament and Westminster abbey and spent some time in the house of lords and house of commons. They planned to spend a few days at Westliff-on-Sea with a woman Mrs. Capsey has known since girlhood. On June 26 they visited Crystal palace where they heard a large choir of girls sing and where the Duchess of York lighted candles during the ceremony. The Wayne folks plan to visit St. Agnes of the north coast of Cornwall for two weeks.

Mrs. Capsey has secured return passage on the Queen Mary, the new English ship, and the three will sail for home from Southampton August 19. They will spend a little time in New York, Washington and Chicago. "The children are enjoying all the many things and will have plenty to remember. We'll be glad to get back to our little grey home in the west but are having a wonderful time. We think of dear old Wayne many times," Mrs. Capsey concludes.

BOBBY THATCHER—The Spokesman . . .

WELL, I DON'T SEE HOW YOU'D START A DIME MUSEUM WITH JUST A SET OF SKULL BONES FOR A STARTER... YOU'D NEED A BEARDED LADY AND A SWORD SWALLOWER TO GO ALONG WITH IT, AND THE TOWN AIN'T BIG ENOUGH TO MAKE IT PAY

BEEN A BUSINESS MAN I AIN'T INTERESTED IN ANYTHING LIKE THAT, BUT THERE'S A LOTTA FOLKS ROUND HERE THAT WOULD BE... WHY DON'T YOU GO OVER AND SEE THE EDITOR OF THE GAZETTE HE MIGHT PUT A PIECE IN THE PAPER ABOUT IT

I'LL DO THE TALKIN' TO MR. THATCHER AND YOU KEEP STILL... AND DON'T BE BUTTIN' IN WITH WHATCHA GOTTA SAY LIKE YOU DID WHEN I WAS TELLIN' MR. FITTS ABOUT IT
